

Road Program in County Largest Ever Undertaken

Nine State Projects Under Way and Two More Planned

This year's program of construction being carried on in Wayne county by the state highway department is the largest ever to be undertaken here in any one year, according to Harold F. Zumstein, district engineer, whose offices are located in Plymouth.

There are at present nine important projects under way, with two more scheduled to be started about May 1. The total cost of construction of the nine is $484,197, the money being provided from the $4,800,000,000 Works Progress administration grant of the federal government and nearly 1,000 men are employed on these projects, Mr. Zumstein reports.

The largest grade separation job in the state is the Conant avenue project in Hamtramck, an underpass separation for the Michigan Central and Grand Trunk railroads. For other separations, Mr. Zumstein points out, there are only two or three tracks to be taken care of, construction is of a more or less simple, general type and the engineer has no particular griefs or worries. At the Conant avenue separation, however, there are 11 tracks, and engineers' surveys show that there is a train using one of these tracks every seven and a half minutes.

During construction, state highway engineers have had to maintain traffic at all times and this has proved a real engineering problem, Mr. Zumstein states. Construction work is being done by the William Lennax company at a total cost of $548,859. Trestle work is expected to be completed by the end of June, the grade separation structure by September 1, and the entire project by November.

Four projects are under way on US-24, Telegraph road, all of which are expected to be completed so the road will be entirely open to traffic by the latter part of August. One grade separation is being put in half a mile north of US-12, the contract having been let to Walbridge Aldinger company for $56,076. Abutments and steel work are about completed now, concrete slab work will be started in about 30 days, and the entire structure will be finished by July 1.

Four and a half miles north of Flat Rock, on Telegraph, another separation is being put in by the W. H. Mueller company at a cost of $42,775. This also will be completed by July 1. Just south of M-17 on the same road a construction and maintenance job which includes the removal of a temporary double track railroad run-around is being carried out. The complete construction will carry a double track railroad over the Telegraph road. Bryant and Detwiler are the contractors, their bid $109,589. Work will be finished about July 1.

At the intersection of Telegraph road and M-17 another grade separation is being constructed, this one by A. T. Letted and Friedrichs at a cost of $63,797. This will have an overpass and an underpass, and will be ready about July 1. Mr. Zumstein points out that this is a type of construction which is of interest both to laymen and engineers. On M-17 a quarter of a mile east of the grade separation is being put in by the H. G. Christman Lansing company, the contract having been let for $101,540.

A separation also is being made on US-12 a mile and a half south of Plymouth. Jutson Kelly company were given the contract for $74,612, and the work is to be completed by September 1.

For the grade separation at Woodward avenue and US-10, in Highland Park, the railroad tracks at this point are being raised 12 feet from the present elevation, and a clear span construction, like that at Woodward and Baltimore, is being used. W. J. Szarm company was given the contract at a price of $348,072, and work is to be done by September 1. At Goddard road and the Pennsylvania railroad tracks a separation is being put in by Walbridge Aldinger company to be completed October 1 at a cost of $140,867.

The highway department expects to get two additional projects under way in Detroit by May 1, Mr. Zumstein states. The first will be the widening of Woodward avenue to relieve the "bottleneck" condition between Adams avenue and Vernor highway. The widening will be a continuation of the 1935 widening project, and will be done on the east side of the street only. Among buildings which will have to be moved are two churches and the seven-story Couzens building.

The new budget for 1936-37, provided for more of these large highway projects in the county during the coming year, will be ready July 1.

Ladies Aid Society To Present Two Plays

The program consists of two hilarious plays under the direction of Miss Ford, music by the Northville-Plymouth Male Quartette, news items by Bob Jolliffe, duets, solo under direction of Mrs. O'Connor and a comedy number in charge of C. O. Dickerson. Tom Brock is to be the announcer. The program begins at 8 o'clock.

New Firearms Bill Now Law

An act introduced into the House of Representatives January 8 by Congressman George W. Dondero, of this district, which exempts certain small firearms from the provision of the National Firearms act, became a law last Friday when it was signed by President Roosevelt.

The new law offers relief for the Hamilton Rifle company, of Plymouth, and other manufacturers of certain types of .22 and smaller caliber rifles, who were unintentionally hit by the act passed about a year ago to regulate the manufacture and sale of certain types of arms through taxation. Under the provisions of this original act annual taxes of $500 and $200 were imposed on manufacturers and dealers respectively.

The Dondero bill, which has the endorsement of the United States department of justice, puts an end to the discrimination against manufacturers and dealers in .22 and smaller caliber rifles.

Redmen's Lodge Plans Gathering

Large delegations from tribes throughout Michigan, as well as Indiana and Ohio, are expected to attend the annual state Redmen's day to be held Saturday, April 18, in Pontiac for all members of the lodge.

Sessions will be held at the new Oakes hotel, at the corner of Seneca and Mt. Clemens streets, where a chicken dinner will be served from 5 o'clock to 6:30 p. m. At 7 o'clock a large class of Pocaontas members will have degrees upon work conferred upon them by team from Cleveland, and at 8:15 a class of palefaces will be given the adoption degree by a degree team from Indianapolis. Prominent speakers will talk at the open meeting which will follow the conferring of degrees.

Further information may be obtained by members of the Plymouth lodge from Edgar S. Colvin, member of the advisory committee.

Edward N. Hines Is Reappointed Wayne County Road Commissioner

Dean Of Officials In County Has Made Fine Record

Dean of Wayne county public officials, Edward N. Hines has been appointed to the post of county commissioner by the board of county supervisors. Mr. Hines has served continuously on the road commission since its inception 30 years ago. He is the son-in-law of the founder of the Plymouth Mail.

The supervisors' action followed a Supreme Court decision upholding that body's right to take the office of road commissioner off the ballot and make it an appointive office in the interest of a shorter ballot. This action was attacked by Charles A. Matthews, who carried the question to the Supreme Court on a writ mandamus.

Mr. Hines has enjoyed an unusual tenure of office since that day three decades ago when the road commission was formed and he and Henry Ford were two of the original board. Not since his invention and initiation of usage of buttons to road building in the United States that he was presented a card, run an advertisement, spent a dollar or permitted any of his friends to make financial contributions toward his re-election.

When the first road commission was formed, there was not a mile of good road or paved village street in Wayne county. There were no accurate bridges. Today's highway system presents a distinctly different picture, Mr. Hines remarks proudly.

"Before the end of 1936 every road in Wayne county will have some type of improvement," Mr. Hines said when notified of his appointment. "Noteworthy of this work is the gigantic system of concrete highways, with half of the county's 1,400 miles of roads constructed of the highest type, safest, most durable of material, concrete."

Under the leadership of Mr. Hines as chairman of the road commission and under his initiative and superintendence, the first mile of concrete highway in the world was constructed on Woodward avenue, beginning at Six Mile road. This experiment which was tried in 1908 has revolutionized road construction throughout the universe. Mr. Hines is the inventor and initiator of usage of a white line down the center of highways, which he called the center line safety stripe, adopted as a safety measure and copied by every state in the Union.

So many have been his contributions to road building in the United States that he was presented the George S. Bartlett Award in 1935 for "outstanding work in American highway development." Presentation of the award was made last December in Miami, Fla., at a meeting of the American Association of State Highway Officials, the American Road Builders' association and the National Research Council. He is one of the organizers of the Automobile Club of Michigan, a past president and a present director. He is also one of the attorneys-in-fact of the Detroit Automobile Inter-Insurance Exchange.

Recommended For Postmaster

According to Washington dispatches, Hon. Horatio Abbott, Democratic national committee member from Michigan, has recommended to President Roosevelt the appointment of Frank Learned for the postmastership of this city. The appointment, stated the dispatch, had been sent to the senate for confirmation. Mr. Learned is at present employed with the WPA in Detroit. He will assume his new duties immediately upon confirmation of the selection. It has been known for some time that Mr. Learned would have the endorsement of Mr. Abbott for the position as the two have been closely associated in several party activities in the past. There were five other applicants for the place. Mr. Learned has been a resident of Plymouth for many years and served one term as a member of the city commission. In view of the fact that Postmaster E. E. Giles has served over his term, it is probable that his new postmaster will assume his new duties immediately upon being advised of his confirmation.

Parking Lot Is Planned Back Of Business Block

Matt Powell Offers To Fill In And Grade Space For Cars

As a service to both the residents and merchants of Plymouth, the Chamber of Commerce and the city are co-operating to provide a parking lot back of the main business section on Main street and Penningman avenue.

This project has been under consideration for some time, with the Chamber of Commerce strongly in back of it, and has been made possible through the assistance of Matt Powell who has agreed to put in dirt which is being excavated at the grade separation outside of town, and to level it off, at no cost to the city or business men. Mr. Powell also states that the "fill" used will be good fill dirt. William Reddeman, superintendent of public works, will supervise the work.

When the lot has been graded plans are to put on a cinder surface, lay out parking lanes and install suitable lights to make it a safe and desirable parking place for business men and the public. Tentative plans also are being considered for an entrance on Main street where the comfort station is now located.

There will be no fee charged for parking on this lot. It is being developed to relieve congestion on Main street and Penningman avenues on Saturdays and at other rush times. Its sponsors hope it will make the business section more accessible to the automobile trade and proving of benefit to the entire community.

City Grader Repaired And Equipped For Use

The grader belonging to the city has been completely overhauled and repaired and is now being used to put the streets in condition for spring.

It was necessary for the city to purchase several new parts, new tires for the rear wheels, and to have the motor completely overhauled, but it is expected that the equipment now will be adequate to take care of the work this year.

Election Expenses Average 35 1/2 Cents

Election expenses in Plymouth for the regular election April 6 average 35 1/2 cents per voter, City Manager C. H. Elliott reports.

Four hundred and seventy-nine persons, or 22 1/2 per cent of the city's qualified voters, cast their ballots. Total expenses of $170.19 were divided as follows: Printing, $30.15; election supplies, $18; rent, $10; labor, $10; and salaries of election officials, $102.04.

Clean-Up Week Will Be Held May 4th to 9th

Residents Are Urged To Co-operate In Drive To Beautify City

Residents of Plymouth are being asked to co-operate in beautifying the city during "Clean-Up Week," which the city is sponsoring in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce from May 4 to May 9 inclusive.

During this period everyone is especially urged to paint up and decorate their homes wherever necessary, and clean up their premises so that grounds and exteriors will present an attractive appearance.

The city will send trucks around during the week to pick up all rubbish except ashes which householders wish to dispose of, City Manager Clarence H. Elliott has announced, and he asks that the rubbish be placed in suitable containers which can be easily dumped into the trucks.

On Tuesday, May 5, collections will be made in five first precinct, which is bounded on the south by the Ann Arbor road, on the east by South Mill street and the Pere Marquette railroad tracks, and on the west by Main street and the railroad tracks, on the east and north, will be taken care of on Thursday, and precinct four, bounded by the city limits on the west and south, Main street on the east, and Penningman and Church streets on the north, on Friday.

In this way, Mr. Elliott says, all junk and rubbish will be removed by Sunday. Citizens are asked to remember this schedule and plan to have junk ready when the trucks make their rounds.

Leonard Murphy, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, also is urging all residents and merchants to help to make the city a more beautiful place. He states that his organization will issue statements calling attention to the plans being made and try to get the co-operation of all.

Adopt New System Of Cemetery Care Fees

The city is inaugurating a new plan of charging for the care of cemetery lots this year. Fees will be based on a rate of two cents per square foot, so that the cost for an average lot 10 by 20 feet will be $4 annually. Previous to this time a flat rate of $5 per year for each lot was charged.

Bicycle Riders Are Given Police Warning

Chief of Police Vaughn Smith this week issued a warning to parents against letting their children ride bicycles on the sidewalks in the downtown district.

He pointed out that both state and local ordinances forbid this, and that the police department has been very lenient in allowing bicycle riding on sidewalks in residential sections. He also warned against bicycle riding at night, particularly without lights.

Pioneer Resident of Plymouth Writes of Early Village Days

"We had living rooms on the ground floor of the south side of that large plain barracks," she continues, "and we all slept upstairs and went up on the outside of that building, on the north end. We lived there until the spring of 1853 when we moved on to that corner lot, 50x300 feet or more, on the street that went over to the burying ground which Henry Holdbrook gave to our part of the town for a perpetual burying place. I hear how it has been desecrated. It was a favorite spot to me. My father, two brothers—Theodore, who gave his life to free the slaves, and my youngest brother who was born in September 1861, my own son, and Irwin Hackett, five months old, are there."

"My father was Nelson A. Mason," she writes. "He was a blacksmith in the upper northeast town of Plymouth, and bought a home on Main street in the spring of 1853. Henry Holdbrook lived on the north side of the street which ran east and west. Mrs. Lyon lived on the west side opposite Henry Holdbrook. She was the mother of Theodorus Lyon, who taught in the Plymouth high school for a while when Mr. Frisbie's first took charge.

"Our home was built by William B. Grow and he lived there in the forties. He was our Baptist pastor who taught in the Plymouth high school, the Baptist church, and the home where William A. Bassett lived, went into evangelistic work, and finally went to live with Mrs. Grow's sister, Mrs. Ell E. Hendricks, of Carbondale, Pa."

"After I was married to Mrs. Grow's nephew in 1885 I lived one year with the John Hacketts in Aunt Louise Bassett's home in the old parsonage. She was the mother of Albert Bassett."

She goes on to say that Henry Holdbrook and his partner, a Mr. Antisdale, owned the Plymouth flour mill and had a general store across from A. Stephens' home. They also owned she says a "tenement house" north Mrs. Lyons' home. (Mrs. Lyons, she says parenthetically, used to weave their rag rugs for them.)

Installed Head of Shrine Club

FRED D. SCHRADER

Fred D. Schrader of this city was installed as president of the Suburban Shrine club at its banquet held last night at the Mayflower hotel. He succeeds Blake Gillies.

Other new officers are Ernest Allison, of Plymouth, vice-president; Harry Marburger, of Northville, secretary-treasurer; George H. Robinson and Walter W. Smith in Plymouth, Frank Lorenson, of Detroit, and Dr. Edwin R. Lee and Mantous Uht, of Wayne, members of the board of directors.

More than 200 Shriners, their wives and friends attended the dinner and the dancing and bridge which followed. Several Shrine notables were introduced by Mr. Gillies, and telegrams were read by Captain Edward Deniston, past-president of the club. Mr. Gillie announced that the organization had raised $150 during the past year for the crippled children's hospital which the Shrine supports.

The committee in charge of the evening, assisting Mr. Gillies, was composed of William Pettigall, chairman of the entertainment, Dr. Lee, Mr. Uht, and Mr. Lorenson. The Suburban Shrine club is made up of members from Plymouth, Northville, Farmington and Wayne.

Debate Squad To Enter Finals Of State Tourney

By defeating Flint Northern high school's negative debate team, speakers representing Plymouth high won the semi-final round of state elimination contests and gained the right to compete in the final debate May 1 for the state championship, in a match held in the local school auditorium at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. The victorious team is composed of Jewel Starkweather, Jack Sessions, and Tom Brock and coached by James Latture.

As a result of this win, the team will have an opportunity to debate in the contest held annually in Hill auditorium in Ann Arbor, years ago Plymouth won the championship. Although the school has maintained a consistently high forensic record, this year it stepped up to an exceptionally outstanding triumph over the schools which have ranked highest in recent debate seasons.

The question discussed in the semi-final debate was the same as that argued throughout this season—Resolved, that the nations of the world should make government monopolies of the manufacture and sale of all combat instruments of war. Having been assigned the affirmative side of the proposition, Plymouth's team upheld its proposal. The judges gave them a 3-0 decision.

Mrs. Ruth Huston Whipple, chairman of the contest, which was judged by Professor Curtright, of Wayne university, Professor Secord, of the University of Michigan, and Professor Adams, of the University of Northern, Northern's negative team consisted of Marjorie Wilson, Clayton Hodge and Sidney Davidson.

Constructive speeches lasted eight minutes; four minutes were allowed for each rebuttal. Proposals for the affirmative included the manufacture of munitions, Plymouth's speakers asserted that evils exist in the present arms business which render a change desirable, and showed that government monopoly was the logical change to make. The negative team contended that the same evils were committed by the governments of the world and attacked the proposition on the grounds that it would injure national defense. Clever varieties of both cases, and heated refutation took place in rebuttal speeches.

An audience of more than 250 applauded the unanimous decision of the judges in favor of the affirmative, which gave Plymouth its fifteenth important victory of the season; the school has not lost a single contest.

This was the fifth round of the state elimination debate competition. Previously the same team upholding at different times both sides of the question had defeated Van Dyke, St. Philip Ner, Ferndale, and Redford. The debate squad, consisting of Florence Burton, Edith Metcalf, Dorothy Hearn, Harry Fischer, Russell Kirk, and the present elimination team of Jewel Starkweather, Tom Brock, and Jack Sessions, also gained the championship of the Wayne Valley Activity association, twice beating Dearborn, River Rouge, Ecorse, Lincoln Park, and Ypsilanti.

James E. Latture, member of the Plymouth high school faculty, has coached debate here for five years. Previously a debate team has been able to compete in the restricted state eliminations. Of the present debate squad, three are juniors and will remain to defend their record next year.

Bridge Breaks Under Heavily Loaded Truck

When a heavy truck loaded with dirt crossed the Garfield avenue bridge over Tonquish creek Friday afternoon, several planks gave way. The truck was removed and investigation revealed that many of the planks were rotted out.

There is a possibility that the bridge will have to be rebuilt or replaced. City Manager C. H. Elliott said this week. Some decision will be reached at the next meeting of the city commission.

Growers Plan Meeting Here

One of two interesting meetings of vegetable growers in Wayne county who are interested in the diseases of tomatoes and melons will be held at 8 o'clock on Friday evening at Plymouth high school. The other is scheduled for 1:30 o'clock this afternoon at Belleville.

The sessions will be led by C. H. Mahoney, specialist from Michigan State University, and J. C. Carr, county agricultural agent. Mr. Mahoney has been making an intensive study of the work to be covered in the meetings.

Townsend Club Will Meet Monday Evening

Officials of the Plymouth townsend club announce that there will be a big mass meeting Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the Grange hall on Union street. An excellent speaker will be present to discuss the subject. An especial invitation is issued to everyone to be present and hear the talk.

Wilbur Murphy was home from Bay City to spend Easter with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Murphy, on Plymouth road.

MR. BRUCKER'S ANNOUNCEMENT

The announcement of Wilber M. Brucker in which he says he has become a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator in opposition to Senator James Couzens early this week barely created a ripple in this part of Michigan. Voters seem to realize that the former Governor is possessed of a constant, burning itch for public office and from his statement, that seems to be about his only reason for becoming a candidate.

He does not apparently comprehend the fact that the tax-burdened people want something more than mere criticism of some one or something as a basis upon which to make such an important change as he asks. Possibly Mr. Brucker has the idea that his only hope for success lies in his condemnation of this, that and the other thing, knowing that he cannot offer his own public record as a reason for another opportunity at public service in a much higher position than he occupied before.

If the voters, (not the penny-ante politicians) feel as though the time has come for a change in the senior United States senatorship from Michigan, there should be offered to the state something more than a mere spouting human geyser. Senator Couzens is accused of the brutal crime of having voted for some of the New Deal legislation. His other offense, declares the "boy wonder" who deserted the valley of the Saginaw when the home folks didn't vote for him after he had served one brief term as Governor, consists in having refused to connive with the back-stage politicians of the Republican party of Michigan.

As for the first offense, our junior Senator is as guilty as Mr. Couzens—and the decent Republicans of the land are talking about him for President.

For the second offense, we feel that maybe Senator Couzens should be forever banished to Devil's Island or Alcatraz. It is such a heinous crime not to consort with scheming politicians!

Brucker says also that he should be senator because he is a better "party" man than Couzens. We quite agree with him if he means the kind of "partyism" that stood for inefficiency, high taxes, favoritism, increased public expenditures at a time of public distress, and one of the most insipid administrations Michigan ever had.

If he means the kind of Republicanism that in the years ago brought honor and progress and glory and prosperity to America then we say that Brucker is a pygmy as compared to Couzens, and this is not declaring that the senior senator typifies the ideal Republican.

Mind you, too, that this editorial is not an endorsement of any candidate for senator or of the administration in Washington. We are simply pointing out the unfitness of the former Governor for the high public place he says he wants. Recall if you can one single accomplishment during his administration as Governor that in any way benefitted the people of Michigan. Recall if you can one single recommendation he made that in any way amounted to anything.

If a grand jury had dug into the conduct of the recount which took the Republican nomination for Governor away from former Governor Groesbeck and gave it to Brucker back in 1930 the same as it did into the attempted steal of the election last fall in Wayne county, Michigan politics wouldn't be in the deplorable mess one finds prevailing these days.

No, we cannot see where Mr. Brucker has the slightest claim to the nomination for United States senator, or any other position of high public trust, as for that matter.

There is a need for men in high public positions who honestly and sincerely believe in real tax relief for the people. There is a need for men who know something of the problems of men and women who work long hours for a living, or who would enjoy the opportunity of working. There is a need for men who can think and who know the viewpoint of the masses.

Coupled with these demands—WE NEED MEN WITH IDEAS and a desire to do something for the good of the state and nation—not men possessed only of an irresistible itch for a place on the public payroll.

Mr. Brucker's record at Lansing offsets any claim he may make pertaining to a desire to aid the taxpayers of Michigan or the nation. He can offer nothing except a glib tongue—and there is too much of that in Washington today.

KILLING THEM OFF

The frightful death list due to automobile traffic is mounting daily, in spite of all that is being said and done to check the causes of motor disasters. Much has been written and many suggestions made as to ways in which automobile drivers can to a very large extent prevent accidents.

Probably one of the best lists of suggestions that has appeared in print for the purpose of instructing drivers in ways of safety on highways was recently prepared by Lieutenant C. J. Scarvada of the Michigan State Police and published in The Buick Magazine which came to The Plymouth Mail office a few days ago.

Every person should not only read these various suggestions over, but they should clip them out and read them over again at least three or four times. If followed to the letter, it is safe to say that automobile fatalities and accidents would be reduced to the minimum. These suggestions follow:

1. Driving too fast for conditions. This violation comes in many forms, of which perhaps the most dangerous is traveling at a greater rate of speed than the prevailing traffic and "cutting in" ahead of overtaken cars to avoid traffic from the opposite direction. Other factors, such as visibility, width of road, and surface conditions, also determine the safe rate of speed.
2. Overtaking and passing on hills and curves. In committing this violation, the driver determines in advance not only to risk his own life but that of the approaching driver, whom he cannot see.
3. Overtaking and passing on the straightaway when, because of traffic approaching from the opposite direction, there is not sufficient clear distance ahead. This violation may occur because of excessive speed on the part of the over-taking driver (causing inability to prevent a rear end collision by any other means) or by improper judgment of the rate of speed of oncoming traffic.
4. Driving on wrong side of road; straddling center lane of two-lane highways; using inside lanes on three and four-lane highways. This is a very common type of violation, the danger of which is obscured by the fact that the driver usually finds it easy to get back into the proper place when necessary. That this assumption is often wrong is proved by the number of accidents caused by this practice.
5. Refusing to give way to the right after horn is sounded by overtaking vehicle. Violations of this kind most often occur on wide highways. Many drivers seem to feel that because there is plenty of room to the right the overtaking motorist may pass on that side. An especially vicious form of this violation is that of increasing speed at the time the overtaking car is passing.
6. Failing to slow down at intersections. This kind of driving shows lack of forethought. One of the prime essentials of good driving practice is the anticipation of things that are likely to happen, such as an unexpected crossing or turn into the highway.
7. Failing to slow down on the approach to the crest of a hill, where vision distance is greatly restricted. The cardinal principle of safe driving is to always be able to stop within the distance that you can see ahead.
8. Failing to slow down on approach to pedestrians, especially at night, when the glare of oncoming headlights makes it difficult to see a pedestrian ahead on the road. Of the 36,000 persons killed in traffic accidents during 1934, 16,200 were pedestrians. The majority of these fatalities occurred after dark.
9. Making improper right- and left-hand turns and failing to make proper signals with hand or signal devices before making the turn. It is particularly important to signal long enough in advance of the change in speed or direction to allow other motorists to react.
10. Violation of traffic control devices—signals, stop signs, etc. Traffic signals, stop signs, and highway markings of all kinds serve in the capacity of police officers and must be obeyed.
11. Dangerous and unlawful parking on rural highways. Parking at night without lights, on hills, and on the traveled portions of the highway is a frequent source of trouble.

"MOON OVER MIAMI"

The moon shines brightly over Miami—at times. But gentle reader it isn't the moon you think it is or that you sing about.

Would you ever believe it—the moon over Miami we're talking about is Michigan's own Ed. A. Nowack, the Lansing gentleman who has brought fame and glory to the Grand Old Party of our state—to his way of thinking.

Beg pardon—it isn't just plain Ed. A. Nowack way down on the sunny beaches of Florida, its Colonel Ed. A. Nowack if you please south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Yas sah! It's Col. Ed. A. Nowack, because that's just the way he gives it to the fair lady society editor of the Miami Herald.

From the society columns of this important winter resort newspaper, right next to the names of the Vanderbilts, Wanamakers and other social lights of the cold stone mansions of New York, Philadelphia and Newport, was taken the following item some weeks ago about Michigan's Moon over Miami:

Col. Ed. A. Nowack of Lansing, Michigan has opened his winter home on San Marco island. Col. Nowack is publisher of the Michigan State Digest.

There it is folks! Who would ever have suspected it of our own Mike Nowack?

Constructed on the south shore of San Marco island, along Biscayne bay and overlooking the entire beautiful waterfront of dazzling Miami is the attractive winter home of Mike—beg pardon—Col. Ed. A. Nowack, years ago the best railroad hand car pumper that ever put man-power to one operating along the railroad section out of Mancelona. Maybe Mike was the "colonel" of the section crew. Nobody up north ever heard of him being colonel of anything else, unless it was the old section hand gang or the Michigan Trust Commission that Mike served for such a brief time with such out-standing distinction to Republicans, Michigan and the trust busters.

As Col. Nowack dangles his feet off his front porch that protrudes over Biscayne bay, looking down upon that fastidious city just as does the moon, a million electric stars twinkle to his delight. Just as do the stars in the sky above twinkle for the man in the Moon.

But read on, Michiganders, about our former famous ex-trust Commissioner!

Col. Nowack's winter home, surrounded on the front by the blue waters of the Atlantic that flow through the bay, and on the north, west and east by lily white walls of purest concrete, is really a thing of beauty. A dozen royal palms grace his driveway. Two hundred "smackers," they say down in Miami, isn't a very high price for a royal palm that has to be transplanted. (The word smackers down south means good American dollars in Michigan.)

So the tourists might know just who occupies the attractive residence, Mike has had a beautiful name plate made in gold letters and placed on an artistic holder at the entrance to his paved driveway, telling the world that therein lives Michigan's ex-public trust servant whose aid to the holders of defunct bonds seemingly was not appreciated by anybody.

But turn again to the society columns of the Herald some three or four weeks after the "Colonel" has opened his winter home on San Marco island and read the following item:

"Capt. Lawrence Lyons, ranking officer in charge of the Michigan State police, Mrs. Lyons and son of Lansing, Michigan, are guests in Miami of Col. and Mrs. Ed. A. Nowack at their San Marco island home."

Now that's interesting too. It reveals that our own "Col." Ed. A. Nowack has a very deep interest in the excellent work of the Michigan State police as well as the personnel of the organization.

Folks always have said that you just can't stay in your own backyard and know how important and what big shots your neighbors and acquaintances might be in the universe.

Who would ever have believed that big, good natured Ed. A. Nowack was really a Colonel way down south and that the shining moon over Miami is the same Mike perched on the front door steps of his beautiful bay front home? A little twinkling political star up in Michigan is a big beaming moon over Miami.

He turned the purse over to the conductor and got off at Plymouth, where he saw Harry Robinson and told him of his find and the name on the card. Mr. Robinson at once got Mr. Burch at Northville on the telephone and that gentleman was very much relieved when the information was imparted to him that his money had been found and might be obtained at No. 12 Woodward Ave. Mr. Burch having discovered his loss and being anxiously engaged in trying to locate it. The money was recovered.

Rambling Around With Michigan Editors

WHO WILL PROTECT US FROM FEDERAL BUREAUCRACY?

How would you like to live in a country where every activity you engaged in was subject to regulation by your government? Where agents of a federal dictatorship were in every city, village, and hamlet, and you would live in constant fear of being arrested for violation of some dictatorial regulation? Hundreds of millions of human beings actually are living under such conditions at the very moment. The United States is not immune to this world-wide political epidemic at all; it can happen almost overnight. Eternal vigilance and aggressive citizen-interest are the only vaccines against the spread of bureaucratic political epidemics in any man's country.

The disinterest and lack of knowledge of public affairs by you average business, financial, and industrial man of large affairs offers fertile fields for the planting of a dictatorship in the United States. Where, oh, where, are real leaders of America these days? The answer echoes: in their stores, banks, and factories, planning profits for an uncontrolled governmental bureaucracy to take away from them.

No man can be a good citizen unless, along with his desire to make an honest commercial livelihood, he carries out the obligation that goes with self-government.—George Averill in The Birmingham Eclectic.

DON'T FORGET THEM

Now that a Federal investigation of Townsendite activities is under way in Washington, and news of dissection among the leaders of the National Union and within the State is reaching the press from time to time, let us again ask what has all this to do with the justice or injustice of the Townsend Plan?

If, some critics of the movement assert, poor people have been induced to contribute because of vain promises, that does not detract from whatever intrinsic merit the Plan may possess. If, on the other hand, these funds have been solicited in complete good faith, that does not add one whit to the own importance for the movement has been attacked. Its leaders are entitled to full vindication or exposure as the evidence may determine. But that decision should not seal the fate of the aged. Their security is a matter of public concern, and should not be forgotten no matter what happens to the Townsend leaders or to the particular plan they have advocated for this most worthy purpose.—Harry Izor in The Durand Express.

WHERE LAW IS LAW

Whether or not we like England or the English, we must take our hats off to their fine legal system. One reason they succeed where we fail is because of the impartiality shown in administration of the law. Even royalty is not exempt.

Only a few days ago, for example, a large green limousine tried to drive up a narrow one-way street in the busiest quarter of the city. A bystander shouted, "Hi, you can't go through there," and a police sergeant hurried up to rebuke the erring chauffeur.

Queen Mary and her daughter seated in the back of the automobile smiled when the red-faced bobby discovered their presence and sprang to salute.

But the car was not permitted to continue up the street in violation of the law. It was backed out by the driver and proceeded by another route.

Would a similar situation have been handled with such absolute regard for the law; also would the personage in question give way to an officer of the law with such graciousness?—Dick Cook in The Hastings Banner.

The Townsend Plan may be all wrong, but it has the politicians laying awake nights.—Joe Haas in The Holly Herald.

Walton League Wants License Law Extended

At its state convention in Ypsilanti, the Michigan division of the Izaak Walton league voted to ask the state legislature to amend the fishing license law so that all persons fishing in Great Lakes waters under Michigan's jurisdiction would be required to buy a license.

Under the present laws a license is required only for fishing in inland waters.

The League also went on record in favor of assessing an additional 50 cents for trout fishing and lowering the license age limit from 18 to 17 years.

Legal Immunity For Three Kinds of Fish

Beginning May 1, three well-known varieties of game fish will have legal immunity from fishing for a period of almost two months.

The law declares that no bluegills, sunfish or warmouth bass shall be caught between the dates of April 30 and June 25 in any of the inland waters of the state.

This complete immunity from legal fishing is provided by law to protect the fish during their nesting season.

The closed season on black bass began January 1 and continues to but not including June 25.

BOOK SHELF

"The Way of a Transgressor," by Negley Farson.

Once in a blue moon this business of writing is justified by something so utterly different and fascinating that the galleys of trash which our printing presses turn out every year can be forgiven and forgotten.

Needless to say, all the time-proven classics fall into this class, but in the prolific twentieth century when almost every person who can write a grammatical English sentence is certain he can produce the Great American Novel (and one wonders why the publishing houses seem to agree with so many of them), it is more difficult to come upon the really worth while things.

Without attempting to name all of the outstanding works of the past few decades, it is necessary to mention only a few of the more recent ones—Richard Halliburton's "Royal Road to Romance"; Erich Maria Remarque's "All Quiet on the Western Front"; Anne Lindbergh's "North to the Orient"; Alexander Woolcott's "White Rome Burns"; H. H. Hervey Allen's "Anthony Adverse"—these are only a few that come to mind. They are not all necessarily great books, but they have this one thing in common—they are penned with a certain skill of workmanship and their subject matter either is entirely new or presented in such a new and different manner as to be intensely interesting.

Now we have "The Way of a Transgressor," the autobiography of Negley Farson. An autobiography, yes, but it defies all efforts to catalog it after the manner of the librarian. Among other things the author was a newspaper man—foreign correspondent for the Chicago Daily News—and with a newspaper man's instinct for what makes a good story, he has jumbled together in a thoroughly delightful manner details of his own life and "behind the scenes" incidents of European politics and economics during and since the war.

There is nothing studied or in the least intellectual about this book, and it makes a no pretense at being a learned treatise on political economy and intrigue, yet one can glean a truer idea of what really happened during the war and post-war era, particularly in Russia, than can be obtained from many more serious works. Farson mimes no words in calling a spade a spade, and camouflages none of the crooks, lies, or little European scene by designating them by blanks or initials. Neither does he make any attempt to whitewash all his own actions, although one cannot avoid the feeling that he is quite pleased with himself and his life.

Most of us bewail the fact that our lives are so circumscribed that we lead humdrum existences when there is so much of interest to be done, and then before we wish it we are held down by ties of duty to do anything about it. We read with envy of such people as Negley Farson, who have dared to do what we could not. It is impossible to chronicle here the varied existence he lives—his life in Russia, first trying to sell American munitions and later as a journalist, his experiences as an aviator in Egypt with the British army during the war, his almost idyllic life in British Columbia with his English bride, his boating trip with her from Holland across Europe to the Black Sea and, finally, his rather kaleidoscopic impressions of Europe, recorded during his years as a foreign correspondent.

Suffice it to say that if you like travel, adventure, anecdote and politics, told in an extremely readable style, by all means set your eyes on this latest offering of the essentially American writing. You will not want to lay it down until you have read the last page. R. E. G.

Rae, of Dearborn, handled the case for the plaintiffs, the cities of Plymouth, Dearborn, Grosse Pointe, Hamtramck, Melvindale, River Rouge and Wyandotte.

How Much IS A BANK WORTH TO ITS COMMUNITY? PERHAPS you have a very good idea of how much it would cost each week to employ a good cook, book-keeper, clerk, or farmhand. But how much are the services of a good bank worth to you? A merchant is entitled to receive for his goods the cost of the article plus a fair return on his invested capital. Following this thought a Bank's services should be worth what it costs the bank to handle your business including a fair return on its invested capital. By keeping your bank balance in proportion to the activity of your account, or by paying a small service fee on small, or highly active accounts, which would otherwise cost the bank money to carry you can "hold up your end." Just a thought, in the interest of sound banking, from your bank. PLYMOUTH UNITED SAVINGS BANK Plymouth, Michigan A Progressive, Reliable Institution

Northville - Wayne County Fair Assn. Elects New President, Vice-President

Elmer L. Smith Named to Take the Place of Nelson Schrader Who Held Place For More Than Ten Years.

At a special meeting of the directors of the Northville-Wayne County Fair Association called last Thursday evening by Secretary Floyd Northrop, Elmer L. Smith of Northville was elected president of the association, filling the vacancy created by the recent death of Nelson C. Schrader, former Plymouth resident who served for more than ten years as president of the organization.

ing served together during all of these years as the executive of the organization.

The Northville Record in its report of the election states: "In addition to his duties as vice president, Mr. Smith has had charge of free attractions for the past several seasons and previous to that he was in charge of the concessions. His selection as president, board members say, is a deserving recognition of his faithful service in behalf of the fair, covering a period of more than 15 years.

"Elton R. Eaton, editor of the Plymouth Mail, was named vice president of the association. "During the past few months plans have been underway for the annual event and already many special attractions and free acts have been contracted for, with the idea of making the 1936 fair surpass all that have gone before. Business conditions have improved during the past year and it is believed by the directors that the attendance next fall will be back to normal — when it was necessary to "make 'em in."

At the meeting regrets were expressed by all present because of the passing of two faithful members of the board — Marvin Sloan and Nelson C. Schrader. Mr. Sloan served as superintendent of the speed department for many years, and Mr. Schrader was president of the association for 10 years. Both of these men seemed never to tire in their efforts in behalf of the fair. The directors feel that their departure is a distinct loss to the society and the community they served so faithfully and efficiently.

Fire Warnings Again Issued to Fishermen

"Be careful with fire!" This time-worn warning and reminder will be echoed throughout northern Michigan again this spring as tens of thousands of fishermen appear in the woods. Saturday, April 25, to open the trout fishing season. Conservation authorities here know from past experience that the opening of trout-fishing season enormously increases the hazards of wood fires, particularly if dry weather has prevailed for any length of time. After months of confinement to the cities, many sportsmen will have forgotten their woods habits and are likely to drop lighted matches and burning tobacco unthinkingly wherever it's convenient. These may cause fires that destroy game cover and even timber and frequently life.

A recent dry period in north central Michigan produced the first forest-fire scare of the year, but a light snow relieved conditions. Several fires, originating mostly in dry grass, were reported.

Local fire wardens and tower-men are being ordered on duty as soon as war-warrantable hazard conditions develop locally.

Geologist Predicts More Wildcat Wells

More wildcat wells are likely to be drilled in Michigan this spring and summer than ever before, in the opinion of Dr. R. A. Smith, state geologist.

Markets for Michigan crude oil have been expanded until the demand is much greater than the present supply. To meet this demand new fields must be found to supplement the declining production by the older Michigan fields.

The office of the supervisor of wells at Lansing during the first quarter of the current year has issued 167 drilling permits as compared with 91 for the same period of 1935.

The present price of crude oil is $1.32 per barrel, a rise of 20 cents a barrel since January. It is generally rumored that there will be another increase in the market price of crude oil soon.

Fisheries Patrol Is Started in Michigan

The annual patrol of commercial fisheries operations on Great Lakes waters under Michigan's jurisdiction will be started by the state department of conservation this month.

The department's patrol boat, No. 1, an 82-foot Diesel-powered cabin cruiser, was to leave winter quarters at Cheboygan Wednesday to begin the season's check-up of fisheries activities. It has a crew of four, counting Captain C. J. Allers, of Cheboygan.

Patrol boat No. 4, a 38-foot gas-powered cabin cruiser will begin the annual patrol of Isle Royale as soon as ice conditions on Lake Superior permit, which probably will be by May 15. The No. 4 has a crew of two, counting Richard Lahti, captain and conservation officer, who checks fire hazard conditions on the island and is in charge of general law enforcement.

Style Silhouettes

Despite the fact many people would have us believe that the womanly arts of sewing, cooking and housekeeping have gone by the boards in this so-called machine age, there are many proofs to the contrary, not the least of which is the popularity of the yard goods departments and pattern counters in our large department stores.

There are several reasons for this. To begin with the much-maligned machine age has made it possible for the average woman to have more opportunity for such productive pastimes as sewing and knitting. Then, too, the things which one makes for oneself are, in many cases, more economical and in many cases more economical.

It's fun to plan and execute a dress or suit, from buying the pattern and the material to putting the final button or snap fastener in place. There is such a wealth of beautiful materials and smart styles to choose from that it is difficult to make a choice of just one or two. Summer things are especially easy to make, and one never can have too many cool, comfortable yet decidedly chic frocks for morning wear, golf, the beach, afternoon bridge or evening dances.

The wisest course to follow is to choose your pattern first, for when you know what the finished article is to be, you can choose the most appropriate material. This season both very tailored and very feminine lines are good so, since the former are so smoothly turned out by ready-to-wear manufacturers that it is almost foolish to try to make them any better yourself, you can vent your ambition on those frilly things which every woman loves.

Floral prints are lovelier than ever this year. They make up beautifully into dresses for house and formal evening gowns. There are the new gossamers — rose and blue blossoms scattered on a white ground in the fashion of the quaint old chintz patterns, or huge clusters of pseudo-hydrangeas in lovely shades of blue, to mention only two. Party frocks for summer are lovelier when made of this type of material, for flowery designs, delicate colors and soft silks which drape gracefully adapt themselves best to frilly feminine styles.

Plain colors, in soft pastel shades, also are being shown. There is, for example, a soft lovely acetate, with a finish much like the silk-linens which we had last year, which comes in a most flattering dusty hyacinth blue and would be lovely for a summer suit, with a print blouse in which a matching color is to be found. Dusty pink also is one of the season's best, and will be worn with black, navy or gray, as well as used for a background for print designs. One material has little brown and white seed pods on a pink ground, while another has fluffy white milkweed down puffs scattered over pink.

Before long, they say, we'll be hearing a lot about "seeded" fabrics. This seldom doesn't mean that some young Burbank has succeeded in planting seeds, but it does mean that textile manufacturers are using specks of real seeds twisted in cotton fibers to achieve a rough surface. These materials will be used especially for summer sportswear and tailored coats.

For wear at resorts bright percales and peasant linens are the ranking favorites. You can make a coat and skirt of peasant linen in a dark natural shade printed with a conventionalized design in white, or a blouse of orange handkerchief linen and brown accessories and — well, your "tops."

If you are planning to make yourself a pair of those cool, comfortable culottes and a matching skirt, there are all sorts of delightful materials which would be just the thing. You'll be surprised at the lively patterns and unusual colors. Dark backgrounds with gaily bright figures are among the newest and most unusual.

Synthetic fabrics are becoming more and more popular, probably because they have such beautiful surfaces and good wearing qualities. There is a delicate spun rayon material known as Featherstone which is one of the achievements of modern science. It is really acetate, but it looks and feels like a thin delicate wool. You can imagine how lovely it is in gray, pale pink, yellow, green and blue, with a surface which seems covered with a light frost or thin mist. Truly it is a fairy-like material.

The season of weddings is upon us, so here is a word for the prospective brides. The really "knock-out" wedding gowns this year are made of white taffeta or heavy white sheer, cut with a slim, point-

Road Projects Are Approved

Low bids on two construction projects amounting to $81,491.79 have been approved by Murray D. VanWagoner, state highway commissioner.

One of the projects involves the construction of a grade separation over the Pennsylvania railroad tracks, a mile southwest of the Cadillac city limits on M-115. This trunkline is the new Clare to Frankfort diagonal on which construction is proceeding steadily. Frank and Stiehl, of East Lansing offered the low bid of $18,944.07 on the structure.

The other project is the construction of 2,146 miles of 20-foot concrete pavement on US-25 from Utica road to Masonic boulevard in the village of Roseville and Erin Township in Macomb county. J. A. Merriam, company of Detroit, had the low bid of $71,547.72.

A low bid of $1,281.83 was also submitted for the building removal on US-23 between Kaw-kawin and Linwood where the highway will be widened. Francis W. Searles company, of Pontiac, was the low bidder.

Weight Restrictions On Roads Not Lifted

Murray D. VanWagoner, state highway commissioner, refused to lift weight restrictions on Michigan roads.

The refusal came as a rejection of the plea of several truckers that the state highway department remove the restrictions. They pointed out that the states of Ohio and Indiana had lifted the load limits.

Commissioner Van Wagoner's decision was reached after maintenance engineers took soundings on Monroe county trunklines during the week. These soundings showed one to two feet of spongy material below the pavements and a foot of frost below this material. The spongy material cannot dry out until the frost leaves the ground, the commissioner pointed out.

Department records show it is not unusual for restrictions to continue to this time of the year.

ed bodice, trimmed with many small buttons from a much-ruffled collar to the waistline, and having sleeves which are large at the shoulders and narrow at the wrists. The skirt must be full and may trail slightly. It sounds like a description of your mother's wedding dress, but it really is the latest thing. Bridesmaids gowns are fashioned on similar lines, with short sleeves and low square necklines outlined with ruching

Whistling Swan Once More Reported Seen

The whistling swan is "coming back."

Once feared headed for extinction, this beautiful waterfowl now seems definitely on the increase, says Daniel Janzen, regional director of the United States bureau of biological survey, who has offices in Lansing.

"More birds have been reported seen in the northern migration this spring than in years," Janzen said. "I saw over 2,000 swans on Lake Erie near Monroe. Other observers tell similar stories.

Some reports from the east shore of Lake Michigan are to the effect that the numbers of swans seen during the annual migrations along that byway have appeared to be increasing for some time.

"The whistling swan has come back to such a point that we are now getting reports from cottagers who complain of annoyance from the continual chattering and cackling of the birds."

Approximately 250 commercial minnow licenses have been issued by the state department of conservation so far this year. The license fee is $3. Minnow dealers are reminded that a separate license is required for each minnow "stand" operated.

AND ITS UP-KEEP COST IS THE LOWEST"

ENTHUSIASTIC sales talk often begins and ends with gasoline mileage. Some salesmen would like you to believe it is the whole story of automobile economy. But drivers ought to know better. For, the fact is, it's way down the list. The big items of car economy are low first cost, low up-keep cost and low depreciation. Savings here can make a great deal of difference in cost per mile. Gasoline mileage is more of a talking point than an economy factor. Check up and you will find that the difference between 17 and 19 miles a gallon is less than $10 for a whole year's average driving (8400 miles at 18 cents a gallon). Here are the big items that make the Ford the most economical car: More value for every dollar you pay. Lower cost for repairs and service. Long life. Slow depreciation. Quality means economy and the 1936 Ford V-8 gives you more real quality than any other low-price car. No other car under $1645 has a V-8 engine. No other low-price car has Center-Poise Riding, safe, sure mechanical brakes and Safety Glass all around at no extra cost.

"How A" BABYGROWS

2 Full Pages of Pictures in Rotogravure Sunday

Can you imagine a more fascinating feature than one showing, and telling just how a baby grows? How a tiny bundle of human helplessness changes into a member of the family—into a talking, walking, acting individual! These pictures reveal this, and more. They show how creeping changes into crawling; crawling to standing; standing to walking. They show the development of baby's eyes, hands, feet and features. They show him laughing, crying, playing, sleeping, and the text accompanying them explains just what happens in each stage of the little body's interesting development. It's an age-old story that has never been told. It took years of patient effort to get these pictures. They cost thousands of dollars. They have never before been published in any newspaper or magazine. Be sure to see them—TWO FULL PAGES IN ROTOGRAVURE—exclusively in

WE'RE EXPERTS ON MOTORING SAFETY

WE HAVE THE ONLY TIRE IN THE WORLD WITH GOLDEN PLY BLOW-OUT PROTECTION

FREE Blow-Out PROTECTION

As experts on motoring safety, we want to state a few simple facts every motorist should know about the tires he rides on. Remember this, the next time you are driving along at 40, 50, 60 miles an hour. The heat generated inside your tire at these speeds is terrific—causing rubber and fabric to separate. A tiny blister forms—grows bigger and BIGGER until sooner or later, BANG! It's a blow-out.

But an amazing new invention, the Life-Saver Golden Ply, resists this heat so that rubber and fabric do not separate—blisters do not form—thus this unseen cause of high-speed blow-outs is checked before it even gets started.

The only tire in the world that has Golden Ply blow-out protection is the Goodrich Silvertown—yet it costs no more than other standard tires. When thousands are killed or injured every year in blow-out accidents don't you want this kind of protection?

ROUGE MEET PROVES FAILURE

The fast Panther team won a victory over Rock climbers Wednesday, April 8 when it invaded the latter's track, known as a pasture and this time boys' ideal weather failed to prevail but the hardest obstacles for the Plymouth team was to place. The Rock team was superior in one sense as it took more firsts than enough seconds and thirds to back up the other. Wagenschutz was the outstanding man for Plymouth as he secured four firsts and broke two previous records in high and low hurdles for 120 yards. Kinsey also moved his record up and it now stands 48 feet 3 inches; if you think that is easy—try it some time. The Plymouth track as it now stands would be very good if a three ton roller caressed its soft surfaces making it better for running conditions.

100 yard dash—1st. Brown; 2nd. Fisher; 3rd. Kemp. Time, 1:1. One mile run—1st. Johnson; 2nd. Archer. P. 3rd. DeSotta. Time, 5:22.6.

220 yd. run—1st. Kemp; 2nd. Brown; 3rd. Fisher. Time, 26:5. 120 Hurdles—Wagenschutz, P. Mazurovski; Wellner. Time, 16:5. (New record).

440 yd. run—DeSotta, Maddox, Geer. P. Time, 60:5.

120 Low Hurdles—Wagenschutz, P. Sabbath; Egge. P. Time, 14:2. 88 yd. run—Klenschmidt, P. Scobell; Van Amburg, P. 2:24.7. Shot Put—Kinsey, P. Kosloski; Mazurovski. Distance 48 ft. 3 in. Pole Vault—Tie for first. Williams, P. and Gutz; Mincho. Hgt. 10 ft. 3 in.

High Jump—Wagenschutz, P. Wellner; Mazurovski. Height, 5 ft. 7 in. Broad Jump—Wagenschutz, P. Brown; Wellner. Distance, 21 ft. 1 1/2 in.

Relay—River Rouge. Time, 1:24.7. The grand total at the end was Plymouth 44, Rouge 60. The 122 man this year is new but has shown good results thus far. He is also on the debating team and is none other than Harry "Flash" Fisher. The next meet will be with Dearborn and this team will offer as much competition as any so all turn out and you will be rewarded (we hope) by a victory.

STARKWEATHER SCHOOL NOTES

The kindergarten children colored eggs for Easter. They also made Easter baskets with colored chickens and bunnies for their mothers. The first grade children drew robins and yellow chickens for art. They also made free-hand cuttings of tulips and Easter baskets for the bulletin board.

The second grade children made beautiful Easter lily pictures for art work last week. They studied the quail and red-headed woodpecker for nature work. The fourth grade children drew designs of flowers and birds for art.

IN MEMORY HE IS "ONE OF THE CLASS"

The juniors wish to extend their deeply felt sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Nash, parents of our classmate, Johnny, and to his sister June. It was with much concern that we first learned of Johnny's illness but when we were told that he was on his way to complete recovery we once more breathed normally. His release and death thus came as a shock to the junior class. We all knew and loved him, for he was one of the most likeable boys in school. Never in his entire life was he known to be a hard worker. Many people remember his smile as he tossed a paper on the steps and then moved cheerfully to the next house. No one will ever take his place in the hearts of his lifelong friends, but his was the kindly manner that is never forgotten but increases in one's memory as the years pass.

Death Valley, Calif., Climate

The climate in Death Valley, Calif., is due in a measure to the configuration of the valley. It is a long narrow valley considerably below sea level, and the Anamint mountains shut out the moist winds of the Pacific, so that the average there is less than one-half of 1 per cent of moisture in the atmosphere.

Cuba's Longest Bridge

The longest stone and iron bridge in Cuba is located at Calabazar, a city of Santa Clara province.

THE SEVEN HUNDRED

A new romance in the chemistry class. Mush Egge traded seats with Brown when he got the seat they held hands all hour... and a certain little Chinaman called Em Tee tells me that if you think holding hands in chemistry is bad you should have seen Mush after "Bunt Night" was over. Em Tee says that Mush was the perfect image of Simple Simon in the junior stunt... he says that the juniors deserved quite a number of votes for that part of their stunt. Em Tee also says that when Fascism comes to America it will not be in a black shirt... it will be in the person of would-be radio announcers like Harry Fischer who told people by the Hitler salute what they should laugh at or what they should laugh at in the senior stunt... now that the snow is off the roads, the traveling salesmen have swept down out of the West... Miss Ford was troubled with one at her door... then she discovered a secret entrance in the back of her room well, the salesman clung right to the door, sure that his prospect couldn't get past him... then Miss Ford rounded the corner, waived to him, and dashed down the hall, he thought he was seeing things... another salesman asked Miss Feigel who the teacher was in the next room... Miss Feigel said that Smith was the name... the salesman would have been as likely to believe her if she had said John Doe... the joke is on him... Joe Merritt gave away a nice box of candy for a Valentine gift... he doesn't know how I found out he also doesn't know that enclosed in the box of candy down in the bottom was a little price list telling just how much it cost and for how much you can buy a good box of candy.

M. & D. BANQUET PLANS IN FULL SWING

Plans for the annual Mother and Daughter banquet May 5 are being made, the entire program revolving around the "World Fellowship" idea. Folk dances of various countries will be presented by the Girl Reserves themselves. The guest speaker of the evening will be Dr. Grace Song Line of Howell, Michigan. Dr. Line will deliver to those present "A Message From Korea." Elizabeth Whipple will introduce Toastmasters Gwendolyn Dunlop and Jewel Starkweather will give the toast to the Mothers. Mrs. P. Ray Norton will respond with a toast to the daughters. All tickets must be purchased from Girl Reserves, or arrangements must be made with Miss Allen concerning tickets. None will be sold at the door.

Timber Destroyed

Forest destruction has meant much to the state of Michigan. The original stand of lumber in that state was 350,000,000 board feet, little less than ten years ago there was left only 27.5 billion board feet. Consequently, Michigan, once a large lumber exporter, now imports about 60 per cent of its lumber, due to waste of its natural wood resources. What is true of Michigan is true also of other lumber states.

SENIOR'S WHO'S WHO

Sometimes "Red Jack" sometimes "Black Jack" but always "Socialist" Sessions first began his converting to socialism on December 7, 1918 in Ypsilanti. After failing to make a name for himself in the big city of Detroit, Jack moved to Plymouth when he was needed to be needed to take the town up, not by attempting to save the capitalists but by increasing the rabbit kingdom in his magic shores.

Upon graduating from this stage, Jack Armon Sessions brought glory to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sessions of Harvey street, through his high school career. He has been very active in speech activities, winning bronze silver, and four gold medals in debating and participating in oratory and extemporaneous speaking. He has also spent much time in youth activities such as Hi-Y, Torch club, and the newly organized Plymouth Youth Federation. Through his work Jack has attended many youth conferences in the state and if anyone is capable of intelligently discussing young people's problems, it certainly is Socialist Sessions. This long winded public savior culminated four years on the Pilgrim staff by being elected editor of the school journal for this year. In the Pilgrim Prints you probably know that Jack has been responsible for the Competition Column and the present Seven Sessions likes to tell the story about the time he was faced with the problem of delivering an important debate speech and found that he had eaten half the essential speech while awaiting his turn. He is like to characterize Jack's efforts to reform the world with the following story Jack was before a local organization presenting a violent talk condemning the inhumane capitalist system. After making vehement for a few minutes he shouted out "Are you going to take all this lying down?" A voice from the back appropriately replied, "No, the stenographers are doing that!" When Jack was asked what he intended to do after leaving his high school career, he said, "I dunno; I intended to take up journalism until I became editor of the Pilgrim Prints." Some of his favorites are: favorite subject, economics; play, "Housetop"; character, Little George Arlis; character, Little Audrey; food, chop suey or pigs knuckles.

THE TAILOR'S CORNER

Stories have been told about what happens at night in office buildings, in factories, and in the like but it took good old Oscar Tiffentuffer to whisper to me what happens after 3:30 in the halls and rooms of PHS. He related to me a piercing shriek suddenly echoes in the halls of Alma Mater, followed immediately by a voice in stentorian tones demanding a certain villain to give up the heroine or something like that. The heroine's voice sounds suspiciously like David Hale, and sure nuff, it's the drama club practicing the further perpetration of unwanted drama by unwanted dramatists for unwanted drama-listeners. Suddenly a horrid, horrid, horridly atrocious sound strikes the nostrils. One's nose, led by the reprobate odor, ends up pressed against the glass in the door of Mr. Evans' room. A thick yellow vapor is curling upward from a test tube which is locked in Mr. Evans' nose. Is to be seen, is someone going to blow up the school? Has somebody considered this his duty to the youth of today? Have they got Mr. Evans locked in a class and are perpetrating this terrible crime over his veto? All these questions are suddenly obliterated from a brain already woozy from the obnoxious gas by the sound of anorthoposium fumbles coming from Mr. Landsburg's room. Cautionously approaching the door, one finds J. Armon Sessions wildly gestulating and talking to an empty room! We draw back in consternation. Has the strain of his own column in the Seventh Hundred, so it will have at least one reader! Finally wreathed its just toll? Mentally Sessions was really suffering from the effects of riding on a merry-go-round when too young our hero suddenly upon Russell Amos Kirk Jr. known to certain feminine friends as "Kuten," peering around the corner where the locker of Althea is located. He abruptly explains he had merely hastily dropped a coin. Phoebe trying to chisel in on Dick again, eh Russ? Passing Miss Feigel's room she encountered a sad faced, stoic student who was sitting on the floor, his head resting on his hand. This after hour session of the American history class was called because certain pupils did work that was neither very prosperous, passably possible, nor particularly propitiatory. Having their fill of after school activities Oscar and his pals now leave. What stories those old halls could tell!

concerning American entrance into the League of Nations. Awarding the championship to Bernard Carroll, the judges gave Russell Kirk second place and Karl Seavitch, third. In extemporaneous speaking, the topics discussed were drawn by the contestants about an hour previous to the contest; they dealt with the character of Theodore Roosevelt and the problem of natural conservation. Those taking part were David Sutliff of Wayne, Harry Fischer of Plymouth, Barry Alford of Ypsilanti, Edna Stewart of Ecorse, Donald Currie of Dearborn, and Ernest Pacheco of River Rouge. Harry Fischer's particular topic was the problem of petroleum restriction, which he opposed. Concluding the day's activities, the judges gave Donald Currie first place, Edna Stewart second, and Barry Alford, third. Upon averaging the results, it was found that Dearborn had gained the league championship with two first places and one second. Ypsilanti had one first and one third; Plymouth had two seconds and one third. Although a tie for second place resulted, it was not necessary to settle this situation because a trophy is awarded to only the winning school. Individual banners were given to the school attaining first place in each event.

Last year Plymouth won the league trophy, being successful in both oratory and extemporaneous speaking. This season Plymouth's representative in freshman declamation, Dorothy Roe, was awarded fourth place in the league contest, and the same position was given to Plymouth's story-teller. Although this school has not attained the success it enjoyed in 1935, it has made a creditable record.

Napoleon Bonaparte's Tomb

The burial place of Napoleon is under the dome of the Hotel des Invalides in Paris. It has the form of a circular crypt 20 feet deep and 36 feet in diameter, open at the top. The tomb was designed by Visconti, and on the walls are 10 marble reliefs by Simart. The sarcophagus is 13 feet long, 6 1/2 feet wide, 14 1/2 feet high, cut from a single block of red porphyry, 67 tons in weight, surrounded by 12 "Victories" by Pradier. The inscription above the entrance to the crypt is taken from Napoleon's will: "I desire that my ashes shall rest on the banks of the Seine, in the midst of the French people that I have loved so well."

Plymouth Places in Speech Contests

Winning two seconds and one third, Plymouth high school speakers took first, second and third place in the Twin Valley Association forensic contests held this year at Ypsilanti Central High on April 9. Plymouth was represented by Doris Schmidt, Harry Fischer, and Russell Kirk. The three competitions were declamation, oratory, and extemporaneous speaking. C. N. Hill, Ypsi speech instructor, acted as chairman in each of the contests. The declamation event was held in the afternoon while the other two took place during the evening. Speakers and coaches attending at McKenny Hall on the Michigan State Normal College campus.

Plymouth Awarded Third Place in Declamation

Plymouth was awarded third place in declamation, second place in oratory, and second place in extemp. Each of these contests was judged by Miss Geraldine Elliott, Mr. Edwin Mack, and Mr. Karl Nelson. Dearborn won first place when the points gained by each school were averaged and received the league trophy cup. Plymouth and Ypsilanti tied for second.

Six Schools were Represented in Each Competition

The declamation contest was opened by Robert Serette of Ecorse, who delivered the speech, "Makers of the Flag." He was followed by Maxine Baldwin of River Rouge, whose declamation was "Ropes." Ypsilanti's representative, Peter Whittaker, gave "Toussaint L'Ouverture." Marie Papke of Wayne spoke the famous "Message to Garcia." Robert Capo of Dearborn rendered "The Call to Arms." Concluding the contest, Doris Schmidt, Plymouth's speaker, delivered "Toussaint L'Ouverture." The judges gave Peter Whittaker first place, Robert Capo second, and Doris Schmidt, third.

In Oratory Plymouth Gained Second Place

Arthur Jones of Wayne discussed "What Are We To Do?" a speech dealing with the problems of modern culture. Ecorse's oratory, Karl Seavitch, gave "Stream-lined Killers," picturing the consequences of reckless driving. Bruce Green of Ypsilanti delivered "Peace: the Ultimate," denouncing the horrors of war. Plymouth's speaker, Russell Kirk, dealt with the Italian Ethiopian controversy by his speech, "In Defense of Ethiopia." "Washington and Modern Times" was the subject of Bernard Carroll of Dearborn. Loretta Barnes of River Rouge, only girl orator, rendered "The Innocent Bystander."

THE STORY OF FELIX

1—Felix was what is known as a tough nut.
2—In his school days the teachers even suspected he might be a mental delinquent.
3—He stood at the bottom of the class in all his studies.
4—The only thing he liked about school was the recess, during which he could get into a good fight.
5—He lacked anything approaching refinement, and thought delicate was a place where they sold delinquent goods.
6—He was a monotone and when the class sang the opening morning anthem his voice ruined everything and gave teacher the fitters.
7—He was the sort of boy who scribbled off fences with chalk.
8—He left school as soon as he could and went to work for a living.
9—They put him on a job that called for the intelligence of a seven-year-old child, and even at that he didn't seem to fill it.
10—He knew all the smoking-car stories and kept clippings from newspaper magazines.
11—He thought all art began and ended with the penny in the slot and push.
12—He had a very low mind and people passed him up as hope less.
13—It seemed impossible that he would ever get anywhere.
14—But he became a big figure in the show world and made a couple of fortunes.
15—He found he was equipped perfectly mentally to write sketches for big Broadway revues. And some of the songs and lyrics.
MORAL—It's an age of specialization.

HENRY

Who is this? This is Henry. Who is Henry? Henry is a traveling salesman. What is a traveling salesman? A traveling salesman is a man who has been listening to people say "Nothing today" for the past three years. Doesn't Henry get tired of hearing people say "Nothing today"? Very, but he has become accustomed to it.
Is Henry downhearted? No. Henry is not downhearted. Why not? Because being a traveling salesman and being downhearted don't go together. It is a profession for optimists only.
What is Henry doing now? He is going to start out on an other swing around the country in search of a customer.
Will Henry find a customer? There is a customer around wherever Henry will find him, and that man Henry is very hopeful.
What makes Henry hopeful? He knows from experience that there always was over government and there comes a time when the government goes so low that something has to be ordered to refill the tank.
Has that time arrived? Well, even if it hasn't, you won't find Henry discouraged. He will still be in there taking his cut as the ball and always trying.

THE STORY OF FRISBY

Frisky was well raised. His parents were well to do and they gave him every comfort. He was a pampered kid. As an infant he had three styles of perambulators with a de luxe model for Sundays. When he was a little boy he had a Shetland pony and was the envy of the other little boys as he rode hither and thither and vice versa. He also had two bicycles and was the first kid in the neighborhood to possess a motor cycle. He rode it to and from school. When he was a little older his dad bought him an automobile and before he was sixteen years old he was plucked as a "scorcher." He went everywhere in his red racing car. Even if he was only going a distance of two blocks he drove the distance.

The Luxury of Crime

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE taxbill's here (it comes each year along about this time). A bill for what? Well, quite a lot will go to pay for crime. No goods we take, no laws we break, no evil path pursue. We take no guns—we're just the ones who pay for those who do. We need no bail, police or jail, no courthouse on the square. Where men are tried, but those outside must pay for people there. In cells they sit and do their bit and think it quite a chore. And put away three meals a day that we are paying for.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

LATER ON

"I HAVEN'T had a chance for that yet—but I'll get to it later on."

Later on! There are few of life's joys and ambitions that have not at some time gone to their grave in the shroud of "later on."

Some people are going to have children—later on. Others are going to take care of their health—later on. Then there is getting rid of that obstructive habit—later on. And getting down to work on something we want so much to do—that's one of the favorites of "later on."

The people who are victims of the delusion of "later on" are the ones who are always waiting for something to "break"—for this or that rush to be over—for the time when they will have "time."

It seems that no matter how long those people live they cannot learn that things never really "break," that to those with any measure of responsibility there is always something of a "rush" that a time when they shall have "time" in the sense of time that is empty and cries for something to fill it, will never come. That "time" which to them seems the heaven of the gods is known only to those to whom it is hell, in the form of time to kill. For busy people there is no such Elysium. They must take their time for the things they want to do when they want to do them—now at once, not "later on."

Those of us who are always waiting for later on are like the man who cannot see the woods for the trees. We have lost our perspective, baffled by the press of petty routine so that we lost sight of the broad and glorious vistas beyond it.

Sister Not Held for Debts

A sister is not responsible for the debts of her brothers unless she has done something to assume responsibility, nor can she be compelled to contribute to his support, unless there is some showing of responsibility assumed. The fact of the blood relationship does not create liability.

Loyd Sutherland, Minister
 We give grateful acknowledgment to God and to those who made possible what we are told was the greatest Easter Sunday in the history of this church. We boast not, but trust that this was as true of all other churches in Plymouth.

This Sunday morning at 10 o'clock the message will be given especially to our new folks, on—"How Not To Succeed in the Christian Life."

The choir as they appeared last Sunday will sing again for our morning worship.
 Bible school, 11:15.

At seven-thirty the pastor will speak on "Heaven. How may I be sure of going there? Shall I know my loved ones there?" and many other questions you have been asking will be answered. Another baptismal service will follow the sermon. You better find your way to a place of worship this Sunday night.

The annual meeting of this church will be held next week on Wednesday night. A potluck supper at 6:30. This is the all important meeting of the year and marks not only the closing of our church year, but also the third anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. and Mrs. Sutherland. We invite all the friends of the church to join the membership in that which will be a great night, for we shall be looking backward for three years and also take a forward look into the future.

During this annual meeting we shall also participate in an "Experience Social"—you will tell us how you earned your dollar for this occasion.

The congregation decided to erect a new garage on the site of the old one, utilizing the lumber of the same as much as possible. The garage is to be another two-car structure, facing east, however, because of the incessant moisture seeping down the drive, necessitating the removal of the old garage at this time. The members of the congregation will be notified and asked to contribute their help in erecting the new, as well as in razing the old garage, to save excessive expense.

CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH
 Richard W. Neale, pastor.
 Near Mansfield, Ohio, there stands a sign which reads as follows: "No Reduction in the Wages of Sin."

"The wages of sin are death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. (Romans 6:23). We choose between the wages of sin and the gift of God. According to God's Word, Hell is earned; but Heaven is a gift—through the grace of Christ. His death on Calvary's cross paid our penalty. His resurrection is the evidence that the payment met all of the Law's demands. The Gospel then is good news of a free gift, "not of works, lest any man should boast." Following self leads to Christ denial; following Christ leads to self denial.

"Only one life, 'twill soon be past—Only that's done for Christ will last."

"If you are not sure of your soul's salvation, if you are discouraged, defeated Christian, come to Calvary this Sunday. Our pastor preaches at 10 a. m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday school is at 11:15.

Poisonous Fungi
 Some names of fungi indicate that their bearers are poisonous, such as the Death Cap; this is a very poisonous toadstool which is sometimes taken for a mushroom, with fatal results. Obituary

JAMES R. DAVY

James R. Davy, a resident of Salem township for over 30 years, passed away early Monday morning, April 13, at his home on the Pontiac road near Worden. He was the husband of Mary H. Davy, and father of Harold Davy of Whitmore Lake; Mrs. Elsie Smith, of Detroit; Mrs. Ruth Hussey of Wayne, and Jester and LeRoy Davy, both of Worden. He also had 18 grand children. He was the brother of E. J. Davy, of Postoria, Ohio; Mrs. Irah Hockberry, of Chicago, Illinois; Mrs. Effie Markey, of Florida. The body was brought to the Schrader Brothers Funeral Home, Plymouth, Michigan, and later taken to his home, from which place short funeral services were held Friday, April 17, at 1 p.m. and at 2 p.m. at the Salem Federated church interment in Worden cemetery. Rev. Cora Pennell officiating.

JOHN ERFORD NASH

John Erford, the eldest son of Paul and Anna Shearer Nash, passed away April 5, 1936 at the University Hospital, Ann Arbor, after an illness of six weeks. He was born in Plymouth, June 2, 1919 and lived here all his life, attending Plymouth schools from which he would have graduated with the class of 1937. Very quiet and unassuming he nevertheless enjoyed life and was an earnest student, keenly interested in music, being a member of the High School Band, the High School Orchestra and the Community Band, as well as a private orchestra. His chief interest was in the Agricultural course taught in the high school as he had determined to follow this as his life's work. He was a member of the Future Farmers of America Association and was to have attended their convention at Kansas City in October, having been selected as a member of the band composed of sixty young men from Michigan. He was very well known in this city partly due to the fact that he had been the owner of a paper route for the last eight years, and was a member of St. John's Episcopal Church of Plymouth, having given his life to Christ at an early age.

Saddened by the early passing of one whose life seemed so full of promise, he leaves besides his parents, a sister June, and two brothers Edgar and Corwin, and his grandmother Mrs. Mary Shearer.

The services were held at Schrader Bros. Funeral Home with the Junior Class attending in a body and music by the Junior Girls Double Quartette. Rev. W. R. Blachford of the Episcopal Church of Royal Oak officiated and the body was laid to rest in Riverside Cemetery.

In that peaceful silent city Where the stars their vigil keep, And the birds are singing requiems.

Our loved one lies asleep. Many happy recollections In sweet memories chain we weave.

As we linger o'er reflections, Of the things we all must leave.

And we speak a benediction O'er the heart that now is stilled.

As we bow in meek submission, To the fate that God has willed.

Improvements Made By F. D. Schrader

In keeping with the dignity which has always characterized it, the Schrader Brothers Funeral Home is now equipped with Venetian blinds for both front windows and the windows of the chapel.

Another improvement to the Schrader Block is the new front being put in Marie's Grill. The entrance has been changed to the north side and a plate glass window put in across the front.
