Detroiters Nicely Entertained

The Detroit Wholesalers' and Manufacturers' Association paid their promised visit to Plymouth yesterday afternoon, their trip around the circle including Farmington, Northville, Plymouth, Wayne and Dearborn. The longest stop was scheduled for Plymouth, where they intended to take dinner.

When it was understood that the Detroiters were coming to Plymouth, it was thought advisable to show them a little attention and courtesy and at a meeting held in the office of P. W. Voorhies last Monday evening committees were appointed to look after all details. Consequently when the Detroiters arrived on time at 12:30 they were taken charge of by the entertainment committee and given a very cordial reception. Landlord Weckerle had prepared a very fine dinner for the expected guests under the shade of spreading maples in the park and thither the party wended its way to a man, for all were hungry.

After dinner Mayor Hillmer extended to the visitors a cordial welcome to which Mayor Thompson responded, saying many little complimentary things for Plymouth and its people and expressed the hope that much good might result from these visits by the Detroiters to the "rural districts," referring also to the line of automobiles drawn up as being evidence that Plymouth must have "the wherewith" to make such a representation, which he said averaged at least one to every one hundred inhabitants and that was better than Detroit could do.

The next on the program was an automobile ride about the village, the procession stopping at Carl Heide's greenhouse, where each gentleman was presented with a carnation with a ticket attached upon which was neatly engraved the slogan "Plymouth for Progress." The next stops were made at the Daisy and Markham air rifle factories, where the visitors expressed surprise at the magnitude of the business done. Each visitor was presented with a pop gun by both factories as a souvenir.

The parade was then dismissed and each visitor then called upon the business places. Just before their departure, which was delayed nearly half an hour, the guests were further entertained to ice cream and lemonade, supplemented with a smoke, and as the weather was extremely warm, this feature was particularly refreshing.

The cars were ready and when "all aboard" was shouted the visitors departed with three cheers for Plymouth and the promise that they would come again. Plymouth business men felt that the Detroiters had enjoyed themselves while here and that all that was desired.

Parsonage Mortgage Burned

The members and friends of the Methodist church celebrated the paying of the parsonage mortgage last Friday evening. Supper was served, being the last of the monthly series for the year, which was followed by a very enjoyable program. Mr. Maier of Detroit sang a number of selections as did also Miss Faye Daggett, all of which were enthusiastically enjoyed. The pastor gave a statement of the receipts and disbursements on the mortgage showing over $80.00 more paid in than necessary to pay the mortgage, and over 98% of the pledges paid. After this the trustees touched a match to the mortgage, which burned to embers while the congregation sang the doxology. This was followed by a talk by Dr. Allen. He congratulated the church and pastor on the large gains in membership, the growth of the Sunday-school and church and advised the building of a much needed addition to the church for the Sunday-school and boys' work. The election of a delegate to the lay electoral conference at Flint was conducted, F. W. Voorhies being elected and G. W. Richwine as alternate. The quarterly conference was held and officers elected for the next conference year. The pastor was voted a four weeks' vacation.

Little Nathan Isbell

To the Editor of the Plymouth Mail:
It is not often that more than a passing notice is registered of the death of one so young as was little Nathan Sheldon Isbell, whose sad and untimely death occurred at the parental home in Plymouth on Thursday of last week, but I am sure you will permit me in this way to lay a small wreath of love on the little casket that encloses the sacred dust.

Though so young, scarcely four years of age, he exhibited elements and traits of character that attracted attention and made him the admiration of all who knew him. It was these early indications that led his parents fondly to anticipate his future usefulness. But the flower bloomed too soon to bless the earth long with its fragrance and a cloud of disappointment, which so often chases the meteor of hope, suddenly threw a gloom over the brightening prospect and veiled from their sight their promising boy.

The good doctor, who is greatly grieved over the tragic event, had placed on top of the book case in the Professor's library a small box of morphine pellets to be used by the nurse for Mrs. Isbell who was being treated by the doctor, in case she should need them. Little Nathan who had previously taken a box of candy from the same place, undiscovered by any one in the house climbed to the place evidently in search of more candy, and finding the hidden pellets, ate a portion of them, returned the cork to the vial in the box, placed all on the table, soon complained of pain in his stomach, in three quarters of an hour lapsed into unconsciousness, and the dear little fellow passed to his heavenly home early in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Isbell have the sympathies of the entire community in this hour of overwhelming grief. E. E. CASTER.

Sunday Morning Collision

A rear-end collision of two freights occurred in the west yards of the P. M. railroad about 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning. The caboose was telescoped on top of the engine in such a way that the engine whistle was set going and could not be stopped for some time, to the annoyance of many villagers who were taking their customary Sunday morning snooze. Two cars of oats were also wrecked. The first freight in was taking the siding when the second section plunged into it at great speed. The first crew claimed they had posted signals, but the engineer of the section following says he didn't see the flag.

Wild West Show in Detroit

The 101 Ranch Real Wild West Show is coming to Detroit on July 3 and 4, and it will give the people of this vicinity an opportunity of seeing the greatest western exhibition ever conceived. From the standpoint of both magnitude and merit this western aggregation is in a class by itself. Three long trains of double length cars are required to convey it through the country, and nearly 1,000 men, women and horses participate in the performances. In every city where this stupendous show has been seen this year, the press and its thousands of patrons have been unanimous in proclaiming it to be the most wonderful exhibition of modern times. The show comes direct from the great 101 Ranch at Bliss, Oklahoma, and which is the largest ranch in the world and from it the show derives its name. Miller Brothers who are joint owners of the ranch are joint owners with Edward Arlington in the show.

On the morning of the day of exhibition, a grand free street parade will be given, which is over a mile in length and full of new and interesting features, including Indians of every tribe not yet extinct. This parade should be seen by all whether the performances are attended or not. Two performances will be given in Detroit. The afternoon performance at 2 o'clock and the evening performance at 8 o'clock. The doors to the Indian village and band concert will open one hour in advance of each performance. Patrons may feel safe with this show, as no gambling or catch-penny devices are tolerated either on the grounds or around them. One ticket is all that is required to visit every department of the big show. Comfortable seats with back and foot rest are provided for 10,000 people.

O. F. Beyer attended the Nyal's Family Remedy Club assembly at Frederick Stearns' laboratory at Detroit Wednesday and Thursday.

Miss Martha Williams was undoubtedly the only Plymouth representative at King Edward's coronation ceremonies yesterday, she being due to arrive there at that time.

The Daisy club will play the Ypsilanti town team at Athletic Park tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The local team expects to have strong opposition but as they are playing good ball a fine game may be looked for. Turn out and see the boys play. Admission only 15 cents for gents and 10c for ladies and children.

According to the recently compiled statistics, as set forth in the bulletin, the Michigan Agricultural college now has 128 professors and assistants on the instruction staff. The student attendance record is set for 1,568, and the value of the farm, college buildings and equipments is placed at $1,265,000. The college has graduated 1,402 young men and 142 young women.

Miss Helen Baxter was cleaning a spot from her dress with gasoline in her father's woodshed last Sunday evening about nine o'clock, using a lamp to see by. The fumes of the gasoline from an open dish communicated with the lamp and there was an explosion. Mr. Baxter rushed to his daughter's assistance and threw the burning fluid striking Mrs. Baxter and burning her arm. Mr. Baxter also burned his feet in trying to stamp out the fire. An alarm was given but the services of the fire lads were fortunately not needed.

J. D. McLaren took a party of seven to Ann Arbor Sunday afternoon in his automobile. On the return trip he undertook to climb a steep hill on high gear speed, but was unable to make the grade. He then backed the machine down hill, when it acquired such a speed that two of the party became frightened and jumped out. Miss Nell McLaren was one of the latter and she sustained a sprained ankle and an injury to the knee. There was no occasion for alarm, Mr. McLaren having the car under control. Miss McLaren has been confined to bed since the accident, but is doing nicely. Her store is in charge of Miss Pitcher.

Do you want to make $500-$700

Here is how you can make that much

Five Passenger Touring Car, fully equipped, $780.

1st. Have you any idea of buying an Automobile? If not, you can't make this money? If you are going to own a car, you can. And you can do that by buying a FORD car. This is strong talk, but it is so, and FORD talks.

To prove this, all we ask is that you ride in any and all makes of cars, from $1000 to $1500, figure the tire expense, the general up-keep in cost, which is the most essential thing to figure in an automobile, then come to us and ask to have the FORD demonstrated to you over the same roads and under same conditions.

THE RESULT: We will show you a car at one-half the cost which will duplicate and surpass the feats of any of the higher priced cars, with less tire expense and lower up-keep in cost generally.

If all this is true, and we stand ready to prove it, then why pay $500 to $700 more for an automobile? Is money any object to you? If it is, we are ready to save you a small fortune.

We will be pleased to demonstrate the car to you at any time.

PUSHING CLAIMS IN CONGRESS

BY EDWARD B. CLARK

DURING the closing days of the last session of congress a filibuster was conducted in the house of representatives against the passage of certain sections of what is known as the Omnibus Claims bill. All of the claims which were included in the bill had been passed upon by the courts and congress had been requested to appropriate money to pay them, but it is one thing to ask the legislators to do something and another to get them to do it. There are thousands of claims filed against the government every year. Many of them are justifiable and some of them are far from it, but eventually each claimant gets a hearing.

Not long ago Senora Feliciano Mendiola, a woman of the Philippines, laid a claim before the United States government and eventually as a result has it she received $30, in full discharge of the obligation as congress looked at it.

The case of Senora Mendiola went to the house committee on war claims with a mass of papers containing information concerning it together with the finding of a board of army officers specially convened to consider the lady's case against the government. On the papers in this case in which the claimant received $30 as compensation, there were the endorsements of thirty-five army officers, major generals, brigadier generals, colonels, lieutenant colonels and so on down to the end of the list which ends with the name of a corporal.

Senora Feliciano Mendiola's case will pass into history as having been tangled up with more red tape than it hitherto was thought possible for even a government of official factories to turn out. Senora Feliciano lived at Abogles, Pampanga, Philippine Islands, and she rented a house to Uncle Sam for the use of some of his teamsters. The mule driving contingent lived in it for a short time, and when the senora moved into it again she found, so she declared under oath, that some of the siding boards were missing from the wall of the kitchen. She asked for $200 in gold to repay her for the damage to her property.

A board of officers were convened to pass on the validity of Feliciano's claim. The board was in session for days. Teamster Pickle was a witness. He swore that when he and his comrades took possession of Feliciano's house for quarters the kitchen siding boards were rotten, and that when the men put their feet on the wall, as is a teamster's wont after dinner when he wishes to smoke, their boots went through the wall to the open air with no force behind them except the weight of the man who was tipping back in his chair. As Pickle expressively put it, "Them boards was punk."

After Captain Valentine and Lieutenant Barnard of the cavalry had testified at great length, Teamster William Langworthy swore that Feliciano's boards were chewed up and eaten by red ants. Teamster Summerfield made affidavit that the boards dropped out of place of their own weight.

The board thought it was very doubtful, if, in strict justice, any money should be allowed, but considered it expedient to grant $30 in gold. The officers doubtless were led to this charitable finding by receipt of the news while in session that Feliciano was sick in a Manila hospital because of the loss of her kitchen-sidings.

This case of Senora Feliciano Mendiola takes up fourteen pages of a house document. It contains a long letter from the secretary of war on the question of kitchen sidings, another letter from the quartermaster general of the United States and fifty-three communications from army officers and civilians of various rank and condition.

The committee on war claims is composed of members noted for their gallantry. In due course of time—much time—Senora Feliciano received her $30 in gold and it might have been some satisfaction to her oriental mind to know that Uncle Sam had spent about $1,000 to get authority to pay for the sidings which went to destruction either by way of a teamster's feet or a red ant's stomach.

Senora Feliciano Mendiola's troubles in getting $30 from the United States for damage done to her kitchen walls by the feet of Uncle Sam's lounging teamsters have been recorded, and her tribulations bring to mind those of Captain C. H. Conrad, Third United States Cavalryman, who for "conviction's sake" insisted that the United States government pay him $32.85 which the captain knew was due him.

This case of Captain Conrad's hung fire for years, but he finally secured his money, though he probably earned about a hundred times the sum involved by the hard work he did to get what admittedly was justice in the case. The captain did not want a bad precedent established and so even though the amount was small as it was he made a fight for his own.

Captain Conrad paid $32.85 extra duty money to certain enlisted men. The men had earned it and were entitled to the money by a regulation which had existed for years. The captain discovered that Uncle Sam had revoked the extra pay regulation, but had neglected to notify the quartermasters. Uncle Sam is unreasonable at times. He stopped $32.85 out of Captain Conrad's pay and practically told the officer he should have known in some mysterious way that the government had an order stowed away in a vault somewhere that extra duty pay had been cut out.

Captain Conrad was over five years trying to get back his $32.85, and he stuck to the task like the good fighter that he is. Permission finally was granted by the secretary of war, the lieutenant general of the army and the quartermaster general to Captain Conrad to try to get a bill passed by congress to reimburse him for the robbery perpetrated by Uncle Sam some time prior to the Spanish war.

It is hard work to get away from this matter of claims before congress without saying just a word about Arthur C. Jewell of Bellevue, Neb. Some years ago a horse belonging to Mr. Jewell was shot by United States troops who were at target practice. Mr. Jewell filed a claim for $80. The horse was not killed by the rifle bullet that hit him in the withers, but, according to Mr. Jewell, the animal was incapacitated for further farm work. To prove the validity of his claim for damage to his property Mr. Jewell kept the wounded horse alive for four years, spent many dollars in forage for him and brought him before several army boards of inquiry to show that the bullet hurt the beast $80 worth. The house committee on claims had before it a volume of documents, several veterinary affidavits and a diagram of a scarified steed.

Dr. T. S. Palmer who for years has had charge of the general matter of game bird protection for the department of agriculture frequently has sent out warnings to the effect that the wild fowl of the country were being exterminated rapidly and if this valuable food supply assets were to be saved something must be done to check the slaughter of the ducks and the geese.

A Massachusetts member of congress aided and abetted by a western member had had plans before the house for years which he thinks if put into effect, will compass the salvation of the ducks, the geese, the swans and for that matter all birds that are migratory in their habits. If this plan is ever allowed to reach the floor of congress for debate there will be more constitutional points raised than were brought up during the rapid fire of verbal interchanges between the great constitutional lawyers of the senate when the railroad rate question was under consideration.

There was success in getting the bird saving plan before congress, but not in the form that would allow open discussion in the house. The bill was drawn, introduced and sent to the committee on judiciary where it was the subject of both humorous and serious comment. If this bill were ever to become a law it unquestionably would tend to save the game birds of the country from extermination and congress has been told, what most people have realized, that the game of the United States is a valuable economic asset and that it is possible to eat the game birds and still have them. In other words it is held that if indiscriminate slaughter can be checked and pot hunters be forced to limit the size of his daily game bags that posterity will be allowed to know what a wild duck looks like.

The member who fathered the measure said that the only way to save the game birds was to pass a national law against their destruction except in certain short, close seasons. Of course the general understanding is that the states alone must legislate on the game birds within their borders. The western members declared that inasmuch as game birds were migratory and took their flight from one state to another they were subject to the laws governing interstate commerce. "A railroad," he said, "crosses a state line and Uncle Sam has charge of legislation affecting it. The same rule and the same right apply to birds."

Now it may seem the extremity of foolishness to the layman and possibly to most lawyers, but some shining legal lights in Washington held that the reasoning of the father of the bird protection measure was good reasoning and that the chances certainly were about even that the Supreme court would uphold the constitutionality of a law which would put migratory birds under the care and protection of the Interstate Commerce Commission. It was said by some of the older members of congress that the measure appeared on its face to be a freak measure, but there might be a deal more sense in it than the surface showed.

Periodically the assassination of Governor Goebel of Kentucky returned to plague the house of representatives. As everybody probably remembers Governor Taylor of Kentucky went to Indiana when charge was made against him of complicity in the Goebel killing. The Kentucky officials tried to secure Taylor's return so that he might be placed on trial, but the Indiana governors always refused to sign the Kentucky requisition.

One day there was a veritable storm in the house of representatives over the matter of the refusal of the Hoosier executive to honor a requisition for Taylor. Lightning flashed back and forth across the aisle which divides Democracy from Republicanism. The bolts were hurled by Kentuckians and by Indians. John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, the Democratic leader, doubtless intended to keep out of the storm, but it surrounded him and beat upon his head until he felt forced to add his own voice to the din.

The Hoosier Republicans had told the Kentucky Democrats that if Taylor were given up to trial conviction would come irrespective of his guilt or innocence. They said that with the feeling running high there was no chance for impartiality in judge or jury. They intimated that if Taylor was innocent that to give him up to the Kentucky authorities meant giving him up to be murdered.

From the words of the Indians the Kentuckians drew the inference that their state was charged with being the seat of injustice. They refused utterly to confine the charges and the insinuations of the Hoosiers to the one case in hand, and they let it appear in their answers that they held that Kentucky and the Kentuckians were being accused of all the offenses known to the laws of civilization.

Mr. Williams told the Indians that no matter how impudently they might assume superiority they were no better than the people to the south of the Ohio. He said to the Hoosiers: "There has been too much of this arrogant assumption of superiority on your side of the Ohio river and of inferiority on the other. In the forum, on the battlefield, on the bench and in literature Kentuckians always have been your equals if not your superiors."

The fact that the Democratic leader did not claim superiority for the southerner over the northerner, but was content even in the heat of argument, when something else might have been expected, to lay claim merely to an equality of ability, was the means of quieting matters, and the row over the Taylor requisition affair quieted down.

After it was over a New York member went to an Indian and asked him why it was that when Mr. Williams intimated that Kentucky was the peer of Indiana in literature the Hoosier did not fire at him a catalogue of the recent Indiana output in literature. The New Yorker told his Indiana friend that if he had done this he could have floored all the Kentuckians, and with them the Mississippi leader, with the quantity of the ammunition, even though in part its quality might be a bit below par.

Lots of Raw Material.

"President Diaz," said a Chicago railroad man with headquarters in Mexico, "used to have a gruff, caustic kind of wit."

"I once dined with him in Mexico City, when the subject of Dash came up—Dash, a staid millionaire of seventy-eight years, who had eloped with his sixteen-year-old stenographer."

"President Diaz philosophized, I thought, rather neatly on this matter. 'Well,' he said, 'not every man is made a fool of, but every man has the raw material in him.'"

HAD BEEN SILENT SUFFERER

Subordinate Officer the Recipient of Hints Intended for His Superior.

A sea captain's wife tells this story of the maiden woman, sister of one of the owners of the ship on which she once made a long voyage. She had very decided opinion on most matters, and she and the captain had many spirited arguments at the dinner table.

The captain's wife, a meek, submissive little soul, fearing that in the heat of argument her husband might say something to offend their august passenger, was in the habit of kicking him on the shins to hint at moderation. Nevertheless, all these reminders passed unheeded.

One day she administered a more vigorous kick than usual, and noticed an expression of pain fit across the face of the mate, who sat opposite her.

"Oh, Mr. Brown, was that your shin?" she asked.

"Yes, Mrs. Blackie," said the mate, meekly, "it's been my shin ball the voyage, ma'am."—Youth's Companion.

The Worth of the Voice.

How wonderful is the human voice! It is indeed the organ of the soul! The intellect of man sits enthroned visibly upon his forehead and in his eyes, and the heart of man is written upon his countenance. But the soul reveals itself in the voice only; as God revealed himself to the prophet of old in the still, small voice, and in the voice from the burning bush. The soul of man is audible, not visible. A sound alone betrays the flowing of the eternal fountain, invisible to man.—L. Longfellow: Hyperion.

Couldn't See the Resemblance.

They have been joking Assistant Treasurer James A. Mathews of the Guardian bank, on his resemblance to President Taft, and Mr. Mathews has steadily refused to be annoyed thereby. So the jokers subsided and the joke died a natural death. Turning to young Miss Harmon, Mr. Mathews asked whether she, too, thought he looked like the president.

Some Day Ask Your Physician

To tell you the curious story of how the mind affects the digestion of food.

I refer to the condition the mind is in, just before, at the time, or just following the taking of food.

If he has been properly educated (the majority have) he will help you understand the curious machinery of digestion.

To start you thinking on this interesting subject, I will try to lay out the plan in a general way and you can then follow into more minute details.

Pawlow (pronounce Pavloff) a famous Russian Physician and Chemist, experimenting on some dogs, cut into the tube leading from the throat to the stomach.

They were first put under chloroform or some other anaesthetic and the operation was painless. They were kept for months in very good condition.

When quite hungry some unappetizing food was placed before them and, although hunger forced them to eat, it was shown by analysis of the contents of the stomach that little if any of the digestive juices were found.

Then, in contrast, some raw meat was put where they couldn't reach it at once, and a little time allowed for the minds of the dogs to "anticipate" and create an appetite. When the food was finally given them, they devoured it ravenously and with every evidence of satisfaction. The food was passed out into a dish through the opening before it reached the stomach. It was found to be mixed with "Ptyalin" the alkaline juice of the mouth, which is important for the first step in digestion. Then an analysis was made of the contents of the stomach, into which no food had entered. It was shown that the digestive fluids of stomach were flowing freely, exactly as if the desirable food had entered.

This proved that it was not the presence of food which caused the digestive juices to flow, but the flow was caused entirely and alone as a result of the action of the mind, from "anticipation."

One dog continued to eat the food he liked for over an hour believing he was getting it into his stomach, whereas, not an ounce went there; every particle went out through the opening and yet all this time the digestive juices flowed to the stomach, prepared to quickly digest food, in response to the curious orders of the mind.

Do you pick up the lesson? Unappetizing food, that which fails to create mental anticipation, does not cause the necessary digestive juices to flow, whereas, food that is pleasing to the sight, and hence to the mind, will cause the complicated machinery of the body to prepare in a wonderful way for its digestion.

How natural, then, to reason that one should sit down to a meal in a peaceful, happy state of mind and start off the breakfast, say with some ripe delicious fruit, then follow with a bowl of crisp, lightly browned, thin bits of corn like Post Toasties, add a sprinkle of sugar and some good yellow cream and the attractive, appetizing picture cannot escape your eye and will produce the condition of mind which causes the digestive juices nature has hidden in mouth and stomach, to come forth and do their work.

These digestive juices can be driven back by a mind oppressed with worry, hate, anger or dislike of the disagreeable appearance of food placed before one.

Solid facts that are worthy the attention of anyone who esteems prime health and human happiness as a valuable asset in the game of life.

"There's a Reason" for saying "The Memory Lingers" when breakfast is started with POST TOASTIES.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Real Maud Mullers Now Raking Hay

NEW YORK.—Maud Muller, who "on a summer's day raked the meadow sweet with hay," hasn't anything on the band of 16 clear-eyed, smiling, militant suffragettes ranging from seventeen to twenty-four years of age, who are working in the fields of the farm of Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont on her Brookholt estate at Hempstead, L. I.

The "farmers" are former shop girls, factory hands and stenographers who have abandoned the conventional shirtwaist and black skirt for the more comfortable sweater and overalls. Some prefer to wear the bloomers, but all are attired in a way that gives perfect freedom of movement and full play to arm and limb. Many of the little band were pale of face and slight of muscle when they began their farm life, but even now they have become ruddy of cheek and their lips are as red as a cherry.

After a two months' trial of these feminine farm hands Mrs. Belmont firmly believes that the work is suited to women and women suited to the work, and that there is no reason in the world why normal girls should continue to slave in sweatshops and factories and grow pale and wan when they can blossom into splendid womanhood by taking up a pleasant outdoor life which is educational, healthful and remunerative.

The novel suffrage colony is the only one of its kind and has been carefully guarded from the inquisitive eyes of the intruder since its head farmer, a Pennsylvania Quakeress, was placed in charge.

"You can't dig in the ground, do men's work and wear skirts," Mrs. Belmont explained, calling attention to the novel costume her colonists wear. Each was dressed in a fine checked gingham blouse and bloomers. When the wind is chilly or the morning air damp they don thick gray sweaters.

It is Mrs. Belmont's plan and hope to get as many of these factory girls as she can to leave their city work-rooms for the open country, where they will have a chance to expand and grow. Already the girls on the farm have begun to show marked improvement in their appearance. Some have gained five or six pounds in weight.

Gift Snake Ousts City Flat Dwellers

CHICAGO.—C. A. Hartwell, manager of the Hampden apartments at Thirty-ninth street and Langley avenue, found out the other day why he has been having so much trouble keeping tenants in the building. Hartwell had the notion from his experiences of the last two months that all the persons who moved into his place were "seeing things." What they really had been seeing was a large, phosphorescent eyed, pleasant looking snake—a "king" snake from Louisiana, which has been using the Hampden apartments as a happy hunting ground.

Hartwell had just filled up his building with the choicest assortment of tenants he had seen for a long time. But one day one of the tenants dropped into his office. "Mr. Hartwell," he said, "I guess I'll move."

Less than a week later another gift edged tenant dropped in on Mr. Hartwell. He also looked pale. And he moved. For two months this kept up. Hartwell's hair was growing gray. Half the tenants had moved out and the other half were going about the building like persons in the early stages of insanity, screaming out suddenly in the night and dodging perfectly innocent looking things in the daytime. Hartwell couldn't find out what was the matter.

Well, this was what was really happening: When Hartwell had filled the Hampden with good tenants, Alfred T. Knight, who runs the drug store in the ground floor of the building, got as a present from a friend in Louisiana a four-foot "king" constrictor.

Knight put the "king" snake into a box with a half-dozen live mice. One of the mice gnawed a hole in the box. The snake found the hole. Knight missed his snake the next day, but he didn't dare say anything about it. He hoped Mr. Snake would come back. In the meantime Mr. Snake was having the time of his life in the Hampden corridors, hunting mice and driving the Hampdenites into long periods of sobriety. Then, the snake came back. But it came back just in time to implicate Knight. A boy saw it and the story comes out.

Kansas Boys Studying Home Problems

LAWRENCE, KAN.—The growing importance of dealing adequately with problems of the home, and especially with the "man in the home," has led to the introduction of a new course of study—The Family—at the University of Kansas.

Such momentous questions as how to deal with the spoiled child, domestic hygiene, education in the home, the "hired girl" problem and how to keep the weekly household expenditures in a fair ratio to the family income, usually are left to the wife to solve. The head of the house seldom bothers his head about these "petty" affairs. Indeed, it may be said that it has been beneath his traditional dignity to concern himself in these matters. This precedent has broken at K. U., however, and this semester nine boys out of a class of 23 are getting a little of the theory, if not of the actual practice, in the conduct of "The Family."

Of course the boys were a little backward about taking this study when the opportunity was first presented. Perhaps the natural reticence to talk of these delicate topics might have kept any of them from entering the class had it not been for three young men who were lately married and who enrolled along with their wives. This served to "break the ice," and others soon followed their example.

Each member of the class is given a certain subject for reference work. The reports are read before all members of the class. Some of the topics assigned were: "Household Economy," "Domestic Hygiene," "Causes of Race Suicide," "Family Expenditures," "The Care of the Child," and "Higher Education for Women." Lectures and discussions on such phases of home life as Conduct and Character, Happiness and the Social Ends, Place and Duty in the Moral Life and Virtues and the Right Ideals for Father and Mother also are considered.

Los Angeles to Have Hindoo Temple

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—Swami Baba L. Premanander Bharati, a celebrated Hindoo ascetic philosopher, whose teachings created great interest when he was in America three years ago, has arrived here to superintend the work of construction of a great Hindoo temple to be built, the Swami declares, entirely from contributions made by devout Hindoos in India.

Before he forsook the world for an ascetic life the Swami was editor of the Lahore Tribune, at the same time Rudyard Kipling was an Associate editor of the Civil and Military Gazette. "I knew Rudyard well," said the Hindoo. "And while I have greatly enjoyed his books, he has never been able to write of the actual life of India, for he never knew it. His description of the country—the color—are beautiful, but he is lacking in the spiritual understanding—the inner life—of India."

Concerning the temple here where the real spiritual and religion of India will be taught, the Swami says he has procured the grounds and that enthusiasm in India among the five million ascetics is so great that the proposed edifice will be one of the most beautiful in the world. Nearly $100,000 already has been raised.

In personal appearance the Swami is most impressive. He is a very big man and his great head is covered with long black hair, slightly tinged with gray. He has deep black eyes and a massive face. He wears a long khaki covered robe and American made shoes. His turban is of gold and red silk.

"At home, when I wander from province to province, I go without shoes and wear a cloth about my body, while my arms and shoulders are bare," he said. "I am an ascetic, and we take no money in India. Here, if I would get people interested in my philosophy, I must live as they live. I cannot wander and beg. I would be misunderstood."

A MARVELOUS RECOVERY.

How a Chronic Invalid Regained Perfect Health.

Mrs. Ray Trueser, 30 West Third St., New Albany, Ind., says: "Kidney disease had rendered me a chronic invalid. I lay in bed unable to move hand or foot. My right limb was swollen to twice normal size. I looked the picture of death and my case puzzled the doctors. The kidney secretions were highly colored and scalded terribly. Marked improvement followed the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. In six weeks I was a well woman. My friends and relatives marvel at my recovery."

"The Bard of Odon." The Rev. George F. Culmer, "the bard of Odon," celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday yesterday. The Rev. At the time of his birth John Quincy Adams was president of the United States. Dr. Culmer has been a minister for many years in the Methodist Episcopal church until his advanced age made it necessary for him to retire. He is a scholar and poet. ## FREED FROM SKIN DISEASE

"Our boy was born in Toronto on Oct. 13, 1908, and when three months old a slight rash appeared on his cheek. What appeared to be a water blister would form. When it broke, matter would run out, starting new blisters until his entire face, head and shoulders were a mass of scabs and you could not see a particle of clear skin. Other parts of his body were affected, but not to such an extent. We tried about every advertised remedy without avail, indeed some of them only added to his suffering and one in particular, the Remedy, almost put the infant into convulsions. The family doctor prescribed for him and told us to bathe the baby in buttermilk. This did not do any good, so we took him to a hospital. He was treated as an out-patient twice a week and he got worse, if anything. We then called in another doctor and inside of a week the boy was, to all appearances, cured and the doctor said his work was done. But the very next day it broke out as bad as ever.

"We decided that it could not be cured and must run its course and so we just kept his arms bandaged to his side to prevent his tearing his flesh. We left Toronto and shortly after our arrival in Duluth, the Cuticura Remedies were recommended. We started using them in May, 1909, and soon the cure was complete. You would not think he was the same child for Cuticura made his skin perfectly clear and he is entirely free from the skin disease. There has been no return this time. We still use only Cuticura Soap for baby's bath. Robert Mann, Proctor, Minn., May 3, 1910."

When Fate Mocks. "Too bad about Joe." "What's the matter?" "He sprained his arm and they are afraid he can never pitch again, so his folks are going to make a doctor or something of the sort out of him."

Historic Event Celebrated.

Australia recently commemorated the one hundred and forty-first anniversary of Captain Cook's first landing. It was in 1770 that H. M. S. Endeavour, a barque of 370 tons, entered the inlet first called Sting Rays Harbor, but afterwards Botany Bay, from the beauty and variety of the plants growing about its shore. The vessel remained eight days, and before she left the British flag was hoisted. As is the custom on each recurring anniversary, the flag was again unfurled upon the spot where it was first displayed, and was saluted by the guns of the warships in the harbor.

Rural School Pupils, Remember

Any district who has passed the eighth grade examination can have his tuition at one of the three nearest high schools paid by his home district, provided he files an application with the local school board not later than the fourth Monday in June.

Parents and guardians are warned that it will be necessary to file a new notice each year, that is, if you desire the tuition paid next year. This must be repeated each and every year so long as the pupils desire to attend school and have the tuition paid.

The notice must be in writing, must state the name of the pupil, the school it is desired to attend, and the amount charged for tuition at that school, and be signed by a parent or legal guardian of the pupil.

The giving of the notice is imperative, and the local board has no legal right to waive notice and pay tuition even although they may know the child is entitled to it. It has been done in some cases but it is not fair to ask your neighbor to take liberties with the law. File your notices even though you are in doubt whether or not you will send the child. Should you decide against it the tuition will not be paid and no harm is done.

A child who had his tuition paid last year under the old law without possessing a diploma is entitled to have his tuition paid this year without it.

Wash the Blood

Aching and enfeebled muscles should remind you of slowness of tissue repair. Eruptions of the skin and catarrh of the mucous membranes show diminished nerve power in the tissues. In health or disease there is need of an internal bath. This is best obtained by drinking a glass of pure water with one or two teaspoonsful of SAN-JAK thirty to sixty minutes before breakfast, washing the blood. This passes quickly from the stomach and stimulates the bowels to increased persistency, overcoming constipation and its attendant ills. It is quickly absorbed and entering the blood stream bathes the cells of the liver and heart, then passes to the brain and washes out the cobwebs and awakens to new life every cell in the body.

SAN-JAK dilutes theropy secretions and dissolves all abnormal crystalline substances that may be in the blood and urine. SAN-JAK greatly promotes elimination, creates downward peristalsis, stimulates a flow of digestive juices. It dissolves the sticky mucous in the mouth and throat, allowing the membranes to be bathed in their natural secretions. San-Jak is the great medium of exchange in the body by enabling the kidneys to absorb and eliminate alkaline sulphates which are the products of intestinal decomposition and in renal weakness or real cause of Bright's disease.

Man does not wear out like a piece of machinery, by constant disintegration for he is self renewing. When he loses his ability to self renewal or fails in process of making young blood, the nerve tissue is not sufficiently nourished and his strength and health fail.

SAN-JAK is the only medicine which will enable you to keep a perfect balance between the elimination and renewal of the body. Decay of the body at any time of life is unnatural. Permanent waste of the system can be avoided by the use of SAN-JAK.

Rheumatism, catarrh and bladder trouble, the source of trouble to humanity, is due to a too high or low specific gravity which may be regulated to normal by taking SAN-JAK.

Swelling under the eyes, grayish white or waxy color of the skin denote granular disease of the kidneys. The cure is San-Jak.
