PAST YEAR HAS BEEN GOOD TO PLYMOUTH

MANY NEW HOUSES HAVE BEEN BUILT AND OTHER IMPROVEMENTS MADE.

Old 1920 has been good to Plymouth. The past year has seen many improvements accomplished in the matter of new buildings, industrial growth and expansion, municipal improvements made and others under way. Yes, we have every reason to feel gratified over our progress and prosperity of the past year. Over fifty new houses have been built during the past year. Many buildings have been repaired, thus adding to the general appearance of the town. The Pere Marquette have about completed an expenditure of over $325,000.

There is every indication that the coming year will see an even greater growth and progress in every line of activity. There is a great need of a closer co-operation on the part of our citizens for the general good of the village. There is a need for a Chamber of Commerce to bring about this much desired co-operation, that is so essential in the accomplishment of the very things, both industrial and civic, that would mean a better and bigger Plymouth. It is time we got out of the old rut and line up with every progressive town of this size and organize a live, up and doing Chamber of Commerce.

CHRISTMAS AT THE PRISON FARM

THE SEVENTY-EIGHT PRISONERS ENJOY A FINE DINNER, CHRISTMAS TREE AND ENTERTAINMENT.

Christmas was duly observed at the Detroit House of Correction Prison Farm, just west of Plymouth. Supt. Edward Dennison served a fine dinner to the seventy-eight prisoners in his charge, with the following on the bill of fare: Roast young goose with sage dressing, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, celery, apple pie, cake, fruit and coffee.

After the dinner, presents from relatives and friends were distributed from a Christmas tree. Bags of candy and oranges were also given the men. After the distribution of presents, a splendid entertainment was given, the prisoners furnishing the various numbers on the program.

Sunday afternoon appropriate Christmas services were conducted at the prison farm by Rev. Cronkie of Detroit, who also distributed generous gifts of candy and nuts to the men.

Supt. Dennison was the recipient of a beautiful gold watch and gold pen, as a Christmas gift from the guards at the prison farm. It is needless to say that the genial superintendent was greatly pleased with these handsome gifts.

DAISY EMPLOYEES HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

ABOUT 250 MEMBERS OF THE DAISY EMPLOYEES ASSOCIATION AND FAMILIES ENJOY A PLEASANT EVENING.

One of the most pleasant open meetings of the Daisy Employees Association was held last week Thursday evening, when a delicious chicken picnic supper was served to about two hundred and fifty members of the association and their families in the dining room of the Methodist church between the hours of five and eight. At eight o'clock a fine musical and literary program was presented in the High school auditorium, ending with a comic sketch, presented by members of the Northville L. O. T. M. Later in the evening the company went to the Penniman Allen auditorium, where dancing was indulged in. The Daisy orchestra furnished the music. All who attended spent a very enjoyable evening. There were about 450 in all in attendance.

TAX FIGURES

We give below this year's tax figures, and also those of last year as a comparison between the tax figures for the two years. It will thus be easy for the taxpayer to figure out why his taxes are more this year:

State tax in 1920 is $13,871.07
State tax in 1919 was $13,069.46
County tax in 1920 is $7,125.73
County tax in 1919 was $4,768.05
Poor and insane tax in 1920 is $693.47
Poor and insane tax in 1919 was $449.77
County road tax in 1920 is $1,971.28
County road tax in 1919 was $1,698.85
Township tax in 1920 is $6,700.00
Township tax in 1919 was $5,000.00
Voted school tax in Plymouth District No. 1, Fr., in 1920 is $36,300.00
Voted school tax in Plymouth District No. 1, Fr., in 1919, was $29,500.00
Schol tax in this district is more than half of the total tax of the township.
The road repair tax this year is 75c and last year was 50c.

GRANGE NOTES

Plymouth Grange will hold its regular meeting on Thursday, January 8th, with a pot-luck dinner at noon. The officers will be installed for the ensuing year. A full attendance is desired as plans will be made for entertaining Pomona Grange in January. Also we are to have a Christmas box. Each one is to bring an article for the box, the cost not to exceed 25c.

DEDICATION OF ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH

The dedication services of St. John's Episcopal church, which has recently been erected on Union street, near Penniman avenue, will be held next Sunday morning at half-past ten o'clock. The Rt. Rev. Chas. D. Williams, bishop of the diocese, will deliver the dedicatory address, and will also administer holy communion. The bishop is one of the most forceful and incisive speakers in the Episcopal church, and draws great crowds wherever he is announced to speak. It is seldom we have the opportunity of hearing such a virile speaker, and his visit to Plymouth should fill the church to overflowing. A special orchestra will render selections of sacred music, and we would advise those intending to be present to come early. All seats are free. The offertory will be devoted to the extinction of the debt on the building.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY WILL HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

The Woman's Auxiliary will hold its annual meeting in the church house on Monday, January 3rd, at 4 p. m. At this time the officers for the new year will be elected, also reports will be read from the treasurer, secretary and the heads of divisions. As this is an important meeting, it is urged that the ladies come promptly. A supper will be served at 6:30 p. m., after which adjournment will be made to the church auditorium for the annual church meeting.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE

An agreeable surprise was given Jacob Streng at his home on Mill street, last Wednesday evening, when about twenty-five relatives gathered there in remembrance of his birthday. Cards were the entertainment and later in the evening a fine supper was served. The guests departed at a late hour, wishing their host many happy returns of the day.

NEW YEAR'S DANCING PARTY

A New Year's dancing party will be given at the Penniman Allen auditorium, this Friday evening, Dec. 31st. Good music and a good time for everybody who attends. See ad in this issue of the Mail.

Mrs. Kate E. Allen pleasantly entertained a company of twenty-five friends at dinner at the Plymouth hotel, Christmas Day, and in the evening entertained the same company at a box party at the Penniman Allen theatre. Guests were present from Detroit and Plymouth.

Justice Phebe Patterson of this village, wishes the Mail to make a correction regarding that part of the article appearing in last week's issue of the Mail, and taken from the Detroit Free Press, in which appears a quotation attributed to Mrs. Patterson, and which she is very emphatic in stating she did not make in the language quoted in the article, and also that she is not in the habit of expressing herself in language of this fashion. The Mail is very glad to make the above correction.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Krumm of Plymouth, entertained the following guests for Christmas dinner: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dumka and family and Delbert Lee of Bedford; Miss Hazel Rutenbar of Elm; Mr. and Mrs. Milton Lewis and Miss Alrene Schroder of Farmington; Mrs. John Krumm, Sr., of Plymouth; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kehrl and family and Mr. Kehrl, Sr., from Stark; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Johnson and family of Livonia Center. The occasion was also the birthday anniversary of Mr. Krumm, Mr. Dumka and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Krumm, Phyllis Kehrl. A very pleasant time was spent, and all wished them many more Merry Christmas days and also many more happy birthdays.

Presbyterian Notes

A very happy time was enjoyed last Thursday night at the Christmas supper. Members of the Presbyterian Sunday-school were seated by classes around tables prettily decorated in holiday colors. Santa Claus was present and was received with great eclat. The pastor found a splendid silk umbrella with silver mounted handle on his chair—a gift from his "Ready Service Class." The Busy Women's Bible Class presented their teacher with a fine piece of aluminum ware and a baking dish, as a token of appreciation for her able service. Others were pleasantly remembered in the exchange of gifts and all were made happy by stockings full of candy and popcorn from Santa's pack.

Rev. S. Conger Hathaway and family drove to Battle Creek, last Friday to attend a Christmas gathering at the home of his nephew, Dr. C. A. Marley. They stopped enroute at Ann Arbor to pick up J. Harold Hathaway, the pastor's brother, and returning, at Marshall and Concord, to call on former parishioners. A good time all the way and good roads most of the way.

Five-sixths of those who participated in the spell-down in Bible books, last Sunday night, succeeded in standing up from Genesis to Malachi. Next Sunday, the New Testament will be included. The pastor attempted to say them backwards, but got lost among the minor prophets. See if he gets it right the next time.

The trustees held their monthly meeting at the church, Wednesday evening.

KEEP THE WALKS CLEAN

The snow which fell the other night has brought up again the subject of keeping the walks clear. The Village Manager has a list of 20 or 30 places where the snow was left on the walk. The phone and post cards were used to send notices to these delinquents to get busy. One village man was kept busy all day Wednesday snowing when the householders should have been at work. The cost of this work will be charged against the property and will be collected with the general taxes if not paid before.

It's an Uphill Pull for Polish Boys

Bare feet and tattered clothes, little to eat and less to wear, such is the fate of thousands of children in central and eastern Europe. These boys in Poland are only a sample of the 3,500,000 destitute youngsters that the European Relief Council plans to help through the cold days of the coming winter. To that end eight great organizations in America have merged to form the Council, the chairman of which is Herbert Hoover. Under his leadership the American Relief Administration, the American Red Cross, the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers), the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the Knights of Columbus, the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. have decided to co-operate jointly to raise $33,000,000 to help the European children over the hill.

Methodist Matters

In order that our church workers might be given a little opportunity for rest after the Christmas rush, this week has purposely been kept free from unusual gatherings in connection with the church activities. The midweek devotional service on Thursday evening was lengthened and made a special consecration service, taking the place of the Watch Night service, which we have had here every New Year's Eve for the past four years.

The motion picture projector, which has been used at the Methodist church during the past three years for both stereopticon views and moving pictures, was this week shipped to a buyer in western Michigan, the sale having been consummated through the Hellsingworth Manufacturing and Supply Co., of Overton, Nebraska. The machine was very satisfactory and did specially good work with stereopticon views, but did not technically meet the Michigan requirements for use without a booth. The state fire inspectors stated that the machine was thoroughly safe and undoubtedly would be approved by the State Fire Marshal if submitted to him by the manufacturers, but this would not be done because the manufacturers had suspended the manufacture of this particular projector. The price realized on the machine was $90, bringing our picture machine fund to $150, which will be used as part of the sum necessary for the purchase of a new and approved machine, which will cost $298. The sale will not interfere with the pictures being shown on Sunday evenings, as another machine is available through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bennett.

A letter from Rev. G. H. Whitney states that the Plymouth party at Sebring, Florida, including besides Mr. and Mrs. Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stewart and Mr. and Mrs. Leach, are well, and enjoying the balmy weather, the thermometer registering 85 degrees the day he wrote. Most exciting to the parsonage folk is further news that a box of oranges and grape fruit, the latter picked from Brother Whitney's own trees, is on its way north for them.

To the already large amount in the Christmas "White Gifts" offering $25 has been added this week, bringing the total to about $275. Cash alone came to more than $250 and will be divided between the Methodist Children's Home and the Starving Children's Fund. A small amount of the money was designated for local uses and brought Christmas cheer to needy families at home.

The newest additions to our membership are George Whaley and Miss Louise Whaley, formerly members of the Methodist Protestant church at Brant, Michigan. Brother Whaley is visiting near Saginaw for a few weeks and the letters will be announced on his return.

The girls of Mrs. Cook's Sunday-school class had a pot-luck dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Johnson, last Wednesday and spent the day making book covers for the Bibles.

day-school papers of the primary department.

An interesting meeting of the Epworth League was conducted last Sunday evening by Miss Nellie Huger and Howard Burden, two of our student volunteers at home for the Christmas vacation. It was very interesting to hear about their college work and especially about the special training work which Miss Huger is doing in Chicago. Miss Huger will sing a solo at the morning service, Sunday.

NOTICE

The village president, the health officer and the manager have been receiving a number of complaints lately concerning the observance of quarantine regulations by people afflicted with contagious diseases. Most of the time the person calling up by phone refused to give the name, saying they did not want to be mixed up in neighborhood quarrels.

The village authorities will do their best to require that proper quarantine be established and kept up for any case of contagious disease within the village, and any proper complaint will be investigated. But absolutely no attention whatever will be paid hereafter to any complaints sent or brought in by persons who refuse to vouch for the complaint by giving their names. The village authorities are too busy to bother with the neighborhood jealousies in which these anonymous complaints so often originate.

Village Manager.

Today's Reflections

There is always room for improvement—and it's about the only room you don't have to pay any rent for.

One Plymouth man's lot is about as bad as another's. A bald-headed man saves on haircuts, but has to spend the money for hair tonic.

Flour and bread appear to be about the only things that have not heard of the tremendous drop in the price of wheat.

Sometimes we feel sure that the man who holds the mortgage on the automobile is the real aristocrat.

When you run across a Plymouth man who is always quarreling about something, you run across a man who's growing old.

No matter how hard you work to earn your money, the public will always talk about your "good luck."

Now they're going to shut off immigration for one year. That's something like locking the stable after the horse is stolen.

More than one Plymouth man will throw up his hands in horror when you suggest a poker game, and then turn right around and chance his money on some cheap stocks.

More than one Plymouth woman is now happy because she did her Christmas hinting early.

It remains for an Iowa newspaper man to discover that "Grin and Bear it" are the successors to old "Tom and Jerry."

There is this difference between death and taxes—you know you will sometime get through dying.

This is also the time of the year when we reflect on the condition of some roads leading out of Plymouth, and thank our stars we don't have to travel.

The only perfect husband the world has ever known is dead, and Plymouth men can't see any reason for going to that extreme.

Now comes a Chicago man with this query: "If the women do form a third political party will their emblem be the spare-rib?"

If you know an item of news, phone or send it to the Mail office.

GOOD ADVICE

Take Chamberlain's Tablets as soon as you have finished your supper, and they will produce a gentle movement of the bowels on the following morning. They will also improve your digestion and make you feel better in every way.—Adv't.

WHERE AARON BURR COURTED

Hermitage, Famous Colonial Mansion, Is Now Made Use of by Producers of Films.

The Hermitage, a famous mansion of colonial days, in which Aaron Burr courted and married Theodosia Prevost in 1782, has been drawn into the irresistible current of the picture stage. It stands on the Paramus road, south of Tuxedo, and is the home of the granddaughter of the physician who years ago purchased it from the Prevost estate. As it stood in 1782 it stands today, filled with rare relics of colonial times.

A passerby on the highway recently was halted suddenly because of the commotion going on in the dooryard of the old stone house. Men and women actors were in abundance everywhere. A huge rug had been hung on a rope leading from the mansion to an iced house, to shut off the too-brilliant sun. Over the top of a wall there was a realistic shower from a hidden garden hose. A dainty maiden, sheltered by an umbrella, dashed through the pelting rain with urgent haste and found refuge in an open doorway of the Hermitage. The film people were busy enacting an old colonial picture.

HERMIT HAS STRANGE HOBBY

Has Devoted Many Years to Carving Figures Out of the Rocks on Island Home.

The little island of Rotherweuf, off the coast of France, has for its sole inhabitant an eccentric hermit who for many years has devoted much of his time to carving humalike figures out of the rocks which slope down to the sea.

There are hundreds of them—mostly lying on their backs, as if starting up at the sky, but some in a seated posture and a few standing erect.

The effect is described by the Popular Science Monthly as weird and unearthly, the figures looking like petrified men. They are understood to represent biblical characters. Along the top of the wall in front of the hermit's dwelling are a number of heads, likewise carved out of stone.

The hermitage is on the summit of the rocks, overlooking the carven shore and the sea. People who live on the nearby mainland call the place the "island of ghosts."

The hermit keeps his sculptures swept clear of sand. They seem to have for him a religious significance.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Independence.

True independence is one of the best assets of character. It raises life to higher standards. It makes a man conscious of his mission and increases his self-respect. There is no need of it making a man overbearing or snobbish. In fact, the opposite is more likely to be true. True independence helps a fellow to recognize and respect the worth-while in others. Instead of being a leaener it helps a man to become a prop for some fellow who can be made strong by the right influence. True independence teaches a man to be one of the group whose greatest joy is to make others better. The petty man is afraid someone will get more praise than he does and so he quietly suggests something to injure the other fellow. Big fellows are above such smallness. They stand out in rich contrast because they live for what they can put into life rather than for what they can get out of it. They are independent of petty schemes and find their joy in contributing to the world's uplift.—Exchange.

Touching, But Timely.

As this Column was walking down Convent street the other morning, feeling this earth is all piffle when life's but a snuffle, and effort is only to sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, its eagle eye filled with the sole kind of moisture allowed by law, and its classic countenance wishing it could secure an absolute divorce without publicity from its Roman nose, it met a man well known in local business and in federal circles. He glanced sympathetically at this Column's dilapidated frontpiece and hoarsely whispered in passing, "Have you heard the latest title for a popular song? It is 'Will You Meet Me in Hay Fever Time, My Dainty Ada Noids?'"—Baltimore American.

The Voice of Ignorance.

Senator Sheppard of Texas, author of the eighteenth amendment, said in Dallas the other day:

"Only the old world, which knows nothing about it, attacks prohibition. The old world is like the woman who wrote to the school teacher:

"I don't want that Mamie should forge in grammar, as I prefer her ingage in yuceful studies, and can learn her how to speak and write proper myself. I have went through two good grammars, and I can't say as they done me no good. I prefer her ingage in French and hand painting and vocal music on the piano."

To Revive Frozen House Plants.

If a house plant happens to get frozen during the winter, it should be removed immediately to a cool, dark room and drenched with cold water. The supposition that a plant should be revived with warm water and heated air is wrong, as the treatment must be gradual.

Profit and Loss.

"Is there any real economy of time in so-called daylight saving?" "I dunno," answered the man who was setting his watch. "Sometimes I think you lose a lot of time guessing what time it is."

JEAN'S TEA ROOM

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Jean Webb leaned against the gate post and looked up at the quaint old house where she had been born, and which was the birthplace of her mother and her grandmother. The three of them lived alone there with a tiny income from Jean's school teaching, with the old house almost falling down for need of repairs, and with a tangled old garden which had no one to take care of it.

Grandmother was old and feeble and Mrs. Webb was not strong. When Jean came home from teaching her sourly youngsters she was tired and there was always house-work to do, so the old house and garden were neglected.

"If I could only sell it," sighed Jean, "for a good sum of money, then—" She snuffed and brushed away a tear, "then mother and grandmother would die of homesickness! Well, well! keep it—somehow, all together!"

She turned as a motorcar slowed at the gate. A smartly uniformed chauffeur touched his cap and opened the door of the car.

An elderly woman with gray hair and soft appealing eyes smiled graciously on the slender girl at the gate. "Beg your pardon—can you tell me if there is a tea room nearby?" she queried. "We have had a breakdown and it is long past luncheon hour—"

Jean hesitated. With the woman's question an idea flashed into her head—perhaps this was the answer to her prayers—this might be the golden opportunity knocking at her gate. If there was a demand for tea rooms—why not supply it?

In a few moments three ladies were sitting in the comfortable chairs in the green gloom of the honeysuckle vines, exclaiming over the roses that Jean brought them and the pure chintzes of the fragrant day lilies. Then Jean disappeared for a period to return with pink slices of ham laid on crisp lettuce leaves, delicious balls of cream cheese, a pot of home-made jam, a simple salad and dainty bread and butter sandwiches—these and a lot of tea Jean placed before the ladies and then went away and left them alone.

When she came back they were so generous in their praise of the unexpected hospitality—a eager for Jean to open a tea room there.

"You are so near the post road, my dear—all you need is a few tables on the veranda and your own beautiful things—your cooking is delicious—let me have a sign painted for you!" urged Mrs. Delbridge, the owner of the car and the hostess of the party.

"You are too kind," protested Jean. "I shall send my son out next week and I may come with him—it is vacation now and you will have plenty of time. Beware! We shall send all our friends!" They laughingly drove away, their arms full of flowers, and it was not until they had disappeared that Jean remembered that they had not asked for a check and she had not thought to charge them!

"A poor business woman am I," she murmured wryly as she cleared the table. Then she planned a five-dollar bill pinned to the damask cloth and she danced into the house waving it gaily.

"Exit Jean the schoolmistress and enter Jean the keeper of the tea shop—and weeder of her garden once more. Hurrah!"

A week later a small gray car stopped at the gate and Jean, who was enthusiastically weeding the graveled walk between the rows of fragrant boxwood, thought of her grubby fingers and mused blue frown. "It must be Mrs. Delbridge's son," she thought as she went to the gate. In one hand he carried two rustic swinging signs and with the other he uncovered his handsome head.

"Is this the Wayside tea room?" he asked with twinkling eyes.

"Why—no—" hesitated Jean.

"I am afraid it is—or it is going to be!" He grinned as he displayed the signs.

Sure enough—framed in rustic were the magic words: "THE WAYSIDE TEA ROOM," and one corner of the sign was lengthened into a pointing finger.

"How kind of Mrs. Delbridge," cried Jean ecstatically.

"One is for your veranda and the other to hang from some tree down the road—a guide. Mother said you would know the tree."

"The old locust at the corner," explained Jean.

"I will hang it for you," declared Phil Delbridge, and from the tool kit in the car he brought the necessary tools and presently the quaint sign was swinging in the soft wind. Afterward Phil hung the other sign over the front while Mrs. Webb and Jean prepared a high tea in the veranda. There was fresh strawberry shortcake and plenty of cream and other delicious viands, for the Webbs were famous housewives.

Phil lingered on the front steps with Jean. A whippoorwill was singing in the orchard and the roses were heavy with fragrance.

"I shall come again—and again—" promised Phil, releasing Jean's fluttering fingers.

"Do come," said Jean in a small voice; and her tone might have discouraged Phil Delbridge had he not read her eyes. He felt that while Jean's tea room might be the beginning of the story, the ending of the story must come only when beautiful Jean belonged to him.

Mrs. Bullock Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"Last winter when my children were sick with colds and were coughing a good deal I gave them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. C. M. Bullock, Gorham, N. Y. "It relieved them at once, and under this treatment all symptoms of the cold gradually disappeared. My experience with this medicine warrants my recommending it to others. I don't know of any other cough remedy that I would want to use."

The Borden Condensed Milk factory at Howell, which has been practically shut down for the past few months, has again started, and the company expects to be in full operation early in 1921.

The regular meeting of the Foresters, last Friday night, was one of the most interesting of the year. After a number of candidates had received the degree of the order, the ladies were invited in, and an old-fashioned dance was enjoyed by a large company. This week Wednesday night the members of Court Northville paid a visit to the Court at Plymouth. The Plymouth Court will surrender its charter soon, and its members will unite with the court at this place. The local Foresters are doing things this winter in a big way.—Northville Record.

The Michigan state fair, Detroit, was a success last season, netting the association $176,000, most of which is to be put back on the fair grounds in the shape of permanent improvements. In recognition of his efficient services, the board of directors voted Secretary Dickinson a bonus of $10,000 in addition to his salary of $15,000 a year. The Michigan state fair has forged to the front, and the credit is given entirely to Mr. Dickinson, who devotes his entire time and attention to its promotion.—Michigan Investor.

The local Ford plant is making a fine record these days, turning out 50,000 valves a day. Last week the output of the Northville factory passed the one million mark, that being the number of valves produced here since the industry started last summer. As men become more and more accustomed to the operations of the various machines, the output of the plant will eventually increase.—Northville Record.

An Auto Trip to California

All day nothing but sand and cactus and occasionally a Mexican cemetery. Spent night at Belen Camp. Reached Socorro in time for election. Were greatly amused seeing them "vote" the Indian squaw at Harding headquarters.

Ran across our second disappointment in finding Grand Canyon inaccessible; 1500 people stranded at Flagstaff and must go by Magdalena. Were in Blue Canyon when messenger overtook us, saying telegram had arrived and no tourists to be allowed through as Continental Division in White Mountains was closed with snow. Turning on that precarious "pass" was a feat, but accomplished it and headed toward San Nearcill, where we camped for the night.

Climbed all next day; nothing to see but cactus and sage bush. After one fierce climb, decided to camp beyond Hot Springs. Crossed "place for a river" that one week previous contained water. One of our company reaching this spot, started to cross, supposing the water shallow, but was surprised on going down to depth of eight feet. Had to lift wife and children from machine, build a fire to dry clothes, and open camp for a few days' recuperation. If one comes to these under water bridges at a time like this, they are expected to wait until the water is spent.

We had social times in evening over community campfire. Now was the steep climb, and nine cars started forth in high gear. An Auburn car followed by a Buick, led the procession. The former's break refused to work on reaching the summit and had to jam car in rocks. Buick slid backward and likened to a whole train. A Ford Sedan ran crossways into the mountain and held it. Fifteen men of the crowd and one Mexican in rear, came to the rescue. One Dodge with seven people in it, went down, and only the combined efforts of sixteen men saved it. Two women fainted, several were sick, and things were lively for a time. All the women of our crowd, except my mother walked up the mountain; dog (Dan) trotting on behind.

Purchased supplies in Hillsboro and saw our first "round-up" of cattle—500 in the bunch. No tents being in evidence, asked the boys where they slept nights. Said they "picked out the warmest star, wrapped their blankets around them and lay down under it."

Nothing but high cactus on desert. Is in the form of a palm, and these "Spanish doggers" grow to be 50 years old, and are ground when dry and fed to cattle. Occasionally asked a native some question relative to the "trail," only to be answered, "No Savv." One did inform us, "was a streakie ahead."

Arrived in Deming, 4:00 p. m., after bringing folks from desert and sending service wagons to tow in large auto thirty miles back. This was no unusual occurrence, as large cars out of commission everywhere. Charges—$1.00 a mile for towing. Bought groceries and looked the town over before going to Lordsborough to be inspected. The profiteers of Texas are supposed to be endeavoring to introduce the boll weevil into the cotton fields of Arizona, and no car can cross the line without inspection. All day mountains and desert. Remained over night at hotel in Bowie, Arizona.

Next day the panorama changed. All the morning seemed to be in the clouds, only 5200 feet high, while in the afternoon, we passed through one vast botanical garden; saw flowers of every hue, thirteen varieties of cactus, and rocks of all shapes and sizes. Was a beautiful sight, but miserable stony roads. Saw ranchers branding cattle. Mr. Weaver shot enough quail for dinner.

Started for Roosevelt dam, and word came that road was washed away, so must go to Tucson, where we arrived at night. I have been in twenty-five states, and taking cities as a whole consider it the prettiest one (with the exception of Hollywood, California,) ever visited. Usually there are handsome residences, then a section of tenements or dilapidated houses, but here the whole town is up-to-date, spic and span. Did not see a frame house. Mexicans are housed in quarters by themselves. Mining is the leading industry. Not so many foreigners on the streets like Santa Fe. Remained over Sunday and had a second opportunity to attend church, but was not in a position to do so. First night out Mr. Weaver upset lard can on his hat, slept on it the second night and later lost it entirely. Other apparatus in similar condition. Suffice it to say, we were not garbed for close inspection. Drove past churches and all through State University grounds.

Arrived in Phoenix next day, and sorry to say it did not come up to our expectations. Guess we looked for too much after seeing Tucson. Fair just opened, auto camps crowded and had opened new site for the strangers. Did not hunt up any former Plymouth people. Were in a hurry to reach destination. Roses blooming everywhere. Mesa to very pretty. Mr. Hager has described the following letters to the Mail. Found few miles of cement road, which was a treat. Through cotton fields the following day. There were many notices, "Pickers Wanted." Camped at No. 3 Water Station on desert. The greater part of New Mexico and Arizona is desert, with nothing but sage brush and mesquite bush, cactus and towns thirty to fifty miles apart, while "the desert" is nothing but sand, with water stations every so far. Think thirty miles longest without water, and 100 miles without gas on our route.

Next morning received early calls from campers who had strayed from our crowd. On desert till almost night, when we reached auto camp at Parker. Following morning were ferried ($2.57) across Colorado river into California. Nothing but sage brush ran low and were glad to reach Amboy late at night. Is not much fun traveling over stony roads, late at night and in strange country.

November 13, only desert until we arrived at water station, small store and four houses. Hicks, California Storekeeper said we were privileged to camp on his premises, but too windy to hold tent down, so we might occupy a summer cottage belonging to a Los Angeles man, as he had charge of same. Had often heard of an oasis in a desert, and felt this haven of refuge was one indeed. There were three good-size rooms and didn't we splurge around? Bought more supplies and had a feast in honor of the occasion. Tomatoes just off the vine, etc. Storekeeper had garden.

More desert, then again the scene changed and we entered Lovell. "Big" national forest. Went over the beautiful "Cajon Pass" to Cajon where the whole camp outfit, seats, tables, stoves, etc., are of concrete. Then came into San Bernardino, in time to witness large circus parade; on to Riverside where there are the most beautiful poinsettias growing on awnings. Mr. Weaver was so worn he drove in shirt sleeves, and I had long before discarded my coat, but the ladies here wore furs around their necks and many attired in full coats.

Through Pomona and one orchard after another of oranges until reaching Pasadena and was surprised to find all stores closed Saturday evenings. They have a lovely camp here with tennis court, free library, beautiful park, shower baths, etc. City recently purchased a number of large army tents and rents same to tourists for 50c a night, furnishing awnings and electric lights. Eight or charge 25c for car space and privilege of erecting your own tent. We preferred the former as cheaper in the long run. Neglected to say some camps have free heated garages for cars so water doesn't have to be taken from radiator on cold nights, also electric irons, washers, etc. No one is allowed to pay more than 25c for electricity, and not compelled to pay anything. Are cities where a gentleman and his wife from prominent church come to camp every Sabbath in large car and invite tourists to accompany them to service. We remained day in Pasadena, half day in Los Angeles, out to Santa Monica, Long Beach, then back to Hollywood and over to Caliqua Pass to Universal City or home of the "films."

Next day the scene again shifted for now we ride beside the Pacific ocean, watching ducks along the shore. This was a familiar sight and reminded us of our old home on the Atlantic, until turning our heads beheld mountains towering above us in every direction. Passed through Santa Barbara and other pretty coast towns. Susana Pass only 1555 feet high, where three cars can easily pass each other, and so different from the ones formerly described. Through San Fernando Valley, Santa Rosa and toward evening found the nicest little mountain camp under a group of live oak trees—benches, table and faucet, cook stove.

Passing many granum ledges en route, drove over Gaviota Pass through Saleta Valley to St. Margaret and Ventura in the heart of oil industry.

You have probably seen advertising and lithographing in leading magazines of Atascadero, a valley of 1800 acres, formerly belonging to one estate and now subdivided in acre lots and sold to members of the colony. Some beautiful homes. While ascending Cuesta Grade broke axle. Mr. Weaver immediately jammed car in rocky bank and there remained until another auto came along, when he rode six miles back to Ford garage. Had service wagon return in few minutes with blocks for propping car. Was dark by this time, so displayed lights and sat there until morning. Did not secure much sleep. At daylight, removed our "paraphernalia," ranged ourselves on chairs along the road side, wrote cards, did some mending etc., while repair work was in progress. How we wished home folk could see us. Did take some pictures, but no chance to develop same as yet. Late that night camped further up the mountain.

Had dinner next day at King City to Salina, up San Juan Grade (magnificent view), through the famous Santa Clara valley, Nut brown and fuzzy grapes all day. Stayed at Gilroy camp with two Portland families, who informed us it would be impossible to enter Oregon as Rogue River dikes were broken. Was fine camp, and this is the center of fruit drying and evaporating country. Here show the way picking and selling grapes, raisins, figs and almonds. English walnuts, figs and all else. The latter were dried, and we packed some from here. Thinking we had a treat with looking down valley at night.

Since have been informed they must be kept in pickle one year before ready to eat. Well, we were not the only ones sold, as daily hearing of other newcomers doing likewise. Visited Leland Stanford University at Palo Alto, after leaving San Jose. Then arrived in San Francisco. Can't take up space to tell of Golden Gate Park, Chinatown and the many things of interest in that city. Ferried across San Francisco Bay ($1.57) to Oakland, and camped in Fruitvale Park.

Next day to University of California at Berkeley. Found rumors true that owing to floods in Sacramento Valley and snow in Cisco mountains, was impossible to reach destination in Roseburg, Oregon. Decided to remain here for the present, so started forth in search of "rooms." Houses are only for millionaires, many asking $30 a month for one furnished room and no place for car. We made a house to house canvass. One building with sign, "Rooms for Rent," had notice on door, "Rooms all taken." Finally secured suitable quarters in East Oakland.

Like California very much in regard to climate, etc., but do not like the spirit. If one belongs to "the native sons," all is well and good, but outsiders have little chance. Prices depend on who does the purchasing. Mr. Karl Hillmer had better come out here and start in business. Hundreds charge 25c for doing up a soft shirt. Some few places in the south took advantage of tourists, but in my estimation did not gain by it, for many anticipated returning over same route in spring, and would steer clear of those stores. All these topics were discussed over community campfires at night, and one would be surprised how even the wealthiest were antagonistic over this treatment. People in these camps were from every walk in life and all mingled together in common council. We made many pleasant acquaintances, and yet were as "ships that pass in the night." Fifty cents was the highest we (small car) were asked for gas. Hudson Super Six short distance behind, was charged 75c a gallon. This was at Hot Springs, New Mexico. Beware of same. Can only get one car out of state until compelled to take out California license.

The past week was spent in sight-seeing and job hunting. No success in the latter so far, but Mr. Weaver has hopes. There is a Ford factory in Frisco.

Had pleasant Thanksgiving though "strangers in a strange land." Lady crossed the street sent in a bowl of olives; landlady a hot apple pie and jar of jelly, which shows we are not without friends. These are real folks and not "daughters of California."

Attended Methodist church, Sunday, and while we enjoyed the service, did not feel we were of Mr. Field's congregation. The minister and presumably his wife shook hands—everyone else stared at us. Lacks only a few days of two months since leaving Phoenix Park and not a line from home, so are anxiously awaiting mail. Address Oakland, California, General Delivery. Mr. Weaver's work may necessitate a change of present location. Hope Mr. Hill has taken good care of our Plymouth Mails, as we do not want to miss one single item of news.

Am now trying to locate chest of clothes, etc. freighted to Roseburg two months ago. If this does not soon arrive, will be in a dilemma, as box returned to Plymouth shortly after beginning of journey, also contained wearing apparel. We found "touring" hard on clothes, some garments being simply in tatters. I had not the experience of my fellow travelers, therefore did not wear men'sannel shirts, cap, khaki pants and leggings. After breaking up camp, they don a skirt, long coat and all ready to resume travel. Best wishes to all.

MRS. C. B. WEAVER.

THE THEATRE

The tragic death of a beloved Australian actor very nearly thwarted the production of "Back to God's Country," by James Oliver Curwood, which will be shown at the Penniman Allen theatre, Saturday, January 1st.

Ronald Byron, engaged to play the part of Peter, a novelist, sent into the Arctic regions to investigate conditions among the Eskimos, was asked by his physician to cancel his contract and not attempt to go into such a region, because of his recent recovery of influenza.

Byron, however, through his friendship for and loyalty to Nell Shipman, star of the story, refused to grant his physician's request.

"This is Nell's big chance," he said, "I'm going to help her to produce the most novel of all motion pictures. I'll go into the frozen lands if it costs me my life."

Byron's role called for him to depict the part of an invalid. It is believed that his inactivity for long hours at a time, and which was not conducive to proper circulation, resulted in the pneumonia attack which caused his death.

The majority of the scenes in "Back to God's Country" were taken at a temperature of 52 degrees below zero.

THE LEADER

By MYRTA ALICE LITTLE.

©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Always writing in conservatory corners, do dear, aren't you?" drawled the great Duncan Pierce, loitering near the mischievous creature whom, a half hour before, he had nonchalantly deserted for more thrilling feminines at the house party dance.

Sidney Norcott giggled. "I'm not writing assignments for the News now," she said, and clasped her notebook against the naive tulle of her gown. "I'm writing things in this book that will make someone sit up and take notice. Duncan Pierce," she challenged. "When I have a minute with-in ear-shot of folks who are talking on this pet subject of mine I listen to, you know, and take down what I hear. The end justifies the means, don't you?"

"Thanks for the epithet," beamed Duncan. "I am sort of the go here, eh? Everybody falls for me, and no mistake. Even Glen Lawrence and her set."

And Duncan Pierce strode grandly into the ballroom.

"Here you are, Sidney. This dance?"

"You always do the polite act when we little waitresses get too willy, don't you, Rob Long?" she smiled.

"It's a pleasure to rescue you. You're so comfortable to have 'round. I've known you all my life. And you're never in the way, and always sweet."

He wanted to sit out this dance. He wanted to ask the girl something.

Sidney's blue eyes were thoughtful now. "Those are the nicest things anyone ever told me, Rob," she said.

"Comfortable to have 'round? I wish everyone thought that way about me."

The man looked at her keenly. They must dance then. He swung her onto the floor.

"So that's the way the land lies," he whispered under cover of the violins in the dream girl waltz. And it was not what he had hoped to say.

Sidney stared. "Why—I haven't said anything," she stammered.

Rob and Sidney did not speak during that dance and encore. When the number was half through Duncan Pierce came on the floor with Glen Lawrence, with his air of possession and the smile, well trained, ever-practiced. Sidney overheard a comment on the couple, looked up to see if Rob had heard, too. He had, and he was gazing into her eyes, with revelation in his own. He let her back to the corner by the palms, and spoke quietly.

"So it's Duncan Pierce who is the 'everyone,' Sidney girl. He's all right. Plenty of money, and a good mixer. I hope—he appreciates you—caring the way your eyes told me when you looked at him."

Sidney Norcott was trembling. "You are uncanny, Rob, the way you understand—and you're a real man."

"Thanks," said Rob Long. "I must be off. I'm taking the L. A. back to town."

"I thought you were staying the night. See me before you go," said Sidney. How did Rob Long know what Duncan Pierce did not suspect? It was uncanny. Sidney reached behind the palm in the Japanese bowl for the red leather notebook. She must add that criticism she had overheard. "If Pierce would do something, not keep mooning around house parties." She must tell him that. Sidney gasped. The notebook was not there. Someone had taken it. What if it should be Duncan? After three awful minutes there was no mistaking the fact. It was Duncan Pierce who had appropriated the fatal book. He suddenly swooped down upon the girl, holding the red monster triumphantly before her eyes.

"Who's all this about? Sounds like a maniac you're describing in your book, Sid. Tell a fellow. Got two minutes before I go back to Glen."

"So you've read it without leave?" said Sidney with alarming coolness.

"Sure!" Duncan told her. "Who's the victim? Say, but let me tell you how I've sized up the hit I'm making 'round."

"Give me that book, if you have only two minutes, Duncan Pierce. I'll size it up," cried Sidney Norcott. She read swiftly at random, from her jottings.

"Watch his right eye crinkle like a squirrel's when he talks. It's the disappointment of his young life not to be able to watch himself go by. His posing sticks out like burrs. He's got the most simper cut-and-dried expressions. If he'd do something, like Rob Long." Sidney stopped a second.

"They're all about you, Duncan Pierce, things that folks have said about you—every one, and I put them down—because—" she said.

"We've both been mistaken, Duncan. A girl can think she cares lots about a man if she's doing things for him for his own good. But when she finds out he's hopeless and likes himself as he is better than he can ever like anyone else, of course her eyes are opened and she's unphynozized. She just sees his colossal conceit."

"Sounds like another joke to me," laughed Duncan easily. "Must go back to Glen."

"Rob," said Sidney Norcott at 12:55 a. m. "I don't want you to take that train."

Rob Long stared into Sidney's eyes. "What's happened, girl?" he gasped.

"I followed—the leader," whispered Sidney. "And it was the wrong one. Please, lead. You're real."

"I'll star," said Rob Long. Then he told her what he had hoped to tell her during the dream girl waltz.

OBITUARY

Joshua Baldwin was born December 9, 1848, in Madison township, Fayette county, Ohio, and departed this life December 11, 1920, aged 72 years and two days. He was the son of John and Jane (Sollars) Baldwin. He was united in marriage to Miss Sarah E. Davis, November 17, 1870, and to this union fourteen children were born, seven girls and seven boys, of whom ten survive.

Mr. Baldwin had been confined to his bed eighteen months, but bore his sufferings with patience and fortitude. He loved his Master, and for some time past had talked preparedness and readiness to go to answer the call of Jesus. He said, I'm not discouraged, I have nothing to be discouraged for, there's nothing to fear. Jesus is our great Comforter; Father walked in the path of righteousness, which led the way to the great and glorious throne of God. His moral life was pure and clean. He was an affectionate husband and a kind and loving father. Father is asleep in peace with Jesus. It is a great loss to our earthly hearts, but a greater gain for him. Father and Mother Baldwin had spent 50 years and 24 days in happy wedlock. He leaves to mourn their great loss, a devoted wife, ten children, one sister, Mrs. Mary Kreigler of Madison Mills, Ohio. The surviving children are: Mrs. O. F. Curtis, Mrs. A. C. Rodman, Miss Margaret of Plymouth, Mich.; Mrs. E. E. Michaels of Delaware Bend, and Mrs. J. S. Hillsheimer, presently at home; William, near here; Joseph of Havana, Cuban Island; Loten, at home; Harley of Urbana Ohio, and Guy at home. Also thirty-three grandchildren, three great grandchildren and a host of other relatives and friends.

The angels in their robes of white, led father through the paths of light; And anchored safe in Jesus care. Dear ones, we should all beware And guide our wondering footsteps there.

Baptist Notes

The storm of Sunday kept many away from church service and Sunday-school. The morning service was minus a choir—most of them away on vacation. The Sayles Brothers sang as a male quartette, and the audience enjoyed the music very much. Mr. and Mrs. Sayles sang a duet for the evening service. After the Sunday-school a vote of thanks was given to the committees for their faithful and splendid work in preparing the Christmas program, which was given last Wednesday evening to a church well filled. So many on account of rain were unable to be present, many have requested the program repeated, and plans are under way to have the program again this Friday evening at eight o'clock. Following the program, there will be a recess for a few minutes, then watch meeting will be called to order and continue until the opening of the New Year. Everyone is invited to attend, and by prayer and testimony, praise God for blessings already received, and ask for his continued favor for the new year.

After the morning service, offerings were taken for the suffering people of Europe and China, the treasurer, Mrs. Beals, is still holding the offerings that others may contribute to the fund. See her Friday night.

The white gifts given Christmas eve were taken to needy homes in the city, some in the country; others were sent to the Children's Free Hospital, Detroit, such as dolls, pictures, picture books, etc.

Beginning next Monday night at 7 o'clock in the church parlor, the program for the week of prayer will be carried out, continuing each evening, except Saturday. Come for one hour and pray for the Lord's work at home and abroad. Everyone is urged to attend.

THE UNITED GUN CLUB

The Pre-Christmas shoot of the United Gun Club was enjoyed by all. Twenty shooters, representing five clubs, lined up on the 22nd for the poultry contest. The club plans on making this an annual event. Frank E. Hills, president of the club, was the star performer of the day, turning in a 96 per cent score. F. Holzmagle was second with 113 broken targets, while third place went to a tie between C. Merritt and H. Passage. Mrs. L. G. Vogel made the longest run of the day, 45 straight breaks, while F. Hills, with 42, and H. B. Hall and C. Merritt with 40 apiece, were not far behind. Several ties in the last event made as many shoot-offs necessary, two contests going on for two extra events each. Here are some of the outstanding features of the shoot:

Squad 1, Event 6, turned in a perfect score. This squad was: R. S. Porritt, F. Holzmagle, E. E. Hartford, J. Parks and Sam Gay.

In event six, twenty contestants, only 11 targets were missed. Seventy perfect scores were turned in during the day. F. Hills turning in nine.

C. Rathburn was the only turkey winner without shoot-off.

F. Whitbeck left his gun in Omaha, and then won a chicken in the second event, and a turkey in the third. We wouldn't have had the trap-houses left if he had had it with him.

C. Merritt says his old "crow gun" was mad. Verily, we believe it.

The Ferris boys and the Birmingham boys turned out in fine style. May we see them often.

E. E. Hartford, as usual, was the busiest man on the grounds. The United Gun Club thanks you heartily, Ed., and extends a cordial invitation to you for all time.

F. Holzmagle and F. Hills broke 60 out of the first 60 targets.

Mrs. Vogel and H. Passage broke 48 out of the first 50.

C. Trites broke 47 out of the first 50.

F. Hills broke 46 out of the last 50. Scores for the day are:

Name	Shot at	Broke	Turkeys	Chickens	Game
F. Holzmagle	120	113	1	1	1
C. Merritt	120	110	1	1	1
H. Passage	120	110	1	2	1

STATE LIVE STOCK MEN PLAN MEETING

BREEDERS' AND FEEDERS' ASSOCIATION TO GATHER AT M. A. C. JAN. 12 and 13—EXPECT 1,000.

More than a thousand members of the Michigan Improved Live Stock Breeders' and Feeders' Association are expected to attend the association's thirtieth annual meeting, which will be held at the Michigan Agricultural College on January 12 and 13.

More than a dozen special associations, including breeders of sheep, swine, horses, and the various breeds of beef and dairy cattle, will hold their own meetings during the two-day conference, with the gatherings of the parent association bringing together all the allied groups.

Speakers of national reputation will address the general meetings: W. L. Houser, president of the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' Association; H. R. Smith, commissioner, Chicago Live Stock Exchange; George W. Dickinson, Manager Michigan State Fair; R. R. Graves, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.; L. Whitney Watkins, of Manchester, a member of the State Board of Agriculture; Dean R. S. Shaw and President F. S. Kedzie, of the M. A. C., will be headlines among the speakers.

In addition to the state sheep, swine and horse associations, special breed association meetings will include Jersey, Guernsey, Holstein-Friesian, Hereford, Shorthorn, Aberdeen Angus and Red Polled cattle; Poland China, Duroc-Jersey, Berkshire and Chester White swine, and Oxford sheep.

A sale of Aberdeen Angus cattle will be held at the college January 14, at 1:00 p. m.

TOM'S DAUGHTER

By LOTTIE W. SIMMONS

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

A festive air pervaded the Brent home to its last nook and corner. There were roses in the dining room, carnations in the parlor and on the small Jacobean table in the guest room a shallow bowl of violets whose delicate fragrance filled each zephyr from the snowy-draped, open window. Kitty, Margaret and Pauline, the three charming daughters of the household, flitted about in a state of delicious excitement, for the noon train was bringing Hartley Hayden, a cousin, from the East.

"I wonder what he looks like now?" drawled Kitty from her perch on the wide arm of a veranda seat.

"I hope he's handsome," giggled Pauline as she airily executed a few steps of the latest dance.

"I hope he's still as nice as he used to be when he was a little boy," said Margaret, reminiscently.

Just then a train whistle brought little shrieks of delight from the girls and catching up caps and sweaters they piled into the Brent motor car at the gate, waved a good-bye to mother, who appeared in the doorway and sped away with Kitty at the wheel.

Only a short distance to the station, but when halfway there the engine went dead.

"Oh! whatever can be the matter!" cried Margaret and Pauline in a breath. Kitty made hurried examination.

"No gasoline!" she reported in tragic tones. "Well, there's no help for it; we will have to go back for some."

"And before we can get to the station now Hartley will have given us up," pouted Pauline.

"It isn't far to the station from here," said practical Margaret. "You go on, Kitty, and Polly and I will go for the gasoline."

As the train drew up at the small Western town which was his destination, Hartley Hayden stepped out and looked about him.

"I see no one resembling my fair cousins," thought he, remembering their written promise to meet him.

The station was nearly deserted when a slim young girl in leather jacket and leggings entered. Her hands were filled with a mass of wild flowers and as her gaze for a moment swept Hartley's face, he thought, "Surely this is dark-eyed Margaret."

"I beg your pardon," lifting his cap, "you are Margaret Brent?"

"Oh, no!" in the shyest, sweetest voice he had ever heard. "You are seeking the Brents? I will show you the way, but first I must leave these flowers for the station master's sick little daughter." Her errand finished, they turned to go when a young lady was seen approaching. "Kitty Brent," informed the girl at his side. "You will not require my services."

"But you are coming—you will wait?" incoherently. "No," and she turned away. On the veranda that evening Hartley asked the question that had been in his heart for hours.

"Who is the girl I was speaking with as you came up, Kitty?" Kitty and Pauline exchanged glances.

"Oh, that was Tom Lane's daughter. You haven't told me—shall we play auction or bridge at our party tomorrow night?"

"It is immaterial to me, Kitty, really, is Miss Lane coming?"

"Oh, my, no! No one invites her."

"Why?" shot back Hartley.

"Why—why because she is Tom Lane's daughter, I suppose," was the confused reply. "He's been queer, they say, ever since his wife died when Elsie was a tiny baby."

The next day was hot and sultry. Mr. Brent, who had been absent for some days, returned at noon. He seemed up to the anxious over something. Later when questioned, he replied:

"I do not like the looks of the weather." Scarcely had he spoken when a low, hissing sound seemed to fill the air.

"A tornado!" he shouted. "To the cellar, all of you!"

But the whirlwind was upon them! With a terrific crash the house, which stood in the path of the storm, was in ruins with human lives beneath the wreckage.

Some moments after a wild-eyed girl rushed to the scene of disaster. Alone and unaided she extricated Kitty and Pauline, who were badly bruised and hysterical. Margaret was unconscious. Could she get her clear? Desperately she tugged at the debris.

"Elsie, I will help you as soon as I get my arm clear." His voice! She turned in time to see him wrench his arm free—and swoon. Margaret free at last, she turned to Mr. and Mrs. Brent, stunned, but otherwise unharmed, apparently. She fairly flew to the Red Cross headquarters where help was speedily being dispatched in many directions. Securing aid for the Brents—and him!—she turned her weary steps homeward, thanking her heavenly father that she had been able to assist in the saving of precious lives.

Some days later the Brent family intact and Hartley Hayden were visiting the scene of their late injuries.

"Tom Lane is dead," a neighbor called in passing. Mr. Brent looked at his wife. "And his daughter shall be my daughter," said he in solemn, reverent tones.

"And my daughter," repeated Mrs. Brent, with tears in her eyes.

"And my sister," echoed Kitty, Margaret and Pauline in unison.

"And my wife!" said Hartley Hayden.

WATER PIPES MOVED WITHOUT INTERRUPTION

On Sunday, December 19th, the village water works men completed a piece of work at the Allen bridge at the edge of town on the Northville road, rumors concerning which had been bothering the village people for some time.

The Wayne County Good Roads Commission has started to build a new concrete bridge at this point and to straighten out the kinks in the road at either end of the bridge. This will render the approach to the village from the north much easier and safer. The line of the village water main came right where the abutments of the new bridge are supposed to be. It was deemed, both by the county and by the village, that it would be unsafe to leave the main where it was, and so for two weeks previous to the 19th, the village forces had been busy digging up some abandoned water main near the Phoenix bridge, and relaying it past the Allen bridge some fourteen feet west of the old line. Nearly 150 feet of new line was thus laid. Saturday, the 18th, this work was completed, and all preparations were made to connect a new line of pipe with the old main near the Allen bridge. Fresh water was pumped into the steel tank, and on Sunday morning at seven o'clock the valves on the line at Phoenix and at the pumping station were closed, and the valve at the steel tank opened, so that nearly all day Sunday the village was getting its water from the tank.

The work of putting in the connecting pipes between the new line and the old main was accomplished successfully so that about four o'clock on Sunday afternoon, the village was again able to draw water from the spring. A few small leaks developed when the water was turned into the new pipe, but these were soon caulked and this stretch of line has since been in regular service. The water pressure at the village hall did not drop below 35 pounds any time during the day.

The Wayne County Road Commission aided the village men in every way possible during the work. Their men worked with ours, and their trucks and teams transported material for the village.

On Monday, the 20th of December, while a water service connection was being put in for the convenience of the good roads people north of the Allen bridge, the village tapping machine went out of commission. This necessitated the shutting off of the water again at Phoenix and at the pumping station until the pressure at the bridge could be reduced sufficiently for the tapping machine to be readjusted. It took some time for the pressure to come down, but only a few minutes to fix the machine and complete the tap after the water had lowered enough. It was thus entirely accidental and unanticipated that the village was out of water for an hour and three-quarters on this day.

The acreage of wheat and rye sown this fall in Michigan is considerably less than last year. The wheat now on the ground is about 4 per cent less than the average annual harvest acreage for the past 15 years. The acreage of rye was more than doubled during the war, reaching an estimated acreage of 900,000 acres in 1919. There was a marked decline last year, and a further decreased acreage was sown this fall, although it is still 50 per cent greater than the pre-war average. The acreage of winter wheat is estimated at $39,000 as compared with $22,000 sown last year, a decrease of 9 per cent.

ONE WOMAN TOLD US

"Five minutes in the morning with an electric iron makes wash day so much lighter."
This woman realized how often blouses, frocks and even lingerie found their way into the laundry bag ahead of time, just slightly mused.
Even a hint of untidiness made dainty things unwearable and added to the weekly washing.
Now she uses an electric iron: With just a twitch of the switch and a few moments of gentle ironing, crumpled garments become smooth and lovely—together wearable.

HAPPINESS FOUND IN WORK
Testimony of Chauncey Dewey is endorsed by Another Prominent American Veteran.
What is the secret of usefulness above sixty? Let me quote my friend Chauncey Dewey, who says: "I look back over sixty years of continuous effort and when I try to differentiate the causes of my health and happiness I always come back to work. I never yet knew an idle man who was a happy man." It is his reply to those who think the millennium will come when nobody will have to work more than two hours in twenty-four. On his seventy-ninth birthday he said: "With each recurrence of these anniversaries I am more impressed with the permanence of friendship." That is the impression of all who have moved into the later years. We may not see our friends daily but the knowledge that they are in the flesh and in the spirit is a wonderful help and satisfaction. In the currency of friendship giving is getting. Here is a young man of eighty-six who voted for John C. Fremont, who dined with Gladstone, who took part in every Republican presidential convention and campaign since the party began, who believed every year that comes is the best, who has worked all his life, and who has found his happiness in work. The man's creed is this: "The Christian faith of my mother is good enough for me." What could be better?—Gen. Felix Agnus.
REPORTS GAME IN PROFUSION
According to Englishman, East Africa is a Paradise for the Hunters of Wild Animals.
That part of East Africa which is traversed by the Uganda railway has long been noted as a big-game country, but few stay-at-home Britons realize how plentiful the wild animals are there. A government official, whose work has taken him into one of the game preserves, writes as follows in the London Post from a camp pitched only four miles from the railway and within twenty miles of Nairobi:
"As I sit writing in my tent I can see through the door at least four thousand head of game feeding on the plains. There is one group not four hundred yards away. They consist of wildebeest, harebeest, Grant's gazelle, Thomson's gazelle, impals, ostriches, waterbuck, eland and hundreds of zebras. I have never seen anything like it in any other part of Africa, and, as you know, I know something of the game districts of southern Rhodesia, the Belgian Congo, the Tanganyika territory and the Portuguese territory near the Ruyuma."
Effective Trespass Sign.
There is one thing the week-end outers from a city are afraid of. That is poison ivy and poison oak. They may figure out a way to circumvent the bulldog which the sign tells one to "beware of," and they do not always heed threats of legal action mentioned on signs. But they have wholesome respect for poison vegetation. It means pain and loss of time from work or pleasures. When a rancher of California came to the point of despair in regard to keeping trespassers from his thickets, and tired of removing litter and repairing fences and trees he resorted to a plan that proved to be effective in almost a hundred per cent of cases. He placed at the several points of entrance to his property signs that read: "Danger! Poison Oak! Keep Out!" This did the work better than threats or watch dogs; for the vacationers could not know just when they might stumble on to the source of irritating trouble.
Y. W. C. A. Abroad.
Fifteen more young women sailed for Europe during September and October under the direction of the Y. W. C. A. to carry on in several countries that has grown out of the war activities of the association. Social work for girls and women is enlarging constantly in many countries, and new leaders are being recruited to meet the demands. They fill positions as executives, cafeteria directors, physical training teachers, industrial girls' workers, club leaders and recreation leaders. The fifteen who have sailed most recently are going to the near East, Roumania, Italy, Belgium, France and Russia. Others have left for China, Japan and India.
Monument Guards Dangerous Road.
As Los Angeles boulevard comes to an end at the edge of a high embankment over a park lake, incursions motorists have gone over several times, but with fortunate results. To guard against a repetition of such accidents a monument to the memory of Gen. Harrison G. Otis, distinguished as a soldier and journalist, which will completely block the end of the road, has been erected, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The group is composed of a life-sized figure of Gen. Otis; at his left is the figure of a soldier, while at the right of the central figure is a newsboy crying his wares.
An After-War Bride.
A returned soldier and his sweet-heart called on a judge to marry them, and, apparently satisfied with his work, he said to Vic: "Salute the bride." For an instant the groom was startled. Then he took two steps to the rear, came to a distinct halt, clicked his heels together, and gave Mrs. Vic one of the "doughboys' salutes." "Oh, well, I guess that will have to do," signed the judge as he signed the license.—Argument.

School closed Friday for one week's vacation, and Miss Hottenstein returned to her home in Petersburg for the week. An interesting program was given in the afternoon of the last day, and at the close, Santa Claus appeared, laden with presents for each scholar. The tree was beautifully trimmed, and was attractive in the darkened room with only the lights of the candles. The teacher was presented with a beautiful piece of silver from the school, and she was also remembered with a number of other gifts.
Mrs. Charles Bentley has been quite sick, but is better at this writing.

Coughing at Night Can Be Checked
Bronchial coughs, coughs that hang on after recovery from influenza or grip, asthmatic coughs, coughs caused by a disintegrating tickling in the throat—coughs that cause one not only to lose sleep but to disturb the rest of others—all such coughs can be relieved by Foley's Honey and Tar.
The Experience of Two Men
L. W. Day, 85 Campbell Ave., E. Detroit, Mich., writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar is great. I relieve me with bronchitis very quickly. My complaint in this line has almost gone and I hope never to have it again."
Chas. Hoffman, Eagle Hotel, Okemos, N. Y., writes: "I have been troubled with tickling in my throat a 4 enough for the past three months. I can hardly recommend Foley's Honey and Tar as a 60c and 50c bottle gives me relief."

Foley's Honey and Tar COMPOUND
IS A TIME-TRIED REMEDY that can be relied upon to get rid of coughs and colds that lead to serious illness if neglected.
Children like Foley's Honey and Tar. It contains no opiates, and will not injure a delicate stomach.

War Time Tax on Jewelry is still on and we (the jewelry trade) are surprised and shocked to read the recommendations of the Secretary of the Treasury, that among the other increased taxes on commodities, jewelry should pay 10 per cent tax instead of the present tax of 5 per cent or a 100 per cent increase. If this recommendation passes there will be no cut in the prices of jewelry.

NEWBURG
There was a good attendance at church, Sunday. The pastor preached an interesting sermon. Next Sabbath will be open Sunday. The pastor will receive members by letter or confession of faith. The White Gift Christmas entertainment was entered into with a good deal of enthusiasm, each class giving a recitation or song, then taking their gifts to the altar. Mrs. M. Eva Smith read a beautiful story of the three wise men, after which the Woman's Bible class took their canned fruit, thirteen cans in all. The contributions in money was $37.00. Ed. Holston took the gifts to the M. E. Children's Home in Highland Park. Miss Walton of Plymouth, sang, "Holy Night," very sweetly, accompanied by Miss Anna Youngs on the piano. The children then turned in the blue buttons they had been wearing for the past three months, receiving a bronze button.
The Christmas tree and entertainment held in the church, last Friday evening, was well attended. The Christmas music was furnished by the Misses Anna and Ada Youngs and a Lullaby song by Miss Ruth Tracy. The young people presented a cantata entitled, "The Coming of Santa." Then Rev. Raycraft told a pathetic Christmas story, showing what the Christmas spirit should be. The children were all given a bag of nuts, candy and popcorn from the Sunday-school. The committee deserve credit for the work they did, and Mr. Mackinder for getting the tree.
