

Steiger found competent to stand trial

BY KEN VOYLES

Following five months at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital, a Canton man has been found competent.

RONALD STEIGER

to stand trial in the shooting death of his wife last June.

During a Thursday hearing, Ronald Steiger was ruled competent by 35th District Court Judge James Garber, who ordered the 53-year-old held in the shooting death of his wife Irene T. Steiger. Steiger will next be examined on March 8 before Garber to determine if he should be bound over for trial in Detroit Recorder's Court.

Garber based his decision on the testimony of Dr. Mario Zamora, the treating physician and director of forensics at Northville. Zamora made his recommendation to the court at last week's hearing and in a letter he sent to the court in January.

The decision reverses one made last August when Steiger was originally committed to Northville for further treatment following an evaluation at Ypsilanti Center for Forensic Psychiatry.

At the time Garber said it was "highly likely" that Steiger would eventually be able to stand trial. Under state law, Steiger could be treated for no longer than 15 months, by which time he would have to improve to be held over for trial.

Attorney Robert Greenstein said he tried to talk with his client but had "no cooperation at all."

"I put him on the stand Thursday," said Greenstein. "It's a dicey thing to do, but I felt the recommendation was lukewarm."

Greenstein said that while on the stand Steiger could offer no more of a reply to questions than, "I don't know," or "I don't care."

"I didn't hear a lot that was rational," said Greenstein. "After he got off the stand I thought I'd hear the judge commit him. Now I have to go ahead and defend someone who can't help his own defense."

Zamora said Steiger "understands all this" and can be held as competent for trial. To stand trial Steiger has to understand the charge against him and be able to cooperate with his attorney.

Greenstein said Zamora testified to the fact that Steiger had been "lightly medicated" during treatment. It remained unclear, however, just how often Zamora had seen the patient, said Greenstein.

Greenstein also said Zamora recommended keeping Steiger at Northville instead of sending him to Wayne County Jail. But Zamora said

Loophole protects Pursell, Ford

BY PAUL GARGARO

Is there any way to beat incumbent U.S. Congressmen whose coffers are filled with with leftover campaign contributions?

That's just one of the questions raised in a Public Citizen's Congress Watch (Ralph Nader's lobby) study entitled, "House Insurance."

The thrust of the January study centered on a "grandfather" clause exempting U.S. Representatives who took office before January, 1980, from the subsequent law prohibiting the private use of campaign funds.

Study co-author Peter Meryash said the study also examined the possible effects of these compounded campaign coffers on the success rates of incumbents seeking re-election.

"They have incredible war chests (funds) and it poses tremendous barriers to challengers," said Meryash. "Legislation has been introduced to close the grandfather loophole. It's so important to start improving the ground rules for campaign finances."

According to the study, U.S. Representatives have a total of $67,135,087 in campaign accounts. This figure represents a 39 per cent increase from the 1985-86 balance of $48,429,547.

The study concludes that the 190 members grandfathered under this

Jean found guilty of obstructing police

BY PAUL GARGARO

After an day-long trial, it took the six-person jury only 10 minutes to reach its verdict.

Guilty.

Canton resident Cecile Jean, 45, a parishioner of Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church (OLGC) in Plymouth, was found guilty last Wednesday of obstructing and interfering with police on the night of her May 9 arrest for trespassing at the parish rectory.

However, the criminal trespassing charges, brought against Jean by OLGC Pastor Fr. Richard Perfetto, were dismissed on October by 35th District Court Judge James Garber.

At the time of her arrest, parish meetings were being held in the rectory.

According to Garber, Jean was not guilty of criminal trespass because she was a member in good standing of OLGC; she did not create a nuisance or have criminal intent; the parish meetings were announced in the parish bulletin; other parishioners were allowed to attend; and the meetings were held in a public part of the rectory.

Despite that decision, Jean could not beat the charge of obstruction, which is a misdemeanor with a maximum penalty of 90 days in jail and/or a $500 penalty. Her case is currently being studied by the court's probation department.

According to her attorney Robert Roether, she has no prior police record.

"Was it her intent to resist or assist in the arrest," asked prosecuting attorney Ron Lowe? "She knew she was going to force them to carry her out."

According to witnesses, including Plymouth Police Sgt. Robert Scoggins,

Canton banks threatened

Two Canton banks were apparent targets in a series of bombing threats made last week in both Canton and Westland, according to the Canton Police Department.

Last Tuesday, at about 2:30 p.m. both the First of America Bank on Ford Road and the Security Bank and Trust on Canton Center Road received calls from a male, who police said, requested that $5,000 be put in a bag and set out front of the bank. The caller said a blue car would come by and pick up the money.

Police added that the caller said if that procedure was not followed a bomb would go off in the banks within 15 minutes.

Dave Boljesic, Canton Police's community liaison officer, said the department responded immediately and evacuated both buildings for "a short time." He added, though, that "nothing out of the ordinary was found."

Boljesic said that there is no history of such threats in Canton. "We haven't had any problems since either," he added.

Besides Canton's investigation, officials from the Detroit FBI office are also looking into the case, said Boljesic.

"I'd treat this as a lot more serious than a prank," Boljesic said. "We're not treating it as a prank."

Boljesic said the department has also contacted the other banks in the community to advise them of the threats.

"We don't have anything at this time," said Boljesic, other than the description of a "blue car" and the male voice.

Group forms to discuss peace issues

A group of Canton and Salem students have formed a local chapter of Michigan SANE-Freeze, a multi-issue political organization that focuses on environmental, nuclear, and foreign policy.

"Basically, we want to get people together, to help make them aware of the issues around them," said Stacia Bannan, one founder of the group.

"Right now we're focusing on the MX -- we're concerned about where it is going to be located," she said, adding that the group will also discuss American policy toward El Salvador.

Representatives of the Michigan SANE-Freeze, which is based in Ann Arbor, attended a meeting last week at Canton, and addressed students about organizing, and about particular issues they may want to tackle.

Budget cuts leave P-C schools with necessities

BY JOHN BRODERICK

When a ship is sinking, there comes a point when nothing more can be thrown overboard -- only the bare necessities remain.

"I think we may have done too good a job of keeping the ship afloat," said E.J. McClendon, trustee on the

FUNDING THE FUTURE

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education recently.

He said that voters don't realize the extent of cuts the district has had to make, because they have succeeded in what officials have called "protecting the classroom."

The Plymouth-Canton school district is operating this year with $4.4 million less than they were last year. And the classroom has, to a large degree, been protected.

But in June voters will face a request for four addition mills, in addition to a request for an eight mill renewal.

With the renewal only, school officials say that the district would lose an additional $3.3 million. And any more cuts would not be pretty.

The list of specific cuts that have been made is long. And it shows exactly what programs and services are now suffering.

The largest single area cut, in terms of dollars, was for teachers and learning specialists (certified staffing). Forty-nine positions were cut throughout the three levels, which amounted to $1,075,000. The elementary level lost 22.2 positions, the middle school level 12.9, and 13.9 at the high school level.

Major maintenance projects have been basically put on hold.

The $460,000 cut from this area represents the second largest -- 40 per cent less than was initially budgeted for the 1989-90 school year to keep the district's infrastructure intact.

Now, only high priority items, and those which involve safety hazards, will be considered, officials have said.

Administration across the district was cut by 11 per cent. This meant not replacing the position of executive director of secondary education (after the previous director retired), having no principal at Tanger Elementary, no assistant principal at Isbister or Eriksson Elementaries, and making the TAG coordinator the assistant principal at East Middle School.

In addition, the four curriculum coordinators were cut from half time, to one quarter time. These cuts saved the district $306,000.

The amount originally budgeted for staff development for the 1989-90 school year was $300,000. After the budget cuts, $50,000 remained, for district-wide development programs.

The purchase of new textbooks was halted for the 1989-90 school year. At the elementary level, $115,400 was

Study targets Congressional coffers

"loophole" have an average of $206,382 in their campaign coffers and will be allowed to take this with them on retirement.

Included in "House Insurance" were recommendations for campaign reforms which include: providing limited, free air time for candidates; limiting PAC contributions; repealing the current "grandfather clause"; banning honoraria (speaking fees, etc. from lobby groups); ending campaign fun transfers between candidates; beefing up the Federal Election Commission enforcement policies.

Mentioned among the list of grandfathered congressmen were Carl Pursell R- 2nd District, which includes Plymouth and Plymouth Township, and William Ford D-15th District, which includes portions of Canton.

Neither Ford nor Pursell were listed among the top 50 campaign fund holders.

Figures released in the Public Citizens' study listed Pursell with $116,773 on hand as of Nov. 28, 1988. Ford was shown to have $157,572 as of that same date.

Both men were re-elected in November. Pursell's race against State Senator Lana Pollack, of Ann Arbor, was a financial record-setter for Michigan congressional races.

According to Pursell Press Secretary

CARL PURSELL

Gary Cates, the congressman has made no decisions on what to do with the money.

"In terms of taking that money and pocketing it - at this point, Carl has made no indications that he won't run again," said Cates. "He has gone on record saying he would support changes in the campaign finance system."

Although Cates said Pursell has not taken a specific stance, he said the congressmen has expressed a need for reforms in Political Action Committees (PAC) contributions.

However, Cates said Pursell would be opposed to across the board spending limits.

"You can't compare the campaign costs in the Detroit market to the outstate markets," said Cates.

Ford spokesperson Tom Joyce said Ford has no plans to leave with his campaign account.

"Bill Ford has no plans to retire," said Ford spokesperson Tom Joyce. Ford is currently in his 13th term.

Joyce called the allegations that incumbents have an unfair financial advantage over challengers an "academic argument."

"It's a Catch-22. Every member needs campaign funds to run. That's the way the system works," said Joyce. "It's expensive to run a campaign today."

He added that the students showed interest in forming a group after seeing a guest speaker in one of his classes.

"I had a guest speaker recently, and the class seemed interested -- so I just made the connection, and they have been doing the rest," said the teacher.

The group plans to have regular meetings, and to participate with other peace oriented groups, in a march in downtown Detroit in the spring.

Concerned residents come forth

Rally behind schools

EDITOR:

In the grip of winter cold, it is heartening to feel the first warm breaths of what is shaping up to be a red hot school board election in June. After the disappointing election last June, with its crowded field of mostly unknown candidates and a tentatively promoted funding request, it appears we are in for a different ball game.

The incumbent, board president Dave Artley, has announced early that he is a candidate for reelection. This is an important development. It is desirable that the school board race be a contest between a relatively few, well qualified candidates, each with clearly stated and very different positions. The concerned voters of the district need an opportunity to express their real values regarding the quality of education in the Plymouth-Canton schools.

Equally important, the school board and the school administration seem ready to embark on a serious campaign to educate the public to the real threats posed by the fact that our district is facing a dramatic loss in per pupil state aid — reductions in the millions of dollars. This comes on top of last year's budget which required substantial cuts in programs and increases in class size, because voters turned down even a one-year-only rollback of the Headlee limitation.

At least one speaker at the school board workshop on Monday, Feb. 6, made very clear to the board that there are groups in the community ready to support a well thought-out program to keep the district in the forefront of providing a high quality education at a reasonable cost. The Committee for Academic Freedom and Excellence (CAFE) is one such group. We are studying the school funding issue closely and will soon issue a public statement about our position.

Our public schools are a critically important part of the community. They have a tradition of academic excellence that has long made this district a desirable place to live and work. If ever there was a time for citizens who believe in quality education to rally in support of the schools, it is now.

Consuming tidbits

Little berries of trivia

For the wise, education is a continual process. Ears and eyes are to be kept open and knowledge is to be absorbed.

At least that's the way it's supposed to be. One of the good (and sometimes bad) things about this job is that it's a continual lesson. Every week there's a new face to be seen, a new story to be heard and more information to be consumed.

Granted, the facts digested are often trivial and mundane, but they are FACTS nonetheless.

Here's a sampling of some of the wonderful items learned on the job during this past week:

- FAX machines are now standard equipment at many P-C governmental units and at the local libraries. It's the communication network of the '90s and P-C is hangin' 10 on the crest of this new wave. Actually, it's not quite that dramatic, but it is interesting. Isn't it? See The Crier's 1989 GUIDE for a listing of FAX numbers.

- Canton currently does not have a funeral home within its boundaries. What do Cantonites do with their dead? For years they've had to cross township lines for the services of a funeral home. However, help is on the way. Canton's primed for its first funeral parlor which is presently under construction. See Ken Voyles' article on page 14 for all of the details.

- Is she (he) a court reporter or a court recorder? There's a difference, a big difference. Go down to the 35th District Court and see for yourself. Without getting too technical, a court recorder actually records court proceedings with a machine. A reporter manually enters the court dialogue onto a transcript. Carol Ricardson is a recorder in Judge John MacDonald's court room. Carole

The last detail by Paul Gargaro

Goodfellow is a reporter for Judge James Garber. Who does better work? The jury is still out.

- What goes on in the offices above the stores on Main Street in downtown Plymouth? Everybody knows about what goes on on the ground level, but what's happening upstairs aside from the Plymouth Community Arts Council? Maybe next week, that can be added to the list of conquered trivia.

- Did you know there are at least two full-fledged barns in the City of Plymouth? My boss did. If it wasn't for the confused cow crossing Penniman yesterday, I'd have never believed it.

- Festoon signs will be banned under the city's new sign ordinance. A tremendous loss, if you happen to be a fan of festoon signs -- whatever they are. Actually a wind storm prior a downtown festival once brought one of these banner signs down along Main Street and took a light pole with it. On a happier note, the Penn Theatre, whose huge, historic marquee doesn't comply with proposed ordinance specifications, will be exempt from the new ordinance.

These are but a few of little berries of trivia just waiting to be plucked from our community tree. Next week there will be more, and the week after that, more still. Open your ears and wipe the sleep from your eyes. Think of what you're missing.

Community opinions

Swimming upstream

by John Broderick

Hippies have come and gone. Yuppies are on the way out. Get ready folks, for the age of Boomerang Babies.

Picture this: your kid goes away to college, the service, or simply to find his or her own self. As soon as you think you've recovered from the previous 18 years, you wake one morning to find that your kid is home - complete with a whole new set of attitudes and habits.

Now this arrangement can be difficult for a person. Imagine coming home and finding your bedroom occupied by a younger sibling. Or finding out your parents sold the house and bought a tiny condo (this essentially could be a way for parents to deter the Boomerang effect).

It's strange how things change in just five or six years. Dinner conversations are not what they used to be. "What is that you're reading? Don't you think a haircut might improve your employment possibilities? What do you mean you don't eat meat?"

Boomerang Babies are born of a unique set of circumstances: psychological, social, but mostly financial. They realize quickly that money is more important than they used to think.

For this reason, Boomerang Babies are known for showing a large amount of patience. With a roof over their head, low or no rent, and a home-cooked meal once in a while -- it's a good idea to avoid making waves.

Canton landfill is a possibility

An old solid waste landfill site along Lilley Road just south of Michigan Avenue is being eyed by Wayne County as a potential future site in its battle to control solid waste disposal.

It may be two or three years before that happens but Canton residents are already well aware of the potential for it happening.

That's why Canton Supervisor Tom Yack met with some homeowners last week.

Yack said that the days of fighting the county over the site are probably over, since the site is part of a county plan to deal with solid waste going into the 21st Century.

There's been talk of using the site for more than two years now, and, according to Yack, the site already contains four small landfills, including the "hot one," a toxic dump on the state's list for clean-up.

Yack said one of the tradeoffs, if the landfill should be okayed, is that the county will have to satisfy the state DNR and clean up the existing toxic site.

"This site is further through the DNR process than any other," said Yack. "Our residents obviously do not

In these tough financial times, it's no wonder that Boomerang Babies are a booming new segment of the population. And the implications are enormous. B-Bs could start organizations and become a major political force.

Now I don't mean coffee clubs, or organizing weekend carpools to various college towns in the area. I'm talking Boomerang Babies Action League, National Association for the Advancement of Boomerang Babies, or for those folks who need support in dealing with the trauma of moving home -- Boomerang Babies Anonymous.

Now is this all fabrication? Causing a hype where none really exists? Well then see for yourself. Next time you see a person around the ages of 23 to 25, ask them where they were between 18 and 22. You may just find more Boomerang Babies than you ever thought existed.

Boomerang Babies: have no fear, you are not alone. Don't let the stigma of moving home get you down. Just enjoy the low rent for a while, and put off joining the rat race for a bit longer.

And Boomerang Parents: look on the bright side, this may be the last chance you have to live with your son or daughter -- didn't you miss them while they were away?

On a more personal note: Mom, Dad, brothers, thanks for your patience. And remember, it's only temporary.

In the margin

By Ken Voyles

like the idea, but that landfill is in the county's plans."

Yack said that township officials will do their best to address the concerns of residents, especially those who live nearby.

With all of the focus on solid waste, recycling and the need for changing the way we do things, our garbage problem has come to the forefront of all the problems we have to face. And it's about time.

In fact, there is no time to lose. That's why the issue is such a hot topic, not only among government officials, but around the dinner table and at social functions.

We can talk and talk and talk, but something has to be done. And how. We tend to create our own problems (often in the name of progress) but then drop the ball when it comes time for solutions.

Yes, there will be sacrifice, but sacrifice is one of those civic duties we have to be prepared to accept.

With malice toward none

The news you read (and sometimes watch or hear) about The Plymouth-Canton Community is determined by many factors that might surprise you.

How the media operates, how media bottom lines affect your diet of news, and how Lady Luck (or Unluck sometimes) adds her touch are rarely discussed facets of the news business.

Remember the November 4 explosion and fire which injured one man and destroyed five apartments in Plymouth? It was on the television news and the daily newspapers carried it all over the state.

The City of Plymouth officials were so excited about the media coverage that Police Chief Richard Myers asked the newspaper located less than a block away for its FAX number to send press releases out.

Would a single-injury fire normally warrant such coverage outside of The Plymouth-Canton Community? No.

Why then did it grab attention?

Because most of the SE Michigan media had reporting and photo teams passing through town on their way back from covering George Bush's election-eve appearance at Schoolcraft College. Have you seen any follow-up stories in the Detroit media about the blaze? No.

And therefore, all these readers and viewers outside The Plymouth-Canton Community who originally learned of the fire, haven't heard about the blaze's most interesting development... it was set by the injured man, say police and arson officials.

Would you be satisfied to get your news from sources who cover things only when they happen to have news crews nearby?

On the other side of the coin, take the media coverage of "The Freezer Murder" in Canton.

Canton officials are privately chuckling that national media -- like the N.Y. Times -- have labeled the story "Plymouth, Michigan." It's an ironic reversal for the Canton Identity Boosters.

In this case, where the victim's husband is alleged to have bashed her head and tossed in the freezer for three years, the media have gone far out of their way to send news crews and to play the story beyond decency.

The defendant's attorney cried foul about the media attention to the police side of the story -- but denied the community newspaper's standard offer to interview his client for his side of the story: A new defense attorney asked District Judge James Garber to bar prosecutors and attorneys from talking about the case (haven't the horses already left the barn?) and to close the trial from the public and the media.

The 35th District Court has had one of the most open court policies in all of Wayne County since former Hizzoner Dunbar Davis took the bench, and closing the courtroom wasn't going to fly. But neither has Garber ordered extra folding chairs for the hordes of reporters-photographers expected to show when the case next comes up.

Would you be satisfied getting your news from media which throng to such sensationalized tragedy but can't be bothered to take a photo at the school science fair?

And if the proposed Joint Operating Agreement (JOA) ever went through for the Detroit Free Press and The Detroit News, how much would it curtail incentive to cover the news? Plenty.

If there's economic incentive for the Detroit dailies to follow up the apartment arson now, there'd be less under a JOA.

Depending on your perspective, Lady Luck or Lady Unluck affects the news you read too.

Another local paper got wind of a story because a husband called the wrong paper.

The City of Plymouth's secretly hiring Henry Graper as City Manager -- in violation of the law -- was discovered because a former Plymouth-Canton reporter stumbled on the story in Dowagiac and called The Crier right under deadlines.

All this affects your news. Think about it.

Joey speaks

Recovery amazes family

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER
"Hello Mommy. This is Joey."

That slowly spoken message on the phone recorder last Saturday morning was a significant step forward for the family, friends and Isbister School mates of Joey Landelius.

The first grader was seriously injured Oct. 30 when a car jumped the curb and struck him while on a shopping trip with his father and brother in Monroe.

After three of Joey's schoolmates wrote Santa (in the annual Letters to Santa section of The Community Crier) asking that Joey wake up from his coma, the tragedy became public.

His parents, Larry and Sandy Landelius, have thanked their neighbors and friends for many prayers and acts of kindness during Joey's recovery. Larry Landelius praised the support of Our Lady of Good Counsel's Father Joe Plawecki.

Now it appears the prayers are working.

"I mean that (phone recorder) tape is saved forever and ever," said Joey's mother.

"On Saturday, each word was drug out slowly, but by yesterday they were quicker.

"He remembered the nurses names; he knows what school he goes to; he knows he lives on Powell Road," Sandy Landelius smiled.

On Sunday, Joey came to the family's Plymouth Township home. "He just loved it," said his mother.

He was able to drag himself to the back window to look out at the yard and could talk with his brother, Steven, and sister, Kathleen. "They couldn't believe it," said their mother.

Therapy will continue at Mott Children's Hospital for some time, Sandy Landelius said. "But it's coming along. It's so wonderful."

Students will stay at Fiegel

BY JOHN BRODERICK

How do you spell "relief?" Brookside Subdivision parents spell it "Fiegel" not "Tanger."

Members of the Brookside Parents Association thanked the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education Monday after it approved keeping their students at Fiegel rather than move them to Tanger. The administration and the school board revised recommendations of the Housing Task Force, which had originally called for moving students from Fiegel to Tanger.

"We've learned a lot in the past few weeks, and I think we now see the big picture," said Dianne Gaubatz, a Brookside parent. "I personally approve of the recommendations for the 1989-90 school year."

Mike Gaubatz, her husband, also thanked the board, but added, "My only criticism is of the process. Input from the community can sometimes be very limited."

A report filed by the Housing and Attendance Area Steering Committee in December included a recommendation to move Brookside students at the start of next school year. After initial board discussion, the report then went to school administrators which changed the recommendation for Brookside students.

A number of other actions were included in the resolution: new enrollments from the Sunflower Six Subdivision will be assigned to Hulsing, rather than to Miller Elementary, as will any new students in Sunflower Seven; and new middle school students in Sunflower Six will attend Central, rather than Pioneer.

In addition, the board established the Housing Task Force as a standing committee which would continue to study boundary alignments in the district. New boundary changes could be made for the 1990-91 school year.

Ebersole leaves WCISD

Clare Ebersole, associate superintendent of the Wayne County Intermediate School District (WCISD), recently retired from a 38-year career with the district.

Ebersole, a resident of Plymouth, was honored at a dinner on Jan. 26 at the Mayflower Meeting House.

"Clare has always been part of the stability of this school district," said William Simmons, superintendent of the district. "His expertise has also been a great benefit to school business officials across the state."

Ebersole was first employed by the district in 1950 as a supervising teacher. He has since served as a consultant, director of business and administrative affairs and assistant superintendent.

Ebersole and his wife Delphine reside in Plymouth.

Ebersole was also honored in 1987 by the Michigan Association of Intermediate School Administrators.

In addition to degrees from Eastern Michigan and the University of Michigan, Ebersole has done extensive graduate work at U-M, MSU and Wayne State.

Moms find support among each other

BY ROBIN LAKE

Mothers in Plymouth-Canton seeking information concerning parenting, marriage, friendship with other women, or simply a break from their children may find it with Meeting Other Mothers (MOM).

MOM is a mother's support group whose purpose is to help meet the needs of women in the area and provide a forum for discussion on their concerns as mothers and wives.

MOM is one way for women to be made aware of the resources available for their children, and share ideas, according to Mary Ellen Monforton, vice president of the Plymouth based group.

President Kim Miesowicz sees it as an excellent way to find recommendations for child care, and children's activities.

A long time member and mother of three, Debbie VanHeest, said the group benefitted her especially when her kids were younger. She said some advantages to belonging were that it gave her something to do, and also was a way to gather ideas.

A new resident, Barbara Pearson, who moved to Plymouth from Louisiana two months ago, found that MOM was an excellent way to meet people and a lot of fun.

MOM began more than five years ago by a Canton woman, Terry Moorehead, under the name New Horizons, at Faith Community Moravian Church with sponsorship from the YWCA. In the fall of 1987, it moved its meetings to the First Presbyterian Church in Plymouth, though it has no religious affiliation.

MOM meets on the second and fourth Fridays of each month from 9:30-11:30 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church on Church Street.

Tyburski found competent; court limits press coverage

BY KEN VOYLES

Just two days after deeming Leonard Tyburski, 45, competent to stand trial 35th District Court Judge James Garber clamped down on press coverage of the case, ordering police officers and attorneys involved not to talk with the media.

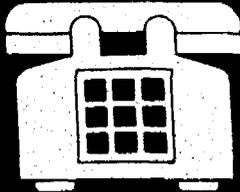

Tyburski, who told Canton Police he beat his wife Dorothy Tyburski during an argument in September of 1985 and then hid her body in a family freezer, was found competent last Wednesday according to information in a psychiatric evaluation.

On Friday, Tyburski's attorney Carol Stanyer, of Detroit, requested a motion to limit the release of certain information in the case. Garber denied a request, though, to close the courtroom to the media during a competency hearing and preliminary examination scheduled for 2 p.m. on Thursday (Feb. 16).

Stanyer, who took over Tyburski's defense from John McWilliams, told the court that the media has "misrepresented" her client. She was unavailable for further comment.

Dorothy Tyburski's body was discovered last month by one of her daughters. Medical reports said she died from blows to the head. Her husband was charged with open murder on Jan. 2 but sent for psychiatric evaluations to see if he could stand trial.

After 29 years

Veteran blaze battler named firefighter of year

BY JOHN BRODERICK

Captain Fred Honke has good reason to be proud these days.

The 29-year veteran of the Plymouth Township Fire Department was recently named firefighter of the year by the Michigan Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW).

He probably deserves it -- if one were to consider his record.

Helen Sidman ought to know.

"His list of accomplishments -- all the papers I went through -- was nearly an inch thick. He had so many commendations from the public and from his chief -- there were just too many to count," said the chairperson of the Plymouth Ladies Auxiliary.

Sidman nominated Honke, and recently introduced him at the group's state convention in Grand Rapids, where he was presented with the honor.

Honke started with the township department in May of 1960, and rose to the rank of captain in 1985. In his years on the force, he has certified in a number of specialized areas of firefighting, including emergency medical technician training, and chemical fire training.

Honke has also been a Plymouth Goodfellow since 1960. He has organized Muscular Dystrophy fund drives, and was instrumental in setting up a loan closet, where wheelchairs, crutches, walkers and other supplies could be borrowed by community members in need. He also led funding drives for the National Institute of Burn Medicine.

Honke's commendations and citations are too numerous to list, but they make for good reading materials.

He was noted for his bravery once in pulling a person out of an overturned car which sat in several feet of freezing water. He also was noted for his honesty after he returned money that was mistakenly added to his paycheck by the township.

"It was a surprise," Honke said of the award. "I'm honored to be selected out of 100 other guys."

Honke doesn't have any regrets about his 29 years in the profession.

"With this kind of a job, if you don't like it, you might as well get out. You've got to like it to do it," he said.

A professional to the core -- Honke likes what he does.

Tell it to Phyllis

By Phyllis Redfern

It is the middle of February and so far we've managed to survive. Just think, spring is officially only a month away.

Other than Valentine's Day, nothing fun usually happens in February. It is just one of those months we have to endure as we anxiously await spring.

This time of the year is good for curling up in front of the fireplace with a good book, or maybe taking time to write a note to a friend. As we run around from one thing to another it seems like we never have time to do those things. Maybe it has to do with time management or perhaps certain things just never make it to the top of the priority list.

When the winter blahs strike, sometimes you need to take time to call a friend for lunch, dinner or attitude adjusting after work. You can call a good friend who is always comfortable to talk to, or someone you've been meaning to get together with but never have the time, or call someone you'd like to get to know better.

Excuses for not calling include: being too busy or too tired. These excuses are no longer valid because we have over used them, and besides, who is ever really too busy or tired to have fun.

It is amazing how much a phone call can brighten someone's day. A simple invitation to meet for lunch can do wonders to chase away the winter blahs.

Even business lunches can be friendly. Anything to get out of the daily rut.

If everyone extended one invitation a week, just think, eventually we might be lucky enough to be on the receiving side of the invite. Anyway it beats sitting home by yourself complaining about the weather.

Among the chefs at the Geer Gourmet Gala will be Mark Kuzma (left) and James Lawson.

Gourmet gala for Geer

Chefs from many of the major restaurants in the metropolitan area will gather in Plymouth from 4-7 p.m. on March 5 to create culinary masterpieces for nearly 500 fine food connoisseurs.

That's when the Geer Gourmet Gala, sponsored by the Geer School Resotration Committee, will be held at Don Massey Cadillac on Ann Arbor Road.

The fundraiser will help in the resoration project to turn the one-room schoolhouse into a working laboratory where children of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will spend a week experiencing life during the 1880s.

Also, as a part of the festivities, there will be a silent auction of donated items.

CAFE boasts 48 membersFighting back: new group wants to be positive

BY JOHN BRODERICK

Critical thinking, modern, up-to-date, and controversial issues are essential to education, according to a new citizen's group, whose aim is to ensure the continuation of such ideas in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools curriculum.

The Committee for Academic Freedom and Excellence (CAFE), wants to preserve Plymouth-Canton's educational excellence, which, according to spokesperson Doug McClennan has been put in danger by recent attempts to censor teaching materials.

"We want to communicate to people that the claims that have been made about teachers promoting things like witchcraft and satanism are simply untrue," McClennan said. "Members don't want the curriculum to be boxed in. Excellence grows out of progress and innovation."

McClennan said that while the group will focus on a number of issues regarding the schools, it would be misleading to say that the group's formation was not spurred by the activities of the Citizens for Better Education (CBE). The group of conservative Christians have filed complaints about teaching materials in the district.

"It is much easier to be negative in our society, than it is to be positive," said McClennan. "We want to promote positive things in the schools, rather than simply oppose CBE. But we also want to let the community know that there is an alternative point of view."

One of CAFE's major issues will be school funding. Helping millages to pass in June, according to McClennan, will be high on the group's list of priorities.

CAFE also plans to be active in the election for the vacant spot on the board of education, by sponsoring a candidate forum, interviewing, and eventually endorsing a candidate.

McClennan said that CAFE members are concerned about teachers being accused of promoting things that may be "corrupting" students.

He said that it would be very difficult for a person who promoted satanism to get through the teacher certification process and be a teacher in the district.

"Teachers are basically conservative -- there are no flaming radicals, at least," he said. "It upsets us that people may imply that the schools are promoting satanism.

"One cannot assume that teachers are promoting things like this that would corrupt our youth -- that notion is ridiculous, because of the processes that I'm alluding to," McClennan added.

CAFE now boasts about 48 members. To join, or to be put on the group's mailing list, residents can call McClennan at 453-6857.

Trainees sought for Canton program

With the help of a Clean Michigan Fund education grant from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Canton has launched a campaign to educate as many township residents as possible about reducing the amount of waste sent to landfills.

Learning to "break the throw-away habit" this spring is the goal of a new program of specially-trained community residents who will help disseminate information on recycling and waste reductions.

Representatives of community groups and organizations in Canton are being encouraged to assist in the effort. Once trained, the residents will in turn train other residents.

The program begins with a two-hour session at the Canton Administration Building in early March, where a program will cover basic facts about recycling and other solid waste options.

The training is part of an overall education effort being undertaken by the township. An assortment of information on solid waste and recycling is being gathered at Canton's Public Library.

Canton gives up on bills

Uncollectable ambulance bills to the tune of $10,716 will probably be removed from the township's accounts receivable depending on the action of the Canton Board of Trustees last night.

The trustees were expected to consider giving up trying to collect on the bills last night on the recommendation of Canton Treasurer Gerald Brown.

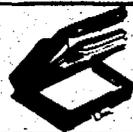

Also, plans are underway to coordinate a special recycling event in conjunction with the township's annual "spring cleanup" in early May.

For further details on how to get involved contact the Canton Department of Community and Economic Development at 397-1000.

Brown said that the township appears "to have a disproportionate share of distressed individuals involved."

Most of the more than 100 unpaid bills fall into a category which Brown labelled "uncollectable," "unable to pay" or "unable to locate."

The township charges $100 per trip for EMS service needed by non-residents.

Getting down to businessWill open in MayCanton soon to get 1st funeral home

BY KEN VOYLES

Residents of Canton may have noticed the skeleton of a building going up along Warren Road east of Canton Center Road near the Oakwood Canton Center.

What residents may have not realized, though, is that the site will be home to a new funeral home. That's right. Canton is getting its very first funeral home.

The Pawlus Funeral Home will open sometime in May this year, according to owner and director Jerome Pawlus. A grand opening will be planned during that month also.

"The reason we chose Canton is that there are no funeral homes there and they've got a population of 60,000," said Pawlus. "There is a need." He added that he considered Canton as a potential site for many years.

The 10,000-plus square foot facility will offer a full range of funeral services, including memorial services and cremation chambers.

"How can you promote death? It's hard," said Pawlus. "It's been that way for years and years."

Pawlus said some communities are overrun with funeral homes (like Livonia) while others lack them entirely. In Canton's case, that's about to change.

The new operation will be the third funeral home run by Pawlus, who has been in business for about 25 years. The 50-year-old director operates one home in Detroit and one home in Belleville (called Pawlus-Roberts Brothers Funeral Home), but the Canton facility will be the biggest of the group.

Pawlus said support from Canton officials has been just "terrific."

"We just like a homey atmosphere for the surrounding community," Pawlus said of the funeral home's design.

A graduate of St. Andrew High School in Detroit, Pawlus attended Worsham Embalming and Mortuary

Science College in Chicago. He's also a graduate from the Detroit Institute of Technology in 1959 with a degree in Mortuary Science. He keeps current on the business by attending seminars throughout the country.

While "being kicked around" in his career Pawlus said he has worked for several ethnic funeral homes, including Chinese, Jewish and Armenian, and learned a great deal about what it takes to help people who may be grieving.

This is an artist's rendering of what the first funeral home in Canton will look like when construction is completed.

New Target store set to open in Canton

Mike Wieble is excited.

As store manager of the new Target, Wieble is knee-deep in preparations for this Sunday's (Feb. 19) grand opening festivities.

Wieble, a resident of Canton, is overseeing the training of the 200 or so new employees and the stocking of the store's 750,000 pieces of merchandise.

"I'm extra excited," Wieble said last week. "We're in excellent shape to open."

More than 6,000 shoppers are expected on opening day, but Wieble said, "We'll be ready."

Wieble, who managed Target's Westland store, said the store will be a good addition to Canton's commercial market.

Steiger hearing

Steiger's apparent suicidal nature was simply a "manipulation."

He added, "From my point of view there are people who mean to kill themselves and others who do it as manipulation to avoid being one way or another. He tried to manipulate to avoid going to court."

Apparently, Steiger had attempted to cut his wrists the night before the hearing but was unsuccessful. Greenstein said Steiger's arms were bandaged during the hearing.

Zamroa said, "The issue of his being suicidal was not a major one."

Greenstein, who said the letter of notification about Steiger's competency "came as a surprise," added that his client has been considered suicidal by "all" who have examined him since last June.

The attorney said it was a "foregone conclusion" that Steiger would now be bound over on charges of either first or second degree murder, but Greenstein also said he could request the judge to stop the proceedings and get another psychiatric evaluation.

According to Canton Police reports, Irene Steiger was killed by several gunshot wounds to the chest. The Steigers had apparently separated about a week before the shooting.

Budget cuts a 'blessing in disguise'

PG. 17 THE COMMUNITY CRIBER: February 15, 1989

BY JOHN BRODERICK
Budget cuts over the past two years have left some programs and services offered by the Plymouth-Canton schools hurting.

But one program has learned how to deal with the cuts and actually make the best of the situation.

WSDP, the 200-watt student run radio station, which broadcasts from Salem High School, lost $5,220 from its budget for this school year.

While that figure represents 14 per cent of the station's entire budget, station manager Dave Snyder says that the figure is misleading.

"If you consider that the 14 per cent is from our total budget, and a large part of the budget is my salary, which was not cut, the result is a 40 per cent cut in the total operating budget," he said. "This is a point that not many people realized."

A 40 per cent cut could essentially cripple just about any program, but Snyder went on to call the cut a "blessing in disguise."

"The only way we could make such a cut, was to discontinue our UPI wire service, which brought us our world, national and state news," he said. "Once we lost that we were backed into a corner."

So the station established a local news program.

"We could never compete with WJR for national and state news anyway -- so we turned around and started this local news program," Snyder said. "So far it has been great -- I'm really pleased with its success."

"Putting together a 10-minute news show takes about three hours, so the kids have been putting in a lot of time. But in the long run, it has helped to legitimize us, and bring us a lot closer to the community."

District budget cuts

budgeted, as was $199,425 for the secondary level. These budgets were eliminated entirely, except in cases of emergency, or filling in for growth, if necessary.

The focus of the district's alternative education program was shifted drastically, as a result of $162,278 in cuts. This included the elimination of a cooperative program with Growth Works.

Special Education was cut by $160,000, and resulted in mostly personnel losses.

Community Education lost $120,000. Significantly affected areas were: class offerings, recruitment, teaching supplies, and capital outlay. In addition, curricular development and inservice activities were eliminated.

Budget cuts in athletics -- although the amounts cut are not quite as large as some other items -- resulted in the district instituting a pay-to-play program, in which families are required to help finance sports programs.

Other cuts that were made include: elementary aides ($142,597), secondary aides ($102,153), custodial staffing ($94,000), elimination of board contingency budget ($205,000), vocational education ($33,878), transportation ($80,000), security at Centennial Educational Park ($37,926), and the students radio station WSDP ($5,220).

In addition, the district-wide testing program was eliminated ($65,879), as was the high school attendance office ($79,401).

4 mills ballot approved

There will also be one school board seat up for grabs during the vote.

Residents spoke in support of the ballot proposal at Monday's meeting. There was no sign of the district's current gadflies -- the Citizens for Better Education (CBE) group.

"Although we would have liked to see the board try for the Headlee override, we support your decision," said Doug McClennan, spokesperson for Committee for Academic Freedom and Excellence (CAFE). "We want you to know that there is at least one group in this community that is behind your efforts."

Carol Bachman, of Plymouth, said that she supports the district's efforts as well. "George Bush wants to be the education president," she said. "I want Plymouth-Canton to be the education community."

School officials say that with only the renewal, the district would be operating with $3.3 million less than this year. With a four mill increase there would be a budget surplus that might allow for restoration of some programs that were cut over the past two years.

Canton's masked man is back

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

By tightening its defense in the second half Friday, the Canton boys basketball team clinched a 64-58 win over Livonia Churchill.

Canton trailed the Chargers after the first quarter, 16-15, and 29-24 at halftime.

The Chiefs had Senior Brian Paupore back in the line-up for the first time since he sustained a broken nose in Canton's game against Farmington Harrison last Friday.

Paupore, who has led Canton in scoring most of the season, scored eight points in the game even behind his protective face mask.

"Brian is a tri-captain and a team leader for us," said Niemi. "He played well."

Paupore was out for half of the Harrison game and for Canton's loss to Livonia Franklin last Tuesday.

"He (Paupore) was only out for a game and a half, but it seemed like a lot longer than that," said Niemi.

Niemi added that Senior Troy Waldron's excellent performance in the Churchill game made up for Paupore's handicap.

Waldron scored 24 points in Friday's contest.

Niemi said Geoff Allen, who had 13 points, and Daryl Magreta, who had six, both came off the bench to play solid defense for the Chiefs.

Canton was able to gain the lead in the third quarter, 43-40, and to outscore Churchill, 21-18, in the fourth quarter to garner the victory.

The Chiefs, who were picked to finish fifth in the division by the area coaches at the beginning of the season, finished regular season play tied for second in the division with a record of 10-7.

"If we would have had Brian at full force for the games against Harrison and Franklin, I think we could have won the division," said Niemi. "It is a credit to the kids that they could play over the numerous injuries we suffered this year."

Canton starts its post season play away on Friday against either Livonia Stevenson or John Glenn.

Niemi said both teams would prove to be a challenge for the Chiefs.

"Stevenson just had a big win over Salem, and John Glenn beat us earlier in the year," said Niemi. "So both teams will be tough."

Game time is 6 p.m.

Chiefs top tumblers stop Salem

BY JANET ARMSTRONG
AND RITA DERBIN

The Canton girls gymnastics team got back on the winning track after losing to John Glenn last week.

The Chiefs, who are 7-1 overall, started the week out on a high-note by defeating cross campus rival Salem, 129.35 to 117.4.

In the vault competition Salem's Dana Holda garnered a first-place finish (8.5), with Canton's Heather Murphy capturing second place (8.3). Shannon Connell earned a third-place finish for the Chiefs (8.2).

Canton swept the uneven bars competition taking first, second, and third place. Dawn Clifford (8.15) took first, Murphy placed second (7.9), and Connell was third (7.8).

The Chiefs also dominated in the Beam event. Anderson was first for Canton with a score of 8.7, Murphy was second (8.0) and Lisa Kaufman earned a third-place finish (7.95) for the Chiefs.

In the floor exercises, Anderson led the way for the Chiefs finishing in first place with a score of 8.65, Salem's Sue Farmer took second place with a score of 8.4 and Murphy from Canton was third (8.35).

The Chiefs also dominated in the all-around, Anderson was first with 33.05 points, while Murphy captured a second-place finish (32.55).

Salem's Holda beat out Clifford for third with 31.50, Clifford had 31.35.

"The outcome was not in doubt," said Canton coach John Cunningham. "But the win was tempered."

Cunningham said that one of Salem's better gymnasts (Autumn Bunch) was unable to compete due to injury.

"I was pleased with the score considering Bunch was out with a fracture," said Cunningham. "I think that Canton will challenge North Farmington in the conference meet."

For the first time in nine years of competition, the Chiefs defeated Freeland in tri-meet competition.

Canton beat Freeland and Vassar on Friday. The scores were Canton 128.85; Freeland 126.45; Vassar 125.05.

"It's very pleasing to win against someone who has beaten you for nine straight years," said Cunningham.

In vault Canton had two gymnasts place, Anderson was fourth (8.3), with Clifford capturing seventh (8.1).

Canton tankers dominate Franklin

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

The Canton boys swim team sank Livonia Franklin Thursday, 110-62.

The win brings the Chiefs' record to 4-0 in the division, 6-1 in league and 7-3 overall.

Jim Hartnett, Kevin Beech, Bryce Anderson and Mitch Timberlake combined for a first-place finish in the 200-yard medley relay for the Chiefs (1:46.62).

Hartnett also had a first-place finish in the 200-yard individual medley (2:13.24) and joined Jeff Homan, Timberlake and Mike Helmstadter for a first place in the 400-yard freestyle relay (3:30.27).

In addition to his two other first places, Timberlake also earned a first in the 50-yard freestyle (23.68).

Anderson won his second first-place finish of the meet in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 55.83.

In the 100-yard freestyle it was Helmstadter that finished first for the Chiefs with a time of 52.90. While in the 100-yard breaststroke it was Beech who earned a first place (1:06.81).

Scott Swartzwelder earned his only first-place finish in the 100-yard backstroke (1:01.51).

Swartzwelder, Ron Trosin, Mark Levesque and Shawn MacInnis combined for a 1:53.53 and a second place in the 200-yard medley relay.

Levesque also had a second place in the 100-yard butterfly (59.75), while MacInnis got his second of the meet in the 100-yard breaststroke (1:10.44).

Jeff Homan captured a second place in the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 1:54.89.

In the 200-yard individual medley David Nevi garnered a second place (2:18.59), while brother Doug Nevi took second place in the 500-yard freestyle (5:44.0).

Brad Flowers dove to a second-place finish in the diving competition finishing with 188.70 points.

"They swam well," said Canton coach Hooker Wellman. "We're working really hard."

Wellman said that like last week, Thursday's meet gave him a chance to swim some of his second and third swimmers.

"Our last three meets we can rest some of our big guns," said Wellman.

Wellman added that this week his team will be working especially hard, due to the fact his team is one win away from the division title.

Thursday the Chiefs will travel to Churchill. The meet starts at 7 p.m.

Rocks swimmers romp

BY RITA DERBIN

Farmington did not prove to be much of an obstacle for the Salem swim team Thursday.

On the road, the Rocks beat their division rival, 115-59, to bring their record to 8-2 overall and 3-1 in conference action.

Salem took all but two first places as they downed Farmington.

First places were: the 200-yard medley relay of Chris Butzlaff, Rick Steshez, Ron Orris and Mike Hill (47.03); Fred Seidelman in the 200-yard freestyle (1:53.80); Hill in the 50-yard freestyle (22.87); and diver Pat McManaman (177.5 points).

Also taking first-places were: Rob Shimmel in the 100-yard butterfly (1:00.46); Orris in the 100-yard freestyle (48.89); Sean Fitzgerald in the 100-yard backstroke (1:02.8); Mark Erickson in the 100-yard breaststroke (1:09.63); and the 400-yard freestyle relay of Hill, Eric Bunch, Craig Wilsher and Orris (3:13.8).

The Rocks will host Churchill tomorrow night at 7 p.m.

CEP netters suffer losses

It was not a very good week for volleyball at the Centennial Education Park.

On Monday night Canton lost to Westland John Glenn, 15-11, 15-7.

After the loss, the Chiefs are 30-35 in overall games and 6-5 in matches played.

On Wednesday, Canton was also downed by Northville, 16-14, 15-1.

"We played poorly," said Canton coach Allie Suffety. "In the last two matches we only had 21 kills total.

"We're in a lull right now," Suffety added. "We have a lot of talent but the attitude it takes to win is not there."

In other action Monday night, Salem was defeated by Livonia Churchill, 15-1, 15-7. The Rocks also lost Wednesday to North Farmington in a close three-game match, 12-15, 15-13, 14-16.

Tonight the two teams will try to get back on track.

Canton will host Farmington Harrison with junior varsity beginning at 6:30 p.m. and Salem will travel to Westland John Glenn.

Monday Canton will travel to Livonia Franklin and Salem will host Farmington with junior varsity beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Rocks look to post-season

BY RITA DERBIN

The Rocks ended their regular season on a down note Friday.

The boys basketball team finished its regular season with a 15-2 record following a 71-69 loss to Livonia Stevenson Friday. Its only other loss came against Canton on Dec. 20.

"We came out real strong and led 17-8 in the first quarter," said coach Bob Brodie. "But we turned the ball over too many times in the second quarter and couldn't stop their inside game and found ourselves tied at the half."

One reason for the Rocks decline in the second quarter was an injury to Jake Baker. Baker suffered a cut over his eye that required four stitches but came back in the second half to finish the game with 24 points and 13 rebounds.

"Jake played well," Brodie said. "To have gotten injured and still finish with those numbers is great."

In the game, Jeff Elliott added 15 points in a losing effort.

"I'm really pleased with the way the team came back," said Brodie. "Everyone played hard in the fourth when we found ourselves down by nine and fought back."

On Tuesday, the Rocks defeated Farmington, 71-65.

Elliott led all scorers with 24 points. Baker added 12 and 10 rebounds and Mike Albertson chipped in with 10 points. Jason Brown led Farmington with 17 points.

"It was a tough battle," said Brodie. "Farmington controlled the tempo of the game and we couldn't pull away until the fourth quarter."

Salem (8-1 in division play) will host Walled Lake Western (3-7 in division play) in the first round of the conference playoffs on Friday at 7:30 p.m. and really do not know what to expect from the team because they have not played them in three years.

"It's a whole new season," Brodie commented. "Everyone's starting fresh."

Canton tumblers hang tough

While on the beam, the Chiefs placed a little higher. Anderson was second with a 8.35, Anis Yoon was third (8.15), and Murphy was sixth (7.8).

Canton took fourth, fifth and sixth on the uneven bars, it was Clifford (8.25), Murphy (8.15) and Anderson (7.85) respectively.

In the floor exercise Murphy was third (8.4), Anderson was fourth (8.35) and Clifford was fifth (8.3) for the Chiefs.

The Chiefs captured third, fourth, and fifth in the all-around competition. Anderson led the way for Canton garnering a third place (32.85), Clifford was next in fourth place (32.35) and Murphy was fifth with a score of 32.25.

"For the first time ever we were finally successful," said Cunningham.

Canton will face Freeland again Saturday in the Freeland Invitational in Freeland. The Chiefs will be one of 20 teams competing.

3 Salem grapplers advance to state meet

BY RITA DERBIN

Three Salem wrestlers have advanced to the state meet which will be held this weekend at the Kellogg Center in Battle Creek.

In the 140-lb weight class, Ed Bartlage finished fourth in the divisionals, which qualified him for the state meet. Bartlage had lost his first match and then won his next two.

Brothers Steve and Brian Burlison also advanced to the state meet finishing second and third in their weight classes, respectively.

Steve (160 lbs.) won his first two matches before losing to Jim Morgan in the finals.

Brian (171 lbs.) defeated Josh

Demeritt from Bedford to finish third in his weight class.

"I think we could have done better," said coach Ron Krueger, who had seven boys qualify for divisionals. "But the pressure got to some of the younger wrestlers, I think. Next year they'll handle themselves better."

Of the three who qualified: "Hopefully the experience gained in the divisionals will carry over and help them in the state meet," said Krueger.

On a personal note, one of the bright spots of the divisionals for Krueger was the fact that his son, Lee, who competed for Catholic Central, will also be going to states. The younger Krueger defeated Paul Nowicki, 8-1, in the finals to take first place in the heavyweight division.

Ad Advice #583

One of the most important considerations of successful advertising is answering the question, how often should I advertise? There is not one easy answer that applies to every business. However, there are some general rules to follow to insure more effective advertising results. If a business experiences seasonal demand, then advertising should precede and occur at regular intervals during these important times. This is to guarantee that you will get the majority of business -- and not your competitor. Also, advertising during slow times is essential to get what available business there is, and to keep your name at the forefront of your customers' mind when the business climate changes.

Canton's Travis House will be moved soon

The Canton Historic District Commission is seeking bids for the moving of the historic Travis House on Warren Road this spring.

Bid notices went out this week for the project, which would move the historic farm structure from its present location to a spot in the architectural park located in the Cherry Hill Village.

Scaled bids will be returned by Feb. 22, after which the Canton Board of Trustees will consider which company to take on the project. The project calls for moving the house and doing site work at its eventual park location.

Decision in Jean case

Fr. Peretto, and Jean, herself, Jean dropped to her knees after being notified of her arrest.

Police said her "rigid" body was then carried by police from the rectory and placed in a police car. She fully cooperated with police during booking procedures at the police station, said Scoggins.

All witnesses concurred that Jean was neither physically nor verbally abusive.

In Jean's defense, Roether argued that Jean did not prevent police from arresting her and that police made the wrong analysis that she was criminally trespassing.

"As a matter of principle, she didn't want to walk out of that church," said

Roether.

Garber told the court that a citizen has the right resist an unjust arrest. However, police can still make a valid arrest based on a reasonable assessment of the situation, even if the charge is later deemed incorrect, said the judge.

Also testifying in the Ash Wednesday case were: former Associate Pastor Fr. Timothy Hogan, Plymouth Police officers Steve Hundersmark and Kevin Chumney, and OLCG parishioner Dorothy Leahy.

Hogan said that parish salaries were among the topics discussed at the May 9 parish meetings.

Leahy, Jean, and others have actively opposed certain policy changes at OLCG, as well as the presence of a voluntary human sexuality course taught in the parish school.
