A Season Ticket to Metropolitan Opera Offers You No More than

The NEW EDISON

Since Thomas A. Edison perfected this instrument Grand Opera itself has been able to offer you no more than the New Edison. If the two million people who have attended Edison tone tests have been utterly unable to distinguish the artist's living voice from the instrument's RE-CREATION it is clear that no difference exists isn't it? And if there is no difference between the artist's rendition and the instrument's then obviously the artist can give you no more than

CIVIL WAR VETERAN ANSWERS LAST CALL

HENRY ROBINSON PASSES AWAY AT THE HOME OF HIS DAUGHTER, SUNDAY MORNING OF OLD AGE.

Henry Robinson, for many years a highly respected citizen of this village, passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. O. Dickerson, last Sunday morning. Mr. Robinson had been in failing health since early last summer. Old age was the cause of death. The funeral services were held from the Dickerson home, Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, Rev. F. M. Field officiating. The members of Eddy Post, G. A. R., of which the deceased had been an honored member for many years, had a part in the service.

Henry Robinson was born at Cheltenham, England, July 30, 1832. His boyhood and youth were spent in the old country, but when about eighteen years of age he went to sea, taking ship on a whaling vessel as ship's carpenter. He followed the sea for eight or nine years, during which time he met with many thrilling experiences, being at one time lost in the Arctic ocean. The experiences of these exciting whaling expeditions have furnished the foundation for many an interesting narrative, with which Mr. Robinson has entertained his friends in later years. On leave-ing a sailor's life, Mr. Robinson came to Detroit, Michigan, where he took up his trade as a joiner and carpenter. When the need for men became imperative in the second year of the civil war, he responded by enlisting on August 1, 1862, in Co. G of the Twenty-fourth Michigan Volunteer Infantry. He saw active service in a number of battles, and was finally wounded severely at Fitchburg's Crossing. The comrade next to him, both of them lying on the ground, was instantly killed by a shell, which he glanced upward and struck Mr. Robinson on the head, inflicting injuries from which he never fully recovered. He was for some time in a military hospital in Washington, D. C., and afterwards in Detroit. He received his honorable discharge on January 29, 1865. He again took up his residence in Detroit, but came to Plymouth fifty-one years ago, two years after the close of the war. November 17, 1890, he was united in marriage with Helen E. Macomber of Livonia, Michigan, who died May 27, 1906. The eldest child, William, died in 1912, but three children are still living, Herbert H. Robinson of Novi, Mrs. Ed. Willett and Mrs. C. O. Dickerson of Plymouth, besides nine grandchildren and ten great grandchildren. There is also a sister in London, England, and a number of nieces and nephews also in England. Mr. Robinson united with the Baptist church in Plymouth, thirty-two years ago, and was a deacon of this church for many years.

FUND AND CROSS UNITE EFFORTS

DECEMBER PATRIOTIC PAYMENTS ASSURE MEMBERSHIP IN LATTER ORGANIZATION.

In connection with the annual Christmas roll call of the American Red Cross, which will be conducted on a national scale, the week of Dec. 16, the Detroit Patriotic Fund has arranged with Detroit chapter to obtain Red Cross memberships for all their December payments, and for all who have paid their pledges in full. This applies to all Plymouth and vicinity subscribers to the Detroit Patriotic Fund.

This is in accord with a promise made by the Patriotic Fund at the time of its campaign last May, when it was announced that organizations participating in the drive would not again solicit subscribers next year. The Fund also promised at that time that it would announce a plan whereby contributors to the fund would become members of the Red Cross at the annual roll call if they so desired. The Fund is now making good in both particulars.

With the consent of the Red Cross, the Patriotic Fund will send to all of its members in advance the roll call blank membership cards. On signing these cards and turning them in, along with their December payment, subscribers to the Fund will receive a Red Cross button and a 1918 membership flag, to be displayed in the windows of their homes. This exempts them from solicitation by the Red Cross workers enlisted in the roll call, who will be instructed to call only at homes where the membership flag is not displayed.

Those who have paid their Patriotic Fund pledges will receive buttons and membership flags by mail and will only be asked to sign and return the card. Subscribers may also enroll members of their family on this card, if they desire, in which event they will receive 100 per cent stickers.

If you want a good supper for 25c, come to the M. E. church, Friday evening, December 13th.

MASONS, NOTICE!
There will not be a communication Friday, December 6th, owing to the Millard band concert. Let all who can attend and support our splendid band of which Plymouth should be very proud. Please call on the nearest lodge, or contact the secretary, number in program. E. M. BICKNELL, W. M. GEORGE HIGHWINE, Secretary.

To correct an impression that some may have gained regarding the fancy dress ball to be given in the Penniman Allen auditorium, New Year's night, Mrs. Kate E. Allen wishes it to be understood that it is not a "dress affair" but on the order of a masquerade without masks. In other words the dancers are supposed to appear dressed in fancy costumes in keeping with the spirit of the occasion, which is to have a good social time with the beginning of 1919.

Have Changed Name—

The Michigan Press, Co. of Ypsilanti, who recently purchased the foundry plant of the Plymouth Motor Casting Co., have changed the name of their concern, which will hereafter be known as the Michigan Tool and Foundry Co. Does Your Subscription Expire?—

A large number of subscriptions to the Mail expire this month, and since the government ruling, that all subscriptions must be paid for in advance, the Mail has adopted the plan of stopping the paper when the time paid for is up. If you wish your paper continued look at the date on your label and act accordingly.

Dies Suddenly—

George Hayes, an employe of the Harroun motor works at Wayne, and who had been suffering from an attack of pneumonia, undertook to make a journey to his home in Omer, Mich., last Saturday, taking a train at Plymouth. Undertaker Morton of Wayne, drove him over, accompanied by Hayes' daughter, who sat in the seat with the driver. Upon their arrival at the Pere Marquette depot, the latter were horrified, upon looking around, to find Hayes dead in his seat. The party returned to Wayne, where the body was prepared for burial. Acute pleuro-pneumonia was given as the cause for the sudden death.

Our exports since a country entered the war have justified a statement made by the Food Administration shortly after its conception, outlining the principles and policies that would govern the solution of this country's food problems.

"The whole foundation of democracy," declared the Food Administration, "lies in the individual initiative of its people and their willingness to serve the interests of the nation with complete self-effacement in the time of emergency. Democracy can yield to discipline, and we can solve this food problem for our own people and for the Allies in this way. To have done so will have been a greater service than our immediate objective, for we have demonstrated the righteousness of our faith and our ability to defend ourselves without being refused ourselves."

GREATEST OPPORTUNITY WOMEN EVER HAD.

It was given to the women of this country to perform the greatest service in the winning of the war, vouchsafed to any woman in the history of the wars of the world—to feed the warriors and the war sufferers. By the arts of peace, the practice of simple, timely virtues the womanhood of a whole nation served humanity in its profoundest struggle for peace and freedom.

ADVICE TO "FLU" CONVALESCENTS

SPAIN AND ENGLAND REPORT INCREASE IN TUBERCULOSIS AFTER INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

U. S. Public Health Service Warns Public Against Tuberculosis. One Million Cases Tuberculosis in United States—Each a Source of Danger.

Influenza Convalescents Should Have Lungs Examined—Colds Which Hang On Often Beginning of Tuberculosis. No Cause for Alarm if Tuberculosis is Recognized Early—Patent Medicines Not to Be Trusted.

- Beware tuberculosis after influenza. No need to worry if you take precautions in time. Don't diagnose your own condition. Have your doctor examine your lungs several times at monthly intervals. Build up your strength with right living, good food and plenty of fresh air. Don't waste money on patent medicines advertised to cure tuberculosis. Become a fresh-air crank and enjoy life.

Washington, D. C.—(Special).—According to a report made to the United States Public Health Service, the epidemic of influenza in Spain has already caused an increase in the prevalence and deaths from pulmonary tuberculosis. A similar association between influenza and tuberculosis was recently made by Sir Arthur Newsholme, the chief medical officer of the English public health service, in his analysis of the tuberculosis-death rate in England.

In order that the people of the United States may profit by the experience of other countries Surgeon General Rupert Blue of the United States Public Health Service has just issued a warning emphasizing the need of special precautions at the present time. "Experience seems to indicate," says the Surgeon General, "that persons whose resistance has been weakened by an attack of influenza are peculiarly susceptible to tuberculosis. With millions of its people recently affected with influenza this country now offers conditions favoring the spread of tuberculosis."

One Million Consumptives in the United States.

"Then you consider this a serious menace?" was asked. "In my opinion it is, though I hasten to add it is distinctly one against which the people can guard. So far as one can estimate there are at present about one million cases of tuberculosis in the United States. There is unfortunately no complete census available to show exactly the number of tuberculosis persons in each state despite the fact that most of the states have made the disease reportable. In New York city, where reporting has been in force for many years, over 35,000 cases of tuberculosis are registered with the Department of Health. Those familiar with the situation believe that the addition of unrecognized and unreported cases would make the number nearer 50,000. The very careful health survey conducted during the past two years in Framingham, Mass., revealed 300 cases of tuberculosis in a population of approximately 15,000. If these proportions hold true for the United States as a whole they would indicate that about one in every hundred persons is tuberculous. Each of these constitutes a source of danger to be guarded against."

What to Do.

In his statement to the public Surgeon General Blue points out how those who have had influenza should protect themselves against tuberculosis. "All who have recovered from influenza," says the Surgeon General, "should have their lungs carefully examined by a competent physician. In fact, it is desirable to have several examinations made a month apart. Such examinations cannot be made through the clothing nor can they be carried out in two or three minutes. If the lungs are found to be free from tuberculosis every effort should be made to keep them so. This can be done by right living, good food and plenty of fresh air."

Danger Signs.

The Surgeon General warned especially against certain danger signs, such as "decline" and "colds which hang on."

These, he explained, were often the beginning of tuberculosis. "If you do not get well promptly, if your cold seems to hang on or your health and strength decline, remember that these are often the early signs of tuberculosis. Place yourself at once under the care of a competent physician. Tuberculosis is curable in the early stages. Patent Medicines Dangerous in Tuberculosis."

"Above all do not trust in the misleading statements of unscrupulous patent medicine fakery. There is no specific medicine for the cure of tuberculosis. The money spent on such medicines is thrown away; it should be spent instead for good food and clean living."

Few Escape

There are few indeed who escape having at least one cold during the winter months, and they are fortunate who have but one and get through with it quickly and without any serious consequences. Take Chamberlain's Remedy and observe directions with each bottle, and you are likely to be one of the fortunate ones. The worst and most of this severity has been fully proven. There are many families who have always used it for years, when troubled with a cough or cold, and with the very best results. Advt.

WOMAN'S LITERARY CLUB

The fifth meeting of the Woman's Literary Club was held in the Kindergarten room of the school building, last Friday afternoon, November 29. The meeting was called to order at the regular hour by the president, Mrs. C. H. Bennett, with twenty-four active, eight associate and one honorary member in attendance. Several guests were also present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, and reports of officers were given.

A communication from the Corresponding Secretary of the M. S. F. W. C. was read, stating that the Federation meeting, which was postponed last October on account of the influenza epidemic, would be held in Kalamazoo, January 14, 15, 16.

A communication in the form of an appeal, asking aid for the Permanent Blind Relief Fund, was read, and by a vote of the club, a subscription of five dollars was ordered sent to aid in this worthy cause.

The response to roll call was given by naming a state flower. The program prepared for the afternoon by the fifth division, with Mrs. Coello Hamilton, leader, was presented as follows:

Paper, "Washington, the Home of the American Government"—Miss Ada Safford.
Contentments—Mrs. Coello Hamilton.
Short extracts, of men well known in Washington, humorous and otherwise, were read by various members of the club.
Miss Alvina Streng favored the company with a piano selection from the pen of Irving Berlin, and "They were all out of Step but Jim" and "Back to Michigan," two popular selections by Sergeant Berlin, were pleasingly rendered by four little girls in costume—Julia and Katherine Wilcox, Janet Whipple and Winnifred Draper, accompanied on the piano by Miss Streng.

On motion the club adjourned to meet in two weeks, Friday, December 13th. This will be Juvenile Day and each member is requested to bring two little guests between the ages of five and sixteen. Mrs. Smith of Detroit, a child entertainer, will entertain the guests with song and story. Each member is also asked to bring a small gift for each child she invites.

NEW WOMEN VOTERS WILL REGISTER SOON

ANY ENROLLMENT BEFORE DEC. 5 IRREGULAR STATE RULES.

Women who registered the moment they learned that the Suffrage Amendment to the State Constitution had been passed, may register again at their leisure any day now, if they desire to have their ballots counted at the next election. The amendment does not become effective until thirty days after the election at which it was passed, or December 5th, according to an opinion rendered by the attorney general to Clarence R. Haney of Schoolcraft.

When the women begin to register, the opinion states, separate registration books or separate sections of the books now in use must be provided for them. Women who had previously registered to vote on questions involving direct expenditures of public moneys, the issuance of bonds or at the presidential primaries must register again if they desire to participate in general elections. The previous registration, being for special purposes does not qualify them to vote on other questions.

No changes in the present election laws will be necessary in order to make the suffrage amendment effective, the opinion states. The terms, "electors," "qualified voters," "persons possessing qualifications as an elector," used in the present statutes are held to be sufficiently broad to include the new electors.

A MEMORIAL SERVICE

A memorial service was held in the First Presbyterian church of this place last Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in memory of Sergeant Myron H. Beals of the 97th Co., 6th United States Marines, who died in the American Red Cross Military Hospital, near Paris, July 31st, after having been severely wounded in battle on July 17th. Sergeant Beals was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beals of this village. The church was appropriately decorated with flags and the National colors, and a very impressive talk was given by Rev. B. F. Farber of Detroit, former pastor and friend of the deceased. During the service several selections were feelingly rendered by the following quartet: Mesdames R. E. Cooper, W. W. Haines and Messrs. C. H. Rauch and Calvin Whipple.

Everybody likes a story. That is the reason Jesus preached by telling stories, and perhaps the reason why so many were intensely interested in that thrilling after-the-war story, "All the World," which Rev. F. M. Field began in the service, last Sunday evening.

A supper for 25c is almost unheard of these days, but the Methodist Ladies' Aid were planning exactly such a miracle for Friday evening, December 13th. There is surely nothing unluckily about that when you see the menu they are going to serve. Plans are also being made for an illustrated entertainment after supper.

A deputy game warden made an official visit to Holly, last week, and made several arrests for violation of the game laws, the offenders paying from $10 to $35 each. The state game warden is making an effort toward more strict enforcement of the game laws, and is said to have a large force of deputies at work in the state, and one of them is liable to show up in any community at any time to round up the violators.

An agreement has been reached between the beet growers of Michigan and the managers of the state refineries, whereby the prices for next season are fixed at $10 per ton. This is bound to mean another bumper crop of sugar beets. With the price fixed this far in advance the farmers can make their arrangements to put out a big acreage. With the fighting over, which means a sufficient amount of labor in the pinches, the entire success of the next season's beet crop lies entirely with the weather man.

The concrete roadway on Michigan avenue just east of Ypsilanti, has been completed to the city limits, and it is expected that it will be open in a few days for travel as far as the Harris corners, where a short detour will be made coming into Ypsilanti over Cross street or Forest avenue for westbound travel, and eastbound will make a short detour to the south. It is expected that the Mills street bridge, while not completed this fall, will be so far along that a plank flooring can be laid, so that it can be used this winter.

Just as soon as there is a little let-up in the matter of shell making, the Harroun Motors corporation, Wayne, will increase the daily output of cars, which has been far below the demand for many months. It is not calculated that there will be any reduction in the working force at the plant, no matter how soon the government curtails the output of war supplies, which is expected to begin in various parts of the country very quick. The Harroun people have kept their selling organization intact in the various large distributing centers, even though unable to ship all the cars wanted during the war activities. Many "after the war" orders are booked, so the working force will not be disturbed materially in making the shift.

Our food Gospel eat less serve less waste nothing America's Pledge of Food Gave Heart to the Allies in Their Darkest Hour Whatever is necessary America will send. That was America's pledge to the interallied food council. And because the American food army had hitherto made good their word heart and went forward. Farm enterprise and much soft corn increased pork supplies, food conservation increased exports—total shipments doubled. FAITH JUSTIFIED BY EVENTS. I do not believe that drastic force need be applied to maintain economic distribution and same use of supplies by the great majority of American people, and I have learned a deep and abiding faith in the intelligence of the average American business man, whose aid we anticipate and depend on to remedy the evils developed by the war.—Herbert Hoover, August 10, 1917.

DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

Girl! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in a few moments.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine for a few cents at any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.—Adv.

Strange Mixture of Names That Caused Some Misunderstanding in Talk Over the Telephone.

It is necessary to preface this little story with the assertion that it was not created by a punster, but that it actually happened, reports the Indianapolis News.

In the purchasing agent's office of one of the largest, if not the largest, corporations in Marion county, there was a clerk named Shaw and a stenographer named Smart.

The wife of the purchasing agent called over the telephone one day and asked for her husband.

"He has just stepped out," replied Miss Smart, who answered the phone.

"Oh,shaw," exclaimed the purchasing agent's wife.

Misunderstanding, the stenographer replied, "Why, he's not here, either."

"Oh, you're smart," commented the purchasing agent's wife.

"Yes, that's my name," replied the stenographer.

And further the affiant sayeth not.

PRESIDENT WILSON SAYS DUTY IMPELS TRIP ACROSS SEA

TELLS CONGRESS ALLIED NATIONS HAVE ACCEPTED HIS PRINCIPLES FOR PEACE AND HIS PRESENCE IS NEEDED.

BELIEVES BUSINESS WILL ADJUST ITSELF WITHOUT AID

President Will Keep in Close Touch By Cable and Wireless and That Congress Will Know All That He Does On the Other Side.

Washington—Congress in joint session heard President Wilson announce formally his purpose to attend the peace conference and give his views on the part the government should play in dealing with after-the-war problems.

The president's annual address was read before a crowd that filled floors and galleries. He reviewed at length the country's accomplishments in the war, paying tribute to armed forces and loyal workers at home.

Among other things he disclosed, he thinks the problem of readjustment is taking care of itself without government aid.

Text of Address. Gentlemen of the Congress: The year that has elapsed since I last stood before you to fulfill my constitutional duty to give to the Congress from time to time information on the state of the Union has been so crowded with great events, great processes and great results that I can not hope to give you an adequate picture of its transactions or of the far-reaching changes which have been wrought in the life of our nation and of the world.

You have yourselves witnessed these things, as I have. It is too soon to assess them; and we who stand in the midst of them and are part of them are less qualified than men of another generation will be to say what they mean or even what they have been.

But some great outstanding facts are unmistakable and constitute in a sense part of the public business with which it is our duty to deal.

Greatest Troop Movement. A year ago we had sent 145,918 men overseas. Since then we have sent 1,950,513, an average of 162,542 each month, the number in fact rising in May last to 245,951, in June to 278,760, in July to 307,182 and continuing to reach similar figures in August and September—in August 289,570 and in September 257,438.

No such movement of troops ever took place before, across 3,000 miles of sea, followed by adequate equipment and supplies, and carried safely through extraordinary dangers which were alike strange and infinitely difficult to guard against. In all this movement only 758 men were lost by enemy attacks—430 of whom were on a single English transport which was sunk near the Orkney Islands.

Nation's Apt Pupil. We profited greatly by the experience of the nations which had already been engaged for nearly three years in the exigent and exacting business, their every resource and every executive proficiency taxed to the utmost. We were the pupils. But we learned quickly and acted with a promptness and a readiness of co-operation that justify our great pride that we were able to serve the world with unparalelled energy and quick accomplishment.

But it is not the physical scale and executive efficiency of preparation, supply, equipment and dispatch that I would dwell on, but the mettle and quality of the officers and men we sent over and of the sailors who kept the seas, and the spirit of the nation that stood behind them. No soldiers or sailors ever proved themselves more quickly for the test of battle or acquitted themselves with more splendid courage and achievement when put to the test.

Praises All Fighters. Those of us who played some part in directing the great processes by which the war was pushed irresistibly forward to the final triumph may now forget all that and delight our thoughts with the story of what our men did. Their officers understood the grim and exacting task they had undertaken and performed with audacity, efficiency, and unhesitating courage that touch the story of convoy and battle with imperishable distinction at every turn, whether the enterprise were great or small, from their chiefs, Peabody and Sims, down to the youngest lieutenant; and their men were worthy of them—such men as hardly need to be commended, and go to their terrible adventures bravely and with the quick intelligence of those who know just what it is they would accomplish.

Proud of Countrymen. I am proud to be the fellow countryman of men of such spirit and valor. Those of us who stood at home did our duty; the war could not have been won, or the gallant men who fought it given their opportunity.

Friendship's Opportunity. Many are not satisfied people at home, try the great nations and good things that they have done. It may be that they are not satisfied with the war, but they are not satisfied with the peace that is being made.

Opportunity of the Post. Many are not satisfied people at home, try the great nations and good things that they have done. It may be that they are not satisfied with the war, but they are not satisfied with the peace that is being made.

portunity to win it otherwise; but for many a long day we shall think ourselves "accused" we were not there and hold our manhoods cheap while any speaks that fought," with these at St. Mihiel or Thierri. The memory of those days of triumphant battle will go with these fortunate men to their graves; and each will have his favorite memory. "Old men forget; yet all shall be forgot, but he'll remember with advantages what feats he did that day!"

What we all thank God for with deepest gratitude is that our men went in force into the line of battle just at the critical moment when the whole fate of the world seemed to hang in the balance and threw their fresh strength into the ranks of freedom in time to turn the whole tide and sweep of the fateful struggle—turn it once for all, so that thenceforth it was back, back, back for their enemies, always back, never again forward! After that it was only a scant four months before the commanders of the Central Empires knew themselves beaten; and now their very empires are in liquidation!

No Cause For Shame. And throughout it all how fine the spirit of the nation was: What unity of purpose, what untiring zeal! What elevation of purpose than through its splendid display of strength, its untiring accomplishment. I have said that those of us who stayed at home to do the work of organization and supply will always wish that we had been with the men whom we sustained by our labor; but we can never be ashamed.

It has been an inspiring thing to be here in the midst of fine men who had turned aside from every private interest of their own and devoted the whole of their trained capacity to the tasks that supplied the sinews of the whole great undertaking.

The patriotism, the unselfishness, the thorough-going devotion and distinguished capacity that marked their toilsome labors, day after day, month after month, have made them fit mates and comrades of the men in the trenches and on the sea. And not the men here in Washington only. They have but directed the vast achievement.

Tribute to Women. They can look any man-at-arms in the face and say, we also strove to win and gave the best that was in us to make our feet and armies surer of their triumph! And what shall we say of the women—their instant intelligence, quickening every task that they touched, their capacity for organization and co-operation, which gave their action discipline and enhanced the effectiveness of everything they attempted; their aptitude at tasks to which they had never before set their hands; their utter self-sacrifice, alike in what they did and what they gave? Their contribution to the great result is beyond appraisal. They have added a new luster to the annals of American womanhood.

The least tribute we can pay them is to make them the equals of men in political rights as they have proved themselves their equals in every field of practical work they have entered, whether for themselves, or for their country. These great days of completed achievement would be sad if married were we to omit that act of justice.

Justice For World. We are about to give order and organization to this peace not only for ourselves but for the other peoples of the world as well, so far as they will suffer us to serve them. It is international justice that we seek, not domestic safety merely. Our thoughts have dwelt of late upon Europe, upon Asia, upon the Near and the Far East, very little on the acts of peace and accommodation that wait to be performed at our own doors.

While we are adjusting our relations with the rest of the world it is not of capital importance that we should clear away all grounds of misunderstanding with our immediate neighbors and give proof of the friendship we really feel? I hope that the members of the Senate will permit me to speak once more of the unperfected treaty of friendship and adjustment with the Republic of Columbia. I very earnestly urge upon them an early and favorable action on this vital matter. I believe that they will feel, with me, that the stage of affairs is now set for such action as will be not only just but generous and in the spirit of the new age upon which we have so happily entered.

So far as our domestic affairs are concerned the problem of our return to peace is a problem of economic and industrial readjustment. That problem is less serious for us than it may turn out to be for the nations which have suffered the disarrangements and the losses of war longer than we. Our people, moreover, do not wait to be coached and led. They know their own business, are quick and resourceful at every readjustment, definite in purpose, and self-reliant in action.

Great Plants Set Free. Great industrial plants whose output and machinery had been taken over for the uses of the government have been set free to return to the uses to which they were put before the war. It has not been possible to remove so rapidly or so quickly the control of industries and of shipping, because the world has still to be fed from our granaries and the ships are still needed to send supplies to our men overseas and to bring the men back as fast as the disturbed conditions on the other side of the water permit; but even these restraints are being relaxed as much as possible and more and more as the weeks go by.

Never before have there been agencies in existence in this country which knew so much of the field of supply, of labor and of industry as the war industries board, the war trade board, the labor department, the food administration, and the fuel administration have known since their labors became thoroughly systematized; and they have been isolated by men which represented the permanent departments of the government and so have been the centers of unified and co-operative action.

It has been the policy of the executive, therefore, since the armistice was assured (which is in effect a complete submission of the enemy) to put the knowledge of the businessmen at the disposal of the businessmen of the country and to offer their intelligent mediation at every point and in every matter where it was desired. It is surprising how fast the process of return to a peace footing has moved in the three weeks since the fighting stopped. It promises to outrun any inquiry that may be instituted and any aid that may be offered. It will not be easy to direct it any better than it will direct itself. The American business man is of quick initiative.

Must Clear Uncertainties. It will be of serious consequence to the country to delay removing all uncertainties in this matter a single day longer than the right processes of debate justify. It is idle to talk of successful and confident business reconstruction before those uncertainties are resolved.

If the war had continued, it would have been necessary to raise at least $8,000,000,000 by taxation payable in the year 1919; but the war has ended, and I agree with the secretary of the treasury that it will be safe to reduce the amount to $6,000,000,000. An immediate read decline in the expenses of the government is not to be looked for. Contracts made for war supplies will, indeed, be rapidly canceled and liquidated, but their immediate liquidation will make heavy drains on the treasury for the months just ahead of us.

The maintenance of our forces on the other side of the sea is still necessary. A considerable proportion of those forces must remain in Europe during the period of occupation, and those which are brought home will be transported and demobilized at heavy expense for months to come.

The interest on our war debt must, of course, be paid, and provision made for the retirement of the obligations of the government which represent it. But these demands will, of course, fall much below what a continuation of military operations would have entailed, and six billions should suffice to supply a sound foundation for the financial operations of the year.

I entirely concur with the secretary of the treasury in recommending that the $2,000,000,000 needed in addition to the $4,000,000,000 provided by existing law be obtained from the profits which have accrued and shall accrue from war contracts and distinctly war business but that these taxes be confined to the war profits accruing in 1918, or in 1919 from business originating in war contracts.

I urge your acceptance of his recommendation that provision be made now, not subsequently, that the taxes to be paid in 1920 should be reduced from $8,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000. Any arrangements less definite than these would add elements of doubt and confusion to the critical period of industrial readjustment through which the country must now immediately pass and which no true friend of the nation's essential business interests can afford to be responsible for creating or prolonging.

Lansing—Henry R. Pattengill, 66 years old, known in practically every state in the union for his educational activities, died at his home here from an illness of three weeks. Since his graduation from the University of Michigan in 1874, Henry R. Pattengill had been prominently identified with the educational and political life of the state. In 1885 he came to Lansing and established a weekly paper "Moderator Topics," which has an extensive circulation among teachers. He was editor of this publication at the time of his death.

Lansing—Michigan Agricultural College will hold an official re-opening January 3, when all courses of study that have been discontinued as a result of the war will be restored to the curriculum. The college has been open since 1887 and has a long history of agricultural education. It is one of the largest and best equipped agricultural colleges in the United States.

Ann Arbor—Jackson prison has refused to co-operate with University of Michigan classes in optometry and contrary to the custom of former years prison authorities have refused permission for the classes to inspect the institution because there are co-eds in the classes. The refusal was given flatly by telephone when one of the sociology professors called Warren Hubbard by long distance telephone and asked permission, as in other years, for his classes to inspect the institution. Can't take women through this prison says new warden.

Lansing—Although Henry Ford carried out 10 of the 23 counties in Michigan, his vote in Wayne, where he had his Republican opponent by a close margin, made great friends into foes. H. H. Henshaw's unique plan for the vote is to be held by the state committee on the return of the vote.

SPANISH INFLUENZA Do Not Fear When Fighting a German or a Germ!

By DR. M. COOK.

The cool fighter always wins and as there is no need to become panic-stricken. Avoid fear and crowds. Exercise in the fresh air and practice the three C's: A Clean Mouth, a Clean Skin and Clean Bowels. To carry off the poisons that accumulate within the body and to ward off an attack of the influenza bacillus, take a good liver regulator to move the bowels. Such a one is made up of May-apple, leaves of aloec, root of jalap, and is to be had at any drug store, and called "Pleasant Purgative Pellets."

If a bed cold develops, go to bed, wrap up well, drink freely of hot lemonade and "take a hot mustard foot-bath. Have the bedroom warm but well ventilated. Obtain at the nearest drug store, "Anuric Tablets" to flush the kidneys and control the pains and aches. Take an "Anuric" tablet every two hours, together with copious drinks of lemonade. If a true case of influenza, the food should be simple, such as broths, milk, buttermilk and ice-cream; but it is important that food be given regularly in order to keep up patient's strength and vitality. WAR BOARD CHANGED STYLES

Saving That Has Been Effectuated in Woman's Dress and Shoes is of Moment.

"Whether women realize it or not, there has been a saving of steel through making corsets on simpler lines. There was a shameful waste of material in shoes, but the war industries board stopped that by restricting the height, the number of styles, the variety of colors, etc. In World's Work Theodore Price tells how these and other savings were brought about "by diplomacy." He says: "Women's wear presented a delicate problem. Paris sets the styles for the ladies. Certainly gentlemen in Washington were not to be consulted. But the war industries board made a few inquiries by cablegram—the French minister of commerce and industry asked the arbiters of fashion over there a few questions—or, at least, it is presumed that he did—and the French designers suddenly awakened to a fine appreciation of the beauty of simplicity of style. The boards did not dictate to American designers; they merely acquainted them with the situation. A saving of 25 per cent in the wool used in women's clothes was secured.

Another interesting saving, says World's Work, was in the number of kinds of articles. For example, there were 800 sizes and kinds of metal beds, which the board reduced to 30 and lightened 35 pounds per bed; 287 varieties of auto tires were reduced to nine. In the vacuum cleaner business alone the war industries board found a way to conserve 1,000,000 feet of fabric hose.

"Pick him up and put him on the sled hard boys," Mr. Stag said. "I'll carry Hannah's Carlyn myself."

The party, including the excited Prince, got back to the docks without losing any time and without further accident. Still the chapel bell was ringing and somebody said:

"We'd have been up a stump for knowing the direction if it hadn't been for that bell."

"Me, too," muttered Chet Gormley. "That's what kept me going, folks—the chapel bell. It just seemed to be calling me home."

Joseph Stag, carried his niece up to Mrs. Gormley's little house, while one of the men helped Chet along to the same destination. The seamstress met them at the door, wildly excited.

"And what do you think?" she cried. "They took Mandy Parlow home in Tim's hack. She was just done up, they tell me, pullin' that chapel bell. Did you ever hear of such a silly critter—just because she couldn't find the sexton?"

"Hum! you and I both seem to be mistaken about what constitutes silliness, Mrs. Gormley," grumbled the hardware dealer. "I was for calling your Chet silly, till I learned what he'd done. And you'd better not call Miss Mandy silly. The sound of the chapel bell gave us all our bearings. Both of 'em, Chet and Miss Mandy, did their best."

Carolyn May was taken home in Tim's hack, too. To her surprise, Tim was ordered to stop at the Parlow house and go in to ask how Miss Amanda was.

By this time the story of her pulling of the chapel bell rope was all over Sunnyside Cove and the hack driver was naturally as curious as anybody. So he willingly went into the Parlow cottage, bringing back word that she was resting comfortably. Doctor Nugent having just left her.

"An' she's one brave gal," declared Tim. "Pitcher of George Washington! pullin' that bell rope ain't no baby's job."

Carolyn May did not altogether understand what Miss Amanda had done, but she was greatly pleased that Uncle Joe had so plainly displayed his interest in the carpenter's daughter.

The next morning Carolyn May seemed to be in good condition. Indeed she was the only individual vitally interested in the adventure who did not pay for the exposure. Even Prince had barked his legs being hauled out on the ice. Uncle Joe had caught a bad cold in his head and snarled from it for some time. Miss Amanda remained in bed for several days. But it was poor Chet Gormley who paid the dearest price for participation in the exciting incident. Doctor Nugent had had work fighting off pneumonia.

Mr. Stag surprised himself by the interest he took in Chet. He closed his store twice each day to call at the Widow Gormley's house.

Mr. Stag found himself talking with Chet more than he ever had before. The boy was lonely and the man found a spark of interest in his heart for him that he had never previously discovered. He began to probe into his young employee's thoughts, to learn something of his outlook on life; perhaps, even, he got some inkling of Chet's ambition.

That week the ice went entirely out of the cove. Spring was at hand, with its muddy roads, blue skies, sweeter air, soft rains and a general revivifying feeling.

Aunt Rose declared that Carolyn May began at once to "perk up." Perhaps the cold, long winter had been hard on the child to bear.

One day the little girl had a more than ordinarily hard school task to perform. Everything did not come easy to Carolyn May, "by any manner her slate (having learned to use a slate), which she expected later to copy into her composition book.

The Rev. Afton Driggs watched her puzzled face and laboring fingers for some moments before calling out of his window to her. Several sheets of sermon paper lay before him on the desk and perhaps he was having almost as hard a time putting on the paper what he desired to say as Carolyn May was having with her writing.

Finally, he came to the window and spoke to her. "Carolyn May," he said, "what are you writing?"

"Oh, Mr. Driggs, is that you?" said the little girl, getting up quickly and coming nearer. "Did you ever have to write a composition?"

"Yes, Carolyn May, I have to write one or two each week." And he sighed.

"Oh, yes! So you do!" the little girl agreed. "You have to write sermons. And that must be a terribly tedious thing to do, for they have to be longer than my composition—a great deal longer."

"So it is a composition that is troubling you," the young minister remarked.

"Yes, sir. I don't know what to write—I really don't. Miss Minnie says for us not to try any flights of fancy. I don't just know what those are. But she says, write what is in us. Now, that don't seem like a composition," added Carolyn May doubtfully.

"What doesn't?"

"Why, writing what is in us," explained the little girl, starting in a puzzled fashion at her slate, on which she had written several lines. "You see, I have written down all the things that I remember is in me."

"For pity's sake! let me see it, child," said the minister, quickly reaching down for the slate. When he brought it to a level with his eyes he was amazed by the following:

"In me there is my heart, my liver, my lungs, my vertebrae, my stomach, my stomach, two ginger cookies, a piece of peppermint candy and my dinner."

"For pity's sake!" Mr. Driggs shut off this explosion by a sudden cough.

"I guess it isn't much of a composition, Mr. Driggs," Carolyn May said frankly. "But how can you make your inwardly be pleasant reading?"

The minister was having no little difficulty in restraining his mirth.

"Go around to the door, Carolyn May, and ask Mrs. Driggs to let you in. Perhaps I can help you in this composition writing."

"Oh, will you, Mr. Driggs?" cried the little girl. "That is awful kind of you."

The clergyman did not seem to mind neglecting his task for the pleasure of helping Carolyn May with hers. He explained quite clearly just what Miss Minnie meant by "writing what is in you."

"Oh! it's what you think about a thing yourself—not what other folks think," cried Carolyn May. "Why, I can do that. I thought it was something like those physiology lessons. Then I can write about anything I want to, can't I?"

"I think so," replied the minister. "I'm awfully obliged to you, Mr. Driggs," the little girl said. "I wish I might do something for you in return."

"Help me with my sermon, perhaps?" he asked, smiling.

"I would if I could, Mr. Driggs," Carolyn May very earnestly.

"Well, now, Carolyn May, how would you go about writing a sermon if you had one to write?"

"Oh, Mr. Driggs!" exclaimed the little girl, clasping her hands. "I know just how I'd do it."

"You do? Tell me how, then, my dear," he returned, smiling. "Perhaps you have an inspiration for writing sermons that I have never yet found."

"Why, Mr. Driggs, I'd try to write every word so's to make folks that heard it happier. That's what I'd do. I'd make 'em look up and see the sunshine and the sky—and the mountains, 'way off yonder—so they'd see nothing but bright things and breathe only good air and hear birds sing—Oh, dear me, that—that is the way I'd write a sermon."

The clergyman's face had grown grave as he listened to her, but he kissed her warmly as he thanked her and bade her good-by. When she had gone from the study he read again the text written at the top of the first sheet of sermon paper. It was taken from the book of the prophet Jeremiah.

"To write every word so's to make folks that heard it happier," he murmured as he crumpled the sheet of paper in his hand and dropped it in the waste-basket.

CHAPTER XV.

The Awakening.

With the opening of spring and the close of the sledding season, work had stopped at Adams' camp. Rather, the entire plant had been shipped twenty miles deeper into the forest—mill, bathhouse, cook shed and such corrugated-iron shacks as were worth carrying away.

All that was left on the site of the busy camp were huge heaps of sawdust, piles of shingles, discarded timbers and the half-burned bricks into which had been built the portable boiler and engine.

And old Judy Munnis. She was not considered worth moving to the new site of the camp. She was bedridden with rheumatism. This was the night when the lightning had struck in the old woman's husband's head and Judy had not been so bad when I camp was broken up, but when Tim went over for a load of slabs for summer firewood, he discovered her quite helpless in her bunk and almost starving. The rheumatic attack had become serious.

Amanda Parlow had at once ridden over with Doctor Nugent.

"How brave and helpful it is of Miss Amanda!" Carolyn May cried. "Dear me, when I grow up I hope I can be a graduate nurse like Miss Mandy."

"I reckon that's some spell ahead," chuckled Mr. Parlow, to whom she said this when he picked her up for a drive after taking his daughter to the camp.

"Mr. Parlow," the girl ventured after a time, "don't you think now that Miss Amanda ought to be happy?"

"Happy?" exclaimed the carpenter, startled. "What about, child?"

"Why, about everything. You know, once I asked you about her being happy, and—and you didn't seem favorable. You said 'Bah!'"

The old man made no reply for a minute and Carolyn May had the patience to wait for her suggestion to "talk in." Finally he said:

"I dunno but you're right, Carolyn May. Not that it matters much, I guess, whether a body's happy or 'not in this world," he added grudgingly.

"Oh, yes, it does, Mr. Parlow! It matters a great deal, I am sure—to us and to other people. If we're not happy inside of us, how can we be cheerful outside, and so make other people happy? And that is what I mean about Miss Amanda."

"What about Mandy?"

"She isn't happy," sighed Carolyn May. "Not really. She's just as good as good can be. She is always doing for folks and helping. But she can't be real happy."

"Why not?" growled Mr. Parlow, his face turned away.

"Why—cause— Well, you know, Mr. Parlow, she can't be happy as long as she and my Uncle Joe are mad at each other."

Mr. Parlow uttered another grunt, but the child went bravely on.

"You know very well that's so. And I don't know what to do about it. It just seems too awful that they should hardly speak, and yet be so fond of each other deep down?" Mr. Parlow demanded.

"I know my Uncle Joe likes Miss Mandy, 'cause he always speaks so—so respectful, of her. And I can see she likes him, in her eyes," replied the observant Carolyn May. "Oh, yes, Mr. Parlow, they ought to be happy again, and we ought to make 'em so."

"Huh! Who ought to?"

"You and me. We ought to find some way of doing it. I'm sure we can, if we just think hard about it."

"Huh!" grunted the carpenter again, turning Cheryl into the dooryard.

"Huh!"

This was not a very encouraging response. Yet he did think of it. The little girl had started a train of thought in Mr. Parlow's mind that he could not sidetrack.

NOT AT ALL EAGER TO GO

Old Jeff Had No Desire Whatever to Be Translated From His Comfortable Cabin.

It is commonly supposed that negroes fearing death will make all sorts of promises because of their dread of future punishment. But Prof. Ulrich B. Phillips in "American Negro Slavery," tells the story of at least one old hard-headed fellow who steadfastly resisted the hypnotic suggestion of the preacher, and even repudiated glorification on his deathbed. A Louisiana physician recounted to Professor Phillips the final episode in the career of "Old Uncle Caleb," who had long been a dying. "Before his departure, Jeff, the negro preacher, gathered his sable flock of saints and sinners around the bed. He read a chapter and prayed, after which they sang a hymn. Uncle Caleb lay motionless with closed eyes and gave no sign. Jeff approached and took his hand. "Uncle Caleb," he said earnestly, "do doctor says you are dying, and all de brethren has come in here to see you for de las' time. And now, Uncle Caleb, dey wants to hear from your own mouth de precious words, dat yo' soul prepared to meet yo' God, and is ready an' willin' to go." Old Uncle Caleb opened his eyes suddenly and in a very irritable tone, rebuffed the pious fractionary in the following unexpected manner: "Jeff, don't talk no nonsense to me. You Jess knows dat I ain't ready to go and dat I ain't prepared to meet nobody. . . . Oh, de cabin suits me monstrous well!" And so he died.

Discussion of the "after-the-war period" is becoming more general, some believing that it is too early to predict which effect victory will have on women and their mode of living. One couturier predicts that the most elaborate things will be made and women should wear them as an expression of victory. Banquets and receptions in honor of foreign visitors and our returning men will demand such clothes, and it is really up to the women to heal their heartaches as best they can and lift the spirit of the country. FROM OUR BOYS

The following letter is from Howard Burden:
Camp Johnston, Florida,
November 11, 1918.

Dear Parents:
I could not refrain from writing a little line on this day, which means more to us perhaps than any other day can or ever will mean in our lives again. At last, after over five long years of untold suffering and hardship, after the world has experienced such sorrow as it has never experienced before, we are at Peace. What this day means to the war ridden countries of Europe, over which the armies have struggled so long, we little realize. What joy mothers, sisters, brothers, fathers and other relatives, who have dear ones in the army, are experiencing over those who have come out safely, you can understand more than I. War brings nothing except heartaches, poverty and suffering; its advantages and accomplishments, if there ever were any can be more easily accomplished some other way. So now, let us all rejoice and thank the great God above us that it is over and that we are safely carried through.

Of course, there isn't but the slightest chance in the world that I will go overseas now. The coming of peace has prevented that. I would like to have gone over and taken part there, but not having been allowed that privilege, I can say I am proud to be a member of the army, which brought peace to the world and helped to remove the danger of anarchy. I can look men square in the face and justly proclaim that I am no slacker, that I offered my all, and that is the most that has been asked of us or could be asked of us.

Now you will be wondering about my being transferred out of the service and coming home. There is no telling when I will get home again. It may be soon, but I figure on remaining in the army a year more at least. May be there sooner, but it isn't safe to figure on it.

Well, I didn't intend to write much when I began, so I will close. God bless and keep you.
Your son,
HOWARD.

The following interesting letter is from Harold Douglas of Livonia township:
Somewhere in France,
Dear Folks at Home:
Just a few lines to let you know that I'm well as usual, although I have a good old-fashioned headache—one of my old kind—you know what they used to be.
I have done some more traveling since I wrote you last. We are now able to hear the guns quite plainly and this morning I saw part of an air battle. You could see the shells from the anti-aircraft guns bursting around them, but I don't know if they landed "Fritz" or not. It was too far away to see with the naked eye. Little you at home know about conditions here. You may imagine what they are like—I use to do that—but when I saw, I knew nothing about it, I quit using my imagination. We are in camp at the present time—where I don't know myself.
We traveled in our usual style (box cars). I sure was tired this morning, not having had any sleep for three nights and hiked part of last night. It was daylight when we reached our destination, but after eating breakfast I had four hours of real rest and feel much better this evening. Well, I have told you all I can of my trip; you will have to excuse other details. I'll never forget the trip as long as I live though, I'm sure of that.

Jack is with us again; so are all the fellows from the old company. I sure was good to see them again, and I guess we will call on "Fritz" together, and he will have to call on God for mercy—he will get none from us. I used to think I would hate to handle him roughly, but those thoughts have vanished since I have seen some of his damnable deeds. They are not fit for a civilized person to talk about, and he has got to suffer for them.
There is plenty of mud here; the weather continues to be rainy. They say that's the kind of a winter they have here; to tell the truth I'm not fond of them, I would prefer snow banks anytime.
Well, mother, it's time for retreat, so will have to make this letter short. I didn't get your letter finished last night so I'll add a few more lines.
Jack and I went to see Will Rutenbar last evening. Jack ran across him yesterday afternoon and we went down to see him in the evening. He is looking well, and says that he don't mind army life now that he is used to it. We had quite a chat about times that used to be and their contrast with the present ones.

This morning several of the boys from our company and myself went for a walk. The old battle line is near here, and we went through some of the French forts and wire entanglements. It's quite interesting, but talk about hills—I never saw anything like them. I don't wonder that it took time to drive the Germans back, for the hills are covered with brush and rocks, making them hard to climb. I wish I could tell you more about them, but you can never imagine what they are like.
We walked over to a small village about five kilometers from here, and there was a good view of the surrounding country from there. We could see the shells bursting upon the line and see the flash of the guns. I don't know when we will be given a ticket for the show, but I'm afraid if we don't get one very soon the show will be over before we get there.
I haven't received any mail for quite a while now and can't tell when we will get any more. Did you get the Christmas package coupon? I may have asked you that question before, but if I did I forgot it, and I wondered if you had my box packed.
I'm writing this in a "Y" hut, and it's the first letter I've written in one since leaving the States. It's like getting back home to us. I wouldn't mind being back home for a day or so, just to see how everything looks.
Well, mother, I haven't much more to tell you, my pen is about dry, so I'll have to bring this letter to a close very soon. Please don't worry about me if you don't hear from me quite so often as you have been. I'll write as busy as I can, but I expect we will be off the rest of our stay here.
How is Ethel coming? I received several letters from her just before we moved. Has Bob gone to camp yet? Good old Custer was a real paragon.
Well, mother, I'll say good-bye for this time. Give my love to all and remember me to be as ever your loving son,
HAROLD.
Leaving for the big battle. May God bless and protect you until we meet again. With oceans of love to all.
HAROLD.
The following interesting letter has been received from Boren R. Benton:
Overthere, Nov. 3, 10 a. m.
Dearest Ones:
Have a few minutes left so will write you a few lines for may not be able to write again for some time. Gracious me, in every mail lately have been getting a dandy letter from you, so none of your letters have been lost. Got a letter from Mrs. Springer, but not the cards. It has been a long wait for you, I know, but we have been on the go all the time since I last wrote, and conditions so poor for sending mail, I have not written. Your letters are sure appreciated for they are all these, loving, newy and cheering. Would love to see Plymouth again and know I will some day. My visit with you is ever present, for the joys I had while with you. Was out of commission a few days, but am fine now. Had a bath, was issued heavy underwear, overcoat, mittens and socks, so will not freeze.
The peace talk sounds good, but have been disappointed on the other occasions, so am not taking much stock in this. Am glad Turkey and Bulgaria are out of it and expect to hear any time of Austria surrendering. I do think though, that by this time next year, the American armies will be sailing for home. It is only a question of time. Will Germany give up now or wait until we crush her, and if she waits to be crushed it will take the winter, next spring and maybe part of next summer, but next Christmas will see all of us that are left, in our beloved homes. Was in hopes would be able to get where I could procure a few small articles for Christmas presents, but am in doubt as to that. But if next, I can at least wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.
Please give my love to Mrs. Springer, and if I can get an opportunity to write her will do so; also write to Harvey. Have heard nothing from him, so guess our mail has not yet taken the winter, next spring and maybe part of next summer, but next Christmas will see all of us that are left, in our beloved homes. Was in hopes would be able to get where I could procure a few small articles for Christmas presents, but am in doubt as to that. But if next, I can at least wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Sorry uncle didn't like the manual training, but it sure would be a task for him, for he is so accurate, and the boys if I remember right, are opposite. Some of them could not handle a tool for the life of them.
Hope Davis will not have to come over here, for there is hopes of the war being over soon, God willing. Am always praying for good health for all of you. My love and best wishes to Hilda and grandpa and all the rest.
I am your loving nephew,
BOREN.

The following letter is from Christopher Rank to friends here:
November 4, 1918.

Dear Friends:
It sure has been some time since you have heard from me, but I have been very busy with the Huns, so under the circumstances I hope you will forgive me for not writing. I sure was glad to get back for a rest, so now I will be able to write again.
I hope you are all well and enjoying life. All the boys are real happy. I would like to send you something from here, but it is quite a lot of trouble to go through, so will wait and bring it, if there is such good luck.
I got a letter from Mabel telling me that she had not been home since she left Wayne. Said she was getting along fine. I also got a letter from Elsie telling me they were well. I think by the way it sounds around here tonight, the war will soon be over now, which I hope it will. I feel as if I knew what war is now. Nobody can tell me anything about war, at least what it is like.
How is Herb getting along?
I expect it is getting cold by now. The sun was out nice here today. One day it rains, the next day the sun is out—funny country.
I got several letters from Plymouth people which were very interesting, and I wish you would put a piece in the paper and thank them for writing to me. I sure did appreciate their kindness.
Well, will close. Hope this finds you all well. Answer.

PROVED SPIRIT OF DEMOCRACY

Voluntary Basis of Food Saving Showed Heart of America Beat True for Freedom.

To the voluntary service and sacrifice of the American people must be attributed the continued health, strength and morale of the Allied armies and the civil populace.
Upon this spirit of service and sacrifice will depend Europe's fate in the months to come. In the past year we have carried out an export program, the magnitude of which is almost beyond comprehension. But with the new demands that have come, with the liberation of nations freed from German oppression, our exports must be almost doubled. Instead of 11,820,000 tons, we must ship twenty million tons of food to Europe in the coming year—as much as can be pushed through our ports.

If the Allies had not been fed by America, it would have been impossible for them to maintain their defense against Germany.
Meeting this world need on a purely voluntary basis, the American people have conclusively proved that democracy is a success and that in time of need it will rise to its own defense.
If there were no other accomplishment to its credit, the very fact that it has shown the strength of democracy has in itself more than justified the existence of the Food Administration in the eyes of the world.
Less than four months after the United States declared war the United States Food Administrator expressed his determination to meet America's food problem on a basis of voluntary action and reiterated his confidence that awakened democracy would prove irresistible.
"Many thinking Americans," said Mr. Hoover, "and the whole world have been watching anxiously the last four months in the fear that democratic America could not organize to meet autocratic Germany. Germany has been confident that it could not be done. Contrary proof is immediately at our door, and our people have already demonstrated their ability to mobilize, organize, endure and prepare voluntarily and efficiently in many directions and upon the mere word of inspiration aside from the remarkable assemblage of our Army and finances."
The history of the Food Administration has clearly shown that the trust of those who put their faith in democracy has not been misplaced.

THE LILY CREAM SEPARATOR

Some Practical Features of the Lily

The Lily cream separator embodies the most practical ideas in cream separator construction. They are embodied in the separator only after exhaustive tests have proved that the ideas and alterations improve and make the Lily the most valuable cream separator to the dairy farmer.

Every part of the Lily cream separator from the bowl and frame to the smallest screw is manufactured in one large International Harvester cream separator plant. The men making the various parts are not only experienced workmen, they are mechanics working in the best surroundings and under the most favorable conditions possible to embody in a manufacturing plant.

In cream separator manufacturing plants it is proved that it is not sufficient that the best materials be bought, the most improved equipment provided, the highest standards of workmanship adopted, and the most capable men employed. These are all vitally essential factors, but high grade cream separator construction demands in addition that there must be rigid inspection at every step, beginning with the receipt of the raw materials, and ending with a thorough test of the completed separator.

Such inspection is constantly conducted in the manufacture of Lily cream separators.
