

LEADERS SAY BUSINESS ON MEND RAPIDLY

Review of Worthwhile Statements by Leading Executives Most Optimistic

Business is better! That was the prediction for the beginning of 1931. The prediction was made by many of the great business leaders of the country.

Nearly a month of the new year has passed and already there are many things to indicate that the predictions are going to come true.

Readers of the Plymouth Mail will be interested in the following statements taken from recent articles, editorials and business forecasts made recently.

The speaker with the aid of his splendid assortment of slides, carried the audience through all the details of rearing the pigeons and of training them for military duty.

Rotarians Hear Capt. Shawvan

FORMER PIGEON OFFICER IN CARRIER SERVICE TELLS EXPERIENCE.

Last Friday noon the Rotary club of Plymouth had the pleasure of hearing a most interesting and instructive address by Captain J. K. Shawvan.

Captain Shawvan's address, which was greeted with numerous smiles, dealt with the development of the pigeon service during the late war.

JOHN BURGER, LIFE LONG RESIDENT, DIES

John Burger, one of the oldest residents of Plymouth, passed away at his home on Schuyler road.

The death of Miss Gertrude Stetzer occurred Thursday morning at 3:35 a. m.

The following interesting thoughts are taken from the December 31st issue of "The Business Week".

"Another thing to remember about forecasts is that in periods of depression the chances are overwhelmingly on the side of any forecast for improvement.

"Drawing on the great reservoir of American common sense and good judgment, leaving hysteria to the thoughtless, if we keep out fear solidly on the ground and our heads cool and act with foresight and deliberation, we will pass out of this present cloud of depression."

"Business men expect business to improve in 1931. This turn of business psychology after the beginning of the year is probably the most important factor which will make for recovery.

"It is just as important to catch water when it is raining as it is to make hay while the sun is shining."

KIWANIS CLUB BRINGS JOY TO BOYS AND GIRLS

Local Organization Helps In Good Work At University Hospital.

Did you see a lot of good looking business men running around town Tuesday afternoon with a string tied around their little fingers on their right hands?

Well it wasn't tied there by wife—but not at all.

Dr. Freeman B. Hoyer knows just about as much about the habits of men as do women.

That's why he tied the strings around their fingers at Tuesday noon's meeting of the Kiwanis club—had he something he didn't want the Kiwanians to forget.

To make a rather long story short, Dr. F. A. Lendum and other members of the Kiwanis club visited the children's unit of the University of Michigan hospital last week.

Tuesday Dr. Lendum told the Kiwanis club something of what he saw and of the good work of the Kiwanis club of Ann Arbor in trying to bring a little joy into the lives of hundreds of helpless little boys and girls.

Plymouth Kiwanians have before them the work of the Ann Arbor club and at the last meeting of the board of directors of the club it was decided that something more should be done for the bed-ridden boys and girls in the University hospital.

Dr. Hoyer explained that this aid could be given without the donation of cash.

"I have asked you to tie that string around your finger and keep it there until you get home. Then I want you to ask your wife if there isn't some dust of garment that you have or some member of your family might have that can be presented to the club.

When Kenneth Corey goes around Friday night with his truck to gather up the gifts of the Kiwanians, need less to say he will have a collection of various articles of wearing apparel that will bring a very neat little sum of money.

Hockey Team Takes Two Games

LOCALS TRIM TWO STRONG TEAMS IN FAST GAMES LAST WEEK. Last Friday night Kas-Tek hockey team made their second appearance this season at the local rink and this time the Plymouth skated over the frozen ice with a 3-2 decision over the Detroit team.

Holiday, the little, fast skating right winger of the visitors broke through proved, meant the difference between victory and defeat.

Capture Fourth League Game. Sunday afternoon the Wyandotte aggregation with their recently added strength endeavored to spoil Plymouth's record in the Southern Michigan Hockey League and at the end of the first twenty minutes of play Wyandotte was leading 1-0, which looked as if they might go home with a victory to their credit.

Eddie Dobbs was the outstanding player of the game, securing all three goals. The first marker was made in the last three minutes of the second period, when Black passed out from the corner to Dobbs who slipped the disc passed the goal tender without giving him a chance to save.

The right defense for Wyandotte tried to stop Twirk, the heavy right defense for Plymouth, who was headed gowayward, full steam ahead, and in trying to block Twirk was injured so he had to be carried from the ice.

Sunday Plymouth went to Detroit to play. Then on Wednesday, Jan. 21st, Detroit came to Plymouth at 8:15. The outcome of this game will be anticipated with an insatiable interest.

A record breaking crowd is expected as Dearborn and Plymouth face each other in this hockey game.

REMODELING SOUTH MAIN STREET BLOCK

George Robinson and Henry Ray Expending Much Time and Money On Investment.

George H. Robinson and Henry Ray expect to have completed some time during the last of February, all of the improvements and remodeling now under way on their business block and apartment structure at 200-202-204 South Main Street.

When the work is finished Plymouth will have two new apartments as complete in every detail as any that can be found in Detroit.

The apartment will be the first in Plymouth provided with speaking tubes from the first floor.

While workmen right now are busy remodeling the basement and interior of the building, as soon as weather conditions permit, the outside will be painted and made to look just like new.

The basement has been dug out and lowered two feet and because the building sits back ten or twelve feet from the sidewalk, it is planned to provide two entrances, one to the basement from the outside. There will be a dividing wall so that two good sized storage rooms can be rented.

All new windows have been placed on the second floor and the roof rebuilt.

The improvement is a good one and both Mr. Robinson and Mr. Ray feel that right now is an excellent time for work of this kind to be done.

The Aerocar is furnished with modernistic wicker and plush furniture, a radio, telephone, barometer, and ship's clock. At the rear is a room for carrying the shoe samples. The Aerocar weighs 1200 pounds and was built at a cost of $5,000.

The Enna Jettick Co. now has four of the Aerocar's making tours over the country.

WINNING SUCCESS

After the Peace of Paris in 1763, Captain Duval, a French privateer, by his daring struck terror to the British Merchant Marine and became the most dreaded pirate of the time. The British authorities put a large bounty on his head, and at last, hard pressed, he reached the coast of North America and landed in a little fishing hamlet on the Grasse Peninsula. The sides of his ship bulged with treasure and he was at his wit's end.

He had in his service a Micmac Indian who found a trail to the summit of the supposedly inaccessible Rock of Perce. Some terrific convulsion had torn this rock from the nearby mountain some thousands of years ago and left it standing five hundred feet straight in the air. Its sides were sheer and unscalable and there were two caverns at its base where the sea thundered through in stormy weather of this rock and sailed away, never to return.

For years, adventurers, natives, travelers, hundreds who knew the tradition, attempted to scale the Rock of Perce to gather Duval's riches. Hundreds of them died in their attempts and so many lives were lost that early in the last century an act was passed in the Quebec Legislature forbidding anyone to make the attempt without authorization from the Governor of the Province.

The world has always hurried helter-skelter, forward and back, rushing from one rainbow to another. A voice here today, another there tomorrow and the great tide ebbs and flows.

There is no more pitiful sight in the world of business than the rushing, scrambling, seething hysteria of those who seek for the Royal Road to Success with little to offer in return. Only about once in a decade does an individual or an institution rear its head above the maelstrom of competition and stand out conspicuously as a complete success.

Half successes are commonplace. They cause neither excitement nor particular commendation. The world is full of people who have stopped just short of the mark. It is not difficult for a man to obtain a place among the great majority. The receipt is a simple one and it is practically universal in its application. A half success may be gained by anyone who will follow the beaten path. Precedence, tradition, custom—that is the triumvirate of mediocrity.

Failures and half successes worship at the shrine of the weather vane. The direction of the wind is their mentor. They are ruled by mob psychology. They go with the tides. They have neither the will power nor the judgment nor the nerve to reason and stand alone with their conviction.

Leaders chart their own seas and follow the course of no one. While others are squandering their lives in search of hidden treasure, the leaders are building treasures of their own. They dare to fly their standards before the face of ridicule and adversity and sentiment. They are leaders because they do not fear. Superstition and tradition have no place with them. If there is a way they will find it, even as Duval did. They know that the lines of least resistance yield little but sorrow in the end.

Forget the crowds.
Never mind the beaten path.
There is no royal road but an honest purpose, hard work and an honest product.

TOWN SLOGANS

Over in Grand Ledge, one of the few towns that still greets the visitor at its corporate limits with the sign "Speed limit 20 miles," the subject of town slogans is being discussed. The Grand Ledge Independent touched on the subject recently and reviewed some slogans. The one best bet in the out of ordinary was missed with Merrill's "Come again and hear our band." Here's some of the Independent's chatter about slogans:

Big Rapids, in extending to the world a city slogan, has this, "The little city with the big welcome." To casual tourists, who receive their information only from the huge signs at the city limits on US-131 and M-20, Big Rapids still stands out as "The home of the Ferris Institute." Both of these slogans, it can be seen, advertise to the passerby a feature that Big Rapids would like to have him carry away concerning the city.

Only one other town in Mecosta county has a slogan of its own, as far as we can discover. That one is Remus, which boasts to the world that it is "The dairy center of Michigan."

Once started on the slogan business, we went the limit, and here are a few of those we found in Michigan:

- Manistee—"Boost Manistee by boosting sports."
- Charlevoix—"Charlevoix the beautiful."
- Kalamazoo—"The gateway to opportunity."
- Reed City—"The gateway to the north."
- Traverse City—"The heart of Nature's playground."
- Petoskey—"The city of million dollar sunsets."
- Bay City—"Where summer trails begin."
- Marquette—"Queen City of Lake Superior."
- Plainwell—"The most beautiful big little city in Michigan."

Of course, scattered throughout the state are a number of cities with slogans like "The mill city," which, according to reliable information, is none other than Belding.

There is Flint, "The vehicle city," Battle Creek, "The cereal city," Mt. Pleasant, "The oil city," Lansing, "The capital city," Grand Rapids, "The furniture city," Greenville, "The potato city," and hordes of similar slogans. Detroit, once the "City of the straits," has changed her name to "Dynamic Detroit."

This slogan business is national too. Other states have cities

DO YOU HAVE A HOBBY?

Every person should have some unselfish enthusiasm. "Hobby" is another name for it. It need not be concerned with the giving of money, for most of us have very little of this to give.

It may be working and planning for a ladies' aid society, it may be the task of a scoutmaster, it may be boosting a luncheon club, it may be a Sunday school teacher, or as a leader in some fraternal organization.

All of us ought to have at least one major interest outside our work. It gives us an outlet for our energy. It broadens our horizon. It widens our circle of acquaintances and friends. It permits us to rub up against other people, to learn something of their problems, to participate in their joys, aid in their sorrows.

Above all, it teaches us unselfishness, and when we have begun to learn this lesson then we have not lived in vain.

It may be one of a thousand things, but the two important things we should keep in mind are, first, get into something that is of real interest to ourselves, and, second, make sure that our effort is going to be of some benefit to some one.

CHEERFUL EARFUL

A recent issue of the Mears News, a little four-page leaflet printed by Swift Lathers of Mears and billed as "the smallest newspaper in the world", contains one of those ideas that accounts for the national fame that Swift has acquired for putting out an unfailingly interesting sheet.

"Rev. C. Kaiser," says Swift, "the Baptist minister in Mears, has a new way of making money. A woman came to the parsonage and insisted on paying him a dollar in advance as she wanted to take up an hour of his time. He did not want to take the dollar, but she said it would be worth it: for a long time she had been wanting to tell him some things about the observance of the seventh day. Now the Rev. Mr. Kaiser says he will listen all day long for one dollar an hour. So if you have something to talk about, some hobby, perhaps, and you can't find anyone to listen to, you take your hat in one hand a dollar bill in the other and run like a son-of-a-gun for the parsonage. If you can't find him at home, bring your dollar bill and sprint over to the Mears News office. We will listen at the same rates. No objection to two people talking at once for double pay. In fact, for $5 an hour we will listen to an anvil chorus."

Thank God we've found a lot more sunshine in this old world than clouds in our nearly 75 years; more happiness than sorrow, more health than sickness, more good than evil, and a lot more friends than so-called enemies. Folks, we're mighty glad we are here, and have enough common sense to glean peace and joys as we go along and not postpone it until we get to heaven, where perchance most people won't know how to act because they never played the part here.

A BROKEN FRIENDSHIP

The other day Frank Sparks, editor of the Grand Rapids Herald, happened to meet his old friend, ex-Governor Fred W. Green. It was noticed that greetings were not exchanged between the two, in fact both avoided the opportunity of exchanging the customary "howdoyoudo."

To Editor Sparks, more than any other 100,000 men in Michigan, Fred W. Green owes his selection as governor of Michigan. It was the Grand Rapids Herald that first brought out the Green candidacy, and never did a big paper do more for a candidate for office that it did for the retiring governor. Never did a paper feed its opposition more broken glass than the Herald put into the food of Alex Groesbeck. It was the Herald that arranged that big "coming out" party at Ionia and it was the Herald that blazed the affair over the state as the greatest political event in the history of Michigan.

For a time the former mayor of Ionia did not dispute the fact that the Herald had really made him governor of Michigan. For over a year previous to that first primary, Editor Sparks had both sharpshooters and heavy artillery blazing away at the Groesbeck lines and all the time he was doing this, he was digging a trench for Fred Green to walk through and up to the command.

No one knows what brought about the break between the two, but it is a severe one, there is no question about that. Both the Herald editor and the former governor have remained mum as to the causes of this broken friendship, for years one of the closest in Michigan.

What a shame it is that politics lead to affairs of this kind.

Who is the LOSER?

WHEN fire closes a factory many workmen forfeit their pay envelopes until the plant is rebuilt. Employers suffer, too, for profits are sacrificed and certain expenses continue during reconstruction. If workmen are careful fewer fires occur and if employers insure their property adequately they do not suffer financial loss.

PREDICTS GREAT CHANGE IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS SYSTEM

PERMANENT LANSING EDUCATION BOARD HAS ENTIRELY NEW PLAN OF WORK.

By J. W. SEXTON (Superintendent Lansing Public Schools)

It is only necessary to see the stock certificates in the strong box purchased a year ago to be reminded that it is dangerous to predict the future. The man who invested his capital in a hairpin factory ten years ago is fully convinced of the futility of such an effort. Notwithstanding human inability to foresee what a decade or even a year may bring forth, I am asked to express some notion of what the already broad and intangible field of education will be 75 years hence, or in the year 2000.

No doubt the schools will be performing functions in three-quarters of a century of which the most far-sighted of the present time have never dreamed. The schools must change as time passes, to meet the needs of an ever changing society. As the kind and extent of education of 75 years ago will not meet the needs of today, so that of today will not suffice for three-quarters of a century hence.

While the past does not always furnish the best criterion for the future, I know of no way to predict what the education of the future may be except to consider it in the light of past and present trends in this field. With the change that is taking place in the home and the increasing desire of parents to escape the responsibility of training their own children, the pupils will enter school much younger in the future, perhaps at two years of age or earlier. The nursery school is as popular now and as much discussed as was the kindergarten of a few years ago. Psychologists, sociologists and educators are attaching more and more importance to what is known, at the present time, as the "pre-school" age. Much of the effort of the school is now being exhausted in breaking up improper habits that have been allowed to start during this period, overcoming physical weaknesses that have become seated, hence today's "pre-school" age will undoubtedly be tomorrow's "school age."

During this time, correct and regular habits of feeding, sleeping, working and playing should be established. Undesirable instincts and evil tendencies should be suppressed and desirable characteristics developed. To do this requires an expert in child nature and psychology who will be a regular member of the teaching staff of the public school of the future.

As the field of education or formal schooling will be extended downward to include what is now the pre-school child so it will be extended upward and much more attention will be given to adult education than at present. Adults who for any reason did not get their full share of schooling in youth, will find it easy to return to school and satisfy their desires for a liberal education which does not develop in some until maturity. They will be given the opportunity to a greater extent than at present through part time work in day school, and the evening school to perfect themselves in their daily work. In case they discover in adult life that they are following an occupation or trade for which their natural abilities do not qualify them they will be given the necessary training in the schools to change their line of work. If they have learned a trade which the changes in society have made unnecessary they may secure the training in school for another trade required by the society of that time. The school of the future will furnish opportunities for all, old as well as young and will be even more closely identified with the life of the community than at present.

The schools of today have talked much about vocational guidance but have done little. This phase of education will be more fully developed in the schools of tomorrow. Young people will be given information concerning the various occupations, and will study the qualities necessary for success in each. Methods will be discovered by which they can determine the field of work for which they are naturally adapted.

Simultaneously with the development of a guidance plan, vocational education will be perfected. Every individual will be taught somewhere in the school system a trade, occupation or profession which will be of value to society and at which he will be able to work and support himself and those dependent upon him.

At the present time in a normal school system, only about two-thirds as many pupils are in the senior high school, grades 10, 11, and 12, as are in junior high school, grades 7, 8 and 9. One-third of the pupils of the junior high school do not enter senior high school; if so, they remain only a short time. These pupils discontinue school because in many instances they have not the mentality to enable them to complete a high school course as now given. However, they haven't sufficient training for successful living. The school of the future will have vocational and other courses adapted to the mental capacity of these children in order that they may be prepared to fill a worthy place and not be cradled about from pillar to post and finally become a burden upon society. Democracy in education means that the curriculum will be adjusted to all types of children, to those of low natural ability as well as to those of superior intelligence.

It is to be hoped that the school of

WHAT OTHER EDITORS ARE THINKING ABOUT

Character

A good character is within the province of every single person. Personality is not quite so easy to define nor is it something that can easily be acquired. Personality, if we understand it, is that distinctive something that sets one apart from the crowd; if it is a pleasing personality it is made up of a number of virtues assiduously practiced. A college authority recently said that personality counted for well more than half of the success of life. He was right. We are all-souls, some selling merchandise and others our own services. Upon the favorable or unfavorable impression we make depends a large measure of our success.—Schuyler Marshall in Clinton County Republican.

Away Down Deep It Hurts

"What's wrong with you?" asks an advertisement of the La Salle Extension University. "Why aren't you making more money?"

We have asked ourselves this question a hundred times, searchingly. La Salle tells us why. "Most men and women are getting what their services are worth. They are in the kind of a job where twelve applicants are available for every vacancy."

There's a lot of truth in that. When the thing we have to sell is as ordinary as the thing everybody else sells, we can hardly ask a premium for it. Or, worse, when our price is lower than the other fellow's, it hurts us down deep to see people go to him (not the same)—Elmer Hanna in The Emmet County Graphic.

Some Work To Do

If the legislature can in any sense be considered a joyful occasion, "happy days are here again." There are several legislative measures certain to attract wide attention. A very competent and observing newspaperman, John A. Russell, editor of Michigan Manufacturer and Financial Record submits a list likely to command the widest public interest as follows:

The future will do its health work so well, and establish in children such health habits that the people will die only of old age. The citizenship training will be so efficient that there will be no criminal class. There will be no prisons. If perchance, a criminal does go out from school he will merely be sentenced back to some kind of a school to perfect his course in citizenship. The schools will develop in all an interest in sports, a love for literature, music and the other liberal arts to such an extent that the people who will be working only four hours a day will never be at a loss to spend their leisure profitably and wisely. None will spend it in dissipation but all will use it for recreation and cultural development.

Character development will not be merely incidental, by-product of general instruction, but the desirable elements in character will be determined and definite courses, activities, and projects organized for their development.

State income tax; sales tax; increase in corporation franchise tax; a bill to include occupational diseases in the Workmen's Compensation act, which will increase the cost of workmen's compensation in Michigan by fully 100 per cent; an increase in the maximum of the Workmen's Compensation act from $18 to $25 per week; anti-injunction bills to prohibit the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes or any other case; a five-day week; safety codes giving the Department of Labor and Industry the right to dictate the location and operation of practically all machines in any business. Old age pensions, cost of which is variously estimated at from $3,000,000 to $15,000,000 per year; compulsory liability insurance for automobile owners; compulsory unemployment insurance, the money to be paid by employers into a fund to be managed by the estate; a full crew bill, adding one or more men to the present railroad crews in Michigan; the clearance bill, providing for a six-foot clearance between the inside rail and all loading docks, which would require the rebuilding of a million dollars' worth of loading docks in Michigan, and increased taxes upon motor trucks and buses and a decrease in the load allowed upon motor trucks.

The Divine Side of Depression

War, we are told, has its divine side. With equal force and with greater reason the same claim can be made for the recent period of business depression. If war develops the nobility as well as the brutality of human kind, the industrial and commercial stress from which this country is emerging has certainly made manifest the finer qualities of its people.

While the depression brought to the surface some base qualities of selfishness and cowardice, it also has revealed that inherent qualities of courage and great-heartedness can exist in the heart of the civilian as well as the soldier.

Industrialists who have made sacrifices to carry on; workers who have held their chins up during the period of unemployment; the fortunate who have generally opened their purses to the unfortunate have given the period a divine side comparable with anything grizzly old Mars can point to.

For every quitter there have been hundreds willing to carry on; for every hand that has remained in the pocket scores have been stretched forth to help. Everywhere the effort has been to lighten the weight upon those who have been most acutely affected.—Harvard (Ill.) Herald.

To Sleep All Winter

A famous doctor in Vienna believes that he has created an artificial slumber which will enable us to sleep all winter—to hibernate, as it were.

The plan will not work though it has its appeal. To go to sleep after Christmas and come to just before Easter has some obvious advantages. We would have considerable cold and snow. We could make a cave or sleep in a root cellar along with the potatoes. Several families could cooperate and have a dormitory with a caretaker who would not hibernate. Human beings are not made to hibernate.

We are not intelligent enough. When we came to we would ask for a beefsteak. The old bear starts in on bark and other medicinal herbs. Some of us are fat enough to lay up for the winter but our appetite is too good. Some of us are too thin.

We should not spend much time on the hibernation project. The practical thing is to get people to sleep long enough in a night.—Grand Rapids (Minn.) Herald-Review.

Feed Fallacies

Popular ideas about food are a strange admixture of truth and fiction, according to a recent article by Dr. Lieb, an authority on diet. Particularly in this case with respect to notions of what is good for people, or not good for them, under varying circumstances.

For example, bananas and nuts were long thought to be hard to digest, but if the bananas are ripe and the nuts are chewed sufficiently they are among the most easily digestible of foods.

The prejudice against raw foods is also unwarranted it is said. Raw corn, wheat and other starches in moderate amounts are completely digested, while raw potatoes are 78 per cent digestible. The craving of some children for raw potatoes may be indulged to a reasonable extent without harm, and the same is true of raw cabbage and lettuce.

Drinking water during meals was long thought to be harmful to the digestion, but for normal persons it is now declared to be beneficial if sipped in between swallows of solid food.

Forcing children to eat spinach or other foods which they do not like is not good for them, as the feeling of repulsion which they experience, hinders digestion.

While the doctor does not say so in as many words, it appears that a rather safe rule of diet is to eat what one likes, provided it does not produce any disagreeable after effects. And regardless of advice, that is what most of us insist on doing anyway.—Fred Keister in Ionia County News.

Three "ingredients" go into every animal grown and marketed—breeding, feeding and care. Care, though the least expensive of these, is the one most often neglected.

If dairy cows are kept in the stable during the winter, they should be watered two or three times a day, or drinking vessels should be kept in the stable so the cows can drink whenever they want to. In very cold weather it is well to heat the water to at least 10 or 15 degrees F. above freezing.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my mother, Luella M. Blue, who died ten years ago, Jan. 10, 1921. Have been thinking of you, my mother, dear. Can almost feel your presence near. And hold you by your loving hand. A gift that only God can understand. Though ten long years have passed and gone. Since you left your earthly home. Still memories of you hold very near. It's sweet to think of mother dear. Your dear face was sweet and mild. As dear and sweet as a little child. Your love, so true and almost divine. I can't forget you, mother mine. Her daughter. Mamie C. Patterson. 1c

THE STRANGE CASE OF A DISCONTENTED COW

"The price is surely greater in the pasture 'cross the road," thought Benny as she started over on a scamping tour. But her sudden appearance frightened the driver of an oncoming automobile, who turned his car into the ditch to avoid hitting her. The car turned over and caught fire.

Nothing else the auto fell in the one way a far-cent belonged to a passenger who had just landed it under a Saint Paul tourist's Flower Policy. The car was destroyed in the fire, and its owner reimbursed for the loss.

This case on unusual accident, but there are many common mishaps which cause loss to travelers who are not properly insured. Are you one of these?

ALICE M. SAFFORD

Born to Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Stewart, a son, Tuesday, January 1, Arthur Stroll, eleven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stroll of East Ann Arbor street, was taken to Harper hospital Friday noon after having an appendix attack. On account of his having a hard cold and a throat infection he was sent home to be treated by his family physician, Dr. Paul W. Butz, but will return to Harper hospital for an operation as soon as it clears up.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Woolley of Ann Arbor entertained a number of DeMolay boys at their home Saturday evening, in honor of their nephew, Howard Turner, of Trenton, New Jersey. The evening was spent in playing five hundred, after which a delightful luncheon was served. Those present were William Murphy, Ernest Henry, Howard Turner, Elton Ashton, William Henry, Harold Woodward, Edwin Woolley and O. L. Hylar.

While driving on Plymouth road on Monday afternoon, Anson Hearn, who is employed by Huston & Co., had the misfortune to have the truck he was driving skid, turn around, then back into a tree with such force that the cab of the truck was pushed forward pinning Mr. Hearn between the back of the seat and the steering wheel, bruising him quite badly. Although Mr. Hearn was confined to the house for a few days he is now able to be back in the store.

Thursday evening, January 8 several members of Ottawa Tribe No. 7 and of Minchaha Council No. 3 attended the public installation of officers of Owana Council No. 11 of Detroit. Those that attended were: Mrs. Inez Bakewell, Nelson Bakewell, Mrs. Martha Wheeler, John Mastie, Henry Goebel, Mrs. Clara Larson, David Sweeney, Miss Irene Larson, Miss Vivian Honey and DeLos Goebel. Dancing followed the installation and a wonderful time was enjoyed by everyone.

The annual house president's dinner of the Michigan State Normal College will be held here on January 28 under the direction of Bertine Clark of Detroit. Those that will be committee members including: Tickets, Marion Rabe, Bridgeport, chairman, Ruth Niles, Gains, and Irene Harris, Marlette. Advertising, Helen Sox, Detroit. Ann Granger, Royal Oak, and Kathryn Caves, Adrian. Table Decorations, Annette Smith, and Mary Manion, Ypsilanti and Wanda Chrobak, Dearborn. Reception, Blanche Ward, Mt. Clemens, Bessie Catsman, Flint, Ann Smalles, Ypsilanti, Ruth Root, Plymouth, and Dorothy Wilkinson, Wayne.

Wednesday, January 7th, the Redmen, Pocahontas and families spent an enjoyable evening at Beyer's Hall. Dinner was served at 7 o'clock to about fifty people and at 8 o'clock the installation began. The Pocahontas officers are: Prophetess, Inez Bakewell; Pocahontas, Libbie Showers; Winonah, Alma Cripe; Powhatan, David Sweeney; Keeper of Records, Clara Larson; Collector of Wampum, Irene Larson; Keeper of Wampum, Bertha Goebel; First Scout, Gladys Robbins; Second Scout, Lorine Schmidt; Guard of the Troop, Martha Wheeler; Guard of the Forest, John Mastie; and Trustee, Henry Goebel. The installation was followed by dancing and soon the members and friends went home feeling tired but happy.

CHAMBER of COMMERCE NOTES

Without additional comment, because it doesn't require any, we are reproducing below a recent communication received from the Commercial Organization department of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

"Along with other manifestations of the present economic situation, we encounter here and there an impingement of the retrenchment idea upon the budgets of chambers of commerce. We say 'here and there' because the instances are by no means numerous. On the contrary, there has been a remarkable tendency, during all the past year, to maintain chambers of commerce budgets at their normal level, and in some instances to increase them. This policy, of course, is a sound one, and is in keeping with the announced intention which business men have made on every hand of keeping the machinery moving at a normal pace.

"Occasionally, however, our attention is called to instances of sharp retrenchment on the part of business men with respect to support of their chambers of commerce. Here and there substantial reductions have been made, and boards of directors have undertaken a revision of the budget, with corresponding curtailment of program and policy effectiveness. Such an attitude is unfortunate and illogical. At a time when retail merchants are appealing almost frantically to the public to 'buy now,' at a time when business in general is looking with academic disfavor upon any move or policy designed to slow things up, it would seem to be poor logic and poor business to cut down the support and reduce the effectiveness of the agency in which and through which the business interests of most communities center and operate.

"Even where such drastic measures are taken it seldom happens that an effort is made to reduce the chamber budget more than 25 per cent. If the average member, who invests $25, $50 or even $100 in the work of his chamber of commerce, will figure this reduction out in terms of his own subscription, he will find that his individual saving is very small—a matter of a few cents a day. Members and directors ought to consider very carefully whether the present is any time to be crippling community effort for the sake of a few cents or a few dollars saving on the part of individual business concerns.

"Certainly, efforts to diminish chamber of commerce budgets, curtail their activities, and reduce their staff personnel are not in keeping with the psychology advanced by business men generally with respect to the present situation. If it is good business to 'buy now,' if it is good business to keep the wheels of industry going, if it is good business to speed up public construction, certainly it is good business to maintain the momentum of the chamber of commerce movement. Any other conclusion would be illogical, to say the least of it; and it is perhaps a tribute to the strength and permanency of the chamber of commerce movement that so few instances of retrenchment have been discovered. AS SOMEBODY RECENTLY SAID, IT IS NO TIME TO CUT OFF THE POWER JUST WHEN YOU ARE STARTING UP THE GRADE."

BARTLETT SCHOOL NOTES

After our Christmas excitement, we are getting back to real hard work. The seventh grade geography class has been more interesting since Mrs. Pand has been bringing interesting kodak pictures which she took on her trip to England.

The kindergarten have been making pretty pictures of snowmen, but since the snow has fallen and will pack, they think it will be more fun to make real snowmen than to draw them.

The people that drive in the school yard can hardly get out again. If they only had a picture behind them they would know why they couldn't go.

The third grade have been making projects of Eskimo land, for the sand-table.

The fourth have been interested in arithmetic, because they have some toy money, and are learning to make change. We have lots of different articles, only they are empty, but are to be believed full. They intend to sell vegetables on the road in the summer time, so they have to learn to make change.

The fifth grade have been making models for the sand table. They are making pictures of cleanliness in the village and about signals.

The eighth grade have been planning a trip to the Ford Museum Tutor at Dearborn some day soon.

Ducks Not Driven Away By Hunters

How long do the wild ducks remain in Michigan after the opening of the season? When and where do they migrate? Are Michigan hunters getting a fair share of the ducks which are raised here or which migrate across Michigan? Answers to these and other similar questions of importance in waterfowl conservation have long been sought.

At least a partial answer to these questions has been obtained by the Game Division of the Department of Conservation by the use of numbered leg bands placed on 845 wild black ducks at the Munuscong Waterfowl Refuge during the past three years. Since more than 85 per cent of these ducks were banded in August and early September, the "return" records should indicate what usually happens to black mallards in Michigan during the hunting season.

Quite a number of the birds which were banded in early September continued to visit the traps until six and eight weeks later, proving that by no means all of them migrated south as soon as the "fireworks" began on September 16th.

Most of the records were obtained from hunters who shot banded ducks and reported the numbers to the Department or to the Biological Survey at Washington, where the official banding records are handled.

Of the 845 banded black ducks, 164, or approximately 20 per cent have been shot and reported. Of these, Michigan hunters got 80, or nearly one-half; 10 were taken in Ontario, 13 in Ohio, 12 in Wisconsin; and the remaining 43 were taken in 16 other states, from Minnesota to Louisiana, Florida and Maryland.

Although 72 of the banded ducks were shot in Michigan in September and October, only one was taken south of Michigan in this period. However, in November and December the totals were turned for then Michigan's total was only 8, and 45 of the banded ducks were shot in states to the south of us. Evidently few of these ducks migrated south of Michigan before the last of October or early November, but ran the gauntlet of Michigan hunters for five or six weeks.

These figures do not show an excessive slaughter of black ducks in the south, but it is possible that the number of birds shot but not retrieved, in addition to those recovered but not reported, would bring the total casualty list far above the 164 birds which were reported. In spite of intensive hunting, the black duck is one of our most abundant ducks, probably owing to its fondness for isolated bays, ponds and its reluctance to decoy.

The records also indicate the migration routes followed by the ducks in leaving the Munuscong area. Quite a number of the birds moved west along the Lake Michigan shore of the Upper Peninsula to Green Bay and the lakes region of eastern Wisconsin. A few migrated east from Drummond Island into Ontario; but the most of them came south into Lower Michigan. Here they apparently held to the larger rivers and lakes, especially along the Muskegon River, Saginaw Bay, and the west end of Lake Erie. Six of the banded birds were shot in southern Illinois, four along the Tennessee River, and eight in Louisiana and Mississippi. Without doubt many of the black

SOFT WATER WILL BE USED BY WAYNE FOLKS

Starting next week consumers of Wayne will receive water through their pipes that will be softer than hitherto. This is due to the fact that the water is being treated with a softening process. The cost of softening will be approximately one and one-quarter cents more per thousand gallons.

In addition to the lime, alum and chlorine used for purification and softening soda ash, the order for which has been placed by the commission, is to be employed. Superintendent Stevens stated that this chemical should make Wayne water the ideal for household use. The cost of softening will be approximately one and one-quarter cents more per thousand gallons.

In 1929, 119,645,640 gallons of water were pumped to Wayne consumers through the water works and approximately 21.02 per cent of this was purchased from the Ford Motor company with whom Wayne has a contract that will expire in June. Mr. Stevens said. The cost of the Detroit water is 19 cents per gallon and 1930 water including the water meter service charge amounted to more than $5,000.

Village Engineer Russell Harrison is now making an effort to learn of the plans of the Detroit water board in connection with the suburban water rates and their ability to supply towns in the metropolitan area. Wayne is now paying 19 cents per thousand gallons for the north water in the Mississippi and Gulf regions.

Aside from indicating the migration routes and recording the numbers killed by hunters, the return records have proved that all of the ducks present in a locality are not similarly influenced by refuge areas, special food supplies, etc. For example, certain ducks revisited the traps day after day and remained at Munuscong during two months of the hunting season; while others banded at the same time migrate even before shooting had started in the nearby marshes. Refuge protection, plus an abundance of pond weed seeds and the unending supply of barley and corn used to bait the traps, failed to overcome their wanderlust. "We shall often be wrong," says Dr. Miles D. Pirnie, ornithologist of the Conservation Department, "if we forget that the birds are individuals as well as members of a species."

gallons for Detroit water while the same water can be purchased by Melvindale and other villages for 12 and 11 cents per thousand gallons.

There has been considerably less water consumed in Wayne during 1930 than in 1929 and 1928, the former consumption being 136,271,540 and the latter being 128,589,086, complications revealed.

The high cost of providing water for the residents here has irked the village commission for some time and it is predicted that if a favorable agreement is reached with the Detroit board that this cost will be reduced.

The shortage of water which occurred last summer, will probably not be repeated again this year as a new plant in Dearborn and larger mains west of Dearborn will probably be ready for use during the dry spell.—Wayne Dispatch.

LIVES TO CELEBRATE HIS 100TH BIRTHDAY

L. Q. Curman, of the U. S. Fish hatchery, has just received copies of his old home town paper from Liberty, Kentucky, the Casey County News, which tells of the 100th birthday anniversary of Lieutenant Johnnie B. Brown of that place. The News states that the old Kentucky fighter in the northern army has for many years past had an ambition to live to be one hundred years old and his greatest joy on his birthday anniversary was the fact that his hope had come true.

In reviewing his life, he declared that the present panic was nothing

INKSTER BANK UNITED WITH DEARBORN BANK

Negotiations under way for several days have just been completed where the assets of the Peoples State Bank of Inkster. There will be no change in the conduct of the bank's business, which will be continued in its present quarters until February 2nd, when it like the one that took place soon after Andrew Jackson was inaugurated as president. He says, as a boy, he well remembers the poverty that stalked over the country at that time and of the starvation conditions faced by large numbers.

During his services in the Union army, he was in many engagements with troops from just across the border line of his native state.

Mr. Curman declares that the old soldier is a very interesting character and he has known him for a great many years.

is contemplated that this will be taken over and transmitted at the Dearborn State Bank, in Dearborn. Under the terms of the agreement, stockholders of the Peoples State Bank will receive no compensation for their stock until its assets have been fully liquidated, and in addition thereto the directors and stockholders have provided a guaranty fund to insure the full value of the assets which are being transferred.

The Peoples State Bank, according to their last published statement showed total assets of $437,642.88, which increases the footings of the Dearborn State Bank to well over $8,500,000.00.

The acquisition of the Peoples State Bank by the Dearborn institution thus insures to the Inkster depositors the facilities of a modern banking institution with full trust powers, and spacious safe deposit vaults.

A meeting of the Men's club has been called for Tuesday night, January 20, for the purpose of re-organization. All members of the club and all other men of the church are urged to attend.
About ten members of the congregation attended the service for churches of the Diocesan Mission Field held at St. Paul's Cathedral last Sunday night.

Reports given at the annual parish meeting last Wednesday indicate growth in several directions. The enrollment and attendance at the church school has increased notably. Attendance at the Sunday services was much better than last year, and the total number of persons who made their communion during the year was approximately one hundred more than in 1929, a much larger increase than in any previous year. It is hoped that with such signs of interest and loyalty in evidence, there may be a corresponding effort upon the part of every member to share in the financial support of the church. Those who have not yet made pledges are urged to do so immediately in order that the work of the church may be carried on in an adequate way.

Special mention should be made of the splendid work done by the members of the Woman's Guild last year. Very few business men can say that they made as much money in 1930 as in previous years. Yet the Guild did just that! And under the leadership of their new officers they have again made their generous pledge to the support of the church. The officers elected at the annual meeting are: Mrs. A. L. Innis, president; Mrs. Paul Ware, secretary and Mrs. Howard Gladman, treasurer. All women of the congregation should be members!

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES
On Tuesday of next week the women of the congregation are asked to meet at the church for the purpose of working on the hospital quota assigned to the Plymouth church. The work is being done under the Woman's Auxiliaries. The Ready Service class has been delegated the charge of this work and they are asking for assistance from all interested women. There will be all day work with a pot luck lunch at noon. It is hoped that many will be able to assist. This will also be the regular monthly meeting of the Ready Service class.
Rev. Dr. Kerr, moderator of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A., is to be in Detroit, Tuesday, January 20th. He will speak at 8:30 p. m. at Woodward Ave., Presbyterian church. A number of Plymouth people will attend this meeting. Any wishing to go should call the manse not later than Friday of this week.

METHODIST NOTES
"Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses." 1st Timothy, 6:12.

It would be a good thing if every church member would turn to the ritual in the back of the hymnal and read over the covenant he made when he became a member of the church, and at the beginning of this new year renew that covenant to himself and his God. I am sure we would all be better members for having done so, and also we would receive an added blessing. It is so easy to forget what we have vowed to do. May God help each one of us to renew our covenant with Him, and go forward with a new zest to serve Him.
Next Saturday, January 17, the Junior Missionary girls will meet at the home of Annabel and Betty Brown, at the corner of Maple Ave. and Deer St., for the first meeting of this year. All the girls of the Junior Sunday school department are invited to come. There will be the lesson, a story, and a play time. Come at 2 o'clock.
Tonight, Friday, the Booster class will have their monthly cooperative supper and social hour. As this is the time for the annual election of officers all the members are urged to be present. Supper at 8:30 o'clock.
At 7:30 tonight, Friday, the first Quarterly Conference will be held in the church parlor. All members of the church are invited, as this is your meeting.
Next Sunday morning Rev. B. J. Holcomb of St. Marks Junior church will be the speaker at the 10 o'clock service. It is hoped that a large number will be present to hear Mr. Holcomb, as this is his first sermon since he was ordained.
Next Wednesday the L. A. S. circles will meet as follows: Mrs. Lendrum's circle at Mrs. Honey's on Adams St., Mrs. Hillman's at Mrs. Hall's on S. Main St., (Those desiring transportation call Mrs. Hillman.) Mrs. Keegan's circle will not meet on account of the Congregational supper, on Thursday night, followed by the illustrated lecture on Jerusalem, by foreign pastor, Rev. F. M. Field of West. Monday, January 19th, the Queen Esther girls will meet at the church directly after school.

Christian Science Notes

"Sacrament" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches on Sunday, January 11.
Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And he went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt" (Matt: 26:39).
The Lesson-Sermon also included the following message from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus rose higher in demonstration because of the cup of bitterness he drank. Human law had condemned him, but he was demonstrating divine Science. The divine must overcome the human at every point" (p. 43).

GRANGE NOTES

Ordinarily, Plymouth Grange holds its regular meetings during the winter months on the first and third Thursdays. Because the first Thursday came on New Year's day, each meeting was set ahead one week. Therefore the next meeting will be held on January 22, preceded by a pot-luck supper. A splendid program has been arranged, to be followed by a discussion of great interest to all members.
At the meeting January 8, L. A. Wealey discussed the subject, "The Criminal Tendencies of the Average Citizen." Mr. and Mrs. Frank Becker gave a reading in which they very cleverly and humorously impersonated Lord and Lady Tenzle.
On Saturday, January 17, Pomona Grange will meet promptly at eleven o'clock at Plymouth Grange Hall, for a business session. This will be followed by a pot-luck dinner and an open meeting in the afternoon.

Rosedale Gardens

By J. W. WALKER

Our Library
The first week of its existence, Mrs. Vera Beck, assistant librarian, reports that sixty-four "customers" were carded in. We have been thinking that Miss Loretta Dawson, the librarian, Wayne County, will have to make more than her promised weekly visit if business keeps up. Which all goes to prove that all Gardenites do not depend on the radio or skating for all recreation.

Snow
The new snow plow had its second trial, on Monday morning. Quite a heavy snow fall came along from the south-east Sunday, before Monday, so that Bupt. Al and Mister Walt managed both the avenue plow and the side-walk one before breakfast, and by the time school kiddies were on the way to labor and study they had a clear pathway.

Thanks 4 The Buggy Ride

Driving to the city topper 7:35 a. m., Bro. B. Gardente stopped to inquire of a young lady, further east of here, if she had missed the bus. "No," replied y. l. "I didn't like its looks, so I chased it down the road from Rosedale." However, to make this short story longer, sed y. l. rode with sed Bro. B. G. as far as the village City Hall, and was thankful.

Reminder

Are you saving for a fancy Valentine this coming month? If you are beautiful, and a map of few words why not send her only a half doz. And "other thing, Daddy Gardente, don't forget to send Mother Gardente a nice pretty one like a noster, many (?) yrs. ago.

Airports

Just think, there are 1782 airports in the U. S. A. Including ours at Middle Belt. Which same reminds us that the boys down there are having a jolly time these mild days, whilst skating in in season with them sites.

Miss Peck is selecting the chorus for the light operetta. "Can you carry a tune?" she smilingly, (always smilingly is Miss P.). "Yes, where to?" from another smartly Buttermilker, by the name of —

Bridgion

A number, or should we say numerous bridgions have come to pass lately. So many, in fact, that we have a hard job catching up with these charming social events. Everyone is talking of the good time at Mrs. Fred C. Winkler's, 11018 Pembroke Road, on last Tuesday.

Echoes

of the holdapps were that the 15 yr. old lad, who had participated in same got sentenced to three years in the Lansing School. This happened to be his third conviction. All this is why that Miss Viola substituted for Miss Vera on that date, as the last "V" had to go as witness at the bandit lad's trial in Juvenile Court 1-9-31.

Accident

A little lady (wt. about 30 net), tried the brakes on her sedan on Erie-dee a. m. at about Cranston, the brakes worked and sed sedan went into a tall spin, landing in the ditch a rod-west of Pembroke—only damage done was one window and entire top fractured. Her little daughter had a crying spell, as she had lost her animal crackers and two bananas.

Soap

One of the Buttermilkers almost got himself cast as a comedian when he suggested that a bath room (or was it laundry) scene be in the first act for the sake and benefit of those who suggested a "clean play." Why not have sed he eat a cake of castile or maybe carbolic soap ere the curtain rises on sed Act I.

A Play!

The P's have been challenged by the kiddies, or rather accepted the challenge of silent whatnot. So now, after getting together under the name of P. T. A., under the leadership of Miss Peck, (our blonde teacher in case u donot know her). The parent-folk met last Whensdee at the school. So, other folks and kiddies, see what ma and pa can do.

Mrs. Wm. J. Flannigan, 10019 Cranston, was given a surprise shower and party last Friday, post meridian, at the home of Mrs. Mansell Gardner, 9919 Ingram. All Mrs. F.'s friends were present (and a good time was had by all).

Broken Bones

Not satisfied with breaking an arm, we now have to send over more flowers to Mister Jack Weaver, Melrose avenue, as he had to catch a very bad cold and be confined to bed. This is certainly a hardship on so active a person. We hope Jack will soon be out again, we miss his darty visits and talks.

P. T. A.

Again we must suggest a change in the weather for P. T. A. meets. Tho' the nite was clear, old fahrenheit marked time at plus-9 degrees; so only about 35 P's were there, but all the T's were on hand.

The meeting opened with singing "Our Battle Hymn for Children," Miss Doris Smith at pianoforte; Lord's Prayer; Pledge to Our Flag; and the usual Secretary's (Miss Margaret Rowe) Report and Treasurer LeRoy Snell's report on bank balance.

We ordered Santa Claus' bill paid. Miss Peck spoke on her plans for the play. Mrs. Loftus reported the 4-H club girls had made and sold over 100 doz. cookies, which was only half of their booked orders. Mesdames Wood, Loftus and Kline reported slow work on the sewing machine; so now we are buying them a nice new electric machine for the girls of the stitching class so they may work faster and in time to compete with other 4-H clubs.

The entertainment committee is getting up a bridge party. A number were planning (and went) to the Wayne Co. Council at the School last Thursday.

The school kiddies returned the fire-bucks borrowed for the Lunch Pantry and reported something like $1.05 cash and some inventory now on hand. Mister Al Robie said his boys were getting along nicely and had sufficient supplies in the M. T. class.

Mrs. Dr. A. Haskins, child study specialist, and the president of the Child Study Club, was introduced to those gathered, as if we already had not met this charming talker and lady. Mrs. Hoskins named her subject for the evening's talk, "Adolescence." She stated in part: "From the parents standpoint, to be successful one's theories should above all be just good, ordinary, common sense. Begin long before the adolescence period with a building up of a good framework and foundation. After adolescence nothing but embellishments are added. The period ranges from 9 to 18 years of age. Take into consideration the physical and mental. The very rapid growth is a strain on nervous system—the mental side attended by sensitiveness, nervousness and irritability, not awkwardness but mostly embarrassment—the tendency to be indifferent to other people's attitudes and to break restraint and resist all.

Sex attraction is a natural outlet, not too much restraint on parents' part. There are times for spanking (never when angry). Avoid the question of obedience, the defiance in a child would preserve his own dignity, so don't demand too much, only such as may be necessary. Always acknowledge your own mistakes. Enter into all their fun to insure complete confidence. Never an untruth. Do not evade questions but give reason for not answering. Don't argue with or ridicule. Question of Socials—cannot draw line too closely, but build careful ideals, friends and character—in so building child will choose the right friends after the adolescent period. Give child own room, an allowance and cooperate with—.

Question of how far restrictions in dress, amusement, books, games, movies, sports, don't allow to go unless you know what all about. Dancing and card playing is a question that varies in different families. The ambitions of a girl should lead toward building the ideals of motherhood, those of a boy lead to power and strength, a better combination for true love—which often comes in our present High School age. Give the child the true idea—not false—the specific definition. The child at this age is also very susceptible to religious appeal, do not force, give guidance and advice. Last of all, practice "Patience," parents should be Deaf, Dumb and Blind—forgive over and over again, and allow child to develop self." End.

We then gave Mrs. Hoskins a rising vote of thanks and told her to come again, and not to rush off with her big son who had just called for her, but to stay for some of the dainty sandwiches and homemade cakes and coffee. Which they did, and we then gave demonstrations of sandwich and cookie dunking, which can only be done in the most exclusive circles of society (P. T. A. meets and homes).

They all said good nite to all, and wended our way homeward counting it another good day and a delightful evening well spent.

ROSEDALE SCHOOL NOTES

Upper Grade Room
The pupils of Rosedale school have enjoyed their first week of school in the new year.

The eighth grade have started the new subject of Civics and like it very much. They have formed a new Civics Club. The officers are: Edith Davis, president, and Lorraine Martin, secretary and treasurer. They have a committee to fix up the bulletin board with important current topics.

In hygiene class, the sixth and seventh grades made a project on the subject of "Teeth" to be taken to the zone meeting at Fisher school, Saturday, Jan. 10. It is in the form of a newspaper and has newspaper write-ups on teeth. Following is one of the most clever write-ups.

Mr. Tooth Brush and Mrs. Tooth Paste Make Marvelous Rescue
Rescue Edward Brown's Six-Year Molars.

As Mr. Tooth Brush sat on the shelf looking at Edward Brown, he gave an exclamation. He jumped up and shouted to Mr. Tooth Paste, "The microbes are attacking the teeth!"

Mrs. Tooth Paste jumped up and bent over Mr. Tooth Brush. She squeezed herself and the tooth paste inside of her fell on Mr. Tooth Brush's back. They both jumped on Edward's teeth and swept microbes right and left. After brushing Edward's teeth thoroughly, Mr. Tooth Brush and Mrs. Tooth Paste returned to the shelf.

De-Ho-Co Meals In Poetic Form

(By A PRISONER)

I was sentenced to De-Ho-Co A prison down on a farm, I was put in here for alimony So I wouldn't do her harm.

I am working in the kitchen, The breakfasts I must make So I will tell you all about them Starting Sunday with corn flakes.

On Monday there are sausages And potatoes I must bake, I am told it would be better To serve them some steak.

On Tuesday when they come in to eat A grudge against they do feel, To sit down and try to swallow The dish they call "Rubber Heel."

On Wednesday morning I start the steam To make my rolled oats boil, To sit down and try to swallow If I would let it spoil.

On Thursday morning when they come in They ask me what I'm makin' I tell them I am fryin' liver And bringin' home the bacon.

On Friday morn its sure a treat To sit down to something real nice, With milk and sugar to camouflage Their loving raisins and rice.

We have something on Saturday That's even better than mash, For when they go out, they all shout We want some more beef hash.

They kick about the coffee, They kick about the tea, But when they're on the outside They say De-Ho-Co for me.
—Back in 1929

Some say it is no disgrace to be poor. It is except in literature. A poor man is like a mechanic who works at his trade many years, and knows nothing about it. The financial side of life is very important; it is a mistake to study art, religion and neglect finance.

"Cooking with my ELECTROCHEF electric range isn't a bit expensive—All my friends are surprised to learn how little it costs!"

"One reason why my ELECTROCHEF is so economical is the set of Micro-aluminum cooking utensils that come with the range. These utensils have black surfaces which resist rusting remarkably. They make cooking one-third faster, and of course require less electricity than would otherwise be needed."

(ELECTROCHEF'S Cash Price, including 7-piece set of utensils, is $105 installed. $19 down, $6 per month.)

* A study of 200 houses showed that the cooking cost with the ELECTROCHEF averages 64c a week per month.

The Movie Review

"Tom Sawyer"

Hundreds of children, and hundreds more who used to be children, will thrill to the oft-told but deathless adventures of Tom and Huck, Becky and Aunt Polly, Injun Joe and Muff Potter at the Penniman Allen theatre when "Tom Sawyer," Mark Twain's classic of childhood, will be shown on Sunday and Monday, January 18 and 19.

Tom Sawyer is the kind of material that the talking screen was made for. And in the hands of such capable young players as Jackie Coogan, Mitzzi Green and Junior Durkin, it is well-nigh the greatest story ever told in audible celluloid.

Paramount should be credited with faultless showmanship in its manner of treating this immortal theme; the production is faithful to the letter. Every whit of Mark Twain's original is beautiful, impressively translated to the screen.

No greater recommendation is required. No greater could be written.

The only picture that ever approached it for sheer magnificence of direction, production and acting is "Peter Pan"—but "Peter Pan" was a silent picture.

"Tom Sawyer" is, and perhaps will remain, the talk of the talkie age for some time to come.

It is, of itself, the best salesman the talkie industry ever had.

If you fail to see it you will be missing one of the most enjoyable things that our present-day life has to offer.

"Playboy of Paris"

A triple comedy treat has been prepared for moving picture patrons in Maurice Chevalier's "Playboy of Paris," which appears at the Penniman Allen theatre Wednesday and Thursday, January 21 and 22. In addition to the joyous singing star of this fast and sparkling laugh and love romance, Eugene Pallette has an important fun-making role, and Stuart Erwin, the dumb Axel of "Sweetie," is in the cast.

(Chevalier, Pallette, and Erwin are cast as a trio of restaurateurs in "Playboy of Paris." Chevalier is a singing wit with dream of becoming a wealthy and heart-breaking playboy; Pallette is the assistant chef; Erwin is Pallette's kitchen boy. They play for laughs in the kitchen, until a surprise legacy sets Chevalier up in the world, although a twenty-year contract holds him to his job as waiter.)

The comedy elements of "Playboy of Paris" are almost as strong on the feminine side as they are on the male. Dorothy Christy, the lively and irrepressible Ziegfeldian beauty who inspired a lot of action in the stage production of "Good News," "New Moon" and "Follow Thru," is cast as an aspiring gold-digger. Cedi Cunningham, internationally famous comedienne, seen with Ruth Chatterton in "A Body's Woman," is Chevalier's blond pursuer.

The story of "Playboy of Paris" is set on the boulevards and in the cafes of Paris, where Chevalier, aided by his stellar supporting cast, makes light-hearted, hitting love to scores of Parisian beauties. He sings three new songs, reported to be as hummable and catchy as "Sweeping the Clouds Away," "You Brought a New Kind of Love to Me" or "Louise."

"Fighting Thru"

All the glamour and excitement of the "days of 40" are brought to the talking screen in Ken Maynard's first all-talking Western, "Fighting Thru," which is to be shown at the Penniman Allen theatre Friday and Saturday, January 23 and 24. Tiffany's staff did an admirable job with the realistic story written by John Francis Natteford. William Nigh is to be commended for his direction, and Ken Maynard's supporting cast, which is composed of Jeanette Loff, Carmelita Geraghty, William L. Thorne, Fred Burns, Charles L. King, and Wallace MacDonald, deserve special laud. It would be highly unfair not to praise Maynard's unusually dextrous horse, an ingenious white thoroughbred, known as "Tarzan," who appeared with Maynard in his silent films.

"Fighting Thru" is a Western of high calibre, with plenty of calibre in the form of flashy revolvers which are gleefully and excitedly played throughout the picture. All the thrills, chills and spills of the West of former days are brought to the talking screen once more. The tavern proprietor, his right-hand man, the tavern girl, the sheriff's posse, the careening of the stagecoach, the robber's roost, the innocent "outlaw," the unknowing girl—all are very well developed and remarkably portrayed in "Fighting Thru." The dashing handsome hero is portrayed by Ken Maynard, who is framed and subsequently made an outlaw. The fair heroine is played by Miss Loff, and the cunning, seducer-villainess is depicted by Miss Geraghty. William L. Thorne and Charles L. King are the villains.

Three "ingredients" go into every animal grown and marketed—breeding, feeding and care. Care, though the least expensive of these, is the one most often neglected.
