An Answer.

You remember the story of the mother, the eight children, and the beans—how she told her darlings she must go away and leave them a little while and that they surely must not poke the beans up their noses and when she came back—Well, we all know what she found. It seems to us this perennial and semi-annual advice of "Trade at Home" is a splendid advertisement for the despised catalogue house, not that we object to that, not in the least.

Why do not trade at home, we dull witted, short-sighted farmers, who are incapable of judging the quality of goods after we have them in our hands? Let us propound a few questions. To our certain knowledge one of your dear brothers, dear Mr. Merchant, sold his potatoes in Detroit this summer. Why? The price was better. But why didn't he sell to the Elevator and patronize home industry? Another of his compeers sent this fall to windows and sash for his house. Don't squirm. It's true. Why did he do it?

And here's a bit of a tragedy. There was a hard struggle in a farm home, but butter and eggs were bringing a good price and the wife was bringing home weekly, necessities for the babies and house, even receiving now and then a bit of cash for her products, given gingerly enough, it is true. What was her dismay to find one day the bottom had dropped out. Our merchant smilingly told her he had bought 125 lbs. of butter from Williamston, a less prosperous community. The towns people couldn't afford to pay so much, he explained. How very kind our merchants are to the farmers! 'Twas only last summer we needed a bit of money and timidly asked a grocer if he would pay cash for 12 doz. of eggs—and the vials of wrath that poured on our heads!

If the catalogue house is a fake and sells only to indiscriminating purchasers, why do you care?

Why not meet the catalogue house in a fair square battle, convince us you will treat us squarely and courteously and give us our money's worth?

Do you ever stop to think how little effort you make to make us welcome? No fountain to refresh our weary horses; no rest room, or toilet accommodations for our wives and children; no paving (the muddiest of streets) and social recognition accorded to the very prosperous only.

And you say we can not "have it out" with the catalogue house? Ah, my friend, you never made a weaker argument in your life. You can have it out with a reputable firm and in the most courteous manner possible, without the slightest irritation or annoyance and they pay transportation both ways. We "may be thick as mud," we may not know poor goods from good goods, we are glibble, truly we are, and all that; but just like you, Mr. Merchant, we lay in our stock where we think our money buys the most.

All honor to the merchants who have been courteous and square and we are glad to tell you they exist in Plymouth. You, dear reader, you find them out.

A FARMER

W. C. T. U.

The meeting next Thursday, Dec. 12, will be in charge of Mrs. Jennie Voorhies and Miss Anna McGill. There will be reports from the District Convention recently held in Detroit also from the National Convention held at Nashville, Tenn.

This was one of the most enthusiastic Conventions ever held. Nearly $8000 was pledged for the work of the organization, and subscriptions to the value of $650 were pledged to the Union Signal. The faith and enthusiasm that characterized the Convention was stimulated from time to time by the announcement of prohibition victories. A telegram reporting the passage of a state prohibition bill by the Alabama House called forth prolonged applause from the great audience at the closing meeting. A rising tide of conviction that national prohibition is possible at no distant time was in evidence throughout the convention and found voice in the President's rallying cry "On to Washington."—Supt. Press.

McDougal-Laraway Wedding.

A very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Laraway near Salem, last Saturday noon, when their daughter, Lou Gertrude, was united in marriage to Oscar McDougal of Ypsilanti. About forty immediate friends were present for the occasion.

The bride was attired in white voile taffeta, and was attended by Miss Mabel Harper of North Branch, who wore white all over lace. The groom's brother, Walter, acted as best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Walker, and the bridal couple stood before a large bank of beautiful ferns while the ceremony was performed. The complete Episcopal ring service was used, Rev. E. King of Plymouth tying the nuptial knot. A delicious lunch was served after the ceremony.

The bride is well known, being a graduate of the Plymouth High School and having taught school six years in her home vicinity. Mr. McDougal is a highly respected young man, who also has a host of friends. Many valuable gifts received attest to the high esteem in which the young people are held. They will live near Ypsilanti.

The Plymouth Savings bank statement, printed elsewhere, presents a fine showing, better than the August report.

New Postmaster Appointed.
 It was promised sometime ago that when Congressman Townsend arrived at Washington for the December session of Congress, he would settle the Plymouth postmastership very speedily. He evidently did that very thing for on Wednesday the appointment by the President of Mark H. Ladd was announced. Mr. Ladd has had some experience as a clerk in the postoffice and is undoubtedly well qualified for the place. He had the endorsement of many citizens. Postmaster Hall has the satisfaction of knowing that his standing with the postoffice department is A No. 1 and that his administration of the Plymouth office is without flaw. But the people demanded a change and they will have it soon.

Tomato Factory.
 Geo. Schulz, representing the Williams Bros. Co. of Detroit, which firm of manufacturers is well known here, was in town the first of the week, engaged in an effort to secure acreage from the farmers of this locality for the growing of tomatoes. Mr. Schulz states that if contracts for 300 acres can be secured his firm will put up a large factory and pay the farmers the highest price, not only for tomatoes but apples, cucumbers and other produce. They will, however, make a specialty of tomatoes and that this product is a paying proposition, every farmer who has grown them well knows. The farmers are cordially invited to make an investigation of the matter. A number of good contracts have already been secured. Contracts may be had of Carl Heide, at the Wolverine Drug store and H. B. Joffe's.
