Stanley Chorus Will Be One Of Features Of Annual May Festival

The Stanley Chorus, made up of women students of the University, will participate in the May Festival which will be held in Ann Arbor May 10, 11 and 12. This chorus is the outgrowth of the Girls' Glee Club, which during the past several seasons has rather gotten away from the traditional Glee Club programs and have devoted themselves to the performance of more serious music. The group adopted the name "Stanley Chorus" in honor of Albert A. Stanley, founder of the May Festival, and who served as Musical Director of the University Musical Society, Professor of Music in the University from 1888 to 1921, and who died during the May Festival of 1932.
The group is made up of forty five young women and have been trained largely by Margaret Martindale, an assistant in the School of Music. For their initial festival performance they will sing "By the Waters of Babylon" by Loeffler. This will be performed at the Friday afternoon concert under the baton of Eric Delamarter, with orchestral accompaniment.
In this same program, the Young People's Festival Chorus of between four and five hundred members of the Ann Arbor Schools, will also be heard on two occasions, singing a group of songs, and also an interesting cantata entitled "The Ugly Duckling" by Granville, English. The history of the Young People's Festival Chorus is interesting, it was organized in 1913, and since that time has been an annual feature of the May Festival concert program.

Florence Potter, instructor in Public School Music and Supervisor of Music in the public schools of Ann Arbor, the festival performances were conducted by Dr. Stanley. At the Festival of 1920, Russell Carter conducted the chorus, while George Oscar Bowen conducted the festival performances at the next three Festivals. At the Festivals of 1925-1926 and 1927, Joseph E. Maddy, was in charge, while since 1928, Juva N. The University Choral Union was organized in 1879 and for a period of four years, had no permanent conductor. During these years, the choir consisted largely of a sort of Union of the several local church choirs and concerts were rotated among the church auditoriums. In 1883, however, Calvin B. Cady was brought to the University, as instructor in music and he at once was selected as Musical Director of this singing group. The group was enlarged and after a period of five years, more concerts and more important programs were given. In 1888 Albert Stanley succeeded Mr. Cady and great impetus was given to musical activities, both in regard to importance of choral offerings and the engagement of out-of-town artists for concerts. This became Ann Arbor's first May Festival. From three concerts given during two days, the event from time to time was extended to five days. The festival consisted of six concerts over a period of four days. For the first eleven years, the Boston Festival Orchestra with Emil Moltenhauer, continued to provide the orchestral background and symphonic selections, but in 1905, Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra, with Ernest Ingham as Associate Conductor, began officiating and has continued without interruption for thirty years.

Good merchandising has really become one of the fine arts. There is not only the element of store decorations and the attractive display of goods, but the mustering of a stock in proper proportion to the wants and needs of the trade.
The future happiness and prosperity of most of us depend largely upon how we employ our spare time.
Many a man who is satisfied with himself is awfully disappointing to other people.

THROUGH A WOMAN'S EYES

By JEAN NEWTON

ARE YOU VULNERABLE?

IN THE game of contract bridge, that is the big question. It means if you have already won a game toward the rubber you must pay double and more for your mistakes. A slip that ordinarily costs you ten hundred points means seven hundred if you are vulnerable.
You see, vulnerability is a privilege. It means you are already the winner of a game, and so half way to achieving the coveted rubber. It means, too, the opportunity for special privilege. A so-called "small slam," which ordinarily gives you five hundred points, nets the player who is vulnerable seven hundred and fifty.
But for that privileged state you must take a handicap, in other words, pay a price. The price is that when you bid you risk more than the player who is not vulnerable, the penalties for mistakes being higher to you.
It's a good deal like life, isn't it? There's the old saying, "The higher they stand the further they fall." It means doesn't it, that the higher one stands the more is expected of one, and the greater are the penalties for mis-steps. In life the person who has something achieved in like the bridge player who is vulnerable, with his having more goes greater responsibility, and greater penalties.
Possessions, reputation, success, responsibility, love—they are privileges. And like all privileges we have to pay for them in what the French call "noblesse oblige"—in greater responsibility. What those without such privileges might do with impunity we have to pay for dearly. For, as they say at the bridge table we are vulnerable.

A Little Secret Smile

By ANNE CAMPBELL

WE SAT and talked beneath the trees. A scurried bird sang from the wall. The wind blew silver harmonies. And Paula did not speak at all.
Of those who shared the garden close. She was the only prisoner; She and a haunting yellow rose From the green garden could not stir.
In her low chair she sat apart. Her trusted crutches by her side. Her eyes the mirror of her heart. Her busy hands a sign of pride.
And as we spoke of many things. The changing world, the lengthening mile. She watched the flit of redbird's wings. And smiled a little secret smile.
Across her countenance it went. As sunlight flits upon the sea; And watching her, I grew content With life, and all it gave to me.
In that gay group of women none Abjured the world but she. The grace Of her sweet spirit met the sun And played upon her classic face.

Is Speed Everything?

It is with people who suddenly realize that a friend or a loved one is dead. The speed with which events have occurred is uppermost in their minds. And they, unfortunately, are usually the ones expected to take command of a situation calling for great resources of calm judgment. It's times like that which call for the kind of human assistance to which we owe our reputation for helpfulness.

Battle Of Poets Finds Way Into Columns Of The Plymouth Mail

O. M. Southworth of Venice, California is not known to many local residents, but Mrs. Southworth will be remembered by a large number of Plymouth people as Mrs. E. L. Riggs of years ago, one of the owners of one of the largest department stores in this city. The Plymouth Mail over a long period of years has been a regular weekly visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Southworth. The paper has just received from him a copy of a poem that appeared in a California paper, entitled "How To Dispose of Old Men." Mrs. Southworth found time to answer it, also in verse. The poem and his answer both interesting follow: HOW TO DISPOSE OF OLD MEN In savage tribes where skulls are thick, And primal passions rage, They have a system sure and quick To cure the blight of age. For when a native's youth has fled, And years have sapped his vim, They simply knock him on the head, And put an end to him. BUT WE IN THIS ENLIGHTENED AGE Are built of nobler stuff, And so we look with righteous On deeds so harsh and rough. For when a man grows old and gray, And weak and short of breath, We simply take his job away, And let him starve to death. By George E. Phair in "International Musicians." The answer to the above by O. M. Southworth follows: WE civilized pretend to be. We've quite some ways to go. You readers it is plain to see. Have got to strike the blow. And change this system all around. Give all the young folks work. Creating wealth up from the ground. As full pay none would shirk. Cooperation for every one. A job thru prime of life. Such life would just be fun. Removed from strife, Retirement and honors for the old. Education for the young. Will be the rule when civilized. It has scarcely yet begun.

Men Serve Church Dinner, Declared To Be One Of The Best

One of the most delightful dinners ever served in the Baptist Church was enjoyed by over a hundred people last Tuesday evening when the members of the Men's Fellowship Guild entertained their respective wives and lady friends. Every morsel of the food served was prepared by the hands of men, and according to the ladies present, it was excellently done. After the delicious dinner was over, a most enjoyable program was given. Mrs. Rosemary Hay, Director of the School of Speech at the University of Michigan, presented two of her women students who gave selections of interesting readings. Miss Ruth Borrell gave a one act play entitled, "The Beau of Bath" by Constance D'Arcy Mackay, and Miss Mary Janet Lee gave as her selection, "The Ball of the Harp's Weaver" by Edna Malley. Mrs. Hay herself greatly delighted everyone by three selections entitled, "Don't Cha Know," "Old Lady Packing Her Trunk" and "Motherhood." To climax the entire program Miss Jane Cohn, who is a student at the University School of Music, beautifully played four numbers on the harp. The banquet Tuesday night completed for the season the monthly Men's Fellowship suppers, and not until September will another be given. SALEM FEDERATED CHURCH On April 29 in the morning service at 10:30 o'clock our pastor will speak on the subject, "Our Father's Responsibility." Our Bible school superintendent, Curtis Hamilton, is giving much time and thought to the building up of a church school for the Christian training of our children. Are you doing all that you can to help him? Next Sunday's lesson is taken from the twentieth chapter of Matthew. Memory verse: "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many." Matthew 20:28. If you like to sing, your presence will help in the evening hymn-sing at 7:30 o'clock. The ladies of the North circle wish to announce a Mother and Daughter banquet to be held in the church dining-room on Friday evening May 11. Authority can be conferred upon you, but not wisdom. It has to be earned.

SEEDS FEEDS FERTILIZERS

The PTA will hold their business meeting at the school house Thursday evening. Rev. Nichol of the Presbyterian church will be the speaker and the high school band will furnish music. The CWA singing class will be held Friday evening at Don Ryderson's. The Art class will be held Saturday afternoon at Louis Jennings. The many friends of Miss Loretta Wilson will be glad to know that she is recovering nicely from her eye performed at the Ford hospital last week. The Ferrisville aid are planning a Mother and Daughter banquet May 10th. Plans are being made for the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the Methodist church society of this community. One thing that will greatly help solve the troubles of the country, that is recovering nicely from a most successful operation on well in his home town.
