FOUR SQUARE LEAGUE TRACK MEET HERE FRIDAY, JUNE 8

The Four Square League meet, between the High schools of Dearborn, Farmington, Northville, Plymouth, Redford and Wayne, will be held at the High school athletic field on Friday, June 8th, beginning at 10:00 a. m. sharp. The League is very fortunate in securing the services of such competent officials as C. P. Stimele and Miss Ryan, both of the State Normal College of Ypsilanti, to have charge of the events.

Cups have been purchased and are on display at the Plymouth United Savings Bank. In addition to the League cups, the Weyhing Brothers, jewelers, of Detroit, from whom the schools in this part of the state buy their trophies, emblems, etc., have donated two especially fine trophies, one to be given to the boy and one to the girl who accumulates the largest number of points during the meet June 8th.

In view of the fact that Plymouth defeated both Monroe and Ypsilanti Central schools in the track meet, last Saturday, it is quite evident that our school has a splendid chance to make a good showing in the track meet on the 8th. Let's all be present and boost for Plymouth.

PLYMOUTH WINS TRIANGULAR MEET.

The Rocks were easy winners over the teams of Ypsilanti Central and Monroe High schools on the local field, Saturday, scoring fifty points, while their two opponents were able only to score a total of 58 points. Monroe was second with 33 points, and Ypsilanti third, with 25.

The large score was due to the showing of the local team in the dashes, hurdles and jumps. The team is well balanced with the exception of the distance runs, as they failed to place in the mile, and scored but one point in the half.

This week the team goes to M. A. C. interscholastic track and field meet.

The following week the Four Square League meet is held at Plymouth.

Hurdles—1st, Kenyon, P.; 2nd, Wehner, M.; 3rd, Skinner, Y. Time—17:2.

Pole Vault—Sutherland and Pence, P., and Conrad, Y., tied for 1st. Height—9 feet 3 inches.

Broad Jump—1st, Dalby, Y.; 2nd, Wehner, M.; 3rd, Sutherland, P. 20 feet 4 inches.

Running High Jump—Hayden and Bentley, Y., and Kenyon, P., tied for 1st. Height—5 feet 2 inches.

Discus—1st, Herkimer, M.; 2nd, Strassen, P.; 3rd, Reiman, P. Distance, 99 feet 9 inches.

100-Yard Dash—1st, Stevens, P.; 2nd, Sutherland, P.; 3rd, Thorne, Y. Time—10:2.

220-Yard Dash—1st, Stevens, P.; 2nd, Clark, M.; 3rd, Wagner, M. Time—26:1.

440-Yard Dash—1st, Williams, P.; 2nd, Stevens, P.; 3rd, Niedermeyer, M. Time—58:2.

880-Yard Run—1st, McKenzie, M.; 2nd, Hatch, Y.; 3rd, Cline, P. Time—2:26:3.

Mile Run—1st, Anderson, Y.; 2nd, Hundley, M.; 3rd, Snyder, M. Time—51:4.

PIANO RECITALS

Miss Czarina Penney, Mus. Bac., will present Miss Gladys Schrader in a piano recital, Thursday evening, June 7th, at Pennington Allen theatre, at 8:30 o'clock. Miss Schrader showed an early age, and her musical ability is well known, she having appeared in many recitals and for several years has been High school accompanist. All of her musical study has been with Miss Penney. Daniel Patterson, violinist, will assist. Both talented young people are members of the senior class in our High school. It is hoped many will attend this recital to encourage them in their future study. The public is cordially invited to attend. All children must be accompanied by their parents. The following program will be presented:

- Marche Hongroise, Kowalski
- Rondo Brillante, Mohr
- Miss Schrader, Miss Penney
- Viennese Popular Song, Kreisler
- Romance, Mr. Patterson
- To Spring, Sibelius
- Country Dance, MacFayden
- Chanson Arabe, Rimsky-Karsakoff
- Impromptu in Bb, Schubert
- Rustle of Spring, Sinding
- Miss Schrader
- Duo Symphonique, Chaminade
- Miss Schrader, Miss Penney

The following advanced pupils of Miss Czarina Penney will be presented in a recital, Thursday evening, June 14th: Miss Dorothy Hillman, Miss Barbara Bake, Miss Alta Hamill, Miss Helen Fish, Miss Juanita Coe, Miss Gladys Schrader, Miss Hanna Strassen. Miss Florence Paddock, soprano and teacher of voice, at Miss Penney's studio, will sing two groups of songs.

FORMER PLYMOUTH BOY WILL MAKE LONG CRUISE ON THE U. S. CRUISER, NORTH DAKOTA

We take the following in part from a Lansing paper, which will be of interest to many Plymouth people as one of the boys, Gerald Baker, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Baker, former residents of Plymouth. Mr. Baker was one of the former owners of the Mail.

There will be four alumni of Lansing High school to participate in the naval cruise which will be put on for students at the Annapolis Naval Training school this summer. They are: Gerald Baker, 1122 W. Ottawa street; Lee Weston, 420 S. Walnut street; Thaddeus Hackett, Millers road, and Charles Silsby, 807 W. Ottawa street.

The cruise is an annual event and is part of the training given the students, and will cover three months on foreign waters, reaching Copenhagen, Denmark; Greenock, Scotland; Lisbon, Portugal; Cadiz and Gibraltar, Spain, returning for a week's target and maneuvering at Hampton Roads.

The local boys are scheduled to sail on different ships, there being four cruisers to make the voyage. Gerald Baker will go aboard the North Dakota; Thaddeus Hackett aboard the Delaware; Lee Weston on the Arkansas and Charles Silsby on the Florida.

The Arkansas and the Florida will make the harbor at Lisbon, and the Delaware and North Dakota will sail to Cadiz. All four ships will then draw up at Gibraltar and make the return to Hampton Roads in a fleet.

Following the cruise the boys will be given a month's leave to visit their parents at their homes.

MOTOR BUS LINE TO DETROIT

The Renne Motor Transit, now operating a motor bus line between Wayne and Detroit, will start a line running from Plymouth to Detroit, via Warren avenue and Wayne road. They will use 20-passenger Reo busses. The line will start between the 5th and 10th of June, and will maintain hourly service. Fare, 45c for one way. Special rates where tickets are purchased.—Advertisement.

CITY'S NEW PRISON SOON TO BE BUILT

BOARD TELLS MAYOR IT'S READY TO BEGIN CONSTRUCTION.

The commissioners of the House of Correction, Saturday, conferred with Mayor Frank E. Doremus and John C. Lodge, president of the common council, on plans for the new House of Correction in the 900 acre farm near Plymouth, which was purchased by the city five years ago.

The commissioners reported that they are now ready to proceed with the construction of the new institution which will be in several units so as to facilitate the erection of additions. Appropriation for the new buildings was made 18 months ago.

The new institution is expected to cost approximately $2,000,000 and it is planned to have it ready for use late in 1925.

The present house of correction is antiquated and inadequate in size and equipment.

After the conference, Mayor Doremus said that he will go with the commissioners, who are Dr. Charles H. Oakman, Mrs. D. A. Hitchcock, Fred M. Butzel, and H. S. Morgan, to the property at Plymouth within a few days for an inspection and further review of the building plans.—Detroit Free Press.

PLYMOUTH HONORS SOLDIER DEAD.

Plymouth paid tribute to its soldier dead with appropriate exercises, Wednesday, Memorial Day. The exercises were held at the High school auditorium, at 10:00 o'clock in the morning. Only five Civil War veterans were able to be present. The program was carried out as was outlined in the Mail last week, and was one of the best that has been given here on a similar occasion in years. The attendance was not nearly as large as it should have been.

Each number on the program was exceedingly well rendered, indeed. Rev. Fr. Schuler gave a splendid address, that held the closest attention of his hearers throughout.

Memorial Sunday was observed here last Sunday, with a union service at the High school auditorium. Franklin L. Gibson of the Episcopal church preached a splendid sermon.

DEATH OF MRS. JOHN FORSHEE

Mrs. John Forshee of Ypsilanti, and a former highly esteemed lady of Superior township, died very suddenly at her home in Ypsilanti, Wednesday, May 30th. The funeral will be held from the home, this Friday afternoon, at 2:00 o'clock. Interment in Geer cemetery. A more extended notice next week.

BOOST THE COUNTRY, TOO

Everybody who is anybody around Plymouth is ready to boost town improvement—and it is a good thing to do, too. But why not advocate country improvement also? The farmer or fruit grower or stock raiser is the backbone of every community, for without him there would be no cities or towns, nothing to eat or wear, nothing to do but do nothing. He needs better roads, better school facilities for his children; he needs to be more in contact with his neighbors. Boosting our town is commendable, but let's boost the rural districts, too, and make our act doubly commendable. The columns of this paper are open to any citizen who has a plan or suggestion to offer for the good of this town and countryside. Many people have splendid ideas in their head, but are timid about letting them out. They should not be backward in this respect. The people need those ideas for development, for it is an established fact that development seldom results from idle or indifferent street talk or home dreams. The people will listen if you will make a noise. And you can make a noise through the columns of this paper any time you want to put your thoughts in writing.

DAY-DREAMS NOT ENOUGH

Imagination Has Value, of Course, but It Must Be Backed Up by Deeds.

When things go wrong in business, the future seems dreary to you. There is no more subtle temptation than to sit day-dreaming—weaving dreams of the roseate career which shall banish all worries, bring to us the desire of our heart, and enable us to have all the little luxuries of life which only money can buy. Yet there is nothing more dangerous, remarks a writer for London Answers.

Adolescence is the golden age for day-dreaming—the time when the future is seen through the rosy mirror of inexperience, before the hammer of life cracks the glass, and we have to face life in its reality.

And when my young son reaches that stage, it will be time for me to give him a little carpet-lecture on some hard facts of applied psychology.

"Look here, old man," I shall say to him seriously. "I've noticed lately that you sit about a lot after school, thinking. You are going through a stage that we all go through about your age, and I want to warn you. Day dreaming is all very well in moderation, but you mustn't let it become a regular habit with you."

"It is the worst thing you can do. Do you know those day-dreams may slowly sap your energies, so that the phantasies you weave may not be translated into action. Some men I could point out to you have been left behind in life by too much day-dreaming."

Every man who has done anything big in the world has been a man with the "wider vision," but he has been a man of action, and has not allowed his hopes for the future to inhibit his present actions.

The man of action does not think: "In ten years I will be head of our office," and then sit down and wait for the ten years to roll by.

He starts immediately to gain the knowledge that will be of use to him studies hard to become word-perfect in the part he hopes to take in the world, and aims at rising step by step to the position of his dreams.

"Every emotion should have some outward expression in action," is a creed of the modern thinker. Many men who have not followed this rule have ended in a mental hospital, immersed in dreams and dead to the outside world.

AGE OF MANKIND

Wide Divergence of Opinion Over the Matter.

Estimates Vary as Much as Ten Thousand to One Million Years—Impossible to Fix Date.

Much speculation as to the age of man has arisen as a result of the recent discoveries of fossil human skulls in South America, Patagonia and the island of Jersey. The estimates as to the antiquity of the human race range all the way from 10,000 to 1,000,000 years.

Doctor Wolf's reported discovery in Patagonia of a fossilized human skull of the tertiary period, however, may nullify all previous scientific calculations on this subject, and the public is now getting a little chary about accepting even scientist's estimates regarding the date of the origin of the human race.

Ever since the unearthing of the remains of King Tut-Ankh-Amen who, in the view of anthropologists, is to be reckoned only as an "infant," as the age of man goes, startling discoveries have been made all over the world which upset all well-established anthropological foundations.

Dr. A. Smith Woodward, director of the geological department of the British museum, makes some interesting commentaries on the latest discoveries in skulls and bones.

"For a moment," says he, "the public seemed to assume that we had found at last the first man who lived on earth. I fear, however, that these conjectures are as baseless as they are interesting. Since the skull from Jersey is said to have been found near a neolithic burial chamber, it is probably much nearer our period than any of the skulls of fossil men which show resemblance to their ape-like ancestors.

And since the specimen from Patagonia comes from a country which has furnished more 'man's nests' in the study of prehistoric and ancestral man than any other part of the world, it will not excite interest among anthropologists until some geologist admittedly skilled in such matters has satisfied himself that this is a true fossil, definitely associated with the remains of extinct animals."

Who, then, Doctor Woodward asks, was the first man on earth? "To be strictly accurate," he replies, "we have not yet found him, although we have some reason to think we know where to look. In the dim borderland of time which separates man from monkey there roamed, somewhere in central Asia, a form of large-brained ape destined to be the precursor of man. It is impossible to fix a date for his appearance, but we do know that when he came into being the Himalayan mountains had not yet reared their peaks."

It was in the Neanderthal, near Duesseldorf, Germany, writes Doctor Woodward, that the remains of the earliest man of whom anything is really known were discovered.

"Compared with our knowledge of his ancestors," he says, "he is an intimate acquaintance. But it is impossible to assign him a date in years. Swedish geologists reckon his age as about 12,000 years."

"Neanderthal man," continues the British scientist, "was definitely a man. He lived in caves from which he sallied forth to hunt the animals, such as mammoth, rhinoceros, reindeer and bison, which then roamed over Europe."

"We have found his tools, flint and bone pins with which possibly the early women fastened the rough skins which served them for petticoats. We have also found remains of paint and rouge, which seem to signify the dawn of vanity."

Trade Follows the Film. American films go everywhere, and, it seems that spectators in other lands have been getting more from them than breathless entertainment, "chases" and cinderella comedy. They have been getting ideas on clothing, office furniture, up-to-date automobiles, domestic conveniences—particularly clothing. Commerce Reports, the government trade publication, instances a citizen of Buenos Aires who sees with his wife an American-made picture. He notices the leading man's smart clothing, while the lady studies the alluring gowns of the heroine. Both conclude that they want their clothes made in America. So trade has begun to follow the film. This is unexpected and gratifying. While there is some dispute as to whether the movie actor can act, nobody disputes that he knows how to dress. The country benefits. You simply never can tell.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Just Like a Nightmare. Several years ago, when I was living in a large boarding house, I had a most embarrassing experience. While dressing for luncheon one day I remembered an important letter that should go out on the next mail. Without finishing my toilet I went directly to my desk, fearing that I might forget the letter if I did not "do it now." After finishing the letter, other things occupied my mind until the luncheon bell rang. Then I hurried down to the dining room as I wanted to get an early start to my work uptown. I gave my order, leaned back in the chair to relax while I waited to be served, and dropped my hands into my lap. It was then that I had a real nightmare—a film comedy sensation. For instead of the woolen skirt my hand came in contact with my silk jersey petticoat.—Exchange.

LETTY hated the little town with its perpetual gossip and prying. When Cousin James came back for his holiday she was going to ask him to give her a position in town, where he was manager for a very large concern. She wanted to get out of it.

James Redfield was a fine example of the village boy who had gone to town and curved out success for himself. He was coming back for the first time in three or four years. Before he left last time he and Letty had had a mild flirtation, and he had kissed her.

"If you don't find anybody by the time I'm home next, maybe there'll be a chance with me," he had said.

And Letty had laughed. She knew just how much Cousin James meant by that. Just nothing at all. Only she remembered his kiss.

As she came back from the post office with his card announcing that he was coming, old Mrs. Pryor said:

"So your Cousin Redfield is coming home? I guess you two was sweet on each other, wasn't you?"

Letty flushed hotly. So already the prying eyes and venomous tongues were at work! Oh, she must get out of the place; he must give her work in town!

When she got home with her news everybody was agog.

"So Cousin James is coming back, hey!" sniffed her grandmother. "I guess he'll think himself too fine for the little old town when he gets here."

"Them New York fellows is always stuck on themselves," said Cousin Bob. "It's my opinion the only kind that goes there is the kind that's too stupid to get along in the small towns."

"Or else too clever," put in Cousin Matilda.

"They say they have to do a lot of crooked work to succeed in New York," said bachelor Uncle Tom. "They can laugh at the small town all they like, but I wouldn't soil my hands with the sort of stuff you got to handle there—no, sir!"

As Uncle Tom had never soiled his hands at anything very much, except smoking cigarettes, it appeared to be rather a matter of Hobson's choice with him.

The great day arrived. Everybody was at the station to meet Cousin James except grandmother. They all drove up to the house together in a taxi.

"Well, well, old man, it's great to have you back with us again!" said Cousin Bob, slapping him on the back.

"We certainly have been looking forward to having you liveen us up, Cousin James," said Cousin Matilda, ogling him.

"We sure are pleased to see you," said Uncle Tom, accepting one of Cousin James' choice Havanas.

Letty was so humiliated she crept away. The family's double-facedness made her ashamed to meet Cousin James' eyes.

"You don't seem to extend the glad hand so cordially as the rest," said Cousin James to her that evening.

"Oh, of course I'm glad to have you here, James," answered Letty miserably.

But she could hardly sleep that night. She kept remembering how Cousin James had kissed her. How nice he was, and how different to the others! She wished that he were gone. She hated the feeling of deception.

Two or three days passed, during which Letty preserved an attitude of cold formality toward her cousin. It was on the last evening that he cornered her upon the porch.

"Letty, we're going to have this thing out," he said. "What's the matter? What have I done? Last time I was here we were such friends."

"Oh, it's nothing," said Letty, trying to keep her voice steady.

"Come on, tell me what it is!"

"Oh, Cousin James, I'm so miserable. Everybody's so double-faced. They say awful things about you behind your back and flatter you to your face. I heard Uncle Tom telling Cousin Bob he thought you and I—cared for—"

"Pshaw, that's nothing!" said Cousin James, taking her hands in his. "You get that everywhere. Why, in New York I'm supposed to go on roaring, raging tears with all the stenographers, and I can't look at a girl without somebody gossiping. I tell you, kid, it doesn't pay to be a bachelor, and I'm through with it. Remember what I said last time I was here?"

"Yes, but you didn't mean it."

"Sure I meant it. Found anybody else?"

"N-no," admitted Letty.

"Hoop-la!" said Cousin James, taking her in his arms. "It's you and me for the wilds of Gotham on the morning train. I have the license in my pocket."

Chinese Take Birds Out for Walk.

Fondness displayed by Chinese of all classes for birds as pets and playthings is a trait that always impresses a foreigner in China. Taking the bird out for a walk is a part of the routine of many households. It is no uncommon thing to see a well-dressed, prosperous looking Chinese strolling about gently swinging a bird-cage containing a song bird resembling in appearance of the lark. It is the "hwani." He must have his daily exercise or he will not sing, is the Chinese theory. In certain families exercising the bird is a regular part of the housewife's duties.

Why Suffer from Rheumatism?

Do you know that nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment? The pain may be relieved by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, which makes sleep and rest possible, and that certainly means a great deal to anyone afflicted with rheumatism.—Advertisement.

SCHOOL NOTES

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Fifteen students trying for Palmer diplomas have handed in work to be sent away. The Palmer diploma is one given by the Palmer Company to each individual whose writing comes up to a required standard. The students had at least a year of hard work before they were able to start the lessons for the diplomas. A mistake was unintentionally made last week, when it was stated that the girls practice track meet in the evening. Practice comes in the morning. The different track events for girls consist of high jump, broad jump, base ball throw, shot put, fifty yard dash, one hundred yard dash and the relay race. The Girl Scouts hiked to Newburg and back Monday night. Thursday night they met at Grace Tillotson's home. The two teams which were chosen with M. Shogren and J. Whipple as captains, both passed the second class tests successfully.

Mr. Holcomb's botany class went on a field trip Friday, returning with many field and wood flowers for class work.

Seven very beautiful silver cups are on display in Mr. Smith's office. Five are nine-inch cups which are to be given to the winning teams in Four-Square League meet here June 8th. One is for Plymouth's Girls' basket ball team, which will be placed in our case. Another is for Farmington's Boys' basket ball team. The other three cups are to be given to the winning girls' track team, boys' track team, and boys base ball team, at the last games of the Four-Square League. There are two fifteen inch silver cups to be given to the individual boy and girl who wins the most points at the Four-Square Track meet. These two large cups are given by Weyhing Brothers, Jewelers of Detroit. The givers name is engraved, below which there is a place for the name of the winner.

GRADE NOTES

In the second grade the following pupils were neither absent nor tardy during this month: Melvin Blunk, Alice Lee, Russel Mical, Alice Postiff, Wilhelmene Rocker, Billy Ray, Dorothy Wnuk. As gifts of the High school manual training boys, several base-ball bats were sent to the children at the Northville Sanatorium last week. In Mrs. Bird's room the fifth grade geography class is studying great cities of the United States. Among the new pupils that have recently enrolled in Miss Harris's room are: Erma and Frank Dely entering the fifth grade from Ecorse, Michigan; Albert Miller, the fourth grade from Grand Rapids, Michigan; and Della Kimball also entering the fifth grade. A Memorial day followed the exhibit so closely, the fifth and sixth graders in Mr. Walker's room practiced hard all last week, on music for the occasion. Making colored pictures of land and sea from cut paper, is the present artistic occupation of the fourth and fifth grades in Miss Harris's room. Winning the first prize in Wayne County Good Health Poster Contest with her contribution done in water colors, Adele Carson of the fifth grade in Mrs. Bird's room, made her class justly proud of her. The fifth and sixth grade girls are staging a series of games in their physical training classes. German bat ball, Newcomb, Kick ball and Long ball make up the exciting list. Each team's points depend upon the games which are won and upon the conduct of each member of the teams in class. They stand as follows:

Team	Points
Velma Pets	55
Boulah Coe	45
Doris Whipple	45
Hazel Williams	40
Hazel Rathburn	26
Elizabeth Burrows	25
Thelma Smith	22
Irene Anderson	9

The grade notes were furnished by Lucille Dickerson; the High school notes by Alice VanArsdale; the account of the game by Glenn Mitchell; that of the University visit by Fannie Grainger.

P. H. S. LOSSES

With five innings of good base ball in their favor Plymouth weakened in the sixth, and gave the base ball game to Farmington, last Friday, May 25th. The Rocks being visitors at Farmington and also contending with them for second place, were scared into 6 hits, while in turn Farmington gave the Rocks nine, six of them scoring runs. The score was 9 to 6. Farmington—Bryan, 2nd B.; Staman, P.; Quinn, S. S.; Ranous, L. F.; Schermerhorn, R. F.; Lorenz, C.; Harmon C. F.; Clark, 3rd B.; Winon, 1st B. Plymouth—Bartlett, 2nd B.; Trimble, P.; Sump, S. S.; Sutherland, L. F.; Seger, R. F.; Cline, C.; Hickey, C. F.; Rowland 3rd B.; Sayles, 1st B.

ANN ARBOR TRIP

For the purpose of visiting some of the buildings of the University of Michigan, Miss LeVan and Mr. Ross chaperoned the senior class on a trip to Ann Arbor, Thursday afternoon, May 24th. The forty-five passengers packed in nine cars, left Plymouth at noon. The crowd considered themselves very lucky as they managed to reach there without punctures or blowouts. The museum, which we visited, was packed with things of interest to us. Next we visited Alumni Memorial Hall. Much of the building contained large and noted paintings and sculptures of famous Greeks and Romans. We also enjoyed going through the Physics building. Students were performing experiments with electricity and the radio sets. One of the professors told about a machine that was under construction, which when finished would draw 14,000 lines to one square inch. He also told us that it cost $60.00 to have one plate for this machine polished. The library was the last place of interest visited. The chief librarian took us through study halls and reading rooms. The lighting system in the main reading room was particularly good, as all the fixtures were out of sight. At the top of the reference stacks, which are about seven feet high, are the bulbs, hidden back of a shelf so that the light is subdued, and does not touch any object with glaring intensity. We marvelled at the wonderful leather bound volumes that the students had access to for their outside reading. Individual cards are built in the stack room for students doing graduate work. Eight floors are completely given up to stacks of books. There are 500,000 books in all at the present time, and there will be 300,000 more as soon as the new part of the building is completed.

NEWBURG

Sunday afternoon quite a crowd attended the Memorial and Decoration Day service, combined, in memory of the boys who wore the blue and have gone to their reward, also to honor the few remaining veterans of the Civil war, and of other wars. There is only one Civil war veteran residing in Newburg, Benjamin Rhead, who was present. There being no others, Mr. Blair, who belonged to the Custer Brigade, walked with Mr. Rhead. Two World war veterans, with several sons of veterans and school children, were escorted in by Marion Taylor and Mae Spangler, who acted as color bearers. A splendid program was given under the direction of Miss Boulah Ryder, with Miss Anna Youngs at the piano. The singing of America was followed with invocation by Rev. Wise; Louise Geney gave Lincoln's Gettysburg Address; selections by Marion Taylor and Ruth Cochran; duet, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," by Miss Anna Youngs and Mr. Tracy; a reading, entitled, "The American Flag," by Joy McNabb of Detroit, who had won a prize in Detroit schools for the splendid manner in which she delivered this patriotic story. Mrs. Donald Ryder then gave a reading, "The Honored Guest," a beautiful story of the last veteran of the Civil war in a certain village. Mr. Tracy sang a solo, "I'm a Pilgrim and I'm a Stranger," in his usual manner. Rev. William Wise gave a splendid address which was appreciated by all. The exercises closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

The Patriotic society wish to thank all those who so kindly assisted in making the exercises a success, especially Donald Ryder for decorating the church so beautifully. Newburg cemetery never presented a nicer appearance than at the present time. Ninety-seven years ago, C. E. Ryder's father, George Ryder, attended the first burial in the cemetery.

Mrs. R. Barnes of South Lyon, called on Mrs. Donald Ryder, last week Wednesday afternoon, and visited the Newburg cemetery. C. E. Ryder received word last week that Rev. Horace Allen, a former resident of Newburg, who for several years was a missionary in Brazil, recently underwent a serious operation in Battle Creek sanitarium. Mr. and Mrs. Clemens and family attended a play at the Calvary Presbyterian church, Detroit, Saturday night. The play was directed by George Clemens. Mr. and Mrs. W. R. LeVan and mother and Mr. and Mrs. Clark motored to South Lyon, Sunday afternoon, to see Mrs. Anna Ellis, a cousin of Mrs. Emily LeVan. The new concrete road is open to the public on the Wayne road. Mr. and Mrs. George Cooper of Long Beach, California, and Miss Mattie Hoisington of Plymouth, called at the Ryder homestead, last Friday afternoon. It begins to look as if Plymouth road would be annexed to the city in the near future from the looks of the big signs just erected. Mr. and Mrs. L. Clemens and family attended a pioneer all-day service at Grace M. E. church Detroit, last Sabbath, to commemorate the sixty-third year since it was built. They are planning to build a new church. Rev. Oliver was in attendance all day.

SOUTH SALEM

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Dixon of Denton, were Sunday evening callers at Coda Savery's. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Waterman of South Lyon, were at Mrs. Coda Savery's for the Federated Aid meeting, Thursday. Rev. Fred Burnett of Holly, gave the Memorial Day address at the West Methodist church, Wednesday, at 2:00 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McClumpha and daughters, Dorothy and Marilyn, were Sunday guests at W. B. Rorabacher's. Mrs. Charles Stanbro has gone to Alderson, West Virginia, to visit her mother and sisters. Her mother is very ill. Earl Atchison and Frances Lincoln of West Salem, were married Sunday, May 27th. Mr. and Mrs. Dwellle Smith, who have been living with their son, Floyd, in Ann Arbor, for several months, have returned to their home in Salem. Cherry Hill and Worden played ball Sunday afternoon. Cherry Hill won, 12 to 10. Mr. and Mrs. Coda Savery were calling in Plymouth and Wayne, Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Richter, Roy Richter and Theo Seloff were home from Detroit, over Sunday. Mrs. Minnie Helmuth is seriously ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Boyle. The eighth grade graduating exercises for Salem township, were held at the town hall, Monday evening, May 28. The following received diplomas: Elmer Austin, Orson Atchison, Clarence Braun, Mabel Allen, Frieda Forcier, Ruth Foreman, Thomas Hastings, Eleanor Kreeger, Harry Rathburn, Hazel Sessions, Joe Schromberger, Johnnie Thomas, Robert Wilson and Hazel VanBonn. Following was the program: Piano Solo—Marian Hastings. Recitation—"Life's Tests," Muriel Clark. "Myself"—Fred Rich. "Man"—Mabel Callen. Solo, "Rio Nights"—Hazel VanBonn. Recitation, "How Do You Face Your Work"—Eleanor Kreeger. "The Day of Days"—Joe Schromberger. "Promotion"—Viola Bulmon. Recitation—Ruth Foreman. Gutterly Song and Dance—Oliver Ann Soper, Norma Lane Soper and Florence Schroder. "The Grumler"—Hazel Sessions. Presentation of Diplomas—Evan Essery. Kenneth Rich had one of his legs painfully bruised in a mix-up with a Detroit creamery truck at Salem, last Tuesday. He caught his foot in some piping and was unable to get out of the way, and was jammed against a wall. He is walking with a limp. Mr. and Mrs. James Lucas entertained Sunday: Dr. Frank Ellis, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Opal Carr and little son, Floyd Lucas and family of Detroit; Vernie, Vinnie and Earl Lucas of Dearborn, and N. O. Lucas and son, Donald, of Wayne. Mr. and Mrs. James Warm of Pontiac, were week-end guests at Will Cole's.

W. C. T. U.

The W. C. T. U. met at the home of Mrs. Luther Peck, last week Thursday afternoon. After the business meeting, which was called to order by the new president, Mrs. Vesley, the following delightful program, in charge of Mrs. Doerr, was enjoyed by a large number of ladies: Solo—Mrs. Nagle. Reading—Mrs. C. Sayles. Instrumental Solo—Juanita Coe. Song—Dorothy Hillman. Reading—Mrs. White. Violin Solo—Thelma Peck. Remarks by Rev. Hathaway. Solo—Zerpha Blunk. Reading—Dorothy Hillman. Solo—Alton Sayles, accompanied by Helen Fish, piano, and Katherine Learned, violin. After the program, ice cream and cake were served. A rising vote of thanks was given the hostess, who so graciously entertained in her lovely home.

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES

The platform will be enlarged for Children's Day. Parents are invited to present their babies for baptism at that time. Vestments for the choir are on the way. We have studied earnestly to embody the truths of our holy religion in the language of orderly devotion, to the end that by the sacraments, the stated ordinances of the Lord's day, and all the ordinary and occasional offices of the church, men may be both instructed and confirmed in the faith of Jesus Christ. Avail yourself therefore, of these privileges. Baptism was administered last Sunday, to the following infants: Glen Butler Bradner, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Butler Bradner; and Patricia Jane Braidel, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William O. Braidel.

EPISCOPAL NOTES

Episcopalians united last Sunday morning, in the Union Memorial service at the High school auditorium, consequently our usual morning service was dispensed with. Mr. Gibson wants a full congregation next Sunday morning, and also a large attendance of the Sunday school. There will be only three more Sundays for Franklin Gibson to be with us before leaving to take charge of a large mission district in Montana, under Bishop Fox. Let us all make special efforts to spend these last Sunday mornings with him. We pray God to bless his work and endeavors in his new field of labor to which he is going, and we also thank God for having sent among us a man like Mr. Gibson, full of zeal, a faithful worker in the service of the Master, fired with the spirit of winning souls for Christ.

The Skolowicz Punch

By CHAS. E. BAXTER

(© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

"YES, that's all father had to leave," said pretty Hannah Skolowicz to her friends in the factory. "That punch of his—but gee, it certainly is some punch, believe me! That's what my brother Morris put Lew Baxter to sleep with in the ring last night. Fight? Fight nothing. That kid ain't got the speed of a snail, and as for footwork—gee, it makes me laugh. But he sure has got Dad's right."

Everybody was making Hannah a heroine that day, for her brother, Morris, had won the featherweight championship of the world the night before.

But Morris and Hannah had not been friends for years. The quarrel was an obscure one; it had something to do with Morris' marrying outside the faith. And so pretty Hannah was left—of her own will—to struggle along in the factory, while Morris rolled in his limousine.

Morris had approached his sister, asking her to share his new-made fortune, but Hannah, though secretly anxious for a reconciliation, was too proud.

So there she was, drudging at pickle-making, and heaven knew how long it would be before she and young Blaustein could get married. And meanwhile there was Mr. Obermann.

Obermann, the foreman, a man of bad reputation. If he took a grudge against a girl the best thing she could do was to get her pay and leave. But if he took a liking to one, the best thing she could do was to skip out of the office and send for the money. Obermann was a persistent black-guard.

And Hannah had been greatly worried. Obermann had shown signs of taking a liking to the pretty, frail, delicate, dark-haired girl, and Hannah had been trying to look as homely and inconspicuous as possible. Jobs were not too plentiful in those times, and she had never been able to save a penny. And Blaustein was out of work, through no fault of his own.

Obermann had passed his arm round her the day before. Hannah had tried not to notice the incident, but things were coming to a crisis.

"Gee, if that guy got fresh with me, I'd slap his face for him," said Hannah's chum, Bessie Myers.

Hannah said nothing. Many of the girls secretly admired Obermann, who was a great hunk of a man, and handsome in a coarse way. He was reputed to be free with his money. Hannah suspected that Bessie wouldn't have been so free with her slaps as she pretended.

Obermann passed around the factory several times during the course of the afternoon, but he took no notice of Hannah, much to her relief. However, as the whistle blew, and the girls made a rush for their hats, he came up to Hannah.

"I want you to stay and see a new girl," he said. "I'm going to put her under you for instruction."

Hannah, suspecting nothing, went to Obermann's office a few minutes later. They were alone there. The roaring of the machines had stopped, leaving the place preternaturally silent.

Obermann, who was sitting at his desk, got up with an unpleasant smile as Hannah entered.

"Where's the new girl?" demanded Hannah.

"Oh, she ain't come yet, dearie," said Obermann. "Say, Miss Skolowicz, you're just a peach of a girl, and just the kind for me. What do you say to a little supper with me tonight?"

"No, thanks," answered Hannah coldly, trying to back toward the entrance. Beyond the door, which was not quite shut, she could see the back passage leading in from the deserted street.

"I guess you're slow," said Obermann, seizing her in his arms.

And, as Hannah screamed, he touched the button that started the machinery, and in an instant the whole factory was filled with a roar of sound.

Hannah flung herself free of him and darted toward the door. Obermann dashed forward to intercept her.

And Hannah, in despair, drew back her arm and struck.

To her amazement Obermann went reeling backward like a log, and collapsed unconscious on the floor.

As Hannah stood there a sound behind her arrested her attention. Morris was standing in the doorway.

Hannah flung herself into his arms.

"Oh, Morris, take me away!" she sobbed.

"Sure, kid, that's what I come for, and if you wasn't willing to come I was just going to kidnap you!" answered Morris. "Minnie wants you to come and live with us, and I guess we'll let bygones be bygones. But say, kid, how did you do it?" he added, glancing at Obermann, who was slowly coming to.

"Why, Morris, you know how just father was. You didn't think he'd just left his punch to you instead of dividing it, did you?"

Dennis Understood.

We both laughed, but I was tearfully embarrassed.—Chicago Tribune.

Nothing to it, Brother!

That old tradition dies hard. The Pittsburgh Post thinks that Boston in fact repeats the Cone formula in this manner: "Every day in divers and sundry particulars I show a progressive increment of amelioration."—Boston Transcript.

Recommends Chamberlain's Tablets

"Chamberlain's Tablets have been used by my husband and myself off and on for the past five years. When my husband goes away from home, he always takes a bottle of them along with him. Whenever I have that heavy feeling after eating, or feel dull and played out, I take one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets and they fix me up fine," writes Mrs. Newton Vreeland, Minoa, N. Y. Take these tablets when troubled with constipation or indigestion and they will do you good.—Advertisement.

USED HIS BRAIN

How Young Italian Cultivated Marvelous Memory.

While Watching His Sheep, Jacques Inaudi Occupied His Mind by Working Out Sums.

Up in the north of Italy, not far from the city of Turin, in the mountain land that lies to the south of the rugged line of the Alps, about 1875, a little boy sat engaged in the usual occupation of small boys in that rural region—watching sheep. There was nothing for him to do except to look at his woolly charges, or off at the line of hills that shuts in the sky on all sides. His name was Jacques Inaudi. His home was a little hovel scarcely worthy of the name of home. His people were the poor people of the region, peasants who could provide little or nothing for their children.

There was just one way in which Jacques Inaudi was different from the scores of other boys in his neighborhood who likewise had been set to watch flocks. The others sat, idly, scarcely thinking, or else they threw stones, or played with their dogs, or built little walls and houses with sticks and rubble. Jacques Inaudi kept his boyish mind as active as though he were in a schoolroom. He counted his sheep, estimated the wool they produced, the amount of grass they ate, the number of lambs there were likely to be, the amount of money they would bring, and the number of people they would furnish food and clothing.

At first he did this merely as an idle amusement. He had no paper on which to write, and there were few flat stones on which he could make records; so he was obliged to remember the facts that he observed. Soon he found that his memory was as good as any flat stone on which he could write, and as good as any paper that he might have. As he had nothing else to do, he continued to cultivate his ability to do sums in his head. When people came along and talked to him he asked them to give him the answers to problems he gave them; then he laughed gaily when they began to puzzle their heads and to write down figures. Soon he would flash out the correct answer, to their utter amazement. His fame spread and people took long journeys to hear him. They asked him difficult questions, to all of which he gave quick answers.

Here was a wonder, a boy who astonished every one. People found it profitable to take Jacques Inaudi away from the pleasant hills and to bring him before the public as a lightning calculator. As he grew older he continued to develop his amazing gift, and his fame continued to grow. Soon he was known all over Italy and in Europe as one of the most unusual people and questioned, and he amazed the humbler people. He had so cultivated a remarkable natural gift that in manhood—for it is now fifty-five years since he was born—he could, as it were, actually see before him the figures that were given him to use. By cultivating a natural gift he raised himself from poverty into riches and fame.

The Only Difficulty.

Edwin Lefevre, the Wall Street expert, said at a roof garden dinner in Philadelphia:

"Now that wireless broadcasting is such a fad, there are innumerable companies selling wireless stock."

"A wireless stock salesman called on a country minister the other day."

"Doctor Steenthly," he said, "I'll sell you a million shares of our stock for half a dollar. In six weeks the shares will be quoted at 95 cents. Think of it: You'll be a rich man."

"But," said Doctor Steenthly, in his cautious way, "why don't you hold onto the shares and become a rich man yourself?"

"I would," said the salesman, "only, you see, I need a shave—and how would I look if I waited six weeks?"

Bees Brought Into Court.

An Akron man is suing for an injunction to restrain his neighbor's bees from stinging plaintiff, his tenants, guests or "help." Also he asks $500 damages for last season's bee-stinging activities. Plaintiff, says Capper's Weekly, alleges his neighbor keeps thirty hives, and whenever plaintiff ventures out to hoe his garden or gather asparagus, the insects come over and play with him, and always they are so rough that he is driven indoors and his garden is neglected. He figures he lost $200 that way last year. It will be interesting to see if the bees will obey the law better than man.

Quite a Joke.

I was calling upon a woman who kept me waiting in the drawing room an unparadiseable time before coming down.

In my mind I was pondering what form her apology would take, and so absorbed was I that when she did come down I said: "I am so sorry to have kept you waiting."

We both laughed, but I was tearfully embarrassed.—Chicago Tribune.

Black Art.

Black art, which has been practiced from the earliest age, is generally defined as exorcism, the alleged ability to make charms, to expel evil spirits from haunted houses or from persons bewitched; necromancy, or anything of a similar nature. Magic is in some degree allied with black art, more especially the art or pretended art of putting in action the power of spirits of producing preternatural effects by the medium of supernatural means or the aid of departed spirits, or the occult powers of nature. A belief in magic is to be reckoned among the earliest growths of human thought. It is everywhere present in a greater or less degree. In an inverse ratio to the progress of civilization. Science generally emphatically rejects the black art and all magic allied with it.

The Home of the Soul

In olden times, it was believed that the seat of the soul was the stomach, most likely for the reason that a man is never so completely used up as when his stomach is out of order. For the cure of ordinary stomach troubles, there is nothing quite so prompt and satisfactory as Chamberlain's Tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Give them a trial. They only cost a quarter.—Advertisement.

As Being Thyself

By EDWARD LEVINE

(© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

EVERYBODY had met the old man, Sam Field, in the woods, or moving in a dream along the unfrequented streets. "Mad Sam," he was called. His sister, who was a milliner, supported him. He was never violent, but he hardly ever seemed to know where he was. When you passed him you heard him muttering disjointedly.

Sometimes he would do odd jobs, but he nearly always lost himself in the middle of them and left the job unfinished. Sarah took the money; it was no use giving Sam money. Either he lost it or he gave it away to the first person who looked poor.

"You see, he's me," he explained. He seemed to have an idea that he lived in every one he knew. It was an odd craze. But his sister was devoted to him.

I hadn't lived long in Springfield before I learned Sam's history. In his early days he had been a prosperous merchant. He was engaged to be married, but his bride to be ran away the night before the ceremony. That gave him an attack of some obscure mental malady. He never recovered the use of his wits.

Sam seemed to take a liking to me. "You see, I'm not really mad," he said. "Only, when she ran away from me, it sort of opened a door. I wanted to kill them at first. Then I understood it wasn't any use, because we were all the same. Yes, sir, he was me. She was me, too."

"I knew then what she was thinking of, and how she felt. She had been secretly in love with him for a long time. When the date of the wedding drew near she became desperate. She met him that evening and they agreed to run away together. If I had killed them I'd have killed myself."

"Yes, sir, each of us is everybody else. It's not knowing that that shuts us up in our little islands of self. I'm you, sir, with your nice house and your wife. I often sit in your chair at nights. When you play with your children you're playing with me."

Well, there was a sort of philosophy in Sam's point of view, but of course the village wouldn't have seen anything but madness in it.

Then there was the morning when I met Sam, his face distorted with horror.

"They're killing me!" he muttered. "Killing me?"

"Who, Sam? Nonsense!" I said. "They're putting me into the electric chair," he went on; and then I remembered that a murderer was to be executed that day—perhaps was being executed at that moment.

"I did it—yes, I did it," Sam shouted, "but I was mad when I killed him. He'd robbed me, hounded me—Oh, my God, I'm afraid! I'm afraid to go like this. I tell you—"

Suddenly the distortion of Sam's face became hideously exaggerated, his limbs stiffened, and for a moment I almost thought he was dead. Then his face became a blank, and he passed his hand wearily over his forehead.

"Oh, it's you, Mr. Jones," he said. "Guess I promised to come and whitewash those chicken coops for you, didn't I?"

He seemed to have no memory of anything that had been passing. He ambled along beside me, mumbling in his usual way, and painted three chicken coops before he went off into the vacancy again.

Somehow after that Sam got to know me better, and he always gave me a cheery salutation when I passed him on the road. That was the winter of the epidemic. I was one of the earliest and worst cases. After a night of delirium my wife came to me.

"That crazy Sam's downstairs inquiring for you," she said. "He wants to ask you not to go so far into the desert again; it took him weeks to get home. I don't know what he meant."

But I did, for all night I had been wandering in the Mojave, which I knew as a boy. I had been lost there and had lived it all over again. But after that I grew worse, and for days was quite unconscious. The doctor said it was a miracle I came out of that stupor. It was sudden, too—no eight o'clock in the morning.

When I was better I asked for Sam. For some days nobody would tell me. At last I learned he was dead.

He had been worse than usual, walking to and fro in the roads day and night, and knowing nobody. One morning he had staggered into Sarah's cottage and died in her arms. Just dropped dead. Heart disease, the doctor thought.

It was at eight o'clock that morning I grew better.

Reconsidering the Matter

By CLARA DELAFIELD

IT WAS less Howard Field than the other woman who was the cause of Isobel's finally arriving at her decision. For a period which seemed an eternity she had staved for Howard Field, wearing out her youth, her beauty—youth, cooking, ironing for him. But the taunts of the other woman had become unbearable.

Isobel had had plenty of opportunities for lovers of her own. She was still beautiful. But she had stuck doggedly to her work; she was sacrificing the best years of her life—ah, that was the worst of it—for those who failed either to appreciate her services or to understand her nature.

There was Howard's old mother, a frequent visitor to the house, always by her side, even in the kitchen, grumbling and scolding. She was a servant in the house, and they treated her with even less consideration than a servant. And then the other woman—how Isobel hated her! She had seen Howard kissing her furtively when he thought nobody saw. He paraded his love for her openly.

Only the child remained, the one link that bound her to the home. Isobel and Dora adored each other. "I love you better than Daddy," the child had often said. Isobel always remembered that. It was Dora who had held her, an unwilling slave, in the Field home so long.

Now even that love was not strong enough to break Isobel's determination to see any of them again. Only that evening Howard had sworn at her—because of some little flaw in the cooking. "Cooking! Was that all a woman was made for—to cook for a man?"

No, she was going, and she was going to a man who would show her the proper appreciation. She was not in love with Donald Dugan. His attitude toward her had always been one of tender civility. Once, when she had sobbingly told him of her troubles, he had urged her to leave Howard forever.

"Come to me, Isobel," he had said, "and I will protect you. You shall never shed another tear."

"What will people say?"

It was the old question, the old fear that links people together in unwilling partnership.

"Isobel, the world will say that you have acted rightly. That monster has no claim on you. You have told for him thanklessly. Come to me, Isobel!"

She had half promised, and Howard's treatment of her that evening had been the culmination. She was going to Donald.

Softly she packed her bag in her room, putting into it a few little essentials—her dress, her wrap, a cherished toilet service—that was about all that she was taking from the Field home. It was well past midnight. She crept into the passage, listening fearfully. The way to freedom now lay open. But suddenly the thought of Dora came to her. Suddenly she realized that she could not go forever without a parting glance at the child.

She listened outside Dora's door. No sound came from within. Softly she opened it and entered.

Dora lay on her back, sleeping the flushed, dewy, innocent sleep of childhood. Her long lashes lay delicately upon her cheeks. The sight of the slumbering child aroused every instinct of motherhood within her.

Isobel bent down and kissed the blue-rose cheek. Dora stirred faintly in her sleep and smiled. "Mummy," she whispered.

The word was like a dagger in Isobel's heart. She clutched her breast in anguish. She looked at Dora. And suddenly she realized that she could not go.

She could not go. The mother instinct had proved too strong for her at the last.

But as she turned back the door of the Fields' room opened softly. Howard Field appeared in his dressing gown—Howard and the other woman!

Isobel uttered a cry. With a fierce exclamation Howard advanced toward her.

"Stealing off from my house like a thief in the night, Isobel! Is this the way you repay me for my kindness? Listen! Stay with me! Let us understand each other. I know it's Donald Dugan who is enticing you. We've been talking things over. Stay with us, and we'll raise your wages ten dollars a month and send out some of the wash. And you can have the use of the car on Sunday afternoons."

"Deed, I will, sub," answered Isobel happily. "It's that old wash gives me such a backache, that's why I was going."

An Isobel turned back to her own room.

"Blue Stockings."

Even today one hears of persons designated as "blue stockings." In olden times the term meant women who sacrificed their characteristic excellence to learning, or what they thought was learning. A hundred years ago the women of England had evening assemblies where the fair sex might participate in conversation with famous literary men. One of the most eminent was Doctor Stellingmatt, who habitually wore blue stockings. Such was the excellence of his conversation that his occasional absence was felt as a great loss, and the ladies said: "We can do nothing without the blue stockings." Thus came the phrase, and by degrees its title was established.

THE THEATRE

JACK PICKFORD'S "GARRISON'S FINISH" SHOWS MANY WIDELY SEPARATED LOCATIONS.

There probably never was a motion picture in which so many widely separated "locations" played such a big part in intensifying interest in the story as in the case in Jack Pickford's new production, "Garrison's Finish," which, in a notable way, marks the popular star's return to the screen after an absence of about two years during which time he has been directing his famous sister, Mary Pickford.

Scenes of the Kentucky Derby at Louisville, also the Metropolitan Handicap at New York and other scenes at San Francisco, Pasadena, Exposition Park, Los Angeles, and on the Mojave Desert are included in this Allied Producers and Distributors Corporation release which comes to the Pennington Allen theatre, Saturday, June 2nd. It would seem the whole picture would be monopolized by these outdoor scenes but through the ingenuity of Elmer Harris, who wrote and supervised the production, there is a plentitude of interior scenes of elaborate settings. These include handsome drawing-rooms, dining halls and glorious old parlors of Southern homes of the wealthy. The dining hall "set" is one of the largest and finest ever built for a screen play, containing a magnificent horseshoe-shaped table at which nearly a hundred guests dine.

Most of the handsome interiors are peopled during the action by beautifully gowned women and debonair young men in the conventional black.

One interesting "set" in "Garrison's Finish" is a complete home, exterior and interior, which was built on the closed stages of the Pickford-Fairbanks Studios. Surrounding this neat structure was a fine lawn through which winds white gravel pathways. All the rooms of a modern bungalow were completely finished and furnished and much of the action takes place in these.

In order to round out the continuity, an exact replica of the judges' stand of a prominent eastern race-track was built on the lot, including a practical interior in which there is much of the exciting action.

AUTHORITIES SAY WHY LLOYD IS SUCCESSFUL

"Harold Lloyd is not a one-man show."

Aside from the spectacular comedian's own ability and personality authorities claim this is the outstanding reason for Harold Lloyd's great success. He has surrounded himself with experts in the line of fun-making; he wins their confidence, and then gives them full credit for what they do.

Hal Roach, who has produced the Lloyd comedies for eight years, is also a capable comedy story writer. Fred Newmeyer, the director, is conversant with every quip and angle of screen comedy. Harley M. Walker, title writer, has been putting humor into Lloyd titles for six years. Sam Taylor and Jean Hayes, "gag men," are responsible for the funny incidents that are introduced into the pictures.

They say of Harold Lloyd in film circles that he is the easiest and yet the hardest man in the picture world to work for. He is "easy" because he lacks temperament, is most congenial to work with, and will literally slave to put over what the "boys" give him to do. He is "hardest" because the type of comedy he produces will permit only a certain kind of "business" and this "business" must be clean above everything else.

Lloyd's latest Pathé feature comedy, "Dr. Jack," will be shown at the Pennington Allen Theatre, Sunday, June 3rd, and is one of the best examples of what might be called "de luxe screen comedy" ever seen. While his last effort, "Grandma's Boy," was uproarious from start to finish, "Dr. Jack" contains more laughs to its footage, took more time to produce and cost more.

Today's Reflections

Hint to the Plymouth man who is figuring on taking a trip: The best way to pack a suit case is to let your wife do it.

It is proper to swat a fly on the head, but never swat one on the head of a stranger.

An old bachelor says that firmness in a man is the same thing as stubbornness in a woman.

Most Plymouth parents have learned that the only way to keep children's clothes clean is to keep them off of the children.

How does it come that a fellow who doesn't know one note from another can sometimes buy things for a song?

The average Plymouth man can see beauty in the homeliest woman, if she'll only make him believe she considers him smart.

Some women's idea of a model kitchen is a room just big enough to permit the successful operation of a can opener.

It is often a good thing for some Plymouth men's peace of mind that they don't know what other people know about them.

Don't think for a minute that your neighbors will ever think you are better than you think you are.

No man around Plymouth is so cool in emergencies that he can sit down accidentally on a tack without making a few remarks.

Don't try to get back at a man by saying that you are just as good as he is. It's up to you to be a great deal better.

Tornadoes in Texas are bad, because they have so much space in which to get a flying start.

Another time when a Plymouth man has business in some other part of town is when he sees his wife come in with a can of paint.

It is impolite to smash your fingers before ladies. There are some kinds of language they are not used to.

Michigan Methodism helps one of her early pioneer preachers and circuit riders to celebrate his 100th birthday this week, with a big banquet and program on Friday, and special features on Saturday. Dr. Seth Reed of Flint, is the honored personage. He becomes 100 years old on Saturday, June 2nd.
Children's Day will be observed on June 17th.

BAPTIST NOTES

The morning service was taken up last Sunday to give the congregation the privilege of attending the Memorial exercises at High school auditorium. We all enjoyed the sermon by our Brother Gibson, and shall miss his fellowship very much, for we all hold him as a man of God, and wish him great success and God's blessing wherever he goes.

The Young People had a good meeting, Sunday evening. The subject was, "Shall We Educate the Girls of India?" The pastor led the meeting. Time was taken to talk over the B. Y. P. U. convention and summer school, to be held at Kalamazoo, next July. This will be a splendid opportunity for the young people to spend three days at the college.

The evening service was full of song, the young people certainly singing with earnestness. Fletcher Campbell sang the solo for the service. The pastor's sermon was on, "Conscience." The question, "Has the United States any soul, has it any conscience?" was discussed. Everyone be in line for next Sunday at all services.

GRANGE NOTES

Members take notice of the new order of things, in that monthly meetings occur on the Friday evening following the first Thursday of each month during the summer. Thus the next meeting will be, Friday, June 8th, at 8:00 o'clock. The lecturer is calling it children's night, which should mean an interesting program.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Mrs. Helen Newman, who departed this life one year ago, May 27, 1922.

There's a face that is haunting us ever
There's a voice we are longing to hear;
There's a smile we'll remember forever,
Though we try to forget every tear.

There's a sad but sweet remembrance,
There's a memory fond and true;
There's a token of affection, Helen,
And a heartache still for you.

ALL FOOLS' DAY

Part of Folklore of Almost Every Country.

While Some Mystery Enshrouds Its Origin, One Theory Has Been Definitely Abandoned.

Although it has largely degenerated into a nuisance, the observance of All Fools' Day is really one of the most interesting relics of old-time folklore. That is partly because of its antiquity, partly because of its widespread practice, but perhaps most of all because of the mystery which enshrouds its origin. Christmas, Easter, St. Valentine's day and other festivals are with entire assurance traced to their sources, but antiquarians have puzzled and searched in vain for an explanation of All Fools' day.
The irreverent and ridiculous theory that it relates to the trial of Jesus Christ, though once widely held, may be dismissed. That it was associated with the ancient celebration of the new year, beginning on March 25 and ending on April 1, seems plausible. So, but for one thing, might it seem plausible that, as some have said, it arose when, in 1564, Charles IX of France ordered the reformed calendar adopted, changing New Year's day from March 25 to January 1; wherefore New Year's gifts were then given on January 1 instead of at the culmination of the old festival on April 1, and sham and mock gifts were given as a joke to those who wanted to stick to the old calendar. The fatal flaw in that theory is that in other countries, notably in India, April 1 was a feast of fools long before the change of calendar, and continued to be so observed in some where there was no change of calendar.
It is interesting to note that the methods of observance and the names applied to victims of jokes vary in different lands. In America and England the aim is to delude the victim with a false story or statement, or with a bogus gift, and the victim is called an April fool. In Scotland the legend of Christ's trial led to the day being observed by sending the victim from person to person and from town to town on an idle errand, and the victim is called a gawk or cuckoo. In France, for some obscure reason, the victim of a delusive story or sham gift is called an April fish. In India the method of trickery is similar to that in Scotland, and as it is there of older date than the Christian era, that fact would seem sufficiently to dispose of the legend connecting it with Christ's trial.

Pulling Mr. Spider's Leg.

The domestic spider has domestic difficulties. For example, his wife will not always let him eat in peace; she must pull his leg. And why? Merely because he has a fly and won't share it! Mr. William M. Savin, writing in Natural History, gives this rather amusing account of Mr. and Mrs. Spider at home.
(One summer's day at nightfall I found a male domestic spider on the web of a female and placed a fly close to them. Both rushed for it, but as the male happened to be the nearer he swatched it and proceeded to devour it. The female seemed to be greatly annoyed and pulled at his hind legs for some 15 minutes while he fought her off as best he could without turning to face her, feasting as he fought. She then resigned and returned to her former position several inches from him.
When I placed another fly in the web the female promptly ran to it and swatched it. She again returned to her original position, dragging the fly behind her, but it doing so she took an indirect route and, passing the male, gave his hind legs several additional yanks apparently to apprise him of her good fortune in also securing prey—an act that might also be interpreted to be the woman's "last word."—Youth's Companion.

One Look and They Buy.

It is the firm belief of one department manager in a Detroit store that men and women differ radically in their manner of making purchases. "A man," says he, "is more of a window shopper. He sees something in the window that he wants and goes into the store and buys. If he is in need of something—shirt, suit, ties, etc.—he may go around for a week before he sees it, in a window. Then he gets it. A woman is more likely to enter the store and 'shop around,' as they call it. I should say that in knowing what they want, and actually selecting it, men are considerably more direct than the women."—Detroit News.

Remarkable!

A pension examiner in Washington was one day examining witnesses. To one strapping son of Erin he put the question: "Timothy McGowan, do you swear that you know the applicant, Dennis O'Brien, who has made application for an increase of pension?" "You may well say that I do," rejoined Timothy. "Me an' him were both shot in the same leg at Antietam."

Why Suffer from Rheumatism?

Do you know that nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require internal treatment? The pain may be relieved by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, which makes sleep and rest possible, and that certainly means a great deal to anyone afflicted with rheumatism.—Advertisement.

Dreams and Reality

By MYRA CURTIS LANE

(Copyright, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

AT HALF-PAST FOUR Louise Winters was looking anxiously out of the door of her cottage.

"Dear me, it's beginning to rain, and the children will get their feet wet!" she murmured. "I do wish Kenneth and Elsie wouldn't dawdle so on their way home from school!"

She looked anxiously up and down the street, waiting for the boys, and began picking up the blocks and puzzles that strewn the floor.

"They never will learn to tidy up after they've finished playing," she said. "I ought to have put these things away this morning, but two busy pairs of hands and feet keep one pretty well occupied. And now I suppose I'll have to get their tea, and this evening there will be those stockings to finish knitting."

She prepared the meal—bread and butter, thick bread but liberally spread, and a cereal, and opened a pot of jam.

"Oh, dear, the grocer has sent me gooseberry, and I promised Kenneth plum," she murmured. "I do hope he won't be disappointed."

A few minutes later she was flying down the stairs.

"Why, children, how late you are. Why did you take so long coming home from school? Stopped to play with the Price children? Now, my dears, I've told you often and often that you must come straight home from school, or else—or else Uncle John won't bring you any presents when he comes. Now get upstairs; tea's waiting."

Upstairs she filled two little mugs with milk, adding a dash of weak tea. She put a spoonful of jam on each plate. "Now you eat up every bit of your crusts," she said, "or your hair won't curl."

She bustled to and fro until the meal was over.

"Now I suppose you've got to have your stories," she said. "Mercy, children, I'll be glad when you've learned to read, so that you can read stories at nights for yourselves. How ever am I to get your stockings finished when I've got to read to you."

"Well, what shall it be—Grimm's or Andersen's Fairy Tales? If you were a little older I'd read you Robinson Crusoe, but you wouldn't be quite big enough to understand yet what it was all about. How would you like mother to tell you a true story instead. You would?"

"All right. You get on mother's lap, Kenneth. Now, Elsie, you aren't going to be jealous of your little brother, are you? Well, I suppose you'll have both to come then. My, you are a load! You're getting too big for mother to hold!"

"Well, this is a true story: Once upon a time there was a little girl who grew up very slowly. She never quite wanted to be grown up. She liked to stay at home with her mother and help her with the housework. She didn't like playing outside the house very much.

"Well, this little girl used to have dreams of her own from the time she was very small. She used to dream that some day a man would come along who would fall in love with her and ask her to marry him. Then they would be married, and they would live in a house of their own, and love each other very much. And they would have two children, a little girl called Elsie and a little boy called Kenneth.

"Yes, I told you it was a true story, didn't I? Well, and she used to think all the time about these two dream children of hers, and plan every minute of the day all the things she would do for them. And at last the fairy prince did come along and fall in love with her and ask her to marry him.

"They were very much in love with each other, and they were to be married when June came. But by the time June arrived the fairy prince had to go west on business. And there was a dreadful accident to the train. And he—he was killed, children.

"And after that years went by, and at last another man came by and saw the little girl and was very sorry for her and wanted to marry her. But, though she was tempted, she didn't marry him. You see, the fairy prince was still a sort of reality to her, and she knew she preferred living with him, and with her dream children to the other man, and perhaps some real children who weren't her children in quite the same way."

Louise Winters got out of the chair. The weight upon her knees had seemed quite real. Now she realized that she was just an old maid, and quite alone in her little cottage. She sighed. But somehow she felt that it was not altogether a dream.

Puzzling Addresses.

Postal officials in India are frequently puzzled by the strange methods of addressing letters adopted by natives.

The following list have given the postman a considerable amount of trouble, especially as it was written in an almost unrecognizable hand:

"To the one inseparable from my heart, the fortunate Babu Sibansh Ghose, having the same heart as mine. From post office Harnabad to the village of Ramnathpur, to reach the house of the fortunate Babu Prayansh Ghose, district Twenty-four Pergana. Don't deliver this letter to any person other than the addressee, Mr. Postman. This is my request to you."

Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy

Every family should keep this preparation at hand during the hot of the summer months. It is almost sure to be needed, and when that time comes, is worth many times its cost. Buy it now.—Advertisement.

Send your news item to the Mail office. Farmington will have a chautauque, beginning June 22.

"MOLLY BAWN"

The long expected Molly Bawn company, comprising a number of teachers and students of the Plymouth high school, put in their appearance at the opera house Tuesday evening and were greeted by a splendid attendance. As the title would indicate it was "Irish" and the kind of Irish that put worth while things across, which from the start commanded the strictest attention of the audience and held it to the falling of the curtain in the last act. As Conan Doyle recently stated, "If the world was not getting better, the villain in very play would win the applause instead of the hero," and in this the lines of villainy and virtue were well drawn, and it should. The entire play taught a lesson that is well for all to imbibe in large doses. It was a real treat, the kind that leaves pleasant memories, and the actors, well, it is easily seen they are the kind of people who stand for the creditable things in community life.

After the show the guests were escorted to the M. E. church dining hall, and given a hot lunch, and with the promoters, the Primary S. S. teachers and others interested canvassed the results, which after all expenses were paid, left a nice net egg for the primary fund.

The readings by the Misses Zerepha Blunk and Dorothy Hillman were presented in an exceptionally fine manner and won hearty applause. The music by the Linden high school orchestra was also a very pleasing feature.—Linden Leader.

BASE BALL NOTES

Sunday May 27th Redford baseball team was defeated by the House of Correction Officers, score 15 to 14. Wilkins for the visitors pitched a good game, but the breaks were against him and Light was substituted in the 8th inning, in an effort to save the game. A batting rally of the Redford team in the 9th nearly tied the score, but it was nipped in time.

Denniston for the officers pitched a consistent game, and until the futile rally of the 9th, was never in danger.

Redford 1 0 1 2 0 3 2 1 4 14 16 3
D. H. C. 3 0 4 0 1 0 5 2 15 18 2

Batteries—Wilkins-Light and Francis, Denniston and Long. Umpires—Thompson and Kimble.

Last Saturday afternoon the scheduled game of the D. H. of C. officers team with Paramount Picture Corp. team of Detroit, was cancelled at the last minute by the Paramount team, by inability to assemble their players. A few of the Plymouth boys organized a team, and a practice game was played instead.

LIVONIA CENTER LUTHERAN CHURCH

There will be regular services at the Livonia Center Lutheran church, on Sunday, June 3rd, in the English language. On account of the building operations going on, there were no services on May 20th. On June 3rd, therefore the congregation will celebrate holy communion. The one per cent offering for the benefit of the new seminary building in Milwaukee will be lifted.

Gets His Coal From River.

"Philadelphia has some advantages," said a New York business man. "One of my friends over there has a small factory on the banks of the Schuylkill. He says that he lets down a big wire net into the river and twice a day raises it and has several hundreds of coal, enough to supply his needs. He says he has no doubt that if he would raise the net oftener he would get more coal, but twice a day gives him all he can use.
"The coal is fine hardly more than dust, but after it is dried it makes acceptable fuel, and is obtained at no expense and with less trouble than having it delivered by a coal man. It is transported from the mines far up toward the source of the river without any charge for transportation. Another Philadelphia man said he could stek a big pump into silt at the bottom of the Schuylkill almost anywhere and pump up mud that burns well when dried and stoked with intelligence."—New York Sun.

What Happened.

"What's become of that there liver-colored hound of your'n, Gap; the one that bit his right year bit off?" inquired an acquaintance who had passed in the big road.
"I took and gave him away," replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, who was hooked over his front fence by his elbows.

"Grent guns of Iron: Gave him away—?"
"Well, just about the same as Gabe Gosnell came along day before yesterday and wanted to swap for him. I sorter like Gabe, and after we'd lowered about all the forenoon I finally up and just nacherly gave him the hound for a cow, a fiddle and a pistol, such as it was. But if I didn't like Gabe so well, I'ding if I wouldn't be after him, right now, to trade back."—Kansas City Star.

Never Missed.

The strict rules about bathing continues that were adopted by the Virginia Baptists during their camp meeting at Virginia Beach led Judge Calloun to say at a dinner in Norfolk:
"The Virginia Baptists acted very wisely. Some of the sights we used to see at Virginia Beach were truly shocking. They remind me of a story.
"A young wife called from her Virginia Beach bathhouse:
"Oh, Jack, I can't find my bathing suit anywhere. What on earth shall I do?
"Look again, dear. Jack called back. 'Maybe you've got it on.'"

Cause for Doubt.

There was an all-around good-for-nothing man who died, and at his funeral the minister delivered a most beautiful address, eulogizing the departed in the most glowing manner, praising his splendid qualities as a fine type of man, a good husband and kind parent.
About this time the widow, who was seated well up in front, spoke to her little daughter by her side, and said, "My dear, go look in the coffin and see if it is your father."—The Universalist Leader, Boston.

DEATH OF CHARLES M. SPEYERS

Charles M. Speyers passed away at his home, 261 Forest avenue, Thursday afternoon, May 24th, at the age of 58 years.

Mr. Speyers was born in New York state in 1866, and came to Michigan with his parents at the age of nine years. He resided in Ypsilanti for the greater part of his life, going to Detroit, and then to Plymouth. He is survived by his wife, one brother, Frank Speyers of Saline, Mich.; four sisters, Mrs. Frank Cox of Ypsilanti; Mrs. Wm. Cox of Willis, Mich.; Mrs. Wilson of Grosse Pointe, and Mrs. Weach of Willis, Michigan.

The funeral took place from Schrader Bros. Funeral Home, last Saturday afternoon, May 26, at 2:00 o'clock, Rev. D. D. Nagle officiating. Interment in Riverside cemetery.

Breeding Habits of Whales.

In the upper portion of the head the sperm whale has an immense oil tank in which the valuable "spermaceti" is found in a liquid condition, and from which it may be dipped out with a bucket when an incision has been made. From a sperm whale 60 feet in length, which was sent to the American Museum of Natural History from Japan, 20 barrels of spermaceti were taken out of the "case" and the surrounding fat. The oil coagulates as soon as it is cooled by the air.

The sperm whale is the animal which yields ambergris, the valuable substance used so extensively in the manufacture of the best perfumes. Ambergris is only found in "sick" whales—that is, its presence is not normal, but is caused by a pathological condition of the intestines.

The finback, closely related to the blue whale, has been called the "greyhound of the sea," for its long, slender body is built on the lines of a racing yacht, and the animal can equal the speed of the fastest steamship. Little is known about the breeding habits of whales, except that young of whales are born alive, and are suckled and vigorously defended by the mother, as in the case of land animals.

Finally Convinced Her.

I was keeping company with a young man who lived out of town and mother often invited him over for Sunday dinner. When it came time for the second helping he always refused. I knew he did this more for mamma's sake and that down in his heart he really cared for more, so I always insisted on his eating well. One day mother was feeling well, so she refused to eat dinner and that left us to eat alone.
When I insisted on his having another piece of meat, he looked up at me and said, "I wish I could always have a girl like you to look out for me."

I laughed and took it in a joking way, but before the day was over he convinced me that he meant it, and made me promise that I would take the responsibility.—Exchange.

Learning to Think.

Senator LaFollette said at a dinner in Milwaukee:

"The American people are learning to think. They don't swallow half-lit catch phrases and tags the way they used to."

"They used to remind me sometimes of the sailors from a certain warship who once visited the theater. The sailors sat in the gallery en masse, and in the course of the play a fight arose among them, and one poor fellow fell from the gallery down into the audience below.

"The excitement was terrific, of course.

"Man overboard!" a hoarse voice sang out. "Man overboard!"

"At these words a second sailor without a moment's hesitation dived after his unfortunate comrade."
