BUSINESS GIRL AS A WIFE

Some Excellent Reasons Why She Should Be Distinctly Valuable in the Home.

What the business girl wife has learned from the experience of others, and association with them, is impossible to the home body who has never taken an interest in the business affairs of her father or brothers.

The business girl wife has learned the valuable lesson of being silent when silence is golden. She should be a success because she knows the worries that beset a man in business.

Having had to work for money herself, the business girl knows the value of it. This working for money and, often, trying to dress neatly on a small salary, has made her content to be economical—especially if her husband's salary be small.

This girl knows by experience that the workman needs the quiet, restful home when the day's work is ended. She has learned in her business career the necessity for system in all kinds of work. She knows the unfairness of asking her busy husband to execute household commissions. Her own experience in business has taught her this lesson.

If her husband should fail to make his appearance promptly at the dinner hour she will not grumble, for she has experienced the necessity of sometimes staying at the office when business demanded it. She knows, too, that the little bickerings between herself and her women friends are not pleasant for her husband to hear. She seems to be fitted by training to make him a happy, cheerful home.

Long Pig in the South Seas.

Long pig is not pig. Long pig is the Polynesian euphemism for human flesh; and I suppose I shall not have the chance in these degenerate days to see any long pig eaten, but at least I am already the possessor of a duly certified Marquesan calabash, oblong in shape, curiously carved, over a century old, from which has been drunk the blood of two shipmasters. One of these captains was a mean man. He sold a decrepit whaleboat, as good as new from fresh white paint to a Marquesan chief. But no sooner had the captain sailed away than the whaleboat dropped to pieces. It was his fortune, some time afterward, to be wrecked, of all places, on that particular island. The Marquesan chief was ignorant of rebates and discounts; but he had a primitive sense of equity and an equally primitive conception of the economy of nature, and he balanced the account by eating the man who had cheated him.—Jack London in Pacific Monthly.

Have Plenty of Light.

Have you been using the same old sputtery lamps this winter to read by? Then it is no wonder you are having trouble with your eyes. It pays to have good lights to work and read by. Better pay out money for good lamps than for spectacles. There are a number of improved makes of kerosene lamps that give a good, strong, steady light and also come very brilliant and economical gasoline lights. Some of these almost equal the brilliancy of electricity.

But whatever the lighting power used, the quality of the light should be as nearly pure white as possible—not red or yellow. Don't keep on using the antiquated little lamp with its tiny wick and flickering flame. The best and brightest is not too good—then the young folks, and older ones too, on the farm will spend the long winter evenings more pleasantly and profitably.

Necessity, Not Choice.

A young woman stepped on board a train at the Grand Central station one evening and sat down, placing her dress-suit case beside her. Presently a gentleman, who had dined not wisely but too well, wandered down the aisle, sidled into the space beside her, and deposited himself precipitately upon the dress-suit case.

"Excuse me," said she, "you are sitting on my dress-suit case. If you will be kind enough to rise I will remove it."

"No, you needn't—s'pose you think I'm sitting here because I want to. Well, I'm not. There's no other place in car, that's why!" responded he aggressively.—N. Y. Times.

Not Interesting.

Senator Platt of New York entered a cloakroom one day when Senator Mason of Illinois was entertaining a group of statesmen, and he stepped softly aside, as though he felt that he might be intruding.

"Come on in here, Mr. Platt," called Mason. "We are not telling anything secret or private."

"Then I do not care to listen," said the easy boss of New York.—Los Angeles Herald.

Not Satisfactory.

The judge stared hard at the accused man.

"You are charged," he said, "with robbing a limburger cheese factory. Have you anything to say?"

"Judge," the prisoner hoarsely replied, "I was driven to it by hunger."

Their Lack.

"English humor is said to be dull."

"They have a narrower field than you. You take the cherry tree out of a nation's literature, and you leave an apple gap."

RATE REGULATION POWER CONFIRMED

Railroads Lose in Attack on Michigan Statute.

DECISION BY SUPREME COURT

Powers Exercised by State Railroad Commission Are Neither Executive or Legislative and Are Legally Conferred and Used.

Lansing.—The supreme court affirmed the decision of the Wayne county circuit court in the case of the Michigan Central, the L. S. & M. S., P. M., G. R. & I., Grand Trunk, D. G. H. & M. and Grand Trunk of Canada, against the Michigan railroad commission. The decision means that the commission's right to fix rates is recognized and confirmed.

The case grew out of a finding by the commission that the baggage rates on the named roads are excessive. It was affirmed that as much was charged for carrying baggage six, seven or eight miles as for the longer distances.

The supreme court says: "Complainants aver that article 312 of the public acts of 1907 violates provisions of section 2 of article 4 of the constitution, because it confers upon the commission legislative and executive power."

"Second, that the commission's order, dated January 15, 1909 (the order to reduce rates), is void because it is not supported by any evidence that the complainants are unreasonable."

"There was evidence showing that the former rates were unjust, in that the increases were all arbitrarily five cents per hundred pounds. That is, up to 45 miles, 15 cents per hundred pounds; from 45 to 60 miles, 20 cents; from 60 to 70 miles, 25 cents, and so on. So that a traveler pays for 2,000 pounds excess baggage for 45 miles, three dollars; for 46 miles four dollars. Where his passenger fare increases but two cents his baggage increases one dollar."

"This would seem to be unreasonable, and it was remedied at least in part by the commission."

"It is held not to be an unauthorized delegation of power for the legislature to authorize a board of railway commissioners to provide reasonable rules and regulations in respect to fixing transportation tariff. Commissions of the character which we are considering in this case are now as much an integral and indispensable part of our government system as any other, with the exception of the legislature itself."

"If the legislature were to attempt to delegate a purely legislative power to a commission it would be unconstitutional, as in fact this court has repeatedly held, but the legislature's will is declared when the law is passed affirming that all rates shall be reasonable and just. This is done by the legislature itself."

"The work of the commission making the investigation upon the facts and declaring what is reasonable, and what is unreasonable is by the courts held to be simply administrative of the law as previously enacted by the legislature."

"It is held that the functions and duties of such commissions are administrative or ministerial, and neither legislative, executive nor judicial."

"We are of the opinion that the commission has sufficient proof before it to justify its action," says the court. "The law expressly makes the rates fixed by the commission prima-facie lawful and reasonable, and casts the burden of proof to the contrary upon the railroad companies contesting."

"The complainants have failed to show that the order of the commission is unreasonable or unwise, much less illegal and unlawful."

Railroad Fatalities Greatly Decreased.

Deaths and injuries as a result of railroad accidents were greatly decreased in 1909 over 1908, according to the figures given out by Railroad Commissioner G. W. Dickinson. The report shows 52 passengers killed in 1908 and 1,414 injured. In 1909 the number had been reduced to 17 deaths and 1,200 injured. Trespassers on railroad rights-of-way were killed to the number of 177 in 1908, and that was reduced in 1909 to 124. It is stated that rules made by the commission and orders issued relative to safety devices have been to quite an extent responsible for the decrease.

Heads Agricultural Board.

Robert D. Graham of Grand Rapids, was elected chairman of the state board of agriculture at the first meeting of the new board, the members of which are elected under the provisions of the new constitution. B. F. Davis of Lansing was re-elected treasurer and A. M. Brown secretary.

Surety Company Loses.

The supreme court affirmed the decision of the Washtenaw county circuit court in the case of Henry M. Zimmermann, state commissioner of banking, against the Chelsea Savings bank of Chelsea and W. W. Wedemeyer, receiver, the American Surety Company, New York, intervening petitioner. This suit was started in the Washtenaw court by the American Surety Company, to recover $50,145.40, this being the amount of the bond paid to the state after the failure of the Chelsea Savings bank.

Normal College Summer Course.

The Normal college summer school announcement is out, the session to begin June 27, and to continue until August 5. Work will be offered in all departments and the library, laboratories and gymnasium will be accessible. There will be 70 teachers in the faculty, with a few instructors chosen from successful public school teachers out in the state.

The following heads of departments will be made in the summer faculty: President Jones, Profs. D'Ooge, Hoyt, Lyman, Laird, Roberts, Ford, Lathers, Harvey, Alexander, three associate professors and six assistant professors, with many instructors and the entire training school critic faculty, including the kindergarten, eight grades, manual training and domestic science and art. Special courses will be offered for village and rural school teachers, and the county school commissioners of Washtenaw and the six surrounding counties will be present most of the time.

The general lectures, which are free to all, will be given by Prof. Edward Howard Griggs of the new Montclair (N. J.) State Normal school, who will give ten lectures on educational and social questions; Prof. R. M. Wenzel of the University of Michigan, who will lecture ten evenings on philosophical subjects; Prof. C. H. Albert of the State Normal school at Bloomsburg, Pa., who will speak on educational principles and methods and give illustrated work in modern methods of teaching geography; Miss Ella Van Hoesen, principal of the primary department of the State Normal school at Cortland, N. Y., who will give daily lectures to the county institute classes and others.

Faculty members and visitors will also give lectures, and President Jones and Dr. Hoyt will hold round table discussions on practical educational problems. The conservatory of music will also hold a summer session in connection with the general college work. The fee is only the regular term fee of the college, three dollars, with 50 cents for incidentals. Rural and village courses may be taken without payment of any fee. The enrollment usually reaches about 1,400 students from all parts of the United States.

Auditors Ask for More Time.

After a days conference over the matter of whether the board of state auditors shall approve of the proposed settlement of the case of the state against the Michigan Central and the railroad's case against the state, the board asked for further time and a decision will not be announced until the next meeting, March 30.

Secretary of State Martindale and Land Commissioner Russell, the two members of the board who are opposed to the proposed settlement, assumed the position that they had no authority to decide whether the state should swap off its case against the railroad for the latter's case against the commonwealth. On this point Mr. Kirchner presented some legal propositions for their edification and as a result of his statements, the auditors finally decided, instead of refusing definitely to act in the matter, that they would give it further consideration.

Just what will be the final outcome no one makes a guess, but it is well known is capitol corridors that the case started against the railroad to collect some $6,000,000 back taxes was instituted as an afterthought when the Michigan Central started in to collect some $11,000,000 or $12,000,000 damages for the repeal of its charter. It was simply intended as a matter of reprisal and in the hope that somewhere something might be found which could be used as a set-off against the verdict which it was feared the railway would secure. The question of a settlement has been under consideration for a long time and the attorneys for the state take the position that the state is faring well to get an even break and the payment of $125,000 costs.

To Contest Tax in Court.

Some 25 car-loading companies are planning an attack on the taxation of their property in Michigan by the state tax commission, alleging that the taxation interferes with interstate commerce and the federal constitution. Proceedings will be started, it is announced, in the Ingham court about April 1, to secure an injunction to restrain the auditor general from attempting to collect the tax. Suit will be brought in the name of the Germania Refining Company of Oll, City, Pa., and the Paragon Refining Company of Toledo, O. The total amount assessed against car-loading companies by the state is $23,386.70.

Michigan Corporations.

The following companies have filed articles of incorporation: Loppenthen Company, Hastings, $10,000; Maple Lake Improvement Company, Paw Paw, $20,000; Slocum Horning Company, Port Huron, $8,000; Briggs Company, Lansing, increase from $10,000 to $40,000; Walsh Disinfecting Company, Detroit, $5,000; South Branch Ranch Company, Roscommon, $100,000; Michigan Farm Homes Company, Detroit, $10,000.

Named Bank Examiner.

Robert Campbell, for four years cashier in the state treasury department, was appointed state bank examiner by Commissioner Zimmerman of the state banking department, to fill the place of James Van Keuren, who resigned a short time ago, to accept a position as cashier of the new American Savings bank of Lansing. He is 40 years of age and is a resident of Port Huron.

NEWS OF MICHIGAN

Muskegon.—Five hundred acres in Muskegon county has been donated by Louis P. Haight of this city, to be used by the Western Michigan Development association as an experimental farm to test the agricultural merits of the so-called "pine barrens." The tract is sand, covered with oak grubs, typical of much of the undeveloped country of western Michigan. A visit to the proposed experimental farm will be made by a committee of representatives of the development association, the chamber of commerce and various transportation companies.

Ann Arbor.—Notwithstanding the statement of Dr. H. P. Maloney that the horses on the farm of De Witt Packard died because of some anaemic trouble, and not from starvation, the Humane society in this city declares that certain not-to-be-overlooked signs of starvation are found in the dead horses. They allege that there was no sign of any food in the stomachs or intestines of the dead animals, and that, furthermore, all fat tissues had been absorbed by the animals, showing conclusively that the creatures had been starving for months.

Birmingham.—Villagers are terrified over the discovery of a case of smallpox in town, and doctors are scratching arms at a lively rate to ward off an epidemic. George Clark, an ex-mormon on the D. U. R., has a well-developed case of the dread disease. He called at the power house and, exhibiting an arm broken out with rash, drank from a whisky bottle with some of the employees, and physicians fear that they have been inoculated.

Bay City.—Edward Kinney, charged with attempted criminal assault upon Miss Eva Rattelle, was declared guilty by a jury in the circuit court. Kinney admitted his relations with the young woman, but declared his innocence of any use of force. The case will be appealed to the supreme court and Kinney is out under $1,000 bail.

Flint.—A ten days' campaign to raise $30,000 was commenced by the Y. W. C. A., and at the close of the first day the hundred girl workers had obtained $800, in addition to the $10,000 which was specially contributed by citizens. The money will be used to purchase the building in which the organization is located.

Cheesaning.—The physicians here have organized and have accepted the ruling of the county association to increase the fees of medical visits. The new fee is half again as much as the old. A charge of 50 cents a mile will be made for country visits, with an additional fee for night service.

Holland.—George Clarke, of Rodney, and Oscar Bunn were arrested on an old charge of stealing 23 chickens from David Duboor, of near Rodney, last October. Clark pleaded guilty and was fined $3 and one-third of the cost of the chickens, $4. Bunn has also confessed.

Grand Rapids.—While working in a local machine shop, Don C. Hathaway was perhaps fatally injured. The emery wheel at which he was working exploded and a huge piece of it struck him in the head and is thought to have fractured his skull.

Jackson.—A tool house and adjoining sheds on the state prison farm were destroyed by fire. The fire originated, it is supposed, from an overheated stove. The loss is $1,000, on which there is no insurance.

Union City.—Two of the oldest pioneers of this region are dead here. Mrs. Josephine Brooks and Mrs. Ira Knapp, both past 80 years of age, and both having been residents here for more than sixty years.

Dundee.—There are at present 150 cases of measles in the village. The plague is in a light form, however, and no serious results are expected. The population of Dundee is 1,200.

Three Rivers.—Citizens of Leonidas are about to start a state bank. Six thousand dollars have been subscribed and it is expected the balance needed will be raised in a short time.

Ithaca.—Mrs. Elizabeth Howd, aged 98, the oldest woman in Gratiot county, died at her home here. She lived in this county since 1854, and her husband died 24 years ago.

Marine City.—George Kersten was awakened by smoke just in time to jump from a window and escape cremation. The house and its contents were destroyed.

Lansing.—The Garden State Savings bank of Garden, capitalized at $20,000, has been authorized to do business by the state banking commission.

Mount Morris.—Mrs. Mary Burns, who resided on the same farm in Mount Morris township for 41 years, died of cancer, aged 73 years.

Holland.—After a vigorous debate the common council decide to refer the saloon question to a referendum vote at the April election.

Cheesaning.—Brant, a small village ten miles north of here, is having a siege of smallpox. There have been 29 cases.

Reed City.—There is every prospect that the veneer plant which burned here two years ago will be rebuilt at an early date. Grand Rapids, Chicago and local capital is interested. The new company will be capitalized at $75,000, with $45,000 paid in. Already $12,500 worth of stock has been taken in Reed City.

Lansing.—Attorney General Bird holds that the United Wireless Company of Chicago may be admitted to Michigan under the telegraph incorporation act. While the apparatus is different the purpose is the same as that of wire companies, he says.

FOSS, DEMOCRAT, IS VICTOR

Republican Congressional District in Massachusetts Shows a Remarkable Change in Voting.

Boston, Mar. 23.—Eugene N. Foss was elected to congress in the Fourth congressional district to fill the unexpired term of the late Congressman Lovering, beating William R. Buchanan by a majority estimated at 5,600.

Foss was the Democratic candidate and his remarkable race against the Republican choice in the strongest Republican congressional district in the commonwealth caused a sensation. The district gave 12,000 Republican majority in the last congressional election.

A Consolation.

A young woman who had been in the habit of spending her summers in a hill village of Connecticut recently encountered a rural neighbor in a city store.

"How's your wife, Mr. Green?" inquired the young woman graciously.

"Why, don't you know," said Mr. Green, "I lost her three months ago."

"Oh," said the shocked young woman, "I didn't know. I beg your pardon, Mr. Green, for being so thoughtless."

"Well," said the disconsolate widow soothingly, "it ain't as bad as it might have been. I've got good help."

SYNOPSIS.

Basil Tempest, world's greatest poet and novelist, refusing further to be lionized, abhors himself up in Craven, his country home. His gloomy meditations are broken by the admission of an American, Lucy Carew, who has come to England to get a study of the author, but more especially a synopsis of his new suite of poems. Tempest, angry at being disturbed, declares he will write no more, and asks Lucy to go. Repenting his rudeness in sending her out at night in the rain, Tempest hastens after her, but she refuses to return to Craven with him and takes lodging with a cottager. Next morning Lucy receives an apology from Tempest and an offer to assist her in writing her essay. Tempest dictates to Lucy, who listens spellbound as when he writes. Lucy decides to go to London, but Tempest induces her to remain and read her manuscript to him. Lucy declines an invitation to dine with Tempest, who then sends her to London. He asks Lady Ormond, with whom his name has been linked, to leave her husband, promising to marry her when the divorce first. Tempest departs for Craven. He burns Lady Ormond's picture after forcing a reluctant opinion of that lady from Lucy.

"I mean," he said, quietly, "that I have not written, as I told you, in six months. That, thanks to some lucky star, I am en vogue once more. How long this will last I don't know. I may wake up to find myself an idiot to-morrow. To-night, at least, I could write on until daylight. If there is any merit at all in these papers you have written out for me, let it speak as strongly as it can."

He stopped, looked at her, saw her interest, and went on: "I mean to say there will be no more unless this mood continues without interruption."

Still she waited, her face bent a little, her eyes on the roses in her hands. "That unless I can continue as I have begun, dictate to you, as the inspiration comes, I shall certainly fling the manuscript in the fire."

Miss Carew heard with gratitude the rolling up of the motor car—short as the distance was it had been ordered to take her home. She stood bewildered. His nearness to her, his eyes upon her, overpowered her. She longed to escape, and with no apparent regard to what he so selfishly demanded she took a hurried leave of him.

Tempest, after Miss Carew had gone, walked to and fro in the yellow room; reflecting on her, his eyes still full of the feast of her he allowed himself so freely to make and which she with charming unconsciousness permitted. She was unconscious; there was no doubt of that, otherwise she would not be able to meet his regard with the fine, clear look that made him like her eyes to wells of light. At the simile he put his hands over his own that burned and stung.

"If I could only steep them in those cool depths, bathe them there, kiddle their torch, as my mind's torch has been relit. Henly," he ordered, when the housekeeper appeared in answer to the bell he had rung, "I wish to dine here."

"Yes, Mr. Basil," as she would have said it had he expressed the intention of dining on the Trafalgar monument.

"And serve me yourself, will you? Put a few things on a tray, you know, and clear off a little table. Don't let a servant come near me."

"No, Mr. Basil." She looked furtively about the gay box of a room as if, in spite of her eyes, which had seen Miss Carew drive away, she fancied her encircled somewhere; there was a sense of intimacy and coyness in the little room where the fire had slowly devoured every ugly black ash of the discarded picture. The pungent odors of the roses, drawn out by the warmth, still hung on the air. "This sweet-box," as Mrs. Henly dubbed it, seemed suddenly to have become very sweet indeed!

"You're fagged out with the long trip, sir. It's too much for a day, isn't it?"

"It's enough and to spare. I shall rest here. I want never to see London again." He had said this before and it did not dismay her.

She noiselessly and quickly cleared off a little stand and put it before the divan where Tempest had thrown himself. "You'll like early supper, sir?"

"Yes, when you choose."

back of him, close to him—one could fancy she laid her hand on his hair. When, an hour later, Tempest returned to the asylum he had chosen in which to follow out a train of thought whose spell he did not wish broken, a brightened blaze, a bunch of pale violets in a vase beside a tempting little meal already spread met his eye—just the repast to please his fastidious palate and stimulate without the full, heavy sense of having as usual dined; a cold pheasant, a well-made salad, cooled champagne; then Henly with an ice, and later his coffee. She had with true unbending, as if to cater to his sight, even put on a little apron with bows at the pockets.

"Henly in an apron! What things I make you do!"

"Not half enough. I never see you these days, Mr. Basil."

He said gloomily: "No, and you are better not to."

He lit a cigar from the box that she fetched, and she went away with the coffee-tray and left him to dream—to muse—to take after a little while from his pocket a packet he had brought downstairs with him—to unfold it—consider it with a certain tender skepticism. In the packet of letters were several photographs—Lady Ormond in riding-dress, Lady Ormond in fancy dress. After looking once at each he put them in the fire with the pile of letters which he did not untie. Then he sat heaped in a corner of the sofa and brooded—brooding—watching the fire eat and consume, protestations whose feebleness his great need had found sweet because forbidden—all the long link of association with dishonor for three years. He had never idealized her—a sparkling wit, a good humor, and grace had acted as a gentle counter-irritant to his moods. She had never been indispensable, and when her refusal came he had been glad. Why? only because a new interest had, like a fine ray from an unexpected beacon, cut across the lonely, ragged promontory, and his ship was sailing along its path.

"Otherwise, God knows how desolate it would have left me," he said aloud, and with the word smiled a little and shivered. "Not that I am not desolate as it is, but my new folly has smoothed the way for the exit of the old. That's about all." He sat brooding—brooding—until Henly, venturing, came softly in to ask if he wanted anything more.

"Henly!"

"Yes, Mr. Tempest."

"Mr. Tempest!" he mocked. "If I fetched you a stick to-day, could you sharpen it into a pencil for me, do you think?"

She smiled tenderly. "Ah, no better than in those days, I'm afraid, Mr. Basil."

"Never mind. But if you knew how I've longed and needed those pencils! Made for me by another—put in my hand—and even then the hand guided!"

"You've not been writing!"

Whenever Henly omitted the name of her master he might mentally have supplied "my dear" to take its formal place and not been wrong.

"Writing! I haven't written for an eternity."

"It will come, sir."

"Ah! There's no comfort in that. Spring will come—at least there's a precedent in its favor—but, meanwhile, so will winter! What's to be done for the one who makes the pencils out of nothing for me? Guides the hand and does more—what's to be done?"

Mrs. Henly, who never allowed herself to be nonplussed by her lord's singular queries, said warmly:

"Why, something very good indeed."

"To someone who brings the spring out of season."

"If that could be, Mr. Basil," she demurred.

"You are right," he accepted and sighed. "I can't, of course, but the wonder is there just the same."

CHAPTER V.

At the end of the week Mrs. Ramsdill's became a cherished asylum, into which towards every evening Lucy Carew crept to dream, to relive the strange enchantment that was filling her days. Her room, under the eaves of a cottage whose date was older than the history of her own country, charmed her with its latticed windows and straight curtains of red-checked print; the homely pieces of furniture; the square rag of carpet in the exact center of the bare floor; the mirror in its old, quaint frame reflecting a patch of sky, a bit of meadow, and reflecting as well the vase of hot-house flowers that invariably stood on the low bureau. Old-world and foreign to her western eyes, her surroundings grew to possess the attraction of those things which are near enough to fall under the shadow of a great interest.

She went daily to Craven. There had never been a word since the night she left Tempest in the empire-room regarding her appearance or his expecting her. She went; whether or not she knew it to be unconventional; whether or not she feared the criticism of Mrs. Ramsdill and Tempest's servants and was above it; whether or not she knew she had a sacred duty to fulfill to art, to posterity, in enabling the master to work; (for work he did without even the tribute of a personal word for hours!) whether there was another reason for her going—the strongest, most cogent of reasons, against which no woman can reason without being aided by man's indifference!—at all events, to Craven Lucy Carew went faithfully, daily walking the half mile between Ramsdill's cottage and the castle.

This year there was no November dreariness to chill her spirit or aid her to consider soberly what folly she was guilty of, what danger she ran. Someone drew upon the calendar of brilliant days with reckless extravagance. If it were Tempest, he saw that his scribe approached Craven in a shower of sunshine.

Her walk lay by way of a field and meadow path for a quarter of a mile; a passage through a hedge by means of a little old stile, when she gained, with an abruptness that always seemed a sort of impertinence, the front of the castle.

Every morning Craven met her appreciative, beauty-loving eyes with fresh insistence. The perfect congruity of its ensemble; the correct ancient lines of Tudor architecture; the space and dignity; the harmony of dim, faded stone; the bigness of the mass, whose importance was visible the country round from hill to hill. Close to the house, like a shadow, was the blur of a pine-grove, the red of beeches in the near encroaching density of the park, where she had once been with Tempest.

Park and wood—the dim avenue by which she came; the lie of the valleys, their edges softened and molded by hedged farms and full-limbed oaks; the haze of atmosphere pink and gold in color; the slow-rising smoke from little, nestling cottages and from the leaf fires on the green, all held by an eternal silence and peace that the old countries alone know, soothed her mind and spirit anew at each long look she gave. Everything on which her eyes rested suggested age and tradition—there was nothing new in the landscape from farm and field, hedge, grove, and noble trees, to the castle door. It spoke to her, all of it, with one voice. England met her here in a friendly way—in, one might say, a motherly way, making an appeal to some latent heritage in her blood possibly—certainly finding response in Lucy Carew.

These impressions and delights were, of course, above all, the envelope, the subtle, delicious surrounding to the reality of the man who was absorbing her. She at times rebelled at the mastery of the force that drew her so irresistibly and wondered if some voice out of the new world would not speak out, recall her. But alas for Lucy Carew! there was no such voice to call.

She arrived at ten to write in Mr. Tempest's study until a little after 12. Then, with no invitation from him to remain to luncheon, and a sincere gratitude on her part that there was no question of it, she departed by the way she had come, reaching Ramsdill's for a meal of Spartan simplicity; as if by consent to an unspoken wish of hers, no bon-mots were sent to her there any more.

He gave her no evidence of the pleasure he took in her presence, as with faithful accuracy and unflinching patience she bent over the pages that grew like snow-piles at her side.

But had there been another observer he might have thought as she bent unconsciously over her pages that his eyes studied her—her lovely head there under the dark mass of her hair a sort of freilicht seemed to burn the edges with bronze and redden her slender hand as it traveled over the pages; her leaning form; the pure outline of her grave, interested face—indeed, the observer might think that Tempest inspired himself from this youth and loveliness. When she lifted, as now and again she did in query, her eyes to him, he drank from them as from wells.

The Belted "Millionaire."

The master's office at Kimberley has recently been the scene of a dramatic discovery. It has reference to the affairs of Thomas Istad, who, some months ago, left Griquatown for German West Africa, and whose death was reported from that territory.

His wife, remaining in Griquatown, receiving no news from her husband, and being in poor circumstances, obtained employment at a hotel there. The master, on hearing of Istad's death, requested the German authorities to forward the deceased's effects. They, accordingly, packed his belongings—chiefly clothing—in a wooden box, which was dispatched to Cape Town, and thence to Kimberley. On being unpacked the box was found to contain a red flannel waist belt, which on being closely examined, was discovered to be thickly lined with bank notes to the amount of £3,750. The deceased had been in the habit of trading in second-hand jewelry and carrying the belt without any one knowing about it—Cape Colony Times.

SENATORS PLAN LINE OF WORK

Steering Committee Has Practically Agreed Upon Legislation to Be Carried Out.

PRESIDENT NOT SATISFIED?

Rumors Around the Capitol That the Chief Executive Is Not to Have All He Wants—Leaders Preparing for Campaign—Party Factional Troubles.

Washington.—Members of what is known as the steering committee of the senate practically have agreed upon what legislation shall be put on its passage in the upper house at the present session. Naturally Mr. Aldrich, being the leader of the Republican majority, is the chief member of the steering committee, and as most of the other members are in sympathy with the Rhode Islander's views, it goes without saying that the committee itself comes pretty close to being all-powerful.

President Taft has been informed of the committee's desires in the matter of legislation and it is said by those who are close to him that he is not altogether satisfied. At a recent meeting of the committee only two measures were discussed in detail, although sanction was given to one or two other measures which will be taken up for committee study somewhat later.

It has been said the chances are that the senate leaders would make concessions to the Progressive Republicans on the bill providing for amendments to the interstate commerce act. It is now practically assured that some of these concessions will be made in the hope that they will be sufficient to make the insurgents yield and to join the regulars in putting the bill through with something like unanimity. As is pretty well known President Taft seems to think that in harmonious party action on the chief administration measures lies the principal hope of Republican victory at the polls next November.

The Democrats in the senate believe that the concessions which Mr. Aldrich is making and will make later to the Republicans who are led by Senators Cummins and Clapp will not be sufficient to make the middle and far westerners come into the harmony camp. Harmony was secured on the postal savings bank bill, but now it is being intimated that the senate leaders expect the house to make such changes in that bill as will nullify the effects of the yielding of the leaders in the upper house.

Accused of Playing Politics.

In other words, the Democrats are saying that the Republican leaders in the senate gave way in some matters simply to get harmony in their own ranks, believing fully that the house would take care that the concessions made in the senate would not be apparent when the bill finally becomes a law.

It will be remembered that Senators Cummins and Clapp, in their minority report on the interstate commerce bill, took exception to the provision which puts into the hands of the attorney general's force the government defense of all actions taken on appeal to the interstate commerce court. The senators in opposition to this provision say that the attorneys for the shippers and also law officers working under the interstate commerce commission ought to represent the government before the court, because they are well informed as to all the details of the commerce cases from the time of their inception. It is understood that the leaders will yield in this matter to the insurgent desires.

Seeking Public Opinion.

Representative William B. McKinley of Illinois, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, is getting first hand information of political conditions throughout the country. Some time prior to Mr. McKinley's departure from Washington, Representative James T. Lloyd of Missouri, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, went all through the middle west trying to find out what he could about the political sentiment.

Before he left Washington some few days ago Mr. McKinley had a long conference with President Taft. Of course no one was allowed to know just what the president said to the Republican congressional committee's chairman, but there are hints that the president again declared it would be bad policy to make any discriminations as between Republicans who are trying to secure re-election to the lower house. Once on a time, it is said with Mr. McKinley's sanction, letters were sent out by the Republican congressional committee which in tone and temper were not to the liking of the so-called insurgent Republicans. This kind of letter writing has been stopped, for the president would not sanction it, and now the material that goes out is what may be called "straight Republican" doctrine.

Concerning New Tariff Bill.

Of course it will be necessary, or at least so the ruling powers in the Republican party declare, to defend the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill on the stump during the coming congressional campaign.

The members of the Republican congressional committee hope, however, that at least four administration measures can be put through congress at this session with united party action back of them and then, as the officials of the committee view it, the speakers can go before the country and say, "We have carried out the promises of the Republican platform in large measure, and we pledge ourselves to carry out the rest of the recommendations before the Sixty-first congress adjourns next March."

Chairman Lloyd, of the Democratic congressional committee, says that the Republicans all through the west, and to some extent through the east, are disaffected because President Taft has not carried out in full force and effect what are known as the Roosevelt policies. Mr. Lloyd says that the Republicans who are disappointed over what they consider lack of aggressiveness on the part of the present president, are bound to vote for Democratic candidates for congress in order to make their protest against the disinclination of the party to go ahead along progressive lines.

Look to Roosevelt.

The Republican managers in the coming campaign, as has been printed heretofore, may make an attempt to get Theodore Roosevelt to take the stump in support of his party and of the Taft management of the progressive policies. It may be that the mighty hunter will return to America and endorse what Mr. Taft has done, but even if he does this there are many officials in Washington having some reputation for wisdom, who say that they doubt very much whether Mr. Roosevelt will consent to go on a speech-making tour, and that he probably will content himself with sitting in his study at Oyster Bay or in his editorial room in New York city, there to put out in written form what he thinks about political conditions.

Chairman Lloyd, of the minority party's campaign committee, says that he is convinced that the unrest among the people will result in Democratic victory. He refers, of course, to the complaints that have been made about the high cost of living and the feeling evident in some places that the high prices are traceable to the tariff.

Republican Faction Troubles.

The Republicans in New York have been having troubles, and while in a measure they have been settled, occasionally messengers from the Empire state Republican camp are still being sent over to Washington to confer with President Taft and with Senators Root and Dewey. The feeling of most of the Republicans seems to be that the party in New York will not get into a definite state of peace until former President Roosevelt returns.

Apparently a great many people expect that as soon as Mr. Roosevelt returns to this country, he will have something definite to say about the present administration. The Republicans who think that President Taft has not done his best to forward the Roosevelt policies, are seemingly convinced that Mr. Roosevelt at once will get out his big stick and use it on the administration of the man who during his presidency was his secretary of war and his closest friend. Other Republicans believe that the mighty hunter on coming back, will say kindly words for the administration, and will insist that Mr. Taft has been all right, and that the only difficulty is that his methods have been misunderstood.

The men who are the closest friends of Mr. Roosevelt, men whom he consulted on political matters, and who in fact were members of his official household, are of the opinion that the colonel will keep silent on administration affairs for a long time after he comes back to America, and that he will make a close study of the first year of the administration and of its outlined policies for the future, before he says or writes a word in approval or disapproval.

Sees Work for Ex-President.

One of Mr. Roosevelt's close friends, however, a man who was nearer to him in an advisory way during his term as president, than any other man in the United States, is now an office holder in New York city. Unquestionably this New York man, whose identity is not hard to guess, is particularly interested in New York state politics. He foresees the row which recently broke out between the Republican factions in the Empire State, and he came to the conclusion apparently, for he is a good judge of men and political conditions, that affairs in New York could be straightened out only by some one with a strong hand, and he had one man in mind who at that time was far away in the jungles of Africa.

The Democrats in Washington are not at all unhappy over the troubles which are besetting the Republicans in New York state. The Democrats have set it down as a certainty that they are to carry the next house of representatives, and they say freely that with a Democratic victory next fall another Democratic victory in the fall two years hence is certain to follow. It is virtually a necessity that the party which elects a president, shall carry New York state.

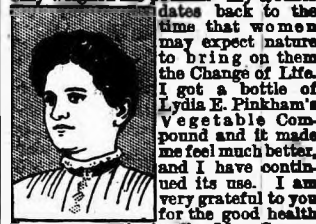

The Republicans have troubles also in Ohio and in Indiana. In these two states they have not taken on as sharp and virulent a form as has the quarrel in New York.

The Republicans when twitted about the difficulties which they seem to have fallen into, retort that history shows that the Republicans quarrel as they may, always get together in time to save the day, and then they ask the Democrats who do the twitting whether or not this can be said as truthfully of the party that is now in the minority. The Democrats answer that their party troubles are all behind them. GEORGE CLINTON.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Need Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brookfield, Mo.—"Two years ago I was unable to do any kind of work and only weighed 118 pounds. My trouble dates back to the time that women may expect nature to bring on them the Change of Life. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me feel much better, and I have continued its use. I am very grateful to you for the good health I am now enjoying."—Mrs. SARAH LOUISGTON, 414 S. Livingston Street, Brookfield, Mo.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—indigestion, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and nervous prostration.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

An aching back is instantly relieved by an application of Sloan's Liniment.

This liniment takes the place of massage and is better than sticky plasters. It penetrates—without rubbing—through the skin and muscular tissue right to the bone, quickens the blood, relieves congestion, and gives permanent as well as temporary relief.

Here's the Proof.

Mr. JAMES C. LEE, of 1100 35th St., N.E., Washington, D.C., writes: "Thirty years ago I fell from a scaffold and seriously injured my back. I suffered terribly at times; from the small of my back all around my stomach was just as if I had been beaten with a club. I used every plaster I could get with no relief. Sloan's Liniment took the pain right out, and I can now do as much harder work as any man in the shop, thanks to Sloan's Liniment."

Sloan's Liniment has no equal as a remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints. Prices, 25c., 50c. and $1.00.

Sloan's back on horses, cattle, sheep, and poultry soon cured. Address: Dr. Earl S. Sloan, Boston, Mass., U.S.A.

D. W. Packard was again arrested last Monday on the charge of cruelty to animals, the warrant being issued by Justice Doty of Ann Arbor. The warrant charges that Packard failed to care for his horses in a proper manner on the 20th day of February on his farm in Salem township. His examination is expected to take place some day next week. The Washtenaw county prosecutors claim even if Packard's horses did die with anemia, as claimed by a Detroit veterinary, the disease was a natural result of insufficient and improper food and exposure.

Chas. Long is the name of the deaf and dumb man who went through Supervisor Bradner's house last Thursday afternoon. He had his examination before Justice Valentino yesterday. The evidence proved his guilt very plainly and he was bound over to the circuit court for trial.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by Beyer's Pharmacy.

When Tom Kane came down last Monday morning to open the Conner hardware store, he found some one had been there before him. The door was open and a glance about the show cases told him "sales" in pocket-knives and other cutlery had been very brisk over Sunday. The store had been visited during Sunday night by thieves and Mr. Conner estimates the loss in goods at about $50. Entrance had been effected by inserting a bar between the double doors and using the bar as a lever the lock was broken.

The same fellow or fellows pried up a rear window in Felix Freydl's tailor shop and several suits of clothes and pants made up for customers and every piece of cloth, a total value of nearly $250 was taken, a serious loss to Mr. Freydl.

Deputy Sheriff Springer was called and made some investigation, but no clues leading to any identification of the thieves were obtained. The Deputy telephoned to Detroit and other places, but at this writing nothing has been heard.

Base Ball in Plymouth.

A fairly well attended meeting of the Plymouth Athletic Ass'n was held at the Plymouth United Savings Bank Wednesday evening. In the absence of President Markham, Robt. Walker was made chairman and Ed. Gayde secretary.

The first business was the election of a board of directors, which are as follows: J. D. McLaren, Robt. Walker, Ed. Gayde, E. L. Riggs, Fred Burch, J. J. McLaren, Wm. Weckerle, Fred Schrader, Geo. Taylor, W. T. Pettingill and F. W. Samsen.

It was voted to secure the ball grounds for another term of five years, if possible.

The lease of the grounds expires April 1st and to meet the amount due for rent another year and to make some necessary repairs, a committee consisting of W. T. Pettingill, George Taylor and Robt. Walker was appointed to solicit funds to pay the expense. There is $11.80 now in the treasury.

Ed. Gayde was elected Treasurer for the ensuing year.

J. J. McLaren was elected manager and to look after the organizing of a ball team.

The directors held a meeting after the adjournment of the stockholders and elected F. W. Samsen President of the association and J. J. McLaren secretary.

Every effort will be made to secure a good ball team and to keep Plymouth on the base ball map.

BERMUDA—the HOME OF THE EASTER LILY

By WALDON FAWCETT

OW that American tourists, in search of the novel and picturesque, have taken to journeying in great numbers to all parts of the West Indies and other islands off our Atlantic coast, beautiful Bermuda is rightfully coming in for a greater share of attention. The only wonder is that these dream islands, where frost and snow are unknown have not been the mecca in the past of a greater proportion of Yankee pleasure lovers who each winter and spring seek more kindly climates than are to be found in the northern and western portions of the United States. A hospitable domain, where the temperature never goes below 60 degrees or above 75 degrees and which is only 48 hours' sail from New York, may naturally be expected to claim no meager share of attention from travel loving Americans—particularly that large portion of us who enjoy a complete change of scene and manners and customs, even though we cannot (by reason of time and expense) journey far to find them.

These coral islands in mid-ocean may be very delightful at almost any season of the year, but the particularly auspicious season in which to visit Bermuda is in the lily season, just as Japan may be seen at its best in cherry blossom time. Bermuda's chief claims before the world are as the home of the Easter lily and the onion and right royally does she merit prestige in both directions. However, the reader need conjure up no mind picture of an atmosphere laden with the odors of the strong-scented vegetable. In Bermuda, in lily time, at least, the delicious, pungent odor exhaled by millions of the white, bell-shaped flowers dominates every nook and corner of the land. The only rivals of the lilies in floral splendor are the oleanders, which grow in hedges to twice the height of a man, and while the flaming tints of these latter flowers challenge the eye they have no fragrance and so leave the lilies undisputed in their pre-eminence.

The lilies are not the only contributors to the spectacular features of life in Bermuda. The island community is a British colony and military post and the periodical parades of red-coated soldiers add a touch of the bizarre to life in a restricted little community. Likewise are the dusky natives speaking a cockney dialect a source of amusement and the quaint little white houses attract every person with the slightest trace of home-love in his make-up. But, after all, it is the lilies which constitute

IN LILY TIME—BERMUDA

A MARKET SCENE IN THE LAND OF THE LILY

In most instances the lily tracts are surrounded by walls, but visitors are usually welcomed. Some idea of the beautiful spectacle afforded by these vast masses of gleaming white blossoms, gently swaying in the breeze, may be formed from the fact that there are a number of lily fields in Bermuda each of which are 25 acres in extent and there are some lily the omnipresent, ever-satisfying attraction. The lily fields are easily and comfortably reached, thanks to a network of hard and perfect shell roads. farms where from 30 to 40 acres of bloom may be seen in a single field. Many of the stalks are literally laden down with the precious posies. Indeed Bermuda holds the record for the production of the greatest number of lilies on a stalk, as high as 145 perfect flowers having been in bloom on a single plant at one time. A large proportion of the sweeter rivals of the Bermuda onion which overspread the islands in the spring are shipped to the United States for Easter. The employment of fast steamships and the comparative nearness of Bermuda makes it possible to get whole cargoes of cut Easter lilies to the large cities on the Atlantic coast promptly and in perfect condition.

In the average Bermuda landscape it seems as though every detail had been arranged with a view to maintaining harmony with the billowy fields of white. The small, cottage-like houses, built of coral, would appear almost glaringly white were it not that in almost every instance a contrast is afforded by clinging rose bushes and sturdy vines which entwine the habitations. According to tradition, it was an American woman—Mrs. George Russell Hastings, niece of the late ex-President Hayes—who first gave to the people of Bermuda the idea of growing Easter lilies on a commercial basis. In 1878 Mrs. Hastings planted some bulbs in Bermuda and, finding that they took kindly to the thin, rich soil, she urged the farmers of the islands to raise lilies as well as vegetables. Soon it was found that an acre of lilies would net three or four times as much revenue as an acre of onions.

The AMERICAN POULTRY INDUSTRY

OTHER American industry has a heavier tax suddenly put upon its resources than that imposed upon the poultry industry at Easter time. It comes about largely, of course, through the significance of the egg as the emblem of the universal currency of the spring holiday. It is not, moreover, the actual consumption of eggs on the Easter breakfast table that is solely responsible for this heavy drain upon an important branch of our food market. That is an important factor, to be sure, but it must be remembered that tens of thousands of eggs are, in effect, suddenly "withdrawn from circulation" as eatables at Easter time. In this category are countless numbers of the colored eggs which have been dyed for the occasion and most of which are never intended to be eaten. Similarly there are the myriad eggs which are used for egg rolling and other childish games on Easter and Easter Monday and which are, for the most part, an actual as well as a theoretical loss at the close of the day.

The largest poultry dealers declare that the drain upon the egg market at the close of Lent is only rivaled by the strain imposed upon that other branch of the industry—that covering live and dressed fowls—at Thanksgiving and Christmas. With the steady increase in the Easter egg requisitions of the American people and the price advancing at times to about 50 to 70 cents per dozen in many of our most populous cities, it is small wonder that the purveyors of Easter ammunition are greatly concerned regarding the various projects for increasing the egg production of American flocks. Much has been accomplished in this direction by the introduction of scientific breeding methods somewhat similar in scope to the methods followed in breeding horses and dogs. Only with chickens the qualifications of pedigree necessary to win places in the breeding pens include records of having laid at least 160 eggs per year. The source of supply for America's Easter eggs is no longer restricted to those farming communities where the poultry and egg business is in effect a "side line" and supplementary to grain growing or some other agricultural activity. A tremendous aggregate of eggs is obtained through such channels—often through the enterprise of the women folk of the farms, who are allowed the "butter and egg money" as a personal income—but heavy dependency is now placed upon the great poultry farms which specialize in this particular sphere. To convey a more vivid idea of the magnitude of these fountain heads of the annual flood of Easter eggs it may be noted that one of the largest American poultry farms is 82 acres in extent and the buildings and poultry yards cover more than 35 acres. This metropolis of the feathered aristocrats is lighted by electricity and heated by steam. The farm has its own water system, with a complete system of piping leading to all parts of the institution and in one of the buildings is a huge food cooker, with a capacity of 1,000 gallons. In the laying department of this particular farm are more than 2,000 hens and this tremendous flock contributes from 1,000 to 1,200 eggs daily. For gathering these eggs promptly a novel system has been perfected and as the eggs are collected the date is stamped upon each one. Each individual egg is neatly wrapped in tissue paper ere it is dispatched to market.

Although no recent accurate statistics are obtainable covering the entire country, it is known that the consumption of eggs by the people of the United States, even under normal conditions, is such as to astound persons who have never had occasion to become familiar with the magnitude of this food industry. New York City alone receives about 30 carloads of eggs every working day in the year and other cities have proportionate appetites.

Of course the current production of eggs is nowhere near sufficient to meet the demand at the Easter season. Great quantities of eggs are taken from cold storage for the Easter trade and, incidentally, it may be mentioned that the cold storage system has become one of the most important adjuncts of the poultry industry.

DOCTOR'S BEST FORMULA

Breaks Severe Cold in a Day and Cures Any Curable Cough. This has been published here for several winters and has proven the quickest and most reliable formula obtainable for coughs and colds. "Get two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Concentrated Pine compound. Then get half a pint of good whiskey and put the other two ingredients into it. Take a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of this mixture after each meal and at bed time. Shake the bottle well each time." Be sure to get only the genuine Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes in a tin screw-top case. Any druggist has it on hand or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. Many other pine extracts are impure and cause nausea.

Fighting Disease in Greece. Consul General George Horton has made a report from Athens on the conspicuous work of Greek physicians in combating the country's chief scourges—malaria fever and tuberculosis. An annual average of 2,000 persons die each year from the former, while in epidemic years, due to excessive rains, the number exceeds 6,000, which was the case in 1905. The population of Greece is 2,433,806. The people have been interested through lectures, pamphlets, etc., to fight the malaria-carrying mosquito by draining stagnant ponds and throwing petroleum on them. A tuberculosis congress will be held at Athens next year, to which will be invited not only physicians, but all the mayors and other prominent people of Greece.

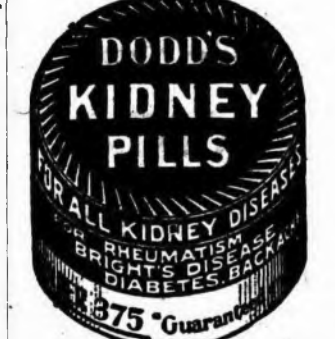

May Make Convents Into Sanatoria. Efforts are being made in Bulgaria to abolish the numerous monasteries and convents of the Greek Catholic church and to use their buildings and revenues for the establishment and maintenance of tuberculosis sanatoria. King Ferdinand has given 100,000 francs for the erection of a national sanatorium. The death rate from tuberculosis in Bulgaria is very high, being 31 for every 10,000 living.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surface. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made at Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c. per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Difficult Choice. "Which do you prefer," said the idle conversationalist, "life in the country or in the city?" "I'm not sure," answered Miss Cayenne. "It depends on whether I am in a mood to be attacked by a cow or a trolley car."

WESTERN CANADA

Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, says: "The stream of emigration from the United States to Canada will continue." Senator Dolliver recently paid a visit to Western Canada, and said: "There is a land hunger in the hearts of English speaking people; this will account for the removal of so many Iowa farmers to Canada. Our people are pleased with its Government and the excellent administration of law, and they are coming to you in tens of thousands, and they are still coming." Iowa contributed largely to the 70,000 American farmers who made Canada their home during 1909. Field crop returns alone during year added to the wealth of the country upwards of $170,000,000.00. Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts. 160 acre pre-emption at $3.00 per acre within certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest, water and building material plentiful. For particulars as to location, low railway rates and descriptive illustrated pamphlet, "Last Best West," send of information, write to Dept. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to Canadian Government Agent.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

"Nervy" Nat Enters Realm of Sweldom

NEW YORK.—"Nervy" Nat came to life at the Hotel Plaza several nights ago and very narrowly missed entering into his system some $26 worth of guinea hen, frogs legs and broiled pheasant a la Berenice, not to mention a quart of sparkling Burgundy of the vintage of 1811.

That he didn't feed was due to the unhappy conduct of his dicky which jumped out of his open faced waistcoat to the consternation of Baron Goldfogle of Obersheimer, Saxony.

As he afterward testified, "Nervy" Nat had spent his last 15 cents on a shave and a haircut, and at a nearby fountain he had laundered his celluloid collar until it shone with a brilliant sheen. In a Fifth Avenue ash barrel he had found a very classy necktie, so that a casual glimpse of him would not dismay the most fastidious waiter.

With exquisite nonchalance and savior faire, Mr. Johnstone (the later gave his name as Lorillard Lawrence Johnstone) ambled into the dining room and sauntered to a table. Slipping into a chair he swiftly spread a napkin in such a manner that it hid the triangular patches in the legs of his trousers.

A waiter approached and, bowing low, offered Mr. Johnstone a menu. "Ahem!" said Lorillard Lawrence Johnstone. "I feel rawther hungry this evening, waitah, and I am rawther pressed for time."

"Would you like some stuffed guinea hen bouillabaise?" asked the courteous waiter.

"Ah, yes, that would do very nicely," assented Mr. Johnstone, "but I fear it would serve only as an appetizer. You might also bring me some frogs legs and one of them, that is one of those pheasants a la Berenice."

The zest with which Mr. Lorillard Lawrence Johnstone attacked the rolls was the first thing that attracted the attention of the waiter. "What a strange looking person," remarked the baron in German to his vizaviz. It was only a moment after Mr. Johnstone had caught the attention of the baron that he opened his coat to give his arms freer play, and he was making such splendid progress with the bread and rolls that he paid no attention to the wanton conduct of his dicky.

It was a high polish celluloid dicky of a very smart pattern, but when it billowed out and revealed Mr. Johnstone's red flannel nether garment the Baron Goldfogle almost swooned. Speechlessly he signaled to Capt. Montlaught, chief of the Plaza's army of waiters, and then nodded in the direction of Guest Johnstone. Montlaught passed Johnstone twice and scrutinized him closely. Then he went out and summoned House Detective Burnell, who arrived at the hobo's table just as the waiter was laying before him the guinea hen and frogs legs.

"Caught," hissed Johnstone, as he saw Burnell. "I'd a gone to the jug a year for that dinner."

Old "Ben," Cat Pugilist, Dies Aged 19

CHICAGO.—Old "Ben," declared to be Chicago's oldest cat, died several days ago.

The death of "Ben," who for almost nineteen years has been a permanent fixture in the store of the Merz Drug Company, West Twelfth street and Ogden avenue, has brought sorrow to hundreds who have known and petted him.

He died of old age and his body lay in state in the laboratory of the store with several candles burning above him as a mark of respect to what was probably the best known cat in Chicago. Clerks in his former home went quietly about their duties and informed their customers gravely that "Ben" is dead" before attending to their wants.

But sorrow was not everywhere in evidence on the West Side, for there were some who felt differently on hearing that he had passed away. Every dog in the neighborhood is rejoicing, for, although a staunch friend of mankind, "Ben" proved himself a veritable thorn in the side of every dog within blocks of his home. His reputation as a fighter, it is said, far eclipsed that of any feline pugilist on record.

"Yes, 'Ben' is dead," explained Edward Merz, "and we certainly miss him. He had become a landmark here with us, for he grew right up with the store. About eighteen years ago we got him from a milkman who found him. He was then only a kitten, but grew fast. He was the largest cat I have ever seen and weighed about twenty-one pounds. I am having a tombstone prepared with the inscription:

Here lies old "Ben," the friend of man, but death to dogs.

Joseph Lestina, manager for Mr. Merz, spoke eulogistically of the phenomenal fighting record of the dead hero.

"He was without doubt the best fighter in Chicago," said he. "He had a most peculiar method of attacking a dog which was never known to fail. Instead of leaping on the back of the dog, as most common, every-day cats would do, 'Ben' would grab the dog by the neck, entwine his legs about his body and claw with all fours."

Students in Pajamas Catch a Burglar

CHICAGO.—Ten members of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity of the University of Chicago, clad in pajamas, captured a feet-footed burglar, after a chase of three blocks along the Midway pleasure, following the robbery of the chapter house, 923 East Sixtieth street, of property valued at $150.

The burglar, James Clark, was discovered in the building shortly after six o'clock in the morning by Henry Brown, the negro janitor, who grappled with him. The man broke away and ran from the building, the "frat" members, who had been roused from their slumbers by the scuffle, taking up the chase. He was locked up at the Woodlawn station.

The presence of the burglar in the house was discovered by the janitor when he found one of the front windows open and a two-foot "Jimmy" lying inside.

Picking up the instrument, Brown crept up the stairs to the second floor, which is used for studying, just as the burglar appeared and commanded him to hold up his hands.

The janitor complied and when Clark ran toward the stairway he struck him over the head with the "Jimmy." Clark reeled and then fell down the entire flight. He lay dazed for a moment and then arose and fled from the house through the window by which he had gained entrance.

Ten of the students, who had been sleeping on the third floor, appeared and gave chase. The burglar was caught three blocks away.

Lieut. John Hogan of the Woodlawn station declared that Clark had been paroled from the Joliet penitentiary in October, where he had been sentenced for a burglary. He declared, however, that Clark would be prosecuted on the charge of burglarizing the fraternity house, instead of being sent back to the penitentiary to finish his sentence, because of the recent parole law decision handed down by the supreme court.

Detroit "Cop" Snores, Loses His Teeth

DETROIT, MICH.—A member of the Detroit police force woke suddenly from a restless slumber to find his false teeth gone—the upper set. The weird, strange, uncanny and ghostly part of the affair was that he had dreamed he had lost his teeth, and now it had come true.

"Funny thing," he remarked, as he scratched his head. "Awful funny. Then he scratched his head again. "Did you bring 'em with you?" queried the door man.

There seemed to be no doubt that he had had them when he dropped asleep. Just as decidedly they were now gone. The policeman hurriedly searched all of his pockets, but in vain. Nary a molar nor bicuspid. Mystery most profound. Business of vexed astonishment.

"Maybe you swallowed 'em, old man," suggested another policeman hopefully. A look of scorn was the only reply he received.

"If this is a joke," said the toothless one, "it's gone top far, that's all. A man don't care to have his false teeth handed about as souvenirs. Whichever one of you fellows has got 'em, say something, and I'll give you the lower set. One's no good without the other. Come on—"

Then he saw his overshoes near where he had been sleeping and inside were the teeth just where they had dropped as he opened his mouth to snore!

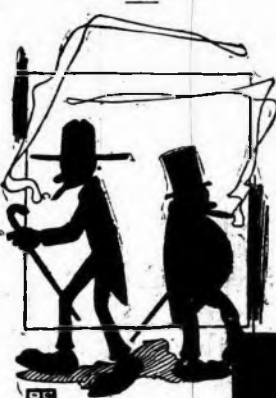

Follow this advice.

Quaker Oats is the best of all foods; it is also the cheapest. When such men as Prof. Fisher of Yale University and Sir James Crichton Browne, LL.D., F.R.S., of London spend the best part of their lives in studying the great question of the nourishing and strengthening qualities of different foods, it is certain that their advice is absolutely safe to follow.

Professor Fisher found in his experiments for testing the strength and endurance of athletes that the meat eaters were exhausted long before the men who were fed on such food as Quaker Oats. The powers of endurance of the non-meat eaters were about eight times those of the meat eaters.

Sir James Crichton Browne says—eat more oatmeal, eat plenty of it and eat it frequently.

WHERE SHE HAD HEARD IT

Mrs. Jackson Quite Confident She Had Picked Out a Biblical Name for Her Boy.

The late Bishop Gallier was once asked to baptize a negro baby boy. "Name this child," he said, addressing Mrs. Jackson, the mother of the black mite.

"Hallud,"

"That's a strange name, Mrs. Jackson," remarked the bishop, hesitatingly. "Scripture name," rejoined the happy mother, with a confident grin. "I never saw it in the Bible."

"Why, bishop, how kin yuh stan' up dar kiddin' a ole ignorant nigger laik I is? Yuh says dat name whenever yuh says de Lawd's prayer—'Hallud be thy name!'"—Success Magazine.

Any druggist has these ingredients on hand or will quickly get them from his wholesale house.

The Modern Spirit.

"Can anything be more indicative of the spirit of the time," asks an observer, writing from Paris, "than this? Mrs. R. Crouse, Manchester, Ia., says: "For two years my back was weak. Rheumatic pains racked my lower limbs, day and night. The action of the kidneys was annoyingly irregular. Another Auto Proposition.

The directors of the Plymouth Improvement Association held a meeting Monday evening and listened to another automobile proposition submitted by a Detroit. This man says he has a car built, but will build another at a cost not to exceed $1000. He wants but $10,000 in stock. The proposition strikes the directors of the association very favorably, and a committee of three was appointed to go down to Detroit and verify the statements made and see the car running. It looks as if Plymouth may finally land something in the way of an automobile factory.

A representative of the "Michigan Six" was here a few days ago and talked as if his people would locate here with proper inducements.

"Plymouth for Progress"

Messrs. Hillmer, Passage and McLaren, promoters of the Griffith gasoline engine proposition have become satisfied that the patent held by the Griffith Bros. of Flint is all right and the gentlemen are ready to go on with the organization of a company to manufacture in Plymouth. A site has been selected south of the base ball park, along the line of the railroad, and articles of incorporation are to be forwarded to the Secretary of State as soon as they can be prepared. The capital stock will be placed at $100,000. The people of the village will be given opportunity to become stockholders in the concern, any and all being invited to subscribe. The Griffiths will be allowed to finish a number of engines now in process at Flint. In the meantime a building will be put up for the factory in Plymouth.

Well-Known Farmer Killed.

Wm. Helm of Livonia township was engaged in buzzing wood Tuesday afternoon on his farm, using a traction engine for power. The belt slipped off the big pulley several times, and it was necessary for him to stop the engine to replace it. The last time it slipped off, however, he thought he could put it back on while the engine was in motion, but the effort was fatal. His hand caught under the belt and in an instant he was whirled around the wheel and thrown with great force. Both his legs and one arm was broken, as were several ribs. Other injuries were also sustained which caused his death some five hours later. Deceased was a well-known farmer, about 50 years old and leaves a wife and several children. The funeral takes place today, conducted by Rev. E. King.

Their Fifteenth Anniversary

The fifteenth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gottschalk was celebrated at their home in Livonia on Saturday evening, March 19, the following guests being present: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gottschalk and family, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gottschalk and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Gottschalk of Ann Arbor, Mr. and Mrs. August Gottschalk and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Gottschalk, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Powell of Plymouth and Louis Gottschalk of Detroit. All were entertained with music and singing, after which a very elaborate supper was served. The couple were presented with a number of fine and useful presents.

SCHOOL NOTES.

(Printed as written by Pupils.—Ed.)

The Reverend Mr. King gave the Physics class a very interesting lecture on the composition and workings of the gas engine, a subject to which he has given special study for several years. The class hereby wish to express their thanks to him.

What a lot of green people there were in school Thursday, "St. Patrick's Day in the morning"—even more than there are at ordinary times!

The custom of reporting on current events was resumed last Friday, three Seniors, one Junior and a Freshman giving topics.

Remember the Musical Georgetown, an entertainment presented by the Seniors, Saturday afternoon and evening.

Next week we shall realize that long-looked-for Easter vacation. Do not look for any school notes.

Mr. Baker has made a fine stand for the new aquarium in the Science room. If our manual training department turns out such workmen as he, we shall have reason to be proud of it, indeed.

The teachers have a study of current events at the beginning of each session of the weekly teacher's meetings which they seem to be greatly interested in.

Miss Brown of the High School was back in school Monday after about a week's absence because of an attack of tonsillitis.

Eleven teachers were royally entertained at Mrs. Leach's last Saturday afternoon and evening. Those who were compelled to miss the good time on account of sickness have the sympathy of the fortunate ones who could be there.

Miss Cook is well enough to go to her home in Owosso and will be back in school after the spring vacation, we understand.

Miss Mowry, whose mother has been very ill, has been returning to Wixom each night, coming back to her work here on the early train.

Great interest is being taken in Athletics here, judging by the crowd each noon to watch the high jump, pole vault and shot-put practice. Some good work is being done.

Visitors: Eleanor Mott; Camilla Glass, a former member of the Freshman class; Florence Lee, '08; and Miss Heidenreich.

At the annual meeting of the Athletic Association, Claude Williams was elected Captain of the track team. He and the rest of the officers have reported for duty. It is our hope to turn out a winning team this year and win back the honors which have been taken from us the last two years. Prospects look better this year than in the two previous ones.

The kindergarten children are seeing things—that is, in the line of birds. They've learned to identify a robin, a blue-jay and a wood-pecker.

In the fourth grade the history class were discussing who would be the next king of England. There were various theories given, till finally one little fellow raised his hand and said: "I know; it's going to be the Prince of Wales."

The physics class is now studying electricity; some find it a shocking subject.

A large glass aquarium has been added to the science room. It is well stocked with sea-weed, snails, poly-wogs and gold-fish, the latter having been purchased by the biology classes. We are hoping to add more to the collection in the near future.

Such great artistic ability is being revealed in the biology classes at present that it is hoped that some may become the Raphaels and Andrea del Sartors of the twentieth century.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are safe, sure and reliable, and have been praised by thousands of women who have been restored to health through their gentle aid and curative properties. Sold by Beyer's Pharmacy.

Don't waste your money. There are plenty of good uses for it. Don't pay 40 to 50 cents a pound for baking powder. K C Baking Powder is guaranteed to do better work, and it saves you 30 cents on a pound can.
