RESUME OF THAW TRIAL

Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw entered upon the ordeal of her cross-examina-tion, and before District Attorney Jerome had had the witness in charge for half an hour he had secured from the court a ruling which dpens the way for bringing into the trial of Harry K. Thaw all manner of evidence which may tend to discredit the defendant's wife. This will be introduced to disprove the truth of the story she told Thaw. Mr. Jerome brought out that in 1902 some one gave Mrs. Thaw $25 a week, and that she wrote to White from Boulogne Thaw had proposed to her.
Britton D. Evans testified that

Harry Thaw said to him in the last August that he didn't want to slay White, but that the killing was an ac of Providence. Thaw's will and codi-cil were put in evidence. In the latter provision was made for several al-leged victims of White.

House Is Wrathy.

Rep. J. M. Perry, of Oscoda, has atacked the house in a two-column article in the Tustin Times, his home paper, which he owns, and the house is bolling over with wrath at the audacious first termer. His letter was read Monday evening to an indignation meeting of 30 representatives. One member has expressed the opinion that Rep. Perry should be charged with contempt.

The letter gives an account of his experience as a legislator. He says he came to the captol, and after climbing two flights of stairs he found the second termers had come up in an clevator. Bills presented by second termers, Mr. Perry thinks, are passed under suspension of the rules. First termers bills go to committee. First termers, he humorously says, may not introduce the three favorite motions of second term men; to suspend the rules, to dispense with reading a bill, to adjourn. He even declares, to the great indignation of Speaker Whelan's friends, that the speaker once recognized the motion to adjourn of a member who was not in the house at all on that day.

as a humorous incident—others are more serious, seeing that the immensely popular Speaker Whelan is criticlesed. Mr. Perry is a banker in Tustin, and highly regarded.

Mr. Perry is much astonished at the rumpus his letter has made. "Why, it was all a big joke on me," said the banker-legislator. "Attacking the bouse or showing contempt of it was far from my thoughts. Some folks in our town joked me as to whether I was doing my work, and I just wrote some stuff to the editor of the paper, making a little fun out-of the whole situation, and, really, I was joshing myself more than anyone else. The house must not take it seriously, it was all must not take it seriously, it was all a joke."

Postmaster Elected.

Despite efforts of influential politicians both in Frankfort and at Washington to oust him from the office of postmaster which he had held for eight years, C. S. Collier was elected Monday to succeed himself. He won by three votes. Patrons of the office who are also electors did the voting.

The fight was started when it became generally believed that Congressman Bishop might be induced to recommend some person other than Collier, who has held the office eight years. Frankfort citizens say that Collier was not active during the recent campaign, when Mr. Bishop needed help in his fight with McLaughlin.

A Cabinet Crisis.

Despite official denials of dissen-sions in the cabinet and among leading deputies who are ardent supporters of the government because of the religi-ous dispute, the situation is such that a crisis may occur at any moment. Here in the banquet room, on the spot where Lafayette, Rochambeay, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe, and the Artists Houdon, Peale and Trumbull, besides many great revolutionary generals, dined, the women hold their executive sessions. This increased assessment decreases the tax rate from $17,4046 in 1905 to $16,4676 in 1906, and the resultant tax levy on the railroads for 1906 is $2.417.725.60. The carloading companies must pay on a basis of $488,650, which will amount to $8.5046.87. The assessors, after hearing arguments for three weeks, adjusted the valuation so that big and small the valuation so that big and small systems alike share in the total reduction of almost $3,000,000 from the ten-tative figures first made. L. L. Appropriate Nine Millions.

The Mackinac Island park which has presented one bill placing the park wholly under state police and outside of village or county control, this year has made another innovation in asking an appropriation from the state, $15,000 for the two years. The board met in Gov. Warner's office, but the governor would not commit himself on the appropriation question. The appropriations to be made this year will, in any case, be probably the very heaviest in the history of the state, and not all requests can be granted. A new normal school is demanded. The tuberculosis sanitorium requires a large appropriation. Every department has prepared ingenious salary raise plans. The labor department, the state library, most of all the highway department, must be expanded. New buildings are demanded by a dozen institutions. The binder twine plant must be established at Jackson, and the burned $100,000 block rebuilt. Where the appropriations two years ago were $7,000,000 they may reach $9,000,000 this year. Therefore the governor does not commit himself on every appropriation scheme that ap-

Raising Subscription Rates.

Chicago Newspaper Union: A six quarte newspaper contains forty-eight columns of reading matter, of which, taking the average, about twenty-eight columns are reading matter. A column of brevier reading matter contains about one thousand words; so the average six column newspaper contains about twenty-eight thousand words of reading matter to each issue, or one mil lion four hundred and fifty-six thou sand words in the fifty-two issues which are furnished for the year's sub scription price.

Taking one hundred and fifty thous and words as a liberal average for the dollar-and half book, the contents of a weekly newspaper for a year would make nine such books, and if the newspaper subscription price was fixed accordingly, it would be $13.50 per year Of course, there are differences in con ditions which make it right that news papers should be priced on a differen basis from books, but it still is clear that newspapers, and particularly the local weekly newspapers are furnished at a price which is out of proportion to their value and the expense of production, as well as to the amount of read ing matter given.

A experienced and thoughtful news paper man writes to the Newspaper Union making the timely suggestion that publishers of weekly newspapers should take the present occasion to raise the subscription price. He points out that paper, materials and all ex penses have reached a point higher than was even thought possible when present subscription rates were adopted and that an increase is demanded by every practical business consideration Besides being supplied at a rate that is out of proportion to cost of production, as things are now, the low-priced week ly labors under the disadvantages al ways attaching to a service that is sold at a price that is very much too lowit is difficult to convince anyone that it is worth more than its conductors charge for it. Should the owner de sire to sell it, a discriminating buyer will not touch it with the handicap of a low subscription rate attached to.it.

There is sound reason for our correspondent's position. No doubt many publishers regret that they ever retheir subscription rates, and while intending to advance them when the time seemed favorable, have hitherto hesitated to undertake it Now, when cost of production in every department is higher than for year with paper selling at the highest point reached for a long time, and very firm at that, there is such evident reason for advancing subscription rates that it would seem no one should question its wisdom or propriety.

Administration Meddled.

Ann Arbor Times: The republican state convention completed its work last evening and an excellent ticket is before the people for consideration and for action at the polls in April. As to the methods employed in reaching the results there will be a wide divergence of opinion. That there was a meddleome interference by men in office there is no question, nor is there a doubt that e people outside of the officeholding class were given little voice in the determination of candidates. The controversy precipitated by the governor's usal of the candidacy of Mr. Leland was most unfortunate as it naturally shadowed all other interests or consid. erations and every candidacy in the convention, whether justly or unjustly, was made to suffer the influence of that question. What moved the governor to take the part he did in the controversy we are not advised and arit. iciam would now be ill-advised. The controversy, however, affected results. but fortunately all the candidates were above criticism and whatever the out come the state was certain to be well served in the various positions.

Champio. Jer When the of the World Hair Falls

Probably few visitors to the zoos of our larger cities who see the pell-cans solemnly sitting round their small, round, concrete pond, which has to do duty for their native lagoon, know that these great birds, so unique in many ways, still live in a wild state and nest within the confines of Europe. Their large size, heavy, un-wieldy-looking bodies, enormous beaks with the curious pouch, and general aspect, give the idea of remote parts of the earth. Vast African lakes, surrounded by deserts, or the steamy, fever-laden banks of tropical rivers. where the alligators crawl among the mangroves are the haunts one naturally associates with the pelican. One thinks of it instinctively as the "pell-can of the wilderness," and, as such, it is with difficulty thought of as an inhabitant of Europe in this twentieth century. Their European haunts are, however, as may be supposed, much off the beaten track, and the ornithologist desirous of making their acquain tance must be prepared for rough travelling and rough living, and also for a certain element of risk

R. B. Lodge, an English naturalist, tells of an expedition which he made to the "pelican country"

From information received, he says, I had hoped to find pelicans in Montenegro; but though I searched carefully the lake given me as a locality, nothing was seen of them. Purple herons were beginning to nest, and marsh-harriers were very abundant, be-sides several species of duck. One pigmy cormorant was passed, but no pelicans, nor did it seem a suitable place for them. Here, as I was wad-ing in deep water in search of a marsh-harrier's nest, I caught alive in my hand a male little bittern as it crouched on the surface of the water. Some days later I saw for the first time Pelicanus crispus in a wild state Three of the great birds flew past, and later I saw several fishing and resting on the sand. We could not, how ever, approach them near enough for a photograph, even with the telephoto

Traveling to a point farther south pelicans were found plentiful enough; in fact, we could see them with a good glass from the windows of my liost's house. There were generally a dozen or so fishing or resting on the small islets in the lagoon. they were very difficult to approach and as soon as I saw them I began to doubt whether any of them bred there. They were nearly all of them imma ture birds; and though we put in a fortnight's real hard work wading all over the lagoon, and visiting all the islands and reed-beds, we falled to find any trace of a nesting-place. Our doubts were confirmed by the local flahermen who declared that they had not nested there for many years. tried lying in wait for them, driving them, stalking them and setting the electric camera for them, leaving it out all night in the hope of catching them in the early morning. But 'all our efforts were of no avail. At this point the map was studied in the hope of finding some likely lo-cality, and finally, we determined to ride to some distant lakes and lagoons, taking a few necessaries on a packhorse, enough to last us three or four days. After sleeping two nights, one at the house of a Bey, who regaled us with a lamb roasted whole, and the interminable courses of a Turkish dinner, and sent us on our way with two of his armed retainers as guides and guards, and another at the house of a well-to-do peasant, we finally, on the third morning, after riding through most difficult country, found the pellcans' nesting-place. As we sat, each in the bottom of a rude dug-out cance, propelled by a Turkish fisherman, we could see in the distance a line of white objects on the horizon. These, they told us, were the pelicans on their nests. Welcome sight, When we could begin to make them out through our glasses, they appeared to be in front of some tamarisk bushes, on the shere. But afterwards we found that instead of being on the farther shore, as we had supposed, they were on two small, low, sandy islets, bare of any vegetation more than one foot high. After taking a few photographs with the limited number of plates brought with us, and securing several clutches of eggs, we hurried back with the intention of coming again with a better supply of phetographic necessaries, and a tent. By riding hard we did the journey in a day and a half, and immediately set to work to make our preparations, so that we were able to start back the following morn ing, preceded by two pack-horses.

Early next morning we were again

affoat, and after paddling across the lagoon, a distance of perhaps a couple of miles, I was landed on the back of one of the islands and left alone with the pelicans for six hours. By not harrying them and moving quietly and slowly there was no great difficulty in gradually approaching them. span seemed to recognize, as do most birds if treated judiciously, that there was no danger, and after a while I was working away within 12 yards or 15 yards without causing them any undue alarm. At last I was within reach of these great birds which had eluded me so long, and could watch them solemnly sitting on their nests and feeding their half-grown young. These young were curious objects, as big as geese, covered with a short dirty white down, with leaden-colored feet and beaks, and small pouches of the same dull color. There were many bigger ones swimming about nearly large as their parents. Walking out among the pelicans in the most familiar and impudent manner were several hooded crows and Mediterran-ean herring-gulls. The fishermen told ean herring-gulls. The fishermen told us that the eagles frequently came to eat the young pelicans; and hard by the nearly-devoured carcass of a half-grown pelican we picked up the flight feather of an imperial eagle. These fishermen might naturally be expected to look upon the pelicans as rivals in business; in fact, I had been told that Turkish fishermen destroy the eggs and nests whenever they can. But and nests whenever they can. But we found on the contrary, to our surprise, that they had a sort of supersti-tious regard or reverence for them, and were most unwilling to have any and were most unwilling of them injured or killed.

SCHOOL FOR COLONIAL WIVES.

Some Such Institution Needed, Says English Writer.

The colonial man is not surprised that the home man does not marry. He thinks less and less each year of coming home for a wife himself. he comes home full of hope and glad-ness, with a nice little round sum saved for the furnishing and beautifying of a certain colonial home that only awaits the woman to make it his paradise—to go back a little sadder, a little wiser, with a lonely feeling that probably there will be no home in the real sense to the end, because there are not enough of the right sor to go round. And whose is the fault? It is the mother, who, half-consciously and half-unconsciously, instills in her girls that it is fatal to marry a poor man and appear a fallure in the eyes of her friends? Is it an unworthy spirit, fostered in boarding schools that success lies solely in marrying a well-to-do man? Is this why so many capable, misguided girls wait for the well-to-do man who never comes only to be more or less burdensome spinsters to the end? One aimost wishes there could be schools for colonial wives. There is such an immense satisfaction to be gained out those "artful contrivances" for comfort, which is immeasurably su-perior to the satisfaction of squeez-ing a silk lining out of a very limited allowance and after much hought, renovating last year's hat to look like a new one. And so much of it is going begging! The men are afraid, and the girls are afraid, and the spirit of the athome marriages-ble girl is all wrong.—From "Friends in Council" in T. P.'s Weekly in Lou-

The farmers' and teachers' institute held in the Universalist church on Monday last, proved to be of rather un usual interest and was well attended ughout, the church being practically filled at the afternoon and evening

Of especial note were the address of C. A. Tyler upon the raising and se ection of seed potatoes and upon corp. though by inference all varieties for agricultural purposes were included The speaker contended that cereals for seed should be as carefully bred and selected as would be animals for propagating purposes.

Another address of interest and importance was the discussion by Mr. O. J. Kern, of Illinois, of the subject "The Front Line of Country School Improvement." Mr. Kern is a country superintendent of schools and has given a great deal of thought and work to answering in a practical way the ques-tion as to how to keep the boys on the farm. He contends this can be largely accomplished by making it unnecessary for the boy to go away to the towns and cities for educational advantages. In other words, bring to them in the country the same opportunities for culture and education that young people of towns and cities possess. This he claims may be accomplished by improving and beautifying the buildings and surroundings of the country schools, and by decorations within and landscape gardening with-out, and the promotion of libraries to bring them art and literature as they would find it in the ordinary town. . By schools into close touch with country life by adding from time to time as it proved them to be pianists of more becomes feasible instruction on the application of various sciences in a practical way to agriculture.

I make off toward the smoking room, rumbling impredations against the gods for having given me the loca of attending this masquerade, when it would have been cheaper and far more comfortable to go to the theater.

But as soon as I entered the smok ing room I laughed. It was a drell scene. Here we were all of us, trying savagely to smoke a cigar or eigarette through the flabby aperture designated in a mask as the mouth. It was a hopeless job; for myself, I gave it up in disgust.

Nobody dared talk naturally for fear of being identified. When a man did open his nouth it was only to commit some banal adjocy. for which, during office hours, he would have been haled to the nearest insane asylum and labeled incurable. Added to this was heat matching Sahara's and the opressive oder of weltering paint.

By love! Only one man knew that other: the man who had picked it up to out Friard's curlo-shop, the man who had come to Blankshire with me! I knew now. He had been there buying a costume like myself. He had seem me on the train, and had guessed the secret. I elbowed my way out of the smoking room. It wouldn't do me a bit of harm to ask a few polite quesof Mr. Caesar of the sardonic

Kidney Disease by Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.

Mr. C. M. Bartholomew, of Kalkaska, Mich., was a sufferer in 1886 with what all, including physicians, called Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Doctors said there was no help for him As a last resort he used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. The symptoms disappeared and he was permanently cured by this great remedy. His case was a remarkable one and attracted great attention. Now, in 1906 (20 years after) Mr. Bartholomew writes that he confirms all that he said in favor of Favorite Remedy in 1886, and again endorses its use. Not a "patent" medicine.

Account of the Arctic Trips
That Have Been Made.

Beginning with the American dis-coverles of John Cabot in 1497, the search for the northwest passage was for many years the object of rival expeditions from Denmark, England, France and Portugal, says A. W. Greely, in the Century. It was Frobisher, however, who in 1576-78 first gave a distinct national character to the John Davis of Davis' strait, followed in three voyages, 1585-88, and then, in 1612, came the illustrious and hapless Henry Hudson, whose motto was that explorers should "achieve what they had undertaken or else give reasons wherefore it will not be." The search for the Atlantic side closed for two centuries with the voyage of a great seaman, William Baffin, who, in a tiny boat of 55 tons, with a miserable equipment, but an undaunted heart, attained, in 1616, the highest north in the western hemis-phere, 77 degrees 45 minutes N., and discovered three radiating sounds, Jones Smith and Lancaster the last being the eastern entrance to the longsought passage.

HOME-MADE CATARRH CURE.

Sufferers Should Make This Up and Try It Anyway.

Any one can mix right at home the best remedy of its kind known. The name "Cyclone" is given to the fol-lowing prescription, it is supposed, belowing prescription, it is supposed, we cause of its promptness in driving from the blood and system every vestige of catarrhal poison, relieving this foul and dread disease, no matter where located. To prepage the mixture: Get from any good pharmacy one half-ounce Fluid Extract Dande-llon, one ounce Compound Kargon and three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake well and use in tea-spoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

This is a harmless, inexpensive mixture, which has a peculiar action upon the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys assisting them to filter and strain from the blood and system all ca-tarrhal poisons, which, if not cradicated, are absorbed by the mucous membrane, and an open sore or ca-tarrh is the result.

Prepare some and try it, as it is the prescription of an eminent catarrh specialist of national reputation.

The children had been wild with ex citement ever since they learned that their brother, Harry, would be home for the holidays. That young, man would rather have spent the short vacation with some college chums, but an imperative telegram from his father, who would not return from Italy until spring, compelled him to forego this pleasure, and a few days before Christmas he stood stamping the snaw from his boots in the great

A soft rustle of silken garments made him look toward the old-fash loned staircase, down which a slender little figure in trailing black was slowly descending.

After an hour of romping, Miss Ballour asked them to say good-night, as dinner was served and they had had their evening meal earlier. The dinner was perfect, and the demure little face opposite, in the dim glow of the candielight, was working a strange charm on Harry Martin When she talked to him her voice was sweet and low, with an odd plain tive note, that made him long to reach across the table and take her hand protectingly. He told her merry tales of wild college pranks and she listened, her eyes wide with such interest that he talked on and on, flat tered by her attention, until she left him to his cigarettes. The negro took his notes and we away. But next morning he was beinght and early. He looked dejectly. "I brung it back," he said blunity. "Well," advised the clerk, "I can refund your money. I'm not allow to." to." \ "No?"

"No."
"All right, boss," said the negro, starting for the door. "It's just cost me them two dollars for that black gal to change her mind. Lord, Tan unlucky coon."

He had nearly reached the door when he stopped, came back and asked:

"Is this licen' good any time?"

"Yes," the clerk told him...
"Good a year frum now?"
"Yes, good ten years from now."
"Well, I'll jist save it. Maybe PI need it, an' then I'll be two dollars ahead."

Some News About Baseball. An article under the head Baseball in Vienna" in a newspaper of that city in Vienna" in a newspaper of that city will be read with much interest by persong in this country who know something about the national game. "The game has become so popular," says the writer, "that it will soon be a rival of lawn tennis. Mothers who object to their daughters taking part in the violent exercise which tennis demands will have no objection to the new game on that account. Base ball was originally, like cricket, a man's game, but in the 80's an Englishmas game, but in the 80's an Englishman named Hill changed it so that women might play. Then it became popular in America, where amusements are always arranged so that women may take part in them. Since then base ball has become almost the national game there."

Compensation for Small Men.

There are, indeed, many compensa-tions which fall to the lot of one who is short of stature. When taking off his hat to a lady he does not have to his hat to a lady he does not have to reach up half so far as his more lengthy fellow; if a dime is dropped on the carpet by a careless friend he is certain to find it sooner than anyone else; when he has mislaid his latchkey he can always enter the house via the silt in the letter box; diseases such as "smoker's throat" and "housemaid's knee" which assail other victims singly can attack him in combination and affect only one portion of his anatomy, thereby enabling him to get over two illnesses in the time that other people devote to a recovery from but one. to a recovery from but one.

First Use of Black Lead.

"It is difficult," says a writer, "to determine the exact period in which 'black lead' was first utilized as an instrument for writing or drawing, as it has been confused with other mineral bodies. The ancients used lead, eral bodies. The ancients used lead, but the metal was formed into flat plates, and the edges of these plates were used to make the mark. If an enormous design was desired the transcriber drew parallel lines and traced illuminated designs, usually with a hard point, but also with soft lead. That lead was known to the ancients is also proved by the fact that it is mentioned in the book of Job."

"That man is positively dishonest!" said the protesting citizen.
"No," snswered Senator Sorghum. "He isn't as culpable as you think.
He merely lacks the high intelligence which enables a man to exercise fine ethical discrimination."

African Lake for Wh Beasts Have a Liking.

A few miles from Muhokya we came to Kikarongo, a circular lake, once a crater, about half a mile wide, writes a correspondent of the Westminster Gazette from Uganda. The water is slightly salt and is greatly appreciated by the hippos, who come here in large parties from Lake Ruisamba to bathe. The lake is shallow for a few yards only and then deepens rapidly, so the hippos, who do not like deep water, never go very far from the shore. On a still day it is an amusing pas-on a son day it is an anusing pas-time to sit by the lake and watch the great brutes enjoying themselves. For a moment nothing is to be seen, then suddenly a score or more of huge heads burst through the water with loud snorts and squirting lets of water through their nostrils; they stare around with their ugly little piglike eyes, yawn prodigiously, showing a fearful array of tusks and a cavernous throat ther sink with a satisfied gur-gle below the surface, to repeat the performance a minute or two after-

Sometimes one stands almost up-right in the water; then he rolls over with a sounding splash, showing a broad expanse of back like a huge broad expanse of back like a huge porpoise. Or a too, evaturesome young bachelor approaches a select circle of vetersus, who resent his intrusion and drive him away with roars and grunts. There is something irresisti-bly suggestive of humanity about their unigalnly gambols. Only bathing machines are wanted to complete the victories. picture.
