Harry E. Irwin Named Acting Postmaster

Receives Notice of Appointment From
Sen. Prentiss Brown

Harry E. Irwin received official confirmation Thursday in a letter from Senator Prentiss M. Brown, of Michigan, of his appointment as acting postmaster in Plymouth.

"Today I received word from the first assistant Postmaster General that in compliance with my suggestion, an order has been signed by the Postmaster General appointing you as acting postmaster at Plymouth," wrote Senator Brown.

Postmaster General Frank C. Walker also notified Mr. Irwin of his appointment in the following letter:

"Under the provisions of the act approved June 25, 1938, you have been appointed acting postmaster at Plymouth. A post-office inspector will communicate with you and arrange for a mutually satisfactory date for your installation."

"Your nomination for the regular appointment as postmaster will probably be sent to the senate later for confirmation," declared J. B. Wyman of the Bayard Wyman federal bonding agency.

In an earlier letter from Prentiss M. Brown, Michigan senator, Mr. Irwin was informed of a possibility of his appointment as acting postmaster with an open competitive civil service examination for the permanent appointment to come later.

Born on a farm near Anderson, Indiana, 60 years ago, Mr. Irwin has lived in Plymouth township for the last 17 years during which time he has been employed by the Pere Marquette railroad as a brakeman, conductor and switchman. A candidate last fall for the state legislature, the new postal appointee is a member of the Wayne county central committee of the Democratic party and has twice served as delegate to the Wayne county and state conventions of the Democratic party. Mr. and Mrs. Irwin live at 2000 Canton Center road.

It is expected that these two and 11 other replacements will be called up early next month in addition to the regular May quota of 38 men.

Ford Men Receive Benefit Claims

The local office of the Michigan Unemployment Compensation commission, of which Clarence Jettis is manager, has received notice of a ruling that employees at the Phoenix and Northville plants of the Ford Motor company will receive credits for unemployed weeks during the period of the recent strike. According to the ruling, only those plants which were non-participants and were forced to close as a result of the strike, will receive credits or compensation benefits.

It is estimated that some 400 employees of local Ford plants will be affected by the ruling. The case of Rouge plant employees has not yet been determined. All men unemployed as a result of the strike are asked to report their return to work in order to receive credits. The local office will remain open from 8:30 until 3 o'clock each Wednesday at the city hall until all strike claimants are taken care of.

"Namesake Town" in England Suffers Renewed, Heavy Bombing Attacks

As news reports of the heavy bombing attacks over Plymouth, England early this week reached here, the local Namesake Town committee made plans to spur its program for aid to the West coast city. The executive board of the local committee will meet at the city hall next Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

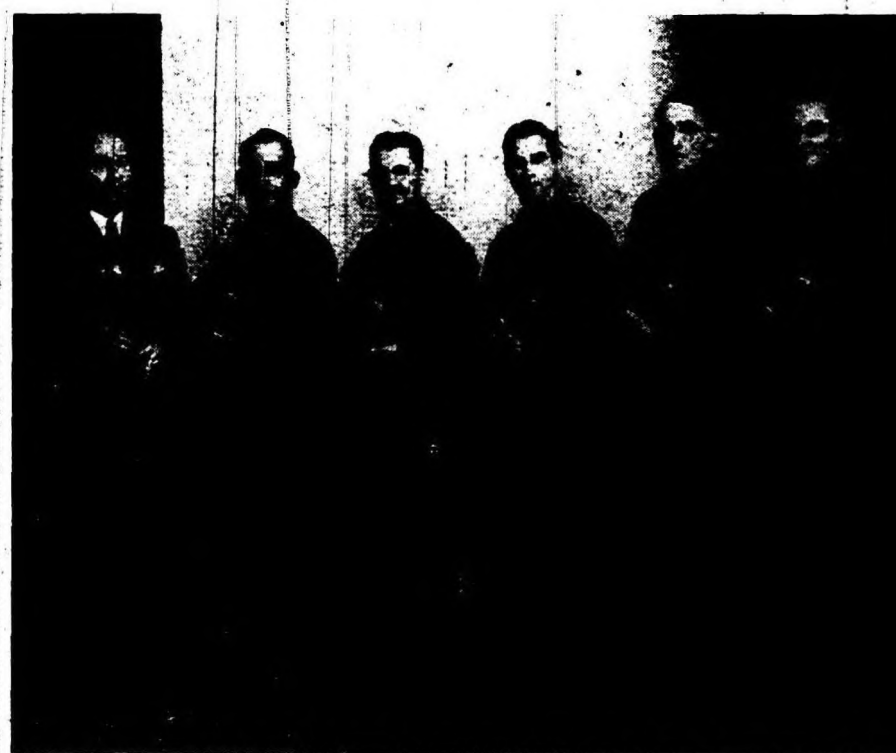

A copy of The London Times submitted by James J. S. Gallimore of the local "namesake" group relates the following concerning the previous attacks upon Plymouth: "Officials who have hurried to Plymouth to assist the local administration agree that the damage is as widespread and severe as any seen in the province. A large number of people are homeless. Stores, hotels, churches, cafes, cinemas and private houses in all parts of the city are damaged and destroyed. Shopping centers and destroyed by high-explosive and incendiary bombs, a hotel was burned out; a restaurant, some publichouses and shops as well as a small cinema were gutted in Thursday night's attack. Two hospitals were damaged, one being hit by five high-explosive bombs. Bombs hit the children's and maternity wards, and a number of bodies have been recovered."

Another story in the English paper reports a recent visit in Plymouth by the King and Queen who visited bombed areas, talking to homeless people and inspecting naval and dockyard establishments.

The King for the first time went on board one of the 50 American destroyers which were taken over last year by the Royal Navy. He showed a keen interest as he inspected the ship and crew, composed entirely by Canadians," the article states.

Lady Astor, M.P., who is also the Lady Mayoress of Plymouth was the hostess to the King and Queen. Another account acknowledged receipt of a mobile kitchen unit from the New York group of the American Women's club in London.

Mayor Appoints City Officials for New Terms

Commission Confirms
All Re-Appointments
by Unanimous Vote

Mayor-elect Ruth E. Huston Whipple, following her election by the commissioners at their meeting Monday evening, made several appointments to offices of the city government, all of which were confirmed unanimously by the city commission.

Arno B. Thompson was re-appointed as city assessor, an office to which he was first appointed last September to fill the vacancy created by the death of William C. Petz. As city assessor, Mr. Thompson automatically becomes a member of the board of review.

Others re-appointed to the board of review were Mrs. Maud Bennett and Walter Smith. The latter was named last September also to fill the post previously held on the board by Mr. Thompson.

The auditing committee appointed to study bills before they are submitted to the city commission is composed of Commissioners George Robinson and Robert Joffile, and Commissioners Henry Hondorp and Robert Joffile were named to the recreation committee.

Charles H. Garlett was appointed to his fifth year as city treasurer and was named with Rosemary Lyke to the board of registrations. Supervisors named to the Wayne county board for the next year include Mayor Whipple, Arno Thompson and Commissioners Henry Hondorp and George Robinson. Otto Beyer was appointed as cemetery trustee.

Robert W. Baughn Killed in Crash

Plymouth residents were shocked early Thursday morning to learn of the death of Robert W. Baughn, owner of the Rosebud Flower Shop at 284 South Main street. Mr. Baughn was driving to Plymouth from Northville about midnight when his truck crashed into a cement abutment near the Northville road viaduct, killing him instantly.

Mr. Baughn came to Plymouth 15 years ago and took over the floral business from Winfield Birch, which he has continued since. He was born in Lancaster, New York, March 15, 1900, and was married eight years ago to Angeline O'Donnell, of Forest, Canada.

Surviving Mr. Baughn besides his wife and daughter, Beatrice Carol, are his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. James Baughn, of Stevensville, Ontario, a daughter, Marion, by a former marriage, and three brothers, Winfield and Homer, of Stevensville, and Edward, of Pontiac, Michigan.

Commission Refuses To Seat Dunbar Davis

Re-Elected Mayor

MRS. RUTH H. WHIPPLE

Council Re-Elects Mrs. Whipple as Plymouth Mayor

Mayor Voted Second Term Unanimously;
States Future Aims

Mrs. Ruth E. Huston Whipple was unanimously re-elected mayor of the city of Plymouth by the city commission at its meeting last Monday evening. Since Commissioner George Robinson has served both as village president under the old charter and as mayor under the new charter, and since Commissioner Henry Hondorp has served as mayor for three years by unanimous vote of the commission and because Robert Joffile is new to the commission, it was generally agreed to re-elect Mayor Whipple for a second year.

"Naturally, I am glad that the city commissioners had enough confidence in me to elect me as mayor for a second year, and I shall try to justify their choice," declared Mayor-elect Whipple in a statement to The Plymouth Mail. "Under the Plymouth charter, the mayor has no more rights or power than the other commissioners, except that he presides at meetings, countersigns checks and is a member of the city commission. All appointments made by the mayor must be approved by at least two other commissioners. Consequently, whatever we do at the city hall is to the credit or discredit of the whole commission, and the mayor, under our charter, is truly a member of the commission."

"I am happy to be chosen mayor by such commissioners as George Robinson, George Robinson and Robert Joffile. They are all people with convictions and the courage to stand by their word. In last week's Plymouth Mail, George Robinson was quoted as saying that he was a 'one-hundred percent American' and that was said in a city commission whose honesty and integrity is above question. Plymouth has that kind of city commission."

"It is also a pleasure to be mayor, because we have a city manager whose honesty is above reproach. It is our city manager, Clarence Elliott, who has done much to have our tax rate, valuation, budget and bonded indebtedness reduced while our municipal services have been improved."

Stating the aims of the present city administration, Mayor Whipple stated that the city commission is eager to finish the Penniman-Main parking lot and to make it an attractive safe.

Rule Attorney Is Ineligible Under Charter

City Claims Davis
Is Not Qualified
Property-Owner

The city commission at its regular meeting Monday evening refused to seat Commissioner-elect Dunbar Davis by a vote of 3 to 1, the only dissenting vote being cast by Robert Joffile. The vote followed a public hearing in which both parties to the controversy presented evidence and the commission ruled that Mr. Davis was not a qualified freeholder (property owner) and therefore ineligible to a place upon the city governing body.

The resolution as offered by Commissioner Henry Hondorp and supported by Commissioner Ruth H. Whipple stated, "Whereas, according to the records on file, the interpretation of the city charter of Plymouth and according to the legal opinions of the Prosecutor's office, Dunbar Davis does not qualify for the office of city commissioner; Now, therefore, be it resolved, that Dunbar Davis shall not be seated."

The action climaxed a two-weeks' controversy over the legality of a deed offered by Commissioner-elect Davis as proof of property ownership. At a meeting of the city commission on April 8, the day following the city election, Mr. Davis offered a deed on lot 189 of Sunset addition, which appeared to be issued to Perry W. Richwine and Dunbar Davis and dated January 10, 1941. The lot in question had been purchased originally by Attorney Richwine from the state land office, but an easement appeared on the deed where the name of Dunbar Davis had apparently been inserted before it was recorded. An immediate investigation of the ownership of this lot as recorded with the register of deeds was ordered by the city commission. Investigation revealed that the deed was registered jointly in the names of Messrs. Richwine and Davis, indicating that an addition had been made thereon between the time the lot was purchased from the state and the time the deed was recorded.

When questioned, Mr. Davis stated that the deed had been in his possession only two hours before the meeting of the commission on April 8 and that he had noticed the easement but had supposed that Mr. Richwine had given him a deed that would pass inspection. Mr. Davis said that he felt the deed might be all right as there was "no material alteration in title." He thought that inasmuch as this was a quitclaim deed rather than a warranty deed that an addition of a name would make no difference. Mr. Davis then presented another deed to lot 68 of Plymouth Heights subdivision, which was obtained from Attorney Richwine on April 9, two days following the election, and which Mr. Davis believed could establish his claim to ownership of property anytime up to the time of holding office. In this way, Mr. Davis based his claim to ownership on deeds for both pieces of property.

At Monday night's meeting, the city presented as evidence an opinion from Samuel Brezner, first assistant to William E. Dowling, Wayne county prosecutor, which stated as follows: "The term 'election' is not synonymous with the phrase 'time of taking office' and it would do violence to the language to contend that the charter in question intended that they should be used interchangeably. It seems to us that the language of the charter is plain and unequivocal and permits of no misunderstanding or ambiguity. We are constrained to conclude that by the manifest intention of the terms of the charter of the city of Plymouth, no person is entitled to hold an elective office in this city unless he has been a freeholder for at least two years prior to election day."

"The alteration of deeds is a legal practice, common to some attorneys," declared Mr. Davis, who added that it was often necessary to make additions to deeds and that the deed offered by him was perfectly valid.

In answer to this claim, the prosecutor's office issued the following opinion: "The deed in question, given by the state of Michigan to Perry W. Richwine"

New Hillside Barbecue Scenic Dining Room to be Open Saturday

Workmen have just completed the attractive new scenic dining room of the Hillside Barbecue. Manager Jake Stremich stated yesterday that it will be ready for use Saturday of this week and for the occasion he is anticipating larger crowds than usual.

The new dining room has been made a part of the present one. A large addition was placed on the south side of the building, and the large window space makes possible a beautiful view down the Hillside-Riverside parkway. In fact, one can look down the hillside to the park from any place within the new dining room.

It has been so constructed that during the warm summer months, all of the windows can be removed, making this attractive dining place practically an outdoor dining room.

For months Mr. Stremich has realized the necessity of increasing his dining room space. While he has been able to take care of his business in the present dining room, the steady growth of his patronage has made it necessary for him to increase the size of Hillside as quickly as possible. He can now serve nearly 200 people at one time. Many patrons have found the Hillside an attractive place for dinner parties.

Communication

April 24, 1941.
Plymouth Mail, Plymouth, Michigan.

In order to dispel the uncertainty that might otherwise exist, I wish to take this opportunity to make it known that it is my intention to abide by the decision of the City Commission regarding my qualification for the office of Commissioner.

I was, and am, convinced that as a matter of law I am qualified. This, however, is a matter on which reasonable people may honestly differ, as the vote of the Commission shows, and I have no criticism of the Commission for its decision.

I sincerely appreciate the support given me by the people of Plymouth. Being elected Commissioner after the few short years I have been here is a tribute I will not soon forget.

DUNBAR DAVIS.

Commission Refuses Davis

does not coincide with the copy of an instrument furnished by the land office of the state of Michigan. In the latter, the name Dunbar Davis did not appear, while in the original Davis' name appears to have been inserted as one of the grantees, prior to the recording thereof. Unless the records of the state of Michigan are grossly erroneous, there has been a material alteration of the deed by which Davis now seeks to establish his qualifications as a freeholder.

"You ask the following questions with reference to such alteration: 'Is such altering of deeds a common practice?' Is such altering of deeds legal? To both of these questions our answer must be emphatically in the negative. We cannot conceive of any serious claim that this is a common practice. It is reprehensible and not sanctioned by law. In a proper case, it might be the subject of prosecution," declared the statement from the prosecutor's office.

John Crandell, a resident of Plymouth and a practicing attorney in Northville, appeared at the commission meeting Monday night to register a citizen's protest against the action of Mr. Davis and to volunteer a legal opinion against the practice of altering deeds.

The new commission, composed of Commissioners George Robinson, Henry Hondorp, Robert Jolliffe and Mrs. Whipple, voted to table the consideration of an appointee to fill the vacancy created by Davis' ineligibility until the next regular meeting on Monday, May 5.

convenient place. "We are also eager to do something about our 'blighted area' on Fralick avenue; the question is already before the city planning commission for a recommendation. The city commission wants to make Forest avenue more available for parking. It also plans to finish the Spring street paving project to grade and beautify Louise Markham park, and to create an attractive entrance to the county park on Mill street. In accordance with the long-term Master plan adopted this year, the city commission hopes to put our streets in better condition, and we are especially anxious to pave Farmer and South Harvey as soon as necessary improvements are in and as soon as the people want it done. There is still work to be done in beautifying the entrance to our city, in new plantings and development at our municipal cemetery, and in still more planting in our beautiful parks. Other anticipated projects include the completion of hard-surface walks through Kellogg park, as well as other sidewalk projects, a food-handlers' ordinance, the completion of all sanitary sewer connections and the enlargement of our water mains. We hope to find some means of stopping the garbage and rubbish piles with which people annoy their neighbors in spite of municipal garbage and rubbish collection.

"These are a few of the objectives of the city commission for the ensuing year; we could achieve all of them and many more immediately were it not for the fact that we are trying to run the city government without any increase in the tax rate.

"Finally, there are two things that I have wanted for Plymouth for several years, and I hope we can start them soon. They are namely a Citizens' council and a Lilac Planting program. We have a splendid Civic committee but the Citizens' council would be quite different; we need such a council to plan a Plymouth Citizenship day for new voters, to inaugurate and operate a Plymouth Forum after the Royal Oak plan and to arrange the proper ceremonies for the boys who are constantly leaving for service.

"The second project is for Plymouth to have a large, completely organized Lilac planting program similar to the one that Birmingham is having on Arbor Day. Two years ago the city commission upon recommendation tion of the Plymouth Garden club and the city planning commission, adopted the lilac as our city shrub. Let's plant 1250 lilacs next spring, at least one for each home and 50 for the city of Plymouth!" concluded the mayor. Mayor Whipple has served as a member of the city commission for the last eight years, mayor pro-tem for four years, and as a member of the Wayne county board of supervisors for three years.

Glider Pilot Gets up So High He Is Forced to Sail to Selfridge Field

Recent Weather Has Been Ideal for Gliders

(By Skysailor)
On the week-end of April 12 and 13 the best flight thus far in the soaring season was made. On Sunday, Edwin P. Lane, flying the XYZ Midwest Sailplane, flew to Selfridge Field, reaching 5,400 feet on the way.

Ed released from the tow line in a strong wind, but found lifting air immediately. For quite a long time then he simply maintained his altitude, then he found strong lift which at times carried him upward at three meters per second. He soon reached 5,000 feet while still within sight of Triangle Gliderport. It is possible that he could have made his way back to the field from this position, but some observers thought not. The wind was very strong.

Ed, however, had no intention of returning. He flew with the wind and made headway rapidly. The lift gave out finally and he was on the way down, gradually losing. He thought he would have to make a landing and picked out the State Fair grounds as a likely spot. He was coming down rather quickly in a headwind when all of a sudden he hit a sharply rising air current and experienced the feeling of being on an elevator just starting up. Back up to 5,000 feet he went.

William Putnam, flying the Kinney powered Bird airplane observed Lane circling then later near Erin airport and apparently trying to work his way north. Lane found himself approaching Mt. Clemens with not too much altitude and unable to find further lift. He saw Selfridge Field beyond the city and decided to try to glide downwind to it. Then right over the center of Mt. Clemens with still 2,000 feet of altitude left, he encountered the best thermal of the day—best because it was strong and it carried him rapidly right up to 5,400 feet. This peak altitude was reached over the middle of Anchor Bay beyond Selfridge.

Ed reported that visibility was not too good beyond the bay. Also he did not know the country very well that far out. Admittedly he could have glided far beyond the distant shore. He chose, instead, to return to Selfridge, which he reached with 2,400 feet of altitude left. He was able to maintain altitude just over the hangars for some time before finally coming in to land. Military men had noticed the ship go over at first and were curious about the trim craft which flew so high and even climbed without making much noise (any noise). Ed found he was quite welcome. Everybody was friendly and interested. The trailer crew from Triangle arrived in due time in response to Ed's phone call and were being expected at the gate. The landing was reckoned as a forced landing and was not unduly challenged.

Lyle Maxey flew the XYZ Wolf Sailplane from Triangle to National Airport in 15 minutes total time. He reached about 1,700 feet on the way.

The Midwest Sailplane company ship Midwest Sailplane serial number one was being flown and several pilots were able to stay up for 10 to 15 minutes. Each time the pilot elected not to turn and fly away downwind, however.

Thursday Robert Bacon soared. He released from the winch tow at about 900 feet and descended to 800 feet. He stayed in the thermal this time. Previously, he had found some thermals but soon lost them. Bob was able to climb to 1,900 feet before he lost out or the thermal weakened. He was back down after 14.3 minutes. Bob was a very happy boy over this feat. He had a right to be proud. He had won his C soaring license.

Bob had a barograph on board the Franklin training ship on that eventful day. Ted Bellak who is an official observer has taken that barograph record and has filled out proper blanks which will go in to national headquarters so that Bob will henceforth be recognized as a full fledged member of the soaring fraternity.

Again on Friday Robert Bacon soared. This time he showed that the little matter of Thursday was no mere coincidence. He went up to 3,200 feet and stayed up 28 minutes. A little later he made another flight of 14.3 minutes and reached 1,800 feet, practically a duplicate of Thursday's flight.

The XYZ club is undoubtedly proud of Bacon's accomplishments. In nine months he has gone from a state of no flying experience to a state of being a soaring pilot who is able to make noteworthy flights over flat country.

On Thursday Lyle Maxey in the XYZ Midwest Sailplane made a flight of 14 miles and landed along Six Mile road near Sutton road about two miles southeast of Whitmore Lake. Maxey reached 3,800 feet on the flight and was in the air almost exactly one hour.

The same day Helen Montgomery made a flight of 37.8 minutes in the XYZ Midwest Sailplane and reached 3,000 feet. She came back to the field.

Soaring flights are getting to be a rather commonplace thing in this part of the country. This fact is only by virtue of great effort on the part of the pilots. It also depends upon a fair degree of skill, first in ordinary handling of the ship in the air and then in a special technique of staying in the thermals. The pilots who are turning in the reports of soaring accomplishments could not have arrived at this point alone and unaided. There necessarily had to be a considerable amount of pioneering previous to the present flights.

Art Schultz, Johnny Nowak, Randy Chapman, Elmer Zook, Dallas Wise and others developed a technique of towing with wire while flying at Pontiac airport several years ago. The Meeker Brothers developed and built the wire winch. Art Schultz and Randy Chapman succeeded in soaring at Pontiac Airport. The XYZ Soaring club started to make soaring flights consistently and often; others followed suit. The Detroit Glider Council rented Triangle Airport. This contributed to the consistent soaring, though the field is rather small. George Lawrence threw the doors of the basement at the Lawrence Institute of Technology open to glider clubs and pilots and ships have been designed, built and repaired there. Jack Laister was one of the designers, having designed the Universal, two-place and the Laister Sailplane or LIT IV. (This is the full cantilever sailplane, white with blue trim, which was taken to Paris, France. It will probably make an appearance at Triangle soon.)

The present accomplishments would not be probable without these pioneering efforts.

Babson Says Germans Battle for Increased Oil Supply Lines

Believes Oil Supply Is Vital Factor in Winning the War

(By Roger Babson)

Babson Park, Mass., April 25.—So many columnists are commenting upon or interpreting the war news that it behooves me to "butt in," however, do wish to again mind readers that food and fuel may be the deciding factors.—specially oil. Germany really went to war to secure independent oil supplies for herself. If she succeeds in doing so, she will have won and be willing to quit. If she does not succeed, IN TIME, she will be licked. It makes no difference how many thousands of planes, tanks, and submarines Germany has unless she has the oil needed to operate them efficiently.

Germany Has Won Little Yet

The unthinking public believes that—thus far—Germany has won great victories. They point to the conquest of Czechoslovakia, Poland, France, Belgium, Holland, Norway, Bulgaria, and the last, none of these are oil-producing countries. Therefore, they really are a drag upon Germany's oil supply. In fact, Germany is practically cut off today from oil except from Russia and Rumania. Italy, Spain and other European countries are helpless to supply Germany with oil.

Italy has not been defeated in battle either on land or sea. She has lost only about 15 per cent of her navy, tanks, and planes. The reason Italy is doing so little is because of her lack of oil. The "control" of the Mediterranean means the control of the Axis's oil supply. So long as Great Britain and her few Allies can shut off Germany's oil supply, Germany is headed for defeat. Considering the oil Germany now has on hand and is getting from abroad, she will be in a very serious position during 1942 unless she breaks through to Persia and the oil fields of the Near East. This is stated notwithstanding the synthetic oils Germany is making from various coal products.

Watch Russia and Japan Just now Russia is the uncertain quantity. Russia has a fair oil production and has been sending some oil to Germany; but Germany has not been getting as much oil as she needs. Russia, moreover, is in a fix. She does not want Germany or England to win the war; but Russia knows that if she shuts Germany off of oil altogether, then Germany would turn her great war Rumania. With the exception of machine on Russia and probably make Russia give her oil.

The trouble in the Pacific is also a struggle for oil. So far as land is concerned, Japan has already conquered far more than she can use or digest. It is the oil of Borneo and Sumatra which Japan really wants. Germany has promised to divide this with Japan if Germany wins the war. It is oil which the foreign minister of Japan recently discussed with Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin.

Oil From South America

Oil is at the bottom of our "friendly neighbor" policy with Mexico and other Latin-American countries. We have no real love for them, nor have they for us. Europe is the natural market for South American products. Trade will again flow naturally east and west, not north and south, after the war is over. Until then, however, the United States is bribing Mexico and the other Central and South-American oil-producing countries not to ship any oil to Germany, Italy, or other friends of Germany.

To enable Great Britain to supply herself and her Allies with oil is the real reason for the Ethiopian campaign. The Italian colonies are no good per se, but they did endanger Great Britain shipping oil from Persia to England, Greece, Turkey, Egypt, and other British Allies. For the present, this supply is safe. Contrarily, so long as the Suez Canal situation can continue in English control, Germany is endangered. The blockade on the Atlantic is keeping oil from reaching Germany by sea.

Balkan War All-Important

The truth is that Germany is today in a devil of a fix. Bombing England does not give Germany oil; sinking English ships does not give Germany oil. The English know this and hence are calmly taking their punishment on both land and sea. Germany's only hope—outside possibly of Russia—is to protect the oil fields of Rumania and to break through to Persia and Iraq. Hence, the Balkan war is a life-and-death struggle for Germany and Italy; while Britain could lose the Mediterranean and still win the war.

While all this is going on, the United States is preparing to deliver oil by ship, plane, and truck to Great Britain and her Allies. Submerged oil transports are being designed which cannot be spotted by German planes; quantities of oil trucks are being purchased by our government; while our boys are being taught to drive them. The entire English, American, Chinese, and Grecian strategy is being directed to shut off the oil supply of Germany, Italy, Japan and other nations which side with Germany.

Whether or not the above Allied strategy will be successful, only the future can tell. The newspaper reports some days are discouraging. But let no reader get discouraged. It is yet a long, long way from Greece to the oil fields toward which Germany is marching. Furthermore, time is greatly in Great Britain's favor. Germany can easily become "land poor" and collapse because of over-extension.

Boy Scouts Enjoy Mobilization Hike

Friday, April 18 was the day set for the first attempt at a mobilization hike for Boy Scouts of Plymouth. The order for mobilization of troop P-3 was issued at 6 o'clock and at 6:30, 14 Scouts were ready to move to share the responsibility in the mythical disaster. The boys reached the designated destination, the Ridge road school seven miles from the Starkweather school, in one hour and forty minutes.

The 14 Scouts reporting for duty were equipped with seven stretchers; 125 feet of guard rope; seven flashlights; three first-aid kits and five canteens. Only two packs presented had to be remade.

During the first 45 minutes, the Scouts marched in double column, for the second 45 minutes, in single file with complete silence and for the last 20 minutes in extended order with plenty of songs.

The mobilization hike, the first attempted in Plymouth, exceeded expectations. Although much needed equipment was forgotten in the rush to mobilize, the boys were equipped to handle many disaster victims. The following boys and leaders participated in the hike: Ferris Mathias, S. M., John Moore, A.S.M., Phil Williams, Melvin Hunt, John McMann, Noel Hoyer, Jim Willis, Bud McDowell, Bill Schoof, Don Allen, Carl and Vern Rorabacher and Mike Kleinschmidt. Leaders expressed the opinion that America and democracy are secure as long as the spirit of boys such as these prevails.

New School Aid Bill Proposed

A third new bill for state aid to schools has been introduced in the state legislature this week by Eugene B. Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction, following discussion of compromise proposals at the Michigan Education association's state board meeting held at Lansing, George Burr of the Plymouth board of education and George A. Smith, superintendent of Plymouth schools, attended the state board meeting.

The new bill was drafted by Superintendent Elliott following a threatened deadlock between legislative supporters of the two previous bills offered.

A bill proposed by the MEA provided for full equalization, allotting $55 for each grade pupil and $75 for each high school pupil, with a deduction of two and three-fourths mills on the assessed valuation in the school districts, explains Superintendent George A. Smith.

The bill offered by the large cities, which stood to lose under the full equalization bill, provided for state aid at the same rates per pupil but without full equalization. Under this bill, 16 per cent of the state aid appropriation was to be used for equalization for those schools having a lesser assessed valuation back of each child. The so-called "Cities' Bill" divided the state into three groups—those having a school census of 2,000 or more; those between 2,000 and 500; and those with a school census of 500 or less.

Because it was believed that the full equalization proposal could pass in the House with little opposition but would probably fail passage in the Senate, and that the "Cities' Bill" would gain few supporters in the House although it probably would gain approval in the Senate, Superintendent Elliott was asked to draft a compromise bill.

"A compromise bill will probably satisfy no one, but it will be a bill such as will pass in both houses and that is necessary and essential for any bill that is to become a law," declared Superintendent Elliott before the board meeting.

"Under the first two bills introduced in the legislature, Plymouth would not be materially affected. The MEA bill, however, would be better of the two for us. Under the compromise bill, we will not be materially affected because we represent an average school district which is equally provided for in all school aid bills," commented Superintendent Smith.

ATTACK ON AMERICA

THE STORY SO FAR: More than 200,000 foreign troops which had been secretly transported to Mexico suddenly invaded the United States. Intelligence Officer Benning had discovered their plans while a spy in Mexico City where he had gained the confidence of Fincke and Bravot, two enemy officers, but

Colonel Flagwill was asleep at his desk when Benning reported at the War Department in mid-afternoon. The G-2 Chief woke with a start and vigorously shook himself into full wakefulness.

"You've certainly justified your existence again!" Flagwill exclaimed, smiling at his assistant. "We've already ordered the prompt arrest of all Andes stockholders—innocent and guilty alike. That means the biggest spy roundup in history. We can separate sheep from goats after we've arrested the whole lot. Now is no time for half-measures."

Benning said, "I'm sorry Bravot got away, sir."

"He'll be a magician," Flagwill vowed, "if he gets through the nets we've laid for him."

As Flagwill turned back to his littered desk, his eye fell upon a penciled memorandum. He looked up sharply at Benning. "I've just found another little chore for you—to sit in on a very secret party row over successor to the Presidency," Flagwill lowered his voice and spoke rapidly. "A partisan intrigue to force Senator Tannard, Secretary of State, out of the line of succession. It all hinges on the fact that Tannard received an interim appointment from the President last fall, when Secretary Hingdes died. Tannard has not yet been confirmed by the Senate."

"Now, if Congress rejects Tannard's appointment, the Presidency falls by law to Judge Baucum, Secretary of the Treasury. Since Baucum is party leader and wheel horse, it is likely that a swift party coup will bring this about, as Tannard may not want to make a fight for his confirmation under all the circumstances."

On reaching Capitol Hill a few minutes before four o'clock, Benning passed the House Chamber, went downstairs, and took the tunnel-trolley across to the Senate Office Building.

The selected senators, leaders of the party in power, were just arriving when Benning reached the Baucum conference room and was admitted by a Baucum secretary. Secretary Baucum rose promptly when the door closed on the last of those he had summoned. Baucum was a large man, square-faced, straight-lipped, with friendly, level gray eyes.

"Friends, I must announce that there will be a slight delay," Baucum said abruptly. His eyes ran slowly from face to face as if to test the mettle of those present against what he had to say. "I have just sent for Secretary Tannard."

Benning saw an interchange of astonished glances among those present and felt his own brows knit at Baucum's astounding announcement. Tannard long had been known as the particular political foe of Secretary Baucum.

"My reason for asking Tannard here," he said in a low, determined voice, "is I consider him the man best qualified among all of us to lead the country through our present crisis."

Senator Vren, veteran Senate leader, was on his feet. In his taut face was reflected the prevalent astonishment at Baucum's invitation to Tannard.

"Please be informed, sir, that I consulted the majority opinion before we came here. Therefore, I speak their opinion as well as my own when I inform you, sir, that it is your distinguished self we intend to name President of the United States, and this by the simple method of disqualifying Secretary Tannard."

Baucum's face softened to a serene smile, but he slowly shook his massive gray head.

"I appreciate the honor you pay me, Vren," he interrupted. "But we face an emergency, gentlemen, in which men are going to surrender their lives to their sense of duty—just as Captain Boli did. That makes it very easy for me to surrender so small a thing as my personal ambition. From now on we must resolve to smash party considerations without divisions among ourselves. I must set a personal example and confess to you frankly that I am too old and lack the vigor and, frankly, the abilities that are needed at this time."

He paused a moment, his eyes fixed defiantly on Vren, then he went on in a milder voice.

"If your minds, gentlemen, are free of purely partisan prejudices, you will not challenge my proposal of Tannard for President. Tannard has comparative youth and vigor. As Secretary of State, while he is new in that position, he is the lawful successor, unless we disqualify him on mere technicality. He has brains and guts and he has both feet on the ground. He is the man we need to lead us in this emergency, and I intend to do everything within my power looking to his confirmation."

INSTALLMENT FOURTEEN
his warnings had gone unheeded. The President was killed when Washington was bombed. General Brill, commander of the U. S. army in Texas, was opposed by greatly superior forces led by Van Hassek. In spite of Brill's desperate resistance, Van Hassek's troops pushed relentlessly forward. Returning Baucum broke off and his eyes searched each face again as if seeking challenge to the words he had spoken. Only a stunned silence met him. His eyes lifted and a friendly smile wreathed his face as the door of the conference room opened. A tall, erect man stood at the door, gravely hesitant.

"Come right on in, Tannard," Baucum invited. He stepped forward to extend a congratulatory hand and his smile widened as he added, without formality: "I hope your heart is in good shape to stand a hard shock, Senator. But the gentlemen present wish you to serve as President of the United States. Your confirmation will be voted without serious opposition."

Tannard's alert eyes searched the room. He was a man of fifty, physically fit, appearing much younger than his age. His face was angular, strong-featured. Tannard looked the born leader of men, man of action governed by an active, orderly mind.

In his steel-blue eyes there showed no gleam of personal triumph at Baucum's announcement. His emotional response was a tightening of the muscles of his jaw, a drawing erect of his wide shoulders.

Tannard gave his answer in a measured voice.

"Very good, gentlemen, if that is your decision, I accept. Forgive me

"I hope your heart is good."

if I have no platitudes of gratitude to offer, nor promises of performance. I will say only that I deeply deplore the unhappy circumstance that brings about my succession to the Presidency. If your position be confirmed by the Senate I will do my best, and I will expect the full support from you and from every American. If there is nothing further, gentlemen, I'll excuse myself."

CHAPTER XV

Van Hassek's Austrian spy was on hand at the Shorham promptly at eight the next morning. Fincke was glum and jumpy as they ordered breakfast, and from time to time cast covert glances about the dining-room.

"Why the jitters, Fincke?" Benning asked him.

The Austrian took several nervous gulps of coffee and said: "Something's gone wrong, Bromlitz. I want to get out of this town as quick as possible."

"Heard anything from Bravot?"

"No word from anybody, not since the last time I saw you. I can't figure it out, but it's there. Sometimes I think I'm being watched and G-2 has my number." Fincke pushed aside his unfinished breakfast and got up. "Come on, Bromlitz, let's get out of this town!"

Benning asked, as they took a taxicab to the depot, "Did Bravot furnish you with travel authority?"

"Last I heard it was all fixed up. All we have to do is show up at the gangplank and say, 'Passage for Amsterdam. Stateroom twelve.'"

The Austrian turned suddenly to Benning with suspicion glinting in his eyes. "Say, Bromlitz, are you asking for information, or just feeling me out?"

"Isn't it natural, Fincke?" Benning retorted, "for me to satisfy myself you're really got authority to go along? I hope you're not going to spoil everything by getting suspicious of me."

"No, but after the deal I got from Boggio, you can't blame me for wondering if I'm the goat," Fincke muttered. "Sorry if I rubbed you the wrong way."

Fincke's fears relaxed somewhat.

to Washington, Benning met Fincke who had come there to do espionage work for the government, but continued to pose as a friend. Benning soon unearthed the vast spy ring that was operating in this country to learn military secrets and sabotage production. Now continue with the story.

When he and Benning reached New York in early afternoon.

They went to Central Park and walked about deserted paths until time to go to the pier. Promptly at four Fincke presented himself to a hulking Norwegian first mate who stood at the gangplank of the tramp freighter, a single-funnel steamer.

The Fincke formula put them on board without question. Benning noted, as they were escorted by a cabin boy to their stateroom, that the decks were deserted, no preparations to sail were in evidence.

Fincke promptly slammed the door, peeled off his cotton coat, and sprawled on a bunk.

Benning threw off his coat, lay down on his berth, and took up the late New York editions he had bought before coming aboard. Later he meant to force the issue of a reconnaissance of the ship in preparation for the Navy's boarding party.

Headlines screamed the defeat of Mole's Second Division, the capture of San Antonio.

Mole's truck columns had sped his broken infantry and artillery to a new position near Austin along the Colorado River. There he was organizing a new defensive position, reinforced by Texas regiments. Van Hassek columns were moving on Austin for prompt attack.

Van Hassek had taken over San Antonio at daybreak and established headquarters in the City Hall at the old Spanish Plaza. A subordinate, General Alvido, had taken over the government as military governor under a decree of martial law, hauled down the American flag and hoisted the saber flag over the city.

Alvido claimed all of Texas under his decree. A Van Hassek truck column was moving on Galveston to occupy that city, and later, Houston. Air raids had extended north last night. Fort Worth, Dallas, and Shreveport had been heavily pounded with the loss of hundreds of lives. Terror was sweeping other southern cities. Little Rock, Oklahoma City, Montgomery, Birmingham, even Nashville and Atlanta were within bombing range. There was no anti-aircraft now available for these cities. Thousands were fleeing into the hills and countryside.

When he had sketched through the day's news, Benning sat up and made a cast at Fincke.

"What gets me," he complained, "is why we have to go all the way to Amsterdam when there's so much going on in these parts, Fincke."

Fincke snapped erect, his eyes blazing suspicion, and snarled, "You know damned well we're not going to Amsterdam, Bromlitz! What's your game—always feeling me out?"

Benning coolly drawled, "Evidently you suspect I'm a spotter for Boggio or Bravot. If that's in your mind, I resent it."

"Sorry if I blew up again," Fincke relented. "But we're playing for big games this time, Bromlitz, and you can't blame me for being touchy after what happened before."

A Norwegian deckhand brought dinner into their stateroom at six o'clock. Two empty hours followed. At eight o'clock the engines began churning, the Norwegian tramp eased out of her berth and headed down the harbor.

Fincke brightened as the ship cast off, then was attacked by a restlessness that set him pacing the little cabin.

Dusk slowly deepened into night. Benning knew that the ship was spotted by Navy observers, that they would take no chance of letting her slip out of the harbor. He chafed under his inability to break further into the Fincke confidence or to effect a survey of the ship's passengers.

The Austrian suddenly seized his cotton coat and straw hat. "All right, Bromlitz!" he exclaimed excitedly. "It's nine o'clock and pitch dark. Here's where we move out!"

Benning followed the Austrian down the unlighted deck. There was a black huddle of figures at the rail where Fincke halted. Benning's straining eyes, now adjusted to the darkness, made out that the figures were moving over the side.

In a moment Fincke vanished. Benning hesitated, then groped his way down the Jacob's ladder. At the bottom a gasoline launch chugged tenaciously alongside in choppy water. As Benning, following the others, stepped precariously aboard, the launch cast off.

In the vague light shed by a lantern in the bow of the launch, Benning slowly counted noses. There were five passengers, two boatmen. Benning saw that the man beside whom he had found a seat was not Fincke. An intuition warned him, his eyes verified the warning as he traced out the man's profile. The passenger at his elbow was Bravot.

Van Hassek's fugitive spy master silently stared into the wet night. Benning's hand sought the pocket of his cotton coat and released the safety lock of his automatic.

Mawhorters Back From Oklahoma

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Mawhorter who have been spending the last nine weeks in Enid, Oklahoma, have just returned to their home in Plymouth.

"Our trip and visit in Oklahoma was one of the most pleasant we have enjoyed in years. The weather was good most of the time. In fact, we had but little cold weather down there," said Mr. Mawhorter.

"Business is very good down in the southwest. Of course the biggest business in that part of the country is the livestock business. That's about all you hear. Everybody is interested in cattle raising, buying and selling. I saw a lot of remarkably good cattle. But we are glad to be back in Michigan—and you can't beat it anywhere." They visited at the home of Mr. Mawhorter's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Marquis.

Mr. and Mrs. Mawhorter plan soon to go to the summer cabin near Baldwin, where they generally spend the most of each summer.

Local Officers Attend P. E. O. Convention

As a Man Lived

AMERICAN LIVING STANDARDS are the highest in the world. They are so because Americans meet the realities of progress without sacrificing things that bring pleasure, comfort and solace.

Thus it is only fitting that American funeral service should be at a level equally high. A man loved and honored deserves a final tribute in perfect keeping with the life he has lived.

At least, we believe this true, and express our belief in a funeral service conducted with sympathy, sincerity and quiet efficiency.

Collection of Theatrical Programs Reveals A Glorious History

A collection as fascinating as the era it depicts is the accumulation of theatre programs gathered over a long period of years by Frank Henderson of 401 Sunset avenue and part-owner of the Plymouth Plating plant. Old-time theatre-goers would grow nostalgic to turn the pages of his theatrical history which dates back to the Golden Age when Detroit really had a Rialto of a variety of theatres.

Mr. Henderson has attended the legitimate theatre and music halls since he was 17 years old and has a fine appreciation of good theatre fare. He recalls the days when boys used to peddle chocolates and soft drinks through the theatre at intermission time and when every galling young man took his best girl up in the gallery to see shows at the old Temple, Garrick, Lyceum theatres and the Detroit Opera House on Saturday nights.

At one matinee performance of "The Bohemian Girl" at the old Lyceum theatre on Randolph street, he recalls waiting from 2 until 5 o'clock for the director to arrive and start the show.

A glimpse through Mr. Henderson's program collection brings to mind the old musical shows such as the "Ziegfeld Follies" spectacle of 1919, which starred twinkling-toed Marilyn Miller, Eddie Cantor, Eddie Dowling, Bert Williams, the minstrel man, and the famous team of Gus Van and Joe Schenck. The hit song of that show introduced by Irving Berlin was "A Pretty Girl is Like a Melody." In that same year, John Philip Sousa and his band played at the Arena Gardens auditorium.

Many of the stars known to this movie-going generation got their start years ago in musical revues, such as the Four Marx Brothers' Revue which played at the Shubert-Detroit Opera house in 1922, and Eddie Cantor who appeared in "Kid Boots" at the Opera House in 1923, popularizing the song, "Let's Do and Say We Didn't."

Charlotte Greenwood of "So Long Letty" fame, now appearing in screen comedies, was a favorite of the old Temple theatre. In those days, too, an act billed as "Edgar Bergen and Company, artistic ventriloquism," occupied an insignificant place on the program of variety acts at the Temple. Neil Martin who appeared with Jessie Bonstelle's stock company was later known as Neil Hamilton, favorite leading man in the silent movies.

Radio, too, has claimed some of the old musical stars—Burns and Allen, comedian George Price, Joe Cook "the one man vaudeville show," Frank Fay, "Broadway's favorite son," W. C. Fields who appeared in the "George White's Scandals" of 1923 at the Detroit Opera House and Lou Holtz who starred with Ann Pennington in the "George White's Scandals." The lavish extravagance of these "girl shows" is seldom equaled today.

The folks liked heavy melodrama in those days, such as "Uncle Tom's Cabin" which was presented at the Lyceum theatre in Detroit in 1917. Another heavy melodrama was D. W. Griffith's "Way Down East" in which Lillian Gish and Richard Barthelmess were featured in 1921. "Way Down East" is recounted on the program, was based upon an ice-break tragedy at Niagara Falls at that time. Another of these "epics" was "Ben Hur" in which Francis X. Bushman appeared at the Opera House in 1920.

Mr. Henderson saw Willie and Eugene Howard, still popular Broadway comedians, in the Winter Gardens "Passing Show" of 1921, presented by Lee and J. J. Shubert at the Garrick theatre. Eddie Leonard, minstrel singer and soft shoe dancer at the Temple in 1926, and the favorites, Beverly Bayne, Pauline Frederick, Margaret Anglin and Clara Kimball Young.

This faithful theatre-goer has seen all of the Barrymores in their prime—John, Ethel and Lionel as well as their famous kin, John Drew who appeared with red-headed Mrs. Leslie Carter in "The Circle" at the Garrick in 1922. He recalls seeing Drew in "Trelawney of the Wells" just before his death when the great tragedian's eyesight was failing and he had to be led from the wings of the stage.

Before Jessie Bonstelle's own theatre was established in the former Temple Bethel on Woodward avenue, her stock company productions were presented weekly at the Garrick theatre. The company included Minor Watson, Walter Sherwin, Lester Vail, Jessie Royce Landis, Melvyn Douglas and William Powell, who all appeared on the same bill for 25 cents. Other shows which Mr. Henderson witnessed at the Garrick were George Arliss in "The Green Goddess" in 1922 and Ann Harding and Rolfe Peters in "Taming of the Shrew" in 1926.

One of Mr. Henderson's prize programs from recent years is an autographed copy from Paul Muni who appeared in "Key Largo" at the Cass. Mr. Henderson lost his program from this show and wrote to Mr. Muni for a program to keep his collection complete and received an autographed copy.

Through recent years the Hendersons have attended all of the shows at the Cass theatre and last week Mr. Henderson brought his program collection up to date with the Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans production of "Twelfth Night."

New Constable Is Veteran Officer

LeeRoy H. Reimann, recently elected constable of the City of Plymouth, has a long record of law enforcement work behind him. He comes by his work naturally for his father, Fred Reimann, now 76 years old, was a constable before him for years in Plymouth township and also a member of the village police force for ten years.

Father and son worked together on the village police force during the war years, when the late George Springer was chief of police. Others who served on the police department at that time were Fred Steinable, Charles Millard and Charles Thumme, the only remaining member.

A native of Plymouth, Constable-elect Reimann previously served as constable before the city was incorporated. From 1925 to 1931, he acted as special deputy in several states of the West. During the last two years he has been a Wayne County deputy sheriff and has also carried on the work of city constable during the illness of the late Constable George Springer.

Rosedale Gardens

The April meeting of the Rosedale Gardens Book club was held Thursday evening of last week in the club house with Mrs. Lester Bookout as program chairman. There was a large attendance, who greatly enjoyed the travelogue, in colors, given by Mrs. J. A. VanCoevering, of interesting spots in the United States. Mrs. Roger Cooper, Mrs. Lloyd Nelson and Mrs. William King were hostesses for the evening.

More than 80 people attended the Easter dance given Saturday evening by the Civic association in the club house. A profusion of balloons in the pastel shades furnished the decorations and the music was by Bud Schaffer and his orchestra. The hosts for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Fry and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Mier.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ham, of Columbus, Ohio, were weekend guests of the Victor Petschulat and attended the dancing party.

Mrs. William King and Mrs. C. K. Fullerton were in Detroit Wednesday to attend the state luncheon and council meeting of the Woman's National Farm and Garden association held at the Woman's City club.

Mrs. Stanley James was hostess, Thursday, at a delightful luncheon bridge at Rotunda Inn, entertaining the members of her bridge club, who are Mrs. William King, Mrs. William Morris, Mrs. Carl Groth, Mrs. Palmer Fry, Mrs. Ernest Wooster, Mrs. Urban Dugan and Mrs. Robert Bruce.

Mrs. James Kinahan entertained the members of her bridge club Wednesday evening of last week. Those belonging are Mrs. John Hollander, Mrs. Harry Eggleston, Mrs. R. B. Labbe, Mrs. Hector Couti, Mrs. Ed Berger, Mrs. Buck and Mrs. Steintrager.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Baisley and family enjoyed a month's vacation visiting in California, even though they did have unusual weather part of the time. They experienced a hail storm and a dust storm and just missed a tornado.

The following ladies were luncheon bridge guests, Tuesday, of Mrs. James Kinahan: Mrs. N. P. Oakes, Mrs. Hugh Fox, Mrs. Paul Harsha, Mrs. Stanley James, Mrs. Ernest Wooster, Mrs. John Perkins, Mrs. William Morris, Mrs. William King, Mrs. Carl Groth, Mrs. J. B. Folsom and Mrs. Robert Burns. Spring flowers were used in decorating the home for the occasion.

Mrs. J. A. VanCoevering was a luncheon hostess, Tuesday, to the members of the Ingram auxiliary group of the Presbyterian church. On Friday of last week Mrs. Roger Cooper and Mrs. Stafford Francis were joint hostesses at a luncheon for the Ardian group, in the home of Mrs. Cooper.

Marilyn Ames, of Dexter, spent last week with Barbara Buttrick.

Mrs. Fred C. Weibert will be hostess to the Arts and Letters Book club, Tuesday evening. Mrs. C. L. Bowdler will give the book review.

Harry Hansen is leaving soon for the East, where he has accepted a position. Mrs. Hansen and son, Dickie, will join him when school is out.

Jean Laitur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Laitur, was taken to the Detroit Osteopathic hospital, Friday night, ill with appendicitis. She will undergo an operation sometime this week.

The annual spring dinner of the Woman's Club will take place on Thursday, May 1 at 6:30 o'clock. A caterer will be in charge of the dinner and spring flowers will decorate the tables. ## Steel Sinews of Defense

Open-pit mine in Northern Michigan. Only one state produces more iron ore. It costs about $4.36 to mine and deliver a ton of ore to the mills.

The Upper Peninsula of Michigan is ribbed with hills of iron. During the World War period, production of Michigan iron ore reached a peak of 19 million tons a year, and to meet present defense needs it is rapidly climbing again.

Down the Lakes moves an endless chain of boats, carrying iron ore to the blast furnaces and steel mills. And out of the mills, working now at utmost capacity, pours the monster tonnage of forgings, plates and castings required for warships, guns, tanks and planes.

Swift, sure telephone service links mine to dock—ship to shore—mill to market. It reduces delays and bottlenecks—shrinks time and distance. Steel and the telephone are key factors in the Defense of the Nation.

RUTH H. WHIPPLE, Mayor
CLARENCE ELLIOTT, Clerk

City Commissioner under the Charter and laws of the State of Michigan. The qualifications are given to you as you desire. More particularly, you are governed by that part of the Charter found on page 8, Section 28. That section says, "No person shall hold any elective office under this charter unless (I do not yet hold the office of City Commissioner) he shall be at least twenty-five years of age, (I am a citizen of the United States) a citizen of the United States, (I am a freeholder of the City) and a resident thereof for at least two years prior to this election. (I have resided in the City of Plymouth more than two years prior to my election.)"

"Previously I presented to the Commission a deed from the State Land Office Board executed to Perry W. Richwine and Dunbar Davis. This deed was filed April 9, 1941 and was duly recorded on April 17, 1941. (Lot 68 of Plymouth Heights Sub.) I want to show it again at this time. It is a perfectly valid deed and I am at this time a freeholder of the City."

The Chairman asked Mr. Davis to present this deed as Exhibit A. (Liber 5681, Page 207).

"It has been suggested that my qualifications shall not be judged by Section 28 as the Charter was amended which required that the person be a freeholder for two years. I believe my qualifications for office will be judged as the Charter was at the time of the election. A retroactive law will not be worth the paper it is written on. So, I submit this deed as a freeholder of the City."

"The first deed, Liber 5634, Page 27, runs from the State Land Office Board under the name of Perry W. Richwine and Dunbar Davis. This deed was filed April 9, 1941 and was duly recorded on April 17, 1941. (Lot 68 of Plymouth Heights Sub.) I want to show it again at this time. It is a perfectly valid deed and I am at this time a freeholder of the City."

"On previous occasions I have explained the law to the Commission as I understood it that the changing of this deed was certainly valid. I am convinced under the law of the State that that deed as altered, if it were altered, by Mr. Richwine, would be valid investing one-half interest in the piece of property to me. Several attorneys have assured me that it was a perfectly valid deed; so, I took no further steps."

"At this time I wish to read to the Commission parts of this document to show that this deed that was altered, if it were altered, vests one-half interest to me."

"Exhibit B—Abstract and Title Guaranty Co. — No. F 109584. This Policy of Title Insurance Witnesseth that the Abstract and Title Guaranty Co. of Detroit, Michigan, in consideration of the payment of the agreed premium and charges for examination of title, does hereby insure the City of Plymouth or its successors against all loss or damage, not exceeding One Thousand Dollars which the insured shall sustain by reason of failure or unmarketability of the title of Perry W. Richwine and Dunbar Davis to the real estate or interest in real estate described in Schedule A, at the date hereof, excepting only such liens, incumbrances and other matters as are set forth in Schedule B, and subject to the conditions and stipulations, which, together with the aforesaid schedules, are hereto annexed and made a part of this policy."

"In Witness Whereof the Abstract and Title Guaranty Co. has caused its corporate seal to be affixed and the presents to be signed by its duly authorized officer this 19th day of April in the year one thousand nine hundred forty-one."

"Signed by Vice-President and Asst. Sec.-Treasurer."

"The above Exhibit B has reference to Lot 189 of Sunset Addition to Plymouth Village."

"I wish to read at this time Sec. 17, page 14 of the Charter of the City of Plymouth: 'No member of the Commission, nor any elective or appointive officer of the City shall be co-partner, director, officer, or agent of, or be directly or indirectly in the employ of any person, firm, company or corporation holding or seeking to hold any franchise from or contract with the City of Plymouth; nor shall any member of the Commission or any other officer or employee of the City be directly or indirectly interested in any work, business or contract, the expense, price, or consideration of which exceeds One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) in any one year and which is paid from municipal moneys or by any assessment levied by ordinance or resolution of the Commission.' The First National Bank is a corporation."

"Also, I shall read at this time Section 12, page 68 of the Charter of the City of Plymouth: 'Any officer or employee of the City, who, by solicitations or otherwise, shall exert his influence directly or indirectly to influence other officers or employees of said City to adopt his political views or to favor any particular person or candidate for office, or who shall in any manner contribute money, labor, or other valuable things to any person for election purposes, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding One Hundred Dollars ($100.00), or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days. He who is without blemish cast the first stone.'"

Mr. Crandall asked permission to take the floor.

"I am a taxpayer of the City of Plymouth, a freeholder of the City and interested in good government and I have been requested to come up here in behalf of this election. I am not proud at all to hear an Attorney at law argue to this Commission that by tampering with a deed that had been signed, sealed and delivered, that the qualifications of two ways that title of real estate can be transferred. A person becomes the owner of real estate the very instant it is delivered and accepted. And when Mr. Richwine got the deed from the State Land Office Board right then Mr. Richwine became vested with the real estate. A deed made, signed and sealed with signatures vests title. The other way to make a transfer is by a valid will. It is not possible to transfer real estate except by making a valid deed, so that the addition of name and grantee is absolutely void. Another thing, I am not proud at all that he gets some insurance company to give him a letter stating they would guarantee the title to the City of Plymouth. I might just as well go and get a twenty-year insurance policy as proof that I am going to live another 20 years. If you do not transfer title to real estate by getting title insurance, just because somebody guarantees it, title is not vested. I like to hear an Attorney argue fairly that a deed is absolutely void. You do not transfer title by altering deeds. I asked Mr. Cochran and he never heard of it being done before. I have never heard of it myself."

"Of course this Commission is the judge for the consideration of the qualifications of Dunbar Davis as City Commissioner. I do not like to have misapprehension in guiding you in making your decision."

Mr. Jolliffe asked Mr. Crandall the following questions: "If you are transferring a piece of property and one party gives a deed to the other where do you go to find out whether or not this deed has been recorded?" Mr. Crandall informed him at the Register of Deeds office. Mr. Jolliffe then replied, "All right, the Register of Deeds Office is a Wayne County Organization which we spend lots of money to keep up. If they will accept a document and get it recorded, that is not proof of ownership?"

"No," replied Mr. Crandall, "there are lots of deeds recorded that are not correct. It shows what papers have been recorded." Mr. Jolliffe asked Mr. Crandall if he thought the deed was fraudulent. Mr. Crandall replied, "It is intimated that the fact exists that isn't existing."

Mr. Jolliffe made the remark that everything is right until proved wrong. "We have, as yet, no records proving otherwise. It is, therefore, right until proved otherwise."

Mr. Crandall stated that he understood that the photostatic copy of the deed (Lot 189 of Sunset Add.) showed that a name had been added to a deed which was not legal. Comm. Whipple informed Mr. Crandall that the photostatic copy of the deed did show what he had mentioned.

The Chairman, Mr. Deyo, asked if any member of the Commission wished to offer this photostatic copy of the deed, Lot 189 of Sunset Add., Liber 5634, Page 27, which was filed January 10, 1941 and recorded in the Register of Deeds office, as evidence. Comm. Robinson presented the photostatic copy as evidence, marked exhibit C.

Mr. Deyo then asked some member of the Commission to present the copy of the deed as certified by the State Land Office Board on the 11th day of April, 1941, as a true copy of the copy of the deed delivered to P. W. Richwine through Mary Richwine—February 13, 1941. Comm. Whipple offered this as evidence along with the sales slip, No. 119-552, marked exhibit D. Comm. Whipple also wished to mention that Mr. Davis had remarked to the Commission before that he had not seen the deed until two hours before presentation and that he had not been to the State Land Office Board to get same altered. Mr. Crandall looked at exhibits and stated they were conclusive evidence of alteration. He then read the Home Rule Act for Cities, Sec. 2230 of the Compiled Laws of 1929 which provides that "Each City Charter shall provide: (d) Officers. For the qualifications, duties and compensation of its officers. It is up to the Commission, therefore, to say what is the clear and valued meaning of this charter. Adding a name to a deed is no sign of ownership of property. As far as the qualification of officers, the Supreme Court has something to say about that. We think the legislative body has the power to determine the qualifications of elective officers. It is up to the Commission to decide whether the qualifications are fairly and rightfully met as the qualifications are meant in the meaning of the Charter. Ownership shall be for two years. An owner of property is one who has owned property for two years and has paid taxes on it for two years then that is a qualification that is required to sit on the Commission. It is up to the Commission whether that qualification is met. As to acquiring property before his election, that is not sufficient proof of ownership."

Comm. Jolliffe then stated that it had been done before. It was done six years ago. Mr. Crandall then stated that what a former Commission did should not lead this Commission into same error. Comm. Jolliffe then stated, "They promptly saw the error or they would not have changed the charter."

Comm. Whipple then mentioned that sometime ago a person, under this provision of the Village Charter (Much of the new charter was copied from the Village Charter) was not allowed to sit on the Commission. He was elected by the people but they refused to seat him on the Commission under this provision. This person was Dr. Jennings who is now dead but he was not seated under this charter provision. To clear myself, I would like to say that I interpreted the Charter then as I interpret it now. There is no comma between City and the word and, and it seems to me that it is very clear that you should be a freeholder for two years. I voted against seating the Commissioner six years ago."

Comm. Whipple then asked Mr. Davis the following question: "Mr. Davis, you used the term freeholder in listing your qualifications for Commissioner. You stated that you were a freeholder of the city of Plymouth. May I ask exactly what you are basing your freeholdership on, one deed or two?" Mr. Davis replied, "I was basing my freeholdership on the first deed and the second deed as executed by Perry W. Richwine and his wife. I am assuming that it is not necessary to be a freeholder for two years; it is necessary for the person to be a freeholder momentarily, previous to holding office. If that is correct and the first deed is not acceptable, I base my qualifications on the second deed."

Comm. Hondorp then asked for the floor.

"I certainly feel that our Prosecutor's office should know something about the law and we have opinions about the ownership of deeds and lands. Three Commissioners went down to the Prosecutor's office and asked for opinions in writing on three questions which we have here. I would like Comm. Whipple to present them as evidence, comm. Whipple presented them as Exhibit E."

Honorable Ruth H. Whipple, Mayor of City of Plymouth, Michigan Dear Madam:

We have your request for an opinion regarding the interpretation of Sec. 28 of Chapter 2 of the Charter of the City of Plymouth, which reads as follows:

"No person shall hold any elective office under this charter unless he shall be at least twenty-five (25) years of age, a citizen of the United States, a freeholder of the City and resident thereof for at least two years prior to his election, except as herein otherwise provided."

Your letter presents this question: "In your opinion does this mean that an elected official must have been a freeholder for two years, a freeholder for two years prior to the election or two years prior to the time of taking office?"

For a clear concise expression of the rule of interpretation to be used with reference to statutes and other enactments, we refer to Sec. 76 of Michigan Compiled Laws, 1929, and quote therefrom:

"All words and phrases shall be construed and understood according to the common and approved usage of the language."

The term "election" is not synonymous with the phrase "time of taking office," and it would do violence to the language to contend that the charter in question intended that they should be used interchangeably. It seems to us that the language of Sec. 28 is plain and unequivocal and permits of no misunderstanding or ambiguity."

We are, therefore, constrained to conclude that by the manifest intention of the terms of Sec. 28 of Chapter 2, of the Charter of the City of Plymouth, no person is entitled to hold an elective office in this city unless he has been a freeholder for at least two years prior to election day."

Very truly yours,
By SAMUEL BREZNER,
Asst. Prosecuting Attorney.

Comm. Whipple asked the City Clerk to read the letters from the County Clerk and the Sec. of State acknowledging the filing of the six charter amendments. This was marked exhibit F.

April 10, 1941

"Received of C. H. Elliott, City Clerk of the City of Plymouth, certification of six (6) Charter Amendments to the Charter of the City of Plymouth, Michigan, as approved and adopted by the vote of the electors at the annual city election held on Monday, April 7, 1941."

CASPAR J. LINGEMAN
County Clerk.
April 10, 1941.

Mr. C. H. Elliott, City Clerk, Plymouth, Michigan Dear Sir:

This will acknowledge receipt of two copies each of the six amendments to the charter of the City of Plymouth which were voted on at the election held on April 7, 1941; also the certification of the vote cast for and against the adoption of the amendments.

These proceedings were filed in this office under date of April 10, 1941.

Sincerely yours,
HARRY F. KELLY,
Secretary of State.

Comm. Whipple then read the second letter from the Prosecutor's office which was in answer to a statement made by Mr. Davis that it was a common practice and did not change in any way the value of the deed. Mr. Davis stated that he was misunderstood. He had merely stated that the attorneys he had talked to had mentioned that it was a common practice with them. Comm. Whipple said that his statement at the time was that it was perfectly all right to alter a deed. This was confirmed by Comm. Hondorp. Mr. Davis again stated that he was misunderstood; that what he meant to say was that it was all right to alter some types of deeds.

Exhibit G was shown at this time.

Hon. Ruth H. Whipple, Mayor of City of Plymouth, Michigan Dear Madam:

We are in receipt of your letter dated April 19, last, subscribed yourself and Commissioners Hondorp and Robinson. Your letter deals with a deed given by the state of Michigan to Perry W. Richwine.

The deed in question does not coincide with the copy of an instrument furnished by the Land Office of the state of Michigan. In the latter, the name Dunbar Davis did not appear, while in the original Davis name appears to have been inserted as one of the grantees, prior to the recording thereof. Unless the records of the State of Michigan are grossly erroneous, there has been a material alteration of the deed by which Davis now seeks to establish his qualifications as a freeholder.

You ask the following questions with reference to such alteration:

"Is such altering of deeds a common practice?"

"Is such altering of deeds legal?"

To both of these questions our answer must be emphatically in the negative. We cannot conceive of any serious claim that this is a common practice. It is reprehensible and not sanctioned by law. In a proper case it might be the subject of prosecution."

Very truly yours,
By SAMUEL BREZNER,
Asst. Prosecuting Attorney.

The Chairman, Harry Deyo, at this time asked Mr. Davis the following question:

"Mr. Davis, what I think does not have any bearing on the case whatsoever. This discussion raises my curiosity from the legal standpoint. In the first place the State Land Office Board decided that the Commission has been talking about was signed by State officials so that when the State officials executed the deed, would the grantee or anyone else have a right to change that?"

"Yes, I think they would," replied Mr. Davis. "The thought that occurred to me from a legal standpoint is that no other person but a state officer would have the right to change that. If the deed were originally issued by the State Land Office Board to the first grantee and then another name was added and the first grantee, Perry W. Richwine, had a wife, what would be the affect of your title insurance if you were to prove that the title is good? Would Mr. Richwine's wife, not having signed the deed indicating her agreement, still have her dower rights?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Davis, "what interest he received under the deed would be subject to dower rights."

Comm. Whipple then asked Mr. Davis the following questions:

"At our meeting of April 15, 1941, Mr. Davis, you made the statement that you had never seen the deed until two hours before you presented it to the Commission on April 8, 1941. Did we understand you correctly?"

Mr. Davis replied, "That was partly correct." "He had had the deed in his hand some time in February when Mr. Richwine handed it to him, but that he had never looked at the contents of it until two hours before he presented it to the Commission," remarked Comm. Whipple, "that the Commission had no right to go back of the deed, that there was no moral question involved; and, at that time, you remember we asked you that if you knocked somebody down in front of the city hall and took the deed from his pocket and added your name to it and presented it to the Commission, should the Commission accept it as proper evidence of your being a freeholder. Your answer on April 15, 1941, was that it did not make any difference how you got the deed. Do you still feel that way about it?"

Mr. Davis replied, "You misunderstood me." Comm. Hondorp confirmed Comm. Whipple's statement, saying that he remembered it as Comm. Whipple had just presented it. Mr. Davis still maintained that he was misunderstood.

The Chairman, Mr. Deyo, asked Mr. Davis if he had any further evidence or discussion which he wished to present at this time. Mr. Davis stated that he did not.

The following resolution, was offered by Comm. Hondorp and supported by Comm. Whipple:

WHEREAS, according to the records on file, the interpretation of the City Charter of Plymouth and according to the legal opinions of the Prosecutor's office, Dunbar Davis does not qualify for the office of City Commissioner.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that Dunbar Davis shall not be seated.

Inspirations

In spring a college student's fancy turns to thoughts of—well this is the way one ex-P. H. S'er puts it:

"Last week I was a woman-hater. During the balmy, balmy, balmy spring weather this week-end, I weakened, and last night—oh, the sweet torture of it—I had a date to go canoeing; it was terrifying—the dark, the full moon, a beautiful damsel, the spring, the soft lapping of the water, alone in the whispering woods . . . but we didn't go canoeing. The things I had imagined didn't come true (d...it!) It was a triple date, and one of the fellows was deathly afraid of the water, bless his heart! So we went to a show."

"Of course it was a blind date (how else could I get one?) and two of the three girls we had were twins—here's where the catch comes in—who dressed alike, looked and acted alike and were equally charming. Anyway, we flagged a bus, and the girls got on, and I got on, and paid the fare, and walked down the aisle to where the girls were sitting on one side of the aisle and the other on the other side, and there I stood, not knowing for the life of me which was Jean, and which one was Jane. So I stood there like a fool and scratched my head, looking from one to the other. The people on the bus all having discerned the situation and laughing wildly. Finally, amid this raucous laughter, one of the fellows came along mercifully and shoved me into the right seat. By that time I was blushing worse than Pinky Folsom ever did, and Jean (I'm pretty sure it was Jean) looked up innocently and said, 'Have you been down South lately? Nice sunburn you have.' Later in the evening we passed two men standing in front of a tavern and agreed they were drunk. 'Do you see two girls in red blouses coming, Joe?' the one said. 'Yeah,' replied the other. 'We must be drunk.'"

Well, the Easter bunny has been and gone and out of the egg rolling arose this new column. But we hope it doesn't lay any eggs.

Aren't teachers the lucky ones though? After a whole week of vacationing they get off (?) another day for Teachers' Institute. Oh, for the life of a teacher!

Wasn't it a crime to have a new spring outfit and arrive in church Easter morning only to find three more just like it? And talking about church our minister wished us all a "Merry Xmas" because he didn't expect to see so many of us again until next Easter.

Tennis, golf, baseball and track are all set for the opening gun and a flying start. We were told that the reason Jim McAllister is a shining star in tennis is because his opponent can't see him for the net! We marvel at Pro Zuckerman's consistency—that is his consistency in hitting high scores! The nine will have to do without the services of Fielder Lee and if you hear him mumbeling around the halls you can just bet he's saying "Work! That's vulgar."

We presume that many a fine romance will be broken because the boy decided to get a brush hair cut. The boys like them because it keeps the girls from getting in their hair and the girls dislike them because they look as if they should be wearing a number.

We've heard many fine compliments about the good job our police chief is doing of keeping the halls quiet. More power to you, Chiefie! Also we believe our mare is a horse for work.
