COMMUNITY ASSET

The greatest asset a community can have is healthy citizens. As there are no means of scientifically bruging about this happy condition, it remains for the individual to do the best with his mind and body that he can for his community.

Our progressive ladies of Plymouth invited Mrs. L. L. McIntyre to return to Plymouth for a course of health lectures and instructions. It will be remembered that Mrs. McIntyre was here this summer, with the Lincoln Chautsuqua, and her lecture aroused so much enthusiasm that Plymouth desires her return. It is not often that any but larger cities can secure such a nationally famous lecturer, and as a matter of civic pride, we urge all who possibly can do so, to take advantage of her talks, so they may profit by what has been accomplished in various parts of the country by Mrs. McIntyre.

What Dr. Hurty says:

"It is a pleasure to know that Arrs. McIptyre, whom I know very well as an earnest, sincere and competent teacher of public health, will launch a health campaign in Riverside, Cal. The people of Riverside should be congratulated that Mrs. McIntyre will be with them.

The general evidence of interest in all the services at the Methodist church, the first Sunday of the conference year, promises well for a successful year. The congregations were unusually good, especially in the evening, when Rev. Mr. Moon of Flint occupied the pulpit on the invitation of the pastof; Several publicly expressed their determination to begin a christian life. The Epworth League meeting was well attended, and five new members were voted in and received. At the morning service, Rev. F. M. Field gave an earnest, personal message, explaining why he was in Plymouth for another year.

DEATH OF SERGEANT

Parents of Plymouth Soldier Receive Letter Giving Details of Their Son's Death in a Military Hospital in

Mr. and Mfa. F. W. Beals received a letter a few days ago, which ended the terrific suspense the family has been laboring under for several weeks, when a brief telegram was received that Myron H. Beals, a son, had been "killed in action July 31st." The statement could hardly be believed, inasmuch as only two days before young Beals had written a very cheerful and optimistic letter, being at that time in a hospital. A telegram was forwarded saking for further details, and the following letter was received:

geons and the tender attention of nurses, it was impossible to save him. When his suffering became great he was given opiates, and he was unconscious when he died. He was so brawe and cheerful that he was a great favorite with the doctors and nurses, as well as the other patients. The men in the beds near him cried when he died. It was a keen gorrow to all who had come in contact with him. A few days before his death he was sitting up in bed reading, and up to that time his appetite had been good.

Myon H. Beals was born in Grand Rapids, Michigan, April 16, 1896. He came to Plymouth with his parents when six years of age. He went through the Plymouth schools, graduating from the High school as president of his class in 1915. Was employed in the effice of the Daisy Mfg. Co. until he enlisted in the Marine Corps on June 2, 1917. Was sent.to Paris Island, South Carolina, and Quantico, Virginia, for his training: He came home on a furlough in the early part of September a year ago, and was sent to France with his regiment in October, 1917. In April of this year, he was gassed while at the front, and knowing the only cure was to keep going, he did not give up, bur the servely wounded, necessitating the amputation of his left leg on July 21. Besides a host of friends, his tather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Beals; brother! Francis R. Beals; siater, Mrs. Gilbert Brown, and fiancee, Miss Helen Tighe, all of Plymouth, remain to mourn their loss.

George Tyo, Sr. Passes Away

George Tyo, Sr., familiarly known as "Daddy," was taken to Ann Arbor hospital, Sunday, where he underwent an operation, Tuesday morning, but he gradually grew worse and passed away at that place, Wednesday morning at 9:30. His son, George, and family resided with him on Starkweather avenue, and the funeral will be held from their residence, this (Friday) aftermoon at three o'clock. The remains will be taken to Scott, Ohio, where burial will take place, Saturday afternoon.

Carolyn of the Corners

BY RUTH BELMORE ENDICOTT

CAROLYN CANNOT FACE PROSPECT OF LOSING HER ONLY FRIEND AND COMPANION.

Synopsis.—Her father and mother reported lost at sea when the Dunraven, on which they had salled for Europe, was sunk, Carolyn May Cameron—Hannah's Carolyn—is sent from New York to her bachelor uncle, Joseph Stagg, at the Corners. The reception given her by her uncle is not very enthusiastic. Carolyn is also chilled by the stern demeanor of Aunty Rose, Uncle Joe's housekeeper. Stagg is dismayed when he learns from a lawyer friend of his brother-in-law that Carolyn has been left practically penniless and consigned to his care as guardian. Carolyn learns of the estrangement between her uncle and his one-time sweetheart, Ananda Parlow, and the cause of the bitterness between the two families.

and had forn up two currant hushes and done some damage 'n the strawberry patch.

"And the worst of it is," grumbled the hardware dealer, "he never caught the mole. That mongrel really isn't tworth a bag of dornicks to sink him in the brook. But that's what he's going to get this very evening when I come home. I won't stand for him a day longer."

Carolyn May positively turned pale as she crouched beside the now chained-up Prince, both arms about his rough neck. He licked her cheek. Fortunately, he could not understand everything that was said to him, therefore the pronouncement of this terrible sentence did not agitate him an atom.

Carolyn May sat for a long time under the tree beside the sleeping dog and thought how different this life at The Corners was from that she had lived with her father and mother in the city here.

lived with her father and mother in the city home.

If only that big ship, the Dunraven, had not sailed away with her papa and her mamma!

Carolyn May had been very brave on that occasion. She had gone ashore with Mrs. Price and Edna after her mother's last clinging embrace and her father's busky "Good-by, daughter," with scarcely a tear.

Of course she had been brave! Mamma would return in a few weeks, and then, after a time, papa would likewise come back—and oh! so roay and stout!

And then, in two weeks, came the girl fest bitterly ner indicates.

If Uncle Joe did as he had threatened, what should she do? There seemed to be no place for her and Prince to run away to.

"I'm quite sure I ddn't want to live," thought Carolyn May dismally.

"If papa and mamma and Prince are all dead—why! there aren't enough other folks left in the world to make it worth while living in, I don't believe. If Prince isn't going to be alive, then I don't want to be alive, either."

By and by Prince began to get very

"Yos poor thing, you," said Carolys May at last. "I s'pose you are hungry. It hat's going to do you's bif of good to eat; but you don't know it. Till ast Aunty Bose if she has something for

"Tut, tut!" murmured the woman. "He's the most sensible of the two of you, I decinre."

The most doleful procession. There was no idea in the little girl's mind that Uncle Joe might change his intention and Prince be saved from the watery grave promised him. When intention and Frince be saved from the watery grave promised him. When she saw the hardware dealer come into the yard almost an hour earlier than their usual supper time she was not surprised. Nor did she think of pleading with him for the dog's life.

not surprised. Nor did she think of pleading with him for the dog's life.

The little girl watched him sakance. Mr. Stage came directly through the yard, stopping only at the shed for a moment. There he secured a strong potato sack, and with it trailing from his hand went half-way up the knoll to where there was a heap of stones. He stooped down and began to select some of these, putting them in the hag.

This was too much for Carolyn May. With a fearful look at Uncle Joe's uncompromising shoulders, she went to the tree where Prince was chained. Exchanging the chain for the leather leash with which she always led him about, the little girl guided the mongrel across the yard and around the teorner of the house.

Her last backward glance assured be that the hardware dealer had not observed her. Quickly and silently she led Prince to the front gate, and they went out together into the dusty road.

"I—I know we oughtn't to," whispered Carolys May to her caning friend, "but I feel I've just got to save you, Prince. I—I can't see you drownded dead like that!"

She turned the habrest corner and went up the road towards the little closed, gable-yoofed cottage where drownded dead like that!"

She timed the barest corner and went up the road towards the little closed, gable-roofed cottage where Aunty Rose hed lived before she had come to be Uncle Joe's housekeeper.

Carolyn May had already peered over into the small yard of the cottage and had seen that Mrs. Kennedd still kept the flower-beds weeded and the walks nent and the grass plot trimmed. But the wildow shuiters were barred and the front door built up with boards.

Carolyn May went in through the front gate and sat down on the doorstep, while Prince dropped to a comfortable stitude beside her. The dog slept. The little gir ruminated.

She would not go back to Uncle Joe's—no, indeed! She did not know just what she would do when dark should come, but Prince should not be sacrificed to her uncle's wrath.

A voice, low, sweet, yet startling, aroused her.

"What are you doing there, little gir!"

Both runaways started, but neither

Both runaways started, but neither of them was disturbed by the appearansee of her who had accosted Carolyn May.

"Oh, Miss Mandy!" breathed the little girl, and thought that the carpenter's daughter had never looked so pretty.

"We—we've run away," said Carolyn May at last. She could be nothing but frank; it was her nature.

"Run away?" repeated the pretty woman. "You don't mean that?"

"Yes, ma'am, I have. And Prince. From Uncle Joe and Aunty Rose," Carolyn May assured her, nodding her head with each declaration.

"Oh, my dear, what for?" asked Miss Amanda.

So Carolyn May told her—and with tears.

So Carolyn may too accept the same into the yard and sat beside the child on the step. With her arm about the little girl, Miss Amanda snuggled her upclose, wiping the tears away with her own handkerchief.

"I just can't have poor Prince drownd-ed," Carolyn May sobbed, "I'd mant to be drownd-ed niyself, too."

"You should not say such things, especially before the child, Joseph Stagg," admonished Aunty Rose.
Carolyn May, however, seemed not to have heard Uncle Joe's pessimistic remark; she was too greatly excited by the prospect of Sunday school. And the very next week-day school would begin!

the very next week-day school would begin!

By this first week in September the little girl was quite settled in her new home at The Corners. Prince was still a doubtful addition to the family, both Uncle Joe and Aunty Rose plainly has ing miagivings about him. But in regard to the little girl herself, the hardware merchant and the house keeper were of one opinion, even though they did not admit it to each other.

Prince proves himself a real canine hero and makes himself "solid" with all the people at the Corners. His exploit is described in the next installment.

The Second Indiana artillery is re-

A superior officer had come to inspect the company. He gave directions as to the way he was to be sailuted, etc. "Now, we'll try you out and see if you've got all my directions." he ended. "We'll begin by calling the roll.

"As your names are called advance two steps, salute your superior offi-

"As your names are called advance two steps, salute your superior officer and answer 'Here.'"

The clerk took up the list of names and began calling. And lo, the Austrian's name, like "Abou Ben Adhem's," led all the rest. For a few minutes the young fellow stood hesitating, because he had not understood much of what the officer had said.

Encouragingly the officer started to raise his hand. A broad smile of reality strength over the Austrian's face. A few rapid steps—he was across the room, seized his superior officer's hand and gave if a hearty-American shake.

Amid roars of inshiter the officer ruefully examined his crushed fingers. "He's an 'American now, all right," he said sagely.

We now know more certainly than we ever knew before why free men brought the great nation and government we love into existence, because it grows clearer and clearer what supreme service it is to be America's privilege to render to the world. The anniversary of the discovery of America must therefore have for us in this fateful year, a peculiar and thriling significance. We should make it a day of ardent rededication to the ideals upon which our government is founded and by which our present heroic tasks are inspired.

Now therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do appoint Saturday, the 12th day of October, 1918, as Liberty day. On that day I request the citizens of every community of the United States, city... town and countryside, to celebrate the discovery of our country in order to stimulate a gueerous response to the Fourth Liberty Loan. erty loan.

The title of the poster is "Can America's Entry Make a decision of the War!" Integral sections of it attempt to convince the reader that America's army cannot take the piace of Russia's withdrawn forces; that the United States cannot build enough ahips to have any effect on the result of the war, and that the U-boats will destroy virtually all the ships that America to have any effect on the result of the war, and that the U-boats will destroy virtually all the ships that America cun build when those ships attempt to cross the ocean. A French poster also is reproduced in the German poster and the meaning so twisted as to make it appear that France is very badly in need of food.

Two millions of the booklets have been printed and will be distributed in various parts of the country, particularly in theaters where Liberty Loan speakers take the book as their text.

The enormous figure of a Russian soldier is the first object on the poster to strike the eye. He stands with isands in his overcoat pockets, taddentive of the fact that he is through fighting. Beside him stands Uncle Sam bolding a small figure, designed to represent the United States army, in his right hand. In his left hand Uncle Sam carries a banner which bears the inscription, "America theretens to send transport of one-half million men. But it cannot ship them!" Below Uncle Sam are these words: "It is But it cunnot ship them!" Below Uncle Sam are these words: "It is impossible for America to train and fit out in time for the European war a suitable and sufficiently large army and provide it with the necessary re-enforcements." The catchiline of this enforcements." The catchine of this section of the poster is "Russia's army of militions could not down Germany," and on the skirt of the Russian solder's overcout are printed these words: "Russian med the altogether fifteen million men in vain."

Nothing but Temporary Mental Aberration Could Account for His Unprecedented Action, Unprecedented Action.

Mr. Wedderly's wife was gone and as was under the painful necessity of having to shift for himself, even to the extent of hunting for his hat, as he was now doing. He had apparantly exhausted every conceivable place where a hat loves to hide when its owner is in a hurry. Every nook and cranny in the house that he could recall as having been the place of refuge of his headgear on former occasions was absolutely, hattess. Wherever he looked his hat wasn't there.

Wherever he looked his hat wasn't there.

The situation was fast becoming desperate. Finally when hope almost had fied his face suddenly assumed a diabolical grin. It was the last resort. He went to the clothes closet and looked in. There was the trguat hat. In a moment of mental sherregion he had actually put the hat where it belonged. He resolved that it should not occur again. Another such experience might wreck his mind entirely.

The Enemy Is Watching

By NEWTON D. BAKER, Secretary of War

The supreme moments of our struggle with Germany have now come.

We have carried our first armies across three thousand miles of ocean and joined the issue of battle with the military power of a nation that has been for forty years preparing its plans and its weapons for its present attempt to dominate the world. We have had to put forth an immense effort and spend a fabulous sum in order to make, in so short a time, an adequate beginning for our gigantic task.

But it is only our beginning. We must follow it with greater energy and support it with increasing power. Men, munitions, ships and supplies must go to Europe in a larger and larger stream. We must redouble our blows and add constantly to the strength of those blows, if our initial effort is not to be wasted.

This Means That Our Fourth Liberty Loan Must Be Larger Than Its Predecessors, More Enthusiastically Supported and More Quickly Than Ever Subscribed

The enemy is watching anxiously for the first sign that we are faltering.

Our Government Loans should go "over the top" as eagerly as our soldiers do, in order to carry with them the terror of furious attack. Our dollars must rain upon the enemy as overwhelmingly as our hail of bullets or our storm of shells.

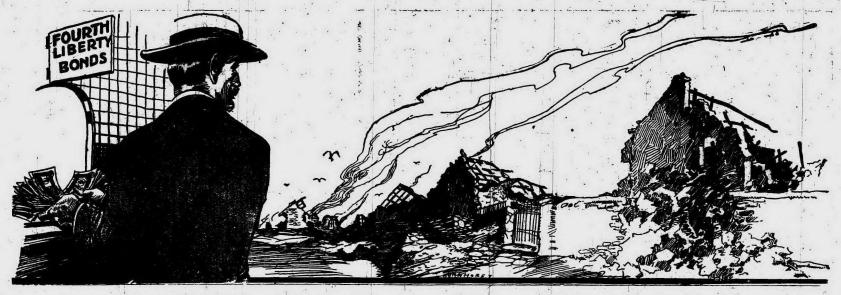

We are fighting for the liberty of the world, for the triumph of our ideals of democracy and self-government over the last great advocate of force upholding injustice. We are buying with our Liberty Loans the security and joy of our people for generations to come. No price could be too high to pay for such a victory—no cost too great for such a purchase.

Shall We Not Prove Our Gratitude?

Are we not grateful that our homes are not in ruins, our women and children slaughtered and enslaved?

We have been spared thus far the horrors which have been visited upon France and Belgium and other. countries which have been fighting our enemies for so long.

What sort of selfish people will we appear to the world if now, when our country asks us to lend our money for the benefit of our boys on the firing line, we fail to answer the call?

The people of the rest of the civilized world have pledged everything they have to defeat the monstrous military power of Germany.

Can we retain our self-respect if we do less?

Are you doing your share? Have you bought all the LIBERTY BONDS you possibly can?

When you have bought all you can get your friends to do the same.

very rolling, and some of the hills are more than a mile long, and are like a winding stairway.

The buildings are all built of stone, and most of them look very old. Most of the small towns are between two hills, and some of the streets are rather narrow. There was just about room enough to get through some of them with the truck. There are no large farms like we have in the States, and the fences are mostly brush. There is not much timber, but lots of small stuff. It is rather amusing here to see the way they farm. They still swing the cradle. Some of the farmers have the old self rake reaper. Oxen are used to some extent, and the old oaken bucket still hangs in the well. Their principle crops are oats, wheat and potatoes. It have not seen any corn. I guess the nights are too cold in this country for corn. I went to see one of the farmers thresh. They had a separator about the size of a fanning mill, and an old tread power to operate it.

A fine meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held Thurday afternoon, September 26th, at the home of Mrs E. L. Safford, Mrs. Ralp Sherry of Detroit, gave a very interesting address in the interest of the Susan B. Anthony amendment. The speaker brought out clearly the advancement made by woman in the years that have passed since the pioneer leaders of the work inaugurated the rapovement for equal rights for women.

Arrangements are being made for the district convention, which occurs in the Methodist church of Plymouth, Thursday and Friday, October 24 and 25. Mrs. E. L. Calkins, state president, will speak on Thursday evening. About forty delegates are expected to be present.

The next regular meeting will be held Thursday, October 10th, at 2:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. E. C. Vealey, East Ann Arbor street. Leaders for the day—Mrs. Oliver Loomis, Mrs. Rose Tillotaon.

The September Michigan Union says: The ton output of American shipbuilders in the dry west is one and a quarter time greater than in the wet east, and twice greater than England.

which are almost as essential to your housecleaning as your broom and your dust pan, because of the bodily comfort they afford.

A COMPLETE NEW ASSORTMENT OF MODELS IN SIZES TO FIT ALL WOMEN PERFECTLY

The new Fall Models will have their initial showing at this sale, and we may with honesty herald them as the most attractive Dresses of the kind we have ever offered, on sale.

THEIR EXCLUSIVE FEATURES ADD A VALUE FOUND IN NO OTHER DRESSES

THE ADJUSTABLE MODELS—Merely buttoning two buttons adjusts the dress to ANY irregularity of the figure, completely filling the requirements of women known as "hard to fit."

THE ADJUSTABLE HEM—To lengthen the skirt, just pull a thread. No ripping or restitching of the skirt-hem necessary.

THE UNDER-ARM SHIELDS—Built-in-Shields that afford almost double wear at the very points where dresses show the first signs of service.
