The manual training department of the High school is putting on an entertainment, an announcement of which appears elsewhere in the Mail, for the purpose of procuring funds for the purchase of a new band saw. NEW MEAT MARKET

George Rattenbury will open a new meat market in the corner store of the Plymouth Hotel block, Saturday, January 30th. Mr. Rattenbury will carry a complete line of fresh and salt meats.

Father and Son Week has come to be a fixture in the year's program. This year, the week of February 8-15, has been set apart for the churches to hold such meetings as they see fit, with the following week reserved for other organizations.

The Hi-Y Club of the High School, has planned this year to promote a father and son banquet for all denominations, and for those who are not members of any denomination. Their tentative plans have met the approval of committees from several of the churches, and also of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and the Chamber of Commerce.

Plans have been made to make this a real community get-together. The supper will be served by the Ladies' organization of one of the churches, and will probably cost seventy-five cents a plate. The program as planned will include talks by a Plymouth father and a Plymouth son, made by a male quartette, one or more vocal solos, and an address by an outside speaker of state-wide reputation. The committee in charge are expecting to secure their speaker in time to make more definite announcement in the churches Sunday. The complete program will be in next week's Plymouth Mail.

The various churches have been asked to request definite numbers of tickets wanted, so that the necessary seating capacity can be provided for. The number available will be announced definitely with the program next week. It is hoped that the Hi-Y club can accommodate every father and son in Plymouth, who wish to attend.

NEVER SATISFIED

We can't help but feel that the end of the world is a long way off. At least we haven't seen any indications that would lead us to believe Plymouth people are preparing for it. And while we are not anxious to have it come in the next week or two, we believe we could stand it if we thought it would find the railroads of this country fully satisfied—for the first time since we have had railroads.

Now there is talk of congress granting them increased tariffs, and this in face of the fact that high freight schedules are the one thing in the way of greater farm prosperity; and also in face of the fact that freight car loadings in 1925 were greater and the volume of traffic heavier than at any time in the history of the U. S. There were no strikes to interfere with trains last year; there were immense crops to haul from farm to market; passenger traffic was heavier than in any previous year, and fares are now higher than ever before. So if the railroads of this country cannot operate at a profit under such conditions, they are never going to earn a profit.

We are in favor of congress keeping hands off insofar as burdensome railroad legislation is concerned, and we would like to see the roads work out their own problems. But when it comes to jumping freight rates in the face of such business as they did in 1925—there is but one thing for congress to say. And that is "Nothing Doing."

stitute for an old-fashioned wood fire, being the limit of their education along this line. During the long, cold evenings you have plenty of time to reflect on such things. So if you are among those who do not enjoy the comforts and the romance of a fireplace and a log fire, why not spend some of your leisure time planning that addition to your house. Or if you are still among the thousands who are even now dreaming of building a home of your own, then don't make the mistake of leaving out the open fireplace. You'll understand once you are perched before it just what real happiness means, and you'll agree that the day you include it in your plans you did one of the best jobs of your life.

CURES FOR COLDS

If there is an excess of any one thing in Plymouth, it is a remedy for colds. Everybody has a favorite cure, and some have enough to fill a book. But when all are considered there is one that stands out above the rest—and that is prevention. The common cold is a big problem at this season of the year, because it is common, and because so many people neglect it until it turns into something worse. The best remedy is prevention through comfortable dress, good clean air and well-chosen diet. The best cure is to go to bed until relief is obtained. Doing these things will greatly promote the health of those who seem to be subject to frequent colds and also save those with whom they associate from the germs that are now declared by physicians to carry colds from one person to another.

BASKET BALL

Last Friday, Dearborn came to Plymouth to play our first team boys. At the end of the first half of the game, the score was twenty-three to six in favor of Dearborn, whose players were taller and much faster. At the beginning of the second half, Plymouth came back much stronger, but their opponents lead was too great to overcome. The game ended with the score of Dearborn 40 and Plymouth 18. It was not because of the lack of aim in making points that lost the game for Plymouth, because they took advantage of every chance. Doubt succeeded in making sixteen of the eighteen points that were made by Plymouth. The Dearborn team, which was much faster and its players taller, seemed to have equally good aim for making points as did Plymouth, but the lack of speed for Plymouth is what lost the game.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Allen J. Geer, who departed this life, one year ago, January 30, 1925.

How sad and sudden was the call,
Of one who was so dearly loved by all;
Has gone and left us mourning here,
He's parted from this world of pain,
But only died to live again.

We loved him, oh, no tongue can tell
How much we loved him and how well;
God loved him too and thought it best
To take him home with Him to rest.

His Loving Wife, Children, Mother and Sisters.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Sylvester DeFer, who departed this life one year ago, February 3, 1925.

When the evening shades have fallen,
And we are all alone,
In our hearts there comes a longing,
If you only could come home.

Oh, we think of you, dear father,
And our hearts are sad with pain;
Oh, this earth would be a heaven,
Could we hear your voice again.

His Loving Wife and Children.

Today's Reflections

The story comes from Los Angeles that a man was cured of paralysis by being struck by lightning. Now let Miami tell one.

The Plymouth man who has tried his hand at something and failed might try using his head for a change.

The average citizen is in favor of large expenditures for good roads—until they start improving the one in front of his place.

A "ripe old age" is a very beautiful thing, so long as you don't happen to be applying it to an egg.

Ladies who went in bathing in the old days dressed like Mother Hubbard. Those who go in now dress like Mother Hubbard's cupboard.

Bobbed hair, a cigarette and a pair of knickers make a lot of difference, but we don't know of any Plymouth men they've fooled.

Some women grow old before their time trying to look young after their time.

What a shock it would be to the coal miners if the strike lasted all winter and nobody froze to death.

We heard of one Kansas man who owns a lot of corn and a flock of turkeys. He blames the government for the low price of corn, but not for the high price of turkeys.

There comes a time in every man's life when he is crazy to get married. But he usually doesn't find it out until after he's married.

The worst sort of jam for little Plymouth boys is traffic jam, and you have no business letting them get into it until they're 16 years old.

This would be a fine country if a man could settle his bills as easily as he can settle the League of Nations controversy.

We've never been able to understand why the average Plymouth man will use a comb in a public washroom, and then go home and raise Cain with his wife if he finds she has been using his.

California Has Many Freak-Raising "Farms"

In the language of southern California, "farm" is the word commonly used to describe a freak establishment, like the alligator nursery, says an Associated Press dispatch from Los Angeles. If it is a place where one raises oranges or lemons, it is a grove. Cattle, hogs, beans, beets or kindred products come from a ranch.

Freak farms are on the increase in this section, and the increase is not altogether welcome. The chamber of commerce of Los Angeles has issued a friendly warning to new settlers that there really is no room for more fur-bearing rabbit farms and that "the individual investor who enters the rabbit-breeding industry for the purpose of selling furs will find himself disappointed."

So far, however, the alligator farm sphere does not seem to be overcrowded, and there are at least two prosperous ostrich farms, a goldfish farm, a lion farm, two butterfly farms, a frog farm, several silver fox farms and a number of pigeon farms.

There used to be two frog farms, but the owner of one, who ambitiously stocked his lake with Louisiana frogs, quit because they were too clever for him. He couldn't catch enough to make a living. Another man, however, finds his frog farm in the San Fernando valley very profitable. He says there is plenty of demand for frog meat in Los Angeles.

Widely divergent products are turned out by the two butterfly farms in this section. One is devoted to the breeding of rare butterflies; the other operated by a woman, produces tea trays and other novelties beautified with butterfly wings.

On the lion farm at El Monte are seventy-five lions on a five-acre tract planted with north African shrubs and equipped with buildings of north African architecture. Here the king of beasts is raised for zoo or circus, or prepared for a motion picture career.

Colleges Changed Names

Harvard never has changed its name, although it is America's oldest college, says "Girard" in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Yale, Princeton, Columbia and Pennsylvania were not that at the start. Folks who affect to despise all money not their own criticize little Trinity college down in North Carolina for surrendering its name to get $40,000,000 from James B. Duke.

But when Ell Yale made his donation to the Connecticut college, a part of the bargain was that the name be changed, and it was.

And Princeton was neither Princeton nor at Princeton at the start. It was many miles nearer New York when Jonathan Edwards wisely decided to move closer to Philadelphia to what was then the village of Prince Town. The College of New Jersey began at Elizabethtown, then moved to Newark.

Columbia was originally King's college, as all schoolboys have heard, but a war made a switch from King to Columbia seem desirable.

For years it was the College of Philadelphia and it was a long time before the man whom Franklin called his "pet enemy," Provost William Smith, ruled over the University of Pennsylvania.

Is Flying a Profession?

Young men of good education, who look with longing at ships flying high in the air, often ask whether flying is a profession. It would appear from the 1924 Canadian report on civil aviation that it is. At any rate, the air board of Canada has taken the wise stand of giving licenses to pilots and requiring certain definite qualifications.

Airplane pilots are subdivided into private and commercial pilots, the former not authorized to fly for hire. Each class is again subdivided into three classes, planes of 1,000 pounds or less, planes of 3,000 pounds or less, and heavy planes of over 3,000 pounds.

All classes of pilots are required to pass an examination on the construction, maintenance and functions of the aircraft, its engine and accessories.—Scientific American.

Habit Cured

"For more than a year I've had the nervous habit, while in an office displaying my wares, of picking up a wire paper clip off a desk and putting it in my mouth," said a salesman, "but I was recently very effectively cured. Somehow, the clip seemed to satisfy a craving and it invariably calmed my nervousness. But I picked up one the other day and, in some manner, bit down on it with the result that I dislodged an excellent porcelain filling."

Boom Tale From Miami

For years a hotel in Miami, Fla., proved a white elephant. One after another the owners unloaded it onto unsuspecting purchasers and five went broke trying to run it. The last man was trying to get rid of it when the big boom came along. Now he has the dining room rented at $60,000 a year, the kitchen at $45,000 and the front porch at $30,000, all as real estate offices.—Capper's Weekly.

Daring Communists

Two men dressed in workers' clothes drilled a large hole in the marble statue of William I on the main street in Breslau, says the Pathfinder Magazine. The job took most of the day, but no notice of the men was taken until they had finished the work. Police then became suspicious and learned that they were Communists preparing to blow up the monument.

THE THEATRE

"CLOTHES MAKE THE PIRATE"

Leon Errol, Ziegfeld's famous comedy star, whose eccentric legs and antics were the sensation of both the stage and screen versions of "Sally," is the first great stage comedian to gain stardom in films.

As a result of his screen hit in Colleen Moore's "Sally," First National signed him to be starred, and he will appear with Dorothy Gish in the headline role of "Clothes Make the Pirate," the Sam E. Rork comedy, which comes to the Penniman Allen theatre, Saturday, January 30.

With the exception of Errol, virtually none of the comedy stars now on the screen ever achieved any marked degree of stage fame, including Charlie Chaplin. Chaplin, the comedy genius, had not yet ripened to his present greatness of art when he left the English music halls for films.

Buster Keaton, while a member of a vaudeville headline act, was submerged beneath the older fame of his parents. Harold Lloyd's experience has been confined entirely to films. The late Sidney Drew was one of the few stage stars to equal Errol's achievement of stardom on the screen.

Errol has been a New York stage star since 1911, when he first joined the Ziegfeld Follies. The collapsible legs, which made him famous, are again in evidence in "Clothes Make the Pirate," in which he has the role of a heaped Yankee tailor, who runs away from his nagging wife and becomes a pirate.

"THE LAST EDITION"

Vivid, intense melodrama, vitalized in the absorbing atmosphere of the newspaper game and showing the most intimate details of newspaperdom with all their glamour, romance and tragedy, "The Last Edition," Emory Johnson's latest production for F. B. O. comes to the Penniman Allen theatre, Sunday and Monday, January 31 and February 1. Ralph Lewis, who made his roles in "The Third Alarm," "Westbound Limited" and "In the Name of the Law," historic pieces of dramatic acting, is starred by the producer-director in what it is confidently predicted will be the most popular part he has ever played. Mrs. Emille Johnson, mother of the brilliant young director, wrote the story, and the Johnsons in conjunction with their former star have returned to the old combination which provided the public with all of the thrilling success mentioned above, as well as several others.

As Tom MacDonald, the humble assistant foreman in the press room of a great metropolitan daily, he is one of the cogs in the gigantic machine which spews the streets with live-wire news in flaring extras. How his beloved presses play him false, and how he wrecks the huge machine as it is churning out the story of his son's arrest, makes one of the most powerful situations ever registered on the screen. Frances Teague plays the part of the daughter, and with Rex Lease carries the romance of the story splendidly. Lila Leslie, Ray Hallor, David Kirby, Russell Simpson, Wade Boteler, Cuyler Supplee, Leigh Willard and Will Frank compose the remainder of a formidable cast of thespians. Director Johnson has translated this story to the screen with powerful broad strokes, and with that rare understanding of situations which is his greatest gift.

TAX ON INCOMES

Deferred Payments

Article 44. Sale of real estate involving deferred payments.—Deferred payment sales of real estate ordinarily fall into two classes when considered with respect to the terms of sale, as follows:

(1) Installment transactions, in which the initial payment is relatively small (generally less than one-fourth of the purchase price), and the deferred payments usually numerous and of small amount.

(2) Deferred payment sales not on the installment plan, in which there is a substantial initial payment (ordinarily not less than one-fourth of the purchase price), deferred payments being secured by a mortgage or other lien.

In determining how these classes shall be treated in levying the income tax, the question in each case is whether the income to be reported for taxation shall be based only on amounts actually received in a taxing year, or on the entire consideration made up in part of agreements to pay in the future.

Example is Given

Application: Class (1)—A farm was sold in 1924 for $100,000, same having been purchased in 1915 for $25,000 and subsequent improvements added amounting to $20,000 (depreciation on buildings considered) or a total cost of $45,000; a profit resulting in the amount of $55,000. The purchaser makes an initial payment of $20,000 cash, and signs a land contract for the balance covering a period of years and involving comparatively small, monthly payments conveyance of title to be made after all or a stipulated amount of the principal has been paid. The profit of $55,000 in a transaction of this nature may be reported for income tax purposes on a percentage basis, as outlined in Article 45, which provides: "In the two kinds of transactions included in class (1) in Article 44, installment obligations assumed by the buyer are not ordinarily to be regarded as having a fair market value, and the vendor may report as his income from such transactions in any year that portion of each payment actually received in that year which goes to gross profit to be realized when the property is paid for bears to the gross contract price." To illustrate: In the above transaction, the selling price of $100,000, divided into the profit of $55,000, equals 55 per cent. Therefore there should be reported each year as income, 55 per cent of all principal payments received, and at the expiration of the contract, if carried out, there will have been returned as income the total profit of $55,000.

Cost Basis Changed.

If this property was purchased prior to March 1, 1913, the cost basis in determining the profit would be the market value as of that date, plus improvements made subsequently, less depreciation allowed, previous to sale.

The same method of reporting the profit may be used in a transaction such as the above even though there is an immediate transfer of title and a mortgage given by the purchaser for the unpaid balance.

Article 45 further provides: "If the return is made on this basis and the vendor repossesses the property after default by the buyer, retaining the previous payments, the entire amount of such payments, less the profit previously returned, will be income to the vendor and will be so returned for the year in which the property was repossessed, and the property repossessed must be included in the inventory at its original cost to himself (less any depreciation as defined in articles 161 and 162), if the taxpayer chooses as a matter of settled practice consistently followed to treat the obligations of the purchaser as having a fair market value and to report the profit derived from the entire consideration, cash and deferred payments, as income for the year when the sale is made, this is permissible. If so treated, the rule prescribed in article 46 will apply."

Class (2)—If the down payment in the foregoing transaction was $25,000 (25 per cent) or more, the profit of $55,000 would be returned in full, as income for the year 1924.

Provision for Default.

In the case of default by the purchaser, Article 46 also provides that if "the seller regains title to the land by agreement or process of law, retaining payments previously made, he may deduct from his gross income as a loss in the year of repossession any excess of the amount previously reported as income over the amount actually received, and must include such real estate in his inventory, at its original cost to himself (less depreciation previously allowed). If the obligations have no fair market value, the amount of the initial payment shall be applied against and reduce the basis of the property sold and if in excess of such basis, shall be taxable to the extent of the excess. Gain or loss is realized when the obligations are disposed of or satisfied, the amount being the difference between the basis as provided above and the amount realized therefor."

Exchanges.

Article 1572. Exchanges of property.—In the following cases no gain or loss is recognized:

(a) If property held for productive use in trade or business or for investment (not including stock in trade or other property held primarily for sale, nor stocks, bonds, notes, choses in action, certificates of trust or beneficial interest, or other securities or evidence of indebtedness or interest) is exchanged solely for property of a like kind to be held either for productive use in trade or business or for investment. The words "like kind" are defined as having reference to the nature of the property, and not its grade or quality. Therefore under this paragraph no gain or loss is realized by one other than a dealer from the exchange of real estate for other real estate. One kind or class of property may not, under this paragraph, be exchanged for property of a different kind or class, as real estate for personal property. However, a leasehold of a fee with 90 years or more to run will be considered property of like kind to real estate.

Article Is Explicit.

This article is very explicit in its provisions as to no realization of gain or loss where real estate is exchanged solely for real estate held for productive use or for investment by "other than a dealer."

Article 1573. Exchanges of property for other property.—If an exchange would fall within the provisions of article 1572 but for the fact that the property received in exchange consists not only of property permitted by such paragraph to be received without the recognition of gain, but also of other property or money, the gain, if any, to the recipient shall be recognized, but in an amount not in excess of the sum of the money and the fair market value of the other property. No loss from such an exchange will be recognized, however.

Example: A, in 1924, exchanged real estate which he had purchased in 1915 for $5,000 for other real estate having a fair market value of $6,000 and $2,000 in cash. The gain from the transaction, that is, $3,000, is recognized only to the extent of $2,000, the amount which was received in cash.

Exceptions Are Noted.

The various articles of Regulations 66 herein referred to, and the explanation submitted relative thereto, will apply to the majority of real estate transactions, but there are occasionally complicated transactions in which a specific ruling is necessary, and it is suggested that such transactions be taken up directly with the office of the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer making the sale resides.

It should also be borne in mind that the amount of the initial payment does not alone govern the manner of reporting the profit for income tax purposes, but it is to be considered in connection with the terms of the contract or other lien given as security for the balance of purchase price.

PLYMOUTH BOOM FORECASTED

The expansion of Plymouth is only a step away. Practically all other suburban towns around Detroit have had substantial increased valuations and rapidly added population. It is our turn next.

The farms of C. H. Bennett and F. H. Reddeman have been optioned by Norman F. Saur of Detroit, who has organized a syndicate to develop and subdivide the property. Smith, Moss and Mitcheke of Northville and Detroit have made a topographical survey of the property, and preliminary plans have been submitted for study and approval. It is planned to prepare restrictions on the property that will make an ideal home section.

Plymouth already has a well earned name of being a town of beautiful homes. The next few years will undoubtedly bring about changes that will change the entire community. Many Detroit business men will find that here it will be possible to find every modern convenience, especially schools that are surpassed by none. This same business man will find that he can live here, attend to his business in Detroit, send his younger children to these excellent schools, send his older children to the University at Ann Arbor, and keep his entire family under one roof. Plymouth road will soon solve the transportation problem. Motorbus companies are only too eager to establish new lines where there is a demand.

This property just west of Plymouth has the geographical location that makes it one of the finest home sites in Wayne county. Being between two paved highways, has a wonderful natural drainage, is removed from the factory and railroad districts, as well as being only a few minutes from the shopping districts of Plymouth.

Bert Giddings has represented the property owners, and Oscar L. Chaney has represented Mr. Saur in the transaction. Both are members of the local Real Estate Board.

SMALL FARMS
The demand for small farms exceeds the supply, but here are two other investments:

THIRTY ACRES
A money maker, having a reputation of producing the best crops in the neighborhood; a good orchard of about eighty trees bearing, besides several young trees. Good fences. Only one mile from school. Fair barn, granary, hen house and six-room dwelling. As the owner has other interests that requires his attention, this little farm has been priced at $4800.00, and can be handled on very reasonable terms.

SEVEN ACRE MARKET
This is really not a farm, it is a road-side market, with store and gas station combined, and it is located at one of the best corners on the Canton Center road. There is a new modern eight-room home, with bath, furnace, electric lights and automatic water system; there is also a barn 24x30, exceptionally well built and equipped with electric lights. TWO FAMILY DWELLING
Within one block of car line, equipped with electric lights and city water, that can be bought at a price that will enable the purchaser to live in one apartment and pay for the property from the rent of the other. It's a good investment.

This animal which was a young one with fur not of the quality of a matured animal, is supposed to be the first genuine black fox shot in this vicinity and may have been one that escaped from one of the nearby fox farms.—Brighton Argus. Fire, which broke out in a store-room in the center building of Eloise hospital, early Sunday, destroyed a large quantity of flour and other food-stuffs, and, because of the high wind, threatened for a time to become dangerous. Although the Dearborn fire department responded to the alarm, the fire was extinguished with apparatus maintained at the hospital. Damage was confined to the store-room, which is located above the hospital bakery.

Tons of Sunflowers Produced in Canada

The Canadian sunflower crop has grown to enormous proportions, the plant having been found to form excellent silage. Sunflower yields from twenty to twenty-five tons per acre, a great deal more than the average corn crop, and the extent to which it has been cultivated in Canada shows how this plant, until a few years ago despised as a worthless weed, has become a crop of great economic value. The importance of the sunflower was first urged by Dominion government agricultural experts, who stressed its value for silage purposes. Farmers began to plant small fields, and found the experiment profitable. Expansion has lately been so rapid that last year Alberta alone produced a crop of nearly 200,000 tons, at a cost which, in view of the food value of the plant, is declared to be the cheapest silage or fodder crop yet raised. Farmers report that live stock take readily to it.

Jungle Still Unsafe for Tourist Traffic

While a motor omnibus was proceeding along a road through a dense jungle in Ceylon, the driver noticed a herd of wild elephants a short distance ahead. Thinking to scare them off, a passenger in the omnibus took a shot at the leader. The bullet grazed its back, whereupon it bellowed loudly and charged the omnibus, followed by the rest of the herd. The passengers dived beneath the seats, but the driver stuck to his post and accelerated steering the car straight at the leading elephant. As he approached, he swerved past the animal. In a flash the animal stretched out his trunk and tore the hood from the omnibus. A chase of more than a mile followed, but eventually the herd was thrown off.

Nothing Small About Him

Sir Ernest Cassel, the financier, came to London when still a boy and entered the banking house of Biscoffstein & Co. in an insignificant capacity. There he soon gave evidence of extraordinary ability and he advanced rapidly. One day the house was confronted with a difficult situation, the handling of which presented seemingly insuperable obstacles to all. Young Cassel suggested a solution which appeared to be feasible and was intrusted with the task. Having accomplished it successfully, to the complete satisfaction of his superiors, he was called into the office and informed: "We are entirely satisfied with the manner in which you have discharged this undertaking, and, as an indication of our appreciation, we have decided to raise your salary to five hundred pounds." Young Cassel calmly replied, "I suppose you mean five thousand pounds." Whereupon everyone looked with astonishment at everyone else, but Mr. Biscoffstein reported just as calmly and promptly, "Yes, sir"—London Answers.

CHANCERY NOTICE No. 129562

STATE OF MICHIGAN, The Circuit Court for the County of Wayne, In Chancery. Milo F. Corwin and Grace M. Corwin, his wife, Plaintiffs, vs. Henry H. W. Hopkins, Ebenezer Hopkins, Polly Hopkins, Allen P. Hubbard, Martinus L. Shotts, Alonzo Henry, Apollis Sweetland, Apollis Sweetland, Elijah P. Barlow, John Sweetland, Apollis Sweetland, William Cross and Gustavus Cross, or their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, Defendants. AT A SESSION OF SAID COURT, held at the Court Room thereof in the City of Detroit, said County and State, on the 20th day of December, A. D. 1925. PRESENT: The Hon. Alfred J. Murphy, presiding circuit judge.

Had Their Nerve

A well-known lecturer was promised $20 if he would give a talk at a church affair in a small town. He consented, and drove in a motor car for twelve miles through a heavy rain-storm to keep his engagement. Though he had come prepared to speak for only half an hour he found upon his arrival that he was expected to occupy the platform for an hour, which he did. The hall in which the affair was held was poorly lighted and drafty and the lecturer was thankful when he was finally able to leave the platform. An envelope was handed him, and in it he found a $20 bill, together with a note reading: "If you will give us your fee God will aid you in your efforts."

On reading and filing the Bill of Complaint in this cause, from which it satisfactorily appears to the Court that titles, interests, claims, liens or possible rights to the premises described in said Bill, and hereinafter described, which titles, interests, claims, liens or possible rights of said defendants, and each of them, if they ever had any validity, said plaintiffs aver to be barred by the statute of limitations, open, notorious, adverse, hostile, actual, undisputed, exclusive and continuous possession of plaintiffs and their grantors for more than fifteen (15) years last past, and for more than fifteen (15) years since the several apparent rights to the possession thereof accrued in said respective defendants, which said possession has been, during all of said time, and still is, adverse and hostile to the titles, interest, claims, liens or possible rights of said respective defendants, and upon reading the affidavit of Milo F. Corwin, one of said plaintiffs, that it is not known who could not be ascertained after diligent search and inquiry whether their titles, interests, claims, liens or possible rights have been disposed of by will, and that it cannot be ascertained in what State or Country said defendants, or any of them, reside. On motion of John L. Crandell, Attorney for plaintiffs, it is ordered, That Henry H. W. Hopkins, Ebenezer Hopkins, Polly Hopkins, Allen P. Hubbard, Martinus L. Shotts, Alonzo Henry, Apollis Sweetland, Apollis Sweetland, Elijah P. Barlow, John Sweetland, Apollis Sweetland, William Cross and Gustavus Cross, or their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, and the unknown persons who are or may be entitled to claim any of them, or any of them, cause their several appearances to be entered herein in the manner provided by law on or before THREE (3) MONTHS from the date hereof and that this Order be published or served as required by law. ALFRED J. MURPHY, Circuit Judge. Harold V. Raymond, Deputy Clerk.

Strictly Neutral

A junior football match was in progress and great excitement was aroused. One of the backs tackled the opposing center forward, and after much wild kicking both fell. "Foul," said the referee, blowing his whistle. "Who for?" asked the home captain. "Us," came the reply from the highly excited official.—Vancouver Province.

Restoring Books

Books that have lain long in a damp place and acquired a musty smell should be thoroughly aired and exposed to the sunlight for several days. This should arrest the odor. Mildew may be checked by brushing over the books with spirits of wine or a few drops of essential oil, such as oil of cloves, applied with a soft cloth. The books should be dusted frequently.

Delving Into Origin of Two-Dollar "Jinx"

Isn't it odd that the people of the United States should have come generally to regard the two-dollar bill so unlovely as to have boycotted it so that the government has been unable to make it perform the normal purpose which is its proper due?

The United States bureau of efficiency, an agency of the government, recently has investigated the origin of the superstition which led to this boycott. It believes it has found out where it started, although the proof is not positive.

The American dollar had its origin in the old Spanish pieces of eight. Those coins afterward degenerated into pieces of seven, pieces of six. They fluctuated as to their silver content. There were pieces of ten, pieces of twelve, and, finally, pieces of thirteen.

This piece of thirteen was a huge silver coin of a value similar to the old English ten-shilling piece. It was, in fact, a silver two-dollar piece. But it was cursed by having the unlucky thirteen attached to it. It became unpopular, particularly in the area of the Caribbean.

When the new nation of the West evolved a dollar currency the superstition against the two-dollar piece survived. When only the paper note remained as a representative of the old coin of ill omen, the repute of bad luck still attached to it. The dollar had again become a piece of eight and the two-dollar bill was, consequently, no longer a piece of thirteen but a piece of sixteen. But all of this made no difference. It was unlucky and, being so, was scorned by many. The average individual, although he has no conscious faith in such superstitions, instinctively acts upon them to a degree. That degree has been sufficient to prevent the normal circulation of the two-dollar bill.

The only part of the United States where this superstition does not prevail is in New England. There the two-dollar bill circulates freely. In Canada there is no such superstition, and the two-dollar bill is an important element of the currency.—Chicago Tribune.

Austria Claims Typewriter

It is customary in this country to regard the typewriter as an American invention. Austria disputes this claim. A memorial tablet has been unveiled on the house of Peter Mitterdorfer, at Innsbruck, who it is maintained was the real inventor of the typewriter. Says the Putsch Magazine:

Mitterdorfer, who was born in 1822, settled at Innsbruck when he was about forty years old and began to work on his invention. Two years later he completed his first typewriter, a queer machine made of wood, leather, wire and gut strings. Those who contend that he was the real inventor of the typewriter say this machine was found in Mitterdorfer's attic 47 years later. According to the Austrian version of the story, an American named Carlos Gildden saw the Mitterdorfer model at the Imperial Polytechnic Institute at Vienna, copied it and in 1867 constructed a machine on the same plan. This he did in conjunction with C. Latham Shoals and S. W. Spule of Milwaukee.

English Pearls to America

There is a growing demand in America for English pearls. It is said by experts here that transactions in costly ropes of pearls are more frequent now than for a decade. Many persons have been under the impression that there was no money in England for costly jewels, but the dealers say that wealthy manufacturers from the provinces are still good customers. American dealers are buying up jewels that have been given up by the British aristocracy. Ropes of real pearls are seldom worn nowadays except on great occasions. Even the wealthiest women hesitate to appear with necklaces costing $25,000 or more, especially when thieves operate every night in the theater district. As a rule, the owners wear imitations of their costly possessions.

Nothing Else But

A particularly touching "G. B. S." incident is reported from the wilds of Scotland, where an intelligent Highlander fancied he recognized the Great and Only in the person of a gentleman who was approaching him on a lonely road. As the stranger was passing him the pedestrian scanned his features with pardonable curiosity. "Yes, you are quite right," said Mr. Shaw, and he continued on his way.—From the Argonaut.

Skirting on the Indelicate

A nervous curate, addressing a meeting on behalf of the Society for the Abolition of the Short Skirt, said: "I shall watch very closely the efforts in discarding—er—the society's efforts in doing away with this scanty apparel. May I appeal to those ladies here present, who may be wearing short skirts, to at once set a public example (after an embarrassed pause)—er—that is, of course, privately."

Electricity in Japan

Japanese capitalists are making plans for the hydro-electric development of the Choshinka river of the Korean peninsula. It is estimated that this project will produce 347,000 kilowatts of electricity and that the total capital requirements will be about $100,000,000. The electricity produced will be used for light and power purposes as well as for various electro-chemical uses.

Census Not Popular Among Many Peoples

Superstition among natives in the Kenya colony, in Africa, has caused census takers no end of trouble. The natives believe it is unlucky to count themselves or their wives when the official enumeration is taken.

In other countries census taking has sometimes presented similar difficulties, says Tit-Bits. The first Chinese census showed a total population of 28,000,000. It was taken to serve as a basis for the imposition of a poll tax. Several years later another census was taken to organize relief during a famine. The population had grown to 105,000,000.

Infinite trouble is taken in the preparation of the Indian census, but one story told by a British administrator shows there also the way of the census taker is difficult. On one occasion he had to point out to a native enumerator some discrepancy in his figures. "But surely," protested the enumerator, "your honor can supply naughts at discretion?"

South Carolinian Was First American Doctor

The first native of English-speaking America to receive the degree of Doctor of Medicine was William Bull, who died in London, England, about 134 years ago.

He was born in South Carolina in 1710, and in his early manhood went to Europe to study medicine, receiving his M. D. degree at Leyden. He practiced his profession with considerable success in his native colony, and in 1764 became lieutenant governor of South Carolina, a position he retained until the Revolution. As Doctor Bull remained a loyalist, he, in 1782, accompanied the British troops to England after their defeat by the Continental army under General Washington.

Doctor Bull resided in England during the remainder of his life.

Poets to Royalty

The office of the English poet laureate is in the gift of the sovereign of England, said to have been created during the reign of Edward IV (1461-1483). The appellation is derived from a custom of the English universities, which continued until 1812, of presenting a laurel leaf to graduates in rhetoric and versification—the "king's laureate" being a graduated rhetorician in the service of the king. It was formerly the duty of the poet laureate to write an ode on the birthday of the king, but this custom has been discontinued since the reign of George III. The first poet laureate, in the modern sense, was Edmund Spenser, who was granted a pension of £50 by Queen Elizabeth in 1591. Ben Jonson was the first to receive the office by formal letters patent.—Kansas City Star.

Historic London Church

The Church of St. Michael, one of Wren's churches, which has just been reopened after extensive renovations, is one of the most historic churches in London. It is built on the site of that erected by Dick Whittington, and in which he was buried, but the original was so entirely wiped out in the great fire that no trace of Sir Richard Whittington's grave now remains. The renovation scheme included the painting of the walls and ceiling, and the moving of the heavy altar railing forward to form a choir screen. The representations of Moses and Aaron found in all Wren's churches are in this case exquisite statues which formerly stood on pedestals beside the altar. They have now been accommodated in niches in the walls some few feet above their original location.

Christian Martyrs

The dates of the most violent Christian persecutions under Roman emperors were as follows: Nero, 64-68; Domitian, 95; Trajan, 107; Marcus Aurelius, 166-177; Septimius Severus, 193-204; Maximian, 235-238; Decius, 250-252; Valerian, 258-260; Aurelian, 275; Diocletian, 303-313 (the era of the martyrs). The reason for Christian persecution according to Roman historians, was not on account of their religious beliefs so much as by the Christian refusal to conform to the state religion and national law. Belligen was an integral part of Roman law.

Polar Explanation

Early efforts in polar exploration were largely for commercial interests. During the Twentieth century the renewal of exploration in the Arctic and Antarctic regions has been due largely to the spirit of scientific research, but also for geographic achievement. Peary, at the North pole, made a great number of observations which are very valuable in the study of geography, physiography, meteorology and oceanography.

South American Honored

The statue of Gen. Jose de San Martin in Judiciary park is the first statue of a South American to be erected in Washington. It is a replica of one in Buenos Aires and was thought a fitting gift to this country, since San Martin was a patriot to whom many South Americans accord the reverence that people in this country pay to the memory of George Washington.

Picked Up About Town

Dad Plymouth says that most men have but two objects in life. One is to get rich and the other is to get richer.

Sometimes a family tree is responsible for a fellow's ancestors having a shady reputation.

Dad Plymouth says if science keeps on making rapid strides on the farm, it won't be long until a fellow can raise a crop with a necktie on.

A scientist says the ordinary fishing worm has memory. Then why doesn't he remember to dodge the early bird.

Dad Plymouth says his advice to old-timers in this neck-of-the-woods is never to try to press out a celluloid collar while it's hot.

Our idea is that after a fellow has learned to play a saxophone, he ought not to practice too much.

HOUGH SCHOOL NOTES

Reporter—Lottie Szymanski

We have five stars on our Gold Star card. The stars are for: Flag, educational equipment, housekeeping, seating and playground equipment. We are working hard to earn more stars.

Prof. Hoppes and two of our helping teachers, Miss Edith Lundvall and Miss Mary Lehman, visited school from 1 to 2:30 a week ago Thursday afternoon. We had oral language classes during that time. In the Seventh and Eighth grade class, we made speeches.

Wilford Bunya, a former pupil of our school, visited school Thursday, January 21.

Bertha Butler, Mary Merriman and little Margaret Merriman were visitors at school, Wednesday.

Last week we made several good English posters. We also wrote some good, English slogans on the board. Some of the slogans are: "Speak good English and your English will speak for you"; "Speak the language of your flag"; "Whatever is worth saying is worth saying well"; "Good Americans do not use slang—others are requested not to"; "Use good English—there's a reason."

We are planning to organize a sewing club.

Many of the pupils have been absent on account of measles. We hope that they will be able to return soon.

Try a liner ad in the Mail. They bring quick, satisfactory results.

Find Alaskan Summer Heat Hard to Endure

During the summer heat of the temperate zone the Arctic regions look like a haven of rest and comfort from this distance, and it is hard to visualize the conditions which explorers describe.

Summer is very short in the Far North, but it is fiercer in proportion to its limited time. Under a sun shining from twenty to twenty-four hours a day, everything that grows and breeds comes to life with a rush. The land bursts in a very riot of flowers and the earth that in a few weeks now will be ice and snow-bound is carpeted with delicate color. Seventy degrees is cool for parts of the sub-arctic country.

There are inland valleys in Alaska where the mercury rises to 100 degrees in summer and men and animals wilt under the heat. There are places in the Far North of Canada in summer where the mosquitoes are so bad that neither man nor beast can face them, but must flee for their lives.

Incident That Upset Dignity of Inspector

A quantity of milk had arrived in the North and was loaded on an ordinary trolley awaiting shipment by the consignees. The trolley had on it about ten of the large cans in which milk is carried by rail.

Along came a dignified inspector, bent on taking samples of the milk for testing purposes. He mounted the trolley and proceeded to insert the special implement he carried to mix the milk before taking out the samples.

But the front bogey wheels were not well placed for such an operation. The weight of the inspector upset the whole trolley. The contents of all the cans flowed freely over the stone pavement, and the dignified inspector was in the middle of it all. He must have bathed in about 100 gallons of milk and he had to be picked up and put into a cab to go home and change his clothes.

The language of the milkmen waiting for the milk could not be printed.—London Answers.

Prolific Tomato Plant

The bureau of plant industry says that it is not beyond the bounds of possibility to produce one bushel of tomatoes from a single plant. This yield is received, however, by giving individual attention to the plant, allowing plenty of room, liberal feeding and fertilizing. A trellis must also be erected over which the plant can extend its shoots. There is little advantage in trying to get a maximum yield from a single plant, for when the attention is centralized on one plant rather than six the plant takes the space of five or six ordinary plants and the possible failure, due to insect pests or disease, is greater. As many as fifteen pounds of tomatoes can be gathered from one vine without abnormal effort on the part of the grower.

Tribute to Teacher

Frank, age six, was a mischievous lad in school and along with several others, just as bad, managed to give the first-grade teacher no little trouble.

His schoolhouse was situated on a busy street, so that the teacher always went with the children to the street. Frank was telling his father about some of the pranks they played and then began to explain how the teacher coached them never to cross the street without looking both ways for machines, for they might be killed.

Frank exclaimed in surprise: "Yes, sir, dad, as mean as some of those kids are she doesn't want them to be killed. What do you think of that?"

The Highest Mountains

"You see them mountains?" exclaimed the driver of a jaunting car in Ireland to an American passenger. The tourist admitted that he did see them.

"Well, thim's the highest mountains in Oirland."

"You don't say so?"

"Oo do indade! An' you see thim mountains?" the driver went on, sticking the whip toward another range. "Thim's the highest in the wurrld!"

The American expressed his incredulity. "Surely not!" he protested.

"Sure, it's thim!" the driver retorted, bridling, "exceptin' av cowas, for thim is furrin parts!"

Poetry Restored

Let poetry once more be restored to her ancient truth and purity; let her be inspired from heaven, and, in return, her incense ascend thither; let her exchange her low, vulgar, trifling subjects for such as are fair, useful, and magnificent; and let her execute these so as at once to please, instruct, surprise and astonish; and then, of necessity, the most inveterate ignorance and prejudice shall be struck dumb, and poets yet become the delight and wonder of mankind.—James Thomson.

Buick Performance is Better

AT ZERO: BUICK Automatic Heat Control means easy starting and smooth running immediately. In every temperature, from Key West to the Canadian border, this exclusive Buick feature insures gasoline economy, automatically, and at all speeds.

Buick mechanical 4-wheel brakes make secure, footing that is inescapable. Through two winters and two summers half a million Buicks have proved the all-year dependability of the Buick type of brakes. Their direct, mechanical action is not affected by weather changes.

And not even a blizzard will harm the Buick Valve-in-Head engine. Every point where metal would rub metal is lubricated under pressure. A flood of oil is forced everywhere, as soon as the engine starts.

You will not find another car today, regardless of its price, with its performance so perfectly protected. Winter or summer, a Buick is better!

GREAT REVIVAL MEETINGS

Come and bring your friends to hear Dr. L. D. Lamkin, noted evangelist, at the Livonia Community church. Song service every evening at 7:30, led by large chorus, followed by revival sermon.

The Burtch family orchestra will be present Sunday evening. All are welcome.

Everybody should feel this a great opportunity to hear Dr. Lamkin, as he is a great man of God, a man you are not often privileged to hear in a small town of this size. If you hear him once, surely you will want to hear him again.

Dr. and Mrs. L. D. Lamkin, who are now engaged in a gracious meeting at the Community church of which Rev. Hellen Phelps is pastor, received this beautiful commendation from the pastor of the church in Murphysboro, Ill., where they have just closed a great meeting.

"Dr. L. D. Lamkin and wife of Vincennes, Ind., have just closed a great meeting with the First Baptist church of Murphysboro, Ill. One hundred and thirty were converted and baptized. Most of the number will be baptized. This is the third successful meeting Dr. Lamkin has held with the First Baptist church of Murphysboro. Dr. and Mrs. Lamkin came to the suffering, sorrowing, storm-stricken city of Murphysboro, and gave as their donation their services. The wonderful spirit manifested by these good, Christian people, has endeared them to all. Dr. Lamkin is a consecrated man of God, eloquent and powerful in the gospel messages which he brings, clothing them in such beauty and simplicity that all hear and understand.

"Mrs. Lamkin is a woman of unusual ability and consecration, a real helpmeet in the work.

"The city of Murphysboro, and the Baptist people in particular, have been greatly inspired and helped in their time of spiritual need, by these two workers, together with God. We commend to any pastor who desires a stirring, instructive and constructive campaign in his church for the winning of souls and the inspiration of the Christian people."

H. T. Abbott, Pastor.

Good Reason for Returning

Commodore Albert R. Armitage of the British navy, in his book "Cadet to Commodore" gives the following glimpse of the explorer Shackleton in the role of a reporter: "Shackleton and some of his comrades joined the Isis in Port Said on their homeward journey after his wonderful dash for the pole. He was cheery and full of vim as ever. The publisher of his book, 'The Heart of the Antarctic'—a copy of which he sent to me—several reporters, and Italian officials met him. I took him to my home, and then to our agency, where he composed a number of telegrams. He wanted, so he said, a 'catchword.' He walked up and down the room, muttering several phrases to himself. 'I've got it at last,' he cried. 'Death lay ahead and food behind, so I had to return.'"

Dancing to Paradise

It is the belief of the Ponapeans, a tribe of South Sea Islanders, that unless you are a good dancer you will never go to heaven!

According to their creed, every soul passing to the "Great Beyond" is obliged to cross a bridge guarded by demoniacal watchmen waiting to pounce upon him and draw him down to the lower regions.

If, however, the soul is able to dance across the bridge the watchmen will be so engrossed in studying the movements that they will forget their duty and, before they have time to realize it, the soul will slip past them into paradise!

Somewhat Different

An aged divine, whose enunciation was none of the clearest, insisted upon using big words on every possible occasion. One day, after conducting a children's service, he was waited upon by a deputation of parents. "Our children," they complained, "inform us that you told them they should always be up to mischief." The puzzled cleric, sure of having said nothing of the sort, asked the parents to wait while he consulted his notes. Then it developed that what he had really said was that they should always be "optimistic."

Michigan's Distinction

In the case of Michigan the people adopted a state constitution and elected a complete set of state officials, and later that constitution was accepted by congress without re-adoption, the original delegate was seated in congress without re-election and the original state officials continued to serve without re-election after the formal admission of the state by congress on January 26, 1837. From November 1, 1835, to the date of admission Michigan was de facto a state, although not technically a state in the Union.

Indefinite Term
The word "few" has never been authoritatively interpreted to mean a definite number. The word is necessarily indefinite and implies a small number, not many. In general the number is above two. The word is relative in respect to the number to which it is compared. If a thousand were suspected, an attendance of a hundred would be a few, while if a hundred were a minimum, an attendance would mean a few.

THIEVES STEAL AUTO, BABY AND ALL

We take the following from the Daily Ypsilantian Press of Tuesday, January 26th:

Nine months' old Raymond Henry Doane, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Doane, South Lyon, is safe home again today after being unintentionally kidnapped by auto thieves, abandoned in the car and left to spend the night alone on a side road off M-23 near Crane's Corners.

Unless baby Raymond was smothered with kindness he will survive the experience. This afternoon he was taken to University Hospital, Ann Arbor, after being restored to his nearly distracted parents, and physicians were to examine him in an attempt to determine whether the child is seriously ill. As he has always been a healthy baby, it is hoped he will soon recover.

Babe in Back of Car
Mr. and Mrs. Doane, who operate a dairy, drove to Ann Arbor Monday evening to deliver milk, and take back with them a trunk belonging to a guest at a South Lyon home. Baby Raymond was tucked in his little crib and placed in the back of the covered delivery truck.

Before starting the return trip, Mr. and Mrs. Doane made a stop at a confectionery store, parking their machine outside. They were in the store but a few moments, but when they returned their car, baby, cab, trunk and all were missing.

Ann Arbor police were at once notified and local officers called. The car was plainly marked with the name of the dairy, but it was not seen here. Detroit police were called, and when no trace of the car was forthcoming, a Detroit radio station was asked to broadcast a description of the machine.

Relatives Help
Mrs. Doane before her marriage was a Buneyea girl, and her relatives in Belleville were called. The father and brothers searched roads in that district nearly all night without avail, and all friends and neighbors were enlisted in the search.

After hours of fruitless waiting in Ann Arbor, the distracted parents returned home.

This morning when W. E. Olds, who lives on the old Frank Begole farm in Pittsfield township took his children to school, he discovered the abandoned delivery car parked in the middle of the road, about 50 rods from his house. Investigating, he found the baby cab and called his wife.

Raymond Henry was nearly suffocated.

Thieves Wrap Babe Securely
In an effort to keep the child warm, the thieves had wrapped and securely planned his blanket about him, so he could not possibly wriggle out of them and become cold. So solicitons were they for his welfare, that he was much too warm. His little clothes were wet with perspiration, and he fairly rasped for breath.

As Mr. and Mrs. Olds were investigating, Charles Parrish drove up. They took the child to the Olds home and at once called the parents, whose name was plainly painted on the sides of the car. Borrowing another machine, they came at once, reaching the Olds home about noon.

It is thought the thieves saw Mr. Doane take the trunk into the machine and stole it for that reason, as it had been broken into and thoroughly ransacked. Whether anything was stolen is not known. Before abandoning the car, they placed a blanket over the radiator, and left it where the first passerby on the road could not avoid seeing it.

NEWBURG

Interest is keeping up here in the church services and Sunday-school. Mrs. Greer's class of boys has had the banner for three Sabbaths. Harry Lutz of Detroit, and Miss Lily Deham of Ann Arbor, sang a duet during the church service.

The church was filled Sunday evening, to listen and see the moving pictures under the direction of Miss Francis Knight, secretary of the M. E. Children's Home at Farmington. Few realized the great work that is being accomplished by this institution until after hearing the talk and seeing the pictures of this beautiful home and the little children who would otherwise be homeless were it not for the donations. There were 18 in the chorus choir. Miss Lily Deham sang a solo in her usual pleasing manner.

Everyone should be out next Sunday evening, to listen to a vital subject, that of the opium traffic and other drugs, by a speaker from Detroit.

The L. A. S. will hold their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Watson, who resides in the house next to the L. A. S. hall. Dinner will be served at noon. Everyone cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith and Mrs. Ella Wright were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Stark, at their new home in Plymouth, last week Wednesday.

Mrs. Hattie Shields has been on the sick list for the last ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Smith motored to St. John's last week Wednesday, to visit relatives. Miss Glenn Brown, a cousin of Mr. Smith, accompanied them on their return home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James McNabb, and daughter, Joy, and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Joy and daughters, Leona and Lydia, attended the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James Joy, at New Hudson, Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Joy were former residents of Newburg. Their many friends extend congratulations.

Mrs. Emily LeVan spent last Wednesday with Mrs. C. E. Ryder.

Mr. and Mrs. James Norris and son, Walter, of Stratmoor, spent Sunday afternoon at the parental home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Harland of Farmington, were callers at the Ryder home, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Detroit, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Guthrie last Sunday.

The Queen Esther Circle will meet Friday evening, with Miss Marian Taylor, at 8:00 o'clock.

Miss Clara Yester and Mrs. Zielasko are on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant DeFoe leave Sunday, January 31st, for New York, and on February 3rd, will sail for Jamaica, to be gone a month or more.

Mrs. Jaynes entertained the L. A. S. last Wednesday. A good many ladies attended, but would like to have more interested in this work. The ladies are planning work for the Easter bazaar. Let everyone try and have several articles ready for the next meeting.

The next meeting of the L. A. S. will be with Mrs. Clyde Ford at Dearborn. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to come, especially the gentlemen. Dinner will be served at noon.

INGENUITY SHOWN IN FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

Remarkable Escapes Made by Prisoners.

While it is difficult to imagine a more toilsome task than cutting through thick masonry with a pair of scissors, as the two prisoners who escaped recently from Pentonville did, there are cases on record of even less likely tools being employed for a similar purpose, says the London Mail. Five years ago all the convicts confined in Marion county jail, Indianapolis, escaped through one of their number managing to obtain a watchmaker's saw, which was smuggled to him inside the cover of a small book. The bars of the cells were immensely thick and made of specially tempered steel, but this prisoner managed to remove their temper by wrapping round them a cloth saturated in formaldehyde, the prison disinfectant. The sawing took many days, the marks being hidden by soap.

Alfred Thomas, an English burglar, was employed in his cell at boxmaking. He cut from his bench a long flat piece of iron, and fashioned it into a chisel. A metal pin he took off the leg of his table, replacing it with a wooden pin, and inserting the metal nut with a piece of brown bread. Armed with pin, chisel, and the leg of the table as mallet, he cut away the wood around the lock of his cell door, opened it, and began to grope his way to freedom. Reaching the jailer's room, he found the keys, but came to a door which none of the keys would unlock. He went back, found a knife, and picked the lock. He reached the exercise yard to find great iron railings that could not be scaled. Undismayed, he dug out under them, taking out a load of stones which would take a laborer a day to put back. He wrote on the wall: "A pleasant night!" Then he vanished.

The notorious criminal Vanden Weparte was confined in the condemned cell, underground in Lille jail. Somehow he melted down his powder mug and made two skeleton keys, having first taken an impression of the lock with bread pulp. He scaled the interior wall, nine feet high, climbed another wall by a waterspout, then dropped 15 feet with the aid of a blanket taken from his cell. Breaking into a tailor's shop, he exchanged his prison uniform for a smart suit, helped himself to money and cigars, and has not since been heard of.

Too Much Talk

Charles M. Schwab at a banquet in Loretto, was cornered by a young man of great loquacity. This young man evidently believed that his chance in life was now come, and he talked away at Mr. Schwab for more than half an hour. At last he said meaningfully:

"You are a good judge of character, Mr. Schwab. What quality do I most need in order to succeed?"

"Well, young man," the street magnate answered, "I've listened to you for some time now, and it seems to me that you need what is on that door over there."

"Ho, ha, ha! Push, eh? Pull, eh. Ha, ha, ha! Very clever! Push and pull! Is that what you think I need, Mr. Schwab?"

"No," said Mr. Schwab; "I think you need a device to make you shut up."

Parisian Relics Going

One by one the old Latin quarter resorts are disappearing or being so transformed that they are unrecognizable. The latest to be transformed is the Steinbach, a brasserie which for years has been a late-hour rendezvous for bohemians of the Boulevard Saint-Michel and Montparnasse. Thirty years ago it enjoyed a great reputation as a literary center, where gathered poets and writers and artists of the 'coerie. The brasserie has now become a restaurant. And the Grillon, the cabaret artistique, has gone. The Grillon was founded in 1912 and after war-time vicissitudes reopened five years ago and gained a reputation among those who enjoy witty songs well sung.

Electricity From Geysers

Investigation of the geysers or steam wells of Sonoma county, California, develops that these geysers, if harnessed to electric generators, could produce about 50,000 kilowatts of electrical energy. These wells, which are about seventy-five miles north of San Francisco, are seven in number and upon engineers' reports, plans are being made to construct a generating station with a capacity of 25,000 kilowatts of electrical energy.

The Bible in France

Hoping to make the Bible a "best seller" in France, as it is in English-speaking countries, M. Francois Bernouard, a publisher, is going to issue an edition in 30 volumes, with Hebrew and Greek texts opposite the French, and with woodcuts scattered liberally throughout. M. Bernouard is also a poet, whose work has found its way into many French anthologies.

Uncover Ancient Temple

Below Ashtaroth temple, discovered at Bersan in Palestine, which dates back to about the time of Rameses II, is another and earlier temple, containing a large altar with steps leading up to it and a quantity of beads and jewelry. The finds include a stone hawk wearing the crown of North and South Egypt.

"A man with a small income," says Dad Plymouth, "has no business with a large family and a second-hand car at the same time—but you can't make him believe it."

I can't see where Adam had any kick coming," declares Dad Plymouth. "He could get in at 3 o'clock in the morning without having his wife accuse him of being out with some other woman."

Yes! there is a better gas

Of course there is. The same as there is better syrup, better ginger ale, better vinegar, better cider, grape juice, orangeade, or any other liquid made by man.

You can't tell better gasoline by looks or taste. Neither can you tell varnish, kerosene or a hundred other liquids.

But Better Gasoline explodes quicker and harder. Any engine will show the difference. Ordinary observation will prove what ordinary common sense has always told you—there is a better gas.

FRENCH GIRL'S ODD POWER OF VISION

Apparently Able to See While Blindfolded.

Many times there had come to the attention of Jean Labadie, noted French scientist, the cases of men and women who claimed the uncanny ability of seeing while blindfolded; and in each case the claimant had proved to be a fraud.

In this case, however, a group of doctors in the Paris hospital had testified that the young woman actually was able to read through the skin of her face, with her eyes covered.

He took the utmost precautions to close her eyes. Then he went into a dark room and with his hands inside a black box tore off at random a sheet of calendar paper.

"What do you see?" he asked. "It is a sheet of a calendar," she said. "It is the twenty-ninth of July."

Labadie looked at the paper. To his amazement, she was right. Then he took a small wooden box and removed the lower half of one side. On the lid he attached an electric light so that it illumined a playing card laid flat on the bottom of the box.

"Do you see anything now?" Labadie queried. "Yes. It is a playing card—the three of diamonds."

Once more she was right. Seemingly the only explanation was that she had seen the card through the skin of her forehead.

Now profoundly interested, Labadie applied similar tests to three little girls, eleven, thirteen and fourteen years old, living in Nay, southern France, who were reported to have even more remarkable powers.

How was it done? Labadie does not pretend to know, says Popular Science Monthly. He does not believe, however, that there is necessarily a special organ of parapsychic vision in the skin.

COULD NOT BELIEVE CONFLICT WAS OVER

Kansas Doughboys Considered News a Fake.

A long trudging column of mud-spattered Kansas doughboys wound in and out and up and down the hills above the valley of the Mouse. It was late afternoon of November 10, 1913, says the Emporia Gazette. The lead on sky was rapidly closing in on the cold, damp woods. The column came to a jerky halt and the men fell out of line, some sprawling at the edge of the road, some leaning back with wet packs propped up by their rifles, others squatting on their steel helmets in the mud of the road.

Far down the next hill came the sound of a whirring motor. A motorcycle came into view ahead, its wheels shooting spray aside as it tore through the slime and water. Instinctively the soldiers cleared the road. The rider was slowing his speed and as he passed the column he turned and shouted two words to the restless doughboys: "Guerre fini!" The men knew he meant the war was over.

But there was no shout, no joyous cheer. It was just another one of the many rumors that had been thrust at this plodding column all that day. They wouldn't believe it unless General Pershing himself told them—and, sure enough, the march was starting again. "Fall in," came the order, and the hobnails again took up the business of the day.

As darkness fell the column entered a partially ruined village. More rumors, more scoffing. Didn't the "top" give orders to be prepared to move out before morning? Billets were found in barns and houses; lights flickered about the rolling kitchens; the odor of damp wood burning quickly gave way to the sweetness of frying bacon and boiling coffee. In an hour the soldiers slept.

But no hurried order came to move on before dawn. The men slept late, and when they awoke the sun was shining. Still more rumors came with breakfast and afterward, while the men were fighting for places in the jostling line to the canteen with hope of buying something sweet. Maybe there was something to these rumors after all.

A few of the curious, looking doubtfully at the long line ahead of them, dropped out and started toward headquarters. As they arrived a sergeant-major was tacking a sheet of tissue paper on the outside of the brigade headquarters office. It was a dimly printed carbon copy of an army order, but it announced that "On the eleventh hour of 11 November hostilities would cease on all fronts."

The war was over!

Hurrying On

All this company is hurrying on, plainly in search of something badly wanted. Impressions? Yes. Impressions of a never ending road, a thousand farms, no parking, signs, successive towns passed through at 20 miles an hour, back axles of no end of cars. Thrills? Yes. Thrills of scenery worth stopping for if there were only time, of police on motor cycles masked as fellow tourists, of gorgeous sunsets well worth watching if the top were down, of getting home, at last, without a puncture.

Trophies? Yes. Trophies to bring back memories of this day of travel: grass baskets, toy balloons, and paper knives; bead bags, artificial fruit and seashells with an echo. A family of six will drive 200 miles to bring home three balls of glass with imitation butterfly inside. We are a great people for collecting local fauna. It was a cynical German who guessed, in war days, that France was fighting for Alsace-Lorraine, Britain for the channel and America for souvenirs.

French Study Salesmanship

Foundation of a school of salesmanship, on American lines, is contemplated by the Paris chamber of commerce as a result of a report by Andre Daudet, who recommends the adaptation of American methods to the commercial conditions of France and the mentality of the French people. It is proposed to institute practical courses for girls wishing to become proficient saleswomen, and to train women to be superintendents, capable of reorganizing the systems of salesmanship of commercial houses and of instructing staffs in the new methods.

Those Goose Livers

"Goose liver sausage is all a myth," declared a Grand River avenue meat market proprietor. "The liver of a goose weighs only a few ounces and it would take several dozen to make one ring. All liver sausages are 90 per cent pork, with just enough liver placed within to give them flavor. Perhaps there may be one or two goose livers in a ring of goose liver sausage, but no more."—Detroit News.

The Gate

Betty, age three, and big sister Dorothy had been to the grocery. Upon their arrival home, Dorothy stopped to fasten the gate. Betty went into the house.

Proper Self-Respect

The self-respecting man looks up to nobody, down upon nobody, but keeps his conscience clean enough to enable him to look everybody squarely in the face, and, when necessary, express his own honest opinions.—Grit.

Innocence

Just before the polo match one of the players was talking to a lady friend who sat in the enclosure.

"Have you ever seen a polo match before?" he inquired.

"No, never," she replied, "but I'm sure I shall enjoy it, and I wish you'd hurry up and begin, for I'm just dying to see those beautiful ponies kick the ball about."

Mother Not Present at This Christening

What most strikes an outsider at christenings in peasant Italy, where the still hovers, around 1750, is the glorification of the father and godfather at the baby's expense, writes a correspondent of the Baltimore Sun.

If the mother is tactful she stays in bed, encouraging the assumption that it is entirely an affair for her husband's family to settle. The father and godfather swear eternal friendship. Indeed, to be "compare" with a man means that you will not only help him in trouble, lend him money and trust his family as your own, but if necessary will accept his politics.

The "compare" gives the father a silk handkerchief and the mother an expensive a present as he can afford, usually a coral brooch. Then he presents three pounds of macaroni, two pounds of biscuits, two pounds of coffee and three bottles of Marsala to the christening feast. Perhaps the godmother will have given the baby a christening cap or a tiny silver ring, but more often than not he gets nothing. The godmother, in her best shawl, with the fringes that sweep the ground, carries the baby, preceded by a bustling small girl, who hurries in front with a carafe of water for the font and a cross-stitch towel on which the priest wipes his hands.

The father and "compare," in their best blacks, join them at the porch and candies are distributed, the more candies the better the "figura." The priest asks the godfather if he knows his Paternoster, and reassured by an encouraging if inaccurate answer, proceeds with the christening while the onlookers fight for candles.

Motors in the Desert

"Life is a pilgrimage and a weary journey," said the great Omar Khayyam, tentmaker, poet and astronomer, when he hoisted himself on his camel for the journey to the holy places of Islam. It is doubtful whether the great philosopher would have sent up this sad lament had he lived in the new East. For from Damascus had Beyruth comes word along with other less happy news that motor coaches of the latest American type are now leaving on schedule over the new roads of Palestine for Mecca and Medina, to carry the faithful to the Kaaba and the cave of the prophet. Omar often regretted that he could not enjoy both the company of Agape and still visit the hallowed shrines. Was it then in a trance of clairvoyance that he saw the pilgrims of later centuries journey in automobiles when he spoke to Nikki with the softest inflection this exquisite quatrain: "Seat thyself with me and a sack of ruby wine, draw the silken curtains, depart from all the world, flying through the empire of a sultan." And still it it were a taxi, where the meter clicks and ticks, even Omar might have preferred the camel.—Pierre Van Paasena, in the Atlantic Constitution.

Bullbats Eat Weevils

The bullbat, hitherto held in light esteem in Georgia, his habitat, is making friends among cotton planters because he feeds on the boll weevil.

The Adel (Ga.) correspondent of the Tipton (Ga.) Gazette reports this story: "One of the members of the Farmers' union of Cook county, F. T. McDaniel, said there were a large number of bullbats flying over his cotton field every afternoon and he believed they were eating boll weevils. So he killed one of the bullbats to see."

"Cutting open the craw of the bullbat, Mr. McDaniel said he found 96 boll weevils, a fourth of which were still alive."

The Adel correspondent thereupon gives this advice: "Don't kill bullbats. Protect them. They are worth their weight in gold to the cotton farmer."

Wrecked "Apparition"

As a bull was passing down a street in Frederick, Md., with a herd of cattle, he leaped up on the sidewalk and suddenly became aware of another bull gazing at him from a plate glass window in an automobile saleroom. He leaped at the apparition of himself while startled salesmen inside the building fled in haste. After thoroughly wrecking the glass and finding no bull the animal returned to his herd.

Sweden's Automobiles

The number of automobiles in Sweden, government statistics show, increased from 8,808, or one for each 705 inhabitants in 1910, to 68,420, or one for each 95 inhabitants at the end of 1924. The cars are mostly American made. The government's income from motor business last year included $1,422,814 taxes on automobiles; $774,000 on tires and $1,567,000 on gasoline.

Post in Far North

The world's most northerly post, also the most object of any bureau habitation, is to be constructed next year for the Canadian police at the far end of Ellesmere Island. Building materials and two years' supplies have been cached within easy freighting distance of the point. Men will be detailed for patrol duty on the lonely shores of Eiel strait.

Sign of Real Progress

Talk as you will about the ingenuity and hardihood of our forefathers, it must be noted that a young man of today is able to pack more stuff on the running boards of a stiver than his great-grandfather could pile on a covered wagon.—Washington News Journal.

If you know of an item of news, please or send it to the Mail office.

Speaking of taxes, why wouldn't it be a good idea to abolish all the nuisance taxes and tax all the nuisances?

Some of our Plymouth citizens who are ranting loudly for a full payment of European debts, could set a good example here at home by settling up a few they owe local merchants.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

The Commission, at a special meeting Monday evening, opened four bids for a steam heating plant for the village hall. Albert Williams was the low bidder, and will immediately install an American Radiator Company Ideal boiler and a single pipe gravity distributing system. It is hoped to have this complete by the time of the primary election.

Don't forget the registration day, January 30th. If you are now registered, you are all set. If you have not registered before in the village books at the hall, you should appear Saturday. Don't confuse our registration books with those Miss Durfee keeps for the township.

We are getting some new election booths, which can be folded up when not needed, and stored away.

The police department men are guests today of the Rotary Club, to hear Lieutenant Carmody, the Detroit finger print expert.

Edward Jarskey, after serving as motorcycle officer since last spring, has resigned as a full time policeman, and while keeping his membership on the force is working at the Ford Waterford plant. Fred Reiman is taking his place as school traffic officer during the noon periods. Mr. Jarskey's courteous, efficient work for the village was much appreciated.

WOMAN'S CLUB

The Woman's Club of Plymouth will meet at the home of Mrs. Irving Blunk, this week Friday, January 29th, at 2:15 p. m. The business meeting will be followed by a good program. The problem to be discussed is, "Hereditry and the Causes for Racial Betterment."

The meeting for Friday, February 3th, will be held in the music room of the school building, instead of the home of Mrs. George Wilcox. A three-reel film has been procured from the Tuskegee Institute, showing the industrial and social progress of the colored race. A splendid musical program is being prepared. This is all made possible through the courtesy of Supt. G. A. Smith. Let us all cooperate by being present.

7-UP

A very exciting evening was witnessed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Johnson of Livonia Center, last Thursday evening, January 21st, the occasion being Mr. Johnson's birthday. A few near friends were invited in to spend the evening. Mr. Johnson and Jessie Ziegler, claiming to be the champions at playing 7-up, and have been in many a contest for the past two years, lost ten straight games to Wm. Garchow and Heon Ziegler. They now hold the championship, and are ready to take on all comers. A delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Johnson, for the guests present. This birthday Mr. Johnson will remember if he lives to be a hundred. The new champs claim the former champions never made such a winning record as the present champs.

PERRINSVILLE SHADOW SOCIAL

The shadows were generously hidden upon, making the affair on the whole a paying success as the proceeds amounted to $35.57. The proceeds of the social will be used to buy more hot lunch equipment for the Perrinsville school. Much thanks and appreciation are due to Mr. and Mrs. Bock for the use of their home, and for the splendid entertainment. Sincere appreciation is also given to Mrs. Henry Klatt for her interest and efforts to make the social a success.

How's Your Coal Pile?

It's a good idea to bear in mind that there's going to be a long hard pull on the coal pile between now and actual spring weather.

Old February and windy March both have a habit of dishing out some mighty unpleasant weather. And having to scrape the bottom of the coal-bin doesn't add anything but more discomfort.

IT CAN'T SPOIL

No matter how much you have on hand, you will only burn just as much as you need—and if there is any left later on it will keep.

YOU'D BETTER HAVE A LITTLE EXTRA FUEL IN THE HOUSE DURING FEBRUARY AND MARCH THAN TO WISH YOU HAD.
