Malone, N. Y.—Word has been received here that the celebrated Rockefelier-Lamora feud has been ended by the action of William Lamora in selling the cabin and grounds left him by his father, a hunter and trapper, who refused to sell his property to make up a section of William Rockefeller's vast Adirondack game preserve. It was in 1892 that William Rockefeller's vast Adirondack game preserve. He bought 55,000 acres around the town of Brandon, but could not obtain Oliver Lamora's cabin and clearing, which stood in the way. Out of this arose a legal hattle between the oil magnate's agents and the oid trapper. It was expensive work for Lamora, but the old trapper's friends and neighbors sympathized with him and came to his aid financially. Lamora was arrested for trespassing, having ignored the 3,000 signs posted on the preserve. But twice he defeated the Rockefeller streams were supplied by the state law forbids the setting aside of such waters as part of any private estate.

Jackson, Miss.—Edward Hines, Chicago lumberman, has won his famous fight with the state of Mississippi, involving timber holdings in the southern counties, valued at about fifteen million dollars. The decision upholds the constitutionality of the statute, but rules that it can be made applicable to domestic corporations only.

"If Cômtskey only had seen that play," Garrigan said, as he nursed his injured shoulder, "I think I could have gotten away with the Sox against the Athletics and that Bender was pitching. It was the ninth inning, with the Macks two runs to the good, when I came to bat. There were two men out and two men on.

"As I stepped to the plate the crowd rose en masse, and for two minutes the cheers were deafesing. As I stood there at the plate I remembered the experience of Casey at the bat, and coll chills ran down my back. Then I saw llender brace himself for the pitch. Over came the ball, and I stood like a goof while the umpire called 'Strike.' The next was a ball, and then came another atrike. Take him out. "But no. He wound up, and I closed my eyes and swung. The ball bailed over Oldring's head far into center field, and I began to tear round the bases. As I rounded second I heard Callahan yelling frantically that I forgot to touch first, and I redoubled my efforts for the keystone sack, while the grandstand and bleacher crowds appeared to me as though they had gone violently insane. As I dashed back I struck something and then suddenly brought up with a thud.

Betrothal Party Jars Cops and Child's Mother

DETROIT, MICH.—When Robert Johnson the other afternoon arranged an engagement party for his twelve-year-old daughter, Salome, without consulting his wife, he proved himself, in point of courage, a worthy wearer of the big badge, which adorns his left suspender, and which tells the world that he is assistant chief of all the gipsies of the United States.

Chief Johnson wears no medal for diplomacy, however.
When the chief's chief, Mrs. Lela Johnson, mother of Salome, heard of the affair, she Told the police that someone was trying to marry her daughter to a boy of fourteen years.
She also told her husband a few things—which, because of postal regulations, shall have no mention here. When Mrs. Johnson returned to her home at 93 Division street, the party was in full swing. Twenty-five members of Chief Johnson's band, dressed in fantastic native garb, were celebrating. The "bridegroom" was not in sight. His father explained that he was in Chicago.

Salome was the belle of the party. Bracelets and necklaces of wrought gold coin adorned her slight figure. Her dress was of a pattern to make gold coin adorned her slight figure. Klyeman's shaggy little brown dog, has saved a human life. There is many a pedigreed dog that cannot boost as much.

It may be unfortunate that there cannot be recorded a leng list of remarkable feats of "Pup" leading up to his crowning achievement; but truth will not permit it. He was simply an ordinary dog, a faithful guardian of the house at night and a companion of his master by day, until the hour arrived for him to work out his destiny. But when that moment came he knew exactly what to do out to get willows for use in his trade of basket-making. "Pup" accompanied him as usual. As they approached a Pennsylvania railroad crossing where the white drifts were piled high in the cut, "Pup" suddenly stopped and salfied, then plunged aside and headlong into a mass of snow. Klyeman paid little attention until the dog ran back to him and leaped about, whining and betraying every evidence of excitement. Then he ran back and began to scratch and burrow in the snow.

Klyeman's curiosity was aroused, and he went to investigate. Burled deep in the snow he found the body of an unconscious man. Help was summoned, and the stranger was taken to the county almahouse, where he was restored to consciousness. He proved to be Robert Dempsey, a vagrant, who benumbed by the cold, had lost his way and finally fallen exhausted in the drift. It was found necessary to amputate both of his feet, which had frozen.

Our rules were few, though they started out boldly enough under the head of "Constitution and By-laws of the Corncob Club," and began and anded as follows:

head of "Constitution and By-laws of the Corneco Club," and began and ended as follows:

Section First, Article First—It shall be the duty of each member throughout every session to smoke a cob pipe with due diligence.

"Section First, Article Second—Members who do not smoke shall not be required to smoke."

The parson was the only member who profited by article second, and the doctor used to charge him with quietly electioneering to have it repealed, so that he might return to his former bad pracfises, but this was a slander on the good man.

Not being burdened with a cob pipe in a constant state of configgration the parson was left with more time for conversational efforts. We suspected he sometimes took advantage of our nicotinized condition to foist tales upon us containing a smaller percent nicotinized condition to foist tales upon us containing a smaller percentage of truth than the state board of story inspectors would have countenanced; but of this there was no direct proof. The parson certainly always had a most truthful and benign aspect, and never more so than one evening, when, the talk turning on football, he leaned forward and said:

"Do you fellows happen to know that I used to take part in football games?".

"In your cleving! according rather mild pastime as commonly played. This recent suggestion that the players be armed with bayonets may make it more strenuous, if it is carried out, which seems improbable. What I was going to tell you about was a game that I once took part in when I was on our varsity eleven, which I firmly believe to be the most remarkable game ever played. It was a fast and exciting game from the first, and on the whole there was some pretty rough play, but that is not what I refer to when I say it was the most extraordioary game of football ever witnessed since football was invented. "Well, out with it—what made your game such a rare bird?" asked the doctor.

"To good time," returned the parson."

game such a rare bird?" asked the doctor.

"In good time," returned the parson with a touch of complacency. "Of course I really can't say that it was a unique game—I strongly suspect that the same thing happens rather frequently in the game, but it isn't decevered it's just the same as if it didn't happen, in one sense, you know. Well this game that I'm talking about was between Tamerlane college, where I was a student, and the Attila university players. There has always been, and is yet, as you know, a strong feeling is yet, as you know, a strong feeling is get, as you know, a strong feeling.

The local authorities had been warded, and made provisions for it. by keeping their policemen sway from the grounds so they wouldn't get hurt, and sending all the doctors, surgeons, nurses, ambulances and other alleviating and repairing apparatus to the field early. The combat was something terriac, but through it all these fearless workers for the good of humanity (I include the ambulances) moved about and carried relief to the strickplace. A well-equipped feld hospital had been established under the grand stand, where restocatives were administered and minor operations performed. A line of fast ambulances hurried the more seriously injured to the city hospitals.

"As the game progressed its fury increased. Playars, integral and fractional, were flying in the air everywhere. The umpire and referee retired to a safe distance and conveyed their instructions through glant megaphones. The spectators stood in the grand stand and fairly howled, though little of the strife was visible to them owing to the fog of torn clothes and uprooted soil which hung over the scene, not to mention players, or parts of players, which ever and anon were thrown up from the seething medistrom below. Again, an Attila player was toesed to the top of the grand stand, where he clung to the ridge pole and yelled for his side, while a substitute rushed to take his place. The combat deepens! Now it is impossible to—"

"See here, parcon," broke in the major, rather firmly, "you're getting too excited. Caim down—you'll be tackling us and throwing us out the window the next thing you know. Besides you are telling us of nothing but a simple, ordinary game of football, after all. Where's the extraordinariy unique uniqueness you boasted about?"

"You may interrupt me if you choose, but you shan't stop me," said the parson, with a trace of indignation. "See, the combat deepons! It—well, no matter. It was a wonderful game. And here is what made it unique so far as known. All the way through we players felt that something was lacking—that something, somewhere, was wrong. Afterwards we learned that the same ended. All had been removed except the two captains. I was one of them. We lay stretched on the glain near the middle of the field, of course, unable to rise. We heard the ambulance comling to bear us away, the captain of the Attilas raised his head with difficulty and whispered hoarsely:

"Hello, old man, great game, waent't it?"

"Wonderful,' I replied. 'Still, there was something lacking."

"I had that feeling all the time to but lean't make out what it was.'

Would Use Force Only So Far as Necessary to Bring Dictator to Terms.

HOPES WAR IS NOT NEAR

Washington, April 21.—Immediately after the president finished bis message the joint session was dissolved and a joint resolution introduced in both houses empowering the president to use the army and navy in enforcing his demands on General Huerta.

Washington, April 21.—Asking approval to use the armed forces of the United tSates in such ways and to such an extent that may be necessary to obtain from General Huerta and his adherents the fullest recognition of the rights and dignity of the United States, President Wilson personally states, President Wilson personally appealed to a joint session of con-ress for permission to compel proper ecognition of the supremacy of the tars and stripes.

"I earnestly hope that war is not in uestion," said the president. "We question." said the president. "We do not desire to control Merico. Our feelings for the people of that country are of deep and genuine friendship. The people of Mexico are entitled to settle their own domestic affairs in their own way. We sincerely desire to respect their rights. Mexico is torn by civil strife. Only part of the country is under General Huerta's control.

him, and give him support, and our object would be only to restore to the people of the distressed republic the opportunity to set up their own laws."

The president said there was no thought of aggression or aggrandizement on the part of the United States.

thought of aggression or aggrandfactment on the part of the United States. He asked merely for approval of his intention to use his own prerogative as commander-in-chief of the army and navy to order the two manches of the military service into action for the purpose of compelling President Huerta to salute the American flag.

Text of President's Message.

President Wilson in his message to congress, said:

"Gentlemen of the congress: It is my duty to call your attention to a situation which has arisen in our dealings with General Victoriano Huerta at Merico City, which calls for action, and to ask your advice and co-operation in acting upon it. On the ninth of April, a paymaster of the United States steamship Dolphin landed at the Hurbide bridge landing at Tampico with a whaleboat and boats' crew to take off certain numbers.

the arrest, orders were received from the commander of the Hueritst forces at Tampico for the release of the paymaster and his men. The release was followed by apologies from the commander and later by an expression of regret by General Huerta himself. General Huerta urged that martial law obtained at the time at Tampico; that orders had been issued that no one should be allowed to land at the Iturbide bridge and that our sallors had no right to land there. Our naval commander at that port had not been nottified of any such prohibition; and even if they had been the only justifiable course open to the local authorities would have been to request the paymaster and his crew to withdraw and to lodge a protest with the commanding offices of the fleet.

treed, but demanded that the fally of the United States be saluted with apecial caremony by the military com-mander of the port.

"The incident cannot be regarded as a trivial one, especially as two men of the men arrested were taken from the boat itself—that is to say, from the territory of the United States; but had it stood by itself it might have been attributed to the ignorance or arrogance of a single officer.

might have been attributed to the improvance or arrogance of a single officer. "Unfortunately, it was not an isolated case. A series of incidents have recently occured which can not but create the impression that the representatives of General Huerts were willing to go out of their way to show disregard for the dignity and rights of this government and felt perfectly safe in doing what they pleased, making free to show in many ways their irritation and contempt.

U. S. Orderly Was Arrested.
"A few days after the incident at Tampico, an orderly from the United States ship Minnesots, was arrested at Vera Cruz while ashore in uniform to obtain the ship's mail, and was for a time thrown into fall.
"An official dispatch from this government to its embassy at Mexico City was withheld by the telegraphic to obtain the ship's mail, and was for a time thrown into jail.

"An official dispatch from this government to its embassy at Mexico City was withheld by the telegraphic service until peremptorily demanded by our charge d'affaires in person.

"So far as I can learn, such wrongs and annopances have been suffered to occur only against representatives of the United States. I have heard of no complaints from other governments of similar treatment.

U.S. Singled Out for Insult.

"Subequent explanations and formal apologies did not and could not after the popular Impression, which, it is possible, it had been the object of the Hueritata authorities to create, that the government of the United States was being singled cut, and might be singled out with impunity, for slights and affronts in retaliation for its refusal to recognize the pretensions of General Huerta to be regarded as the constitutional provisional president of the republic of Mexico.

"The manifest danger of such a situation was that such offenses might grow from bad to worse until something happened of, so gross and intolerable a sort as to lead directly and inevitably to armed conflict. It was necessary that the apologies of General Huerta and the representatives should go much further, that they should be such as to attract the attention of the whole ropulation to their significance and such as to impress upon General Huerta himself the necessity of seling to it that no further occasion for explanations and professed regrets should arise.

"I, therefore, felt it my duty to sustain Admiral Mayo, and the whole of his dermed and to insert that the fine.

"I, therefore, felt it my duty to sus-tain Admiral Mayo, and the whole of his demand and to insist that the flag of the United States should be saluted in such a way as to ladicate tain Admirai Mayo, and the whole of his demand and to insist that the flag of the United States should be saluted in such a way as to indicate a new spirit and attitude on the part of the Huertistas.

"Such a salute General Huerta has refused, and I have come to ask your approval and support in the course I now propose to purse.

"This government can, I earnestly hope, in no circumstances be forced into war with the people of Mexico. Mexico is torn by civil strife. If we are to accept the tests of its own constitution, it has no government. General Huerta has set his power up in the City of Mexico, such as it is, without right and by methods for which there can be no justification. Only part of the country is under his control. If armed conflict should unhappily come as a result of his attitude of personal resentment we should be fighting only General Huerta and those who adhere to him and give him their support, and our object would be only to restore to the people of the distracted republic the opportunity to set up again their own laws and their own government.

Hopes War is Not in Question.

"But I earnestly hope that war is not in question. I believe that I speak for the American people when I say that we do not desire to control in any degree the affairs of our sister republication. Our feeling for the people of co is one of deep and genuine ship, and "cervithing that we so far done, or refrained from dones for one of the grave cations of interference if we deal it promptly, firmly and westy, od out I could do what is neces-ion need have none of the grave cations of interference if we deal it promptly, firmly and wisely, be doubt I could do what is necessar? In the circumstances to enforce respect for our government without recourse to the congress and yet not exceed my constitutional powers as president; but I do not wish to act in a matter possibly of so grave consequence except in close conference and co-operation with the senate and house.

co-peration with the senate and house.

Use Arms as Necessary.

"I, therefore, come to ask your approval that I should use the armed forces of the United States in such ways and to such an extent as may be necessary to obtain from General Huerta and his adherents the fullest recognation of the dignity of the United States even amidst the unhappy conditions now obtilining in Mexico.

"There can in what we do be no thought of aggression or of selfish aggrandisement. We seek to maintain the dignity and asthority of the United States only because we wish at ways te keep our great influence unimpaired for the uses of liberty, both in the United States and wherever eise it may be employed for the bencift of mankind." WOODROW WILSON."

on which he has since lived continuously until his death.

In 1862 he enlisted as a member of Company B. 20th Michigan Infantry, and served his country faithfully two years and a half and was honorably discharged. He was an enthusiastic lover of his country, always ready with a cheer for the flag he loved. For many years he was class leader in the church, superintendent or teacher in the Sunday-school, always an enthusiastic worker. He was a God fearing christain man, of a cheerful disposition, he always had a pleasant word for neighbor or friend and was eveready to help those in trouble or need. DROWNED IN THUNDER BAY THREE DIVISIONS IN CAMP

Alpena. Mich.—Gustave Trojahn, aged 23, was drowned in Thunder bay, Sunday, and Truman Goddard, aged 35, his companion, escaped after a desperate effort.

The men left for a fishing trip to Lake Huron, just outside the bay, Their boat was leaky and water entered as they rowed out, but they wore high top boots and paid little attention to this. There were eight inches of water in the bottom of the boat when one of the men leaned to soe side and the craft capsized. The two men clung to the boat for some time, but no help came and finally Trojahn's fingers let go and he sank, Goddard swam to an island by an almost super-human effort, where he was picked up unconscious.

CHAPTER X.—Continued.
Brady flung forward bis rifle, yet besitated, fearing to fire. Whatever it might be—animal or man—the thing was coming directly toward us, swimming with long, stringy locks of wet hair dangling to the shoulders. It was a man beyond doubt, yet for the inshant I could not determine whether red or white. As he stood there sunk to his armpits in water, he beheld us for the first time, and there burst from his lips a sudden, guttural exclamation of alarm. With the strange sound Schultz leaped forward, lumbering against me as he passed, and splashed his way out toward the fellow, uttering some exclamation in his native tongue. He reached him, the two voices greeting each other.

"Well!" exclatemed Brady in diggust.

Well!" exclaimed Brady in disgust. it ain't another Dutchman. Come here, you!"

"If it ain't another Dutchman. Come in here, you!"

The two waded ashore onto the sand, Schulta's heavy hand grasping his companion's arm, and helping him along. I saw a face white and ghastly in the starlight, lean, smooth-shaven, looking emactated against the long, dark hair, the eyes bright with fanaticism. He was a tall, spare man, shaking so he could hardly stand. The very sight of him aroused my sympathy.

"We're all white. How did you come here?"

His eyes looked at me as I spoke; then shifted to Schultz's face in silent questioning. The latter was breathing hard, but managed to explain.
"He not talk English ver' goot, Mynheer. I tell you vat he say mit mehe vos a Dutch preacher; yaw, mine Gott; ynat over py mine own courties: he vos named Adrian Hlock."
"Did he swim all the way?" asked Brady grinning, but Schults kept his eyes fastened on me, held by the one thought to which he sought to give utterrance.

you call missonary—so? He won month in dees country, an' know only to preach."

The girl leaning forward, interrupted with a whisper:

"I recognise the man, monsieur; he was the prisoner I told you of in the Indian camp—the Protestant."

"They let' him only mit one guard, an' after while, dot fellow he 'fall sleep. Den he got losse mid his bonds, an' creep down mit der shore of der lake where a boat was. So he driff out on der water; bet der boat leak, an' go down, leaving him mit notings. Dot vas it, mynheer. Den he swim som' an' pray mooch, an' so com' here mit us, altready."

"Where did the indians go?"

we'll do the best we can. What about you, mademoiselle?"
"I go with you," she answered quietly.
"Against your own people?"
"Those are not my people! They are outhows, renegades, led by the murderer of my father."
"Then let us go back; every moment lost will count against us. Pick up the packs. Brady, you lead off; Schultz, take care of the preacher and keep his tongue still."
The house was exactly as we left it, a few red embers on the hearth alone shedding spectral light about the main room, as we groped our way forward. There were heavy wooden bars to fit across the doors, and I secured these as soon as I deposited my pack on the floor.
"Mademoiselle," I said, staring about at the blank walls in some perplexity." You know this place better than any of me. analyst it was not erected here pack on the floor.

"Mademoiselle," I said, staring about at the blank walls in some perplexity.
"You know this place better than any of us; surely it was not erected here in the wilderness without some provision for defense in case of attack. Are those walls solid?"

"No, monsieuer; they were made tight, so no gleam of light would ever show without, but there are gunports here—see."

She slipped saide a small wooden shutter, fitted ingeniously between the logs, revealing an opening sufficient for a rifle barrel.

"There are four along this wall, and as many opposite. At the rear you must atand on the bench, so as to the above the shed roof."
"Leave that preacher alone, and open them up. Schultz," I commanded sharply. "There is not light enough here now to show without. Now, Brady, see if there are any extra guns in the shack, or ammunition. Lay everything out here convenient. A rifle? Good! We'll give that to our Moravian friend; he may be opposed to war on principle, but, by all the gods! he'll fight now, if Schultz can pound the truth into him. What is that, mademoiselle? Powder and ball in the big chest; show Brady where it is. This isn't going to be such a one-sided affair after all. Five of use, counting Block, who may not know which end of the gun to point I am going to scout outside and see when those fellows cross over."

Brady shaded his eyes to stare across at me through the gloom.
"You'd better let me go."
"You will be careful, monsieur?"
There was an unconcealed note of anxiety in the voice that caused me to glance back at her quickly in surprise."
Be assared of that, mademoiselle."
I returned. "I know the duty of anally," and stepped without, closing the door behind me.

scouts were watching the cabin, I pressed forward into the depths of the woods, obliged to proceed slowly because of the darkness. So cautious was I, lest some noise might betray my presence, that I was some moments in passing through the fringe of trees to where I could obtain view of the lake, and the dark line of shore operation.

"What is it?" are they coming?" he asked.

It was darker in there than outside, and I could barely perceive his face.

"Yes," I panted. "They are just behind me. I--l had to run for it. Get-get to the stations; I'll--I'll tell you later what happened out there."

He left me, and my eyes, accessoming themselves to the gloom, began to discern objects in the rosm. I got, to my feet, still breathing heavily from exhaustion, yet with brain active.

Mining in Korea.

Gold exists in Korea in quantities to render its missing profitable, but it has as yet given no promise of ever sansibly affecting the world's supply. Iron, coal, graphite, silver and copper an also found, but as yet they have not been sufficiently exploited to justify any estimate being formed as to their furre influence on the walth and presperity of the country. Under their coral laws the people were forbidden to engage in missing operations, and the only concession that was made was that which permitted placer mining he-ing carried on in small areas by wary limited associations in the most primi-tive manner. For this heavy fees had to be paid to the government; and as the fees were certain, while the prod-net was very much the reverse, the in-dustry was not one which attracted either capitalists or prospectors. ood repute.

THE INSULT AT TAMPICO

Friday morning, April 10, a boat's crew of United States marines, in command of Assistant Paymaster Charles C. Copp. left the gunboat Dolphine for Tampico to get a fresh supply of gasoline.

The United States flag was flying from the stern of the whaleboat when it approached the landing in Tampico. For no assigned cause Assistant Paymaster Copp and his men were placed under arrest as they stepped ashore.

After the Americans had been detained several hours, word of their arrest was carried to Rear Admiral Mayo, who demanded their immediate release.

The demand was compiled with, but the only reparation made was a brief expression of regret for the alleged mistake.

Grange Notes

The last meeting was well attended, one hundred twenty-five being present. A fine dinner was served. Mrs. Charles Bradner was chairman with Mrs. Joel Bradner and a lot of other helpers. After the dinner a fine program was given. The talk by Mr. Isbell was very interesting. The surprise feature by the married men was to tell what was the best dish his wife made and how she made it. This was very ameaing. John F. Root had a good receipe for pan cakes and Mr. Spice; one for beel loaf. Little Dorthy McClumpha and Louise Spicer each Save a recitation that would have done credit to much older girls. Mrs. Roberts and Miss. Powell rendered a duet very nicely. Miss Olive Brown did well in demonstrating science in the kitchen. Meeting closed without form to meet again May 7th.

How to Detect the Alum Baking Powder

"Which are the alum baking powders; we can I avoid them unless they are hamed?"

Here is one way: take the can of a low-priced powder in your hand and read the ingredient clause upon the back label. The law requires that it the powder contains alum, that fact must be there stated. If you find-one of the ingredients named alum, or sul-phate of aluminum, you have found an alumi-tables and aluminum, you have found an alumibaking powder.

There is another and a better way. You don't have to know the names of the alum powders. Use Royal Baking Powder only; that assures you a cream of tartar powder, and the purest and most healthful baking powder beyond question.
