

Lutheran Church Re-Elects Council at Annual Meeting

Message From Pastor Shows Steady Growth of Church Congregation

The congregation of St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran church, at its annual meeting held last Tuesday evening, returned two members of the church council to office, Oliver Goldsmith and Albert Rohde, while Roy Fisher was named to fill the vacancy on the church council occurring through the death of the late William Petz.

The present council includes Oliver Goldsmith, Walter Schultz, O. F. Beyer, Albert Rohde, William Bartel, Paul Groth, Oscar Lehman, Edward Hoesbach and Roy Fisher. The annual officers of the congregation will be elected in a special meeting of the church council next Monday evening, January 20.

The beautifully printed first edition of the constitution and by-laws of the congregation, representing more than ten years of careful work on the subject, in this church this year as compared with 10 in 1939; 20 confirmations representing five more than in 1939; 322 communicants of the church as compared with 278 in 1939, and 94 voters this year representing an active gain of 10 voters.

Despite the loss sustained by the congregation through the sudden death of its president, William Bernhard Petz, on August 22, 1940, the work of the church has gone on under the able leadership of Oliver Goldsmith. A planning committee, composed of 15 prominent members, was appointed in June to anticipate and meet, as much as possible, the future needs for expansion felt by the congregation. This year for larger seating capacity for the congregation has been apparent for some time, but the committee is still considering the alternatives of enlarging the present church building or relocating the congregation on a new site.

It was pointed out that a strong argument in favor of the relocation of the church is the fact that the congregation went on record when a call was extended to the pastor from Neenah, Wisconsin Lutheran church, to include the probable establishment of a Christian day school in its future plans. Nothing definite was decided on this issue in the annual meeting. A school committee of nine volunteers will continue its study of the Christian day school problem this year.

The treasurer and financial secretary of the congregation, as well as all of its other fiscal officers, reported a marked gain in the receipts of the congregation, despite the fact that the congregation principle uses no means of commercialization or solicitation in the raising of the necessary amounts to cover a budget of more than $4,600 annually. The receipts of the congregation during 1940 amounted to $4,645.06, of which $327.93 was raised for missions, and $47.58 for charities other than those supported by societies within the church membership.

An additional sum of $777.43 was raised by the congregation toward the retirement of the debt of the Lutheran Synod of which it is a member. The organ fund of the congregation grew from $1,300 to more than $1,800 while the new building fund, begun May 1, 1940, earned $512.46 during the year.

Increased Tax Collections Reflect Upward Swing of Business Conditions

Collections on the winter county and school taxes were the best this year since before the depression years, Charles Garlett, city treasurer, reported this week.

The total county and school tax collected for 1940 is $77,398.76, which represents 86 per cent of the total tax spread. In 1939, only 80 per cent of the assessed spread was collected, totaling $74,805.46. Of the 1940 tax collection, county funds amounted to $43,276.70, and the school tax collected totaled $34,122.06. The amount of the county tax collection in 1939 was only $30,197.83, while the school tax payments figured $44,607.63.

Of the total tax levy for city taxes this year, 93.7 per cent has been collected as compared with only 90 per cent last year at the same time.

Bank Officers Re-Elected at Annual Meetings

Reports Show Fine Financial Growth During Year

The present officers and directors of both local banks, The First National bank and The Plymouth United Savings bank, were re-elected at annual meetings held by both institutions last Tuesday afternoon, January 14.

Officers of the First National bank who were re-elected are as follows: John L. Olsaver, chairman of the board; Floyd A. Kehrl, president; Russell A. Roe, vice president; Jack Taylor, cashier, and Margaret Dunning, assistant cashier. The directors of the bank are John L. Olsaver, Russell A. Roe, Jack E. Taylor, Charles L. Finlan, George H. Robinson and Floyd A. Kehrl.

The directors of the Plymouth United Savings bank are Charles H. Bennett, Otto F. Beyer, Russell M. Daane, Floyd C. Eckles, Cass S. Hough, Edson O. Huston, Luther Peck, Charles H. Rathburn, Jr., Ernest S. Roe and Paul W. Voorhies. The officers of the bank are: Paul W. Voorhies, chairman of the board; Charles H. Bennett, president; Russell M. Daane, vice president and cashier; Edson O. Huston, vice president, and Lisle H. Alexander, assistant cashier.

The most profitable year, from an earning standpoint, in the history of the bank was reported by Floyd Kehrl, president of The First National bank. The deposits showed a gain of 31 and one-half per cent, Kehrl stated in his annual report to the board. The deposits for 1940 totaled $1,431,000, which was an increase of $343,000. The First National bank's loans totaled $770,000 this year as compared with only $498,000 in 1939.

"Bank deposits of the Plymouth United bank show an increase of $230,819 over last year. This represents an increase in customers' accounts rather than in municipal bonds," declared Russell M. Daane, vice president of the Plymouth United Savings bank, who delivered the annual report at the stockholders' meeting.

"An analysis of the bank's assets indicates a sound and conservative condition. The increase in municipal bonds from $37,000 to $205,000 this year reflects a policy followed by a majority of conservatively-managed institutions. The bank's mortgage accounts total $284,000 with no foreclosures in process or anticipated. The amount of real estate loans made by the bank shows an increase over 1939 of about $50,000," Mr. Daane concluded in his report.

New Buildings Near Completion

Commercial building in Plymouth is progressing at a swift pace with the new Gulf station on Ann Arbor Trail, nearing completion, and the other buildings are well under construction.

The foundation and the laying of the sub-flooring has been completed on the new Professional Center office building on Ann Arbor Trail, and the steel framework has been erected. The building is now ready for the erection of overhead joists for the ceiling.

The side and back walls of the new C. F. Smith store on Penniman avenue have been completed, and the steel roofing will probably be started the first of next week. Mason work to support the large display windows at the front of the store has been started. The completion of the store will require about another month.

The sub-flooring in the addition to the D. & C. store, being built by Ralph J. Lorenz, has been laid, and the steel framework is now erecting the ceiling joists. The building has been bricked around the steel supports on the street side facing Ann Arbor Trail, and the rear door frame is in place.

The concrete approach to the new Gulf station has been finished, and the interior of the service station is nearly complete. Workmen are now installing the storm sewer tap and the electrical apparatus including the grease hoist and lighting equipment. The new station, built for the Silkworth Oil company of Ypsilanti, will be opened to the public shortly.

Parks Provide Winter Sports

Winter sports activities were limited to sledding and tobogganing last week-end, officials of the Wayne county park system reported. Many children flocked to Middle Rouge park Sunday to sled, and the toboggan slide in Cass Benton park is popular with groups of all ages. Special signs have been erected throughout the park directing sports enthusiasts to the toboggan slide and the ski lift. Signs on Newburg lake warn persons that skating is not safe.

There were 74 good skating days last year, the caretaker of the park near Newburg lake recalls. Because of the mild weather, so far this winter, the skating season will be considerably shorter this year. There is only about three and half inches of ice on Newburg lake now, but it is hoped that if cold weather continues for about three days, there may be enough ice on the lake to permit skating possibly this week-end.

The Wayne county park crew has been busy all week keeping the toboggan slide in condition. The runways are packed with snow daily, and freezing temperature provides a fast track for the toboggans.

Traffic Violations Increase in 1940

The number of traffic violation tickets issued by the Plymouth police department during 1940 is larger than the previous year, and the percentage of police cases cleared by the local department is higher, it was revealed in the annual report compiled by Vaughan Smith, chief of police, this week.

A total of 355 tickets was issued, for violations of traffic laws during 1940, as compared with 295 during the previous calendar year. The report indicates a more efficient allocation of work in the police department which permitted officers to spend more time actively patrolling city streets. The addition of a clerk to the department recently to issue drivers' licenses and file police reports will increase the working efficiency of the department, the chief reports.

Of nine breaking and entering cases, six have been cleared by the department, and police are investigating the remainder. There were 13 cases of petty larceny during the year. Eight have been cleared and the remainder are pending. Two robbery cases were reported and cleared, and three stolen automobiles have been recovered.

The other cases on the police docket for the year included: drunk and intoxicated, 17; disorderly conduct, 3; drunk driving, 3; reckless driving, 48; assault, 3; miscellaneous, 4.

Officers of the local department are Lee Sackett, Charles Thumme, Carl Greenlee, Ira Hawk and Chief Smith.

Mrs. Maude McNichols was a Detroit visitor, one day last week.

Ruthven Sounds Need for Total Defense Efforts

Stresses Importance of Education at U. of M. Club Banquet

The importance of continuing education in the midst of a troubled world was the keynote of an address given by Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan, at the all-college banquet, sponsored by the U. of M. club of Plymouth, at the high school auditorium last Tuesday evening.

Speaking as a "troubled man with deep convictions," Dr. Ruthven declared that war is no longer military strategy and diplomacy, but total war which destroys both the bodies and spirits of men. The speaker was pessimistic regarding the prospects of this country, venturing the opinion that we will be in the war eventually.

"The only antidote for total war is total defense, a continuing defense. Just as important as munitions is the education of experts for the future to preserve our moral and intellectual values. Democracy rests on the ability of its citizens to govern themselves intelligently, and that ability is best acquired by furthering education," Dr. Ruthven stated.

"We must organize our efforts, to insure right thinking in this time of crisis. Educational institutions are a part of our fortifications and not luxuries of peacetime. Universities are our guardians of the future," he continued.

Pointing out the danger of sinister influences seeking internal disruption by limiting educational facilities, the speaker defended free educational opportunity as an important foundation stone for the way of life of a free people.

"We must not only protect the fruits of democracy but nurture the roots of the plant that are growing up," Dr. Ruthven summarized. Declaring that a modern university is a school but not in the narrow sense of the term, he pointed out the manifold functions of educational institutions to endeavor to make good citizens, to accumulate knowledge through research activities, as well as to disseminate knowledge through teaching. Stating that education must be international and not provincial, he defended large state universities as an aid to understanding all peoples of the world by the cosmopolitan contacts it furnishes. He cited, particularly, the large enrollment of Chinese students at the University of Michigan. Dr. Ruthven is noted for his work in encouraging the attendance of foreign students at the University of Michigan, where there is now the largest enrollment of Chinese students of any college in the United States.

An interesting feature of the all-college banquet was the roll call of guests directed by Dr. T. G. Hegge of the Wayne County Training school staff. Some 15 foreign universities were represented by guests attending the banquet, including the Universities of Barcelona, Heidelberg, Leipzig, Leeds, Oslo, Copenhagen, Vienna, Berlin, London and Toronto. The number and distance of out-of-state guests attended by many of Plymouth's citizens was outstanding. Some of the leading colleges and universities of the country represented were Columbia University, Kansas, Iowa, California, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Chicago, Mt. Holyoke, Maine, Boston, Ohio State, Wellesley, Illinois, Cornell, Rockford, John Hopkins and Kentucky.

The Reverend Dr. E. B. de la Riveria, invocation opening the program and Elton R. Eaton served as toastmaster of the evening. Miss Georgia Zemer of Plymouth high school led the group in the singing of well-known college songs, with Miss Winniford Ford accompanying on the piano.

T. Hawley Tapping, alumni representative of the University of Michigan, spoke briefly, following which Miss Doris Hamill, accompanied by Mrs. Maurice Woodworth, played a violin solo, "Hra Staccato" by Heifetz. The gathering closed with the singing of "God Bless America." The ladies of the Presbyterian church served the banquet for which a special program was designed.

INSTALLMENT ONE CHAPTER I

The erect middle-aged man in blue business suit who came briskly out of the White House paused reluctantly before the inquisitive press of correspondents.

"Anything new on our rearment program, General?" one reporter wanted to know.

Another asked, "Did the President have anything to say about Mexico?"

General Hague, Chief of Staff of the Army, had managed to dissipate with a calm smile that gravity in which he had emerged from conference with the President.

"There is nothing to give out, gentlemen," he said with quiet firmness, and strode to his military sedan that was waiting in the driveway.

The general's car sped off to the long, concrete Munitions Building on Constitution Avenue that houses the War Department. General Hague hurried to his offices on the second floor and instructed his aide-de-camp to summon Colonel Flagwill.

In a few minutes Flagwill, acting assistant chief of staff G-2, in charge of military intelligence, reported in from another wing.

"Sit down, Flagwill," the general invited. "The President has just decided to go to the bottom of this Mexican situation."

Flagwill's lean, aquiline face remained impassive except for a quick gleam of fire in his piercing black eyes.

"That's good news, sir!" he exclaimed; and added in a quiet voice: "In that connection, my section has just completed our final estimate of the situation based on all present available information. Would you care to hear my report now?"

"Go ahead," Hague invited.

"I'll be as brief as possible, sir. Our best estimate is 200,000 European regulars mobilized in Mexico. That covers organized infantry divisions, artillery, cavalry, tanks, air corps, and technical groups transported from Mediterranean ports during the past six months, together with some reservist infantry assembled from South American points.

To all outward appearances they fully support the arguments of the new Mexican dictatorship that, as a part of the Mexican military forces, these troops are not the concern of the United States."

General Hague's straight mouth parted in a cynical smile.

"There is the big rub, Flagwill. The Mexican version has so rationalized their European army that the American public falls for the fiction completely. It almost has our State Department fooled, even when our ambassador knows the real commander in Mexico is Van Hasek, one of the smartest tacticians of the old Imperial Army."

"The subterfuge is obvious, sir," Flagwill averred. "My whole section agrees that the United States faces attack from Van Hasek's army."

General Hague somberly nodded his head.

"I agree perfectly with your deductions, Flagwill, and informed the President pretty much to the same effect today. He is very gravely concerned and wants the facts as quickly as possible. But what can the President do unless Congress is convinced and facts are available for the public?"

"In the meantime, General, are we to reinforce our border garrisons for defense in event attack comes sooner than expected?"

The Chief of Staff groaned and said: "The President doesn't dare order troop concentrations now, Flagwill. Congress would probably refuse him an appropriation for transportation. He'd be accused of saber-rattling."

Flagwill mopped his brow and said slowly: "I see it all, sir. Just what our move, please?"

"To collect facts. Our ambassador to France has something very secret hatched up with the French secret service. A chance to slip one of our officers into the Mexican service at Mexico City. Our first move is to select our man and send him to Paris to get his detailed instructions. It's very important that we pick the right man for this, a man with plenty of brains and backbone. I rather had young Benning in mind."

"An excellent choice," Flagwill promptly agreed. "But right now I've got Captain Benning down in San Antonio. Investigating another spy mess at Eighth Corps Area Headquarters."

"Better bring him back to Washington at once," General Hague decided. "Instruct corps area to ship him by fast plane. Benning must sail from New York for France without delay. That's all, Flagwill."

Captain Allan Benning, in civilian clothes, sat waiting in a battered old coupe just outside Fort Sam Houston. For two weeks past he had been following one of those slender threads of investigation that were intended to connect local espionage activities with the Van Hasek army in Mexico.

Important secrets had been stolen from southern military headquarters at the fort. Not least of these was the secret tables of organization of the proposed new American fighting division. Gone, too, was the file copy of army mobilization plans.

Benning's suspicion had centered promptly on a staff sergeant, Gaujos. Not by reason of any action on the part of the sergeant, but because of an eloquent intangible, the palpable inconsistency of Gaujos' background, personality, and intelligence with his present occupation.

Gaujos was a man of forty, a Frenchman by birth, had served as a combat pilot with the French air corps during the World War. Three years ago he had taken out papers as an American citizen and enlisted in the army.

At headquarters Gaujos' superiors swore by him. He was highly competent as an administrative clerk having supervision over half a dozen typists. To the casual observer Gaujos might have appeared a saturnine, stolidly satisfied man who had given up the struggle for higher success and settled happily into his present little groove. His face was long, lean, and angular and with small, black eyes in which there was no friendliness.

With Benning, it had been a matter of baiting a trap. He had fabricated a secret report that American reserves were being sent to the border and had it placed, the night before, where Gaujos would find it in the course of his duty today. Now Benning was waiting for Gaujos to leave the fort when the headquarters crew knocked off work for the day.

The suspected man took a bus into San Antonio and had dinner at a hotel. He engaged a taxicab and headed south out of the city. It was dusk when Gaujos left his taxicab and proceeded down the road on foot from a point south of the old county poor farm. Benning parked his own coupe by the roadside and held the trail from a discreet distance. The suspected masquerader turned suddenly off the road into a field. Benning recognized it as a field that did service on occasion as an emergency landing-place for student fliers from Randolph Field. A fringe of willows lay along the road, and through these Gaujos plunged with the decisiveness of a man who knows where he is going.

But Benning learned a few moments later that Gaujos was not off his guard. As the captain eased into the willows, a stab of flame blinded his eyes, the bark of a pistol clapped his ears. He dove to the ground, his right hand whipping his own service pistol into play and sent a bullet driving at the spot whence had come the attack. Then he lay tensely waiting.

The grim silence that followed was broken shortly by the kicking-over of a propeller out in the field, followed by the easy purr of a high-powered engine tuning for a take-off.

As Benning leaped to his feet, his eyes made out, in the vague light, a figure zigzagging at high speed into the field. Aiming carefully he sent one bullet after another driving after the fugitive until a metallic click told him his weapon was empty.

The runner made the plane, vaulted inside. Benning, now helpless to act, saw the shadowy plane waddle down the stubble and roar into the sky. In a twinkling it was swallowed up in the void of a Texas twilight.

Benning swore under his breath at this ill luck, returned to his coupe, and drove to his hotel in San Antonio. There was a burn at his neck which told him of a close call with death. He examined it critically, decided it was not serious enough to require an anti-tetanus treatment, and called the corps area G-2 officer, Lieutenant Colonel Bart, on the telephone.

"Hard luck, sir," he reported. "But at least the experience confirms a hot trail. No doubt Gaujos was a more important agent than we thought and it's likely he has a team in San Antonio."

Bart replied crisply: "Meet me immediately at Kelly Field, Benning. Drive as fast as your liver will take you."

When, fifteen minutes later, Benning sped up to the gate at the flying field, Lieutenant Colonel Bart was waiting in a military sedan into which he ushered the captain at once.

"I've a fast plane waiting for you, Benning," Bart announced. "You're to return immediately to Washington—orders of the Chief of G-2."

Benning felt the rise of his pulse as they drove down along the rows of hangars to where a sleek new observation plane waited with spinning motors. A captain in flying togs was standing under the fuselage of the observation plane. Bart said to him: "Wallin, this is your passenger for Washington. You're to deliver him there in the shortest possible time. That's all, Captain!"

In the sky there was the first rose glow of approaching sunrise when Benning made out, through the glass bottom of the plane, the wide silver ribbon of the Potomac. In the distance, Washington's Monument stood sentinel over the sleeping capital, the large round domes of Congress loomed up out of the granite and marble huddle of government buildings. As the plane swung down for a landing at Bolling Field, he glimpsed the gray bulk that houses the State Department and, near-by, the trim outlines of the White House.

CHAPTER II

The plane swung back across the Anacostia and glided to a landing. Benning thanked the pilot for a safe journey north and sped by military sedan across the river into Washington. At the War Department he went to the second floor and reported to the G-2 section.

Colonel Flagwill had come down early for Benning's arrival. His placid, unemotional face broke into a slight smile and his eyes sparkled at sight of the young officer. He led the captain into a private office and closed the door.

Without formality Flagwill said: "Someone must go into Mexico and get the facts, Benning. I needn't remind you of the danger of such an enterprise. While I have thought of you for the detail, you need not accept unless you want to."

"Thanks for thinking of me, Colonel," Benning said with an easy smile. "When do you wish me to leave?"

There was an approving gleam in the Flagwill eyes as he took from his pocket a bulky sealed letter and handed it to Benning.

"You're sailing for Europe at eleven on the America. Available information is in this letter. When you've read it, destroy it by burning. You'd better take a commercial plane to New York. Your boat reservations have been attended to. On landing at Southampton, cross the Channel to Le Havre and proceed to Paris by express. Our ambassador, Mr. Shields, will be expecting you in Paris. Any question, Benning?"

"I think not, sir," Benning said. "Good luck," Flagwill said, rising. "Do a thorough job of it and get the Mexican picture back here as soon as possible, consistent with thoroughness. I'll have an officer at the airport with your tickets and expense money. That's all, Captain."

The embassy staff had calculated to the minute when Benning was due to arrive from the Gare du Nord. No sooner had he dropped the bronze knocker than the embassy front door opened. A bespectacled male secretary looked him over in sharp appraisal and said, "You are the gentleman we're expecting?"

"Captain Benning, just in from the United States," the captain answered.

"Please come in," the secretary said. "Mr. Shields has reserved this hour and is waiting for you."

The ambassador was at the door of his reception room to receive his visitor. Mr. Shields was a portly, smartly groomed man in late middle life. His round, florid face was an ingratiating smile as he invited Benning to a seat and tendered a cigarette.

"I'm glad you're here on the dot, Benning," he said. "There's quite a bit to be done in Paris, and you must be in Bordeaux tomorrow to catch your boat for Vera Cruz."

Benning said, "I'm at your disposal, sir."

The ambassador regarded his visitor with a certain whimsical wistfulness. He lighted a cigarette.

"You know, Benning," he said, "I decidedly envy you this opportunity for distinguished service. I think I know what's under the surface of things in Europe, but I can't prove anything in the concrete way that's necessary. So you must go to Mexico to do the job."

"I'd suppose, sir," Benning commented, "that our government was informed at least of the larger diplomatic facts."

"Facts?" Shields echoed the word derisively. "But there's only one accepted fact in international relations today: that the maps are listed for an overhaul. Outwardly everyone is praying for peace to come out of the current muddle. Under the surface the big question is, When will the lid blow off? We're looking to you for the answer, Benning."

Benning's eyes narrowed. "I'm not sure I understand, sir."

Mr. Shields laughed mirthlessly. "I'll speak frankly. Why, after those devastating, murderous months of savage mass murder last year did the Coalition Powers patch up an armistice with the Allies while their armies squatted inconclusively on a mere segment of conquered Europe? Ostensibly to work out a peace formula to save civilization. But now everyone suspects the armistice is a Coalition subterfuge to shift some alignments, gather new forces, and—vastly more important—circumvent the United States from a disastrous armed intervention. I didn't mean to get all steamed up on that subject, Benning. But in this grim world of reality in which I have to work, our smug provincialism at home does get on my nerves at times, not to mention how it cramps our style. Getting down to your work, do you by any chance remember the case of a Lieutenant Bromlitz of our army who escaped some two years ago from the United States?"

"Very distinctly, sir," Benning answered at once. "Happened in my own regiment at Fort Jay. Bromlitz was accused of stealing canteen funds. When the adjutant arrested him, Bromlitz knocked the adjutant down and, in his efforts to escape, shot and killed the corporal of the guard. By some black magic Bromlitz then vanished into thin air."

"At the present moment," Mr. Shields said, "Bromlitz is at the fortress of Vincennes, held incommunicado by the French. They nipped him a few days ago when he arrived from Luxembourg as an army intelligence operative for the past year. It seems he had made connection with Van Hasek agents and was selected for the Mexican service."

Benning made a swift deduction and said dryly, "I assume, sir, that I am to go to Mexico masqueraded as an escaped murderer."

"A very lucky break, Benning. We have the whole inside of it. Bromlitz is known to be an American with a record that strips him of any possible American loyalties. As a former American officer, Van Hasek no doubt thinks that fellow a valuable acquisition. Gave him the rank of major, which you now inherit."

"Isn't it a bit extraordinary, sir, that the French learned all this?" Benning wanted to know.

"Not when you consider the facts. Bromlitz, it appears, has a flair for romance. He fell very much in love with a girl in Luxembourg, told her his plans, promised to send for her as soon as he could afford it."

"And she spilled the beans."

The ambassador smiled and said: "Why not? The French keep their ears to the ground and they've been paging Bromlitz since he first showed up in Luxembourg. They put their cleverest agent on him, a Mademoiselle Lucette Ducons. The French are turning Bromlitz's passports and secret orders over to us. You'll need only to transfer your own photograph to the Bromlitz passports. The French have a special process for doing this. At your convenience en route to Mexico you should practice his signature. I thought, too, you might want to look the fellow over to refresh your memory on his mannerisms."

Captain Benning thought briefly and got to his feet.

"Very good, sir," he said. "If that's the game, I'm ready to go to Vincennes."

The ambassador handed Benning a packet of papers, comprising the Bromlitz carte d'identité and several orders in German and Italian. A secretary came into the room to make a photograph of Benning for transfer to the Bromlitz passports. Benning then left the embassy and took a taxicab to Vincennes.

Benning passed out of Paris through the Porte de Bercy and sped to the grim old walls of the ancient citadel. A sentry challenged at the gate, examined Benning's credentials, and sent him to the commandant who dispatched a sous-officier to guide the American to the Bromlitz cell.

DOES FORD PAY GOOD WAGES?

HERE ARE SOME FACTS about Ford Labor.

During the year ended November 30th, 1940, the Ford Payroll throughout the United States averaged 113,628 hourly wage earners, not including office employees, students, or executives. They were paid $185,105,639.12. On this basis, the average annual wage was $1,629.05.

According to the latest available government figures, the annual average wage of all workers in employment covered by old age insurance law was $841.00.

If the 45,000,000 workers of this country received the same average wage as Ford employees, they would have had additional wages of more than $35,000,000,000, thus increasing the national income about 50%. Think what such an increase would mean to the workers of this country and to the American farmer, whose prices are based on the national income.

Wage scales in the Ford Rouge plants are divided into three classifications:

Unskilled . . . Minimum hiring wage . 75c per hour

Semi-skilled . . . Minimum hiring wage . 80c per hour

Skilled . . . Minimum hiring wage . 90c per hour

Higher wages are in consideration of ability and years of service.

Minimum wage scales for unskilled labor at the Rouge plant are the highest in the industry. Top wages for skilled labor compare favorably with, or are higher than, wages in other automobile plants.

Now some facts on Ford labor conditions:

Not only are sanitation and other health conditions the best in the industry, but Ford also leads in safety devices for the protection of employees. Proof of this is found in the following comparison of compensation insurance costs:

The national average rate in automotive manufacturing plants as computed by the National Association of Underwriters is in excess of $1.50 premium on each $100 payroll. The Ford cost of workmen's compensation is less than 50c.

This indicates that the chance of injury in a Ford plant is much less than in the average automobile plant.

The Ford Motor Company has no age limit for labor, and in fact deliberately attempts to keep older workers working. The average age of Ford workers at the Rouge and nearby plants is 38.7.

A recent check-up shows that nearly one-half the workers at these Ford plants were 40 or over, falling into these age groups:

25,819 between 40 and 50
14,731 between 50 and 60
3,377 between 60 and 70
417 between 70 and 80
12 between 80 and 90

In addition to the so-called regular employees, the Ford Motor Company has hired, and now has on the payroll, at the same regular hourly wage, thousands of workers who are blind, crippled or otherwise incapacitated for normal productive work. They are not selected for their ability to build cars or to maintain the plant. They are on the payroll because of Henry Ford's belief that the responsibility of a large company to labor goes beyond the point at which the unfortunate worker can no longer produce profitably.

The above are facts. They are open to anyone who really wants to deal in facts. Anyone who wants to get a job . . . buy a car . . . or place a national defense contract on the basis of fair labor treatment must place Ford at the top of his eligible list.

"Life" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, January 19. The golden text (Revelations 21: 6, 7) is: "I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely. He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." Among the Bible citations in this passage Psalms 36: 7, 9. "How excellent is thy loving-kindness, O God! Therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings. For with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light." Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 331): "The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-all. From this it follows that nothing possesses reality nor existence except the divine Mind and His ideas."

Congratulations

FRANK ALLISON

MAYOR WHIPPLE

Mayor Ruth Huston Whipple congratulates and wishes all success to Frank Allison, son of Ernest J. Allison of the Allison Motor Sales, who left for Detroit Monday to attend the tenth session of the post graduate school of modern merchandising and management, conducted by the Chevrolet Motor division of General Motors corporation.

Just as Annapolis, West Point, and Rhodes scholarship appointees are selected geographically from each of the states, Mr. Allison was one of 30 young men carefully chosen from the 45 sales zones of the Chevrolet motor division.

Two of the 30 selected were from Canada. The school, lasting nine weeks, will teach the young men every phase of automobile merchandising including business management, finance, business, English and letters, public speaking and management, conducted by the Chevrolet Motor division of General Motors corporation. Rigid tests and examinations are held weekly, and the post graduate courses are the result of years of painstaking effort in developing subjects that will train and equip every student to return home a practical business man and successful retail merchant.

Business Women Meet Monday

On Monday, January 13, Miss Vaun Campbell was hostess to the Business and Professional Women's club of Plymouth at her home at 275 Adams street.

Miss Evangeline Pursell, sister of R. R. Pursell of Plymouth and a teacher in the Northwestern high school in Detroit, was the guest speaker. Miss Pursell won a scholarship to the Hawaiian university at Hawaii last summer, which made her trip possible. She spoke on the habits, people, food and customs of the islands. One interesting feature of the talk was in learning that many of the customs of the United States have been adopted by the islands. Many of the outstanding hotels have adopted the American plan there, she related.

In connection with her speech, Miss Pursell exhibited many articles of interest which she brought back with her. There were colorful leis, umbrellas, purses, pikake beads, ash trays, place mats and many other articles. One object of interest was a coat called "the coat with a thousand flowers," which was hand embroidered by the natives. After the speech, a buffet luncheon was served, and an interesting social evening followed. In addition to the regular club members, there were several guests present.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Smith (Marie Johnson) of Main street are the proud parents of a baby boy, born last Monday morning at 3:30 o'clock. The baby, weighing seven and one-quarter pounds, has been named Nicholas Sanford Smith.

In an analysis of the nation's foreign policy, Mrs. Maurice Woodworth, speaking before the League of Women Voters last Friday afternoon, emphasized the importance of our relations with South American countries. The meeting of the league was held in the home of Mrs. Ruth Huston Whipple, 939 Penniman avenue.

Advocating a long-term view of planning for the fostering of Pan-American amity, Mrs. Woodworth declared that the United States should encourage and undertake new industries in South America which will not conflict with our surplus. This would best further natural trade relations between the South American countries and the United States, the speaker said.

Assisting hostesses at the dessert meeting were Mrs. John Dalton, Mrs. J. Gillis, Mrs. Walter Hammond, Mrs. Frank Learned, and Miss Mabel Spicer.

The date of the league's next meeting has been changed to Friday, February 14, when it will meet at the home of Mrs. John Dalton, 489 Blunk avenue. Mrs. S. S. Closson, program chairman for the meeting, will lead a discussion entitled "Know Your School."

Popular Hostess Offers Dessert Recipes for Many Occasions

MRS. J. MERLE BENNETT

Desserts are an important part of any cook's recipe file, because there are so many occasions when an eye and taste appealing dessert is appropriate, such as after the movie, for bridge luncheons, or on Sunday night when guests drop in. A dessert is just the thing to give an uplift to the meal and to the cook's spirits when, as occasionally happens in the best of households, the rest of the meal "bogs down" with tough steak or soggy vegetables.

If you have two grown boys with hearty appetites like Mrs. J. Merle Bennett's sons, Alan and Bill, you will appreciate the old-fashioned pudding recipes which she offers this week.

Old Fashioned Tapioca Pudding
"Soak two tablespoonsful of pearl tapioca overnight. Heat one pint of milk in a double boiler, and add the tapioca. Stir in two well-beaten egg yolks, a pinch of salt, and one-half cup of sugar. Stir continually until smooth like gravy. Take off the stove and pour into a baking dish. Add one-half teaspoonful of vanilla, one-half teaspoonful of lemon and beat two egg whites stiff with two tablespoonsful of sugar. Put on top of the tapioca by the spoonful. Brown in oven."

Brown Steamed Pudding
"Beat one egg lightly, and add four tablespoonsful of sugar, and two tablespoonsful of melted butter. Add one teaspoonful of salt, one-half cup of molasses, one-half cup of boiling water, one level teaspoonful of soda in water, and one and a half cups of flour. Steam for one hour, and serve with whipped cream."

Both of these puddings are favorites with Mrs. Bennett's 10 and 12-year-old sons, along with a luncheon of creamed chicken, beef and peas on toast, and a pineapple gelatin salad.

Mrs. Bennett, a popular hostess for afternoon bridge club gatherings, suggests two dessert recipes for bridge parties.

Holland Rusk Dessert
1 Package of Holland rusks rolled fine
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup melted butter
"Make a mixture of these ingredients, and line a buttered tin with a little more than half of the crumb mixture. Then add the custard as follows," directs Mrs. Bennett.

Custard
2 cups milk
Pinch of salt
2 level tablespoonsful cornstarch
4 egg yolks
1 teaspoonful vanilla
1/2 cup sugar
"Cook as a custard in a double boiler and allow to cool before adding to the tin lined with crumb mixture. To make a meringue topping, mix four egg whites and 1/4 cup of sugar. Put on top of the custard. Add 1/2 cup of chopped nut meats to the remainder of the crumb mixture and sprinkle over the top. Bake for forty minutes in a very slow oven, less than 300 degrees. Serve with whipped cream."

Angel Custard Dessert
6 beaten egg yolks
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup lemon juice
1 1/2 teaspoons of grated lemon rind
1 tablespoonful unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup water
6 stiffly-beaten egg whites
1/2 cup sugar
1 large angel food cake
"Make a custard of the egg yolks, and add three-quarters of a cup of sugar, lemon juice and rind. Cook over hot (not boiling) water until the mixture coats a spoon. Remove from the heat and add gelatin dissolved in cold water. Fold in egg whites, beaten with the remaining three-quarters of a cup of sugar. Add bits of the angel food cake and place in an angel food cake pan, oiled with salad oil. Pour over the custard. Chill until firm. Unmold and fill the center with whipped cream. Garnish with maraschino cherries and green gum drops. Serves six to eight."

With a Sunday night supper of open face cheese and bacon sandwiches, fruit salad, and coffee, Mrs. Bennett suggests for dessert a white cake with black walnut meat filling and a seven-minute icing. The Bennetts frequently enjoy Sunday night supper before the fireplace in the living room of their home.

For the sandwiches, Mrs. Bennett cuts the slices of bread with a round cutter and butters each slice. The Bennetts prefer Old English cheese, creamed with a well-beaten egg. The strips of bacon and green pepper are placed on top of the cheese mixture and toasted in the oven until the top is golden brown.

White Cake Dessert
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup butter
1 tablespoonful boiling water
Pinch of salt
2 well-beaten eggs
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoonful soda
1 teaspoonful baking powder
2 1/2 cups flour
1 teaspoonful vanilla
"Cream the sugar and butter. Add the eggs and beat well. The recipe makes three layers."

Black Walnut Meat Filling
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoonsful flour
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 cup nutmeats
Pinch of salt
"Mix the ingredients and cook until thick as a custard."

Icing
1 1/2 cups sugar
2 egg whites
3 tablespoonsful water
"Cook in a double boiler, beating with an egg beater constantly until the icing is thick enough to spread on the top of cake. Add one teaspoon of vanilla."

Michigan Editors Plan to Display Queen of All Michigan Queens

Hectic Times Believed Responsible for the "Come Down"

Of all things! Sedate, bald-headed editors—frivolous, giddy editors—studious, over-worked editors—are going to get the shock of their lives at the annual "All-Michigan" dinner of the Michigan Press Association January 23, they're going to have a "Queen of all Queens!" Think of it!

And to cap the climax, sly, bashful, retiring Editor Floyd Miller of the Royal Oak Tribune, president of the Michigan Press Association, arranged for this scandalous journalistic thing!

"Miss Michigan," the reigning queen of Michigan's 1940 festival queens, will be presented by Mr. Miller next Thursday, at the Second "All-Michigan" dinner of the association, of which The Plymouth Mail is an active member.

The dinner, comprising choicest Michigan-grown food, is being sponsored this year by the Michigan Food Council, and it will open the 66th annual convention of the newspaper publishers' organization at Michigan State college, East Lansing.

Approximately 25 festival queens throughout Michigan have been invited to be guests of the newspapers at this gala event. Invitations were sent in co-operation with the four tourist and resort associations which are in charge of the evening's program.

FLOYD MILLER
MPA President and King of the Queens

of entertainment. Officers of the four associations have been invited also.

"For years the newspaper editors have been publicizing Michigan queens," explained Floyd J. Miller, Royal Oak Daily Tribune, association president. This year we decided to pick our own queen—the queen of Michigan festival queens. A committee of competent judges will select the winner Thursday afternoon. The guests of honor will be presented to Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner at the Statehouse. "Miss Michigan" and her court then will be presented at the evening dinner.

Through the magic of quick freezing, the dessert offering on the "All-Michigan" menu will be fresh strawberry shortcake. The delicacy was the choice of the state food council which comprises independent and chain retailers, producers, wholesalers and officials of the state department of agriculture.

At the Friday program publishers will consider business problems and will study new methods for improvement of newspapers.

Gerhart Seger, New York City, an exiled German journalist and a former member of the German Reichstag, will give a luncheon address on "Can Hitler Win the War?" in behalf of the William Allen White committee, while Verne Marshall, Cedar Rapids, (Ia.) Gazette editor, will speak Friday evening in behalf of the No Foreign War committee of which he is chairman. Both speakers are being brought to the convention by the association at its own expense to present both sides to editors of today's nation-wide issue of how far we should go in our aid to Great Britain.

A Communication

Battle Creek, Mich.,
164 Lathrop Ave.

Dear Plymouth Mail:

This is a much belated note of appreciation and of thanks for your continued thought in sending the paper to us—I can tell you that we would miss it more than you can ever imagine, if it were not to come each week. It does tell us about the old friends and as well we follow with great interest the growth and progress that Plymouth is making with each new month.

The report regarding myself is not much changed. My back and hips remain the same, as well as the heart situation, and for a few weeks back have added strain with very severe pain in my head (old sinus stuff) and as yet have found very little relief. However have been on my feet most of the time, and no doubt you know through Plymouth friends that we had to change our sphere of life again—last July we exchanged our place out of the city for one right in town—the one on whom we had to depend to do the manual work on the place out there was stricken last fall, or rather climaxed an ulcer situation with an extensive bit of surgery and this ended all manual labor for him, so I could not do it and we had to make the change—it is much better for us but we enjoyed our new home and hoped we might remain there the rest of our days, but it could not be that way. Mrs. Sutherland has been exceptionally well and plods along just as ever and is certainly a wonder.

By no desire whatever do we forget the Plymouth friends, and feel that our hearts as yet are really there. We thank you again for your kindness and I only wish we were in position to send you the subscription money for the paper but it could not be done and so we appreciate having this weekly joy-bringer to our door. We wish you a Happy New Year and shall always remember you as never refusing whatever I brought to you and always with very kindly interest carried us along during five years that we stayed in Plymouth. Sincerely,

Rev. and Mrs. Loya Sutherland.

First Plymouth Draftee Reports Activities at Camp Custer

The first letter from any of Plymouth's draftees at Camp Custer in Battle Creek was received this week by the parents of the first local man called into service under the selective service act, John Birchall. The new 21-year-old soldier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Birchall, 599 Blunk avenue.

"Here I am in the Army and liking it, as I thought I would," Birchall reports.

"The worst day, so far, was the first day, waiting around all day to catch a train for camp at 5 o'clock. We arrived here about 9 o'clock, and were loaded into trucks, which brought us to barracks where we were assigned bunks.

"Along in the middle of the night, so it seemed to me, they woke us up to get ready for breakfast. The exact time was 6 o'clock in the morning. After shaving, showering and cleaning up, which includes sweeping and mopping the floor around our respective bunks, we were taken to breakfast, which was good, as are all our meals.

"After breakfast we went immediately to the warehouse where we were each told to put our civilian clothes in a bag. Then we received our uniforms and other equipment. This accomplished, we spent the rest of the morning drilling, which was a lot of fun.

"In the afternoon, we were marched over to the theatre, where an intelligence test was given to us. After the test an officer explained the articles of war which are the laws governing the Army. From the theatre, we were led to a building where we were classified according to our ability, and I am now pretty sure of being in the Signal Corps."

Young Birchall explained that the rest of the time has been uneventful, the new recruits doing odd jobs around the camp, waiting until they are called to a permanent station. Fred Hetsler, Jr. of Plymouth reports he has been stationed at Fort Benning, Georgia, and both Bertrand Alguire and Birchall expect to follow.

"Last night," Birchall continues, "I went into town with Bert Alguire. In town there are M.P.'s (military police) all over. They won't let anyone go around without their hat and gloves, or with overcoats unbuttoned."

Birchall's last remarks in a letter received by his mother Tuesday reported he would be leaving Camp Custer Wednesday, probably for Fort Benning, Georgia.

Take Charge, Mister... and Let's Fireball!

THERE'S a new word spreading through the vocabularies of car owners who have made firsthand acquaintances with this slick new 1941 Buick.

It's a word we first picked out as an apt description of a new and better engine—but it is rapidly coming to mean a completely new and excitingly pleasurable manner of motorcar travel.

All over the country, "to fireball" now means to enjoy both ease and dispatch in your travel by car—with a very special new manner of thrift.

Not the ordinary, scrumpy, self-denying sort of thrift, but thrift with all the thrills left in!

Now, just why that happens is easy to understand.

*Optional equipment on the Buick SPECIAL, standard on all other series.

Reinforced by Compound Carburetion* this FIREBALL eight develops nearly 17% more horsepower on exactly the same fuel rationing.

With all that power on call, we can use a more economical gear ratio as our standard high gear—a ratio that ups miles per gallon by giving more revolutions of the wheels for every revolution of the engine.

Then, in addition, we have in Compound Carburetion a fuel supply system that adjusts itself according to the driving conditions you meet.

Thus your engine is always getting the utmost benefit out of the least amount of gasoline that will give the performance you want.

And that spells economy.

So much economy that a man who drives 15,000 miles a year gets as much as 2,000 miles' extra driving on the same amount of fuel.

And that, Buick buyers will tell you, is something very much worth looking into through a free demonstration such as any Buick dealer will gladly give.

One Farm in Five Is Rented Property

Is it detrimental or beneficial to Michigan agriculture that one farm in five and one acre in every four is operated by a tenant farmer?

That is a question that wrinkled brows at Michigan State college have not been able to penetrate other than to assemble figures and estimate merits and demerits of the tenant system.

For it is true that there are faults and credits in tenant farming. In the opinion of F. M. Atchley of the college farm management department, tenant farming does not necessarily mean either good or poor farming. Michigan is not in the same classification of southern states where tenancy is rated at 30 per cent and some corn belt states where it ranges up to 50 per cent as contrasted to this state's 19 per cent.

Greatest need is for a proper system of education for both tenants and landlords, says Atchley. Both should recognize the problems involved in establishing good farming on a permanent basis. These problems include soil erosion, reduced productivity, crop adaptation and the need for soil conservation and improvement.

Another phase is the need for improvement in farm leases. The written contract leads to a better understanding, according to Atchley. Usually the written contract leads to a longer and more satisfactory term of relationship between tenant and landlord.

Pythian Lodge Installs Officers

At the annual installation of officers of Plymouth Lodge No. 238, Knights of Pythias on Thursday evening, January 9, Ernest W. Rossow, long an active worker in the lodge and former Chancellor Commander, was presented with the 25-year Pythian veteran jewel. The presentation was made by Ray H. Burrell of Ypsilanti, Grand vice chancellor of the lodge.

More than 100 members of the lodge and their families were present to witness the ceremonies in connection with the gift of this token of 25 years of unbroken membership.

Mr. Burrell also acted as installing officer, assisted by District Deputy Murray Wanty of Ann Arbor in installing Roy B. Larkins of Northville as Chancellor Commander for the coming year. Other officers installed were: Vice chancellor, J. R. McLeod; prelate, Charles Woodward; master of work, Ernest Rossow; keeper of records and seal, Frank Henderson; master of finance, Glenn Davis; master of exchequer, George Loomis; master at arms, Melvin Cryslar; inner guard, Roland Widmayer; outer guard, Maurice Hagemaster.

Production of chickens and eggs represents a yearly business of one billion dollars in the United States alone.

Trounce Rocks

River Rouge's consistently superior basketball team plucked a fistful of feathers from the proverbial Plymouth Rock last Friday evening by collecting 40 points to Plymouth's 21 in the Rouge gym.

As they thus feathered their already capacious nest, Rouge checked in their third straight Twin Valley League victory to once more, not unexpectedly, climb to the League lead. For this is the sixth straight year that Rouge has stepped up early in the season with an unbeaten record. The first five attempts have won her five successive League championships.

Quite denuded now of victory anticipations Plymouth underwent the same embarrassing experience as in her last year's first meeting with Rouge. Then as now both teams had boasted an unbeaten record. Then as now Rouge asserted her mastery. Rouge had a perfect record of wins, at the season's end.

Until the half, despite the absence by sickness of regulars Warren Hoffman and John Wilkie from Plymouth the scoring was not one-sided. With Rouge enjoying a height advantage, the score after the first two periods of play was 21-13 in their favor. The halftime rest proved a boon to Rouge, however, and from the third period on, it was more or less a steady climb. Plymouth could accomplish only two points in the third period, and their six-point rally in the fourth was counterbalanced easily by the accurate shooting Rouge team.

It was their general good marksmanship that told the scoring tale. Eight of twelve men that coach Buck Weeber inserted in the game produced at least two points. Johnnie Andrews, who waffled ten points worth of basketball through the Plymouth hoop was high-point man for both teams. He played only half the game.

Bob Norman with eight points and Owen Gorton with seven led the Plymouth team in scoring. Except for one free throw point by Jack Butz the Rocks' scoring was divided among the five starting players.

Rouge scored first, but for the first five minutes it was point and counterpoint. For a time in the first period, Plymouth was four points ahead. About that time Rouge collected its height, its precision and its feathery shooting into one and began the offensive. There was little chance for foul shooting to swing the tide of battle because Referee DuFor called only 8 fouls on Rouge and seven on Plymouth. The free throwing department gave Plymouth the advantage with seven points from the foul line to Rouge's six.

For the next two weeks Plymouth will attempt a home stand to keep its second place position. This Friday it's Ecorse and the next it's Dearborn.

The lineup: Plymouth, 1—Norman, fr. 8; Gorton, lf. 7; Butz, lf. 1; Olds, lf. 0; Hunter, c. 0; Baker, rg. 4; Johnson, lg. 1; Hancock, lg. 0. River Rouge, 40—McKee, fr. 8; Andrews, lf. 10; Tobin, c. 3; Cummings, c. 2; Simon, c. 4; Evans, rg. 8; Sharron, rg. 3; Riopelle, lg. 2.

Refugee Writes

English refugees in Canada received Christmas presents from Michigan members of the 153rd district of Rotary as the result of an idea of the Monroe Rotary club to promote international good will. The 153rd district of Rotary includes a part of Canada in addition to this section of the United States. The Monroe Rotary club collected the gifts from Rotary members in Michigan and the Canadian Rotary club members distributed them to the refugees.

Mr. Matulis received a letter from Olivia Tozer, who had been given his gift. In it she said that her two brothers and herself have been in Canada since July and are now enjoying it very much. She expressed disappointment only over the fact that there was no snow for the Christmas holidays. Olivia, who is not yet twelve, wrote a very clear and well-composed letter, very unusual for a person of her age. Her grammar and spelling were equally good, and her handwriting was very legible and well formed.

Ben Darnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Darnell of 1423 Northville road, was born and has lived in Plymouth all his life. Ben, or "Bennie" as he is called by his friends has been in football for two years. His pet peeve is "sissies".

Louis John Dely graduates this month from the Henry Ford Trade school where he studied tool making and designing. For the past two years, Louis has attended night school. He enjoys bowling and outdoor sports. He lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dely at 183 Mill street.

Playing her accordion is the chief hobby of Jeanne Dettling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dettling, of 417 Pacific avenue. She has participated in a number of sports, the Junior play, Glee club, and annual high school musical. Jeanne's aim is to be a nurse; her pet peeve—too much homework.

Inspirations

It becomes evident that this column has been run all wrong. Instead of dealing each week with a cross-section of high school thought, it has made overtures into the fields of humor, philosophy, poetry, biography, literature, current events and news analyzing. It has attempted all these things and made a sane job of none. But, unfortunately, it will still continue to hand out the same trend of ideas—or line of bunk—because its authors don't know anything else. The only thing they know about high school thought is what their teachers tell them.

International news: Pity the poor Correspondent on tour Reporting a war With Info, obscure: An official attaches Like a leech on his back: His best news blocked out With a black "censored" patch: Who at length must recourse With untold remorse To blame all his news On a "well-informed source."

Local news: The senior physics class was tabulating its component horse-power, and one member had absorbed considerable joshing on his individual. "H. P. At length he tired of their inane harassing and admitted his inferiority: "All right, fellows, I've proved I'm not as strong as a horse... quit jockeying me." National news: "Where in thunder," critics ejaculate, "is Roosevelt getting all those billions he's asking congress to appropriate?" Try again, boys: he's getting those billions from the same place Adolf Hitler gets his Blitzkriegs!

Hop Plans Made

For the first time in its history the gymnasium of Plymouth high school is to be lighted with fluorescent lighting. The idea of the theme decided upon last Monday is to whack the Hop-goer by plane to one of our country's most prized possessions—Alaska, including the Northern Lights. That's where the colors come in.

Those directly responsible for the whisking are Russell Ash and his assistants, Jane Lehman and Frank Lodge. Frank having charge of the entire decorating program. The chairman of the committees are as follows: Ceiling, Louis Kolin; construction, Jack Baker; lighting, Frank Lodge; decorations, Velma Stokes; floor, Nancy McLaren; music, Douglas Lorenz; check rooms, Donald Folsom; invitations, Joan Steinhurst; chaplains, Francis Weed; programs, Jim Sexton; and publicity, George Chute.

The orchestra is to be announced later, but the date is being announced now—March 21.

8th Grade Doings

In Boot and Buskin's last meeting it was announced that two new play books, which had been requested, had arrived. Miss Bryce, the Drama Club advisor, said that work would soon be started on the one-act plays. Already a "Selecting for Casts" committee has been chosen. It is made up of two from each of the junior high grades.

A few weeks ago there were many New Year's resolutions made in the Junior Girl Reserves. Now they are trying to live up to them.

Plans for a skating party were discussed, and next Tuesday the girls are going to Wilcox's, providing there is safe ice.

The Girls' Science club featured the latest meeting by enlarging pictures. Also they experimented in making "white light." They placed two carbon rods together which were electrified and the incandescent solid particles actively and positively, then when of carbon burned they gave off light. When looking at this demonstration through a prism, one sees that each spark is beautifully colored.

This mercury vapor lamp was successfully constructed by one of the members (with Mr. Baldens help.) Next week enlarging will be tried again. Glass-blowing was in order, as usual.

A speed indicator for airplane catapults and adaptable to other moving objects has no mechanical connection but operates by a fixed magnet passing over two coils one foot apart.

Are You A Horse?

How much of a horse are you? Perhaps such a statement would necessitate an explanation. In an experiment recently conducted by Mr. Evans, teacher of physics, it was found that the total force of his class is 25.12 horsepower. This conclusion was arrived at after each member of the group had been timed in running up the four flights of the school steps, a vertical distance of twenty-four feet.

The average horsepower per person was 7.6. Particularly outstanding were Girard Blanton and Olive Mae Bakewell with 1.06 and .91 horsepower respectively and James Zuckerman and Marion James with the least horsepower, .45 and .35 respectively.

The experiment was conducted in connection with the class' study of force and horsepower.

Ape" and "The Human Gorilla" at the Annex Theatre in Detroit, Saturday, January 21.

The drawing card of last week was Sonia Henie and her ice follies. Among those who attended the Olympia on Friday evening were Ernestine Meade, Bob Lawson, Ruth Parmelee, Harold Fisher, Pat Mason, Lloyd Clark, Frances Morgan, Bob Brown, Ruth Keefe and Jane Lehman. Mary Goits and Howard Ebersole enjoyed the performance Saturday evening; while Dorothy Ebersole and Jack Kohal, of Romulus, saw it Sunday.

Short Noon Hour

Due to the incapacity of the school to handle the noon-hour crowd returning to lunch before the bell rings, the lunch period will be shortened next semester to fifty minutes from the present seventy. School will be out for lunch at 11:25 and resume at 12:15 instead of 12:35. But no need to fret, because the afternoon sessions will end at 3:15 instead of 3:30.

According to a recent survey, 600 students either bring their lunch or buy it at the school cafeteria or downtown. Out of the 500 eating lunch at home only fifteen or twenty will not be able to return in time. There will have either to bring their lunches or make special arrangements.

Every Person Must Sacrifice to Limit to Defend Country, Rotarians Told

Our Problem Made Severe Because People Were Kept in Dark

Plymouth Rotarians last Friday noon heard a strong appeal for American defense measures by Raymond Kelly, former national commander of the American Legion.

Not only did they hear an appeal for America, but they heard a strong question raised as to why our own government did not let the people know five, six or seven years ago as to the danger confronting the world.

"Official Washington knew what had been going on in Europe for years. They knew that Stalin had been training a giant army of millions of men in Russia. They knew that Stalin had been liquidating (killing) millions of his countrymen who did not agree with him. They knew that he was turning Russia into a Pan-gan nation," said Mr. Kelly.

RAYMOND J. KELLY

"They knew, too, what was happening in Germany. They saw the growth of Hitler's military might, and they knew what Italy was doing.

"But with all of these indications, we went complacently along and took no serious steps for our own national defense. No serious effort of any kind was made to build a protection in America from the danger that confronted the world.

"Official Washington saw the few countries of Europe over-run and crushed by Hitler and still we did nothing. We kept our head buried like an ostrich.

"If our people had been advised, this unprepared state we find ourselves in would not have prevailed. The trouble was that our high Washington officials and members of congress did not let the people know what they knew of the seriousness of the situation.

"I made this statement a while ago in an address down in Miami. After the meeting a newspaper reporter wanted to know if I meant that a congressman or a senator should have sacrificed his political career by letting the people know the truth. I tried to make it clear to him that the interests of our national existence is of far greater importance than the political career of any individual.

"We must forget selfishness and prepare to sacrifice as we have never sacrificed before if we want this country to continue as a great free republic. This government is our greatest asset. We face a serious issue and we must meet it as good Americans.

"We are still a long ways from being prepared. We haven't started. Time is the important thing. Defense is our need, not wishful thinking. America is a peace-loving nation, but to save ourselves from the dangers confronting the world, we must be prepared and willing at any time to sacrifice for its preservation."

The speaker was introduced by Russell Daane, chairman of the social service committee of the club.

Child Psychology Class Postponed

Due to the illness of Mrs. Malory, who is to conduct a class in child psychology at night school in Plymouth high school, C. J. Dykhouse announces that the class has been postponed until further notice.

There are 18 persons enrolled in the night school class in landscape gardening which meets at 7 o'clock each Monday evening, and there is room for a few more if they wish to attend.

Mrs. Humphries, who conducts classes in sewing and tailoring, also announces that there is room for more students in both courses. The sewing class meets on Monday evening at 7 o'clock, and the tailoring class is given on Wednesday evening at the same time.

Bowling League Standings

The fast pacing Stroh's team came into its own this week by taking 3 games from the league leading Simpsons and consequently dropping them for tie-honors with the Daisy. This feat hasn't been duplicated by any other team this season. This same Stroh's team deserves all this because in spite of the good averages carried by its members the team as a whole have played against hard luck and have been up to now in fifth place. But this week's games gave them first place for high three game total of 2934, second place for high single game of 1025 and Strasen took second place for three game total with 214-211-236 for 662.

Taylor and Blyton took second from Goldsteins, Wild and Co. lost three to the Daisy and Mayflower Hotel took three from Cavalcade Inn.

WE AGREE WITH MR. WILLKIE

Some Republican leaders have expressed hostility to a position taken Sunday evening by Wendell Willkie that we should support the President in his efforts to protect America from the dangers that surround us. Mr. Willkie points out that in the emergency we are in, it is absolutely essential the President have unusual powers. We agree further with Mr. Willkie that it is unfortunate President Roosevelt has made it too manifest in the past that he is a lover of extraordinary power. Indeed that is a regrettable situation because there are many who now assume his request for more authority in an emergency is being made just because of his love of power. They fail to take into consideration the fact that we are now face to face with one of the gravest emergencies in our history. It is fortunate for America that Mr. Willkie, the REAL leader of the New Republicanism, views this dangerous situation in the light that he does.

GOOD JUDGMENT

The Plymouth Mail highly commends the school board for its action in purchasing a site for a badly needed school in the southeast section of the school district. The locality, generally referred to as the Robinson sub-division, has in the past few years, experienced a rapid growth. It is going to grow more, and that very soon. At the present time there are nearly a hundred boys and girls who are forced to come nearly two miles each day to the Central school.

When the time arrives for the school board to erect a structure on the excellent site that has been purchased, it will also relieve to some extent the congestion of the grade school.

The board was most fortunate in securing such a favorable location for the remarkably reasonable price that it did. Plymouth is growing and expanding and the time to prepare for the future is right now, just as the school board is doing. The district has been rendered a distinct service by its school officials.

NEAR TREASON

Are we about to reap the whirlwind of all the cock-eyed schemes and loony proposals that have been forced upon the country during the past few years?

It begins to look as though the day of reckoning is near at hand.

When public employees who are PAID to protect the health, the safety and the general welfare of all the people strike against public interests, there is no doubt as to the need of immediate PUBLIC action.

The strike in Chicago which took place against the people of that city is the nearest thing this country has had to open rebellion against the government since the Rebellion of 1861.

It is about time this country gets down to earth and does a little hard thinking. The interests of the masses are far above the interests of the fortunate public employees who never have to worry about where their next meal is coming from as do the vast majority of people who are not drawing public pay. The strike in Chicago is as near a treasonable act as an act could be and still not be treason. Maybe it will serve to arouse PUBLIC interest as to what is really going on in this country.

POLITICAL RACKETEERS

Apparently in an effort to off-set revelations which might be forthcoming from Judge Ferguson's grand jury pertaining to an inquiry he apparently is conducting into the alleged purchase of jobs in the sheriff's office, Sheriff Beard breaks into print with the following asinine statement: If any of the deputy sheriffs made an offer to any of the Democratic district chairmen for their endorsement for a job as deputy sheriff, the offer was made

"just to see if the district chairman was crooked enough to take it."

In the first place if any deputy sheriff offered any such bribe to any Democratic party official, he is guilty of a crime against the public.

In the next place if there is basis for such a racket as the report indicates, then the time has already arrived for another house-cleaning of the entire sheriff's outfit.

The sheriff should lose no time not only in discharging any deputy who has had a part in any such racket, but he should see to it that the guilty are immediately prosecuted and punished.

It is about time that the law enforcing officers of the state and nation woke up to the fact that the people are getting sick and tired of so much graft in the conduct of public business, and if these officials do not remedy the situation, the PEOPLE will.

A SIMPLETON'S SUGGESTION TO CONGRESS

One of the most forceful editorial writers in Michigan is H. S. Babcock of The Alma Record. A week or so ago, under the above heading, he published in his splendid newspaper, the following editorial sentiment addressed to congress—filled with so many worthwhile ideas that it is hereby reprinted in full:

Lately the administration has been searching for some way to speed industry and get the needed production.

I am just a country newspaperman. I have not enjoyed the privileges of going to Washington and sitting around on the seat of my pants and drawing ten thousand dollars a year and expenses while letting someone else do my thinking for me and while the national debt became the greatest in the history of the country and the tax burden became the heaviest one we have ever known.

What little thinking has been done I had to do for myself. I have watched this country grow and develop for more than sixty years. It has been built by men who did their own thinking and who worked hard ten hours a day or more, six days in the week. These men worked without ever thinking of striking or of sitting down or of asking for extra pay for overtime or for Union control of industry.

They worked honestly, faithfully and contentedly and built this great nation which half-baked, ill-advised legislation is now destroying.

My simple suggestion now is that you public servants in congress, do some honest to God thinking for yourselves and for the good of the country; throw the N.L.R.B. in the ash-can along with other nonsense; put men to work at good wages ten hours a day, and I guarantee that if you do this you will increase production one-half and get honest, faithful work such as built America.

This is a simpleton's suggestion, but it is worth thinking-over and by so doing you may save an embarrassing investigation of congress by the people whose servants you are.

The other day Admiral Harold R. Stark, the Chief of Naval Operations, made this observation: "Dollars cannot buy yesterday." The Admiral was referring to the defense program in relation to the Navy. But that truism can be applied with full weight to the defense program in toto. We have appropriated dollars in unprecedented quantities. But we seem to be wasting, something beyond price—Time.

The defense drive, in short, has bogged down. The optimistic estimates of last summer are not being realized. For example, a short time ago it was forecast that soon after the first of the year we would be producing 1,000 military airplanes monthly. But Defense Commissioner Knudsen now announces that the real figure will be 30 per cent lower—700 planes per month.

What are the main causes of the defense bottlenecks? You can find just about any answer to that question that suits you. The explanations offered in Washington seem to fall into the following categories:

First, some circles believe that business still has fears of what this Administration may do—that it is worried about new crackdowns and radical experiments. In addition, business works under legislative, tax and regulatory handicaps which did not exist in 1917.

Second, the President is being criticized for his failure to appoint a chief of the Defense Commission, with full powers. That, it is said, is the only way to escape division of responsibility, overlapping of activities, and wasted effort.

Third, it has been said that neither labor nor industry as yet fully realizes the gravity of the situation, nor is as yet ready to make the necessary sacrifices.

Fourth, a number of important industrialists, such as Mr. Sloan of General Motors, have pointed out that industry is not geared to war production. Our industries are peace industries, used to operating under normal conditions. The change from a peace economy to a war economy is a long and difficult process.

Fifth, the American public is still confused, and does not know exactly where it stands. It doesn't know whom to believe, and concerted public pressure is needed to make any great national effort a success.

Whatever the reasons, it is plain that the defense program has fallen on evil days. All authorities are certain that something drastic must be done—but many of the authorities are in entire disagreement as to what. At the rate we are going now, it will be years before anything resembling a first class military and naval establishment can be built. The Army has been forced to change its plans for taking conscripts several times—it has found that it cannot obtain the necessary facilities as fast as it figured in the first place. And the news has recently come out that many of our naval ships are sadly lacking in protection against air attack.

Eyes are on Washington now, looking for a lead. And Washington today means the President and his advisors. He is the only one who can shake up the Defense Commission and organize the program.

One wonders just how long it will be before labor realizes that a strike today is a very different thing than a strike was a year or so back. In abnormal times like the present, with the defense program behind schedule, strikes threaten the nation's very life.

Recent strikes have taken place in important defense industries. One of those strikes closed an airplane plant which was producing vitally needed training ships for the Army. It was settled only after production had been stopped for weeks. The strike which was recently called in the western lumber industry is similar. There is a definite shortage of lumber—the Army, in some cases, has not been able to obtain supplies necessary for building barracks for the thousands of men now called to the colors. It would be interesting to know what the recruits who are undergoing military training for one dollar a day think of highly-paid workers who walk out on their jobs because their new demands are not promptly met.

But It's True

The tiger was in the habit of raiding small villages, killing and carrying off women and children. Curiously, it killed only one man. Lewis caked his hair with dirt, planted seed, raised roses within four months by forcing. He still has three of the roses pressed in a book.

APPROVES APPOINTMENT

Michigan State college has grown to a new importance in the past decade, which makes the leadership of this rapidly developing school a matter of wide concern. The retirement of President Robert S. Shaw, at the close of the present school year, has been known for some time but the election of Dr. Shaw's son-in-law, John A. Hamann, and present secretary of the college is big news. Many persons have concluded, for some time, that Grover C. Dillman, also a State alumnus and present head of the Michigan College of Mines and Technology would be switched from Houghton to East Lansing. That the state agricultural board, which administers the college, has acted wisely will be generally accepted by everyone interested in the welfare of the college, which draws heavily throughout this part of Michigan for students.—Muri H. DeFoe in The Charlotte Republican-Tribune.

RIGHT ON THE NOSE!

Congressman Frank Hook of the 12th District has the poorest attendance record of any Michigan Congressman, missing one hundred roll calls. Mr. Hook is to be commended for missing so many roll calls for, in our judgment, it would be better if he missed them all.—William Berkey in The Cassopolis Vigilant.

THE DRAFTED SOLDIER

We've been thinking quite a bit about these young men who are being drafted to serve our government for one year while they are being taught how to defend our country if and when they are needed as soldiers, sailors or otherwise. Just had a chat with one of these young men. He is married, a steady, dependable worker with a steady job, has learned a good trade and was just about to go in debt and buy a home when his call came. Now he must leave his job, his wife, his prospects for a home of his own, and give a year to soldiering at a salary of $30 per month, while other young men work in factories where wages up to seven and eight dollars per day are being paid for manufacturing defense materials and where the workers have the right to strike and hold up the production of things the soldiers need any time they feel they have a grievance. A young man may have some slight physical defect that saves him from being drafted and still be able to earn several times what the draftee receives. The men making goods for defense are indirectly, but just as surely, working for the government as the boys in training, and there should not be this difference in their compensation. And another thing, if we are really in an emergency which requires a hurried preparation for defense, strikes should be outlawed until the emergency is past. There is no more valid excuse for a strike on the part of those who are building barracks, making guns or loading shells than there is for a strike on the part of the soldiers who live in the barracks and fire the guns and shells. Soldiers who strike would be court-martialed and probably shot. — William Berkey in The Cassopolis Vigilant.

The smoker and business meeting of the Plymouth Improvement association held at the village hall was well attended and much interest manifested. The election of a board of directors was the important thing. The following were elected: F. D. Schrader, George Richwine, W. J. Burrows, F. A. Dibble, George Robinson, Fred Reimer, William Pottinill, L. A. Thomas, C. H. Rauch, Ed. Gayde, and M. H. Ladd. It was voted to change the name to the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce. President Schrader then brought before the association the minutes of holding a fair in Plymouth in the fall. There was some talk of a homecoming in connection with the fair. After the smoker ended the director's met and re-elected F. D. Schrader president for the year. W. J. Burrows secretary, and F. A. Dibble treasurer.
