Two Stores Burglarized

J. R. Rauch & Son and the Central Grocery Were Entered by Burglars Sometime Friday Night.

Plymouth was visited by burglars Friday night when the stores of J. R. Rauch & Son and the Central Grocery were broken into. Entrance was gained by prying up the back cellar window of J. R. Rauch & Son's store. The thieves then pried open the doors leading from the stairway of the cellar into both stores. At the Rauch store the thieves filled four suit cases with goods which Mr. Rauch values in the neighborhood of $100. At the Central Grocery only about a $100 in small change was taken. The robbery was discovered when the clerks opened up the stores in the morning. Just before the first car south that morning, Isaac Gumbally, who lives near Newburg noticed two men each carrying two suit cases pass his place, and when he came to his work at the Dairy factory a short time afterwards he heard of the robbery and notified Deputy Sheriff George Springer of his seeing the two men with the suit cases. Deputy Springer telephoned the officers at Dearborn to apprehend the two men on the Plymouth car at that place, but the car had already passed there and he then notified the chief of police at Detroit to send officers to Addison Junction and meet the car there. The officers sent failed however to go to Addison, but waited further down town for the car, and the two men with the suit cases got off at Addison and waited for the second city car into the city. Officer Springer went to the city and made every effort to get a clue that would lead to the arrest of the two men above mentioned, but was unable to locate them.

13 Horses Perish In Milford Fire

The large auto and horse livery business of B. E. Holmes at Milford was wiped out at an early hour Sunday morning and 13 horses perished. The blaze had gained such headway that in 10 minutes it was beyond control. The night clerk, who was sleeping in the office, had barely time to escape with his life. The large barn was partially covered by insured. The origin of the fire is undetermined.

Parole officer Venn of Detroit, has recently made an inspection trip to Eloise and reports that 900 inmates are packed within the institution walls and that 1,600 persons are to be found on the grounds of the County house. He says that the infirmary is crowded, and that it is a problem to ascertain just how they are cared for with accommodations for only about 750 at hand. Dr. John S. Hall, one of the superintendents of the county board for the poor, in commenting on Mr. Venn's report said, "We realize the short comings at Eloise and the only remedy for the crowded condition which prevails, is more buildings. The ever crowding is not a sign of a wave of adversity or insanity but the increase of inmates is merely in keeping with the law of proportion. For an ideal institution we must look to the public from whence the funds come.

Young Lad Seriously Injured

About two o'clock last Tuesday morning as a freight train was moving up for the Plymouth yards, a young lad, who with another fellow was hobnobbing from Saginaw to Detroit, jumped from a box car and fell into the river below. Dr. Patterson was called and found that the young fellow had sustained a compound fracture of his left leg and a broken ankle. The young man gave his name as J. E. Edworthy of Chippewa, Ohio, and said that he was 19 years old and a newsboy. He was taken to the St. Mary's hospital, Detroit.

BAD PRACTICES OF TRUSTS TO BE FORBIDDEN

Law and Penalty Must Be Made Equally Plain, Says the President.

WILL NOT HAMPER BUSINESS

Antagonism Between Government and Business Is Over—Would Give Interstate Commerce Commission Power to Regulate Financial Operations of Railroads.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Before a joint session of both houses of congress President Wilson today delivered a special message on trusts. The message follows:

"Gentlemen of the congress: In my report 'On the State of the Union,' which I had the privilege of reading to you on the 1st of December last, I ventured to reserve for discussion at a later date the subject of additional legislation regarding the very difficult and intricate matter of trusts and monopolies. The time now seems opportune to turn to that great question; not only because the currency legislation, which absorbed your attention and the attention of the country in December, is now disposed of, but also because opinion appears to be clearing about us with singular rapidity in this other great field of activity.

Business of Interpretation. "Legislation has its atmosphere like everything else and the atmosphere of accommodation and mutual understanding which we now breathe with so much refreshment is matter of sincere congratulation. It ought to make our task very much less difficult and embarrassing than it would have been had we been obliged to continue to act amidst the atmosphere of suspicion and antagonism which has so long made it impossible to approach such questions with dispassionate fairness. Constructive legislation, when successful, is always the embodiment of convincing experience and of the mature public opinion which finally springs out of that experience. Legislation for a business of interpretation, not of origination; and it is now plain what the opinion is to which we must give effect in this matter. It is not recent or hasty opinion.

"The great businessmen who organized and financed monopoly and those who administered it in actual everyday transactions have year after year, until now, either denied its existence or justified it as necessary for the effective maintenance and development of the vast business processes of the country in the modern circumstances of trade and manufacture and finance; but all the while opinion has made head against them. The average businessman is convinced that the ways of liberty are also the ways of peace and the ways of success as well; and at last the masters of business on the great scale have begun to yield their preference and purpose, perhaps their judgment also, in honorable surrender.

Will Not Hamper. "What we are proposing to do, therefore, is happily not to hamper or interfere with business as enlightened businessmen prefer to do it, or in any sense to put it under the ban. The antagonism between business and government is over. We are now about to give expression to the best business judgment of America, to what we know to be the business conscience and honor of the land. The government and business men are ready to meet each other half way in a common effort to square business methods with both public opinion and law. The best informed men of the business world condemn the methods and processes and consequences of monopoly as we condemn them; and the instinctive judgment of the vast majority of business men everywhere goes with them. We shall now be their spokesman.

"When serious contest ends, when men unite in opinion and purpose, those who are to change their ways of business, joining with those who ask for the change, it is possible to effect it in the way in which prudent and thoughtful and patriotic men would wish to see it brought about, with as few, as slight, as easy and simple business readjustments as possible in the circumstances, nothing essential disturbed, nothing torn up by the roots, no parts rent asunder which can be left in wholesome combination. Fortunately, no measures of sweeping or novel change are necessary. It will be understood that our object is not to oppress business or anywhere seriously to break its established course of progress. On the contrary, we desire that we are now about to pass to be the bulwarks and safeguards of industry against the forces that have disturbed it. What we have to do can be done in a new spirit, in thoughtful moderation without revolution of an untoward kind.

Private Monopoly Intolerable. "We are all agreed that private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable, and our program is founded upon that conviction. It will be a comprehensive but not a radical or unacceptable program, and these are its items, the changes which opinion deliberately sanctions and for which business waits.

"It awaits with acquiescence in the first place for laws which will effectively prohibit and prevent such interlockings of the personnel of the directorates of great corporations—banks and railroads, industrial, commercial and public service bodies—as in effect result in making those who borrow and those who lend practically one and the same, those who sell and those who buy but the same persons trading with one another under different names and in different combinations, and those whose affect to compete, in whole, partners and masters of some whole field of business. Sufficient time should be allowed, of course, in which to effect these changes of organization without inconvenience or confusion.

Harm and Injustice Done. "In the second place, business men, as well as those who direct public affairs, now recognize and recognize with painful clearness, the great harm and injustice which has been done to many, if not all, of the great railroad systems of the country by the way in which they have been financed and their own distinctive interests subordinated to the interests of the men who financed them and of their business enterprises which those men wished to promote.

"The country is ready therefore to accept and accept with relief as well as approval, a law which will confer upon the interstate commerce commission the power to superintend and regulate the financial operations by which the railroads are henceforth to be supplied with the money they need for their proper development to meet the rapidly growing requirements of the country for increased and improved facilities of transportation. We cannot postpone action in this matter without leaving the railroads exposed to many serious handicaps and hazards; and the prosperity of the railroads and the prosperity of the country are inseparably connected. Upon this question those who are chiefly responsible for the actual management and operation of the railroads have spoken very plainly and very earnestly, with a purpose we ought to be quick to accept. It will be one step and a very important one, toward the necessary separation of the business of production from the business of transportation.

"The business of the country awaits also, has long awaited and has suffered because it could not obtain further and more explicit legislative definition of the policy and meaning of the existing anti-trust laws. Nothing hampers business like uncertainty. Definition Now Possible. "Surely we are sufficiently familiar with the actual processes and methods of monopoly and of the many harmful restraints of trade to make definition possible, at any rate up to the limits of what experience has disclosed. These practices, being now abundantly disclosed, can be explicitly and item by item forbidden by statute in such terms as will practically eliminate uncertainty, the law itself and the penalty being made equally plain.

"And the business men of the country desire something more than that their measure of legal process in these matters be made explicit and intelligible. They desire the advice, the definite guidance and information which can be supplied by an administrative body, an interstate trade commission.

"Producing industries, for example, which have passed the point up to which combination may be consistent with the public interest and the freedom of trade, cannot always be dissected into their component units as readily as railroad companies or similar organizations can be. Their dissolution by ordinary legal process may oftentimes involve financial consequences likely to overwhelm the security market and bring upon it breakdown and confusion. There ought to be an administrative commission capable of directing and shaping such corrective processes, not only in aid of the courts but also by independent suggestion, if necessary.

Make Punishment Certain. "Inasmuch as our object and the spirit of our action in these matters is to meet business half way in its processes of self-correction and disturb its legitimate course as little as possible, we ought to see to it, and the judgment of practical and sagacious men of affairs everywhere would applaud us if we did see to it that penalties and punishments should fall, not upon business itself, to its confusion and interruption, but upon the individuals who use the instrumentalities of business to do things which public policy and sound business practice condemn. Every act of business is done at the command or upon the initiative of some ascertainable person or group of persons. These should be held individually responsible and the punishment should fall upon them, not upon the business organization of which they make illegal use. It should be one of the main objects of our legislation to divest such persons of their corporate cloak and deal with them as with those who do not represent their corporations, but merely by deliberate intention break the law.

"Other questions remain which will need very thoughtful and practical treatment. Enterprises, in these modern days of great individual fortunes, are oftentimes interlocked, not by being under the control of the same directors, but by the fact that the greater part of their corporate stock is owned by a single person or group of persons who are in some way intimately related in interest.

Holding Companies. "We are agreed, I take it, that holding companies should be prohibited, but what of the controlling private ownership of individuals or actually co-operative groups of individuals? Shall the private owners of capital stock be suffered to be themselves in effect holding companies? We do not wish, I suppose, to forbid the purchase of stocks by any person who pleases to buy them in such quantities as he can afford, or in any way arbitrarily to limit the sale of stocks to bona fide purchasers. Shall we require the owners of stock, when their voting power in several companies which ought to be independent of one another would constitute actual control, to make selection in which of them they will exercise their right to vote? This question I venture for your consideration.

"There is another matter in which imperative considerations of justice and fair play suggests thoughtful remedial action. Not only do many of the combinations effected or sought to be effected in the industrial world work an injustice upon the public in general; they also directly and seriously injure the individuals who are put out of business in one fair way or another by the many dilogging and exterminating forces of combination. I hope that we shall agree in giving private individuals who claim to have been injured by these processes the right to found their suits for redress upon the facts and judgments proved and entered in suits by the government upon its own initiative and the combination's complaints of and won its suit, and that the statute of limitations shall be suffered to run against such litigants only from the date of the conclusion of the government's action.

Individual Justice. "It is not fair that the private litigant should be obliged to set up and establish again the facts which the government has proved. He cannot afford, he has not the power to make use of such processes of inquiry as the government has command of. Thus, shall individual justice be done while the processes of business are rectified and squared with the general conscience.

"I have laid the case before you, no doubt as it lies in your own mind, as it lies in the thought of the country. What must every candid man say of the suggestions I have laid before you, of the plain obligations of which I have reminded you? That these are new things for which the country is not prepared? No; but that they are old things now familiar, and must of course be undertaken if we are to square our laws with the thought and desire of the country. Until these things are done, conscientious businessmen the country over will be unsatisfied. They are in these things our mentors and colleagues. We are now about to write the additional articles of our constitution of peace, the peace that is honor and freedom and prosperity."

WHAT HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Funny Newspaper Article Traps Hungry Vagrant

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Dawn was breaking and the streets were very still as Policeman McCarty proceeded along his beat on Golden Gate avenue, near Fillmore street. At midnight, five hours before, when Policeman McCarty, having just reported for duty stood in line with his fellow patrolmen in the assembly room of the Bush street police station, the lieutenant instructed the watch to be particularly on the look out for milk and paper thieves.

Policeman McCarty suddenly remembered the warning of his superior officer as he was gaining a hearty peal of laughter issuing from some point halfway down the block. Hearty laughter at dawn when the laughter is not of a maddish character is an extraordinary phenomenon. This laughter had the tone of sobriety, of appreciation and seemed to proceed from a mirth that bubbled up like a mountain spring in the winter season.

The only thing Voyles is right certain about is that the things are books. They open and shut, have covers, and the pages are numbered. Otherwise—

Beware the Gray Eye.
Among the gray eyed ones are few who retain any spiritual sensations. People with gray eyes are suspicious, frivolous with eyes are apprehensive, running down blind alleys, following false prophets, thoughtful, morose, erratic, wanting in sympathy, nervous, unstable, not firm and deliberate, but rash and impetuous.

Price of Realty in Rome.
In the big cities of the world the highest value seems to belong to a property in Rome. Here by where a value of $450 a square foot is found, and the land is not used for an income-producing building, but includes the property of the German embassy in Italy. Business property in Rome does not bring nearly this high price. In the principal centers of cities and shops values do not mount much above $200 a square foot.

Things Have Improved.
A well known politician, at a dinner in Washington, said of commercial honesty:

"Commercial honesty is improving. When a man lies to you and cheats you, it no longer excuses him to say, 'Carrot employer—it's business—and shrug and smile.'"
"In fact," he ended, "things have now so much improved that if some multi-millionaires were to lose their fortunes the same way they gained them, they'd insist on somebody going to jail."

Of a Wild Nature.
Just outside the entrance to the yard at the Naval Academy is an apartment house where many young officers live, and baby carriages are a not infrequent sight in the vicinity.
Not long ago the commander of the yard had a notice posted on the side of the gate forbidding automobiles to enter, because they frightened the horses. Shortly afterwards the following unofficial notice appeared on the other side of the gate:
"Baby carriages and perambulators not allowed in this yard. They scare the bachelors."

WONDERED WHY.
Pound the Answer Was "Coffee."
Many pale, sickly persons wonder for years why they have so little energy, and eventually discover that the drug—coffee—in coffee is the main cause of the trouble.

"I was always very fond of coffee and drank it every day. However, had much less and often wondered why I was always so pale, this is my story."
"About five years ago my health completely broke down and I was confined to my bed. My stomach was in such condition that I could hardly get sufficient nourishment to sustain life."
"During this time I was drinking coffee, didn't think I could do without it."
"After awhile I came to the conclusion that coffee was keeping me, and decided to give it up and see my stomach. When it was made plain—dark and rich—I soon became very fond of it."
"In one week I began to feel better. I could eat more and sleep better. My sick headaches were less frequent, and within five months I looked and felt like a new being, had more energy than I had for years."
"My health continued to improve and today I am well and strong, weigh 140 lbs. I attribute my present health to the life-giving qualities of Postum."
Name given by Postum Co., Boston, Mass. Read "The Road to Health," in page.

Postum now comes in two forms—Regular Postum—made of wheat bran, and Instant Postum—is a granular form of Postum. It is made of a cup of water, 1/2 cup of Postum, and 1/2 cup of sugar. It is a healthy, delicious, and easy to prepare.

Tells How She Was Saved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Logansport, Ind.—"My baby was over a year old and I bloated till I was a burden to myself. I suffered from female trouble so I could not stand on my feet and I felt like millions of needles were pricking me all over. At last my doctor told me that all that would save me was an operation, but this I refused. I told my husband to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I would try it before I would submit to any operation. He did so and I improved right along. I am now doing all my work and feeling fine.

"I hope other suffering women will try your Compound. I will recommend it to all I know."—Mrs. DANIEL D. E. DAVIS, 110 Franklin St., Logansport, Ind.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you see fit do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Making Tomorrow's World

By WALTER WILLIAMS, LL.D., (Dean of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri)

THE NEW ECONOMIC IRELAND

Bray, Ireland.—The plowed field takes the place of the grazing ranch. Landlordism dies, though by slow degrees and painfully. "Its last thought being of a bargain to be made." Progressive agriculture, including co-operation, rural credit, transportation ways, small local industries and well-directed education—without which there can be no progressive agriculture of the best kind—dancing Gaelic league, with its revival of the old and happy Irish language, breathes life and stirs laughter. All these are making for the new Ireland.

Land Situation Improving. The spade is ever mightier than the sword. Impassioned oratory in Sackville street is futile compared with the use of fertilizer in the field. Ireland is pre-eminently agricultural and the chief emphasis in the island's renaissance has rightly been upon the use of the land. Progress has been made toward the transfer of ownership of land from the absentee landlord to the resident peasant. Progress has been made in the establishment of free sale, fifty of tenure and fair rent. Considerable progress has been made in blotting out the plague to which Western Ireland has given a name which is also a picture, rural "congested districts." These things have been accomplished by the Irish Agricultural Organization society, led by that disinterested patriot, Sir Horace Plunkett, by the government department of agriculture and by other agencies. Two-Thirds of People Farmers. Land is Ireland's chief source of revenue. In a population of four millions the rural classes, tenants and farm laborers and their families, are two-thirds. This population depends directly for its daily life upon the profit from fifteen million acres of cultivable land. In continental Europe the peasant, driven by poverty from the land, goes to the factory in the town. Excepting in Belfast, with its linen, and in Dublin, with its beer, and some smaller places along eastern Ireland, there are no Irish factories of consequence. The Irish peasant who can not pick up a living in the fields goes not to a factory in the town but to America. A century ago one-third of the population of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland was in Ireland, today only ten per cent. Within thirty years one-half the population of Ireland has emigrated to the United States. In the last ten years the evil of over-crowding has been slightly abated, thanks to many good influences. It is a curious fact that while the proportion of British emigrants from Great Britain to countries within the British empire was 80 per cent during the last twelve months, barely has been enrolled in some form of cooperative society. Buying and Selling Done Jointly. The most general form of cooperation is the dairy society. Of these societies there are now more than four hundred. Next in number are the rural banks, which number more than two hundred. Other cooperative organizations make joint purchases for farmers, breed cattle, promote local industries, particularly lace-making, sell poultry and eggs, grow bees and market honey, sell butter and transact wholesale business for the country societies. The central society and some others are aided financially by the government department of agriculture, agricultural committees and county councils. Cooperation Stepping Emigration. The result shows in economic betterment and in a more wholesome rural life. A single instance of the first result is that the yield of butter per gallon of milk has constantly increased during the last ten years and that Irish butter now sells readily in London in competition with its great rival, butter from Denmark. From certain counties where the cooperative societies have done their best work emigration has almost ceased. Much has been done toward improving the condition of the cottages and by establishing libraries, sane amusements and helpful recreation in the villages. The Gaelic league has done good service here. "Better be quarrelling than be lonesome," runs the Irish proverb. The new village conditions would banish quarrelling without substituting solitude, accomplishing this result by discouraging drunkenness and preventing emigration, the two giant evils of the Ireland of yesterday. Another happy result is the moral discipline already making itself felt. This has strengthened individual energy and the wise use of cooperation has stimulated individual effort, developing a taste for work by increasing the material advantages of cooperation, particularly the cooperative credit system—by which money is lent at low rates for reproductive work—the educational results are yet more important. Technical Education Bearing Fruit. Close akin to the efforts of the cooperative societies has been the promotion of technical education by the state. This work, carried on by the government's Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland, is, in a way, similar to the work of the American Agricultural colleges and Experiment stations, except that it is broader, not confining itself to "agriculture and the mechanic arts." It teaches the farmer and laborer, it trains in its schools for technical commerce, agriculture and business pursuits. It goes further and seeks an industrial revival by encouragement of new local factories. The department's work, also beset by difficulties, shows considerable progress. Commercial enterprises and an industrial spirit are appearing in the smaller towns as well as developing in the larger centers, Dublin, Belfast and Cork. The manufacture of bacon, of woollen goods, of lace, has begun in villages where ten years ago surplus labor, unemployed was driven to foreign lands. Dear Transportation Heavy Handicap. With created or revived local industries comes consideration of better transportation. Farm produce and industrial products pay three per cent of their value to reach a market in Canada and fifteen per cent in Ireland. It costs four dollars a ton to get eggs from France to London, six dollars a ton from Denmark, and twenty-five dollars a ton from Galway, Ireland. This condition an Irish parliament may be expected to seek to remedy. Just now it blocks economic development. "Ireland is thinking now in terms of woollens and linens, poultry and fat cattle, eggs and butter, banks and railways," said the brilliant T. M. Kettle, professor of economics in the new National university at Dublin. "Social and Moral Uplift." Nor are the Irish at home forgetful of the higher things in life. They are creating a new literature, they are developing social life, gracious as always in the veriest villages—for your Irish peasant is born a gentleman—and promoting higher standards of morality. In all the constructive movements in Ireland the religious question looms large. For religion to the real Irishman, Protestant or Catholic, is not an argument, but an institution. Quoting again Professor Kettle: "It seems to us as reasonable to prepare children for their moral life by excluding religion as to prepare them for their physical life by removing the most important lobe of their brain."

COLD WEATHER DISHES

ABUNDANT NUTRIMENT FOR THE BODY IN WINTER.

Appetizing Method of Preparing and Serving Veal Cutlets.—Corn Bread at Its Best.—Recipe for Virginia Smothered Chicken.

By LIDA AMES WILLIS. Veal Cutlets a la Maintenon.—Procure two pounds of veal cutlets, having them cut three-fourths of an inch thick. Trim neatly, then dip each one first in beaten egg, and then in pounded cracker crumbs, seasoned with salt, pepper, and a bit of marjoram. Wrap each cutlet in half a sheet of buttered letter-paper or heavy paraffin paper, well buttered; lay on a greased broiler, and broil over, or exposed to a clear fire, not hot enough to scorch, however. Turn often. When they are done, have fresh papers ready to put the cutlets in if those enveloping the cutlets become discolored. The edges of the papers should be fringed and twisted to secure the juices of the chops. Veal cooked in this manner is delicious, as all the juices and flavor are retained. Baked Squash.—Cut in pieces as for serving, remove the seeds and stringy portion, brush with molasses, season with salt and pepper, and bake until soft. Add butter and serve from the shell. Trifle.—Get half a dozen little sponge-cakes (lady fingers or slices of stale sponge-cake may be used). Also a dozen fresh macaroons. Make a thick custard with three eggs, two tablespoonsfuls of corn starch mixed with a third of a cupful of sugar, and two-thirds of a pint of milk. Scald the milk, turn it over the eggs and sugar and cook over hot water until thick; then set away to cool. Arrange the sponge-cake in a glass dish and moisten with a gill of cream, flavored with vanilla. Sprinkle powdered sugar over the cake. Then spread a layer of raspberry jam or strawberry jelly over this. Cut the macaroons and pour the cold custard over the whole. Heap whites of eggs, beaten stiff, over the top, sweetening them slightly, or whipped cream in place of the eggs. Chill thoroughly before serving. Corn Bread.—Sift one cupful of yellow cornmeal and one cupful of flour, and put together. Add one teaspoonful of baking powder, and half a teaspoonful of salt. Beat two egg yolks light; add a pint of milk and a tablespoonful of melted butter. Stir this into the meal and flour, and last of all stir in gently the beaten whites of the eggs. Pour the batter into a thoroughly well-greased breadpan. The batter should be two inches deep. Just before it is placed in the oven, pour carefully into the middle of the batter, a cupful of sweet milk. Do this very gently, and do not stir it. Bake in a moderate oven for at least three-quarters of an hour. When done, cut into squares with a hot knife, split open and butter and eat while hot. Virginia Smothered Chicken.—Split a tender chicken down the back and lightly season with salt and pepper. Put into a roasting pan with a cupful of hot water and bake in a hot oven until tender. As soon as it begins to brown, make a paste of two tablespoonsfuls each of butter and flour, spread over the chicken, and then bake every ten minutes with the pan drippings until the chicken is a nice brown. Take out the chicken and keep hot. Place the pan over the fire and pour in a cupful of rich milk or thin cream, and stir until it boils up. Season to taste with salt and pepper, and pour over the chicken. Garnish your dish and serve.

Fried Oysters.—Select large fine oysters, drain and dry with a napkin. Lift with thumb and forefinger on either side of the eye or hard portion; dip into bread crumbs and then into beaten egg, and again into bread crumbs. It is seldom necessary to add salt to the crumbs, but a little pepper, black or red, as preferred, is an improvement. After crumbling, pat the oyster between the hands and lay upon a platter to dry well before frying. To fry, immerse in deep hot fat in which a piece of bread will brown nicely. When the oyster comes to the surface it is done. Drain and keep upon a hot platter until all are ready to serve. Oyster Cocktail. Cut a cover off stem parts of six even sized round green peppers, scoop out insides, remove seeds from covers as well as stems, and place in six small, deep oyster plates with shaved ice all around. Place 48 freshly opened small Blue Point oysters in a bowl, add six drops tabasco sauce, six tablespoonsfuls freshly laid very finely grated horseradish. Mix all well together, then evenly divide oysters in the six green peppers, place covers on and serve with a teaspoon on each plate. Olive Oil for Shoes. Patent leather shoes may be kept in good condition during the cold weather by rubbing them with a little olive oil and polishing with a piece of Canton flannel. This will keep the leather from cracking and the shoes will always appear new. Hard Soap. Soap that is allowed to dry and harden lasts twice as long as if used when fresh. Therefore, it is cheaper to buy in quantities and keep it in a tin place.

Simple and easier to do. Tramp's Methods Not Altogether Unlike That Followed by Too Many Others.

Hoboes came up for discussion in a Washington club the other night, and Senator Nathan P. Bryan of Florida told this anecdote along the Weary Willie line: Some time ago a hobo meekly tapped on the back door of a suburban home and asked for something to eat. The good housewife responded that she would feed him on the back step along with Fido, providing he was willing to earn the meal by cleaning out the gutter. The tramp agreed, and when he had eaten his way through several sandwiches to a feeling of happiness, the housewife came out with a reliable looking hoe. "You needn't have gone to that trouble, madam," said the hobo, sizing up the farm implement. "I never use a hoe in cleaning out a gutter." "Never use a hoe?" said the woman with a wondering expression. "What do you use, then, a shovel?" "No, madam," replied the hobo, starting for the back gate. "My method is to pray for rain."

Early Suffragette.

Militant minded women were known in England before the suffragettes, one of whom lived in Henry VII's chapel—Margaret, countess of Richmond, Elizabeth's mother, with her brass effigy by Torrigiano. She hated the Turk and she made as Camden reports, a sporting offer to the chivalrous of her day: "On the condition that pieces of Christendom would combine themselves and march against the common enemy, the Turk, she would most willingly attend them and be their laundress in camp." That position of laundress to the crusaders would have been an easy one, for it was the fashion to make vows to shun no underclothing until the holy sepulcher was regained.

Best of All Gifts.

A little boy in a big metropolitan Sunday school listened eagerly while the superintendent talking of missions urged every one present to contribute to the cause. "Give what you can, not what you want," he concluded his exhortation "Give generously and of your best." Little Joseph, taking the exhortation literally and being penniless, wrote on the slip passed out for depositing in the pledge box: "Please, sir, I give myself."
