

MANY ON TRIP THRU GREEN FIELD VILLAGE

Sunday School Excursion Takes 300 To Dearborn

An aggregation of nearly 300 Plymouth people made the best of an opportunity presented to them last Friday for seeing Henry Ford's Greenfield Village at Dearborn. The visiting sight-seers represented the various Sunday school bodies which for this occasion were divided into two large sections, one of which appeared in the Village during the forenoon and the other in the afternoon. Each contingent, divided into still smaller groups upon arrival at the Village, was personally conveyed to the newly assembled historic community by Plymouth's ever popular and versatile police officer, Charles Thumme.

All visitors report that the event was something out of the ordinary, an incident in their lives both entertaining and educational and, as the prosaic saying goes—"something long to be remembered." The main regret seems to have been that the general inspection was too hurried, due likely to hunger at one point or another but one group followed upon another in close succession and everybody was urged onward by the otherwise obliging guides.

Of particular interest, of course, was the Menlo Park section of the Village. The original laboratory of the late Thomas A. Edison was first occupied by him in Menlo Park, N. J. in 1876. The Greenfield Village reconstruction of this two-story clapboard affair is so nearly like that of the first one, and the interior has been so faithfully restored to its original state, that when Edison first entered it in October, 1929, he exclaimed, "It is as if I had just left." Mr. Ford then wanted to know about the remaining one-tenth of one per cent. "Oh," replied Edison, "look at that floor. It is nowhere near so dirty as ours used to be."

During his search for a successful filament for the electric light, Edison used the top of a chest containing 33 drawers as a work table. At the time of the re-enactment of this invention, known to the world as "Light's Golden Jubilee," Edison sat behind an exact replica of this work table and in the same chair he used at the time of the actual invention fifty years before. And on Friday Plymouth visitors gazed upon the empty chair behind this work table and at the old looking and various paraphernalia used by Edison at the time of the re-enactment. Among the objects, sitting in a corner on top of the table, is an old mortar and the original one used in the first laboratory. It stays placed on the same spot where Edison always kept it.

Indeed, it was with a feeling of reverent awe that many Plymouth visitors looked upon the carbon paste and the materials, the knife lying on the slab, which have not been moved since Edison last touched them. The second floor of the laboratory, where it is said that Edison did most of his work, was not seen by the Plymouth visitors.

While the two Plymouth contingents, in the one and one-half hours allotted to each group, by no means saw everything which was to be seen, they nevertheless saw so much during those ninety crowded minutes that no attempt will be made to tell the full story here. Made is the post office, removed to the Village from Phoenixville, Conn., where it was erected in 1893. In the post office visitors could select free souvenir cards and mail them to Plymouth friends, each card bearing the official post mark. One end of the office is occupied by an old time pharmacy.

And there stands the old country store, more than seventy-five years old, filled with the merchandise of the period, including even peanut shells on the floor. Among other objects are a hundred year old stone hand mill, old time tin type galley, early New Hampshire shoe factory, the village blacksmith, including even the spreading chestnut tree. Mr. Ford's boyhood school—erected in 1861, typical early log house, the Martha-Mary chapel, town hall, first house ever lighted by electricity, Fort Myer's laboratory, first electric street car—invented by Edison in 1880, and many others.

Many Plymouthites Aid South Lyon In Big Celebration

Many from Plymouth went to South Lyon last week to be present at the celebration held in commemoration of the founding of that place one hundred years ago. Six families located there in August 1832 and decided that that place was to be their future home.

The ancient and modern used for the interest of the visitors, with a long parade and exhibitions of antiquities to represent the early days of the century and an airplane stunt exhibition for the new era.

Electric buzzes, driven by men dressed in old-fashioned attire, received much applause. Business houses had 300 floats in the parade, with 20 floats of all descriptions entered by the children.

Base ball games, other sports and races were included in the day's festivities, which concluded with a street dance in the evening. L. W. Jewell, master of ceremonies, and Clyde Shirel, marshal of the day, directed the activities.

It was in 1832, according to a history of Lyon Township written by the late Rev. Sylvester Calkins, that the immigration occurred. The first settler arrived about 1830, but with the coming of six families in 1832 the town really was founded. For years it was known as "The Corners."

DEPRESSION TO AID BUSINESS

Club Speaker Declares It Will Clear Up Over-Congestion

"There has been too much competition in business—not only in the retail business but in all other lines of business, including the manufacturing business," O. C. Eckley, secretary of the Michigan Builders' Supply Association of Ypsilanti, told members of the Plymouth Rotary club at its meeting last Friday.

Mr. Eckley was introduced by Rev. Walter Nichol who had charge of the program.

"One of the values of this depression will be the fact that it is going to bring us all down to earth and clear up a lot of situations that have developed in the last ten years," he said. "People are working for less money. Why? Because the men they are working for had to cut wages in order to stay in business. They couldn't pay the wages they were and keep the doors of their factories open. So wages came down.

"There are too many people in too many lines of business. In one town I know there are enough restaurants for five times as many people who live in the place. They come along and want to start in business. They get some encouragement and as a result start up with the result that they are doing nothing except hurt the other fellow's business.

"Then there is another thing this depression is helping to remedy. Banks in the past have made capital loans. They have taken other people's money to help start some one in business. That should not be. If a man wants to start a business, let him do it on his own money. Let him play with his own dollars and cents and not that of the depositors of a bank. Too many people have been getting into business on some one else's money.

"We find that there are also too many men in business who want the edge on some one else. They figure that they can gain that edge by cutting prices to a point under which the other fellow will sell at a profit. But the only thing a man does when he cuts under the other fellow's fair price is to give his own money away—and soon he is out of business and his friends are saying it is too bad he had such luck.

"We need courage in selling. We need men with backbone enough to stick to fair prices, to charge prices that permit them to make a fair profit on what they do and enable them to pay off their help regularly.

"Then too men in business have got to be satisfied with their share of business. They have got to get off this 'whole hog' idea. The smartest thing you can do in business is to get your share of business at fair prices. Don't try to get all the business. Many have tried it—and see what the result is.

"A good standard to judge yourself by is to ask the question, 'what do your competitors say about you?' If they say you are fair and square, then you merit continued business support. I like the Rotary standards of business and when we all run our business as it should be then we will have the better times we hope for."

WINS NATIONAL ARCHERY HONOR

Former Plymouth Girl Is Winner In Contest At Seattle

Miss Iula Hanchette, with a few years ago a resident of Plymouth where she was born and educated, now of Los Angeles, California, recently won the national championship of the United States in archery over one hundred stars meeting in contest in Seattle.

Local friends recall that before she left Plymouth she was an expert in the use of the bow and arrow.

Sometime ago her mother moved to Cassio, Michigan where she still makes her home, the daughter going to the western coast soon after her mother moved from Plymouth where the family had lived for a great many years. The young lady's grandfather was a Civil war veteran, dying here about 20 years ago. For a time Miss Hanchette made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Bullman, former local residents who now live in Oosso. She was employed for a year or so at the Ford plant in Phoenix.

Not until many of the metropolitan papers had printed pictures of Miss Hanchette was it known here that she had won such a high distinction in the national archery contest.

SCHOOL STARTS TUESDAY, SEPT. 6

Record Enrollment Is Expected By Officials—The Teachers

The people in the community are fortunate in the fact that the Board of Education has not found it necessary to take away the privilege of full school attendance from their boys and girls this year. Cuts have been made in salaries and maintenance, reducing materially the per capita cost of the instruction for the coming year. As a result of these economies, the boys and girls of Plymouth will receive the benefit of the economies maintained by the Board of Education in being able to have a regular length school year in 1932-33.

During the vacation period the buildings have been thoroughly cleaned and repaired, and in some rooms the woodwork and furniture varnished, and in some cases, the walls painted. Everything will be in readiness for the opening of school.

As a special and new feature of the opening of school this year, tables will be arranged in the auditorium in order that parents who have books to sell may meet people who live in the place. They will come along and want to start in business. They get some encouragement and as a result start up with the result that they are doing nothing except hurt the other fellow's business.

NEARBY BANKS PLAN OPENING

Wayne, Northville And Milford Report Progress In Re Organization

Improvement in the banking situation in several of the nearby communities that experienced difficulties a year ago is reflected in reports in the newspapers of those places. In Northville a plan has been worked out whereby the two closed banks in that place will doubtless open sometime in September. Better business and the fact that the banking situation has been cleared up in the state is enabling those places to get new banks started.

According to the Milford Times, the closed bank there is nearly ready to open. The Times says:

"Mr. Eckfeld of the First State Bank states that the work of the bank in rendering statements and issuing trust fund and moratorium certificates according to the Depositors' Agreement of April 6, 1932, is progressing and requests that all depositors call at the bank at their earliest convenience.

Mr. Eckfeld also said that work of the bank in preparing for this step has involved a great deal of time and painstaking labor. It being necessary to analyze all accounts to segregate the "new money" or money deposited since the first moratorium of July 6, 1931. This work also involves preparing 3,200 certificates (1,600 each of moratorium and Trust fund) and 1000 state bonds.

"Mr. Eckfeld further states that the bank has been enjoying a fair increase in business with 187 active commercial accounts in operation during July and forty new savings bank loans."

The Wayne Dispatch says:

"A supplemental first dividend of 30 per cent is now available to those creditors of the Inlander National bank who have not yet received the benefit of a dividend on their claims, according to an announcement made this week by W. T. Hatch, receiver.

"This group of claims, Mr. Hatch said, comprises those for which by reason of another claims were filed too late to participate in either the first or second dividends already paid to creditors. The paying of this supplemental dividend now pays all creditors up to an equal footing.

"A second supplemental dividend will be paid in due course of time in the manner, at such time all creditors will have an equal amount of their deposits, Mr. Hatch said.

"Depositors who already have received either the first or second dividend checks will not have anything further coming at this time, this supplemental dividend being only for the benefit of those depositors who have not yet received any money.

"Depositors who are to receive money at this time are asked to return the temporary receipt given by the receiver at the time the claim was proved."

In another article the Dispatch states:

"R. B. Reader, Receiver of the Peoples State Bank of Wayne announces that the payable totaling $258,000.30, representing the amount which the bank borrowed prior to its closing, has recently been paid in full.

"This has been accomplished through definitely applying all possible collections from the receiver to that purpose, and through the cooperation of the lending bank in permitting an orderly liquidation of those notes rather than demanding immediate payment at maturity with the resultant confiscation of all collateral pledged to secure these loans. This, Mr. Reader states, has proven a distinct advantage to depositors for the reason that these notes have been retired in the above manner with less loss to creditors than they could have been at any other time since the inception of the receivership.

"Mr. Reader reports that an amount in excess of $284,000 has been received by collection and sale of assets. Of this amount $145,957.83 has been realized through sales of bonds. The average realization from bonds sold has been 77 per cent of the dollar which he considers very satisfactory in the face of the general market conditions which have prevailed since the closing of the bank.

"From the above it is evident that future collections received will accrue for the benefit of the present depositors and if collections will continue in fair proportions to what they have been in the past a very satisfactory showing can be made in the next few months.

The following is list of the present assets of the bank with a total of claims filed and approved to date:

Notes	$ 82,574.19
Mortgages	258,827.92
Bonds	318,058.96
Cash	6,820.13
Real estate and other assets	48,247.26
Total	$714,517.36

Total claims filed and approved to date $651,793.40

"I am asking the people of Michigan to vote for me," said Mr. O'Brien, a former Circuit Judge, "because of what I stand for and not because of personal reasons.

"What I stand for may be summed up in the phrase 'Social Justice' which includes a willingness to work loyally and steadfastly to make Michigan a better state for the people to live in. The result of this program will be to find a place for every honest man and woman to make a decent living and to stand with everybody else as equal heirs to our civilization.

In a large advertisement in this issue of the Mail the Goldstein Department store announces a special preschool sale. Parents of local school children are invited to visit the store and see the many articles that are on sale at very low prices.

Not only are the children favored during this event but every other line of merchandise in the store is being marked at least one-half to make the event a real one. Ladies' furnishings, men's wear and dry goods, all fall in line when it comes to low prices.

Mr. Goldstein stated today that his sale would continue for two weeks and that during that time new merchandise would be arriving daily so that everyone who attends the sale will be able to get fresh materials as well as new styles and designs.

Last Chance To Get Brakes Tested Free

Chief of Police Smith requested today that all motorists who have not taken advantage of the free brake testing service offered by several local garages do so as soon as possible. He stated that the time limit in which this service is absolutely free is to expire the first of September, and that every car in Plymouth should have this done before the time is up.

Nearly 300 cars are already bearing the mark of the Department of Public Safety showing that they have brakes in good condition.

Mrs. Ball Reports Progress in Judge O'Brien Campaign

Complying with her request, The Mail is publishing the following statement recently made by Mr. O'Brien:

"I am asking the people of Michigan to vote for me," said Mr. O'Brien, a former Circuit Judge, "because of what I stand for and not because of personal reasons.

"What I stand for may be summed up in the phrase 'Social Justice' which includes a willingness to work loyally and steadfastly to make Michigan a better state for the people to live in. The result of this program will be to find a place for every honest man and woman to make a decent living and to stand with everybody else as equal heirs to our civilization.

"It is my idea that the government should be the servant of the masses. It should be an agency for the purpose of improving the condition of the masses. If possible, it should add to their sense of security and in this way improving their economic position."

SONGFEST BRINGS CROWD TO PARK

Nearly 2,000 Plymouthites took part in the songfest held in Riverside Park last Thursday afternoon. Cold and threatening weather failed to keep hundreds of picnic parties from meeting and paying tribute to George Washington as well as to enjoy the beauties of Michigan's most beautiful parks.

The Bi-centennial committee hoped for a large turnout and were more than satisfied with the enthusiasm displayed that evening. The program held in a large clearing in the park was an exceptionally fine one, singing, songs, readings during the crowd with a full evening entertainment. The committee deserves much credit for the way they handled the program and for their work in helping to celebrate the life of Washington.

DR. VALENTINE DIES AT HOME IN EASTERN STATE

Other residents of Plymouth will regret to hear that Dr. Henry J. Valentine, who was born here and lived here a great many years, died recently at Lexington, Mass., where he moved some forty years ago. His parents were Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Valentine and settled in this locality during the early days.

Dr. Valentine was born in Plymouth in 1823 and after graduating from the Plymouth schools he attended the University of Michigan. Following his graduation from the medical department of that school he practiced in this state for a while then moved to Lexington, where he had made his home until his death a few days ago.

According to the Lexington newspaper received by William Conner, Dr. Valentine was prominent in affairs of his adopted community, being a member of the Old Beltry of Lexington, a furnished club as well as a hunting club.

THE PARABLE OF THE TALENTS

The man who "went and hid his talent in the earth," and thereby became history's most familiar example of unfaithfulness and folly, must have lived in times like our own. His country, we take it, was emerging from one of those depressions which, off and on, have visited every people under the sun since business began. So fearful he was, that he fell into worse trouble than that he was trying to avoid, and tragically missed his life's greatest opportunity. Entrusted with a certain amount of cash, he hoarded it instead of using it. He could have bought the best of goods at bargain prices; he could have made investments, more advantageous than any which had been or ever again would be in his day; he could have done his part toward providing jobs for hungry men, toward quickening sluggish streams of trade, toward restoring confidence and prosperity. But he was afraid, "and went and hid his talent in the earth," wherefore, as a matter of economic and social justice it was taken from him, and given to those who had the courage, the loyalty and the enterprise to use it.

The old parable is now strikingly new. Its truth rings afresh in the following lines from a current advertisement: "Don't say you can't help. Don't say you're too little to help cure a big national crisis. You can help. Have you hidden your money away, buried it in the ground, put in a sock, locked it up in a safety vault? Then bring it out, if you want to help this depression. You'll help your state and your nation and your fellow man. And you'll help yourself. Every dollar you put back into use helps. It helps make a market for the things you grow. And it helps you. Your money is worth more now, in terms of what it will buy, than it's been in many, many years. There is a feast of bargains spread out before you. Prices will go up. The value of your money in terms of what it will buy will shrink. It will shrivel, if it remains hoarded. Bring it into the sunlight. Let it sprout and grow you a new crop of dollars. Not in wild speculation, not in wildcat schemes. No need to lose it that way. The best securities, the best lands, the best investments of all kinds are waiting for you on the bargain table. Did you know that the biggest fortunes were not founded in periods of prosperity? They were founded in times of adversity like these, by men who had cash—and courage."

Those words are worth every man's pondering. They are words of common sense as well as common patriotism. They are approved by all ages of the past, and they will be verified by history now in the making. Who hides his talent today will find himself, at last, shamed and empty-handed; who uses it will be numbered among the fortunate, the faithful and the good.—Atlanta, Georgia, Journal.

FEATURELAND

In School Days

Still sits the schoolhouse by the road,
 A ragged beggar sunning;
 Around it still the sunbeams glow,
 And blackberry vines are running.
 Within, the master's desk is seen,
 Deep scarred by raps official;
 The warping floor, the battered seats,
 The jack-knife's carved initial,
 The charcoal Frescoes on its walls;
 Its worn door still betraying
 The feet that, creeping slow to school,
 Went storming out to playing,
 Long years ago a winter sun
 Shone over it at setting.
 Lit up its western window-panes
 And low eaves' icy fretting,
 It touched the tangled golden curls,
 And brown eyes, full of grieving,
 Of one who still her steps delayed
 When all the school were leaving.
 For near her stood the little boy
 Her childish favor singled,
 His cap pulled low upon a face
 Where pride and shame were mingled.
 Pushing with restless feet the snow
 To right and left, he lingered,
 As restlessly her tiny hands
 The blue-checked apron fingered.
 He saw her lift her eyes; he felt
 The soft hands' light caressing,
 And heard the tremble of her voice,
 As if a fault confessing—
 "I'm sorry that I spelt the wrong,
 Because—the brown eyes watered—fell—"
 "Because, you see, I love you!"
 Still memory to a gray-haired man
 That sweet child-face is showing,
 Dear girl! The grasses on her grave
 Have forty years been growing,
 He lives to learn in life's hard school

To An Old Shoe

We've walked the ways of life,
 Old shoes.
 The rough and smooth together;
 I've kept you under foot, 'tis true,
 But you've been honest leather.
 You've not refused to take the dust,
 Your shining surface soiling;
 You've been a friend that I could trust,
 In pleasure or in toiling.
 You've borne the brunt of many a blow
 By foes for me intended;
 You've never kicked a fallen foe,
 Though me you've oft offended.
 You pinched me some when you were new,
 Ere we had learned each other;
 But now you fit my foot, old shoe,
 As brother unto brother.
 But now you're wrinkled, old and gray,
 Too shabby to be mended,
 I'll fling you beside the way
 That by your help I've wended.
 And then I wonder if some day,
 When I am old and faded,
 Like you, I'll be thrown away
 By those whom I have aided.

God Give Us Men

God give us men. The time demands
 Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and willing hands.
 Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
 Men whom the spoils of office can not buy;
 Men who possess opinions and a will;
 Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
 Men who can stand before a demagogue,
 And damn his treacherous flatteries
 without winking;
 Tall men, sun-rowned, who live
 above the fog
 in public duty, and in private thinking;
 For with the rabble with their
 chink-worn creeds,
 Their large professions and their little deeds
 Mingle in selfish strife; lo! Freedom weeps!
 Wrong rules the land, and waiting
 Justice sleeps!

The Round Table

Let me be a little kinder,
 Let me be a little blinder
 To the faults of those about me
 Let me praise a little more,
 Let me be, when I am weary,
 Just a little bit more cheery.
 Let me serve a little better
 Those that I am striving for.
 Let me be a little braver
 When temptation bids me waver,
 Let me strive a little harder
 To be all that I would be;
 Let me be a little meeker
 With the brother that is weaker,
 Let me think more of my neighbor
 And a little less of me!"

The Reward

If you do anything well, gratitude is lighter than a feather; if you give offense in anything, people's wrath is as heavy as lead.

A Prayer

To our merciful Father in Heaven we offer our tributes of praise and gratitude. Incline our hearts toward Thee as we tarry in the multitude of Thy blessings, so free and full. May it always be our delight to spend our strength and zeal on the very best themes of human thought and life. We beseech Thee, our Father, that this warring, weeping old world may not go back to the Trenches of hate. O bring a fresh redemption to it that shall honor Thee and bless humanity and return it to its rest, Lord God of Hosts, be with our people. To the troubled in spirit, to those cumbered with heavy cares, and unto all be Thou a blessing. Vouchsafe Thy guidance to direct us through these hours. Almighty God, administer unto us the wisdom and the faith that cometh from the infinite source of all truth. Amen.

HOW TO SPEED BETTER TIMES

Prosperity is primarily an individual matter. What you personally think and do, from day to day, contributes to the aggregate; and when a sufficient number of persons think and act in the right way, we then have "good times."

- Here are the following suggestions:
1. THINK CONSTRUCTIVELY. Constantly store your mind with helpful, progressive, useful thoughts. Persistently exclude ideas of fear, worry, discontent, and depression. Open your mind to great and noble thoughts, and your character will be strengthened and you will be conscious of vastly increased opportunities.
  2. TALK HOPEFULLY. Right talking stimulates right action. Talk about the things and conditions you want. Waste no time about what might have been, but talk of what you wish to achieve. Be a sensible optimist. Look for and expect the best in life. Intelligent optimism will make you an enthusiast, and enthusiasm is the driving force in all great enterprise.
  3. WORK ENTHUSIASTICALLY. The best medicine for discontent and discouragement is useful occupation. A well-planned life has no place for worry. Make a program of practical usefulness. Resolve to do constantly better. Fortune favors the forearmed. The power of perseverance is incalculable. There is nothing too great for a courageous and enthusiastic worker.
  4. READ WISELY. Turn daily to good books for inspiration and refreshment. The vital thing in reading is what you assimilate. Read helpful newspaper editorials. Read good news of the day. Select your daily reading as carefully as you do your food. Read for useful information and uplifted thought.
  5. GIVE LIBERALLY. Acquire the giving habit. It will repay you in surprising ways. Give intelligently, freely, daily. Give money, books, merchandise, counsel, sympathy and encouragement. The more you give to others, the less you will worry about yourself. Give every day to the utmost.
  6. PLAY FREQUENTLY. It will lessen the tension. Stop often during the day and take a few deep breaths. Learn to let go. Play and rest are as necessary as labor. Stop all nervous habits. Work in poise. Give your powers free play, but do not worry about results. Results are with God.

CHEATING OURSELVES

The story is told of a dishonest worker. He and his family were roofless, whereupon a certain good Samaritan decided to surprise this poor man with a comfortable home. So without telling his purpose, he hired the builder at a fair wage to build a house on a sunny hill, and then went on business to a far-away country. The builder was left at work with no watchman but his own honor. "Ha," said he in his heart, "I can skimp the material and scamp the work." So he went on spinning out the time, putting in poor service, poor nails, poor timbers.

When the good Samaritan returned, the builder said: "That's a fine house I built on the hill." "Good," was the reply. "Go move your folks into it at once for the house is yours. Here is the deed." The builder was thunderstruck. He realized that, instead of cheating his friend, he had been industrially cheating himself when he did not know it was his own house he was building.

That illustration reminds us vividly of the predicament our voters and taxpayers find themselves in today. They suffer under a burden that has become almost unbearable. They wallow and long about the burdens of taxation, wasteful and foolish governmental expenditure, graft and cheap politics. But are they not criticizing the house they built themselves? Back a short time ago when most of us had more money than brains and when we were drunk on the power of the almighty dollar, we openly voted for and supported candidates of a spendthrift character, knowing when we did so that we were "slipping in shoddy materials" in the governmental structure we were building. We knew that government, justly and economically administered, required our sober thought and honest action, yet we dismissed the thought with the snap of a finger and went right along with our own selfish pursuit of the dollar. We didn't have time to vote intelligently.

Now we are reaping the rewards. Of course the house we built leaks and cracks and threatens to collapse. But we can't blame it on the other fellow. We built it ourselves. Let us profit by our lesson and build the next house as it should be. Our democratic government isn't at fault. The fault lies with us voters who built it. We have been cheating ourselves.—Guide, Batesville, Arkansas.

HOW HOME LOAN PLAN WILL WORK

"Just how is the Home Loan Bank System going to help me in buying my home?" is a question in which American citizens are extremely interested at the present time, judging from reports reaching the capital.

The originators of the system recently set up by Congress are hopeful that it will bring new liquidity to owners of small homes as the Federal Farm Loan Bureau has done for agriculture and the Federal Reserve System has done for banks. Funds will flow from parts of the country where available to other parts where they may be needed for housing. During the present emergency it has developed that building and loan societies and other home financing institutions are unable to borrow as they can in normal times and in addition are experiencing heavy demands from depositors who want to take their money out. Ordinarily, building and loan associations, in the face of such a demand, would secure accommodations from their local banks or through other financial institutions.

In the present situation, however, the banks in the sections where there is trouble find it difficult to dispose of some of the securities in their portfolios which include a substantial volume of mortgages on homes and therefore are in or near a frozen condition.

When the new system has been set up, the institutions that make mortgage loans will be able to rediscount their loans at the banks set up in various parts of the country. To do this they must subscribe 1 per cent of the value of the loans they hold on property valued at less than $20,000 to the bank. If the banks are able to establish a rediscount rate of less than 6 per cent, that is usually charged on mortgages, there will be a mercenary incentive for the lending companies to spur them in making loans as well as their desire to do business.

The individual home owner will deal directly with the home loan banks only in cases where he can show proof that he was absolutely unable to borrow money from a member association. The law provides that while the Government has capital in the banks, individual citizens showing such evidence, can borrow directly. Indications are, however, that every effort will be made to have them do business through the member companies. Mr. Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the board, declared that the banks do not intend to enter into competition with their members.

HOW TO WEAKEN

The best way to prepare for the old man with the scythe is to worry about things that haven't happened yet; to take your worries to bed with you; to take no vacation; to slow down on exercise; to overeat during dog days; to sleep with windows only half open; to talk about your health and last year's operation; to manify your ailments; to keep out of the sunshine; to grouch at your neighbors and let your "inferiority complex" get the upper hand.

Rambling Around with Michigan Editors

HOOPER STILL LEADS

In accepting the Republican nomination for re-election to the Presidency of the United States, Herbert Clark Hoover presented the problem of his country in a masterful fashion. Though we have often criticized some phases of the federal government's operations, and at times have found ourselves complaining against a specific act of even our President, we are very, very thankful that he lives today to accept the high responsibility our country has given him. Between President Hoover's mental and professional attainments and those of his Democratic opponent, Franklin D. Roosevelt, we feel a great gulf exists, especially for such times of stress and readjustment. Hoover towers higher today than ever he did. With all his faults, he is still America's leader.—George Averill in The Birmingham Evening.

THE DISAPPOINTING TRUTH

Politicians, and particularly officeholders, are always more critical of the news, especially if it concerns themselves and their jobs. Only last week we were given a dignified but definite scorching for statements, the bulk of which actually praised the officer and his administration. Anything short of superlative praise is considered a knock by most orthodox officeholders. The moment a person lands in public place he takes on something akin to genius and it is a hapless and belated newspaperman who occasionally misses this transcendence. Most folks have always wanted to run a newspaper. We wish it could be everyone's privilege for just a week. Your first disappointment would come from friends.—M. H. DeFoe in The Charlotte Republican Tribune.

A MASTER PIECE

Hoover's acceptance speech was a masterpiece—constructive, fair, comprehensive. His exposition of world conditions thru which we have been passing was an eye-opener for hundreds of thousands who consider themselves well informed. His pledge for the future was gripping, thrilling, dramatic. The president's calmness and earnestness prove his greatness.—James Haskins in The Howard City Record.

FAIR PLAY

Corunna's school board, according to the newspaper in that city, bought some desks and seats of a Lansing concern, and at the same time a manufacturing concern of Corunna is trying to build up a line of business with the same commodity. It is claimed that the Corunna concern did not get a fair chance to land the order at home. There's only one chance to get even, and that would be for the Corunna concern to sell desks and chairs to the Lansing school board.—Harry Izor in The Durand Express.

Producing Farms A Benefit To City Says Adolph Koenig

Adolph Koenig, former city manager of Plymouth, now holding a similar position at Fort Atchison, Wisconsin, was a guest at Friday's meeting of the Rotary club and in response to a request from President Charles Bennett, made a brief address to his old club friends. Mr. Bennett declared that possibly Mr. Koenig could tell Plymouth why business was reported to be better in Wisconsin than Michigan.

"I am quite inclined to believe," stated Mr. Koenig, "that the fact that Fort Atchison is an industrial city, entirely surrounded by a rich agricultural country, makes a considerable difference. Our farmers spend their time working the land, producing as much as they can from it. Then they come to town and spend the money they make in the vicinity of where it is produced. I think possibly one of the difficulties here as I see it from the distance is the fact that there are too many idle farms around here, too much so-called real estate development that doesn't do any good."

Mr. Koenig is on a brief vacation trip with his family. He spent a day in Plymouth visiting many of his old friends.

No County Road Tax In Wayne For Next Year Say Officials

The Board of County Road Commissioners are not unmindful of economic conditions and the urgent demand of taxpayers everywhere for a lowering of the tax rate and curtailment of governmental activities and in line with this policy have unanimously decided to recommend no County Road tax for the ensuing year, stated Wm. F. Butler, County Road Commissioner, yesterday.

seven per cent lower than any previous budget despite the fact that Wayne County has increased its park and parkway area by over 700 acres during the past couple of years, all of which requires some form of maintenance.

The Oakland-Wayne and the Macomb-Wayne Superhighway Commissions are requesting no appropriations for the coming year, leaving all of their activities dormant for the time being, stated Commissioner Butler.

With the elimination of the payment of covert road bond interest and principal through the operation of the Horton Act passed at the special session of the Legislature and the various reduced or eliminated budgets, the harassed county tax payer will be afforded very material financial relief, stated Commissioner Butler.

KILL PEACH TREE BORER BY USE OF CHEMICAL SOON

Injuries caused by the peach tree borer, which is the most serious insect enemy of Michigan peaches, could be entirely prevented if growers would use paradichlorobenzene to kill the borers in the trees, according to the department of entomology at Michigan State College.

The treatment is most effective if given about September 1 after the eggs of the borer have all hatched and while the weather is still warm enough to volatilize the chemical used to kill the insect. The presence of borers in the trees is indicated by a gum.

Trees less than four years old should not be treated. The average-sized four year old tree will require three-fourths of an ounce of the paradichlorobenzene, and larger trees will require a little more.

The crushed crystals of chemical should be placed in a ring around the tree and from one to three inches from the bark. Weeds and grass should be removed from about the base of the tree before the chemical is applied. Cover the paradichlorobenzene with a few shovelfuls of earth.

If the trees are on very heavy soil, the material should be taken from about the tree after three weeks, but this is not necessary on most of the lighter soils where peaches are commonly grown.

Ford Plants Will Resume Work on the Sixth of September

While a few thousand have been retained at the Rouge plant of the Ford Motor company, the major portion have been permitted to enjoy the usual summer vacation period which will end September 6 when the 1932 manufacturing program outlined last spring will be resumed an official announcement stated.

According to statistics released by motor company officials, sales of Ford products in all parts of the country have amounted to 42 per cent of national motor business. "The seasonal summer slump beginning in July relieved in part the double pressure of accumulated and current sales and with all 35 Ford branches now in production of the V8, the supply of cars will continue undiminished," the announcement read.

In accordance with the program outlined by Ford officials for the year, steady employment for those now on the payroll is predicted for the balance of the year.—Dearborn Press.

Local Prisoners Now 'Canning' Meals For City Welfare

Capt. Edward Denniston of the House of Correction just west of Plymouth, is busy. He has worked out a "canned" dinner for the welfare department of Detroit, but before sending it down to Detroit, he tried the "meal" out on members of his board last week. They liked it so, the unemployed of Detroit are now eating it.

The first "canned meals" produced by House of Correction inmates for the indigent were delivered Friday to the Welfare Department by John P. O'Hara, president of the House of Correction Commission.

Ingredients of two one-gallon cans which he delivered to Secretary William C. Murkley, Administrator Harry W. Zahra and Mrs. Dorothea McCue, stenographer, are beef, potatoes, carrots and onions. Welfare officials expect to hand out the "canned meals" with additional rations of bread made from Red Cross flour and milk tickets to indigent families next winter. It is estimated that one gallon will feed eight persons.

A schedule of costs, based on present prices of materials, was supplied by Edward Denniston, superintendent of the House of Correction. The gallon can meal costs

28 1/2 cents and containers holding one-third that much cost 9 1/2 cents. Costs are estimated to cover ingredients, cans, labor, power, steam, overhead and depreciation.

"The meals are very palatable," Mr. O'Hara said, "and have the unanimous approval of the House of Correction Commission. At our meeting Tuesday we ate samples and all asked for more."

A. C. Rinck, cannery superintendent, said that beginning Oct. 1 production can be started at the rate of 2,300 one-gallon meals daily, or 8,000 of the one-third gallon variety.

John F. Ballenger, Welfare superintendent, will have to work out arrangements for financing the purchase of materials to be used.

Mr. Murkley announced that he will go to Pontiac Monday and attempt to induce Oakland County officials to withdraw the suit for $200,000 which they started against Wayne County for relief given Detroit families which became public charges there.

Tax collections have enabled the controller's office to issue checks for most of the bills which are acknowledged by the Welfare officials here. Mr. Murkley is holding some of the checks until some agreement is reached on the suit and also some arrangement made for payment of $35,000 which Oakland County owes Detroit for relief given to its residents.

RIGHT FEEDING OF HENS AIDS THE E G G BUSINESS

Those who want to get the most from their poultry this Fall and Winter should consider the Arcady-Wonder Mash for laying hens as a part of their feed. It is, of course, well realized that the hen must be at her best if her laying is to continue throughout the seasons and that her condition depends upon the character of her feed.

It is urged for the Arcady-Wonder Mash that it has incorporated in it the valuable qualities of fresh livers in the form of a meal that is all through the mash. Recent work has shown that this kind of meat is the best possible food of give strength—the overcoming of anemia through the use of liver being one of the recent important discoveries in the field of medicine.

Nature, however, showed the way long before man recognized her suggestions, for it is a fact that the animals and birds of prey eat the liver of their kills first, sometimes even abandoning a carcass after they have done this. The strength of these animals in proportion to their size is prodigious, and observers think that it has been gained and maintained by this selection.

The manufacturers of the Arcady-Wonder Mash devised special machines and processes to make this meal available. With reason, they call it the "dawn of a new era for poultrymen," for they declare feeding with it adds greatly to the strength as well as the productivity of the flock.

Eckles Coal and Supply Co. are exclusive agents for the Arcady-Wonder Mash, and will be pleased to tell you more of them. They are feed specialists, handling feed for all livestock. Also the stores have fertilizers, seeds and binder twine.

Relative to the opening of the other Wayne bank the Review says: "Confidence that enough signatures to depositors agreements to represent 85 per cent of the total money on deposit at the Wayne Savings Bank have been secured, were expressed at a meeting of the committee and depositors of the institution held at the Wayne Village Hall Wednesday night. Harold Dietrich acted as chairman of the meeting in the absence of William Mutholland, who is away on a vacation.

"A week ago it was revealed that only $3400 was lacking of the needed total. During the week 58 new signatures were secured and if the deposits total only $100 each, the $3400 is more than accounted for. These names are now being checked and the exact number of depositors who have signed the agreement and the amount of deposits represented by the signatures will probably be available next week.

"Once the required number of signatures have been certified, plans for the reopening of the bank will proceed rapidly. It was stated by those who have interested themselves in the reopening. The reopening will be under the direct supervision of the Michigan State Banking Commission."

25 YEARS AGO

Some forty Plymouth people drove to Salem last Sunday to assist in the birthday celebration of the eleven year old daughter of Charles Kinsler. They took their own baskets and a picnic dinner was held that was enjoyed by all.

The large barn on the farm of Ira Wilson in Livonia township was burned to the ground Tuesday evening. The origin of the fire seems to be unknown. About 30 tons of hay was burned. It was insured for about half.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burrows, Miss Verna Root and Elmer Houston spent the first of the week at Walled Lake.

Several horsemen from here took their horses to the Milford fair where they will enter them in the races.

The new steel tower for the fire alarm bell was raised last Wednesday by the firemen. It is 70 feet tall and a part of it will be used for drying the hose.

After seven years of steady work M. A. Patterson took this week off and is spending it fishing at Walled Lake.

Miss Elsie Eddy has secured a position as teacher in the Northville schools for the coming year.

W. T. Conner is spending the week at Walled Lake.

Mrs. J. R. Rauch is visiting relatives in Jackson.

The draught has been broken by a fine rain that was badly needed.

"Great mid-summer clearing sale. All men's summer suits at $8.95. Boys' wulstis, 19 cents. Men's shirts at 29 cents. For ten days only. E. L. Riggs."

This won't hurt America. It was a diet of busks, you remember that brought the prodigal back to his father's house.

You can't tell. Trying to get in on a wet platform, a fellow is likely to skid.

No County Road Tax In Wayne For Next Year Say Officials

The Board of County Road Commissioners are not unmindful of economic conditions and the urgent demand of taxpayers everywhere for a lowering of the tax rate and curtailment of governmental activities and in line with this policy have unanimously decided to recommend no County Road tax for the ensuing year, stated Wm. F. Butler, County Road Commissioner, yesterday.

For many years a County Road tax of approximately $1.00 on a Thousand Dollars of the equalized assessed valuation of Wayne County has been levied by the Board of Supervisors and utilized for County Road purposes. Last year this tax was cut to a half mill or 50 cents on a thousand dollars and for 1933 it will be abandoned entirely with a consequent reduction in the county tax rate, stated Commissioner Butler.

A 24 per cent reduction in the Airport budget is also being recommended to the Board of Supervisors. Neither the Airport budget or the Board of County Park Trustees budget contain any items of capital expenditure. The Park budget is seven per cent lower than any previous budget despite the fact that Wayne County has increased its park and parkway area by over 700 acres during the past couple of years, all of which requires some form of maintenance.

The Oakland-Wayne and the Macomb-Wayne Superhighway Commissions are requesting no appropriations for the coming year, leaving all of their activities dormant for the time being, stated Commissioner Butler.

With the elimination of the payment of covert road bond interest and principal through the operation of the Horton Act passed at the special session of the Legislature and the various reduced or eliminated budgets, the harassed county tax payer will be afforded very material financial relief, stated Commissioner Butler.

KILL PEACH TREE BORER BY USE OF CHEMICAL SOON

Injuries caused by the peach tree borer, which is the most serious insect enemy of Michigan peaches, could be entirely prevented if growers would use paradichlorobenzene to kill the borers in the trees, according to the department of entomology at Michigan State College.

The treatment is most effective if given about September 1 after the eggs of the borer have all hatched and while the weather is still warm enough to volatilize the chemical used to kill the insect. The presence of borers in the trees is indicated by exuding gum.

Trees less than four years old should not be treated. The average-sized four year old tree will require three-fourths of an ounce of the paradichlorobenzene, and larger trees will require a little more.

The crushed crystals of chemical should be placed in a ring around the tree and from one to three inches from the bark. Weeds and grass should be removed from about the base of the tree before the chemical is applied. Cover the paradichlorobenzene with a few shovelfuls of earth.

If the trees are on very heavy soil, the material should be taken from about the tree after three weeks, but this is not necessary on most of the lighter soils where peaches are commonly grown.

Let's see, wasn't there some kind of gentleman's agreement when Europe's statesmen borrowed the money?

If only Mr. Monroe had required bond buyers to let South America alone, too.

Another germ we'd like to see isolated is the one that makes the awful crooning noise.

Ford Plants Will Resume Work on the Sixth of September

While a few thousand have been retained at the Rouge plant of the Ford Motor company, the major portion have been permitted to enjoy the usual summer vacation period which will end September 6 when the 1932 manufacturing program outlined last spring will be resumed an official announcement stated.

According to statistics released by motor company officials, sales of Ford products in all parts of the country have amounted to 42 per cent of national motor business. "The seasonal summer slump beginning in July relieved in part the double pressure of accumulated and current sales and with all 35 Ford branches now in production of the V-8, the supply of cars will continue undiminished," the announcement read.

In accordance with the program outlined by Ford officials for the year, steady employment for those now on the payroll is predicted for the balance of the year. "Dearborn Press.

Local Prisoners Now 'Canning' Meals For City Welfare

Capt. Edward Denniston of the House of Correction just west of Plymouth, is busy. He has worked out a "canned" dinner for the welfare department of Detroit, but before sending it down to Detroit, he tried the "meal" out on members of his board last week. They liked it so, the unemployed of Detroit are now getting it.

The first "canned meals" produced by House of Correction inmates for the indigent were delivered Friday to the Welfare Department by John P. O'Hara, president of the House of Correction Commission.

Ingredients of two one-gallon cans which he delivered to Secretary William C. Markley, Administrator Harry W. Zahra and Mrs. Dorothea McCue, stenographer, are beef, potatoes, carrots and onions. Welfare officials expect to hand out the "canned meals" with additional rations of bread made from Red Cross flour and milk tickets to indigent families next winter. It is estimated that one gallon will feed eight persons.

A schedule of costs, based on present prices of materials, was supplied by Edward Denniston, superintendent of the House of Correction. The gallon can meal costs

28 1/2 cents and containers holding one-third that much cost 9 1/2 cents. Costs are estimated to cover ingredients, cans, labor, power, steam, overhead and depreciation.

"The meals are very palatable," Mr. O'Hara said, "and have the unanimous approval of the House of Correction Commission. At our meeting Tuesday we ate samples and all asked for more."

A. C. Hinc, cannery superintendent, said that beginning Oct. 1 production can be started at the rate of 2,300 one-gallon meals daily, or 6,000 of the one-third gallon variety.

John F. Ballenger, Welfare superintendent, will have to work out arrangements for financing the purchase of materials to be used.

Mr. Markley announced that he will go to Pontiac Monday and attempt to induce Oakland County officials to withdraw the suit for $200,000 which they started against Wayne County for relief given Detroit families which became public charges there.

Tax collections have enabled the controller's office to issue checks for most of the bills which are acknowledged by the Welfare officials here. Mr. Markley is holding some of the checks until some agreement is reached on the suit and also some arrangement made for payment of $35,000 which Oakland County owes Detroit for relief given to its residents.

RIGHT FEEDING OF HENS AIDS THE EGG BUSINESS

Those who want to get the most from their poultry this Fall and Winter should consider the Arcady-Wonder Mash for laying hens as a part of their feed. It is, of course, well realized that the hen must be at her best if her laying is to continue throughout the seasons and that her condition depends upon the character of her feed.

It is urged for the Arcady-Wonder Mash that it has incorporated in it the valuable qualities of fresh livers in the form of a meal that is all through the mash. Recent work has shown that this kind of meat is the best possible food to give strength—the overcoming of anemia through the use of liver being one of the recent important discoveries in the field of medicine.

Nature, however, showed the way long before man recognized her signals, for it is a fact that the animals and birds of prey eat the liver of their kills first, sometimes even abandoning a carcass after they have done this. You can't get away from the fact that

A SIX IS MORE ECONOMICAL

Thousands of tests and owner experience have confirmed THIS FACT: For lowest all-round motoring costs: SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No less!

With more you sacrifice Chevrolet's famous economy. With less you sacrifice the kind of maintenance cost that Chevrolet gives you—the lowest available.

Why not strike a happy balance between "too many" and "too few"? Do as the majority of car buyers have done: SAVE—with SIX CYLINDERS. The Chevrolet engine gives you wonderful gas and oil mileage! Because its smoothness is built-in—the body, chassis and engine are spared the repairs that result from inherent vibration!

STILL GOOD AFTER 15,000 MILES
And the Chevrolet Six stays young for—10,000, 15,000, 20,000 miles and more—carries on—smoothly, dependably, economically.

Moreover it has every modern feature you're entitled to: Free Wheeling, no car is up-to-date without it. And genuine Syncro-Mesh as originated by General Motors. And big, luxurious Fisher bodies. And four parallel mounted springs.

Remember that you can switch to a 1932 Chevrolet for very little money. In fact, you'll probably find it more economical to buy a new Chevrolet Six than to worry along with the old car.

In mentioning these objects it may be stated that they are not merely the dead replicas of a bygone age, but are in every instance or as far as possible, the reconstruction of the original buildings and new made to relieve the life of the village. The village suitably still pulls a hand bellows to form shoes for horses which convey visitors in ancient vehicles about the Village. The old tin type galley man still produces flatirons in the old established fashion. The local shoe maker still makes whole slates as in the days of our grandfathers and the children of the villagers still go to the little red district school house.

When just enough of the paper manufactured to cover the walls and thus to make old things look new and bright. One more special mention must be made—the Lincoln Courthouse. Just why the old Logan County Jail, Courthouse was ever permitted to leave Logan County, the Mail reporter does not know, but moved it was, and there it stands, solid and substantial, rejuvenated and refurbished, made to live again—in Greenfield Village. It was in this building that Abraham Lincoln practiced law for eight years, or from the time he was thirty-one to thirty-nine. Plymouth visitors were amazed to see that it appeared to be entirely constructed of hardwood and put together with screws, including even the floor boards. Residents of Plymouth can well hold more than the usual interest in Greenfield Village. Two of Plymouth's old land marks are already there and made to live again. One of these is the long familiar dwelling which stood on Mill street near the Baptist church and which was built by Peter Trunkaus, father of the present Albert Trunkaus, in 1845. The other is the old time carding mill which for many years had stood on the Gillman Beals property near the eastern city limits. As a boy Mr. Ford visited this mill where his father came to dispose of wool. Most of the original machinery had long since disappeared but Mr. Ford located similar early carding machinery to install in the original Plymouth mill house. At the time this antiquated building was acquired from Mr. Beals, Ford seemed particularly pleased to discover the old iron key hanging from a nail within. Some of the Plymouth visitors were disappointed in not being privileged to see what has become known as the Plymouth House. However, it was explained that the interior of the carding mill is not yet in readiness for exhibition. It is expected that soon the old mill will be carding wool from the backs of sheep raised on the village green. Streets in the village can also be lighted from the same Keweenaw street lamps which on moonless nights near forty years ago helped to show late staying Plymouth swains their way home. Howbeit that Greenfield Village seems to have almost everything that an old time country village should have, it is still a community of wide open spaces with plenty of room for growth. Whether or not many people, or even Mr. Ford himself, have ever taken note of the fact, there yet has appeared no village bank. Now, at this point in the story, Mr. Ford is supposed to say—"But where can I get a bank?" The answer shall be "Get it in Plymouth!" Most citizens have doubtless heard of the "wild cat" banks, but these were factors in Michigan life so long ago that not many know much about them and the present Mail reporter is no exception. It seems that, due to certain wide spread financial distress back in 1837, the Michigan legislature of that year, resting to effect some relief, passed an act in March, amended in December, providing for an unlimited number of what proved to be only make believe banks. Of the nominal capital of these "wild cats," only ten per cent in specie was required to be paid when subscriptions to the stock were made and twenty per cent additional when the bank opened for business. In many cases where these banks opened it is understood that probably not one dollar was secured by real capital, paid in for legitimate banking purposes. For a time these banks sprang up like mushrooms, many of them without even books nor offices. And singular though it may seem, history records that only three of these "wild cats" were established in Wayne county. One of the three was located in Plymouth. It was known as the Wayne County Bank and issued $45,000.00 with no money paid in. However, a substantial brick building was erected for this particular bank, and now, after thirty-five years, it still remains solid and upright—on the southwest corner of South Main and Ann Arbor streets. Although the entire "wild cat" system soon collapsed, and incidentally leaving more bad currency in the hands of the Plymouth township treasurer than wool, the local "wild cat" building was years later used to house the early predecessor of the present Plymouth United Savings Bank. It is believed that Plymouth's "wild cat" bank structure is today Michigan's oldest intact bank building. And it has been suggested that this building be removed to Greenfield Village, there to become the "local bank" of that new "bankless community." Just how Mr. Ford might react to this suggestion is not known, but, whatever his attitude might be, it can safely be said that he is not interested in the purchase of things, which have been given inflated values. Another proffered suggestion is that some local civic organization or group of organizations, or even the city of Plymouth, would be do-

"Instead of the State government as under its present administration taking a lofty and detached attitude toward these every day problems of society, I feel that the state government should be made the People's government and should be responsive to the welfare of the people of the State. If elected, I propose to devise and actively press the adoption of well considered progressive legislation; to appoint men of experience and high qualifications; to hold all public officials accountable and to move without fear or favor should that trust be betrayed and to give the best administration within my power, holding myself equally responsible to every section, every class and every citizen of the State which elects me its chief executive. "If the voters of Michigan want a 'new deal' in the State government, if they believe in a wider social vision, if they are tired of sorrow, issues and palliatives, if they want to set their faces with determination toward a sun light of a new day, then I am ready to lead them. If they back me, I will go forward, and where there is a will behind this movement and honest and fearless leadership, we shall conquer Michigan for the larger life. "We shall and will preserve the same fundamental things for which our country stands, that is, the right and opportunity of the individual to develop his talents in his way, to select his own occupation, to serve as best he can in the great cause that we all have at heart, the reconstruction of our social system to express the demand of the new day. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Koenig and sons, Duane and former Plymouth residents but now of Ft. Atkinson, Wis., were luncheon guests last week Thursday at Mrs. Beatrice Schultz at her home on Church street. In the afternoon she invited their friends in for a visit. ing themselves good by seeing what could be done about making the purchase in their own right, with the view of presenting the building to Mr. Ford for removal to Greenfield Village—if Mr. Ford wants it. Then, indeed, with an old time dwelling, wool carding mill, early type country bank building, old street lamps and other objects, all taken from within the confines of Plymouth, and doing now grace in Greenfield Village, Plymouth would then feel that the Village belongs as much to it as it does to Dearborn. But just as she stands, Greenfield Village will remain an enduring monument, not only to the many-sided Henry Ford, but to small town American life our grandfathers knew. Greenfield Village is yet hardly even a semi-public institution and the privilege given to Plymouth visitors last Friday was greatly appreciated. The entire visitation was considered and organized through the activity of Charles Thumme, Mr. Thumme had conferred with E. G. Liebold, Henry Ford's secretary, several weeks previously and the arrangements were made. Thanks to you, Mr. Liebold, and to you also, Charlie.

PLYMOUTHITES AID SOUTH LYON IN BIG CELEBRATION

The history was placed on exhibition Wednesday by E. M. Calkins, a business man of South Lyon, grandson of one of the pioneer settlers, Eliezer E. Calkins. At the home of the latter, in 1833, was held the meeting of the organization of the township. The area surrounding South Lyon now is a rich agricultural and fruit-growing country, a tribute to the pioneers who cleared the wilderness and tamarack swamp. The history of the founding of Lyon Township shows petitions signed by the residents of the district were sent to the Legislature in 1833 asking that a township be organized with the name "Fairland." But the Legislature changed the name to Lyon Township, in honor of Lucius Lyon, then in the Legislature. This name was generally received with graceful acquiescence, but not without some grumbling from some who thought that the people ought to have the right to name their own township. When the village of South Lyon was incorporated in 1873 it took its name from the township and added the "South" because it is in the southern end of the township. It became a city in 1931. Mrs. Ralph Sprenger and daughter, Betty Ann, of Flushing, Long Island, who are spending the summer months with her parents in Ann Arbor, were guests of Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Mason on the North Territorial Road from Friday until Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Roland Burt, her brother-in-law and sister of Ann Arbor accompanied her to Plymouth and were dinner guests of the Massons that evening.

THE modern funeral home is the result of modern thoroughness and efficiency applied to one of the most important problems of present-day life. Yet with all its efficiency it retains an atmosphere of personal sympathy and reverence. In planning the various features of our establishment, we have been guided by our own experience and that of others. Every facility which has proved of real value in such an institution has been provided. We often hear favorable comments on the fine appearance of our motor cars. Their flawless performance and polished beauty are the result of careful selection to make sure of obtaining strictly up-to-date equipment and minute care and attention. The reverent convenience provided by our SIDE SERVICING hearse and the comfort and safety of our fully equipped ambulance are well worth our efforts to make available a superior type of service.

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 336): "Mind is the I AM, or Infinite. Mind never enters the finite. Intelligence never passes into non-intelligence, or matter. Good never enters into evil, the unlimited into the limited, nor the immortal into mortality."

False Alarm

of kidnapping got R. Constable out of his midnight dreams last Wednesday night and a merry chase in the wake of a dog and a stable boy for the father, one L. C. Arledge of 8 Mi. and Middle Belt reported his daughter Margaret, 15 to have been taken away by kidnaper (singular and plural) so Mister Hirsch scattered the dew drops thru the country-side hither, thither and yon. Finally she was located not with the man she was supposed to be with, but at the home of her cousin Helen Gotthard, where she was found fast asleep at about 3:00 a. m. the two girls together in dreamland.

Margaret's Uncle George Gotthard had taken the notice in for the night as it was said that Margaret had received a whipping with a clothes line for remaining out late a previous night. So Constable Albert, being a loving father of his children, prevailed upon father and daughter to return home and live happily over after, and thus at "3:00 o'clock in the mornin'" all went home and to bed, ending a scare and a short, but merry chase, not catching any lead, had kidnappers, as there were none to catch, and setting the Hirsches, and Mrs. Rose Ruff, (who was visiting her brother Albert Hirsch) on her way from Chicago to her home in Brooklyn, N. Y. C. N. Y., the neighborhood which had been roused and alarmed at midnight episode, all at rest and at ease and to sleep again more or less dreamlessly.

Ridge Road Has Been Used As Highway For Centuries Ridge Is Coast Line of Ancient Lake

At some time most of you have heard of the "ridge road" that runs east of Plymouth to the north and south. No doubt you have driven over the road frequently. Do you know what that ridge road really is? The Indians used the crest of this ridge for a trail because it was higher and drier than the surrounding land. Undoubtedly, however, they did not even suspect the origin of the ridge. Likewise the early settlers chose this ridge for a road. This old territorial road followed the ridge quite closely from Pontiac to Adrian. They identified the ridge as an old lake beach, but they didn't know to what lake it belonged. We have gone much beyond this and have learned many facts about this ancient glacial lake. Scientists have called this Lake Whittlesey in honor of Charles Whittlesey who spent much time studying the lake beaches in Ohio. A map of this beach in Wayne County, Michigan appeared in Houghton's report in 1840. The entire shore line has now been located and described. The beach of Lake Whittlesey lies between the beaches of lowest Lake Maumee and highest Lake Arkona. In spite of the fact that it is so placed, Lake Whittlesey is really younger than Lake Arkona. It would be quite impossible to make any accurate estimate of the time that has passed since the Whittlesey lake stage, but to give some time idea we may give forty thousand years as a rough estimate.

Long before Lake Whittlesey was formed the ice sheet had receded north and east so that what had been Lake Maumee then lowered to Lake Arkona. At this stage the Huron River was cutting away all the river valley, because the mouth of the river was at a lower level. Then the ice-sheet advanced again and by this advance it raised the level of the water from the Lake Arkona stage to Lake Whittlesey and much of the river was "drowned."

Lake Whittlesey extended from Marilla about fifteen miles east of Buffalo to a point nearly twenty-three miles southwest of Defiance. The two arms of the lake reached northward, the one reached Uly, Michigan, the other Clinton, Ontario. Much of the south shore passes only a few miles south of the shore of Lake Erie. All in all, the lake covered an area about twice that of Lake Erie today.

According to the best knowledge of geologists today Lake Whittlesey had two outlets which were very close together. These two channels formed what has been known as the Tyre-Uly outlet in the "Thumb." Uly is on the floor of the one channel and Tyre, which is about four miles southeast of Uly is on the other channel floor. The Tyre outlet was undoubtedly the first channel to be used and probably served as an outlet while the Huron ice lobe still rested on the ridges which separate the two channels. The Uly channel was opened by the retreat of the ice. The opening of this outlet took some of the volume from the Tyre channel, but could not have lowered the level of the lake much because of the heads of Tyre and Uly branches were at the same level. Both of these channels, as seen today bear the marks of water courses. They are floored with beds of gravel, which are in some places four and five feet deep. Boulders are also numerous in many places. The two channels join a mile south and slightly west of Uly. From this point the water emptied into Grand River which in turn flowed into glacial Lake Chicago which was formed in what is now southern Lake Michigan. Lake Chicago emptied toward the south through the Chicago outlet into the Mississippi River, and finally to the Gulf of Mexico. Had we only been living then we could have had a very long interesting journey from Buffalo to the Gulf by water.

If you would like to see a strip of this beach for yourself, a very good view of it can be obtained in the east central part of section fifteen of Ypsilanti township. The ridge of the beach in the section is crossed by the road which enters section fifteen a quarter of a mile east of the west section line. There is a farmhouse, which stands about a quarter of a mile west of the east section line, located on the beach ridge. This short section of beach curves across the northwest quarter of section fourteen and extends about a quarter of a mile north into section eleven. Another ridge begins at the point where the first crosses the east boundary of section fifteen. This ridge extends northward into the southeast quarter of section eleven and on across the northwest quarter of section twenty. The ridge continues in a slightly curved north and south line just west of the center of section one, and passes with a finer like formation through the west half of section thirty six of Superior township into section twenty-five of Superior Township. The ridge road through section twenty-five of Superior is located on the ridge of the Whittlesey beach. The ridge crosses from Superior through the northwest corner of Canton township and pursues an almost straight northeast course through Plymouth, Northville, Livonia, Farmington and Southfield as far as Romeo. It curves then through Armada to Richmond and again takes a northward turn at Tyre. This ridge determines the direction of the main street and the sites of the best residences in Plymouth. The form which the lake took and the location can be seen on the map. The portion often known as Defiance Bay, in the middle of which the city of Defiance is now located, was nearly cut off from the main body of water by the ridges of the Defiance Moraine which left only a comparatively narrow passage for the water. The most general altitude of the various portions of the beach in this vicinity ranges from 784 to 740 feet above sea level.

The beach of this lake is composed of sand interstratified with gravel and frequently containing reasonably good sized stones or boulders. The waves loosened and softened the till first. Then the waters sorted out the coarser sand grains and small pebbles and worked them shoreward. In heavy storms these sand grains and pebbles were tossed back on the beach and formed a ridge called a storm beach. The waves retreating after a storm dropped the heavier pebbles first and carried the lighter sand particles further out in the lake before dropping them. Because of this action the beach is mostly gravel except for a belt of sand on the lake side.

Of the deltas which were formed by the rivers which emptied into Lake Whittlesey the one of particular interest to us is that formed by the Huron River. This delta lies in the southeastern part of section fifteen and western part of fourteen of Ypsilanti Township. It is just east of the first beach described.

The most generally accepted cause for the lowering of this lake is the opening through the retreat of the ice front of outlet channels which were lower than the Uly outlet. These channels were probably either across or around the northern end of the "Thumb." Some of the moraine hills north of Uly which may have served this purpose.

A study of this old glacial lake should be of interest to us for two reasons. One of these is the broadened historical view which it gives of the physical conditions which through the centuries have resulted about the topographical features which we find today. If we wish to consider the value of this lake to us from what might seem a more practical point of view, we can easily see what it has meant to us. The beach has served repeatedly as a building site for homes and schools both because it is slightly higher than surrounding ground and because it affords better drainage. The character of the material in the ridges has also made them favorable sites for cemeteries. The gravel and sands are much easier to excavate than other types of soil. In addition to this great quantities of gravel has been obtained from the lake beaches for road building. All the history and value of this ancient lake we have learned because someone was willing to listen to nature's teaching.

Mess of Rattlers Born at Edgewater

Twenty-five baby rattlesnakes were born at Edgewater Park, on the Seven Mile road Monday night to the amazement of the Park officials and the consternation of Romeo Sampson who superintends the Tropical Gardens where the reptiles live.

Sampson already has 90 adult snakes under his charge, and 25 young ones, darting here and there like so many silvers of quicksilver, are a real embarrassment.

They are the Red Bandit California diamond back snakes, are born equipped with a full fledged appetite and within one hour after birth are as deadly and vicious as any adult rattlesnake.

Their food consists of insects and frogs.

Rattlesnakes are born, not hatched. Sampson states that this is the first time in 10 years that a litter of young snakes has appeared in his collection, for rattlesnakes rarely breed in captivity.

They are not welcome either, and it is his intention to destroy them after the novelty of their being the newest arrivals at the Park has somewhat abated. Babies of every species bring their own welcome. It is said, but apparently baby snakes are an exception. They will be put to death, when they are a week or so old, by the simple process of chloroforming them and then popping them into a jar of alcohol.

The matter of counting these lively youngsters was a problem in itself for they slid here and there so rapidly and were so much alike that it was hard to tell where to begin or to leave off. It was only by the expedient of holding one firmly down with a stick that one could consider him counted. At any rate they have no pet names, and considered unwelcome boarders and sentence of death has already been passed upon them.

Will It Be Newsboy To Governor Asks The Pontiac Press

(From the Pontiac Daily Press)

A Glasgow Scotchman and his wife came to America, bringing with them a brood of children among whom was a lively tow-headed youngster full of energy and mischief.

The family was poor like the usual immigrants to America, and settled in Grand Rapids to make a new home in a country where opportunity loomed bright.

The father died and, in a strange land, without finances and with a large family of children, it was a dreary future the widow and family faced.

It was then George W. Welsh, the tow-headed, began to show those characteristics which have brought him to a point where today he is one of the candidates for Governor of Michigan.

The young lad began to peddle papers to add to the family's meager income. The publisher of the Grand Rapids Press had installed in its offices a school room where between deliveries schooling was provided newsboys. Here George W. Welsh obtained his early education. Quick in rapartee, and an apt pupil, he soon acquired lessons there and in the school of experience which has stood him in good stead in a rise from poverty to an influential position in state politics.

A newsboy's hand added further to the boy's acquisitions. He became a gifted musician with the trombone and played in Grand Rapids theater orchestras. From 1895 to 1910 he was connected with the Grand Rapids Press and finally launched his own newspaper, the Fruit Belt. Later he began the publication of a weekly known as the Chronicle.

Welsh, at an early age, became active in politics. He served two years as alderman and four terms as a member of the Michigan Legislature. In the 1923 session he was chosen as Speaker of the House and in 1924 was elected Lieutenant Governor.

Grand Rapids' city finances were in a slump. The city was in the red. Welsh offered to correct the city's troubles. You've tried financial experts. Give a politician a chance," said he, "and I will set the city on its feet. I will do it on a salary of one dollar a year."

Grand Rapids took a chance. Welsh immediately hired a financial expert, who, under his political tutelage set Grand Rapids' financial house in order and created a situation which gave him unworldly publicity. His recent plans for dealing with unemployment, although discounted in some quarters, have been much discussed in a favorable vein throughout the country.

Now Welsh seeks to become Governor. He ran for the nomination in the primaries of 1928, but this was more of a protest stand than with any expectation of winning, although he polled 189,386 votes against Fred W. Green's 421,505.

In the complications of the political situation two years ago, when Green sought to find some other candidate than Wilbur M. Brucker as a Greenback opponent, Welsh's name was suggested as a compromise candidate who he could favor. Now, it is rumored, the man who made Brucker Governor is viewing the Grand Rapids man's campaign in a kindly way.

George W. Welsh is a self made man in the fullest sense. What he has and what he is has been attained through his own endeavors. When a poor newsboy can rise to heights where he becomes a candidate for Governor, credit is due whatever the outcome of the coming campaign.
