WAS A VERY INTERESTING AND PLEASING AFFAIR.

Bad Weather Prevented a Full House. The Stage was Beautiful.—As Witnessed by an Outsider

The concert giving last Friday evening, was very creditable to those who had it

If the weather could only have been made to obey the wishes of those who were interested in the successs of the concert, the attendance would have been larger; but as it was a fair audience was present and a very appreciative and en-thusiastic one, as shown by the frequent and hearty encores given.

The beautiful arrangement of the stage was a picture, which was a delight in it-

Miss Huntington showed her excellent talent and refined taste in the planning of 639. The number o bushels reported the program. The choruses given at the opening and close of the program were very ably directed by Mrs. Anna Tafft and were finely rendered. Many of those who took part in the choruses appreciating the benefit gained by such practice, expressed themselves very heartily as wishing there might be a choral society formed here in Plymouth

The quartette, "Tis Noon," by Misses Burrows and Allen, Dr. Kimble and Mr. Hall, was bright and catchy.

Miss Ethel Allen in her piano solo. showed the excellent training she has had in this line.

The recitations by Mr. Scott Hodge and Miss Nellie Birch, were very funny and only $1.50. We guarantee it to give permade a pleasing change in the program. made a pleasing change in the program.

Mrs. Pelton is quite a favorite with child can use it. Send at once as this great-offer is only for a limited time. Remit by showed to the best advantage in the two

The duet by Miss Burrows, of Saginaw, and Mrs. Huntington, of Detroit, were beautifully rendered, and delighted the hearers. Mrs. Huntington's voice and manner called forth much praise, which was merited. Miss Burrows has one of those clear, high soprano voices which are so rare. She takes the high notes as easily as a bird. Her voice showed to the best effect on the anthem in which she took first soprano, Mrs. Pelton second Mrs. Huntington alto, Dr. Kimble tenor Mr. Hall bass. This selection was beautifully rendered throughout.

ARE BEING AMPLY PROVIDED FOR BY CHARITABLE PEOPLE

No one Need be in Want if They Only Make Known Their Case. -A Scheme for Christmas

As has been stated in the Mart, hereto fore the poor of Plymouth are receiving the attention of charitable parties to the end that no one should suffer. Occasion ally a town has a case of some of its neighbors being in destitute circumstances but on account of pride their wants are subdued and they go on in misery. Some would say that a person who would let pride take precedence to want ought to suffer. To say the least it is a hard punishment, But our good people are not going to have it that way, and a careful watch is kept and strick investigation is made to see that no such cases are in our midst. To the ladies can be at ributed 99 per cent of the praise. They are now on the alert and when a case develops they make known their wants and the people as a whole join issue and provide for the unfortunate a good, substantial list of the real necessaries for the winter's comfort. This is a work that anyone care indulge in with pride. Should anyone know of a poor person in want, or if the person in want themselves will only make known the facts at this office or to any other person, the case will receive prompt attention.

On Christmas day B. B. Bennett has, on our suggestion consented to give a free matinee at the village ball. Everybody is earnestly invited to be present. Mr Bennett has made a grand success of his phonographic concerts and by the close study he has made to perfect an entertain ment, he has now to present to us a program of musical selections such as is second to no rhonographic concert ever given. At the close of the entertainment a collection will be taken up and the whole fund will go towards the support of the poor. Mr. Bennett asks nothing for the concert and the MAIL contributes the advertising. We are sure our people will turn out and crowd the hall at 2:30 Christmas afternoon mps Shot Marshal McIntyre in a Ho Fight in Which 30 Shots Were Fired at Vassar-Detroit Young Lady Suicide by Throwing Herself Before a Train.

Hot Battle With Trampe

As the result of an attempt to arrest a gang of seven tramps at Vassar four men were wounded. Marshal Arthur McIntyre, fatally: Deputy Marshal V. Krisler, severely; two tramps, names unknown.

mein were wounded. Marshal Arthur McIntyre, fatally: Deputy Marshal Mrisler, severely: two tramps, names unknown.
While a special freight train on the M. C. R. R. was switching in the Vassar yards the trainmen discovered that three of their overcoats had been stolen from the way car, and notified Marshal McIntyre, who with Deputies Krisler and Burgess, went at once to the yards and found seven men barricaded in a box car. Marshal McIntyre forced the door open and told the men to come out. One of them rushed to the door and kicked the marshal in the breast at the same time calling him vile names. The other men in the car opened fire on the officers. They then opened fire on the officers, and four of the hobos jumped out and ran around the end of the train and came up back of the officers with their revolvers, firing at every step. Fully 30 shots were exchanged.

During the fight and while Marshal McIntyre was trying to handcuif one of the desperadoes, another of his pals rushed up and placing the muzzle of his revolver within a few inches of the marshal's head pulled the trigger, the buildet entering the marshal's head at the left temple. Deputy Krisler was badly out across the face and chin, also on the back of the head and the left arm. The tramps then fied.

The sound of the the melee brought a number of citizens to the spot and in a short time a well armed and deternined posse was in full pursuit. They captured four of the rascals, who gave their names as J. J. Hall, aged 26, Akron, Ohio: Charles Robinson, Syracuse, N. Y.; Frank Walton, aged 22, Buffalo, N. Y. and Ed. Marsh, aged 15. Upper Penninsula Homestead Land Cases. Washington: The federal supreme court has decided the homestead cases in Michigan, the opinion being declared by Justice Brewer, all the other justices concurring. The decision is a victory for the homesteaders, and the effect is to confirm the title of upper peninsula settlers if the settlement was made prior to May 1, 1888. The decision covers three test cases. The principal one of the three is that of the Lake Superior Ship Canal, Railroad and Iron company against Walter A Cunningham, and is decided in his favor on the ground that the canal company took nothing by reason of its original selection. The original title of the canal company is held to be absolutely void, but as to all the lands within the railroad limit not covered by the act of March 2, 1889. Hence Cunningham, who settled prior to May 1, 1888, gets his land. In the Finn case, who settled after May 1, 1888, the decision is against him. In the Donohue case, he is held to be owner of an individed half with the canal company.

Young Woman's Strange Sulcide.
A young woman of good appearance, well dressed, etc., was found near the depot at New Haven, early in the morning lying on the ground, her clothes covered with frost, indicating that she had spent the night there. When the station agent opened the depot the woman warmed herself and soon stated up the railroad track toward Richmond. Two miles south of the later town she seated herself upon the track and as the engineer of an approaching train sounded his warning whistle she deliberately arose and threw herself before the swift running engine. She was still alive when picked, but died soon after being taken to Richmond. At the scene of the swiicide was found an empty bottle marked poison. Over $50 was found on her person, also papers which identified the dead woman as-Miss Celia Flower, aged 34, of Detroit. No cause for the awful deed is known.

A Most Atroclous Murder.

The dead body of A. D. Barnes. janitor of the Hiawatha building at 238 Thirty-seventh street. Chicago, was found jammed into a packing case which had been thrust into a hole beneath the sidewalk on South Park avenue, between Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth streets. The body bore over a score of ugly wounds, half of them sufficient to cause death. The wounds had evidently been inflicted with both the cutting edge and the blunt side of an ax, and covered the body from the right temple down to the knees. In order to force the body in the legs had been beat under the trunk and the right leg had been broken above the knee in order to facilitate the packing operation. Within a few hours after the discovery of the body two men named Jordan and Jersey and a woman named Mahoney, with whom Earnes had been intimate, were under arrest and the woman promptly confessed that Jordan had killed the map; that she had helped remove the traces of the crime in the basement of the flats, and that Jordan and Jersey had disposed of the body. Jordan corroborated the story, both seeming very in different as to their position.

The murder was not discovered until the train reached the city. The injured man made the following statement: "My name is Henry Harris, and my two companions are named illenry Reesh and Arthur E. Brown. We all live at Auburn. Ind., and boarded the freight to strike out and look for work. When we got to Deshler, about 25 miles west of Fostoria, four men boarded our car and made a demand for our money. We had a fight and they commenced shooting. I think the men left the car at Deshler again. They got $12 in money from me."

Gustemals Provokes Mexico.

The latest reports from the Guatemala frontier are to the effect that Guatemalans have assassinated a Mexican colonel. It is reported that a company of Mexican soldiers has had two skirmishes with 400 Gustemalan guerrillas. Two Mexican soldiers were killed. Should official information confirm these reports the Mexican government will at once demand reparation.

Washington: In regard to the al leged massacre of Armeniana by Kurds in Armenia the Turkish tegation has reasington: In regard to the all leged massacre of Armerisan by Kurds in Armerisa the Turkish legation has received a communication which gives some light on the subject. It says: "Toward the end of July last, and under the instigation of an Armenian named Hampartzoum, the men of 10 villeges near Mouch forred sepurate bands, and armed with guns, daggers, hatchets and other instigation of the chief of Belikan, killed a few men of that tribe of Belikan, killed a few men of that tribe and afterwards fell on the tribes of Bekiran and Badikan! These bands burned alive one of the chiefs of the Bekiran tribe, and not only outraged Musselman women of the villege of Kulliguzat. Int also put them to death in an atroduct manner. Men were also tortured in a ferocious way. Not satisfied with all these lawless and criminal proceedings, the same bands burned also a few villages inhabited by Musselmahs." Then followed the fighting in which the bandits were overcome, the most of them being killed. "The statement often published in some European newspapers that some of the regular troops fired on defenseless men and womes is utterly untrue. No individual carrying no arms was killed. Twenty insurgents, having surrendered, were treated with all possible consideration, and after their depositions before the legal authorities of Mouch were taken they were given their freedom."

THE STORY OF A DOG, A GAT. AND A PARROT.

A Lively Time Had Bose, Tabby, and Polly-The Little Watcher-Hints to Young Authors-Willies Connadrum-

The Dog, the Cat and the Parrot Bose the dog, Tabitha the cat, and Poll the parrot, were alone together. Polly lived in a strong cage, and was expected to stay there, excepting when she was invited to come out. She was out now, certainly, and the cage door stood open. She was a handsome bird and a great talker, but vixenish.

Bose was a very good fellow, and a useful member of the family.

Tabby was a good cat, as cats go. She was fond of milk, and sometimes enight is mouse. She would fawn around you if you had a cookey in your hand, or fly at you with ten sharp claws if you chanced to tread on her tail. But she was well enough.

Bose and Tabby lived peacefully together. Not a "cat and dog's life" at all, but a friendly sort of life.
Polly was not a favorite with them.
They two did well enough together, but "three is a crowd." Tabby often found it newsart to mouse round. found it pleasant to mouse round Polly's cage and pick up crumbs of cake or cracker, but Bose kept away. Polly had tricks that were not agreeable. She would call, "Kitty, kitty, kitty, kitty!" and when Tabby roused herself from a quiet knap and ran to see why she was wanted. Polly would salute her with a fierce "Scall followed by a mocking laugh. And she whistled for Bose so that he was completely puzzled, and could not tell which was his mistress and which was Polly.

which was Polly.

Bose and Tabby had been having a little discussion. There stood on the table a sugar bowl and some empty cups and saucers. Tabby had proposed to climb up on the table, and had made bold to put her forepaws on the edge of it, but Bose had said, "No, Tabby, not while I am here."

Tabby knew there was no use in persisting if Bose once set his foot down against it, so she dropped the subject. There was nothing on the table but, surar, and she presented table but sugar, and she never ate that. She had thought, however, that there might be some small drops of milk in the cups. Now Boss was fond of sugar, but he was much too bonorable to touch it without leave.

While Boss and Tably were having

While Bose and Tabby were having their little talk, Polly had flown to. the table and had he'ped herself to a lump of sugar, and was now sitting on the drop-light, talking comfortably to herself.

"Polly, Polly! Pretty Polly! Good

Polly!"

"Oh. the wretch!" said Tabby, in her cat language. "I have a mind to pull out her tail feathers." Bose said nothing. Perhaps he ought to have objected; but his prejudices were so strong against Polly that he felt almost willing to see her punished a

When Polly had eaten the sugar she began to call in an enticing voice, "Kitty, kitty, kitty, kitty!" and al-though Tabby had been deceived be-fore, she allowed herself to think that Polly might possibly have some-thing for her this time; so she promptly obeyed the summons, and was rewarded with the usual "scat!"

Pit-pit-meow!" said Tabby, as she jumped upon a chair and clawed at Polly's feathers.

Polly took no notice of her, but flew the table for another lump of agar. Tabby saw her opportunity, sprang after Polly, and seized her by the neck.

Bose rushed forward to separate them, and, being a clumsy fellow, in some way pulled table-cloth, cups, sugar, parrot and cat to the floor. Polly feebly muttered, "Polly wants a-" and then closed her eyes and hung her head.

"Oh, Tabby, what have you done?" said Bose, plainly as a dog could say

"I only meant to pull out her tail feathers," said Tabby, "but now she is dead, I might as well eat her." "No!" said Bose, "I forbid it. Bow-

Tabby again submitted, and, having Tabby again submitted, and, having arried poor Polly under the table, seated herself on the sofa cushion, heartlessly washed her paws and composed herself to'sleep. Bose sat on the hearthrug, mournfully gazing at the scene of disaster, and saying to himself:

at the accuse
to himself:
"Oh, Tabby, what have we done?"

"Ob, Tabby, what have we done. What will mistress say?"

"If you'll let me eat Polly she'll think she's lost," said Tabby.

"I will not," replied Bose, "so don't think of such a thing. Poor Polly, I wish she was alive and on her perchasain."

wish she was alive and on her perch again."
"You do, do you?" said Tabby. "I thought you uidn't like her?"
"I know it," said Bose thoughtfully; "but she was a lively bird."
"Yes," said Tabby. "She had bright feathers too."
"How fond mistress was of her," said Bose.
"I suppose she liked to hear her said Bose.

"I suppose she liked to hear her talk." added Tabby.
"And well she might. She was a good talker. Worth a dozen of you or me," said Bose.

"She couldn't purr," said Tabby. "Perhaps she could," asid Bose.

"Well, there's one thing we can do," said Tably, "'We can take Polly and put a-"."

and put a--

and put a..."

"Cracker! Cracker! Polly wants a cracker!" said a husky voice; and Polly herself crawled from under the table and flew up on the droplight. "Polly! Polly! Pretty Polly! Mother! Mother! Never mind! Never mind! Kitty, kitty, kitty! Scat!

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS. Ha, ha, ha, ha!" screamed Polly, end-while Bose and Tabby stood rap in astonishment the door opened an in came the mistress. She gazed at the disordered table a moment." "Oh, Bose!" she said, "did you do this mischief?" Bose hung his head and withdrew into a corner, but Tab and withdrew into a corner, but 120-by came boldly forward with a loud "purr-meow!" and rubbed affectionately against her mistress' dress. "Why, Polly," said the mistress, as she spied the parrot on her perch, "How did you get out?" and she put her into the cage and fastened the door. door

"Never mind! Never mind! Ha, ha hai" said Polly.

Then the mistress rang the bell and as the maid came in to put things to rights Bose slipped out. Tabby re-established herself on the sofa cush-ion and Polly was presented with a large lump of sugar, which she received graciously But if the talkative bird could have related to her mistress the whole story, wouldn't that lady have been surprised?

Hints to Young Authors

"The first thing you need is to have something to say. If you have nothing that you are burning to tell, keep silent. Next, you must remember that the way of saying a thing is very important, and so must cultivate style. To gain a good style you must read the best authors. You will learn how to write only by reading, and not by writing out your own thoughts while you are young; but by taking in great thoughts, the thoughts and words of the great of all ages."
"Read Dante, Milton, Shakespeare; have always on hand a task, in the way of a history or an essay, or some volume which you cannot read hastily. Gradually, by reading the best literature you will gain a good vocabulary, and learn to express yourself as the masters do."

When you write do not choose a high-flown subject which does not interest, and is in no way real to you, but describe something with which you are familiar. Take your father's house, or the street your school stands on, or your own room, and try to make a pen picture of either of these. Write in plain simple language, as you would speak. Always write as if you were talking to somebody, a child, or a dear mother, or your cousin Bob who is in Madras, or your funt Emmeline, in the frontier fort, sweek's journey from home. Never think especially of publishing your work, or of making money by it.

Money is paid only to those who understand their art, not to beginners.
You will spoil your work and ruin all your chances if you let the thought of money enter into your first writing.—Harper's Young People.

Japanese Styles.

Japanese folks have six or eight pockets cunningly inserted in the cuffs of their wide sleeves. These pockets are always filled with a curious miscellany peculiar to the droll little people. As common as twine in young America's 'pocket is the prayer amulet written on a delicate sheet of rice paper and composed by the boazes. In accordance with the abiding and funny faith of the Japanese women, these prayers are swal-lowed, paper and all, like a pill, in all cases of mental and physical dis-tress. Another essential never missing is a number of small squares of silky is a number of small aquares of silky paper, which is put to the most unexpected purpose—to hold the stem of a lotus or lily, to dry a teacup, wipe away a tear or blow the absurd little nose of the doll-like little woman. The very smratest people of Japan use this style of handkerchief for practical purposes. After using, a ball is made of the paper and it is thrown into the street with disgust.

The Buby's Tea-Set.

A single concern in New York has been turning out for years pewter toys—the kind that several generations of children now recall. These things are made by the gross and sold the country over Some of them, as tea-sets, are hawked about the streets, and are familiar things the world over. They sell by the gross at something between $35 and $40. The factory is a little old-fashioned house in a down-town street, and the office, which occupies what must have been the drawingroom of the dwelling in other day: has an old grate with brass ornaments

Its excelence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleanising the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Example of Lightning-Like Play of

A durious example of the dramatic and mythopoeic quality in dreams, and of the power of compressing time, was once related to me by a lady. She in her dream was sitting in her room looking out on a beautiful au-tumn twilight, says a writer in the Il-lustrated London News. She heard a lustrated London News. She heard a knock, heralding visitors, and going down stairs, found two strangers in her parlor. One she recognized—a relative who had died in her childhood. He was a little old gentleman in a brown dress of the early part of the century. With him was a handsome lady in a Spanish marfilla. They had, on the table before them, a small, ancient, iron-bound chest. At this moment (still in the dream) as series.

Electricity is rather curiously applied to a carriage built for the German emperor. It is provided with electric lamps, which contain small accumulators. One is placed on the breast of each horse; also on the point of each pole of the carriage, at the sides and it the rear of the vehicle. Thus distributed they will make the route at night as light as at noonday for a distance of about fifty paces from the equipage, while the vehicle itself, with its occupants, will remain in perfect darkness.

She knew his writing so well that she could scarce be deceived on that point. The whole thing in a moment was clear. Her dear mother, with a less cramped experience of the world, had been right, after all.

trembling Mrs. Waterhouse. She tore her letter to Biarritz into many pieces. As the last fragment went into the fireplace she felta kiss upon her neck. "Don't do that, please," she cried. "Bieg pardon," said her husband. "Did I frighten you?"

He took off his hat and adjusted his pince-nez. His coolness almost took her breath away.

"I must say, Geoffrey," she declared, "that I can't help admiring yours-your cheek."

"My love, I admire yours. I meant to have kissed it just now."

She took up a newspaper and, twisting it violently in her excitement, made an endeavor to speak with callmess.

"Well, my dear, I can't force you to, can I? I believe, if you would only let me tell you the whole affair from beginning to end, you wouldn't be so much annoyed about it. It really isn't so bad as you think. Alicia is a most delightful girl, and it has been a recreation for me, you know; and I have been slogging away so of late, and—"

The door slammed. Mrs. Waterhouse went upstairs to her room and hurriedly, very hurriedly, packed a portmanteau. There was time to catch the mail at Charing Cross, and she meant to catch it. The great thing was to get away to Biarritz, away from the atifling atmosphere of this house, away from London. She rang for her maid.
"Parker."

"Parker."

"Yes, ma'am."

"The mail goes at 8 from Charing Cross, I think?"

"The mail goes at 8 from Charing Cross, I think?"

"It used to go at 8. ma'am," said Parker, cautiously. "When we went away, if you remember—"

"Yes, yes, of course. I want you to pack a bag for yourself and we will catch the mail to night."

"Catch the mail to night."

"Yes, yes. Lose no time please, and send out for a cab."

"Well, I never!" murmured Parker. Mrs. Waterhouse had some intention of having one fine, big, square scene with har husband before she left, but there was little time to spare. Moreover, it occurred to her that she could be quite as bitter in a well-composed letter, to be dispatched from Biarritz, as in a hasty interview. "Come along, Parker," she called. "It's all very well to say 'come along,' " muttered Parker, discontentedly, "but this is a rum sort of a game, and I don't 'alf cotton to it."

"We've got twenty minutes. Tell the man to drive carefully, but to drive very fast."

The most galling thing about the whole deplorable affair was the certainty that her mother would meet her at the station with an "I told you so, my poor lamb," expression. Still there was no one else to whom she could go, and, at any rate, she could always control mamma. She had always done so.

Parker, still rather inclined to be cross, went to the bookstall. It half restored the excellent maid to complacent submission to what she termed all this ramping about to find the new number of the Lady's Own Chatterbox on sale. It was her own particularly favorite journal. "We'll get in now, Parker." said Mrs. Waterhouse. "There's twenty minutes to wait, but we may as we'll take our seats. Seconds, please, porter."

They found comfortable corner seats. For a while they watched the stout, perspiring ladies and the slim daughters and the pet dogs. The usually demure Parker sniggered so much when she saw two Frenchmen kiss each other that she dropped the Lady's Own Chatterbox. Mrs. Waterhouse took it up and held it in her hand.

"I must read." she whispered to

"I must read." she whispered to herself. "I must do something to keep myself from thinking. I shall faint if I don't divert my thoughts." The Lady's Own Chatterbox lay on her lap. She put one small foot against the seat opposite, and leaned forward to get the steady glare of the electric light on the page.

"Any more going on?" cried the inspector on the platform, aggressively.

"We commence this week a story by a new writer. Walter House, entitled "Alicia's Only Love." It will be replete with romantic interest, and in short, a wonderful picture of high-class life of the present day, with all its faults and foibles."

"Now then," cried the inspector on the platform, in an aggrieved tone to a belated passenger, "are you going on there, or are you not going on?"

Mrs. Waterhouse began to read. Chapter I was headed "The Countess."

"Alicia was half-leaning, half-reclining on an ottoman reading a delicately-scented letter from Sir Harold de Beer. It opened thus: 'I want you, my dearest, to believe that I am quite true to you. I am bound by certain ties to others, but to you, my quite true to you. WHY is it that in most of the cities of the world fashion makes its home in the northwestern quarter? Why is it that the "west end" is so often the aristocratic section of the city? It is that a law be passed giving to the families of a man killed by a mob the right to a civil action against the authorities of the town or county where the deed was done. If this were made generally the law it would place the lawless element under bonds to keep the peace. While many of the lawless are not taxpavers, they are none the less dependent upon those who do pay the taxes. Mobrule itself is greatly destructive to property, but it is so indirectly. If property owners had to pay additional taxes for each case of mob rule that occurred in their locality they would bestir themselves to protect lives of those obnoxious to the mob, because they would then be directly interested, and so plainly that no one could mistake the fact.

THE CITY OF BLOOD.

CAWNPORE, INDIA, A SCENE OF AWFUL CARNAGE.

called by His Wanderings About the City of the Terrible Nana Sahib-Description of the Man.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Dec. 9.—Dr. Talmage to-day delivered through the press the second of his "Round the World" series of sermons, the subject being, "The City of Blood," and the text selected being, Psalms, 141: "ii, Our bones are scattered at the grave's mouth, as when one cutteth and cleaveth wood woon the curth." upon the earth. But mine eyes are unto thee, O God the Lord.

unto thee, O God the Lord.

Though you may read this text from the Bible, I read it as cut by chisel into the pedestal of a cross beneath which lied many of the massacred at Cawnpore, India. To show you what Hindooism and Mohammedanism really are, where they have full swing, and not as they represent themselves in a not as they represent themselves in a "parliament of religions," and to demonstrate to what extent of cruelty and shomination human nature may go when fully let loose, and to illustrate the hardening process of sin. and to remind you how our glorious Christian-ity may utter its triumph over death and the grave, I preach this my second sermon in the "Round the World" series, and I shall speak of "The City of Blood," or Cawnpore, India.

Two hours and ten minutes after its

Two hours and ten minutes after its occurrence. Joseph Lee of the Shropshire regiment of Foot, rode in upon the Cawnpore massacre. He was the first man I met at Cawnpore. I wanted to hear the story from some one who had been here in 1857, and with his own eyes gazed upon the slaughtered heaps of humanity. I could hardly wait until the horses were put to the carriage, and. Mr. Lee; seated with us, started for the scene, the story of which makes for the scene, the story of which makes tame in contrast all Modoc and Choc-taw butcheries.

It seems that all the worst passions It seems that all the worse passons of the circular year to be impersonated by one man, and he, Nana Sahib, and our escort at Cawnpore, Joseph Lee, knew the man personally. Unfortunately, there is no correct picture of westerly. They are in general westerly, and their tendency is to blow the dust, smoke and odors of a city to its eastern or couthern side. This makes the opposite quarter the more desirable for residence. People have in all ages been governed by the rule without inquiring very double into its cause.

It is sad to think that after all the care which has been lavished on the care which has been lavished to them: A lawyer of the preparation, and familiar to us all, are an amusing mistake. This is the fact in regard to them: A lawyer of the preparation, and familiar to us all, are an amusing mistake. This is the fact in regard to them: A lawyer of the preparation, and familiar to us all, are an amusing mistake. This is the fact in regard to them: A lawyer of the preparation, and familiar to us all, are an amusing mistake. This is the fact in regard to them: A lawyer of the preparation was called to India for the proper of the preparation. Nana Sahib in existence. The pictures of him published in the books of Eu-rope and America, and familiar to us taking with him a picture of his Indian client. After awhile the muting in India broke out, and Nana Sahib was mentioned as the champion villain of the whole affair, and the new papers of England wanted a picture him and to interview some one on Indian affairs who had recently been in India. Among others the journalists called upon this lawyer, lately re-turned. The only picture he had brought from India was a picture of his client, the man charged with fraud. The attorney gave this picture to the journals as a specimen of the way the Hindoos dress, and forthwith the pict Hindoes dress, and forthwith the picture was used, either by mistake ordintentionally, for Nana Sahib. The English lawyer said he lived in dread that his client would some day see the use made of his picture, and it was not until the death of his Hindoe client that the lawyer-divulged the facts. Perhaps it was never intended that the face of such a demon should be preserved amid human records. Isaid preserved amid human records. I said to our escort: "Mr. Lee, was there to our escort: "Mr. Lee, was there any peculiarity in Nana Sahib's appearance?" The reply was, "Nothing pearance?" The reply was, "Nothing very peculiar; he was a dull, lazy cowardly, sensual han, brought up to do nothing, and wanted to continue on the same scale to do nothing." From what Mr. Lee told me, and from all I could learn in India, Nana Sahib ordered the massacre in that city from sheer revenge. His father abdicated the throne, and the English paid him annually a rension of $400,000. When the throne, and the English paid him annually a pension of $400.000. When the father died, the English govern-ment declined to pay the same pension to the son, Nana Sahib, but the poor fellow was not in any suffering from lack of funds. His father left him $80,000 in gold ornaments: $700,000 in jewels: $800,000 in bonds, and other resources amounting to at least $1.500,-1000. But the poor young man was not satisfied, and the Cawnpore massacre was his revenge. Gen. Wheeler, the Englishman who had command of this city, although often warned, could not

As by the bounty of the glorius Almight and the premy destroy. sent to hell by the pious and sagacious ous Almighty and the enemy destroy-ing fortune of and emperor, the yellow

Nana Sahib resolved to celebrate an anniversary. The 23d of June, 1857, would be one hundred years since the battle of Plassy, when under Lord Clive, India surrendered to Eugland. That day the last European in Cawn-pore was to be slaughtered. Other an-niversaries have been celebrated with wine; this was to be celebrated with wine; this was to be celebrated with blood. Other anniversaries have been adorned with garlands; this with drawn swords. Others have been kept with songs; this with execuations. Others with the dance of; the gay; this with the dance of death. The infantry and cavalry and artillery of Nana Sahib made on that day one grand assaulf, but the few guns of the English and Scotch put to flight these Hindoo tigers. The courage of the fiends broke against that mid wall, as the waves of the sea against a light house. The cavalry horses returned full run. The cavalry horses returned full run, without their riders. The Lord looked out from the heavens, and on that anniversary day gave the victory to his people.

Therefore Nana Sahib must try some other plan. Standing in a field not far from the intrenchment of the English was a native Christian woman, Jacobee by name, holding high up in her hand a letter. It was evidently a communication from the enemy, and Gen. Wheeler ordered the woman brought in. She, handed him a proposed treaty. If Gen. Wheeler and his men would give up their weapons, Nana Sahib would conduct them into safety, they could march out unnosafety, they could march out unnosafety. Santa santo would conduct their into safety; they could march out unmolested, the men, women and children; they could go down to-morrow to the Ganges, where they would find boats to take them in peace to Allababad.

There was some opposition to signing this treaty, but Gen. Wheeler's wife told him he could trust the natives, and so he signed the treaty. There-was great joy in the intrench-ment that night. Without molestation they went out and got plenty of water to drink, and water for a good wash. to drink, and water for a good wash. The hunger and thirst and exposure from the consuming sun, with the thermometer from 120 to 140, would case. Mothers rejoiced at the prospect of saving their children. The young ladies of the intrenchment would escape the wild beasts in human form. On the morrow, true to the promise, earts were ready to transport those who were too much exhausted those who were too much exhausted those who were too much exhausted to walk.

"Get in the carriage," said Mr. Lee, "and we will ride to the banks of the Ganges, for which the liberated combatants and non-combatants started from this place." On our way Mr. Lee pointed out a monument over the burial place which was opened for ten. Wheeler's intrenehment, the well into which every night the dead well into which every night the dead had been dropped. Around it is a curious memorial. There are five cresses, one at each corner of the garden and one at the center from which inscription I to-day read my which inscription I to-day read my text. Riding on, we came to the Memorial church built to the memory of those fallen in Cawnpoce. walls are covered with tablets and epi-taphs. I copied two or three of the inscriptions: "These are they who come out of great tribulation;" also. "The dend shall be raised incorrupti-ble;" also, "In the world ye shall have tribulation, but be of good cheer: I have overcome the world;" also, "The Lord gave: the Lord hath taken away:" also, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden."

"Get into the carriage," said Mr. Lee, "Get into the carriage, sand arrives, and we rode on to the Ganges, and get out of a Hindoo temple standing on the bands. "Now," said Mr. Lee, "here is the place to which Gen Wheeler and his people came under the escort of Nana Sahh." I went down the steps to the margin of the river. Down these steps went Gen. Wheeler and the men. women and children under his care. They stood on one side of the steps, and Nana Sahib and his staff stood on the other side. As the women were getting into the boats, Nana Sahib objected that only the aged and infirm women and children should go on board the boats. The young and at-tractive women were kept out. Twen-ty-eight boats were filled with men, women and children and floated out see that the Sepoya were planning for into the river. Each boat contained ten armed natives. Then three boats regiments, and all the Europeans in Cawnpore.

Mr. Lee explained all this to me by in. Although orders were given to start, the three boats were somehow detained. At this juncture a boy years of age hoisted on top of the Hin-doo temple on the banks two flags, a Hindoo and a Mohammedan flag, at which signal the boatmen and armed natives jumped from the boats and swam for the shore; and from in-numerable guns the natives on the hank fired on the boats, and masked batteries above and below roared with destruction, and the hoats sank with their precious cargo, and all wen down save three strong swimmers, who got to the opposite shore. Those who struggled out near by were dashed to death. Nana Sahib and his staff with their swords slashed to pieces (ien. Wheeler and his staff, who had not got

Wheeler and his staff, who had not well away from the shore.
I said that the young and attractive women were not allowed to get into the boat. These were marched away under the guard of the Sepoya.
"Which way?" I inquired. "I will

"Which way?" I inquired. "I will show you," said Mr. Lee. Again we took seats in the carriage and started for the climax of desperation and diabolism. Now we are on the way to a summer house, called the assem-bly rooms, which had been built for recreation and pleasure. It had two rooms each 29x10, and some window less closets, and here were imprisoned 206 helpless people. It was to become the prison of these women and children. Some of these Sepoys got permission of Nana Sahib to take one or more of these ladies to their own place, on the promise they should be brought back promise they should be brought back to the summer garden next morning. A daughter of Gen. Wheeler was so taken and did not return. She afterward married the Mohammedan who had taken her to his tent. Some Sepoys amused themselves by thrusting children through with bayonets and holding them up before their mothers in the summer house. All the doors closed and the Sepoys standing guard, the crowded women and children waited their doom for eighteen days and nights amid sickness, and flies, and sterich, and starvation. stench, and starvation.

Then Nanz Sahib heard that Havelock was coming, and his name was a terror to the Sepoys. Lest the women and children imprisoned in the summer house or assembly rooms should be liberated, he ordered that their throats should be cut. The officers were commanded to do the work, and attempted it, but failed because the law of caste would not allow the Hindoo to hold the victims while they were being slain. Then 100 men were ordered to fire through the windows, but they fired over the heads of the imprisoned ones, and only a few were killed. Then Nana Sahib was in a rage, and ordered professional butch-ers from among the lowest of the gypsies to go at the work. Five of them with hatchets and swords and knives hegan the work, but three of them col-lapsed and fainted under the ghast-liness, and it was left to two butchers liness, and it was left to two butchers to complete the slaughter. The struggle, the sharp cut, the blinding blow, the cleaving through scalp and scull, the begging for life, the death agony of hour after hour, the tangled limbs of the corpses, the piled up dead—only God and those who were inside the summer house can ever know. The hutchers came out exhausted The butchers came out exhausted, thinking they had done their work, and the doors were closed. *But when they were again opened, three women and three boys were still alive. and three doys were still alive. All these were soon dispatched, and not a Christian or a European was left in Cawnpore. The murderers were paid fifty cents for each lady slain. The Mohammedan assassins dragged by the hair the dead bodies out of the summer house and threw them into a well, by house and threw them into a well, by which I stood with such feelings as you can not imagine. But after the mutilated bodies had been thrown into the well, the record of the scene remained in hieroglyphics of crimson on the floor and wall of the slaughter house. An eye witness says that, as he walked in the blood was shoe deep, and on this blood were tufts of hair, pieces of muslin, broken combs, fragments of pinn-fores, children's straw hats, a card case containing a curl with the inscripcase containing a curl with the inscrip-tion, "Ned's hair, with love;" a few leaves of an Episcopal prayer book; also a book entitled, "Preparation for Death;" a Bilde, on the fly leaf of which was written, "For darling mamna, from her affectionate daugh-ter, Isabella Blair"—both the one who presented it and the one to whom it was presented, departed forever. It was about 5 o'clock in the over-was presented, departed forever.

It was about a o'clock in the evening when I came upon this place in Cawnpore. The building in which the massacre took place has been torn down and a garden of exquisite and fragrant flowers surrounds the scene.
Mr. Lee pointed out to us some seventy mounds containing bodies or portions of bodies of those not thrown into the well. A soldier stands on guard to keep the foliage and flowers from being ruthlessly pulled. I asked a soldier if I might take a rose as a memento, and he handed me a cluster of roses, red and white, both colors sugroses, red and white, both colors suggestive to me; the red typical of the carnage there enacted, and the white for the purity of those who from that spot ascended.

But, of course, the most absorbing interest concentrated at the well, into which hundreds of women and children were flung or lowered. A circular-wall of white marble encloses this well. The wall is about twenty feet high. Inside this wall there is a marble high. Inside this wall there is a marble pavement. I paced it, and found it fifty-seven paces around. In the center of this enclosure, and immediately, above the well of the dead, is a sculptured angel of resurrection, with illumined face, and two palm branches, meaning victory. This angel is looking down toward the slumberers beneath, but the two wings suggest the rising of the last day. Mighty consolation in marble! They went down under the hatchets, of the Sepoys, they shall come up under the trumpet that shall wake the dead. I felt weak and all a-tremble as I stood reading these words on the stone that covers these words on the stone that covers these words on the stone that covers the well: "Sacred to the perpetual memory of a great company of Christian people, chiefly women and children, cruelly massacred near this spot by the rebel. Nana Sahib, and thrown, the dying with the dead, into the well beneath on the 15th day of July. 1837." On the arch of the mansoleum were cut the words: "These are they who came "These are they who came out of great tribulation.

Lady Latimer's Escape. BY CHARLOTTE M. BRAEME.

CHAPTER II-CONTINTED. CHAPTER II—CONTISTED.

She looked to me beautiful as the pictured angels in the old gallery at Lorton's Cray. Yet it was the face of a woman, not of an angel; and when I came to look more angel; and when I came to look more deeply into it, I saw uncasiness, languor, pride; at times unutterable fatigue, unutterable scorn, then something like despair; the light died from the proud eyes, and the lines deepened round the beautiful lips.

All at once I started with amazement; for she was looking at our new.

ment: for she was looking at our pew ment: for she was looking at our pew. and I saw a smile pass like a sunbeam over her face. I looked at the long row of children: they were all, outwardly, at least, decently behaved. One or two of them had their eyes and mouths opened very wide, and were fascinated by Lady Latimer. Then her eyes met mine, and I saw in them a tender light, a beautiful gleam.

The old lord, looking very stern and gray, sat by her side—Muy and December, indeed.

More than once I caught the beautiful eyes fixed on mine. I cannot tell how it was, but a certain conviction came to me that she was not happy. Despite her grand title of Lady Lati-Despite her grand title of Lady Lati-mer, of Lorton's Cray: despite her beauty, which was greater than I had ever seen: despite her rich dress and her jewels and the magnificence that surrounded her she was not happy. I cannot tell how it happened, but it seemed to me her eyes were telling me so, and that it was a secret known only to herself and me: but that must have always eccentric, it was this time more peculiar than ever, owing to the fact that Bob. whose expression of countenance was perfectly angelic, had pinned Millie's cape to Archie's jacket, and the wildest confusion ensued. We had reached home before it ended. Imperial justice was administered later on.

The next day Lord and Lady Latimer called. The army of boys had been sent to King's Lorton, under the pretext of purchasing a new cricket bat. Our pretty vicarage looked its best. It was the month of May, and the lilacs were all in bloom; the beautiful syringa-trees were all in flower: the house was a perfect bower; the birds were singing in the trees all round it. in the trees all round it.

in the trees all round it.

I shall never forget how the fair, queenly prosence of that beautiful woman brightened even our cheerful rooms. She was in the drawing-room when I went in, talking to my mother. Lord Latimer was discussing a late edition of Virgil with my father. Lady Latimer held out her hand to me, with a smile so bright and heautiful with a smile so bright and beautiful it almost dazzled me

It almost dazzled me.

"I saw you in church yesterday.
Miss Lovel," she said, "and I have come to ask if you will be my friends."

If I could describe her grace, her sweetness! If she had said to me,
"Audrey Lovel, from this moment you become my bond-slave, and attach yourself to me for life." I should have done so. I loved her after the fashion attracted me. I wanted to see you yesterday."

She had a wonderfully sweet voice, low and caressing. She went on:

"And those delightful boys of yours, how I enjoyed seeing them! I am sorry they are out. Mrs. Lovel, you must let me have them all over at Lorton's Cray."

My mother smiled.
"I am afraid. Lady Latimer." she

"I am afraid. Lady Latimer," she said, "you would hardly survive it. A French revolution or a Cuban insurrection is bad enough; but the boys visiting together is beyond imagination even;" and the dear, gentle tion even;" and the dear, gentle mother smiled as she thought of it

"Nevertheless," said Lady Latir er,
"I shall hope to see them. It is ery lonely at Lorton's Cray."

And I saw, plainly as I heard the words, a fine, quick gleam of scorn that lighted for half a minute on her husband's face, and then was gone.

"Are you dull and lonely Grace?" he asked. "I am sorry. You will soon have plenty of visitors."

For a few minutes he was moody and silent, then he turned suddenly to my mother.
"Mrs. Lovel," he said, "it is in your power to do me the greatest favor. You hear that Lady Latimer complains of feeling dull; will you allow Miss Lovel to pay us a visit? In fact, if it will be convenient to you, to go back with us now? It will be a pleasure to Lady Latimer and myself."

The beautiful face brightened, the

The beautiful face brightened, the gracious hand was held out to me.

"How kind! Will you come. Miss Love!? I should be so delighted."

If she had said. "Will you come to Siberia with me?" I should have gone. The fair, queenly beauty, the mystery in the dark eyes, and her gracious, winning manner, had laid ms under a grad!

"It will be a great pleasure to me, "a most blessed and unmitigated ready Latimer," I answered.

'That will do," she rejoined, laughingly. "I am so glad you will come, Miss Lovel."

"I do not think it strange, Audrey," "I do not think it strange, Audrey," she said, "not at all. Evidently, Lady Latimer is very dull and very lonely, and Lord Latimer is anxious that she should have a companion. I think, my dear," added my beautiful mother, with a gentle sigh, "that it is an excellent thing for you. It will bring you into good society: indeed, I think it is most providential for us all-Lady Latimer has evidently taken a fancy to you. It will be good for the to you. It will be good for the too."

Now, anything for, the good of the boys was as irresistible to me as to my mother, and a glorious vision of un-limited toys and fruit came before our eyes.

"I should think," said my mother, "that Lady Latimer's about your age, Audrey; she does not look one day older."

'And her husband more than sixty!" I cried. "It seems very unnatural, mamma."

Such marriages are often made in "Such marriages are often made in high life," said my mother. She bent down and kissed me. "I am glad," she said, "that we do not belong to what is called high life. I should not like you, my Audrey, to marry in that fashion. I wonder how long will you stay at Lorton's Cray?"

"Two or three days, most probably." I roplied. "Mamma do you life to reason the said of the said in woluntarily.

Fancy. my dear," answered my gentle mother.

I knew it was not fancy, but truth.

CHAPTER III.

My few preparations were soon made. Lord Latimer was profuse in his thanks to my parents. It was so good, so kind, so generous of them to spare me; he was so grateful. It was such a sad thing for Lady Latimer to feel herself so dull—so unfortunate. feel herself so dull—so unfortunate; buttin my cheerful society no doubt she would rally. His words sounded bindly, but there was an evil look in windly, but there was an evil look in the old lord's eyes as he uttered them. Then we all three drove away together, and the wonder, the dream of my life, came true—I was at home at Lorton's Cray. "What would the boys say?" That was my first thought as we drove along, and I longed to hear the remarks and comments that would be made in the august assembly. Then my companions attracted all my attention. I began to see why I.aly attention. I began to see why Laly Latimer was dull and londy. The old lord was by no means a pleasant, amusing, or even agreeable companion; he was silent and saturnine. If he expressed an idea, it was either false, mean, or ignoble; if he uttered a sentiment, it was either morbid or cynical; if he made a remark. moroid or cynical; it he made a remark, it was sure to jar in some way or other on one. He talked to me during the greater part of 'the drive; he could not forget that Lady Latimer had complained of feeling dull; he seemed to resent it as an insult to himself; he reverted to it continually.

If I had been Lady Latimer, I should have lost both temper and patience: but when she saw the turn things but when she saw the turn things were taking, she leaned back in the carriage and said nothing.

What weariness crept over that beautiful face! What sadness came into the proud eyes! The bright May sunshine, the flowering limes, the springing grasses, brought no smiles to her lips. I was almost dazed with delight to drive on that lovely spring day through that delicious, odorous air. To see the depths of the blue sky, the light of the sun, the bloom of the spring flowers; to hear the lark and the thrush, the bleating of the little lambs in the meadows—had and the thrush, the bleating of the little lambs in the meadows—had filled me with delight that was almost intoxicating; my heart and soul, my whole nature, seemed to expand. But on the beautiful face opposite to me there was no smile. I do not remember that husband and wife exchanged one word. Verily, May and December, eighteen and sixty, could never agree.

Cray, a curious sensation came over me—a foreboding, but such a mixture of sorrow and joy that I could not understandsit. I felt the shadow of coming evil and the brightness of coming joy. The emotion was so strong that I felt all the color die from my face and lips: my heart beat, my hands trembled. It seemed to me that I had gone quite suddenly into another world. Lord Latimer gave me a very kind but stately welcome.

"You look tired, Miss Lovel," he said: "you had better have a glass of side."

wine "Come with me to my room, Miss Lovel." said Lady Latimer, not seem-ing to heed her husband's words; and we went up the grand staircase together.

Ah, what luxury! what magnifi-cence! what splendor! I was struck by the great white statues, holding aloft richly colored lamps, masses of crimson flowers at their feet. She swept up the grand staircase, looking neither to the right or left, and hastened to her room.

"That's a relief," she cried, as she sunk into the depths of an easy chair; known to fall.

"What is?" I asked wonderingly.

Her face crimsoned.

"To get in-doors," she answered quickly: but I felt sure that she did not mean that when she spoke first.

Then Lady Latimer rose from her nair. She took of her hat and mantle.

"I prefer dressing and undressing about

Miss Lovel."

Then I went to my own room to make some preparations, and my mother followed me.

"It seems a strange thing, mamma."
I said, "for Lady Latimer to want me, and to wish to take me home with her now."

"I prefer dressing and undressing myself to having a maid always about me," she said.

"Shall I ring for Hilton for you?"

"I have never had a maid in all my life," I answered, thinking of the tollets at home and the struggle to get through them.

through them.

That is right," she said heartily.
I looked around that magnificent sleeping-room. The hangings were all of blue velvet and white silk: the carpet of light blue velvet piled with white flowers; a few exquisite pictures adorned the walls; ornaments of every description abounded; the toilet tables seemed to me one blaze of silver and richly cut glass; one door opened into a bath-room superbly litted; another into a beautiful boudoir, all blue and into a beautiful boudoir, all blue and white. A balcony ran along the windows, filled with the loveliest, rarest and most fragrant flowers. Everything that money could purchase or art suggest was in those beautiful rooms. I, thought to myself as I looked around. "How enviably happy the owner of all this magnificence must be!" I was soon to find out that all the magnificence in the world could all the magnificence in the world could all the magnificence in the world could not confer happiness.

"Come into the boudoir," said Lady Latimer. "How pleasant it is to have some one to talk to and laugh with. There are days when my very nature seems starved for the want of laughtur."

into my eyes, and I longed to be among them. She drew me to herself in a half-caressing fashion inexpressiin a half-carcssing fashion inexpressi-bly graceful. "I am so glad that you came back with me, Miss Lovel. I can never tell you how I felt when I saw you. I am sure that, in some strange manner or other, you are going to make part of my life, or be involved in it in some way."

it in some way."
"I had the same feeling," I replied, wonderingly.

"Then," said Lady Latimer. "it is "Then," in it. I Then, said Lady Latmer, "It is true that there is something in it. I am very lonely, and needed a friend. You have such a frank face, so noble and true. You are dark and beauti-ful. I like dark, beautiful fages. You sympathetic; I need sympathy. shall be good friends, Miss Lovel."

are sympathetic; I need sympathy. We shall be good friends, Miss Lovel."

"I hope so," was my answer. I knew that in my heart I loved her well enough to be her constant friend all my life. Then she threw off the sadmess and weariness that lay over her like a shadow.

"Miss Lovel," she said, "have you have you have again."

"Miss Lovel," she said, "have you been over the house?"
"Two years ago," I answered; and I then told her of the great awe that had fallen over the boys at the sight of all the magnificence. Laughingly I told her how the boys had implored me to murry some one with a house just like this, for their especial use and benefit.

"There is many a truth spoken in jest," said Lady Latimer; "but nover do that, my dear; let nothing ever tempt you to many for the sake of a grand house, or money, or position. It is the most horrible mistake that a woman ever makes. Sooner die than

"I never shall, Lady Latimer," I replied; then, thinking of home, I added: "I should never have a chance, no matter even if I might desire it." Our only visitors were the curate and thedoctor.

A traveler from the South described recently one of the oldest and most popular dishes in Kentucky, which is known as "burgoo." It is an outdoor concoction and many massive pots of it are said to have slmmered over a hot fire in the open at political gatherings in Kentucky. The making of "burgoo" is thus described: In the bottom of the big pot some red penper pods are is thus described: In the bottom of the big pot some red pepper pods are thrown, then potatoes, tomatoes and corn added: then a half dozen nicely dressed prairie chickens are thrown into the pot, and also a half dozen of the fattest farm yard chickens are added; then a couple of dozen soft-shell crabs and three dr four young squirrels are thrown on the heap. Enough clear spring or well water is poured into the caldron barely to float the varied contents and then the fire is started. In a prehistoric cemetery recently uncovered at Montpellier. France, while workmen were excavating a waterworks reservoir, human skulls were found measuring 28, 31 and 32 inches in circumference. The bones which were found with the skulls were also of gigantic proportions. Text: As Ye Go, Preach, ing, The Kingdom of Heaven La Hand-Matthew X: 5-16.

Introductory. B:fore sending out the twelve apostles on their first missionary journey, Jesus Christ very naturally gave them general directions as to the way in which they should act. These directions contain much that is of value in all times, but much also that was suited only to-the martisular aircurates. particular circumstances by which particular circumstances by which the apostles were then surrounded. If we remember this latter fact while engaged in to-day's lesson study, it will help us to understand some things that other wise would puzzle and perplex us. The method of larbor prescribed to the apostles before the death of Jesus was necessarily different, in some respects, from that which they were instructed to follow which they were instructed to follow afterward.

Two reasons appear to have led to this commission of the twelve: first the growing eagerness of the people to hear the news of the kingdom could not be satisfied by one preacher; second, the growing opposition of the Pharisees made apparent the necessity of not only appointing, but train-ty of not only appointing, but training men to preach Christ's gospel.

The Lord's Directions, verses 5-16.

"These twelve." Named in preceding verses. "Jesus sent forth." To test their metal. Such work was a test their metal. Such work was a part of their apostolic training. "Go not into the way of the Gentiles." At that time they were utterly unprepared to preach to the Gentiles, as the Gentiles also were unprepared to receive their preaching; therefore they were kept back. "The Samaritans." 9. "Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass." Neither the more precious nor the baser kinds of metal were to be sought and provided for the brief journey on which they were about to set out.

10. "Nor scrip." A traveling bag or wallet. "Neither two coats." One would suffice, and snother would be a useless burden. "Neither shoes." Ordinary walking sandals would be enough. "Nor yet staves." ### THE BUSINESS MAN'S LUNCH.

Hard Work and Indigestion go Hand in Hand.

Concentrated thought, continued in, robs the stomach of necessary blood, and this is also true of hard physical labor.
When a five horse-power more something is going to break. Very often the hardworked man coming from the field or the stomach and man coming from the field or the too, many foods are about as useful in the stomach as a key of nails would be in a fire under a boiler. The illused stomach refuses to do its work without the proper stimulus which it gets from the blood and nerves. The nerves are weak and "ready to break," because they do not get the nourishment they require from the blood, finally the ill-used brain is morbidly wide swake when the overworked man altempts to find rest in bed.
The application of common sense in the treatment of the stomach and the whole system brings to the busy man the full enjoyment of life and healthy digestion whea he takes Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pelles to relieve a billous stonach or after a toe hearty meal, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to purify, entich and vitalize the blood. The "Pellets' are tiny

Medical Discovery to purify, enrich and vitalize the blood. The "Pellets" are tiny sugar-coated pills made of highly concentrated vegetable ingredients which relieve the stomach of an offending matters easily and thoroughly. They need only be taken for a short time to cure the biliousness, constipation and shothfulness, or torpor, of the liver; then the "Medical Discovery aloud the taken in tenaponofful does to increase the blood and efficie it. It has a peculiar effect upon the liming membraner of the stomach and bowels, toning up and strengthening them for all time. The whole system feels the effect of the purablood coursing through the body and the nerves are vitalized and sstrengthened, not deadened, or put to sleep, as the so-called celery compounds and nerve mixtures do—but refreshed and fed on the food they need for health. If you suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia, nervousness, and any of the ills which come from impure blood and disordered stomach, you can cure yourself with Dr. Fierce's Golden Medical Discovery which can be obtained at any drug store in the country.

Economic Fencing.

Taking an acre of land 16 rods long by 10 rods in width, 52 rods of fencing will enclose it and the first impression out further investigation would naturally lead to the conclusion that 52 rods o fencing would enclose any single acre of land, but when an acre 80 rods long by to require 164 rods of fencing, and that the 52 rods will not your rods in width is to be enclosed, it is found the distance around it. This simply proves that no mathematician however expert in figures could tell the exact number of rods of fencing required to enclose an acre of land without first knowing the shape the land was in. As in this question of fencing, the working out of economic problems requires a knowledge of all the factors, otherwise the solution is mere guess work and the proposed fence may be altogether too short to enclose the ground in question.

Many people reason that because busi-ness was prosperous when a certain tariff policy was pursued or a given financial system in vogue that it would be equally prosperous were the former systems and methods to again obtain in administrative practice, and they entirely ignore all changes in economic conditions which may have rendered their particular hobbies practically obsolete.

For instance the furmer who ruises wheat or wool, the planter who raises hall last Tuesday evening. About $35 cotton or the manufacturer who produces was donated for the purpose of furnishing a certain article to be sold in the world's markets, does not take into consideration that their productions are in excess o the demand of home markets and that foreign countries which were formerly Watches, Diamonds and Jewelry at F. buyers, through cheap lands, cheap labor and improved machinery have become

The wireat of India and other countries the wool of Australia, the cotton of Egypt, and the increase of manufactures in all civilized and semi-civilized coun tries are not taken into account, and governmental policy is talked of as though it could control this condition of things. However high a tariff may be, it cannot effect the price of any production which must find a partial market by exportation, and if an article will bring a higher price in the home market because of protection, it results in taking wealth from the consumer and giving it to the producer without material benefit to the community-merely taking wealth from one pocket and putting it into another, does not increase its value.

The claim that protection will cause the payment of better wages, is also fallacious as the capitalist who makes money because of protection will not pay any bet ter wages for the same amount or clasof labor than the one who has no protec tion. Both simply pay for labor what they are compelled to pay by the condition of the labor market and no more Were it possible—which it is not--for old remedies to restore former conditions with all their iniquities, it would be neith er wise or progressive. The old "stand and deliver" system which seems to be committing suicide by "persuasion or compulsion" should give way to one which will prevent the non-producer fron absorbing the wealth created by the pro ducer, and although the idea is still offensive to many, it will eventually found that the co-operative system is the only one competent to construct a fence long and strong enough to compass this desideratum.

While the political leaders age trying to stretch the old fence, in order to make it reach and are attempting to patch the weak spots, and while capital has taken a seat to wait for profits, the masses of the people are getting very uneasy, . When they fully comprehend the whole situation, they will resolve themselves into a band of brothers for mutual benefit, place all means of production under collective control, bid farewell to tariff and financia. tomfoolery, whether for protection or revenue, and proceed to live in a manner consistent with civilized life and as the children of one great Father should live L.
