HAS CHRISTIANITY FAILED?

Can we still have faith in God and in humanity? Carnage and alaughter, pillage and plunder, mutilated bodies of Belgians, bleaching bones of Polish children, six million wounded in hospitals, after sixty generations of christian teaching—can we keep heart in the face of this? Many therisked ideals and fondest hopes have been consumed on the battlefields of Europa, What remains? Can we still believe and pray and hope and love? These fundamental questions of the war and our faith will be treated Sunday morning at the union service in the Methodist church.

Indorsed By County Bar Association

P. W. VOORHIES

P. W. VOORHIES

At a pra-election primary of the Detroit Bar Association, held last Friday, P. W. Voorhies, assistant prosecuting attorney of Wayne county, and a former well known resident of this village, was one of the four candidates indorsed by the association for circuit judge. The other successful candidates were John H. Golf, Ormond F. Hunt and Arthur Webster. This news is particularly pleasing to Mr. Voorhies many Plymouth friends, who are enthusiastically boosting his candidacy. The endorsement of the Detroit Bar Association primary for the Wayne circuit judgathips ought to be a matter of great interest with every serious-minded voter. The large number of ballots cast, 539, out of a membership of 739, is a fair expression of the capabilities of those aspiring to that office. All of the candidates indorsed are men of prominence in the profession. They are lawyers of experience and three of them have served the county with credit, and it is a safe bet that the voters of Wayne county cannot go wrong in considering these men who can serve the county with great credit upon the bench.

Stage All Set for Lincoln Chautauqua

The stage is all set for the Lincoln Chautauqua, which starts next Thurday, July 25th, and continues for stradays with two entertainments daily, Local leaders in the Chautauqua movement are much pleased with the way things are shaping themselves. The advertising committee have been busy the past week, doing their part of the work. About twenty automobiles, accompanied by the Milland band, visited the neighboring towns, Wednesday and Thursday avenings, advertising the big event. The ticket committee are now getting in their part of the work with a vim that angurs well for over-flowing tents and greatly inspired entertainments, Nearly three hundred people signed the pledges to purchase tickets last year, and it is expected that everyone will make good their pledge by purchasing tickets, for it was upon the strength of these pledges that, the local committee are back of the grantantee. Everyone who can possibly do so, should purchase one or more tickets to the Chautauqua, which stands for the best class of entertainment.

The big tent will be pitched either on the flat-iron near the Presbyterian church or in the park at the rear of the church. This is a central location and will be convenient for everybody.

We are pleased to say that the Millard Co. of this vicinst subsen saws musical instruments, have just been awarded another big contract for army bugges by the U. S. government. The contract all s. government. The d Story Told of Retribution That Was the Lot of English Food

Baron Reading told in Washington a story about a food hoarder. ',
"We punish our food hoarders very severely," he said. "It's nothing unusual to arrest and fine an English food hoarder $1,000 for hoarding 30 or 40 pounds of tea or rice.
"Hence the food hoarder is a timid and jumpy admin! I heard the other day of a Liverpool banker who had bought and hidden in his office 60 pounds of cocoa. He was gloating over this hoard when two policemen were announced.

"'One minute,' the food hoarder asped. Tell the policemen to wait

"And then, pale and trembling—for he thought the policemen had come to drag him off to jail—rushed among his staff, distributing cocca in halfpound and pound tins.

"When the distribution was finished he ordered the policemen to be admitted.

"And the policemen, bowing and scraping very humbly, asked him if he would be so kind and good as to buy a ticket for their benefit concert is the town hall."

the troops would not follow him in betraying the revolution, Traitor Muravieff shot himself.

Austriana Still Rubbing Their Eyea.

London—Far from being a "fiash in the pan," the Franco-Italian drive in Albania is hourly growing in acope and military importance. The Austrians, still rubbing their eyes, as it were, from the rude awakening they received a few days ago after many months of veritable rest-cure in this almost-forgotten theatre of war, are in full retreat on a wide front on both sides of Berat, clever encirclement of which by French and Italian forces formed the beginning of the offensive.

Both Rome and Paris were able to announce fresh successa. The French took the creat of Kosnitus and occupied all villages in Tomorica valley above Dobreny. Italians captured the heights of Cafa and Flumaka, with 250 prisoners. The Austrian retreat is assuming the nature of a rout. The Vienna war office admits the withdrawfil to a "new defense line," a phrase which usually covers a multitude of unspoken admissions.

WAR ROARD ISSUES RULING

It is Belleved New Policy Will Aid to Keep Down Inflation of Wages From Labor Bidding.

From Labor Eideling.

Washington—Manufacturers who attempt to life workmen from war industries will feel tile strong arm of the government in the future. The war industries board has voted that raw materials be denied to industries which attempt to recruit labor by using competitive peace-time methods.

Although the hoard did not define the methods which are now banned it is understood that it aims to suppress the so-called "labor agent," who often hampared the production of war necessities by raiding factories, and organising the men to leave in large numbers for some new industry, prumising great advantages in working conditions and pay.

The resolution adopted by the war industries board follows:

"First, that the practice of manufacturers using competitive peace-time methods in the procurement of labor from war industries, is strongly disapproved, and henceforth this board, through its priorities division, will in proper cases withhold priority ussistance from employers who persist in pursuing such methods.

"Second, that a copy of this resolution be certified to the chairman of the war labor policies board, and to other governmental agencies, employing, or dealing with labor and that it be given general publicity."

It is believed the new policy, not only will aid in ensuring the war munition manufacturers a labor supply, but will also prevent the inflation of wages which manufacturers any has resulted from excessive bidding and counter-bidding for labor in some districts.

GIRL WILL WED SHATTERED HERO

Crippled in Battle, Pretty Miss Loves Him Just the Same.

Rochester, N. Y.—Miss Helen Weston, a pretty young girl of this city, will marry her war here, who was invalided home from France a month ago with the cross of war and other citations for bravery. But he is not the strong and handsome youth who left her two years ago, with the promise that upon his return, a war hero, she would wed him. Merwin Birdsell, the hero, lost both arms and his legs, but his crippled condition is to make no change in their plans for the furure, Miss Weston declares.

The pair met at a summer resort in the Canadian Rockies and fell in love at first sight. Some months later their engagement took place and they intended to marry the following June in Rochester. When young Birdsell made a hurried trip to Canada to close his cottage in the fall he found many of his friends in khaki, and a few days later Miss Weston received a telegram stating that he had enlisted in the Canadian army and was on his way to France. She was proud of him and promised to wait until he ame back—a hero.

The Confessions of a German

Deserter Written by a Prussian Officer Who Participated in the Ravaging and Pillaging of Belgium

FRENCH TROOPS, HELD IN CONTEMPT BY GERMANS BE-FORE WAR, HALT FOE AT THE MARNE

Symposia.—The author of these confessions, an officer in the ploneers' corps of the German army, a branch of the service corresponding to the engineers' corps of the United States army, is sent into Belgium with the first German forces invading that country. Ignorated of their destination or of the reasons for their actions, the German soldiers cross the border and attack the Belgian soldiers defending their frontier. Civilians—men, women and children—are driven from their burning homes as the Zeppelins and giant guns of the Germans rased the strongest fortifications. The Germans sweep on across Belgium, slaying and burning under orders of their officers to show no mercy. Some German soldiers who tried to ald helpless refugees were rebuiled by their officers, one of whom declared that such a thing as pity was insanity. The German ploneers throw pontoon bridges across the Medius in the face of a murderous fire from the Franch. French troops are stanghtered when, surrounded, they throw down their arms and surrender. Dead civilians strew streets of the French towns as the invaders continue their rugh toward Paris. The historic battle of the Marne opens with terrific slaughter.

At tan o'clock the French attacked a fourth time. They came on in enormous numbers. Our leaders recognized the danger of our position and ordered as back, abandoning the wounded and much booty. By a superhuman effort we did manage to save the machine guas and ammunition. We retreated 1,000 meters and took a stand in our former trenches. The officers told us we would have to make a stand under any circumstances and that the reenforcements would come soon.

In a moment the machine guns were set up and soon we were sending a half of bullets into the ranks of our pursuing enemy. His advance stopped instantly. Encouraged by this success we fired harder, so that the French were compelled to seek cover.

we fired harder, so that the French were compelled to seek cover.

The promised re-enforcements failed to appear. About 600 meters to our rear were six German hatteries in position, but they maintained only a very weak fire. An artilliery officer appeared before us and asked the commander of our detachment if it would not be well to recommend that the batteries be taken back. He said he had learned by telephone that the German line was awavering on its entire length.

Before the commander could reply, another attack en masse followed, which outnumbered us by from five to seven times. Our commander now gave up this position also. Completely demoralised, we retired in flight, leaving the six batteries (36 guns) to be taken by the enemy.

The French stopped their barrage fire because they feared to burt their own troops. The Germans utilized this moment to bring up re-enforcements made up of all branches of the service. Ecattered infantrymen, unmounted cavalry, detached pioneers, had all been assembled. Every makeabift was employed to fill the ranks. Complete reserve units apparently no longer existed on this the third day of the battle of the Marne.

Once more the command was given to turn and take a position and the uniqual fight began anew. We saw the enemy advance, and seize the batteries. Then we saw him storming shead with fixed bayonets. We fought like with animals. For minutes there raged a bayonet facit beyond description. We stabbed through the breast, through the abdomen, and wherever else we could. This was no occasion to employ the bayonet tactics taught at drill, something which must be left for artill-ground practice only.

The butts of the rifles whizzed through the air and any man's head which they struck was broken. Helmets and knapsecks had been lot of for us, so we ran better this little group of desperate men. We forgot erceything around us and fought like bloodthristy beasts, thinking of nothing else. Part of our men penetrated the hoottle ranks and fought to retake the lost cannon. The enemy recognizing the danger, retreated, and rifed to hold the conquered guns with all his energy. We continued to stand, and we have at the third gan which was four to only a surrounded by corpea, and every minute or the present of the guns.

the guns we had left, and at the same instant the French artillery opened a tremendous fire from guns of all calibers. The shells fell among the 80 teams comprising the column. Confusion reigned. Groups of six horses comprising each team sprang into the air, then ran in all directions, pulling their carriages with the wheels up behind them. Some of the terrified animals ran directly into the heaviest fire, only to be torn to shreds with their drivers.

The enemy now transferred his fire and a rail threety nith the navies a tax, only to be torn to ahreds with their drivers.

The enemy now transferred his fire to the battery position which we occupied. For an it was only a question of advance or retreat. Retreat? No! The order came to retake the positions which we had lost at the opening of the battle and which the Frenchmen presumably had made ready to with stand a new attack. By this time we had been re-enforced with more cannon fodder and the insane fight could begin anew.

We advanced over a wild field, covered by thousands upon thousands of torn human bodies. No shot fell; the only firing was the hostile artillery continuing to shell our bettery positions. Neither the enemy's artillery nor infantry was turaed upon us. This made us suspicious and our apprehension regarding what was to come is creased as we were permitted to advance unmotested.

Suddenly there was turned loose upon us the fire from a multitude of machine guns. We threw ourselves on the ground and hunted cover. An intant later we again aprang up and continued our march. Once more we encountered destruction. By this time whe had lost almost a third of our men and, exhausted, we halted.

Scarcely had we taken a position be-aged to save themselves and are somewhere, perhaps."

"Never mind," the noncommissioned officer said roughly. The conversation had become disagreeable to him, "Wall here, until I come back. Where are the officers?"

had become disagreeable to him. "Waii here, until I come back. Where are the officers?"

Again no one could answer. "What are their naimes? I shall find them. Ferhaps they are in Vitry."

We told him the names of our officers. He gave us idestification papers so that we might be able to prove to others inquiring why we were waiting where we were.

"I hope his horse falls and he breaks his neck." said one of our men.

We entered one of the houses which had been robbed, as were all the others, threw ourselves down upon the mattresses to sleep, sleep, sleep. How long we slept no one knew. We only knew that it was night and that some of our company had aroused us. These were newomers who had been hunting for us for a long time.

"Come along. The capitain is outside and he is very angry. He has gathered 17 of his men together and is cursing like the very devil because he could not locate you."

Sleepy, and entirely indifferent to the future, we left the building. We knew that we would be sent into action again hut no longer cared. I had never before seen among a body of soldiers such an atmosphere of absolute indifference.

We came upon the capitain. He saw

We came upon the captain. He saw us approach minus our headgear, our uniforms tore into ahreds and without guns and knapsacks.

"Why are you running around here?" he roared. That was our reception.

Nebody answered. Nobody cared.

Nothing could be worse than what we had been through, but although every one smong us felt keenly the injustice of the captain's attitude we all remained silent.

"Where is your equipment?—Lost— Lost—. This has been a nice business. The state equips you, you rebel. If all were like you—"

He raved on for a while after this fashion, this brave fellow, who, without any settion on his own part permitted the rebels to retreat while he defended his fatherland in Vitry, 4.28 kilometers behind the battle line.

We selected guns from those lying around us in heaps and soon were ready to fight again.

We stood around half asleep, leaning on our guns, and waited to he led once more to the slaughter. A shot fell is our mithst. It struck a color seegeant and smashed his right hand, was quickly bandaged. He was the first.

first.

An eyewitness told us how this had happened. He had rested his hand on the gun barrel in the same manner as did all the others except that his hand partly powered the muzzle. The orders provide that the gun be locked if loaded. Turning to the color sergeant, who was writhing with pain, the captain roared at him: "I shall report you for punishment for your gross carelessness and for mutilating yourself in the field."

PLAN AIR POSTAL SERVICE

is Expected by Englishmen to Be Ond of the First Innovations When Peace is Designed.

Airplane postal service will be one of the first innovations of peace in England. The problem is already being land. The problem is already being worked out in detail, even to the cost of postage and hours of collection and delivery. It is also said that within the first few months after peace a trans-atlantic airplane service will be established. Airplane engineers say that the problety of constructing a machine for transatiantic flight has been solved in theory, and machines which would cross the Atlantic could be built to-day if it were not that the long distance buses of war time must also be heavy weight curriers. The most interesting result of these peace plans is that it has been found possible to arrange the collection and delivery of letters between London and Glasgow with such dispatch that a correspondent in London will be able to receive a written haswer within the working day. Applied to the middle West, an exchange says, this means that a Eanness City business man will be able to send a document to St.

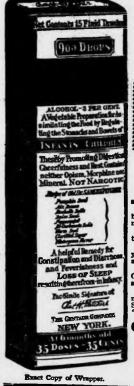

A Great Responsibility.

THE responsibility attached to the preparing of a remedy for infants and children is undoubtedly greater than that imposed upon the manufacturer of remedies for adults whose system is sufficiently strong to counteract, for a time at least, any injurious drug. It is well to observe that Castoria is prepared today, as it has been for the past 40 years, under the personal supervision of Mr. Chas. H. Fletcher.

What have makers of imitations and substitutes at stake? What are their responsibilities? To whom are they answerable? They spring up today, scatter their nefarious wares broadcast, and disappear temorrow.

Could each mother see the painstaking care with which the prescription for Fletcher's Castoria is prepared: could they read the innumerable testimonials from grateful mothers, they would never listen to the subtle pleadings and false arguments of those who would offer an imitation of, or substitute for the tried and true Fletcher's Castoria.
