

August 26 Will Be Plymouth Day At Fair

Northville Working To Make This Year's Event Best Of All

Thursday, August 26, has been fixed as Plymouth day for the Northville-Wayne county fair, according to Floyd Northrop, secretary-manager of the association who was in Plymouth a few days ago on matters pertaining to the forthcoming fair.

In addition to announcing the Plymouth day at the fair, Mr. Northrop stated that he believed the association is going to be able to offer the best entertainment this year that the fair has ever had.

"It is costing quite a bit more money. But we are taking the chances, hoping that good farm crops, and better feeling on the part of most folks will result in bigger crowds at the fair. We did considerably better last year than for some time past and we hope to make this year the biggest and best ever," he said.

"Of course, Plymouth day, which has always been one of the big features of the fair, will be our big day this year. Harry Robinson, who is a member of the fair board and who has started the races for years and years, will be back in the stand this year and he is going to see to it that there will be some real races on Plymouth day."

Harry Clark, superintendent of the horse show that is run as a part of the fair, has also announced that the horse show which starts on Plymouth day, is attracting more than ordinary interest. Mr. Clark, in speaking of the horse show a few days ago, said:

"As is the usual custom we will set aside Thursday, August 26, for the Junior Horse show. We are very proud of our Junior show, as it is unquestionably recognized as the largest and most colorful in the middlewest today, and we would therefore suggest that any of our guests and exhibitors who can possibly do so, should by all means avail themselves of the opportunity to witness this event."

"Our Senior Horse show will take place on the following two days, namely, Friday and Saturday, August 27 and 28. We are now engaged in improving our classes and prize list in every conceivable manner and will be more than pleased to forward a copy to you as soon as they are off the press."

"Feeling that the showing of good horse flesh warrants a proper setting, we have put a program into effect which includes the enlargement of our show ring and remodeling of our stable facilities. We are endeavoring in every way to make this our most successful and pleasing horse show and trust that you and your friends may be with us as guests or exhibitors on this occasion."

This week the annual premium list books were ready for distribution and announced that the admission price for the gate entrance, day and night, at 35 and 25 cents; grand stand, day and night, 35 and 25 cents; exhibitor's tickets $1; automobile, 25 cents; with children under 10 years of age being admitted at the gate without charge. These are the same prices as in former years.

Officers heading this institution, which draws thousands of persons from all over the state each year are: President, Elmer L. Smith; vice-president, Elton R. Eaton; treasurer, Fred W. Lyke; secretary, Floyd A. Northrop; directors, C. A. Altman, A. C. Balden, Carmi Benton, H. B. Clark, Ralph Foreman, William E. Forney, A. E. Fuller, H. H. Hamilton, Glenn Richardson, H. R. Richardson, Harry C. Robinson, M. R. Seelye, L. C. Stewart, E. M. Starkweather, D. J. Stark and Charles Scholtz; honorary directors, James A. Huff, Dr. Robert Haskell, Capt. William Conner Much Improved

Friends of William Conner will be pleased to know that he is making an excellent recovery from an operation he underwent a week ago at Burison hospital in Grand Rapids. He is expected home within the next few days. Mr. Conner has not been feeling the best for several weeks past and last week he was advised to go to Grand Rapids for hospital treatment, which has proven of great benefit to him.

Points Out Unfairness In News Reports

William Cameron Tells Of "Smearing" Campaign Now On

Because of the intense interest in this locality aroused by the apparent unfairness in the way that the hearing is being conducted by the National Labor Relations board into the riot staged on Ford property by disturbers some months ago, the address made by William Cameron pertaining to the way labor news is being handled before members of the National Editorial association recently in Detroit, is most timely and will give the public a viewpoint decidedly contrasting with that read in the big daily papers.

His address follows in full:

"Newspapers and Labor Troubles" is a difficult subject to discuss. The best one can do, perhaps, is express in part a point of view. Even a one-sided view, if true as far as it goes, may contribute to an understanding of the whole. I shall speak frankly, and as far as may be in confidence, for I am speaking to editors and not to the public. It was my privilege to pass the first half of my working life in newspaper work—in the best part of newspaper work that of reporter, editorial writer and what is now called a "columnist." The temper and spirit of the newspapermen of my time are known to me, and I think that in true newspapermen they still survive. An equal length of years has been spent with Mr. Ford where I have seen the operation of industrial principles at what I conceive to be their best as far as they have been developed. Between the ideals of newspapermen at their best and those of industry at its best, I found much agreement and kinship. Industry at its best seemed to be realizing what our better journalism had always envisioned. Whether one or the other has fallen away from its ideal, or whether something has come between, I do not stay to ask, but in any case each some—

Youth Loses Foot In Mower

Little Kenneth Sockow, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sockow of 722 South Main street, is in the University hospital at Ann Arbor, where he is being treated after losing his foot in a mower.

The young boy had accompanied his father to the Sockow farm, west of Plymouth, late Wednesday afternoon, where the father was to do some repairing on the mowing machine. In some way the youth stepped in front of the mower and his foot was cut off just above the ankle. He was rushed to Ann Arbor for treatment and word comes that he is in no serious condition at the present time.

Rosemary West, Mrs. Ivan Cash, Mrs. Harold Briley gave a farewell dinner for Mrs. H. H. Hamburger who is leaving soon for Webberville to reside. The dinner was given at Dearborn Inn Wednesday evening.

It will probably be near the first of the new year before formal dedication exercises of the beautiful new Presbyterian church will take place. While it had been hoped early in the spring to have the work completed by the first of fall, present indications are that it will probably be nearer Thanksgiving or Christmas time before the church will be completed.

Rev. Walter Nichol says, however, that while the formal dedication will not be until sometime later, it is hoped to begin holding services within the church early in the fall, the basement to be used for the services.

Because of numerous reasons beyond control of the committee the work on the church has moved slowly. When the edifice is completed, this city can boast of having one of the most attractive churches in the state of Michigan.

Inside Story Of Birth Of Squirrel Law

Local Sportsmen May Mark Spot Where Idea Originated

There's some talk going around town among squirrel lovers that they may take up a silver offering and have a bronze plaque made to place on the front of Smitty's two by four lunch room to mark the spot where the law was born that gives two years of additional life to the squirrels of Michigan.

It seems that folks have just discovered that the game laws passed by the last session of the state legislature had a line struck into it that said squirrel killers were outlaws after the governor had put his signature to the bill.

Jack VanCoevering, editor of the Fields and Streams page of The Free Press, in some way found out that that particular line in the bill originated in Plymouth and while Jack doesn't quite agree with it, he did think it was worth mentioning in Malcolm Binagay's good newspaper.

It was in Smitty's place where most of the preliminary discussion of the bill took place. And let it be said that Plymouth and Northville have more real sportsmen to the square inch than other places ten times their size in the state of Michigan—and these sportsmen are not sportsmen just for the sake of killing something—they are sportsmen because they like to tramp in the open, wade streams and ride the waves of its lakes. They are happy when they return home at night without game or fish—happy because they know how to enjoy a day in the open.

Well, these real sportsmen and others of their kind hereabouts had a whole lot to do with closing the hunting season on squirrels.

To make the story complete, it is necessary for the writer to go back into "modern" history a bit. After the fall election last year when everything went to the bow-wows except this part of Wayne county, there developed a discussion of game regulations and laws over at Smitty's one morning.

Russ Powell, who probably does as much hunting and fishing as any man in these parts, was there (Continued on page seven)

Collins To Build Big Garage On South Main

Hope To Have New Building Ready Within 60 Days

George A. Collins & Son have purchased the property at 1094 South Main street and have just let contract for their new garage to be built at this location, which is to be complete and ready for occupancy in 60 days from date.

This is to be an up-to-date garage in every respect, building to be 41x80 feet—round corners, with a beautiful showroom in front. When in their new location they will be amply equipped to handle their trade more promptly than at present.

Collins & Son have lived in Plymouth for the past 16 years, and have been engaged in their present general auto repairing business for the past six years, and with their increased business, have outgrown their present location.

They plan to install considerable new equipment, the additional space making this possible. The new garage will be an attractive addition to South Main street, as it is planned to construct an especially beautiful front for the structure.

Madame Mayor If You Please!

While Mayor Henry Hondorp is up north fishing, the city government of Plymouth is functioning just the same as ever and there has been a meeting of the city commission with Acting Mayor Ruth Huston-Whipple presiding in the mayor's chair!

Everything moved according to schedule and the meeting was over good and early.

There was a hearing held on a sewer order, the chief of police was granted permission to attend a convention of police chiefs, and the police department was granted permission to hire another copper.

A letter was ordered sent to the governor asking him to veto a couple of bills that were passed by the legislature, and when 9:10 arrived Commissioner George Robinson moved to adjourn. It was supported by Arthur Blunk, and these two, with the vote of the mayor pro tem, legally adjourned the meeting.

It's the first time it ever happened—that is, it is the first time a woman ever presided in the mayor's chair in Plymouth—and the city government is running along the same as if nothing unusual had taken place in this fair city.

Return Buckley To Old Position

Edward Buckley, former chief clerk of the state highway office in Plymouth but who has been with the right way department in Lansing for the past year, has been returned to his former position in Plymouth. His many friends in this city are pleased to know of the change and hope that he will now be permanently located at the office here.

Seven More Mad Dog Victims Get Treatment

Five In One Family Believed In Danger Due To Delay

Five members of one family residing on the Seven Mile road just east of the Plymouth-Northville road are being treated following attacks by a dog found to be suffering from rabies and three more victims in the vicinity of Plymouth are also receiving Pasteur treatment at Ann Arbor.

The latest mad dog victims are the family of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Revitzer of the Seven Mile road and Walter Smith and his mother, Mrs. Mary Smith of Phoenix park as well as Miss Velma Holtz, an 18-year-old girl from Detroit who was bitten while in Plymouth a few days ago.

The dog that bit the Smiths was immediately killed and its head taken to Ann Arbor where examination showed that it was suffering from rabies. Doctors say that immediate treatment given will prevent complications.

In the case of the Revitzer family, Dr. Russell Atchison, of Northville, who is health officer of Northville township, declares there is some possible danger in view of the fact that the cases were not reported to him until considerably more than a week after the people were bitten. In this case it was also found that the dog had rabies.

Dr. Harold Brisbois who treated several Plymouth people some three weeks ago for rabies states that the patients are all beyond danger.

The Plymouth police department has issued another warning to persons to keep their dogs confined during the rest of July and August. If the dogs are to be taken out on the street, they must be confined by a leash. Plymouth officers have killed a number of dogs and others found running at large will be killed. One arrest has already been made in a case of violation of the dog ordinance.

D.A.R. Members Are Guests At CCC Camp

How Much About Work Being Done For Benefit of Boys

Last week Monday, about 25 members of the Sarah Ann Cochran chapter, D.A.R. of this city were the guests of the C.C.C. camp officers at their headquarters on the Hix road just north of Michigan avenue.

The ladies carried with them a bountiful and delicious co-operative luncheon and the camp kitchen supplied hot coffee and root beer. The luncheon was eaten in the boys' dining room, with Mr. McGeegan, camp educational officer and several others as hosts.

After an inspection of the dining rooms and camp kitchen, the ladies were taken on a tour of the numerous buildings which make up the unit. They were shown through the small but very complete and attractive hospital where everything was as spic and span as any hospital ever visited. They were told that the health of the camp is so good that this small hospital is always adequate.

One of the barrack buildings was then visited and here everything was found to be in the strictest military order. Each bed was neatly made up, each boy's clothing arranged upon hangers near his bed, his luggage neatly stacked, and the shoes set in rows under the cots with the toes all pointing in one direction.

Passing through the postoffice and a small store, where the boys may purchase confections, etc., they entered the building which is the pride of the camp—the library and lounge. The two good sized and well lighted rooms which make up this building were lined with shelves reaching to the ceiling and these shelves, as well as several tables in each room, were filled with books and magazines—story books, reference books, school books and magazines of all kinds, of which any library might be proud, were piled on all sides.

Comfortable chairs, reading lamps, rugs, pictures, games and many other things made these rooms so attractive that it was easy to see why the boys would (Continued on Page Seven)

To Direct Drive For CofC Membership

President Stewart Dodge of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce has appointed Carl Caplin and Carl Shear as directors of the membership and dues drive that will be started immediately for the Chamber of Commerce.

As every one knows, since the local branch office of the secretary of state has been separated from the Chamber of Commerce, it is now essential that the business organization be supported entirely by membership dues.

Officers of the organization state that there are many members who have not paid for this present year and Mr. Caplin and Mr. Shear, who are both directors of the organization, strongly urge that those who have not sent in their membership checks for the year, do so at once.

There is also extended a general invitation to others to join. It is felt that Plymouth needs a strong Chamber of Commerce more now than ever before and the membership committee hopes that the present drive will be the most successful ever held by the organization.

Golf Players Near Finals

"It shall be done" might have been the words of the 75 players of the Plymouth Hills Golf league when they organized last May, but whatever they were, the league is proving to be a great success. Casey Partridge, manager of Plymouth Hills Golf club, states that 14 teams started play May 17, and all will finish August 20, followed by a day of golf, dinner and lunch, Sunday, August 29.

When the league organized it was decided that the sponsor or the players should pay $1.00 entry fee per player which pays for all the expenses on the grand jamboree day, Sunday, August 29. Furthermore, it was decided that every player shall have a playing handicap, that every time he plays he shall pay 10 cents to the treasurer for prizes, and that the first seven teams shall win the prizes.

Although it has been difficult for some of the men to be ready to play by 8:30 every team has played its respective match.

Mr. Partridge states that next year, every player will have a (Continued on Page Five)

Eight Arrested In Robbery Clean-Up

Can Start Training Dogs Next Month

Dog owners may begin legally to train their dogs on wild game next month.

In the lower peninsula the legal training period begins Monday, August 16, and in the upper peninsula, Monday, August 2. These training periods continue through the hunting seasons to March 15, 1938.

Under the law dogs may be trained on wild game during the 60 days next preceding the open hunting seasons on the respective types of game, but the dog owner is forbidden to carry a gun and must confine his training operations between the hours of sunrise and sunset.

Diesel Plant To Be Ready Early In October

Big Factory Located On P. M. Tracks Near Telegraph

Probably by the first of October the $2,000,000 plant being erected by General Motors along the Pere Marquette railroad tracks between Outer Drive and Telegraph road will be completed and ready for operation. The plant is just half a mile north of the Plymouth road and because of the fact that it is within easy driving distance from this city, several employees who will be assigned to the new plant have been in this city looking for homes. One official has already located in Northville.

The new plant will be utilized entirely for the making of Diesel engines. Those who have visited it, declare that the structure will be as modern and as complete a factory building as is located in the entire Detroit area.

It is expected that there will be several hundred men given work immediately upon the opening of the plant, the force being increased as business requires.

Disinter Cat Buried In Beautiful Riverside Cemetery

Cats can't be buried in Riverside cemetery!

No matter how beautiful tabby might be—no matter how much you adored his purring ways—when he croaks, he has got to go to the cat cemetery and not the place set aside for burial of members of the human race.

It has just developed that a cat was buried in the family lot of a Plymouth resident last week upon the request of the owner of the lot.

Just how it happened is not at all clear—but it seems that some one called the city hall and asked about "burying a cat." Thinking that the request was for the burial of a cat in some one's garden spot, permission was given.

But it developed that the person making the call thought that the permission was given for burial of the cat in the cemetery lot—and so amid the graves of departed Plymouth residents, the cat was buried.

Some people in the cemetery happened to note what was going on.

As a result the remains of the cat, Wednesday, were taken from its supposedly final resting place in Riverside cemetery and buried elsewhere.

It seems that there is a rigid regulation in the control of the cemetery which strictly forbids the burial of animals in any of the lots.

The Independent Daisy Employees association held its July meeting at Riverside park on July 22. After the business session, the families of the members and friends were invited to ice cream and cake. Over 150 enjoyed the occasion.

Police Chief Of Northville Has Right "Hunch"

His Suspicions Lead To Wholesale Arrests In Two Cities

To Chief of Police Loyle German of Northville goes the distinction of cleaning up one of the most active gangs of thieves that ever operated in this part of Wayne county. Not only was it the most active, but the field of operation was probably the most extensive.

Eight have been arrested, and according to sheriff's officers, practically all have confessed. Four are from Plymouth and four from Northville.

Those who are held on charges of breaking and entering and who will be arraigned before Justice Arthur S. Nichols of Northville this Friday afternoon, are:

Howard Meyers, Plymouth
Arden Decker, Plymouth
John E. McCullough, Plymouth
Elvyn Ferguson, Plymouth
Herbert Whipple, Northville
Arnold Robinson, Northville
William Killeit, Northville
Harry Richie, Northville

For over two years officers in this part of the county have been unable to solve a series of robberies of garages, golf club houses, beer gardens and similar places. Recently Chief German of Northville became suspicious of two or three of the young fellows because of the fact that they have not been working but always seemed to have plenty of money.

It was late last week when he made up his mind that there wasn't much question but what two or three of those later arrested knew about the thefts and were probably involved in them.

He advised the sheriff's office of his suspicions and the roundup of the suspected ones started. While in the beginning only three were suspected by the Northville officer, confessions on the part of those first arrested led to the arrests of eight, four in Northville and four in this city.

One admitted that he had purchased an automobile from a dealer in Howell and after buying the car he went back there and robbed the place in nine tires. He told one of his companions of his theft and where he had hidden the tires. The next night his companion skipped out to the place where the tires were hidden and stole them from his pal.

Back Tax Offer To End Soon

With only five weeks remaining for Michigan taxpayers to avail themselves of the installment plan for paying back taxes without penalty, Auditor General George W. Gundry, stated today that reports show many of the taxpayers are hurrying to their county treasurers' offices to take advantage of the legislative plan to save their property from the tax sale next spring.

Mr. Gundry pointed out that payments made before September 1 may be made with only a 2% collection fee while those paid after that date may still be paid in full but under heavy penalty.

The auditor general indicated that all real estate taxes for 1935 and earlier years will go to sale unless they are paid in full or are paid up to the currently due installment. He explained that this meant that 1936 taxes must be paid in full, that at least one-tenth of the total of 1937, 1938 and 1939 taxes must be paid in order to escape this sale and that at least three-tenths of the total of 1932 and prior years must be paid to forestall sale of the property next May.

Attention was drawn to the fact that if the first installment of 1933, 1934 and 1935 taxes has not been paid, the property will go to tax sale for the full amount of these taxes.

FACTS WE KNOW.

United States Senator Gerald Nye of North Dakota the other day denounced the National Labor Relations board as a partisan body with such a "pronounced pro-C.I.O. bias that the average man regards it as an adjunct". People who have been reading the newspapers in connection with Ford labor hearings in Detroit came to that conclusion about the first or second day after the Ford proceedings were started. Judging entirely from newspaper reports, the hearings have not only been biased but they have been unfair and prejudicial. From the very beginning the trial board has assumed a hostile attitude against Henry Ford. In fact, after the first half day anyone could not help but know from the attitude of the biased politician sent up from Washington to hear the case that his verdict will be just as he had decided before he left Washington.

The Reds of Russia convict in the same way, before the trial. Then they line the "guilty" up against the brick wall, call out the firing squad and proceed to enforce their verdict with bullets. There has been a fear that we have been headed in the same direction as taken in Russia, but thanks to good American sense, it begins to look as though the tide has turned and the Reds, near-Reds, the Pinks and the parlor-Pinks are now on the way to the same fate that the old I.W.W. met some 30 or 40 years ago. Maybe the politicians will convict Ford, but the public has another idea about it.

THE TAXPAYERS KNOW.

In these days when the tax burden is becoming so overbalanced that everyone is complaining and finding fault with various governmental units because of public expenses, it is gratifying to find one branch of the government that gives to the taxpayers information to which they are entitled.

The taxpayers of the school district are about the only ones who know just how and where their money is being spent. This fact is due to the commendable practice of school officials and educational leaders in seeing to it that once each year there is a full public accounting made of the ways and means tax money has been spent.

The report of the Plymouth district, which has just been given to the voters by the school board, reveals every financial transaction of the board during the past year.

It also reveals the fact that a school district that has been forced to accept a tremendously large increase in educational responsibilities because of growing population has had officials who have most carefully expended the funds with which they have been entrusted.

Plymouth has long been blessed with school boards composed of business leaders and citizens who have a full knowledge of the educational problems of the day as well as knowing intimately the difficulties that a large number of taxpayers find in carrying the ever increasing tax burden. Their good judgment has maintained Plymouth in the first rank in educational circles at the lowest possible costs to those who must pay for it.

THE FANS SHOULD NOT FORGET.

Nearly every baseball fan hereabouts read with keen regrets the other day the announcement that Schoolboy Rowe will be unable to finish the season because of the condition of his pitching arm. Some fans during recent months have felt that possibly the Schoolboy hadn't been putting his best forward, that he had been living the sort of a life ball players and others should not indulge in. Most of these rumors have been dispelled and the fact stands out that his arm has really gone bad, for a time at least. But still there is criticism of Rowe. During his last two efforts to pitch a game in Detroit, the jibs hurled at him from the grandstands by some fans were most cruel. These very same fans should not forget that it was due chiefly to the Schoolboy that Detroit won its first world championship in over a quarter of a century and that for nearly three years he has provided the lovers of sport some of the most spectacular ball games ever played. Everyone hopes that the Schoolboy will come back next year stronger and better than ever. But whether he does or not, he has won for himself an everlasting place in the baseball world's hall of fame.

The Best Reward

by Lawrence Hawthorne
The finest thing that life can bring
To you or me, my son,
Is not a name that's known to fame,
Or fortune richly won;
The best reward the years accord
Is neither wealth nor praise—
These never can assure a man
Of truly happy days.

The finest thing that life can bring
Is found in friendship true—
In giving cheer, from year to year,
To those who care for you;
The peace of mind and joy men find
In home and friendliness
Should always be, to you and me,
More precious than success!

MORE QUACKERY.

News dispatches report that some sort of a political outfit in Washington is going to start a suit against General Motors and Ford for so-called misleading advertising. The report alleges that the prices quoted on pictures used in display advertising by these companies are not for the cars pictured, or some sort of rot of that kind. Being a careful reader of newspapers and magazines and a keen observer of advertising, the writer has never been misled by any such thing as this political outfit in Washington charges and it is not believed that any other intelligent person ever has. But with the biggest bunch of political fakery and quacks ever collected together within the confines of one administration, it is not at all surprising that this "ultra-false alarm" outfit should join with the quacks in the "smearing" campaign that has been going on for some time. If you haven't a handful of mud to hurl at somebody or something and if you do not use it at every opportunity, you are not up-to-date, you don't know anything about the new ways of politics.

BEATING THE LAW.

The legislature, at the last session, passed a law which prevents any employe of any state institution from being a member of the state assistance commission, the new name adopted for the state welfare commission. The law was aimed directly at Prof. William Haber of the University of Michigan. Lansing dispatches, the other day, reported the fact that Haber had sent to the governor his resignation as chairman of the state welfare commission. The governor accepted it, saying there was nothing else he could do. The professor did well during the dark days of the depression by his numerous public jobs. He has again shown his alertness by resigning before his job was outlawed.

RAMBLING with Editors AROUND of Michigan

A BAD ODOR.

Eleven Detroit men, convicted of an election recount fraud have received their freedom from prison. State Senator Anthony L. Wilkowski, and Elmer B. O'Hara, former chairman of the Democratic state central committee, convicted as originators of the fraud, are still in prison but will doubtless be liberated soon, and the incident closed. While all true Americans stand wholeheartedly for the purity of the ballot—as well they should—by no means is the above incident the first happening in Michigan. The whole affair bears a strong odor of politics of the lowest type, which greatly detracts from the effectiveness of the object lesson meant to be exemplified.—Charles Seed in The Rochester Clarion.

KILLING THE GOOSE.

It is a curious paradox that as government boosts taxes on utilities on the one hand, it is with the other building subsidized tax-free competitive plants of its own and encouraging through loans and gifts, the construction of subsidized tax-free municipal plants. No private business could long remain solvent and adopt a deliberate policy of destroying its best paying customers. The public should realize the great stakes they have in this vital problem—a cash stake amounting to about 15 percent of the entire gross income of private electric companies which the people collect in taxes, and which will have to be paid by the people in additional taxes on themselves if private utilities' earnings are destroyed.—George Neal in The Orion Review.

BROKEN PROMISES.

Every depression brings the bitter realization that the road to the poor house is paved with the broken pieces of sure-fire get-rich quick schemes which somehow managed to fall in spite of their apparent perfection. It is then that we envy the widow or retired couple with an insurance income that never fails, and we promise ourselves to play safe the next time.

Now, however, times are better. The blue-sky and gold brick boys are once more plying their trade and the old "sucker" lists are being combed once more.

Man being what he is, it is too much, perhaps, to ask that he turn his back on all the enticing propositions that may come his way. Some, it is true, are legitimate and will earn honest profits. But, if we are to profit from the experience of the last few years, the next depression will see more families enjoying the security of an insurance income and fewer making the heart-breaking descent from riches to rags.—George Neal in The Orion Review.

A Rocker
In the California gold rush some miners obtained the precious metal by digging the earth, placing it in a tin pan, pouring on water and then shaking the pan so as to throw out the muddy water and leave the gold particles. Another method was to use a box mounted on rockers, called a "rocker".

If You Have A Child About Six Years Old--

WHEN you and I turned six, nothing happened because our folks didn't know that six is the first turning point in life.

Bones, teeth, eye-sight and all the acts of living go into action at six for the "trial flights"—like a bird out of the nest for the first time.

For the first six years, seeing is no task and so no "load" develops. When your baby was born, it had all the capabilities of seeing, but they had to develop and in most cases they come along normally and naturally. The one act that is hardest to get is "fusion sense". That needs watching.

Your baby wasn't what you'd call curious the first year for it took a lot of noise or light to attract his attention. A baby has other things to do than to work his brain! A day comes when curiosity stirs your baby. Something attracts his attention. Out goes the little hand to take hold of the object. That's the beginning of fusion. The hand-eye combination shows the baby that there is only one object. Maybe his eyes have been seeing two, for he has two eyes and sees two images of all he looks at, but the hand corrects this error and the brain begins to develop true fusion.

That's if things go well. But maybe they don't. What then? That's why at six, your boy or girl needs an honest optometric analysis. I am not thinking of "glasses". Only in rare cases are lenses needed at this time. In fact, the proper training at six years may make it unnecessary for the child ever to wear a lens correction.

A professional optometrist doesn't sell glasses. He analyzes your entire visual system. The eyes are only one part of seeing. They collect the light and form the images on the retina, but the brain does the seeing. So we work with physiology, neurology and psychology to give you efficient seeing. And the time to start, if you are to avoid trouble later is when the child is six.

Watch your child's eyes as they look at things; how do they handle books? If objects are held too close, it indicates bad focus habits. Do both eyes work together or does one wander? You can tell a lot yourself but don't scold or nag the child or try to remedy the trouble yourself. It is a job of re-training of habits and not of command or "bawling out". It's a job for someone trained to handle just such conditions.

Optometry is for Efficient Seeing

Returns From Pacific Coast

Ernest Ree has returned home from California where he has been for a number of weeks. While out on the coast he remained in Glendale most of the time. This is a city located but a short distance from Los Angeles. Mr. Ree declared that the weather was ideal during all the time he was in the West. While some of the days may have been somewhat warm, he stated that every night was exceedingly cool. It was not until he returned home that he experienced any uncomfortable weather. Mr. Ree added that business seemed to be improving out in the West and that there is some building going on.

Points Out Unfairness

(Continued From Page One) times adopts toward the other a puzzling attitude that rouses painful thought in one who knows and respects them both. Personally I wish we had some other name for the 48 millions of us who work for wages; the term "labor" as denoting a class lends itself too much to the discoloration of facts, and I employ it under protest. All of our sympathies are instantly with "labor"—that is where most of us belong, but under present misunderstandings sympathy in one direction almost certainly turns to antipathy in the opposite direction. And this antipathy, even though unconscious, works havoc with the truth. The same care of statement in antipathetic matters as in sympathetic matters is not often humanly attainable. And though one-sided and exaggerated or colored statements are often unintentional and unconscious, they are not less harmful for that. As a current example: probably every daily paper in the United States today will have some reference to the "Ford Riot". And yet there never has been a Ford riot. Henry Ford has not rioted; his representatives have not rioted; his employees have not rioted; as a matter of cold fact, there has never been any labor disturbance of any sort in the Ford shops. Nonetheless a man who in 34 years of business life has never had any trouble with his employees, whose principles and practice are an open book, has his name daily linked with that most detestable form of labor trouble—a riot. Of course, that is the purpose—not the deliberate purpose of the newspapers that print it, but of the original source that manufactured the events on which news is based. The purpose is not to report a fact but to stick a label, to convince the public that Ford, whom everyone thought of as decent, is as bad as the worst, and that therefore there are no decent employers. But how is any newspaper today to say there never has been a "Ford Riot"? To do so would require unraveling the whole miserable story from the beginning, flying in the face of a score of widely disseminated falsities, and undoing a whole system of miseducation that has been under way for twenty years. I say this to illustrate in a simple way the tangled condition that surrounds labor troubles in the news. In saying it I am not supplicating nor complaining nor even suggesting a change—we have found that we ourselves shall have to effect the change in another way. The tangle is not made simpler by the political and legal elements that complicate the matter. What the political pact is or was, we of Michigan pretty definitely know. But, besides the political aspect, something entirely new in legal procedure has arisen in this country, a parallel of which must be sought about 300 years ago—back in the 1600's. It is now illegal for an American citizen to cross a state line to take employment in an industry under strike—a prohibition most of us could probably swallow, even if it is without the shadow of justification in any principle of law. But the same legislation permits, and political favor has facilitated, the importing and free passage across state lines of regiments and armies of strike sympathizers whose object is to prevent American citizens going to work. That same law sets up traveling courts of inquisition which can enter any community and draw up charges against any industry upon the word of the most irresponsible elements in the community. Those charges often read like stump speeches on a Socialist or Communist platform, rather than calm legal indictments based on a show of probable facts. These charges are, of course, duly heralded through the press—and that is no small part of the matter. Publicity is the lash of the whip. No business name or reputation is safe. These traveling courts sit as Judge, Jury, prosecutor, witness and hangman on their own charges and find their own verdict; and then the verdict is heralded throughout the length and breadth of the land by the press and the injury of public confidence and the detriment of private reputation. And when, in the real courts of the land—and there are still real courts—an industry by fair and legal means disproves the charges and it is cleared, what does it matter? The punitive political purpose has been accomplished. The smearing has been done. Popular faith has been hurt—wounded. A notable fact in this connection is that this misuse of the press to cloud a respectable name never occurs to an industry that "signs up," and many an industry has "signed up" rather than endure the legal lynching of its name through the press of the land. This so-called news goes out under the name of the National Labor Relations board—it has an official air about it and how is a newspaper to deal with that? I admit I don't know. We shall have to deal with it ourselves. At the same time, in terms of what is true now and will be known as truth tomorrow, it leaves the advertising columns of a newspaper a more reliable source of labor news for the moment than are the news columns. To go into the matter with the thoroughness it requires, would call for more words than I care to speak or you to hear. Permit me to brief the remainder of my remarks in the form of a series of observations. I merely say how some matters look to me from where I am. At the beginning of this fantastic period I noticed throughout the press a tendency to take the part of C.I.O. against A.F.L. I am not criticizing that; I am neutral in any case. But when I ask why this was done, no newspaper man of my acquaintance appears to know. It just seemed to be the way the news was running at the time. Merle Thorpe says that labor organizations have better press experts than business has—which is all right if the press is to be run by press agents. However, Mr. Green was suddenly made to appear the stouky old back number, and Mr. Lewis as suddenly was made to appear the favorite white-haired boy. Cast back in your mind over the past year and a half and see how clearly that attitude stands out. I have never been able to get any considered editorial reason for it, but there it is. The newspapers made John Lewis; certainly none of his achievements in behalf of the workmen made him; they are not sufficiently notable. It would be interesting to know why the newspapers at a given time did the precise thing that most encouraged his cause. As a daily reader, I observed also a surprising slowness in the press to penetrate the truth about the sit-down strike far enough to learn at least that it was not a strike. A strike, as we all know, is a voluntary act on the part of workmen who have a grievance, who try to have the causes of that grievance removed by calling their employer's attention to it and, failing in that, agree among themselves to quit work in protest. It is their own decision, their own act. Whether the form of it be a walkout or a sit-down is immaterial so far as its being a strike is concerned. There was no such voluntary, agreed-upon strike at Flint. There was no such strike in the automotive industry of Detroit. Without consultation, without votes, without agreement on the part of the rank and file of shopmen, trained men who had worked but a few days in the shops pulled switches, bull-dozed surprised workmen; other thousands that had never been in Michigan before swarmed to the gates and held the workmen in. Yet for three weeks newspapers hereabouts continued to talk about a "strike," and the only journalists who discovered the facts were from Boston and New York. If you wanted the truth about Flint at that time, you could read it on the Atlantic seaboard. Go up to Flint and live among the people who went through the experience and learn for yourselves what happened. Thousands coerced into sitting down were coerced into union membership—see how many you can now find who are hurrying about the benefits that brought them. This is the real news of the labor situation which no one prints. We may hold the view that these occurrences were all to the good, or we may view it otherwise, but the picture given the general public was not truly representative of the reality. I observed another thing—many a newspaper that had regard for his responsibility as an interpreter of the times, printed an occasional editorial effort that ran directly contrary to the influence its news columns were undoubtedly having. We used to have a principle in newspaper work that no editorial bias, no opinion-making comment, should appear in the news. In the heat of political contests that principle was sometimes conveniently forgotten, but in the main it held.

And yet in this whole period of labor trouble the principal opinion-forming work has been done on page one. I am not suggesting that it be stopped—I think it ought to be allowed to continue now until it performs its perfect work, for it is now beginning to produce its own anti-people—people are beginning to read between the lines on page one and drawing a new set of conclusions. But—here is another strange thing—directly this change in public attitude occurs, the makers of the events behind the news on page one also have a quick change of attitude, and page one news now reflects an attitude of repentance which it hoped will be answered by a fitting spirit of forgiveness and forgetfulness on the part of the patient public. In every industrial center in this country retail business was beaten down by big headlines which caused a spirit of apprehension and fear among the people—headlines that heralded unfulfillable prophecies and threats of unemployment and general industrial dislocation—and so far as I am aware, no voice was heard to protest that all this deliberate dissemination of fear was unnecessary, no one seemed to suspect that it might be something besides spon-pure news. Regardless of that, the prize for opinion-making throughout this period goes to page one. I have yet to see any news about such "signings" as there was, done. No business of proportions that is OWNED BY ANYBODY signed up. No business that had any man's lifeblood or personal honor bound up in it. Corporations are NOT OWNED BY ANYBODY. Cut them and they do not bleed. The reasons WHY they signed is surely news. One company signed because it was not strong enough to cope with the intolerable interferences suffered by its business—it signed in order to buy "peace" and, unfortunately, has not found the peace it paid for. Another large corporation signed because it was caught in a quagmire of wage classifications in its various plants, and found itself incompetent to make the undoubtedly needed adjustments. The tangle had increased through mismanagement during many years. Any attempt to straighten it out would take considerable courage. The labor czar said, "Leave it to me. I can straighten that out and make them like it." And the truth is, he can! The workmen involved will discover that. Perhaps you know that for several years past there has been a strong underground movement in this country for a general reduction in wages. Some managers believe that dividends can be increased that way—they are deluded but that is what they believe. Others honestly believe the country can't stand the steady wage increases that have been going on. Henry Ford knows at least as much, and possibly a little more, of what is going on than most people, and when he says that the whole intent of the present organization drive is to effect a reduction of wages, I think he knows what he is talking about, yet editors scream at him as if the very thought were imbecile. It reminds me of that Orphan Annie cartoon—Mr. AM walking amongst the pygmies of an hour. Still other corporations have signed on this principle: They say, "This new set-up can't last; it is absolutely unworkable; but it is easier to go along with it for the time being than to fight it; we'll sign up and let the workingman get his belly full of it for once." Managers who reason that way were unfit for labor leadership in the first place, and thus they abdicate what little pretense to labor leadership they had. Most of the just labor grievances that exist in American industry are due to this type of manager. I have just hurriedly run over the facts of a few of the widely heralded "signers". Independent business, the hope of our economic future, is not to be found amongst them. In that connection let me mention another mannerism that is gaining currency in our newspapers. I read daily the "little steel". Mr. Lewis, the papers tell me, after capturing "Big Steel" by which, I suppose, they mean the steel corporation, has now failed in his attack on "little steel". "Little Steel" is journalistic for independent steel—and apparently no newspaper in this country is aware that independent steel, because it is unhampered by a vast and long accumulated obsolescence and because it is unhampered by a system of dividend production that takes precedence of commodity production, is now the steel power of this country. Independent business, in any line, is equally the enemy of conditions that create labor grievances and of those opportunists who rear their personal empires by exploiting those grievances. When you deal with independent business you are dealing with the men—the individuals—who built it. Carl Ackerman, dean of Columbia school of journalism, seems to be right when he says—"During periods of industrial disorder the trend of the news and of the news and photographic display tends to become so fixed to one point of view, as to raise a serious question in regard to the objectivity of the press. Should there not be a scientific study of this whole situation to determine the causes and effects of the relationship between industry and journalism which at present may be accelerating the thinking of mankind in a direction hostile to the freedom of business and of the press?" The newspaper used to be a voice; in too many instances it is now a party—there, I think, you will find the point where most of the trouble arises. There are two pivots round which any straight editorial policy regarding industrial matters must run. First, natural sympathy with labor movements must be informed by the fact that whereas the labor union you know had the improvement of the workingman's lot as its objective, another objective has now come to the fore—the seizure and control of industry at large. Anyone who doesn't understand that is perfectly at sea so far as this matter is concerned. The other pivotal fact is this: the history of labor and management shows that every improvement of industrial conditions, every advance in industrial justice, originates with management. I have no doubt that practically every man we meet believes that improved conditions in industry have come through outside compulsion, through strikes, aroused public opinion, legislation, and the like—in brief, that every advance of social justice in industry is a victory of society over industry. The fact, however, the history is just the opposite. Every such advance originated with and was brought into practice by industry itself, often as the result of a victory of industry over the moral inertia of society —as, for example, the first English Factory Acts, which were the creation of the British mill owners. No labor leader has ever originated or suggested a single improvement in industrial conditions. Nor has any statesman. Management alone has done this. And progressive management has been sufficiently weighty to pull backward business slowly along with it. When you see a justified strike you will observe that the demand is for conditions that already exist in factories under progressive management. Some of the more insistent demands of the present period relate to practices which industry itself experimented with 40 years ago and found unworkable. Progressive and socially conscious industry has been constantly breeding out detriments, and building in new and better elements. If an element is unworkable, it is never built in, no matter who demands it. Now this is directly counter to what most people think—but surely some one in every newspaper ought to know what the history shows. A mind that keeps straight on these two points has the key to the labor question. Once we see the main trend—the way America is going—temporary happenings have little power to confuse us. The U. S. Navy has five aircraft carriers. They are: Lexington, Saratoga, Ranger, Langley and Yorktown.

Garden City To Play Inkster

The Garden City-Ace of Clubs game was rained out Sunday, August 1. Garden City will play Inkster on the latter's diamond. A previous encounter with Inkster at Garden City resulted in a 13-inning battle which ended with Garden City on top 2 to 1. Waldo Scott pitched the game for Garden City and was opposed by Lee Pechette. It is expected that both pitchers will start on the mound for their respective teams. Garden City is tied for fourth place with Belleville and Wyandotte, while Inkster is in fifth place in the Michigan Inter-County league.

Here's Thrill For Northville Fair

Leaping through a solid board-wall in an automobile traveling 60 miles an hour may sound like a sure way to commit suicide. To the ordinary person it probably would be. But not to beautiful Margaret McLean, a member of the Mary Wiggins troupe of Hollywood girl stunt stars who will appear at the Wayne county fair, Northville, Wednesday afternoon and night, August 25.

This is Miss McLean's way of earning her daily bread and butter. And what makes the pretty young lady's stunt all the more daring is the fact that she does not use a specially built automobile. She takes her leap in defiance of death with a stock car, the kind you buy when you walk into the salesroom of an automobile company to purchase a new car.

Another thing which puts Miss McLean's performance in the category of death-defying stunts is the fact that her car is off the ground as it crashes the wall.

This means that in addition to being forced to escape flying glass and splinters she must be an expert pilot in order to land the car on its four wheels after careening through the wall.

Miss McLean is a protege of Mary Wiggins, the most famous stunt girl in the world today and the handsome young lady of 24 who doubles for most of the famous Hollywood actresses when they are called upon to perform a bit for the movies that might result in bodily injury or death.

The wall-crashing feat of Miss McLean is only one of 14 death-defying numbers staged by Miss Wiggins' troupe, which is rated the greatest assemblage of girl daredevils ever corralled for one show.

Modern transport planes now travel from New York to San Francisco in 15 hours, 20 minutes. Four years ago 24 hours service was maintained.

THE TONQUISH CREEK BREEZE

Vol. No. 1 Tonquish Creek, Michigan U. S. A.

The BREEZE has decided not to give up the ghost. There's too much rich news laying around these hereabouts that does not get into print unless The BREEZE publishes it. But our editorial policy is going to be changed. We are no longer going to lead any reforms. If people want Tonquish creek buried deep under the earth, with all its beauties gone forever, they can have it as far as The BREEZE is concerned. The BREEZE is no longer concerned with anything except exclusive news.

The Hickory Nutville Blizzard has some uncomplimentary things to say about The BREEZE and its efforts to save the creek. Well, the Blizzard editor can keep his poison pen busy if he wants to, as far as The BREEZE is concerned.

Maybe a permanent pave would be a good thing where the creek used to flow, says Creeker Carl Shear. Who cares what he says now?

Leonard Murphy reports that the Creek Auxiliary has disorganized. It should have been that way before it ever started.

The Creek boys that went into hard training down around the Mayflower family table for services in the home guards and lived on short rations fed them for weeks by Creeker Maben can't see why he should be keeping up the short ration thing. They say the war is over and there is no use in living on tid-bits any more. As far as The BREEZE is concerned they can go hungry from now until the creek dries up.

Abe Goldstein has been hanging around with the Creek boys again. He's been trying to explain, but they won't listen.

Creeker Fred Schrader has turned his attention to trying to invent a combination lawn mower and snow shovel. He can be found most anytime out back of his buffalo ranch fussing with the contraption.

Notice.
Hereon and hereafter I will not be responsible for anything that may appear in The BREEZE. I was editor-in-chief because I believed in that great reform movement to save the creek. But some one messed things up and the creek is gone forever. The BREEZE can print what it wants to and when it wants to, but as far as I am concerned, I am in no ways responsible for its corrupt or otherwise distorted news.

Fighting Brick Champe.
Ex-editor.

Russ Powell has gone to growing sun flowers. He says there are a lot of parrots that need feeding around here. Maybe that's what he thinks. But The BREEZE thinks there is going to be some hungry creekers unless they can get the rations chief to feeling good again.

The BREEZE has a supply of last winter's Christmas cards it would like to get rid of. You can cross off 1936 and write 1937 where 1936 is. Christmas cards are just like anything else, they are good all the time.

Watch The BREEZE! It is going to take on new life again.

A Communication.
Editor Breeze:
Say, old boy, I have been reading the "Breeze" for some weeks past and it sure prints the truth. But you are lacking on one subject. By the sound of your holler-ing one would think no one lived on the banks of the beautiful, blue Tonquish but a set of big chiefs and their henchmen. Not once has anything been printed concerning the ladies (I say, ladies) who are permitted to camp on these historic banks.

What is the big idea?
We pay taxes and we feel as though we know beauty when we see it. Any one strolling along the banks of this beautiful stream cannot help but be charmed by the vegetation—beautiful flowers and native fruit. Who can't hark back to a luscious elderberry pie. Here grows a noble apple tree bearing apples of the variety by which Eve tempted Adam and we need the apples for the same purpose in Plymouth. See the rustic bridge—the lovers' leap—leap first and look afterwards. I tell you there will be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth when all these land marks are buried. Talk about you feeling bad. I am prostrated. Us women folks are peeved. We don't care a rap about your "Doc" either. He belongs to your gang. We gotta "Doc" of our own.

Maccabees In Big Review

The Maccabees held their eighteenth International Supreme Tent Review in Detroit, July 19-23, inclusive. More than 3,500 delegates from 44 states and from every province of Canada attended.

The first two days, Monday and Tuesday, competitive junior and adult drill teams from many states and provinces of Canada furnished the entertainment, using the Arcadia ballroom as the scene of their activities.

On Tuesday the Emerson guard team of Plymouth participated in the program having the distinction of being the largest drill team in Michigan. They competed with 45 other drill teams.

The first prize was won by the Lexington fancy drill team of Lexington, Kentucky; second place went to the Catherine Schwartz guards from Toledo, Ohio with the Lincoln No. 6 team of Lincoln, Nebraska, half a point behind in third place.

Each drill team has its own color scheme and present a very pleasing and colorful spectacle on the floor. The local teams' costumes include red capes, trimmed with black, white skirts and shoes. For hats they wear red and white fezes with tazzels which carry the Maccabee symbol. While they didn't win a prize their drill was given without any mistakes and they were happy to have the privilege to attend this convention and compete with drills from so many other states and Canada. Michigan had 15 drill teams in attendance.

A pageant was given at the evening session with Harriet Williamson directing. The American and Union Jack flags were presented, escorted by corresponding drill teams. Following each presentation the national anthems were played by the attending orchestra.

The pageant included a colorful parade of nearly all the states of the union and seven Canadian provinces with as many as 600 drill team members on the floor in formation at one time.

The remainder of the week was given over to business sessions, the election and installation of the supreme officers with Ethan W. Thompson of Detroit as supreme commander, the clarification of Maccabee laws and other important transactions. These were held at the Maccabee building on Woodward avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. James Honey were in Deckerville Tuesday to attend the funeral of their cousin, Eugene Bunya and his nine-year-old daughter, Betty, both of whom were drowned while vacationing at the Soo. Mr. Bunya, who has been a lawyer in Deckerville many years, had many friends in Plymouth.

Eight Arrested In Clean-Up

The Rouge river near where it crosses the Beck road and from another point just east of Newburg.

One of the places some of the eight robbed last fall was the Grennan creamery on the Six Mile road.

During the past two weeks, Butch's beer garden in Northville was broken into and robbed. The Recreation in Northville was robbed and some of those arrested have admitted robbing the Dam Tavern as well as numerous places over in Oakland and Washtenaw counties.

Chief of Police Vaughn Smith and Captain Charles Thumme of Plymouth co-operated with the officers in making the arrests. Both are loud in their praises of the good work of Chief Loye German of Northville.

While young Killeit lived in Northville, he was employed as a railroad crossing tender in Plymouth.

Meyers had but recently moved to Plymouth from Northville. Whipple was taken from a bus as he was about to leave for California.

When first arraigned Judge Nichols of Northville fixed bail ranging from $300 to $3000. Bail in some cases has been provided.

Attorney Ford Brooks will represent two or three of the Plymouth residents at the hearing in Northville today.

There was one other arrest made by the officers in the case, but there was no evidence against him and he was released.

Chief German states that all of the gang did not work together on all of the thefts, but they worked in groups and each one knew what the others were doing.

Sheriff's officers declare that Chief German is entitled to unlimited credit for his good work in this case.

It was Chief German who also received a tip that the Northville bank was to be robbed some three or four weeks before it was raided. He watched it for some two weeks and because others thought that his information was not correct, they took him out of the bank. The robbery followed a few days later.

Owners of small business places located outside the city limits of Plymouth and Northville are highly elated over the clean-up of this gang. Except for two or three robberies in Northville, all of the activities have been in rural localities.

West Plymouth

A low flying plane which encircled the Clarence Adamson home twice, Saturday was the signal that notified Mrs. Adamson's nieces from Rochester and South Bend, who had been visiting her for the past week, that their husbands had arrived. The ladies took their car and went to the Triangle airport where the plane was put in a hangar, and brought their husbands back to visit over Sunday in the Adamson home.

Lawrence Greene, who a week ago was so seriously injured in an automobile crash at the corner of Powell and Ridge road, is recovering in an Ypsilanti hospital. The amputation of his left leg above the knee and the great loss of blood in consequence made his condition at first very serious. Indeed, he is a son of Vanda Greene, and collided with a car driven by Mr. Schonberg.

Another crash at the corner of Ridge road and U. S. 12 Saturday night damaged two cars very badly, one belonging to parties near Salem and the other from Royal Oak. The man in the car from Salem attempted to cross U. S. 12 from the south when he was struck by a car approaching from the east. His wife and child were thrown out but not hurt. His car appeared to be completely wrecked.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sirrine on Golden road drove to Bridgeport, Connecticut this past week.

Mrs. George Richwine visited her brother in Detroit, Tuesday.

Miss Joyce Kingsley visited friends near Salem over the week-end.

Melvin Stacy is very busy these days, not only with his farming, but the building of a very attractive new home on Powell road, which he expects to occupy this fall.

While Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Van Buren were vacationing this week in the upper peninsula, Mrs. H. C. Root cared for the "Ruth's Dinette" at their filling station.

Miss Sally Cutler of Chicago is spending her vacation at the parental home on Ridge road.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cutler and children spent Sunday at Ft. Pelee, Canada at Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cutler's camp. Malcolm Cutler and family of Detroit are at the camp for this week, and Winnifred remained with them.

Inside Story Of Squirrel Law

"Say, there's one thing you can do that will please a lot of folks," said Russ, "when you get up to Lansing try and fix it so these fellows from Detroit can't shoot all the squirrels out of the front yards of folks around here."

Dave Bolton said he hoped something could be done about it, too.

"I shot a squirrel five years ago when I was out hunting, and after I saw it fall to the earth, I felt so rotten because I had killed it. I had a notion to shoot myself. The squirrel kicked a bit and looked up at me as though he wanted to talk and ask me why I had shot him. I saw it run up a tree and then it scurried out on a limb, where it sat peeping at me over the top of it. I raised my gun and banged away—and I was sorry the minute I shot it," said Dave.

"No sportsman worthy of the title is interested in shooting squirrels. It's no fun and it doesn't require any ability. It's just like shooting tin cans off the top of a stump," added Russ Powell. "When I have been out hunting with fellows and they have seen a squirrel I've tried to keep them from shooting. When we come home from our trips, we never bring any squirrels," he continued.

Brick Champé, another real sportsman, then happened to come in for his usual breakfast of black coffee, taken standing up.

He agreed with what the boys were saying about killing squirrels.

"What have you after you kill half a dozen of them? There's hardly enough meat to look at. But you know there are some folks who like to kill things just to kill something that looks like game," said Brick.

Dr. Paul Butz had his part of the say in having the season closed. Doc says that the season on fox squirrels should never be opened.

"They should open up the season on red squirrels and keep it open, but never on fox squirrels. Some of these folks don't know it, but a bunch of fox squirrels in the woods will clean out every rotten spot they find in the trees," said Dr. Butz.

Jack Taylor, who probably tramps the woods around this part of the state and up around the Thunder bay country as much as any man hereabouts had just returned from Northville that morning of the squirrel discussion and he stopped in Smitty's for breakfast.

"I can't see why they haven't stopped squirrel shooting long ago. Why any man wants to go out and kill them is more than I can figure out. They have practically cleaned them out from around here, these fellows from Detroit who come out in this locality, and are anxious to shoot at anything they see, even the livestock on the farms," declared the Plymouth fisherman, who has the record of catching the biggest goggle-eyed ever taken out of Loon lake, or any other lake.

Frank Coward, who spends most of his life on the Au Sable when not working, allowed that Banker Taylor was right.

"You know I had some squirrels up near the cabin that I used to feed, some of Smitty's peanuts to and last spring when I went back up there, someone had killed them all off. I presume the squirrels thought maybe the hunters had some peanuts in their pockets and ran down the trees to get something to eat. They were probably shot while sitting up teasing for peanuts.

GIANT PEACH CLUSTER

It's a good year for peaches at the home of G. F. Trotter near Wright City, Mo. They come in large clusters on his trees, instead of the usual twos and threes. Miss Madeline Sode of St. Louis is shown with a cluster of eleven.

Still some fellows call that hunting and picture themselves as sportsmen," was the sentiment of his expression about the squirrel law.

Again Russ Powell chimed in and declared that every real sportsman he had ever talked with would like to see the squirrels protected for a few years, if not for all time.

"It's an outright shame to think we've got fellows tramping through the woods and calling themselves sportsmen who want to keep the squirrel season open," he said.

"That ended the discussion at Smitty's but when the Northville-Mio-Comins crowd of hunters and fishermen were up at Comins last fall, they took up the same subject and discussed it with considerable more emphasis than was evident at the breakfast counter chat at Smitty's.

"Most squirrel hunters ought to have a few bird shot sprinkled in their hides," said Dayton Bunn of Northville. Mr. Bunn, who hunts from the day the season opens until it ends, declared that anybody who claims to be a sportsman and favored hunting squirrels, was putting himself in a class where he didn't belong.

"It's sport, hunting pheasants and grouse. You've got to be a good shot and you have to do some real tramping in order to get 'em," he said. "But with squirrels—say, shooting a squirrel is like shooting at the broad side of an elephant standing still. Every squirrel I ever saw a hunter kill was sitting on a limb looking down at the hunter. Who calls that sportsmanship—to kill something that is standing looking at you?" declared Mr. Bunn.

Edward Mills, of Northville, a member of the same hunting and fishing club, is probably more opposed to squirrel hunting than is Mr. Bunn or other members of this group that has for over a dozen years hunted each fall around Comins and Burt lake.

Louis Stewart, another member of the group from Northville and Elmer Smith, were other advocates of the closed squirrel season. They hunt and they fish just as frequently as they can get away from business.

All of them look down upon the squirrel hunter as some one who doesn't belong in the class he has injected himself into.

But it was Russ Powell, enthusiastic fisherman and hunter, who never failed to see to it that the issue was kept alive. Each week-end he wanted to know if anything was being done in Lansing about closing the squirrel season. Russ, as every one knows, is the son of Matt Powell, another real sportsman, whose hunting trips frequently take him into the Hudson bay country.

Anyway, the squirrels are protected for the present—and that's that.

Anyway, the squirrels are protected for the present—and that's that.

D. A. R. Members At CCC Camp

When the library had been inspected, the ladies were provided with seats and Mr. McGeegan gave them a most interesting talk on the educational activities of the camp. He told them that there were 118 boys there in camp and that about 80 more boys were expected this week. There is no compulsory school work but the boys are encouraged in following some educational line, and if any preference is shown, the educational director makes it possible for the boys to carry on. Classes in many subjects are taken care of there in camp with materials, books, and instruction furnished. Also, on three days each week the year round, the camp trucks carry any boys who wish to take up work in Tech high or other trade schools in Detroit, to and from these schools. If a boy wishes to learn a trade in some nearby school or factory, this also is made possible. He stated one case where a boy had learned welding and was now earning a handsome sum each month.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Eugene Elliott issues eighth grade certificates to all boys finishing eighth grade work in the camp school and these are found to be of great help after the boys finish at the camps, since so many factories, etc., require these certificates from all their employees.

Aside from all these advantages the state university and state and normal colleges furnish extension courses and the camp instructor helps the boys with these.

Mr. McGeegan is a Northwestern University graduate, and the boys are indeed fortunate in having such an interested and splendid young man in charge of this work.

In the past year the Sarah Ann Cochran chapter has furnished hundreds of books and magazines for the camp library and have thus had a large part in making these privileges of education for the boys possible.

Mr. McGeegan made a plea for more books and magazines of the better type and especially for text books of all kinds and reference books. Undoubtedly many people of our city have school text books, magazines, and story books which would be of great value in this splendid work and if they will notify Mrs. Sidney Strong, D.A.R. regent, Mrs. Brant Warner, or any other D.A.R. member, they will be glad to call for such books or material. Games, puzzles, pieces of furniture, which the boys can repair for use in their library, etc., would be greatly welcomed and we are sure our citizens will be glad to have a

Rust Hits Big Wheat Crop

Farmers in the vicinity of Plymouth who have threshed their 1937 wheat crop, are getting yields from 22 to 36 bushels per acre. The highest yield so far reported is 36 bushels, and that came from the Duryea farm.

But the distressing news comes from the fact that just when Michigan wheat growers were ready to capitalize on the misfortunes that have hit farmers in the west, some of the western wheat troubles have floated into the state, born by the wind.

From all over the state have come reports of serious damage by black stem rust, the worst infestation in years, county agricultural agents are reporting to men on the staff at Michigan State college.

Normally Michigan's wheat fields are maturing in time to escape serious damage, explains E. E. Down, plant breeder at the college. In his work he has experimented in an attempt to breed wheat that would be more resistant to the black stem rust. The problem is that it is difficult to combine resistance with good yield and a desirable stiff straw.

Michigan has worked for two decades to eliminate the hazard of rust. Japanese barberries have been hacked out and salted in every county in the state. The barberry serves as a host for the spores of the rust when it is not working on a crop. Because the barberries are gone, the spores that arrive with winds from the south and east usually settle down in Michigan after the wheat part in the splendid work the local chapter of D.A.R. is doing in contributing to the education of these boys.

The boys are enlisted for two years in these camps and at the end of that period may receive an honorable discharge if one has been earned. This discharge is most valuable to them in their later life. Road building and sewer work are the main projects of this particular camp.

is matured and past possible danger.

This year a late spring and damp growing weather caused the wheat to grow more slowly and gave the rust spores a chance to work. In some sections of the state estimates of the damage run as high as 30 percent of the expected yield. The rust mycelium stops plumping of the wheat kernels, lowering yields and cutting seed weights.

Eastern Vacation Trip Leads To Discovery Of Old Ideal Town

Plymouth Tourist Tells Founding of Town Operated By All

There are several ways for people to tour through the country when on a vacation. First, they can try to break speed records, next, they can hit only the "high spots", visit the big cities and return home tired out from a mad rush through adjoining states. Or else they can tour leisurely and see and learn much.

That is the way Mrs. Arthur Charles Prochnow did on a recent tour through the east and as a result she has returned to Plymouth with a most interesting bit of information about a little community known as Ambridge, down in Pennsylvania.

At the request of The Mail, she has written the following article pertaining to a group of idealists that founded two or three communities in America, but made of Ambridge what they believed the model settlement.

Her article follows:

"Not every town can boast of being so intertwined into one little body of a few followers, and accomplish so much successfully as Ambridge, Pennsylvania.

"While in this town, we visited the Harmony Society Memorial and found so much of interest, that it seemed almost impossible not to tell our Plymouthites about some of the interesting worthwhile adventures of over 100 years ago and what is there today.

"George Rapp, at the age of 46 years, came to America with his son, John Frederic Reichert, later adopted by George Rapp. They had a few followers and all had the intentions to enjoy a religious toleration from the beginning of the settlement to the end.

"Before landing at French Point, the Harmony Society made two settlements, one at Harmony in Butler county, and the second one on the Wabash in Indiana. Both towns were called Harmony, and were successful financially. Owing to their locations, however, and their distance from eastern markets they decided to make another move. This location was chosen because it was accessible to all markets, eastern as well as western. A beautiful and healthful location for all kinds of industry. The name "Economy" was chosen as significant of the character of the society.

"Having purchased 3,000 acres, part of the community, led by Father Rapp left Indiana, and landed at French Point, June 8, 1824. There was a small body of brave souls who risked so much and who, in unity, love, religious fervor and accomplishment left a record without parallel. It was these sturdy pioneers, who, by overcoming untold hardships, made possible the beginnings of this great industrial center of the present day Ambridge.

"The Harmonites or Economites, as they were called, were confronted by hardships that would have discouraged the most optimistic of men. The first night was spent under the spreading branches of a mighty oak, and though surrounded by an almost unbroken forest, they knelt down, prayed, and lifted their voices in hymns of praise to God to whom they dedicated their future lives. This tree became unsafe and was cut down in 1917.

"A thorough system of drainage was inaugurated before the laying out of the town. Remembering all previous adventures, a town of wondrous beauty was laid out, which at that time proved to be the model village of Pennsylvania. Strangers and noted visitors came from afar to behold its beauties.

"The teachings of the society were humility, self-sacrifice, neighborly-love, industry, prayer, and self-examination. No quarrels should pass through the night uncompromised. They were guided by three maxims: "Deny thyself", "Cleanliness is next to godliness", and "Take time to do all things well."

"The children had the best of care, were kept busy at school or attending household duties, and taught to respect, honor, and obey. The untiring efforts of every man, woman, and child made this place of Harmony a town of model beauty and neatness.

"The reputation for honesty born by the Rappites was one of the reasons for their commercial prosperity.

"Strangers were always welcomed by three men blowing horns and Father Rapp greeted them on the front steps. Not even a beggar was turned away until he had been fed and given rest.

"They gave freely to all appeals for aid. Three festivals, the Lord's Supper the last, were held yearly in the second story of the music hall, now part of the Harmony Society Memorial.

"The houses with no front doors, only one entrance, were set wide apart so gardens could be made between, and so well-built, are now, after 100 years usage, in good condition and in great demand for dwelling, and compare favorably with the modern house. The houses were built flush with the streets which were wide at right angles, and grape vines could be seen hanging from trellises along the second story windows.

"The pleasure garden had many attractions—a fish-pond, a deer-park, paths, labyrinth, a "Sacred Indian Mound", flower-beds, and plenty of shade trees. The outside stairway leading to the second floor balcony from the garden, where the band played, was covered with lattice-work.

"The old church, still in good condition, the bell not only rings the hours, but the half and quarters, to remind one of olden times. The church is now being used by St. John's Lutheran church and visitors are still taken to the high balcony to view the surrounding country.

"Regardless of our efficiency, there is always some one to take our place when our work here is done. Just so with Father Rapp. The aspirations of Father Rapp embraced the whole world. Each leader succeeding him followed him closely in all of the record-keeping which is kept in the Memorial Grotto in the garden.

"Father Rapp died in August, 1847, and was greatly mourned by his people. His funeral services were very simple and he was buried in the graveyard in the orchard, now a part of Ambridge. This graveyard is enclosed by a picket fence. Within the graves, in straight rows, are without headstones or any distinguishing claimed to be a divine messenger. Father Rapp believed in Christ's coming again, and received the stranger with courtesy. Strange doctrines conflicted with Rapp's teachings and from this time on the colony began to decrease in number. A vote was taken and it was found that Father Rapp had more followers, so the intrigue was made to leave with his followers, and the colony agreed to pay them $105,000, in installments, and the full amount to be paid in one year, and they agreed to relinquish all claim upon the property of the society.

"Up to 1868, all industries were carried on mostly by the people themselves, but as the members grew fewer, the profits grew less. Silk and velvet making proved their efficiency and cleverness above all industries. Many antique farming implements, spinning wheels, music boxes, clocks, pianos, cradles for babies, caskets, and household utensils are still in the Memorial today.

"Through a sheriff's sale, the colony came into possession of 6,000 acres of land from a man to whom they had previously loaned money. In 1860, oil was discovered in that vicinity. Several wells were drilled and oil was produced in quantities. In addition to the oil, the society had interests in timber in Warren county. The timber was the chief source of revenue at that time.

"Wet" Issue Can Be Submitted

Now that Governor Murphy has signed the new liquor law, Plymouth will have from now until September 21 to decide whether it wants to become a "wet" town. If the question is not submitted to the voters before that time, there will not be another opportunity for four years to vote on the question.

Not that any one in Plymouth has any desire to have the question submitted, but it is news to know that the governor, by signing the new liquor bill, has opened the way for submission of the question on or before September 21.

In order to bring the question to a vote in Plymouth it would require the signatures by 20 percent of the voters of Plymouth. They would have to file with the city commission before that time, and then the question would go before the electors of the city for final decision.

But there is no indication that any one is interested in having the matter brought before the voters in this city.

marks, for in death, all are the same.

"A building was erected to house each new industry and the success of the colony soon controlled the Pittsburgh market. Spanish wool was sold to Father Rapp because no one else could work up such fine wool. Every essential, with few exceptions, was made in the colony for the people.

"Many barrels of wines, 12 different kinds, were made yearly. Among these was boneset-bitters, the family medicine, which was made in quantities to supply all for one year. The services of a physician were seldom needed. Each family was allotted so many pints of wine daily and no more without the doctor's prescription.

"The steam laundry was appreciated most of all. Every family had its allotted time here. The boiler furnished steam for the work, also was utilized for the making of all their liquors. Many outsiders would bring their fruit to be made into cider.

"Straw hats, made from partly ripened rye-staw, were worn in the fields and gardens. Each family was given enough straw for two hats. Silk bonnets, made from silk produced in the colony, were worn to church. The Sunday felt hats for men, were made from the fleece of sheep raised for this purpose and to supply wool for the factory.

"A custom in vogue, during the entire history of the colony was that of having a night watchman make the rounds every hour. Woe to the straggler found on the streets after 9 o'clock, for at that time quiet and peace must reign supreme.

"Yes, the Economites had daily news. A bulletin board was always carried on the rear of the milk wagon, news of daily importance was printed in large letters—the job for the day, where to meet, and at what time, also the distribution of daily provisions for each family.

"During the Civil War, the Economites feared the invasion of Morgan's army, and with true German thrift, stout oaken boxes were quickly fashioned, and all money securely packed therein.

Each family was given one box for safe keeping. Nearly all of their ready cash was in half dollars. When Lake Erie railway was built, the money was called in, scoured on huge blocks, and was delivered in Pittsburgh, for the purchase of stock in the proposed new railroad.

"Many times they found life darkest just before dawn. Always a way out after much trouble and figuring. Shortly after Economy was established, a German adventurer who proved to be an intriguer also, came with a few followers to Economy, and

TORNADOES SWEEP MICHIGAN AGAIN CAUSING HEAVY LOSS

Many sections of the state were visited during the past few weeks by terrible windstorms. Barns were torn apart, houses were wrecked, farm tools smashed, orchards uprooted and livestock killed.

From one cyclone alone, June 14, this company had over 200 losses in three townships. Damage was done in sections where cyclones had never before struck. You never can tell when or where a tornado will rip up a few hundred thousand dollars worth of property.

If you want to be safe from heavy loss get a windstorm insurance policy with this company at once. The cost is very low.

THE PLYMOUTH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
(By BEN D. STEWART)
Dear Lord, we build with brick and stone. With mind and muscle, blood and bone. Yet, Plymouth mourns, as Plymouth must, Since wind and flame destroyed our trust.
Dear Lord, our church and treasures rare. We dedicate to Thee, in prayer. While gladdened hearts triumphant raise New hymns of hope and psalms of praise.
Dear Lord, this gateway to Thy fold, Inspires the young, sustains the old, And crowned with joy, or fraught with tears, Her charm will mellow with the years.
Dear Lord, send mercy, truth and grace, To save the souls of every race. That zealous men in word and deed, May find their worth in Christian need.
Dear Lord, the House of God complete. We tribute lay at labor's feet. Oh, may no son her honor stain, Or daughter shame her sacred name.

Republicans To Meet In Fall

Michigan Republican leaders are outlining plans this week for a party conference to be held in Bay City September 17-18 that is expected to be one of the outstanding events of its kind ever held in the state. More than 5,000 Republicans representing all elements in the party ranks are expected to attend, according to Senator Miller Dunkel of Three Rivers, chairman of the executive committee in charge of arrangements.

United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg is slated to be the principal speaker. Congressman Dewey Short of Missouri, only Republican member of the house of representatives from that state, and well known for his oratorical ability, is also on the program.

The affair is being sponsored by the Republican Women's Federation of Michigan, of which Mrs. George W. Rogers of Detroit is president; The Michigan Federation of Young Republicans, with John Carton of Lansing as president; the Michigan Republican Service Men's league, with Dr. Robert M. Ashley of Wyandotte, president, and the Michigan League of Republican Clubs, of which John C. Ketcham is president and Senator Dunkel is secretary. This group of club officers comprises the executive committee.

"This affair promises to see a revival of the Republican spirit that carried the affairs of Michigan upon its shoulders for many generations," Dunkel declared. He pointed out that every Republican group in the state had endorsed the meeting, including the state central committee of which James F. Thomson is chairman.

The occasion will also mark the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Michigan League of Republican clubs. This league has carried on intensively during this time and has been an important factor in party activities. New league officials will be elected at the meeting in September.

During the conference there will be separate meetings of the various organizations sponsoring the event. Also, Chairman Thomson is considering the calling of a meeting of the state central committee to be held on the evening of September 17.

Headquarters for the conference have been set up at 200 Olds Tower, Lansing with Miss Virginia Corwin in charge.

Plymouth Scouts Comply With Requests

Every year the Detroit Tiger management gives the Detroit area council 2500 tickets to one of its home games. It is quite a job to distribute these fairly among about nine or ten thousand scouts. So they say that those troops who re-register 15 days before their charter expires are entitled to go to the game. The game this year was with Boston on July 20. Troops P-1 and P-3 were the only ones in this district whose registrations were in on or before March 15, although a few of the others were not far behind. Several carloads of boys from these troops enjoyed a very exciting ten-inning victory for the Tigers.
