Credit for Unearthing State's Biggest Political Scandal Goes to Hard Working Lansing Reporter

Newspaper "Hunch" Led to Revelation of $92,300 "Fee" Payment

(By ELTON R. EATON)

To alert, keen-minded Joe Creighton, state affairs reporter of The Lansing State Journal, goes the credit for having pulled back the curtain for the first glimpse Michigan taxpayers have ever had of the manipulations that go on back of the political scenery in the state government.

People have heard much in the last score of years about the "big money" some one was alleged to have made in some way as the result of a powerful political pull in Lansing.

His brief, first page story in The State Journal on April 12 telling of the payment of $92,000 to Frank McKay as a "fee" in connection with the Blue Water bridge development at Port Huron, sent scores of newspaper men in Michigan and Washington searching into the record books trying to find additional facts about the biggest political scandal of recent years.

It was a big story because it apparently involves higher ups in both Republican and Democratic parties. It was tremendously important because for the first time the veil of secrecy had been partially lifted from that which has frequently been hinted, but which has always remained a "state's" secret.

How did Creighton get the first story on something that will be one of the big political issues in Michigan for a long time to come? It is what newspaper men call a "hunch."

There had been introduced into the house of representatives a bill known as house bill 88. It had to do with the proposed purchase of the Ambassador bridge.

He had been told that the city of Detroit was opposed to the passage of the bill because it would deprive that city of something like $48,000 in taxes each year. There were other reasons for opposition to the bill.

Then, too, a report had been requested by the legislature from the Port Huron bridge commission.

The report was filed before the resolution, asking for the data, had been acted upon by the committee on rules and resolutions.

"That's a funny thing," said Creighton to his managing editor. "It's something that doesn't usually happen."

He went back over to the capitol and began quietly to make more inquiries. He found out that some members of the legislature understood that the state highway department was interested in the passage of H. B. 88.

As days passed on, it all became more puzzling. Bond issues were involved and so he asked some of his friends in the bond business what they knew about the bridge business.

Then came to Creighton a tip

Business Woman's Club Elects New Officers

The Business and Professional Woman's club met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Lillian Terry for a co-operative dinner. A regular business meeting followed the dinner at which time Mrs. Leila Terry and Mrs. Katherine Henderson were taken in as new members.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Miss Elizabeth Sutherland, president; Mrs. Lillian Terry, vice president; Mrs. Mary Tibbitts, corresponding and recording secretary; and Miss Hazel Lickfeldt, treasurer. These new officers appointed Mrs. Mildred Barnes, program chairman; Mrs. Katherine Henderson, finance chairman; Mrs. Ruth Huston Whipple, legislation chairman; Miss Hildur Carlson, education chairman; Miss Sarah Gayde, health chairman; Mrs. Leila Terry will head the publications committee and Miss Hanna Strasen, membership and publicity chairman.

A short program followed the election. Mrs. Mildred Barnes reviewed several of the articles from the April issue of the club's magazine "The Independent Woman" and stated that copies of the magazine for 1938-1939 will soon be placed in the Wayne county library so that local women may have the opportunity of reading the helpful articles found in this publication. An interesting discussion on the question "Should Married Women Work?" was participated in by the members. In making out the program for this year, the members of the club decided to follow as closely as possible the outline suggested by the National Federation of Business and Professional Woman's clubs.

Mrs. G. A. Van Eps, who resides at the Mayflower hotel, received word of her son's death, Easter Sunday.

Plymouth Teachers Attend State Meet

Plymouth high school teachers are attending meetings of the Michigan Schoolmasters' club in Ann Arbor today. Classes have been dismissed in order that teachers, Superintendent George Smith and Principal C. J. Dykhouse may have the opportunity to go to the conference.

These meetings, which started yesterday and will continue tomorrow, are part of the fifty-third annual conference of the club and will be attended by educators from all parts of the state.

Outstanding lecturers in every field will be supplied by the University of Michigan. Dr. Guy Stanton Ford, who is president of the University of Minnesota, will give two addresses to this group of high school administrators and teachers. He will speak at the annual honors convocation of University which will be open to the Schoolmasters' club and again at the club's banquet in the evening.

Beside their regular meetings today, teacher-club members will attend the Cercle Francais of the University to see the annual French play, and will hear the twenty-second annual state championship debate.

Contest Opens for Birdhouse Builders Today

Valuable Prizes Will Go to Eight Winners

Taylor and Blyton's first big annual birdhouse building contest for school boys opens today and entries will be received at that company's new store on Main street until Monday, May 15 when competition closes.

All boys in the Plymouth district are invited to enter the contest, which has no entry fees, to compete for the eight big prizes. Contestants will be divided into two age groups; boys up to and including 11 years old will compete for first prize, which is a pair of Bausch and Lomb binoculars and a carrying case which have been donated by Dr. John Ross. Second prize in this group will be a book on Michigan birds, donated by The Plymouth Mail while third and fourth prizes will be two fine telescopes, also presented by Dr. Ross.

In the 12- to 16-year-old group the first and second prizes will be awarded by Taylor and Blyton. For the builder of the best birdhouse or feeding station in the high school age class, the trophy will be a Univex Iris deluxe candid camera and carrying case and the runner-up will receive an all-leather three-ring binder zipper notebook. As in the younger class, third and fourth prizes will be telescopes, given by Dr. Ross.

As days passed on, it all became more puzzling. Bond issues were involved and so he asked some of his friends in the bond business what they knew about the bridge business.

In conjunction with the show provided in the evening by the Truscon entertainer many gallons of house and floor paints are to be given away absolutely free to people in attendance at the program. Everyone is invited and because of the crowds that have been in attendance in years past the store management recommends that guests arrive as promptly as possible.

In this hearing a detailed summary will be given to those attending. The city commission does not expect to raise the tax rate for the coming year. A small increase may be provided in the valuations because of the building activity of the last year.

Thousands Visit Parkway Sunday; Smith Plans to Open Stands Soon if Weather Remains Favorable

Early Spring Use of Parks Breaks All Previous Records

If the weather Sunday is as pleasant as it was last Sunday, Glenn Smith, operator of the candy and soft drink stands throughout the Wayne County park system, states that he will probably open his places to the public. But the opening all depends upon the weather. They will be opened for the season, however, the following Sunday. So if it is warm, the sun is shining and the breezes are blowing, you can arrange to get the little "extras" for the kiddies in the park Sunday.

Last Sunday saw hundreds of visitors in the parks. The wet ground prevented the use of some of the playgrounds, but it did not keep hundreds of hikers from tramping through the woods and over the hills.

Cass Bend park and Plymouth-Riverside park had the largest crowds. Several hundred of picnic parties made use of the stoves and tables that had been put up during the previous week. By the end of another week all of the tables will have been distributed throughout the parkway and when May 15 arrives, the 1939 park season will be in full swing. Kiddies will be delighted in knowing that there have been many additional play conveniences added since the close of the park last fall.

The bridle path from Cass Bend park to Northville over the hills has been placed in first class condition. Already there have been many riding parties using the parkway.

Park officials predict that the summer of 1939 will see entirely new records of park visitations broken. They make this prediction upon the steady increase shown last summer and upon the fact that the number of people to visit the parks so far this year has far exceeded the early spring totals of previous years.

Glee Club Members Will Take Part in Festival

Forty-five people will be selected from the glee clubs of Plymouth high school to take part in the fourth annual Spring Festival of the choral section to be held at Ypsilanti Central high school auditorium Thursday, May 4, at 8:15 p.m.

Those chosen will sing with selected groups from Wayne, Ypsilanti, Dearborn, River Rouge, and Escors glee clubs.

Besides the glee clubs and mixed chorus from each school, special groups will be chosen to sing.

The public is invited to attend this concert at Ypsilanti.

LARGE REWARD OFFERED FOR NORTHLAKE THIEF

Joseph Denton, superintendent of Farm Crest farm in Northville recently announced that a buggy had been stolen from the Green ranch cabin and that the front had been torn from a chicken house. He is offering a reward of $20 for information which will lead to the conviction of the person who has done the damages.

Month-old bread frozen when fresh was rated in recent experiments almost as high in quality as fresh bread. So bread soon may join other quick frozen products now offered on meat, fruit and vegetable counters.

Final Hearing on Zoning Held

Eighteen residents interested in the new zoning plan attended the second hearing of the proposed ordinance on Monday evening in the city hall.

T. Glenn Phillips, city planner, first explained the general set-up of the ordinance and the Board of Appeals. Later he expanded on the subject, pointing out the contemplated changes by means of the zoning map. Several questions were raised by members of the audience on the type of buildings to be allowed in certain zones and whether signs and billboards would be allowed in the residential districts. This question was brought up because the townpeople have been under the impression that it was not covered in the ordinance. Mr. Phillips reminded them that this was covered in the general ordinances of the city at the present time.

A committee of residents who live on Penniman presented a petition to the commission asking that the four corners at the intersection of Harvey and Penniman avenues be included in the class B residential district instead of the business area of the city.

Further discussion on this point and a decision on the ordinance will be the business of the next meeting of the Planning Commission. This meeting is to be held on Wednesday, May 8 at which time all suggestions and objections from both hearings will be discussed in detail.

Hobby Chairmen Are Chosen

dor, Orlin Lewis, John Daoust and William Elliott.

Music will be provided during both evenings of the show; students will entertain with solo and group musical numbers and local musicians have offered their services. To the five high school students who make the best posters to advertise the show, the committee will award theatre tickets.

The committee would like to know approximately how many people want to exhibit at the show and asks that everyone who plans to show his hobby, call Miss Stoddard at 497. Those who are in doubt about showing their hobby, are asked to call the chairman of a committee on that hobby before the end of the week. Reservations will not be necessary, but they will aid the committee in knowing for how many displays to prepare.

Eye Witness to State's Worst Train Wreck Recalls Its Horror

Former Salem Farmer Who Saw Collision Lives in Ann Arbor

Jim Boyle of Salem, who was mowing hay in the field two miles east of this place on a lazy July morning in 1907, looked up surprised as he heard a passenger train roaring from the west. "Must be a special," he murmured to himself.

Then he looked east down the Pere Marquette tracks. A freight train puffed leisurely down the single track, hidden from view by a sharp curve.

Jim whipped up his horses and raced to the curve, the mower careening crazily behind him. When he was about 20 rods away, the trains met with a terrific crash, heard miles away.

And thus Jim Boyle, now employed in an Ann Arbor hotel, became the eyewitness of one of the major train wrecks in the nation's history — possibly the most serious this state has ever known — a train wreck that filled the Schrader funeral home with dead bodies and kept Plymouth doctors busy for days and nights caring for the injured.

Jim tied his horses to the fence and scrambled down the thirty-foot cut. There was silence for a moment, broken only by echoes of the crash, then a whimpering, a minute later a pandemonium of curses, cries, screams, shrieks.

The heavier passenger locomotive had pushed its way through the freight train for a distance of several cars. The baggage car was in splinters. Two of the 10 coaches were telescoped. Two others were thrown to the sides of the tracks. Another was perched atop an overturned car, its own end 30 feet in the air.

Atop this upended car sat a small girl — maybe three or four years old — quiet, unconcerned. How she got there was a minor mystery of the wreck.

When Fred Rider and other townspeople from Salem and Plymouth arrived 10 minutes later, it was one of Rider's first tasks to get her down. She was unharmed.

But all about her was a bloody shambles.

Before that day was over 32 bodies had been taken from the wreckage. More died later. Well over 100 were injured.

Four cars remained on the tracks and their occupants escaped serious injuries.

The train of wooden cars had been carrying Pere Marquette railroad shop employees from Ionia to Detroit for their annual excursion. About 800 filled the coaches. More were to have been picked up in Plymouth. Most of the dead were men in the smoking cars which were telescoped. The train had left Ionia at 6 a.m. July 20. The accident happened shortly after 9 a.m.

Within a few minutes Jim Boyle's sister was on the telephone calling doctors from Detroit, Plymouth and Northville. A special hospital train was made up in Detroit with a score of doctors aboard. About 40 of the more seriously injured were taken to Detroit hospitals aboard it. Another special train came down from Ionia to take the remainder of the party and the less seriously hurt back to their homes.

"When I got there, it was a mad place," Rider recalls. "Hundreds of people were running down the tracks, through the fields, any place at all to get away."

"Half a dozen of us organized a rescue squad under command of a Civil War veteran and started to work. Others came up to help but many fainted. They couldn't stand it. We carried out the dead and lined them up on the grass above the cut. The injured were also laid on the grass.

"A freight car containing whiskey had been smashed. We took liquor from there to ease the suffering of the injured. Mrs. Rathbun, who lived nearby, came racing across the fields with her sheets trailing behind her. They were used as bandages.

"Soon hundreds of horses and buggies were about the scene. There wasn't a rig left in any town around. The doctors came and with them a couple of ambulances. But few could be taken away until the hospital train arrived. I helped carry out 32 persons myself."

"Queer things happen in a wreck like that. Some people who weren't hurt at all had every stitch of clothing stripped from them. Many others were unharmed but had lost their shoes and socks. I talked to one man like that. He had been playing pedro in the smoker with three other men. All of them were killed but he had just been left barefooted."

Ionia was a stricken town. Newspaper writers — the earthquake of San Francisco fresh in their memories — declared the death toll of Ionia was proportionately greater than that of the California city.

Almost every home suffered. Business was entirely suspended for two days as the city went about burying its dead. At some churches, several caskets crowded the front and the black-plumed hearses were lined up outside awaiting conclusion of the services.

The town lacked carriages enough for all the funerals and farmers drove in by the score to lend their buggies.

At the inquest, held in this city, it developed that the freight train had orders to remain at Plymouth. But the orders were so poorly written that they were illegible.

The tragedy added to the clamor for safer coaches, signaling devices, and all those things which have made the railroads today one of the safest forms of transportation ever developed and years ago brought to an end all accidents of this kind.

HIGH-POWERED RAT

WHITEHALL (MPA) — Shortly after midnight recently, flashes of blue flame were seen at the Mon-Tique Castings company and in a few moments the entire White Lake district was plunged into darkness. When electricians called to investigate, they found living across the 2300-volt terminal points of a switch at the casting plant, the charred body of a huge rat, which had short-circuited the power line.

Old Time Printer

McInnis, winner for northern California, expects to compete in the final of a nationwide old time printers contest scheduled Friday at Sacramento, California as part of the Sacramento-Golden Empire centennial. The contest was designed to find the oldest printer who can still set type by hand.

Cancer is Topic of Last Lecture

The topics to be discussed at the sixth meeting of the women's health classes are "The Challenge of Cancer" and "The Menopause or Change of Life." These meetings are sponsored by the Michigan department of health, and conducted by Dr. Georgia Mills. The class meets Tuesday, May 2 at 1:30 at the Plymouth high school auditorium.

Cancer, especially among women above the age of 35, has come to be one of the major causes of death in Michigan. Modern science, however, has developed methods for the prevention of most of these deaths if patients recognize the early signs of cancer and seek immediate and competent treatment from their physicians. Doctor Mills will explain the early signs of cancer and other diseases common to women past middle age at this next meeting of the class. The lecture will be illustrated by slides. Following the lecture there will be a general discussion when questions relative to any health problems may be asked.

Dahlias — How to Grow Them

"Dahlias are easy," Walter Klein Schmidt of the University of Michigan Botanical Gardens tells gardeners, "if the plants are given a good start."

First, in selecting a location for planting dahlias, avoid places where tree or shrub roots will rob the plant of nourishment or where reflected heat of a building will wilt it. Leave plenty of space, at least five or six feet, between plants.

Stakes are necessary to support the large flowering type of dahlias and should be set in the ground before the dahlias to avoid disturbing the roots after they have started to grow. The stakes should be at least six feet tall. In sandy soil they should be driven in about 18 inches and in clay soils about 12 inches.

Planting of dahlia roots or plants can be made after the danger of frosts is over. To insure a healthy plant, Mr. Klein Schmidt suggests a definite method of planting. Dig a hole about nine inches deep and two inches away from the stake, he says, and fill the bottom of the hole with three inches of soil with which a handful of horn shavings or hoof meal has been mixed for fertilizer. The remainder of the hole can be filled in gradually as the plant grows. If plants instead of roots are used, the procedure is the same. When the plant sprout reaches the top of the ground, a cut worm protection should be put around it. Anything from paper to tin may be used for this. Mr. Klein Schmidt suggests that a piece of brown wrapping paper two inches wide and six inches long, secured with a paper clip and inserted in the ground about three-fourths of an inch, is ample protection.

After the plants are eight or ten inches high they should be tied to the stake. Binders' twine, which will last all season, can be used for tying. Additional ties should be made every twelve inches. As the plant develops it can be fertilized and treated for insects in the same way as other garden plants.

To insure large flowers, Mr. Klein Schmidt says, pinch out the two side buds that grow with the center bud. This can be done as soon as the buds are noticeable or as soon as it is apparent that the center bud has not been injured by insects.

Blossom Week April 30 to May 7

Despite the raging of pros and cons to the publicity value of beautiful girls, officials of the Blossom Festival at Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, April 30th to May 7th, maintain that pretty maidens are still one of the better attractions. These officials point out that the Twin Cities do not find it necessary to go in for pirate girls as did the Golden Gate Exposition, but will still retain the rather old-fashioned queens, who have served so well in the past. Many from Plymouth each year visit the fruit belt country during blossom week.

Sponsors of the event point out that it is not necessary here to resort to stunts to have beautiful girls attract attention, declaring that there is not a more natural and picturesque setting or background if you desire, than the blossoms that are readying now to burst forth in full glory.

"Queens have been a feature of Blossom Week," said James H. Pound, secretary of the Benton Harbor Chamber of Commerce, "since the first festival 15 years ago, and we have found no decreasing interest upon the part of the public in this feature. Of course, we are fortunate here in having the most natural setting, blossoms, to serve as a background and have never been forced to resort to stunts by queens to attract attention. Admittedly we are fortunate that we have an abundance of blossoms and year after year are able to have an ever changing background.

"Then," continued Pound, "it has been pointed out to us that when Blossom Week arrives, April 30th to May 7th, this year, everyone is so completely fed up on the cold winter weather that the idea of queens gathering blossoms is a welcome thought. While some communities find that queens lack appeal, this is not true of Blossom queens, who offer quite a contrast from the beautiful girls that the public has been seeing in winter furs, in hunting clothes and warmer toggs. The public, we feel wants spring and we make every effort to provide the distinct change from one season to another."

Civil Service Exams. for Good Positions

Civil service examinations are now being offered for several government positions and Mrs. Beatrice Schultz announced six new ones this week. The first are in the United States Lighthouse Service for the eleventh district which comprises all of Michigan, some of Wisconsin and some of Minnesota. The offices for which competition will soon be open are: Second Officer in this service, Assistant Marine Engineer, Quartermaster and Oiler. In the Detroit Engineering District one place is open to a man as engineer-man on a boat.

An important position is to be competed for during the May examinations. It is for an assistant librarian to the Department of Justice in Washington. Extra experience and more study are requirements for this job.

The state department of conservation is conducting experiments in propagation of minnows to determine which species are most valuable as food for game fish.

LAWTON (M.P.A.) — While removing lath and plaster in a house he was wrecking, Lucien Lee found a bundle of paper currency, totaling about $17,000, plastered in the walls. The bills are dated 1862 and 1864, measure 3x1 1/2 inches and are mounted on cardboard. Some persons have suggested they are photographic reproductions, made either for counterfeiting or as a hobby. Lee hopes they may have historical if not monetary value.

Trout Fishermen Ready for Season's Opening

Dozens Plan to be in the North Saturday Morning

Scores of Plymouth's trout fishermen have for several days past been busy getting out their old trout rods, wading boots, and creels for a thorough inspection before leaving today or tomorrow for northern trout streams so as to be out on the banks of their favorite creeks and rivers when the season opens at daylight tomorrow (Saturday) morning.

Estimates of the number of anglers on streams opening day are only approximate but a minimum figure is 25,000. Before the season is over, more than 100,000 fishermen will try their luck in Michigan waters.

Fee for the 1939 resident fishing license is $1. This license entitles the taking of all species of game fish except grayling. It is required of all persons over 17 years of age taking fish in any manner in inland waters.

Non-resident license fee is $2 and a special non-resident 10-day license may be obtained for $1. A non-resident license for the angler's wife is issued for an additional 50 cents.

Size and catch limits on the "Big Three" of troutdom, the brook, the brown and the rainbow remain the same as last year. No fish under seven inches in length may be retained. A total of 15 trout is the daily and possession limit.

Reports from the northern streams indicate that excellent fishing conditions will greet the anglers. An unusually cold spring has resulted in the snow and ice melting very slowly. Few serious floods, in consequence, threatened stream life. Spring freshets, in most cases, have resulted in little damage to cover in and along the streams. Many of the rivers are reported well within their banks with waters sufficiently clear to promise unusually good early fishing.

While many anglers will tempt the trout with assorted and various-colored flies, most popular lure on opening day will be perhaps the oldest of fish baits, the "Garden Hackle" or common angle-worm. Few hatchets of flies are to be expected on the still icy waters although warmer weather may bring a few. Worms and minnows will bring most trout to the creel.

Local Band Plays in May Festival

Over 75 bands and orchestras will compete in their respective classes on Saturday at the annual Music Festival in Ann Arbor. The fete, which is held under the auspices of the University of Michigan and the Michigan Band and Orchestra association will be held in three halls and begins at 8 o'clock a.m.

The festival idea has been developed to replace the contests which were formerly held for all state high school bands. In the contests each musical organization competed with others and the most outstanding one was declared winner. Today students do not compete with each other, but against a set standard of perfection. This method of judging allows all musical organizations an equal chance. They may receive the same awards, which are based entirely on an adopted set of standards. The new plan enables each group to receive expert evaluations, with constructive criticism offered by the judges.

Plymouth's band will play at 5:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Masonic temple. Its selections for the free concert are to be: March "Youth of America," by Yoder; Overture "Tournament," by Hicks; and a selection "Schubert" by Hildreth.

Bartlett News

The dance held last Friday evening was well attended despite the rainy weather. The lower grade room sold home made candy, the upper grade room sold popcorn balls and P. T. A. sold hot dogs, coffee, cake and fried cakes.

Mr. Charles Brake spoke on "Driftwood" at the P. T. A. meeting, April 17. Only a small crowd was present to hear his splendid talk. A social hour followed with coffee and cookies being served by the committee.

Several children from our school went to Cherry Hill school April 18 to be vaccinated.

The boys played the Hough school baseball team at Hough school, April 27. Bartlett girls played Newburg girls this week. Gordon Vetal and Leona Bakhaus are the captains of the two ball teams. The girls have a new ball and bat.

D. A. R. Delegate Gives Report

week in Washington, D. C., gave a splendid report on the annual congress which took place there. More than 4,000 Daughters of the American Revolution were gathered there and a wonderful system of registration made the opening day one of remarkable smoothness and comfort. At the national conference, three sessions a day were held in Constitution hall. The abundance of flowers and the enthusiastic group singing gave an inspirational note to the opening meeting. The lowering of the flag was breath-taking. The grand march of the national officers was led by Mrs. Henry M. Robert, Jr., of Annapolis, Maryland, president-general, and when she reached the point at the center of the hall where a large and very beautiful flag was furled on a long pole across the hall, the flag was lowered or unfurled directly over her head and the entire gathering saluted and pledged allegiance. This was followed by a recitation of America's creed, led by William Tyler Page, its author.

Harry F. Woodring, secretary of war, gave the principal address at the opening meeting and scored "unreasonable criticism" of the President's defense program. He held that education would dissipate the fear that "mere preparation leads to war." At a National Defense Symposium, Representative Martin Dies was applauded for his declaration "If I had my way, I would say to Europe, 'What you do does not concern us'". Applauded again when he derided "attempts to revive the crazy notion that America can make the world safe for Democracy" and at the end of his address was given a rising ovation by the 1,000 or more women who attended the National Defense meeting which preceded the regular Congress. "Phrase makers are more dangerous than war makers, and whatever the phrase makers say, America proposes this time to stay on its own side of the ocean, intent on making Democracy work over here," he said. His requested comment on the Bridges case was that it was a "sad commentary that the West Coast seaman could successfully resist enforcement of the law just because he has great political power." He urged that we learn more about other countries, as a better understanding between countries makes for peace.

A long report on the Marian Anderson case, by the president-general, Mrs. Robert, was read by Mrs. Carl H. Bryan, at the regent's request. It explained that Constitution hall was the property of all D. A. R. groups throughout the world, built at great expense, and as a result of much effort and sacrifice; that the policies laid down for its use were the result of much careful thought and deliberation and considerable experience, both pleasant and unpleasant; that conditions and precedents in the capital played an important part in forming its policies; that they aimed to be entirely impartial, with malice toward none, and that on account of the size of the organization, the wide territory it covered, and the red tape involved in the process, these policies cannot be quickly or easily changed. The D. A. R. has been a consistent friend of many minority groups, but would be willing to change its present policies only when "the community at large has worked out its problem."

Wednesday, the 19th, was spent mainly in reviewing D. A. R. accomplishments of the last year and honoring two "real daughters" of Revolutionary soldiers. Mrs. Caroline P. Randall, born 1849 to a father who had served as a water boy at Copps Hill, and Mrs. Annie Knight, whose father was a drummer boy in the Fifth Penn Battalion in 1776, both women still living, and a third one, Mrs. Mary Pool Newsome, who passed on in February and left the residue of her estate to the D.A.R.

Rewriting of American history in order to adequately describe the interrelations of the cultures of North and South America was proposed to the Congress by Dr. Ben M. Cherrington, Chief of Division of Cultural Relations of the Department of State.

At a night session, reports were read from D.A.R. organizations in 48 states and in Alaska, China, Cuba, Britain, France, Hawaii, Phillipine Islands Germany, Italy, Puerto Rico, and the Canal Zone.

Thursday was children's day. The pupils of the approved mountain schools, sponsored by the D.A.R., took part in the program and the Junior American Citizens put on a historical pageant illustrating how and why each state became a part of the Union.

At the closing session, the society passed its first resolution within the memory of most delegates on the specific subject of peace. It commanded "All constructive efforts for peace in the world" and pledged the Daughters, while "defending with vigilance and devotion the freedom of our republic," to work for international goodwill and respect."

The social events included a tea at the Mayflower hotel on Sunday night, the 18th, with dainty and abundant refreshments served on an immense oval table; a reception given to the "Daughters" by Mrs. Vandenberg in her very beautiful but informal home; from 4:00 to 6:00 Monday afternoon, at which time the guests were charmed by the friendly hospitality of their hostess; also Constitution hall was turned into a reception hall on Tuesday as Mrs. Robert, her cabinet, and the state regents received members of the society at a brilliant fete, following a concert by the U. S. army band. At the same time, the young women who came from all over the country to act as pages, were entertained at a gala pages' ball.

A rising vote of thanks and clapping of hands were tendered Mrs. Strong for her splendid report.

Dainty and delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Robert Coolman and Mrs. Allan Buckley, tea being poured by Mrs. Nelson Schrader. All those who attended the meeting agreed that it was a wonderful afternoon.

The Golden Text (Genesis 18: 25) is: "Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?" Among the Biblical citations is this passage (Job 5: 17): "Behold, happy is the man whom God correcteth; therefore despise not thou the chastening of the Almighty." Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 323): "Through the wholesome chastisements of Love, we are helped onward in the march toward righteousness, peace and purity, which are the landmarks of Science."

Sunday services: Bible school, 9:45 a.m.; morning worship, 10:00 a.m.; young people's service, 6:15 p.m.; evangelistic service, 7:30 p.m. Week night services: Tuesday evening, cottage prayer meeting, 7:30; Thursday evening, mid-week prayer meeting, 7:30. A thought for the week: Surrender implies faith—faith that justifies with God and brings peace. Of course, "He that cometh to God" in confession must believe that He is and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him. And thus far precedes surrender. But when one has done all, he must believe that God accepts him for His child. God invites you to come to Him. He tells you what coming to Him involves. Now all this has been compiled with. Are you accepted? Faith answers in the affirmative, because God has promised and with joyous heart confession is made unto salvation. We invite one and all to worship with—to accept Christ by faith. Co-pastors, Clifford Funk, Arno Thompson.

ELUSIVE PORKER

MT. PLEASANT (MPA)—When State Trooper Horvath saw a pig dashing in front of cars and being chased by children and pedestrians in Clare, he stopped to give aid. The pig, however, had little respect for law, and attempts to catch him turned into a game of tag. Finally the pig gave up, not to the officer, but to a garage employee. As there are no facilities for keeping pigs at the State Police post, the problem of disposing of it was bothersome for a while, but was finally solved.

U. at 6:30 p.m. and the evening service at 7:30 p.m. In the evening Dr. Enss will speak on the now much discussed theme, "The Church and the Kingdom." On Wednesday night in connection with the regular prayer meeting there will be a brief business meeting for the completion of the annual election of church officers. G. O. P. Party Clean-up is Big State Issue

Legislature Down to Final Grind as Adjournment Nears

(By GENE ALLEMAN)
Lansing—The capitol circus is tossy-turvy.

Sidelines over the McKay bridge fee and state purchasing investigations, just to mention two stellar attractions, are stealing the spotlight from the legislative big tent.

The net result is confusion, and a number of legislative veterans have come to the conclusion that they should attend to four major problems—welfare, civil service, labor and the budget—and go home.

The death of Governor Fitzgerald, the advent of a new leader and the subsequent inquiries which have centered around the convention manipulators, Frank McKay and Edward Barnard, have all tended to impede action in the House and Senate.

The fourth month is drawing to a close, and comparatively little has been accomplished. This is not intended as sarcasm. Circumstances have been most unusual.

Party Purge

While headlines hint of new sensations in connection with McKay and the Republican party, a group of legislators at Lansing is grimly determined to purge the party in Michigan of the growing suspicion that conventions have been controlled in recent years by big city bosses.

The fiery, crusading Elton R. Eaton of Plymouth, in Wayne county, led a band of young Republicans in the House to effect passage of a bill aimed at the clipping of Barnard's wings at Detroit. In the senate the bill encountered an unfriendly committee. A substitute bill was hurriedly introduced by Senator C. Hale Brake of Stanton.

With the McKay inquiry adding fuel to the flames, the Eaton-Brake allies are demanding a thorough "clean-up" of the party, once and for all. Comprehensive lest the party be accused of conducting a "whitewashing" investigation, James Thomson, chairman of the Republican state central committee, sent an invitation to Attorney General Frank Murphy at Washington for action by G-men. Murphy is said to have smiled cryptically at the letter and remarked: "He is just two weeks late."

Department of justice agents have been sifting possible evidence of fraud in connection with the Blue Water bridge financing. While it is very doubtful whether anything worthy of grand jury consideration will be found, Murphy is reported to be hopeful that G-men will be able to substantiate the charge which the New Deal governor made frequently last fall that gambling interests were leading contributors to the Fitzgerald campaign chest. Thomson invites an inquiry, pointing out that the committee has a treasury deficit of $43,000.

Messrs. Eaton and Brake have grabbed hold of the lion by the tail. Or, in language of the street, the party purge has become a "hot potato." Somebody's hands are sure to be burned!

Dunkel-Brown Feud

When Governor Luren D. Dickinson announced shortly after taking the oath of office that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself, party leaders immediately began to speculate on (1) whom would Dickinson appoint to be lieutenant governor; (2) who would be the Republican nominee for governor in 1940?

The governor let it be known that he would not select his successor as lieutenant governor during the legislative session, and probably would make no choice at all.

As for the 1940 nomination, capital observers began to survey the "cabinet" to weigh possibilities.

Simultaneously, while the McKay sideshow was getting a full house, Auditor General Vernon J. Brown precipitated a counter attraction with a disclosure about cancellation of state purchasing orders involving many thousands of dollars, and substitute orders at higher prices.

Governor Dickinson has assured friends of civil service of fair play.

With separate bills passed by the house and senate, the final measure will be agreed upon in conference committee.

The Lansing sideshows, however, have taken much of the "heat" off labor and civil service. European headlines, too, are diverting the voter's attention from the legislative scene.

The decision of Governor Dickinson to sign a bill appropriating $2,500,000 for public school tuitions comes as a relief to educators.

Grover C. Dillman, director of the state budget, recommended that this amount be authorized as an advance payment on the school's allocation of state money for the coming fiscal year. Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction, reported that none of the financially distressed districts would have to close public schools. Rep. John P. Espie, chairman of the House ways and means committee, added encouragement to the picture by saying that the committee had agreed upon a $37,000,000 allocation for the schools and that it might not be necessary to deduct the $2,500,000 from that sum.

Dillman opined: "The state is very sound financially. Its net debt is only some $3 per capita, and only 12 states have a lower net debt and some states have a debt nearly 20 times as high as Michigan's. From a long-term point of view, the state government is sound financially, although it is seriously embarrassed as to immediate cash requirements."

Governor Dickinson indicated that the 1939-40 budget would be balanced despite the $2,500,000 payment this spring.

Labor Mediation

Two of the major problems—civil service and labor—have had identical treatment in the legislature:

1. A drastic labor relations bill, calling for the Fitzgerald 10-day strike notice, was passed by the house by Republican caucus agreement only to be thrown out by a senate labor committee.

2. A civil service bill, calling for reduced classifications so that less than one-half of all employees would be affected, was passed by the house, only to be sidetracked in the senate.

The senate labor committee, of which liberal Senator Harry Hittle of Lansing is chairman, has reported out a substitute bill. This measure would create a three-man labor mediation board to seek settlement of

Swiss Hold Unique Parliament

Hailed as a "living monument to an ideal form of democracy," the historic open-air parliament or Landsgemeinde will be held Sunday at Glarus, Switzerland. The parliament, at which all men of voting age meet to elect members of the canton's government, has been carried down from the Middle Ages. This picture was taken at last year's meeting.

with the Blue Water bridge difficulties between employer and employee in intrastate commerce. As nearly all of the major industries are subject to the federal Wagner act, the state mediation board would affect chiefly the small industries which are now outside the C. I. O. field.

Since the United States Supreme court outlawed sit-down strikes, some legislators feel there is no pressing need for Michigan legislation. Senator Hittle, however, feels that the party cannot ignore labor and that it should woo workers by legalizing picketing, restrictive court injunctions, and providing machinery for collective bargaining.

The city records show the following permits issued since March 20: Permission to Blunk and Thatcher to remodel store; permit for re-roofing to Charles Bell of 151 Adams; permit to build a new home at 977 Dewey granted to Clifford Smith; remodeling permits given Mrs. C. W. Root for her home at 708 Church and Frances Fee at 643 Blunk. Wayne Smith received a permit to build a home at 1085 Roosevelt; Otto Hover received permission to re-roof his home at 197 Union; George Haas for re-roofing his home at 243 North Main; Ovid Denner to remodel his garage at 949 Wing into a home; John Sackow to remodel home at 668 Kellogg; Mrs. Charles Brown to re-roof with asphalt a home at 114 Plymouth road. Permits were given to Roy Stanley to inclose at porch with glass and screen at 265 Blunk; to Luella Stanley for building a house and garage at 791 South Mill and to Mary Conner to re-roof at 1103 Penniman.

Exempt from civil service would be all professional people (even attorneys and nurses have had to take a civil service examination), persons in specialized occupations such as bank examiners, insurance actuaries, cashiers, sales tax auditors and so on; division heads, court employees, labor department employees, attorney general employees and all unskilled workers.

Governor Dickinson has assured friends of civil service of no change.

With separate bills passed by the house and senate, the final measure will be agreed upon in conference committee.

The Lansing sideshows, however, have taken much of the "heat" off labor and civil service. European headlines, too, are diverting the voter's attention from the legislative scene.

Records Show Sharp Rise in City Building

Nineteen Apply for Permits Here in Last Month

Plymouth is enjoying a building boom; a total of $36,932 worth of building permits have been issued here in the 35 days since the middle of March.

In this way Plymouth is a representative picture of what is happening in all the states because it has been estimated that during April and May a total of about $420,000 will be spent in the nation for building construction. The predicted increase is based on reports of March building permits from leading cities which show the value of buildings planned during that month for erection in coming months. The magazine "Building Reports" further that the predicted increase will occur primarily in the fields of home building, alteration and repair work.

Signaling, won by troop P-3; knot tying, won by troop N-1; nature study, won by NB-1; first aid, tie for first, P-3, N-1; compass, won by troop P-3; fire by friction, won by troop P-3.

Although Troop P-3 won 3 events and tied for the fourth, carrying off individual honors, Northville's racing in every event edged out the local troop by eight and one-half points.

The final standings were:

Northville, N-1, 58 points; Plymouth, P-3, 50½ points; Newburg, NB-1, 20½ point.

Last year P-3 won the rally, N-1 placing second; Next year it should be a real battle for first.

The rally was also featured by active participation by every troop in the district. Stark-A Troop, one week old, was represented, marking the first time for a newly organized troop to take an active part.

In all, about 150 Scouts and scouts were present. However, the spectators did not number 50.

Although P-3 won more firsts than any other troop, N-1, with the perseverance that has held them close to the top for the past three or four years, was slightly in access and they finally won.

In all, it was a 2-Troop rally for first place and a 4-Troop rally for the next four places.

The Court of Honor in June promises to be another close battle for supremacy of the district.

Northville Scouts Win Big Rally

Thursday, April 13 was the scene of the yearly Scout Rally of the Plymouth district. Held at the Wayne County Training School with the smallest audience in some years to witness the procedure, the rally showed its customary good scouting.

Probably the closest decision in the history of the rally was handed in favor of N-1. The decision was not reached until the final event was completed.

Starting at 7:45 the rally got under way. Following are the events as they were run and won:

Signaling, won by troop P-3; knot tying, won by troop N-1; nature study, won by NB-1; first aid, tie for first, P-3, N-1; compass, won by troop P-3; fire by friction, won by troop P-3.

GOOD LUCK!

Mayor L. E. Wilson and his associates on the commission have assumed control of the government of the city of Plymouth for the ensuing year. The city is, indeed, fortunate in having as members of the commission a number of its citizens who thoroughly know the problems of the community and who have given excellent civic service in past years. There is one new member of the commission, and he, too, through long residence in the city and because of his active interest in local affairs, knows what it is all about. We all know that there is nothing to worry about and that we will have a continuance of the same kind of a good, conservative and economical administration of city affairs during the next year that we have had in the past.

CLEAN UP — PAINT UP — FIX UP.

About this time every year most of us are anxious to get into our old clothes and start cleaning up the rubbish and other refuse that has collected through the winter. Already we are raking our lawns and spading up our gardens so that we can beautify our homes and surroundings.

Some few years ago some one had the idea—and that idea has grown until today we have what is known as "Clean-Up" week.

Clean-up week in Plymouth has been set for May 6 and a committee of local residents are doing everything in their power to prod us into action so that we may all do our share in making Plymouth one of the most attractive little cities in Michigan.

When you see your neighbor out working in his yard or cleaning out his basement or garage, follow suit. One house untidy may spoil a whole block. Don't let it be yours that is out of line. Let's have a town that people will talk about: let's keep our lawns trimmed up and let's keep those unsightly rubbish piles out of sight.

And speaking of keeping unsightly rubbish out of sight, the city could improve the looks of the streets by making some arrangement to collect rubbish from the rear of the houses rather than having it set out on the curbs for passers-by to look at. We realize that it takes more time for the collectors to go to the rear of the houses and carry the rubbish around but we believe the city could well afford the extra expense because of the beautification received in return.

WHAT THE PEOPLE DO NOT LIKE.

Recent news dispatches from Pennsylvania told of the intentions of the district attorney of Wilkes-Barre to ask for a grand jury investigation of an alleged $600,000 vote-buying fraud operated in that county through the department of highways. He said the alleged fraud involved probably 3,500 persons.

The existence of such a fraud was charged several days ago by the Dauphin county grand jury in recommending indictments in its investigation of the Earle administration.

Mr. Schwartz said that his own inquiry revealed that more than 1,200 men received pay from the highway department during the weeks preceding the November election, although they were employed in mines or other private establishments and did no work for the state.

About 600 school children, from seven to 14 years, were paid by the department, he added. He charged further that between 400 and 500 fictitious names were found on the department's payroll, that some 250 of the persons paid were working for the WPA at the same time and that blackmail was levied against owners of equipment to be rented to the department.

The prosecutor alleged that the money was paid illegally by the highway department to swell the Democratic vote in that county in November. Luzerne was the center of a vigorous campaign because it is the home both of Arthur H. James, the successful Republican nominee for Governor, and Dr. Leo C. Murdy, the unsuccessful Democratic nominee for Lieutenant Governor.

Mr. Schwartz's plea will be heard by one Republican and three Democratic judges, with Judge A. Alfred Valentine, Republican, presiding in the absence of President Judge Benjamin R. Jones.

If the court authorizes a grand jury investigation the District Attorney will begin his presentation of evidence at once, he said. Should the court refuse his request, an appeal to the state supreme court may be taken.

Mr. Schwartz said he had affidavits from 100 truck drivers stating that they were required to pay $100 or more each to officers of the state highway department before their equipment was hauled.

He asserted that between 50,000 and 100,000 "work cards," each worth $25.20 and each intended to represent payment for eight days of highway work, were printed. Some of these he charges, were distributed among politicians "at random" and used to influence the vote. That tells where your tax dollars go.

HOW'S YOUR SPIRIT?

If you want to have your personality vitalized, if you want a new grip on your job and your ideals, you'll do well to rush off to the nearest book store and order a copy of James Mangan's book, "You Can Do Anything." It's published by Dartnell of Chicago. It's one of the finest inspirational books that has been read in many a moon.

One of the chapter titles is "Spirit." How the business world needs spirit these days! Listen to what Mangan has to say about it:

"Spirit will take you places where no other quality or ability can. In nearly all cases spirit outrates ability. Thousands of able, intelligent men, with real merit and real value to deliver to the world, have had their usefulness nullified simply because THEY HAVE LACKED SPIRIT! And a handful of men WITH SPIRIT, whose talent, intelligence and ability might have been doubted, have ruled billions WITH SPIRIT.

"Spirit is as irresistible as a cyclone, as unstoppable as a cataract, as contagious and overwhelming as an epidemic. Nothing can stop it! NOTHING CAN STOP YOU IF YOU ONLY HAVE THE SPIRIT!"

"Be on the plus side. Be an individual! Invoke a challenge, carry a punch, let the world see you are alive. Don't be a cold, clammy fish, always talking about dull flimsy subjects, always clinging to the commonplace as if it were your life. Have an issue, YOUR ISSUE, and let the world know it."

THE OTHER SIDE.

The Plymouth Mail has consistently been a strong advocate for civil service within the state government. We have always felt that our position in this matter was right. But there are always two sides to any question and, therefore, we would like to present to our readers the views of Editor Al Weber of The Cheboygan Observer. This is what he says about civil service experiment in Michigan:

"We may be sticking our neck out when we criticize the politicians and for sobbing about what might happen to the Civil Service set up, but if there has occurred any valuable thing in civil service since it has been inaugurated in our state then we will gladly apologize. We don't seek any kind of a political job or have we sought to bother the present state officers with requests for the appointment of this and that deserving friend for a political job, because we realized there was a bigger job before the new administration at this time than taking care of bench warmers, or getting new faces into the trough. A pitiful evidence of civil service came to us just recently when the past caretaker of the Aloha state park told us with tear filled eyes that because he didn't qualify in his civil service examinations he had lost his job at the park. We don't know what kind of an exam that old gentleman was confronted with, but we do know it had nothing whatever to do with the service he was expected to do at the park. It surely didn't enquire of him how he should keep the leaves raked up, the park in order, the looking after the park visitors in a helpful, courteous manner. It didn't take into consideration the homely interest he had always evidenced. Nope. It perhaps asked him questions that had little to do with the kind of service a state park caretaker was expected to perform, and then there are sentimental silly Billies in our midst that call this civil service good stuff, clean and the salvation of somebody or something. It is strange how we, the masses, fall seduced for every new device. It is strange how we can be lead out of fertile pastures into barn fields by pretty words flowerly spoken."

GET FACTS ABOUT MCKAY

For more than five years we have crusaded in the columns of this newspaper for the excommunication from Michigan's Republican leadership of men like Frank D. McKay, State Treasurer from Grand Rapids, who is now under criticism for obtaining $92,300 remuneration for services he has rendered to a Toledo, Ohio bond house in the sale of bonds relating to projects like the Port Huron-Sarnia Blue Water bridge over the St. Clair River. We time and again pointed out how McKay, as former State Treasurer, had purchased several millions of dollars worth of bonds issued by defunct Michigan communities for various State sinking fund investments.

Year ago The Eccentric, believing that Mr. McKay's influence in State activities was too great for the good of the Republican Party, wrote a public letter to Murl H. DeFoe, editor of the Charlotte Republican-Tribune, asking him how he could support the late Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald if the latter were as friendly to McKay as was known among Michigan's newspapers. Mr. Fitzgerald made a reply, for the first time admitting his desire for the friendship and political support of the Grand Rapids political leader. All this correspondence was published in The Eccentric.

You will also recall that this newspaper, while at no time impugning the honesty of Mr. Fitzgerald, did question the value of McKay in Republican circles. You will recall, too, how the editor of this newspaper, in seconding the nomination of O. L. Smith for Attorney-General at the Grand Rapids Republican State convention last fall, pleaded for the defeat of McKay-Barnard-McKeighan control of that Convention; you will also recall that this trio of politicians did emerge victorious with their hand-picked slate placed in nomination for several High State offices, including that of present Attorney-General Thomas A. Read.

For the past week Michigan newspapers have been filled with articles bearing on McKay and his business activities in the State of Michigan. The Legislature, now in session, has discussed the matter of investigating McKay's part in the Blue Water bridge transaction, together with other possible business transactions in which the money of the people of Michigan has been used for the purchase of articles and services; Auditor-General Vernon J. Brown has come out with scathing criticism of the method used by the State's purchasing agents in supplying Michigan's needs, amounting to in excess of $15,000,000 annually.

There is no better time than right now for Michigan to investigate Frank D. McKay's business relations with Michigan. Indeed, Mr. McKay himself should, and may, welcome such an investigation.

Republicans in Michigan, with the passing of the late Governor Fitzgerald, now stand on the threshold of selecting new leadership; it goes without saying that McKay-Barnard-McKeighan, et al., will endeavor to maintain their own position in State political affairs, and that means they will try to control the next Republican administration—that is their inalienable right, of course.

However, this newspaper hopes and prays that opposition forces to McKay-Barnard-McKeighan will develop to defeat them, solely in the interests of better and more economical State government. There are a number of leaders in the Republican Party able to do that job outside of the M-B-M camp.

As we stated in the opening sentence of this editorial, we have crusaded for five years upon the subject of McKayism in Michigan's public affairs; now the forces of organized government are presuming to investigate him. We hope that the facts will give McKay a clear bill of health, for we wish him no evil, but let us, the taxpayers of Michigan, have the facts, and nothing but the facts!—George Averill in The Birmingham Eccentric.

EVEN IF IT HURTS

Who was it that said "the way to economize is to economize?" Whoever it was must have convinced the state legislature that they were right.

If there is one outstanding trend in state affairs at Lansing today it is the very evident determination of the legislature to curtail expenditures in an effort to fulfill the promise of a sound fiscal government. It has even reached the point where the two houses are vying with each other for honors in this respect.

It is fortunate for Michigan that we have a legislature whose members, for the most part, come from country towns and rural sections. Backed by almost a united rural press which was steadfast in its insistence that increasing bureaucracy be stopped and the budget balanced, these representatives have demonstrated their sincerity in striving to put their house in order.

It is unfortunate that in the midst of these complexing problems some metropolitan papers have been too impatient in their insistence on some pet legislation which is not consistent with this economy program.

It is impossible to carry out such a program and still satisfy all of the various organizations which seek funds from the public treasury, no matter how worthy. Someone is bound to be hurt and the real test of one's security in calling for a reduction in expenses of government is their attitude when such a reduction hits home.

In backing an economy program the rural press as a whole seeks to be consistent. We recall with what we feel is justifiable pride the fact that the Michigan Press Association brought to Michigan in 1937 the annual meeting of the National Editorial Association with an educational tour throughout the state. Columns of publicity for Michigan as an ideal summer playground resulted in newspapers from coast to coast. The state government appropriated $10,000 to finance this venture. In October of that year the Michigan Press Association astounded many state officials and politicians by turning back to the state over $2,600 from this appropriation.

The record of the present Michigan legislature to date, shows a genuine desire to fulfill the promises of last fall's campaign. We hope that pressure groups will not sway them from their drive toward a balanced budget.—Romain McCall in The Gratiot County Herald.

FRANK MCKAY

Frank McKay of Grand Rapids, former state treasurer, Kent county boss and long charged as being a manipulator at Republican state conventions, is being hunted. He is accused of reaping a fancy profit out of the sale of Blue Water bridge bonds. He is also charged with reaping profits on sales to the state over a long period of years, in both Republican and Democratic administrations.

Mr. McKay has always maintained that his business dealings with the state have been on the level and entirely separate from his intense interest in politics. He claims that the Blue Water bridge transaction was entirely on the up and up, that he was paid $92,000 in legitimate commissions for handling the sale of bonds. Perhaps he is right.

The McKay case has many angles. The Blue Water bridge project was handled by a special state commission, the state highway department of Michigan and the highway department of the Province of Ontario built the approaches. Bonds in the amount of $2,300,000 were underwritten by Stranahan, Harris & Co. of Toledo. The bond house paid $92,000 to McKay for commissions on bonds. Apparently no attempt was made to cover up the transaction. The bond firm reported the payment and McKay included it in his income tax report.

Yet this should be said: No man should have the power to exert the influence which Mr. McKay is accused of trying to exert. It is high time the Republican party had a showdown. If Mr. McKay is wielding the influence that some claim, he should be shorn of his power. If he actually has no power then that fact should be made known, too. The Republican party can not afford to keep continually on the defensive against charges of boss rule by Barnard-McKaye-McKeighan. The party must be purged of such influences.

It is possible that the purchasing department irregularities uncovered by V. J. Brown may lead to the doors of some of the bosses. According to Mr. Brown, some of the transactions are not only highly irregular but have the earmarks of favoritism and fraud.

Centralization of government has its evils and the centralization of buying power is one of them. Big corporations have stubbed their toes on the same obstacle. At first glance it appears that centralized buying is the most economical. Yet corporations and the state have not found it so. Managers of local plants, heads of state institutions and executives with long years of experience know better what their plant or institution needs than does some youngster seated at a desk in Lansing, Detroit, Washington or New York.

To get down to cases, the head of the Ypsilanti state hospital, the superintendent of the Howell sanatorium, the head ofonia prison know better what they need and who can best serve them than does a purchasing department in Lansing. Then when all the purchasing done by the several institutions and departments is checked by the auditor general, any purchase made at an unusual price becomes instantly apparent.

The Republican party can afford to solve some of the proposed legislation now before the house and senate and devote full time to clearing up the two main problems—McKay and state purchasing. If these two problems are solved satisfactorily the public will be well served.—Nelson Brown in The Ingham County News.
