The boys are now talking strongly of organizing a ball-team in the spring.

Harry Armstrong left for California Thursday with his parents for a six or eight week's trip.

The cantata, The Wreck of the Hesperus, will probably be given Friday evening, Feb. 15. This will be the musical treat of the year. All should plan to attend. Watch this column for further announcements.

A fine new magazine rack adorns the high school. Another useful addition to our school equipment made possible by our fine set of tools. Russell Warner was the architect. This fine piece of work shows that Russell has talents of which he need not be ashamed.

The supreme court has handed down a decision that the new Compulsory Education Law applies to children between the ages of 7 and 15 instead of 7 and 16 as interpreted by the state department. This means that children can be compelled to attend school only until they are 15 years of age.

Claude White, a member of our second grade, while driving with his aunt to Northville, was struck by a train and injured so that he died shortly afterwards. The second and third grades bought flowers to send to the funeral, as a token of their esteem. The sixth grade, of which his sister is a member, sent a heart-shaped floral design made up of pink and white carnations. The family and friends have the sincere sympathy of the school in their bereavement.

County Libraries.

Lansing, Mich., January 21.—Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction French has prepared, by request, a bill providing for the establishment of county circulating libraries to take the place of township libraries, of which there are a few in the country. The state constitution requires the legislature to provide for township libraries and the legislature has done so by appropriating the money received from fines in penal cases to the support of such libraries.

The law has been a great failure, as only here and there throughout the state are township libraries maintained. It now is proposed to empower county treasurers to turn over all fines received to the county school examiners, who shall be constituted a board of county library commissioners with power to purchase libraries and provide for their circulation among the school districts. If this may be done it is believed that it will be superior to the township system.

The first bottle gave me great relief and after taking a few more bottles, I was completely cured; so completely that it becomes a pleasure to recommend this great remedy." FATAL ACCIDENT.

Claude White, Eight Year Old, Killed by Train at Phoenix Crossing.

Mrs. Alfred White and nephew Claude White, who lived with her and her husband just south of the village, were returning from a visit to Dr. Henry at Northville Monday afternoon when their vehicle was struck by the south-bound Saginaw train at what is known as the Phoenix crossing about a mile north of Plymouth. The horse driven by Mrs. White had got over the track, but the buggy was smashed to splinters and the occupants buried into the air, dropping some thirty feet beyond the crossing.

The train was stopped as soon as possible and backed up to the point where the accident occurred. The injured were picked up and placed on board the train and carried to Detroit. A Saginaw pharmacist on the train gave the injured temporary attention, both being unconscious. On arrival at the Union station both woman and boy were carried into Emergency hospital ambulance, which had been telegraphed for and was in waiting. The boy was left at the Detroit Sanitarium, a short distance from the depot, where he died about six o'clock the same afternoon without regaining consciousness. Mrs. White was taken to the hospital, where she is at present still confined with severe injuries to her back and neck, which will not allow of her removal.

On examination by physicians it was found that Claude's skull had been fractured and his head had been cut in a number of places.

Richard White, the boy's father, happened to be in Detroit and learning of the accident, went to the Sanitarium but his son was dead before his arrival.

Mrs. White says she does not remember clearly how the accident happened, but from what she says it is believed they miscalculated the nearness of the approaching train and drove upon the track just in time to be struck.

Undertaker Schrader went down to the city Tuesday and brought the body of Claude to Plymouth, the funeral of the lad taking place this afternoon from the home of his uncle.

Conquer Parker is making an investigation of the accident.

"Parents' Day" is to be observed at this time and an invitation has been and is being extended to every parent having a child in the school to be present. The slogan is, "Parents bring your children and children bring your parents." At this session, also, the Red and Blue contest for funds for the library which has been on for some weeks will be concluded and the result announced. To conclude the service a class will be promoted from the Primary to the Intermediate department of the school. Special music and exercises have been prepared which will be interspersed throughout the service. All things considered it is hoped to have the largest attendance in the history of the school, which will be but the beginning of better things for the future.

ABOUT THAT CRAPE BAND.

Mourning Symbol Out of Place on the Arms of Gentlemen.

It is astonishing how many persons, both men and women, who give every other indication of culture and refinement, are seen on the streets nowadays wearing crape bands on their coat sleeves, says the New York Herald. This form of mourning was originally a military one, the British officer's cap, with its ridiculously low crown, not admitting of a band. When he boasted a decoration the medal also was covered with crape.

From the military the sleeve band descended to the coachman and footman, and has long been the recognized servant's mourning when there was a death in the master's family. Then the costermongers adopted it because it was cheap. When one of 'Arty's friends dies the purchase of a black coat is out of the question, so he puts the band of crape around the sleeve of his old coat and lets it go at that.

The well-to-do New Yorker who unwittingly adopts this custom is first cousin to the parvenu who invests in a coat of arms and picks out one with a bar sinister because he thinks it looks just the thing.

GRIP MADE DOCTORS RICH.

British Physicians Had Harvest in the Epidemic of Influenza.

The British Medical Journal is authority for the statement that the incomes of English physicians have fallen off one-fourth since 1900, and among the causes mentioned is the abatement of the influenza epidemic, which appeared some years ago, and the mildness of recent English winters.

We are hearing much less of the influenza or grip in this country, says the Springfield Republican, and there may be those by and by who will assert that it never existed as a distinct disease except in the imagination, but those who have had it will never forget it or be persuaded to the contrary.

British medical statistics ascribe 19,000 deaths to this trouble in the one year of 1900, when the epidemic seems to have culminated. It is now pretty well established that the influenza is a periodical disease, which is supposed to originate in the filth of life in the Far East, and which moves from there around the world in increasing violence until the epidemic culminates and gradually dies out.

Had No Bargains on Hand.

Mr. Elmons did not rise from his chair behind the air-tight stove in the sitting room when his wife hurried in and told him that Abel Sanders was in the kitchen and wanted to see him, says the Youth's Companion.

"What d'you let him in for?" he asked reproachfully.

"He wants to buy a boss, that's why," replied Mrs. Simons. "You'd have made a great deal of it if I hadn't."

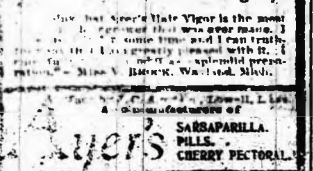

"No, I wouldn't," Mr. Simons said, as he reluctantly rose. "I know Sanders' size. I can't do business with him. He wants a cheap boss. And I ain't got anything I can sell for less than $14."

OBITUARY.

Miss Irene Bell Eckles was born at Newport, Michigan, December 19, 1888. Died January 19, 1907. Lived at River Rouge for many years, graduating from its high school a short time ago having come to this place last April. She leaves a mother and one sister to mourn their loss. The funeral took place at her late home north of the village on Monday afternoon, Rev. H. Goldie officiating.

You Can Easily Operate This Typewriter Yourself.

Don't worry your correspondent. Don't write him anything but what that takes him time to make out—that may leave him in doubt—that he can't easily read. And don't fill out legal papers or card money—make out accounts or hotel bills in your own handwriting. It looks bad reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and is sometimes ambiguous. You can write out your letter—make out an abstract—fill in an insurance policy—enter your card money—write your receipts, or a hotel bill—of any kind of writing you need, on any kind, size or thickness of paper, and space any way you want.

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer.
You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer. For you can easily learn, with a little practice to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly, as an expert operator on the OLIVER. Because the OLIVER is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 80 per cent more visible than any other typewriter, because it has about 30 per cent less wearing points than most other typewriters. 80 per cent easier to write with than these other complicated, intricate machines that require "tampering"—technical knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate. These machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance policies, or odd-sized documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring experts to operate. You can adjust the OLIVER to any reasonable space—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special, and your work will be neat, appearing, legible and clear. For the OLIVER is the typewriter for the doctor, the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant, the hotel proprietor—or any man who does his own writing. Write us now for our booklet on the simplified features of the OLIVER.

SERIAL STORY

HEARTS AND MASKS

By HAROLD MACGRATH Author of 'The Man on the Box,' etc. With Drawings by Harrison Fisher

CHAPTER I.—Continued. "You will pardon my niece," interposed the old gentleman, coughing a bit nervously.

"I never do any tricks out of business hours." "Uncle, give the gentleman ten cents; I want to see him do a sleight-of-hand trick."

"It's my regret to say,"—frowning slightly, "that regularity in my business is everything. It wants half an hour for my turn to come on."

"I admit there never was a particle of romance on your side of the family," the girl retorted. "Happily. There is peace in the house where I live."

"Do not argue with me." "I am not arguing with you; I should be only warning you that you are about to commit a folly."

"I have seen Carmen in Paris, Rome, London and New York," she replied. "Evidently a traveled young person."

would that you were back home with your father. I might sleep o' nights, then."

"I have so little amusement!" "You work three hours a day and earn more in a week than your father and I do in a month. Yours is a very unhappy lot."

"The music started up and I heard no more. Occasionally the girl glanced at me and smiled in a friendly fashion. She was evidently an artist's model."

"I tried a trick out of—turn, I might fizzle and lose prestige. And besides, I depend so much upon the professor and his introductory note: 'Ladies and gents, permit me to introduce the world-renowned Signor Fantocini, whose marvelous tricks have long puzzled all the crowned heads of Europe.'"

"It was the ten of hearts." "The ten of hearts?" Her amazement was not understandable.

"You do not look desperate." "Oh, I am not desperate; it is only the adventure that is desperate."

"I am in hope that I am neither a positive nor a superlative one; only comparative."

"I bowed and passed out into Sixth Avenue, rather regretting that I had not the pleasure of the charming young person's acquaintance."

I recalled the paragraph relative to Mack Hyphen-Bonds. By this time she was being very well tossed about in mid-ocean.

CHAPTER II. After half an hour's wandering about I stumbled across a curio-shop, a weird, dim and dusty, musty old curio-shop, with stuffed peacocks hanging from the ceiling and skulls and bronzes and marbles, paintings, tarnished jewelry and ancient armor.

The old French proprietor was evidently all things from a pawnbroker to an art collector; for most of the jewelry was in excellent order and the pictures possessed value far beyond the intrinsic.

"A cable was let down an' attached around the unfortunate man's breast by the diver. Horses were at the other end and they tugged and tugged, but could not release Hoar from the ball, which was pressing his legs against the out-take pipe."

"I made nearly $500 out of the story, because having been first to report it my stuff was given right of way and most of the work done on it was credited to me."

"But after the newsboys got into the game they made Bill Hoar, who nobody knew a week before, the most famous man for the time being on the American continent."

Also a Critic. Sir Henry Irving, the English actor, once wanted a white horse to use in one of his scenes, but no white horse that was suitable could be got.

"How do you like our change from small to large type on the editorial page?" the editor inquired of the patron who had just brought in a year's subscription.

HIS "BIGGEST" NEWS STORY

"The biggest story I ever run across while connected with the New York press slept for 20 hours before a newspaper office in the big city had the slightest hint of it, and it was only 30 miles away," said Captain Oscar Harley, the other day.

"When my message reached New York it created excitement in all the offices, you may believe. A special train was chartered for the staff writers, and before daylight artists and reporters were busily at work at the unique scene."

"A cable was let down an' attached around the unfortunate man's breast by the diver. Horses were at the other end and they tugged and tugged, but could not release Hoar from the ball, which was pressing his legs against the out-take pipe."

"I made nearly $500 out of the story, because having been first to report it my stuff was given right of way and most of the work done on it was credited to me."

FORGOTTEN LETTERS

Quite recently, according to "the public prints," a "Lost Ex-It-d Pre-enge," as Thackeray would put it, had occasion to regret the writing of certain letters.

He may, if this be true, console himself with the reflection that there are many, many others. There is a man in Washington who, only the other afternoon, experienced perhaps a keener mortification over certain letters that he had written than any "Ex-It-d Pre-enge" ever did.

"You used to care for me in those days," was her curious way of opening the conversation.

"Huh?" said her husband, looking up vaguely from his paper. "What's that?"

"Used to love me then," she said, saying the packet of letters and pulling some of them from its envelope.

"What days? What doo talking about? What doo got there?" he asked.

"Oh, some letters," she replied placidly. "Some of your—"

"Oh, rubbish, Matilda!" he broke in. "Please lemme alone. I'm reading."

"Here's one of them, written shortly after we were engaged," she went on unheedingly. "I am not a wealthy man," she quoted from the faded page; "but I can, at least, my darling, strew the path for your adorably dainty feet with wild roses and poppies—"

"Oh, I say," he broke in. "Is that what you? What's the answer to all this? Please lemme lone. Can't you see that I'm reading?"

"And here's another passage," she went on remorselessly. "When I look into your dear violet eyes I feel, stirring within me, the awakenings of a new life, the moving harbingers of something higher and—"

"Please cut it out, my dear," pleaded the husband, his face reddening. "Horrible rot! Wish you'd lemme lone."

"Here's another one, written about 40 minutes later—you used to write me about nine letters a day then, you know, dear. You say here: 'When I hold you in my arms, and inhale the dainty sweetbriar fragrance of your sunny hair, I feel as Paris must have felt when he clasped Helen in his heart in the golden antique years—"

"Oh, for Heaven's sake, can that rot, won't you, please Matilda?" the man begged, but it was no use.

"And then you go on to say: 'Never, since the Chaldean shepherds watched their flocks in the dusks and twilights of the ancient world, has woman been worshipped as I worship my Matilda. Never since—"

"Great Caesar, what a muff, what a mutonhead, I must have been!" groaned the husband. "What a—"

"Why, I think it's real nice, really," said his wife, with a sort of retrospective smile on her face. "I couldn't understand a good deal that you wrote, of course, because you know you were such a—er—florid and stylish writer, my dear, but— Well, here is something that I understood, though: 'At the outset of the dear journey which we are to take, hand in hand, I promise you that never once shall you hear so much as an unkind word cross my—"

"Say, look here, Matilda, that junk all runs for Sweeney. Please forget it. What the deuce is your idea in springing it on me now, when—"

"This sounds nice, too: 'Those precious, lily-white and hyacinth-sweet hands of yours shall never have to be soiled with—"

"Tell you one thing—I'm going to 33 out of here, Matilda, if you don't drop that. I won't sit here like a flat-head and listen to you unreeing that kind of—"

"You used to think so much of my ears, too. Listen to what you said of me here: 'They have the dainty, elusive tint of such a beautiful sea-shell as that in which Venus must have risen from the sea, and—"

"There may have been worse lobsters than I was when I uncrolled all of that superheated steam, but if there were I'd like to have a peek at 'em just for the sake of—"

"And my nose, too, you used to be so fond of: 'Shaped like Christie's, and with the most adorable little solitary freckle perched right on the bridge, and—"

"It's hard to believe that I ever took my pen in hand to scribble such infelicitous gibberish. Don't believe I wrote such stuff at all. Don't believe I ever was such a nobby-saddy as to—"

"And here's where you say: 'I shall idolize you even when you are old and when your dear head is all silvered over, and the little lines of time's making are—"

"That'll be about all of that," said the husband, then, bounding up. "Me out of doorn. Swell gag. When a fellow's read out of his own house on a rainy day, that's because his wife's nobby-saddy, etc.

And then only, when he was making for his overcoat and hat, did she get the letters away, this permitting him to sit by his own fireside.

Why does— that is to say, why did anybody— ever write such letters?

Woman is Adventurous.

In proof of the assertion made by the German authorities that all is well well in Morocco, an officer of the recent German expedition to Fes tells how, in the heart of Morocco, he had met an English woman touring alone. This fearless woman is Mrs. Frances V. Campbell. She is reported to have traveled all the way across Morocco on horseback, with no other escort than a few servants.

AWFUL EFFECT OF ECZEMA.

Covered with Yellow Sores—Grew Worse—Parents Discouraged—Cuticura Drove Sores Away.

"Our little girl, one year and a half old, was taken with eczema or that was what the doctor called it. We called in the family doctor, and he gave some tablets and said she would be all right in a few days. The eczema grew worse and we called in doctor No. 2. He said she was teething, as soon as the teeth were through she would be all right. But she still grew worse. Doctor No. 3 said it was eczema. By this time she was nothing but a yellow, greenish sore. Well, he said he could help her, so we let him try it about a week. One morning we discovered a little yellow pimple on one of her eyes. Of course we 'phoned for doctor No. 3. He came over and looked her over, and said that he could not do anything more for her, that we had better take her to some eye specialist, since it was an ulcer. So we went to Oswego to doctor No. 4, and he said the eyesight was gone, but that he could help it. We thought we would try doctor No. 5. Well, that proved the same, only he charged $10 more than doctor No. 4. We were nearly discouraged. I saw one of the Cuticura advertisements in the paper and thought we would try the Cuticura Treatment, so I went and purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies, which cost me $1, and in three days our daughter, who had been sick about eight months, showed great improvement, and in one week all sores had disappeared. Of course it could not restore the eyesight, but if we had used Cuticura in time I am confident that it would have saved the eye. We think there is no remedy so good for any skin trouble or impurity of the blood as Cuticura. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abbott, R. F. D. No. 9, Fulton, Oswego Co., N. Y., August 17, 1906."

BUILT OF FOSSIL BONES.

Queerest House in the World Is in Wyoming.

"The queerest house in the world," said a zoologist, "is undoubtedly the famous Bone cabin of Wyoming, near the Medicine Bow river. This cabin's foundations are built of fossil bones."

"Bones of dinosaurs jaws of the diplocodus, teeth of the brontoposaurus, knuckles of the ichthyosaurus, vertebrae of the camarasaurus, chunks of the barosaurus, the cetosaurus, the brachiosaurus, the stegosaurus, the ornitholestes or bird-catching dinosaur—all entered into this wonderful cabin's foundations, making it the most curious and the most costly edifice, not excepting the Pennsylvania capitol, in America."

"This hut was built by a Mexican sheep-herder, who had happened by chance on the grandest extinct animal bed in the world. This was a plot of about 50 yards square wherein lay in rich profusion the bones of all the animals of the reptilian age. The heaviest and the lightest, the largest and the smallest, the most tranquil and the most ferocious lay side by side."

"The place was evidently once a river bar, and the dead bodies that floated down the stream were here arrested, to lie for hundreds of thousands of years till a sheep-herder came along, and, rooting among the bones as big as boulders, set about the building of the world's queerest cabin."

WHITE BREAD

Makes Trouble for People with Weak Intestinal Digestion.

A lady in a Wis. town employed a physician who instructed her not to eat white bread for two years. She tells the details of her sickness and she certainly was a sick woman.

"In the year 1887 I gave out from overwork, and until 1901 I remained an invalid in bed a great part of the time. Had different doctors but nothing seemed to help. I suffered from cerebro-spinal congestion, female trouble and serious stomach and bowel trouble. My husband called a new doctor and after having gone without any food for 10 days the doctor ordered Grape-Nuts for me. I could eat the new food from the very first mouthful. The doctor kept me on Grape-Nuts and the only medicine was a little glycerine to heal the alimentary canal.

"When I was up again doctor told me to eat Grape-Nuts twice a day and no white bread for two years. I got well in good time and have gained in strength so I can do my own work again.

"My brain has been helped so much, and I know that the Grape-Nuts food did this, too. I found I had been made ill because I was not fed right, that is I did not properly digest white bread and some other food I tried to live on.

"I have never been without Grape-Nuts since and eat it every day. You may publish this letter if you like so it will help someone else." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Get the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in page.

Five Weeks in Bed With Intensely Painful Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Mary Wagner, of 1367 Kosuth avenue, Bridgeport, Conn., says: "I was so weak and generally run down with kidney disease that for a long time I could not do my work and was five weeks in bed. There was continual bearing down pain, terrible backaches, headaches and at times dizzy spells when everything was a blur before me. The passages of the kidney secretions were irregular and painful, and there was considerable sediment and odor. I don't know what I would have done but for Doan's Kidney Pills. #### Priscilla's Revenge.

It was in the days of old when knights were bold and dressed in gleaming armor.

"George, dear," said Priscilla, over her daily task, "wilt thou not help me with my skeins?"

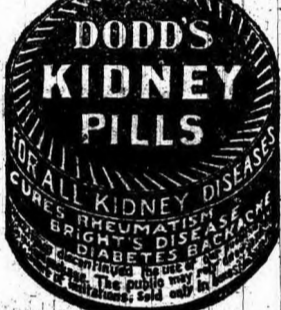

"By the tower of London—no!" roared George, as he sharpened his lance. "You haven't a spinning wheel for a husband."

Two hours later George returned from the fray with his armor battered and torn.

"Dearest Priscilla," he said, softly, "wilt thou not put a few patches on my dress suit?"

"No, George," replied Priscilla, sweetly. "You haven't a blacksmith for a wife."

And the bold knight was so humiliated he went over to Ye Frozen Heart tavern and stood the favored-keeper off for a tankard.
