Committee Donates $30 for Feeding Child in Plymouth

The executive board of the Namesake Town committee at its meeting Monday evening voted a $30 appropriation for the feeding of one child in Plymouth, England. The board also acknowledged receipt of a $100 pledge from Harry Lush, the first contribution to the Namesake Town committee fund to aid citizens of Plymouth, England. The local group plans to solicit churches and clubs of this city for further contributions, and the committee will circulate letters next week appealing for a "Bridge of Dimes" to start the committee's cavalcade of mercy on its way.

"Over this bridge, we hope will roll the material and spiritual help that will build a new hope and faith in the hearts of the citizens of our namesake, Plymouth, England," declares Arno B. Thompson, chairman of the committee.

The local group is working through the Save-the-Children Federation of America, a sister organization to the Save-the-Children fund of England, which has been on the job since 1919 working among the children who were made orphans during the last war. Since the bombing of England began, the group has worked with the British government. Representatives of the Food Ministry in England this week declared that the biggest experiment in communal feeding ever undertaken has been started to feed all the 250,000 civilians in Plymouth, England. Special cooking units are being brought to Plymouth. From central kitchens, food will be carried

Postoffice Names Three Appointees

Three postoffice appointments were announced yesterday following a conference with Washington. Carl Foster, who has served two years as a temporary substitute mail carrier, has been appointed a classified substitute carrier. Foster is now delivering mail on the new city route, No. 4, which was created recently.

Mrs. Pearl Carpenter who has served as a temporary clerk in the postoffice since last fall has been appointed a classified substitute clerk. George Wilson, the third appointee, who lives at 191 East Ann Arbor Trail, is a new addition to the postoffice staff of employees. He has been appointed a classified substitute clerk also. ## Shows Wildlife Film

JACK VAN COEVERING

Sportsmen's Club to Meet Monday

Pheasants strutting across the screen big as life, bluebirds snapping at ice flies, rabbits bounding through the snow and deer galloping into the eyes of the audience are some of the scenes depicted in the natural-color motion picture "A Year Outdoors," which Jack Van Coevering, wildlife editor for The Detroit Free Press will show on Monday, May 5 at 8 p.m. at the Western Wayne County Conservation association at the Mallow hotel.

The film has been shown to many groups throughout the state and has received high praise from sportsmen and nature lovers everywhere. In addition to the wildlife, there is a snowshoe trip to the Tahquamenon Falls, a summer fishing trip to the Les Cheneaux Islands, Potagannissing Bay and Munuscong Bay, and a trout fishing trip by canoe on the Perle Marquette river. Perhaps the high spot in the film is a close-up of a mother robin feeding her young, in which she comes to the nest and feeds one robin after another with a single "load" of bugs.

Pheasant hunters will enjoy the unusual pictures of pointers and setters at work in the field, and close-up color shots of pheasants running before the dog. The picture concludes with a deer hunting trip in the Upper Peninsula and a rabbit hunting expedition near Houghton lake.

In addition to writing his daily and Sunday column for The Free Press, Van Coevering is the author of frequent articles in national magazines, and the author of two books for juveniles, "Real Boys and Girls Go Birding" and "A-Hiking We Will Go." The latter will be out in May of this year, and will include more than 100 of his photographs.

Ford Company Starts Construction of New Addition at Phoenix Plant

Workmen have started the construction of an addition to the Phoenix plant of the Ford Motor company. The new structure is located on the south side of the present building and will be completed probably within the next six weeks or two months.

It will be a two-story structure, of the same type of construction as the present building. It will be about 22 or 23 feet wide and will extend the entire width of the Phoenix plant.

The first floor will be utilized for a tool room and also house some of the electrical equipment.

The second floor will be made into an attractive lunch room for the 200 or more women who are employed in the Phoenix plant. This is the first addition that has ever been built on any of the smaller Ford plants located along the Rouge river.

As an indication of the exceptional care used by the Ford company during construction work, all of the sod of the lawn that is being utilized for present building activities has been carefully removed and when the work is completed the lawn will be restored to its former attractive condition.

The parklike planting around the Phoenix plant makes the place one of attractive factory grounds in this part of the state.

A public hearing will be held at the meeting of the city commission on May 19 to consider changes in the city zoning areas which were recommended by the planning commission following its meeting Monday night.

The second amendment is a clarification of the zoning ordinance relative to the location of public utilities.

D.A.R. Dedicates Marker on Site of Toll Gate to Old Plank Road

A bronze plaque mounted on a stone marker at the corner of North Mill street and Plymouth road on the site of toll gate No. 4 was dedicated by the Sarah Ann Cochran chapter of the D.A.R. of Plymouth Monday afternoon. The plaque marks the old Plymouth plank road, chartered March 5, 1850, and the site of the toll gate entrance to the road which was operated from about 1851 to 1872.

Following an invocation from the chapter's chaplain, Mrs. Edward Cutler, the pledge of allegiance to the flag and a brief message from Mrs. Osmond Heavens, state regent of the D.A.R., Mrs. Sidney D. Strong, chairman of the marker committee, read a history of the toll gate. Mrs. Cutler then read a poem of her own composition, after which Mrs. Merle Bennett presented the historical marker to the city. Mayor Ruth Huston Whipple responded with a speech of acceptance on behalf of the city of Plymouth. Commissioners George Robinson and Robert Joffile also attended the ceremonies. Commissioner

Building Activity Reaches Season's Peak at $34,390

Six New Homes Under Construction for Local Residents

Spring building activity reached a new high in Plymouth during the month of April with a total of 30 building permits issued at a total estimated valuation of $34,390.

Six new homes are now under construction in the city, and many home-owners have taken out permits for remodeling and building additions to their homes.

A two-story house of wood siding, construction with seven rooms and bath is being built at 1312 West Ann Arbor Trail at the corner of McKinley avenue by Contractor Ernest W. Rossow for Harry Mumby. The estimated cost of the new Mumby residence is $7800.

Dr. B. E. Champe, Plymouth dentist, is also building a new house on the south side of Hard street between Burroughs and Edison. The building plans call for a one and a half story house of frame construction, 30x24 feet, to accommodate five rooms and bath. G. B. Crumbe is the contractor in charge of the construction which is valued at an estimated cost of $5000.

Construction has also been started on a new house at 449 Evergreen between Blanche and Farmer streets for Steve Wall, an employee of the Detroit House of Correction. R. F. Widmaier is contractor for the new five-room house which is estimated at a cost of $3800.

The Sheldon Land company applied for building permits to construct two new houses in Plymouth, to be located at 496 Ann street and 1149 Dewey street. Both houses of frame construction are estimated at a cost of $4000.

Guy Fisher is building a four-room house at 690 Forest street between Wing and Brush streets. The one-story house, 31x26 feet, is being built at an estimated cost of $4000 also.

A commercial building permit was issued to the Ruetz Lumber company for an addition, 20x86 feet, to the lumber shed at 443 Amelia street, the estimated cost of which is $500.

Mrs. Ada Murray New President

Mrs. Ada Murray was elected president of the League of Women Voters at its annual meeting last Friday afternoon held in the home of Mrs. John Scheel of Brainerd road.

Other officers elected include Mrs. James Sessions, first vice-president in charge of publicity; Mrs. John Scheel, second vice-president in charge of program; Mrs. A. L. Pittinger, third vice-president in charge of membership; Mrs. Clarence Elliott, recording secretary pro-tem; Mrs. Arthur Mills, corresponding secretary, and Miss Anne Donnelly, treasurer. The meeting also included the reading of annual reports.

The next meeting of the League will be held at the home of Mrs. Bruce Woodbury, on Friday afternoon, May 9, at 1:45 o'clock. Members will discuss a booklet distributed by the national division of the League of Women Voters entitled, "Battle of Redaction," which deals with the defense labor situation and proposed anti-strike legislation. The meeting will mark a resume of the year's work as well as plans for the next year's activities.

Mrs. Roy Hopd entertained the members of her bridge club of Detroit ladies, Friday evening, in her home on Penniman avenue.

Robinson was present at the dedication of the concrete road from Plymouth to Detroit on the same site. The stone marker was unveiled by Betty Lou and Cynthia Baker.

"It's a far cry from the days of the Plank Road and the Toll Gate which we have marked to the wide level paved roads with wider intersections which we have today. Nobody would want to go back to the days of travel by horses and stages or horse and buggy. However, it would be very interesting to go back and take the ride in imagination from Grand River avenue to Plymouth over the old Plank Road," declared Mrs. Strong.

"This road, you may remember, followed the present Chicago boulevard as far as Greenfield, thence north on Greenfield to the present Plymouth road. It is difficult for us to imagine that section of Wayne county without the mushroom growth of small homes which has taken the place of the beautiful well-tilled farms of that day. An old 1860 map shows the farms of the Shattuck family, the Durfee, Riders, Armstrongs, McKinney, Fisher, Kenyon, Otis and even John Strong.

"The Plymouth Plank Road was incorporated by the laws of Michigan in 1850. Jonathan Shearer, Henry Erlick, Ebenezer J. Pennington, Henry B. Holbrook, Asa H. Otis, Edward Benedict and A. Fisher were commissioners who received subscriptions to capital stock of the Plymouth Plank Road company. The incorporators were given power to lay out and construct a plank road from Plymouth through Livonia, Redford and Greenfield until it intersected some other plank road leading into Detroit. This was Grand River," Mrs. Strong reviewed in her history.

"They were given power to issue capital stock of $20,000 in $20 shares with power to increase this to $30,000. This road's charter was to remain in force for a term of 60 years from its passage on March 5, 1850. That would have kept it in force to 1910. Later by the Michigan act of 1881, the Plymouth Plank Road could lay out and construct a road to Waterford and Northville, then to Novi, and also to lay out a branch of the Plymouth road from the main route in Plymouth township to some convenient point in Plymouth Corners, the present corner of Main street and Ann Arbor Trail. By the Plank Road Act of 1848 there was to be a gate every five miles.

Guests Laud the New Hillside

Hundreds of friends and patrons of the Hillside Barbecue who attended the formal opening last Saturday of the new scenic dining room highly complimented Jake Stremich upon the improvements he has made in his busy place. While he had expected a larger than usual crowd, he was surprised to find that from early afternoon until late at night his present dining room was filled to capacity.

A remarkably interesting view over the tops of the trees in beautiful Plymouth-Riverside park can be had from the new dining room.

Mr. Stremich has requested that The Mail express to his host of friends his appreciation for the many complimentary expressions they have made of his new improvement. It has been his policy since starting the Hillside to continue to expand and improve it as fast as increased business justified.

Carl L. Heide, Retired Florist, Dies Saturday

Served Many Years as Trustee on City Cemetery Board

Carl L. Heide, retired local florist, died at St. Carmel hospital, Detroit, last Saturday evening following a few days' illness.

Mr. Heide was born in Germany September 19, 1868. At the age of 14, he started working for George A. Starkweather at the greenhouse then located on Liberty street and Starkweather avenue. About 40 years ago, he started in business for himself at the site now occupied by the Buick garage, later building on the corner of Mill and Liberty streets where he became one of Plymouth's leading florists. Two years ago his poor health forced him to dispose of his business.

In 1912, he was married to Mrs. Ada Hangstefter of Ann Arbor, whose death in 1934 marked the beginning of Mr. Heide's decline in health.

Until a few years ago, Mr. Heide was an active member in both the Knights of Pythias lodge and the Kiwanis club. He served for many years as a member of the local cemetery board.

His genial disposition, his interest in public welfare and his keen sense of humor won him many friends who will greatly miss his companionship.

The survivors are his five sisters, Mrs. Charles Lyvande of Livonia, township, Mrs. Jacob Streng, Mrs. Albert Gayde, Mrs. William Sutherland and Mrs. Louis Gerst, all of Plymouth, and his step-daughter, Mrs. Roy E. Crowe also of Plymouth.

Funeral services were conducted from the Schrader Funeral home Tuesday afternoon, following a short prayer service for the family at the home on Mill street. The Reverend Walter Nichol officiated. Burial was in the mausoleum at Riverside cemetery.

Two hymns were rendered by Mrs. J. T. Chapman, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. M. J. O'Connor. The honorary pallbearers were the city of Plymouth commissioners. The active pallbearers were Messrs. Roy Crowe, Arthur Herberts, Otto Beyer, Grant Stimpson, Esten Gray and Reinhold Ruch.

Mrs. L. E. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Joffile, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Joffile and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Joffile are planning to attend the wedding of Elizabeth Stewart Robins and Charles Donald Hicks, of Highland Park, Saturday, which will take place in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Robins, on Farrand Park.

Defense Bonds Go On Sale At Postoffice

Health Officer Urges Re-Vaccination to Prevent Small Pox

"During the last few months, smallpox has shown a steady increase of outbreaks throughout the lower part of Michigan and the disease has assumed a virulent form," declared Dr. Luther Peck, city health officer, yesterday.

"Several localities bordering on Wayne county have been seriously handicapped because of rigid restrictions placed upon communities where the disease occurs. For this reason, the health department of our city urges re-vaccination to all who have not been vaccinated within the last five years.

"Parents of school children should protect all the members of the home by being re-vaccinated now and thus prevent quarantine later. All food-handlers should immunize themselves against possible infection. The health officer urges you, Mr. Citizen, and your children to be vaccinated against smallpox at once. To those unable to pay for this work, the family doctor will not refuse you," said Dr. Peck in a signed statement to The Plymouth Mail.

The special matinee May 10 will mark the wind-up of the Clean-Up Week campaign in which every citizen may play a part in improving the appearance of the city.

PROCLAMATION

To the Citizens of Plymouth: Our Junior Chamber of Commerce has asked that we set aside the period from May 5 to May 12 as our annual Clean-Up week. Most of our residents have already cleaned up their lawns and gardens, many persons are painting their homes, the oil for dust-laying of the city streets has been authorized by the city commission and ordered by the city manager, the employees who are responsible for municipal garbage and rubbish collection have been working overtime to carry away the extra rubbish that comes with the annual spring clean-up. All that remains to be done is for all of us to do our best to keep our streets and parks free from waste papers. Within 24 hours after municipal employees have cleaned up all papers on the downtown streets, that area is frequently a sight of whirling papers and boxes again. Let us all cooperate with the JayCees in their effort to solve this problem.

Therefore, as mayor of Plymouth, I proclaim May 5 to May 12 as our annual Clean-Up Week.

RUTH H. WHIPPLE, Mayor of the City of Plymouth.

Postal Savings Stamps Offered in Small Denominations Also

United States Defense Savings bonds and Postal Savings stamps were placed on sale at the Plymouth postoffice on Thursday morning as a part of the national effort to make America impregnable.

Elton R. Eaton, active Republican, was the first purchaser of defense bonds in Plymouth. When the government announced some months ago that it proposed to issue defense bonds, the first buyer immediately filed his application with the Plymouth postoffice for the first bonds to be sold in this city. When the bonds went on sale Wednesday, May 1, Eaton's application was the first one on file and the department honored it without hesitation. Although hostile to Washington's crackpot methods of conducting public affairs, Eaton is a strong advocate of the national defense program.

The announcement of selling defense bonds is reminiscent of the "liberty bond" campaign during the last war. The new Defense Savings bond is similar to the familiar "Baby Bond" of which more than five billion dollars worth have been bought by more than two and a half million Americans since 1935.

The Plymouth United Savings bank, according to Russell Daane, will also sell defense bonds in cooperation with the government.

A defense bond may be purchased for $18.75. In ten years, this bond will be worth $25.00. This is an increase of 33 and a third per cent, equal to an annual interest return of 2.9 per cent, compounded semi-annually. Anytime after 60 days from the date of purchase, the bond may be redeemed for cash, in accordance with a table of redemption values printed on the face of the bond.

To spread investments widely among all the people in America, a limit of $5,000 has been set on the amount of these bonds to be bought by any one person in one year. The bonds are in denominations of $25, $50, $100, $500 and $1,000, all of which are sold for 75 per cent of their maturity value and all of which mature in ten years. For larger investors who want to purchase up to $50,000 worth of bonds a year, the treasury department has issued two additional kinds of defense savings bonds, to be sold only through banks and by direct mail from Washington, D. C. They are intended for associations, trustees and corporations, as well as individual purchasers.

For the smaller investor who wants to buy a government bond on an easy payment plan, the postoffice has a new series of postal savings stamps, at 10, 25 and 50 cents, $1 and $5. Each purchaser of any savings stamp higher than 10 cents will be given an attractive pocket album in which to paste his stamps until he has enough to buy a $25 bond or one of higher denomination.

The cover design of these albums is in color, featuring a United States battleship and an eagle bearing the American flag. On the back cover is a painting of the Minute Man statue by Daniel Chester French, which symbolizes the American citizen ever alert in defense of his country. The inscription is "America on Guard."

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau declares that even a boy or girl who saved 10 cents to buy a savings stamp would help the country. He added that "you can safeguard your own money and your own future, while helping the national defense, by buying United States Savings Bonds now."

Fire Department Does Fine Job

The Plymouth fire department gave a creditable performance in its speed and efficiency in answering the emergency call to fight the fire at the Novi Equipment company's factory Monday afternoon. The Plymouth department arrived at the scene of the fire ahead of other neighboring departments who had less distance to travel.

Thirteen local volunteers responded to the call to fight the flames for nearly three hours. Seven departments rushed to the fire including Plymouth, Northville, Walled Lake, House of Correction, Brighton, Novi and Farmington. The fire broke out in three parts of the building in paint departments, damaging stock in process of finish.

Mrs. Carlton Lewis was hostess, Wednesday afternoon, at a dessert meeting of the Mission Study class of the Methodist church, Mrs. R. H. Steininger of Northville, was present and reviewed "Dangerous Opportunity." About 30 ladies enjoyed Mrs. Lewis' hospitality.

100 Attend Cancer Lecture

An interested audience of nearly 100 women heard Dr. Osburn Brines of Detroit lecture on effective means of cancer control at the Penniman-Allen theatre last Thursday afternoon. Following a talking movie on cancer, Dr. Brines gave a short talk in which he emphasized the importance of early treatment for cancer and recommended regular physical examinations at least once a year as the best means to detect the disease in its early stages. The doctor listed X-ray, surgery or radium or a combination of the three as effective methods of treatment.

A lively question period followed the doctor's talk. Mrs. Cass Hough, chairman of the local committee for the Women's Field Army for the Control of Cancer, expressed the committee's satisfaction with the lecture as an educational program to further understanding of cancer.

"We feel that our campaign to 'Fight Cancer with Knowledge' has been highly successful for each year we reach a different group through the lecture and the distribution of literature," said Mrs. Hough.

Following the lecture at the theatre, Dr. Brines showed the cancer movie and repeated his talk for teachers at the Plymouth high school.

Members of the local committee received many membership contributions through solicitation in the local banks. Saturday and a complete financial report will be made following a check-up of the canisters which have been distributed in all business places of the city.

Haskells Announce Engagements Of Their Daughters

At a tea in their home on Saturday afternoon, April 26, Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Haskell announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to Mr. Kurt Friedrich of New York City, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Friedrich of Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, and of their daughter, Margaret Louise, to Frank B. Tipton, of Cleveland, Ohio, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Tipton of Los Angeles. Both daughters were graduated from Lake Erie College at Painesville, Ohio, and did graduate work at Columbia and Wayne Universities. Mr. Friedrich is an alumnus of Columbia college and received his master's degree from Columbia University. Mr. Tipton is a graduate of the engineering school of Leland Stanford University. June 28 has been set as the date for a double wedding ceremony at their home.

Easter lilies and white tapers were used to decorate the tea table which was laid with white net over white linen. The figures of two brides and two bridegrooms with their bridesmaids formed the center of the table decorations, symbolical of the double engagement to be followed by the double wedding. Mrs. Glenn B. Carpenter of Detroit and Mrs. Plinn F. Morse of Pontiac presided at the tea table. Mrs. Clarence E. Elliott assisted Mrs. Haskell in receiving the guests.

The announcements were revealed in "guest registers" on the covers of which the names of the Misses Haskell and their fiancés were printed.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Vivian B. Small, president, and Miss Helen B. Dunlap, registrar of Lake Erie college; Mrs. Joseph H. Shephard, of Bexley, Ohio, and Mrs. Marion V. Packard of Columbus, Ohio, who were also house guests over the week-end; Mrs. Arnold L. Jacoby and Mrs. Charles Washburne of Ann Arbor; Mrs. O. R. Yoder, Miss Alice Campbell, Miss Kate Rankin, Mrs. Lucy Rudland, and Mrs. Richard Warner of Ypsilanti; and Mrs. Fred W. Green, wife of former Governor Green, Mrs. Arthur A. Rather, Mrs. Perry C. Robertson and Mrs. Thane Benedict, Sr., of Ionia.

For members of Dr. Haskell's family in Portland, Maine, who were unable to attend the announcement tea, Mrs. Haskell planned and directed all details of a long distance dinner party at the Columbia Hotel in Portland, Saturday evening. The Misses Haskell sent announcement notes to their relatives attending the party in Maine.

D.A.R. Dedicates Toll Gate Marker

The first gate west of Grand River on the Plymouth Plank road was at Wyoming and Chicago boulevard; the Asa H. Otis farm was at the southeast corner of this intersection. Mr. Otis applied for the Plymouth Plank road company to obtain the charter and actually built the road. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rowe, who lived for years on Ford road at Lotz road, ran the toll gate the first year they were married. Mrs. Rowe is still living and well remembers the funny experiences they had.

"The second gate was east of what was called the Coon Tavern just east of the Rouge and about opposite the Rouge Park swimming pool. The third gate was at Beech road near the Fisher farm and the fourth, this one here at the intersection of Plymouth road and Mill street. The fifth was on farther at Seven Mile and the Plymouth-Northville road.

"This gate was on property belonging to D. L. Cady. It was a real gate which had to be opened for passage and was not covered. The gate at the sidewalk fastened to the house, and to a post and the wider one was across the road."

According to Mrs. Strong's review, it cost one cent to go to the Hardenburg Mill which is the present site of the Wilcox-Ford plant. The cost for the ordinary horse and buggy to Northville was 10 cents and for a team, 20 cents. The regular rate was one-half cent a mile for each horse. By stage it cost $3 to go to Detroit. There were from six to eight four-horse stages passing through the village daily, many of them going on to Ann Arbor, it was reported.

Mrs. Strong stated that it was extremely difficult to gather accurate, connected facts concerning the Plank road. The few scattered facts which the historian was able to gather relate that James H. Smith ran Toll Gate No. 4 around 1870 (his son was Frazier Smith, known to many Plymouth residents), at another time a man named Colby ran the gate and the last keeper was evidently J. J. Covert.

"The original road was surfaced with planks 16 feet long, 12 inches wide and three inches thick. Compared with modern road surfacing, grandfather's methods are interesting. An excavation four inches deep and eight inches wide was made in the roadway. Then pine stringers, four by four inches, were laid lengthwise and the three-inch oak planks were placed on them. When the pine rotted the space would fill with mud and water which splashed the traveler. Later the planks were placed directly on the ground," the historian continued.

"During the existence of the Plank road the company evidently ran into financial difficulties. James H. Frazier seems to have managed it for the company in the sixties. He collected the tolls, paid himself $2 a day and used the rest to pay off indebtedness. After the Civil War, he employed war veterans in keeping up the road.

"In 1868 when the Detroit, Lansing and Northern railroad came through, the decline in the use of the plank road and the toll gate began. One could come from Detroit by railroad for 30 cents while it cost $3 by stage. Finally in January, 1872, gravel began to replace the planks which had rotted in the mud. The estimated cost of gravel per half mile was $175.

"By an act of the legislature in 1873, the corporation was granted the right to sell to any township through which the road might run the road rights and franchises, and the Plank road was to be released from all liability when sold.

"The plaque which we are dedicating today marks an era. The pioneers had progressed from mud roads to the hard planks, uneven as they were, and these men deserve our admiration for their effort to make travel easier. The tolls were to that road what our gasoline taxes are to the present day concrete roads. Who knows but that sometime our descendants may place a marker on this corner indicating that the Plymouth road was the first concrete highway leading directly from Plymouth to Detroit," Mrs. Strong concluded.

Namesake Group to 'Adopt' Child

insulated containers to distributing centers throughout the city. According to Philip Watson, treasurer of the Detroit committee of the Save-the-Children fund, the $30 donated by the Plymouth committee will feed a child for one year according to the plan of community feeding now in operation. The name and photograph of the child to receive aid through this donation will be sent to the local committee and this child will be "adopted" by Plymouth.

The executive board also announced plans for a musical to be sponsored by the Namesake Town committee at the high school auditorium on Wednesday evening, May 21. Details of the musical program will be announced by the committee next week. Mrs. M. J. O'Connor has called a rehearsal for Monday evening, May 5 at the First Methodist church, at 8 p.m., and she requests all choral singers who appeared in the Red Cross musicale last year to be present at the rehearsal.

For whom the Lord loveth he correcteth; even as a father the son in whom he delighteth." ## GLASSES can give an appearance of

that sometimes is otherwise difficult to obtain!

Feminine charm is flattered by glasses that are properly fitted and where extra care is given to selection and style.

So many women say to us... "Oh, I just dread the thought of having to start wearing glasses." This is only a normal reaction to one's first shock of finding that their eyesight has reached the point where it needs the help of magnifying lens.

How unfortunate, though, that many people feel this way. Time and time again these same women come back and tell us that many of their friends have said those same glasses had done much to improve their appearance.

Yes, it is true that many people take on an entirely new aspect after they start wearing glasses. In the majority of cases where expert skill has been applied, new beauty is found and the patient becomes far more attractive to her friends. Let us discuss your appearance problem with you when glasses become necessary.

"Old Timers" Hold Reunion

Old Timers from the classes of 1896 to 1906 who played on the football and baseball teams at Plymouth high school gathered for their fourth annual dinner-reunion Wednesday evening at the Hotel Mayflower.

Following an afternoon on the golf links at Idlewild club about 35 old classmates gathered for dinner and an evening of barbershop singing and spinning yarns.

Among the oldest of the "old timers" were George Bentley of Elm and Sam Abelson of Detroit, both of the class of '96. Two of the youngest members of the group are Max Moon and Austin Whipple of Plymouth. ## Officials Visit Traffic School

Among the visitors at the Detroit House of Correction Traffic school last Monday evening were Dr. Lundahl, mayor of Adrian; Louis Germond, police commissioner of that city; Fred Thompson of the Adrian Daily Telegram, and Sheriff R. W. Scott of Lenawee county.

The officials came to the school for information on methods of instruction, sources of literature used, and reaction of inmates to traffic training. Mayor Lundahl and Commissioner Germond are extremely anxious to have this type of traffic school in Adrian and are both very active in preliminary work along this line. It is hoped that a school may be opened in Adrian this summer.

Sixteen district officers of the American Legion Auxiliary, Detroit division, were conducted on a tour through the House of Correction Thursday afternoon. During the trip through the institution, the ladies stopped at the traffic school where they were given an outline of the school work and a short safety talk.

"Tommy," inmate secretary of the traffic school and lecturer on safety before civic and service clubs in Plymouth and vicinity, has just completed a course in safety engineering as offered by New York University, New York City. The course includes work in safety engineering, highway lighting, safety education in schools, accident investigation and traffic engineering. "Tommy" is also taking a course in safety engineering through correspondence with Northwestern University, Chicago.

Schrader Team Loses Opener

The Schrader-Haggerty baseball team lost its opening game Sunday afternoon in Riverside park to Westwood Inn by a score of 7 to 4, the first game of the season proving a jinx for Schrader's for the third successive year.

Solomon and Hill pitched for the Westwood team, Solomon being the winning pitcher and George Molnar hurling for the Schrader-Haggerty team. Grieske caught for Westwood and Joe Schomberger and Harold Williams shared catching duties for Schrader's.

The Schrader team gathered seven hits, the leading hitter for the day being Ham Kubitskey, lead-off batter, who had three safeties out of four times at bat. Clarence Levandowski connected with two out of three and Steve Horvath and Joe Schomberger each had one hit out of two times at bat. The Westwood team tallied 11 hits.

Molnar pitched good ball but two errors and hits bunched in the ninth inning counted for the winning runs.

The opening game was started with a spectacular parade of the Ford-Dearborn drum and bugle corps, starting at the Mayflower hotel and marching around Kellogg park where they played a number of selections. Doris Jean Genicke, young majorette, performed several acrobatic stunts with the drum corps.

After a concert in Kellogg park, the corps marched to Riverside park where with the team members and the American Legion, they marched to the flag pole for the opening day ceremonies.

A dance is to be sponsored at the American Legion hall in Newburg Saturday evening, May 3, and a card party on Friday evening, May 9 for the purpose of raising funds for the Girls' State program, to be held at Ann Arbor from June 19 to 26. Girls' State was originated and is sponsored each year by the American Legion auxiliary to find and develop girls who show inherent tendency toward leadership. Girls between the ages of 15 and 18 are to be selected on the basis of their potential abilities rather than scholarship alone to attend the Girls' State sessions at the Jordan residence on the University of Michigan campus.

Girl delegates to Girls' State will have an opportunity for actual experience in the field of occupational therapy, physiotherapy and dietetics in the university hospital. Home economics in its many phases will be stressed along with health education, dramatics, music and art. Other women's patriotic and civic organizations may also sponsor girls to the study group in better citizenship and leadership.

Scientists Say Eat Egg a Day

Here's good news for Livonia poultry men received this week from the extension division of Michigan State college:

When the latest tally was taken the average American was eating 291 eggs in a year's time, just 74 eggs short of a recommended diet.

In a recent compilation of egg facts by J. M. Moore, member of the poultry department at Michigan State college, he pointed out the value of eggs in their content of vitamins and minerals. Doctors, dentists and nutrition specialists have agreed that an egg a day is wise health protection.

Michigan is not too far behind in the race for health, according to Moore. Within the state there are more eggs consumed than are produced.

This in spite of a hen and pullet population far above 10 million laying birds. Without including the hatchery business of supplying young chicks, the eggs and poultry for meat have an annual value within the state of more than 28 millions of dollars.

Poultry can be found on 147,000 farms in the state. Some flocks are small, but the average flock is of sufficient size to put 10 cents into every farm income dollar.

Within the city of Detroit the consumption of eggs reaches annually a total of 519,250,000 eggs, according to a recent estimate. That, says Moore, is enough to fill 3,600 freight cars.

War Department Needs Auto Parts Experts

An examination for positions as automotive spare parts expert, paying $3,200 a year, has been announced by the United States Civil Service commission. Seven years of responsible experience in the automotive industry are required. Qualified persons are urged to file their applications, obtainable at the local postoffice, at once.

Census of Game Taken at M.S.C.

Population: 155, including one marsh hawk and 21 crows.

Those were part of the results obtained in a recent wildlife census taken on the campus and farm lands of Michigan State college at East Lansing. The object was to determine as nearly as possible the number of spring residents.

Harold Burgee, Scotts, Michigan, graduate student in wildlife game management, arranged details of the census and had the cooperation of undergraduates in zoology, conservation and forestry helping in the work, as well as assistance by staff members, by representatives of the Michigan State Department of Conservation, the Institute of Conservation at the college and of the Ingham County Conservation League.

When the tally was completed the totals included 95 pheasants of which 44 were males, 45 females and six not determined. There were 12 mourning doves, 14 mallards, eight cottontail rabbits and four fox squirrels, in addition to the crows and the marsh hawk.

Operations were on the pattern of a "line drive" census. Helpers were directed across blocks of land and walked at a distance of 50 feet apart. The crew covered 5,248 acres and had planned to stroll over a total of 2,000 acres but insufficient help showed up to take census over all the land. The campus and farms cover a total of more than 2,200 acres.

Student Reviews Civil Rights

As the second of a series of essays written by students in the senior class in United States government, Miss Gloriette Gallows, way this week discusses civil rights in America.

"I wonder what the attitude of the American people would be if the United States quite suddenly and mysteriously sprouted wings and landed in one of the totalitarian lands of Stalin, Hitler or Mussolini. At first, I imagine, the idea would appear as a novelty to them, since it is in accordance with human nature to 'try anything once.' After a space of realization, their plight would be brought into light and you feel sure that they would clamor for their civil rights.

"Although citizens are rather mute concerning these civil rights, just let some of them be taken from their grasp. Civil rights in practice are brought to the public eye every day. Right now labor and unions are disputing over working conditions while defense work is lying idle. Can you imagine the government of Germany allowing their factory workers to strike because they don't agree with the conditions granted to them by the factory owner, who, nine times out of ten, is the German government? In all the larger cities of America one finds 'soap-boxes' advocating the Townsend Plan, Communism, Socialism, and all other 'isms' that can be advocated in a radical's mind. The smaller town represents its radicals though, literally speaking, the general store gossips who give their views as to what they would do if they were the president; what should have been done with that important bill passed by Congress, and who should have been elected if it hadn't been for dirty politics. If one went to Japan, there he would find complete devotion to the Emperor who received his power, not by election but by heredity whether the people liked it or not, and yet no one stops American advocates in saying what they believe, whether it be discourteous to our government or not.

"On the first days of spring and other times, when city people hear the countryside calling them, their drive is not disturbed by sights of ugly concentration camps filled with thousands of wretched people who made the mistake of voicing their opinions concerning the government. When guests arrive at a home, the hosts and guests can sit comfortably in the living room, and discuss what they believe will be the outcome of the war, what they believe is happening in Washington, who they believe is connected with the graft case now in full swing, and all other opinions concerned with events happening on that day and not week-old news which has been withheld from the public. They can do this without fearing that the person sitting next to them is a government agent, ready to report any, if not all, of their opinions.

"American people have probably never known what it is to live in a country which denies its citizens freedom of speech, press, religion, right of assembly, trial by jury and all civil rights so importantly connected with being an American citizen. The only way in which they can realize what these conditions are is through reading literature written by people who have been persecuted by these governments and then, even after reading such biographies and accounts which seem more like 'fiction' their sympathy can only be extended and their appreciation for their rights broadened. Whether they will ever be objects of totalitarianism can only be told by time and whether they, as real citizens, will preserve THEIR rights," declared the student essayist.

Traffic Light Blamed for Crash

An accident, reported to have been caused by the failure of a traffic signal to function properly, occurred at the corner of Schoolcraft and Middle Belt roads, Saturday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Alex Slider, of Howell, driver of a car traveling east on Schoolcraft, is the most seriously injured of five persons involved. His condition was reported late Saturday afternoon to be temporarily serious by officials at Redford Receiving hospital where all were taken. Mr. Slider suffered a possible skull fracture, concussion and abrasions.

Medical Council Offers Plan for Pre-Habilitation of Army Selectees

An article on medical preparedness, outlining a plan for pre-habilitation of selective service registrants, which appears in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, is recommended, to local men subject to call for military service by Dr. Harold J. Brisbois, chairman of the local board's medical examining staff. According to Dr. Brisbois, an amazingly high percentage of men examined for induction into military service have been found physically deficient.

"We are now in the midst of a national emergency. War threatens us constantly. For purposes of defense, an army is in the making. The Selective Service system has been charged with the procurement of men for this army. The need is great—some 16,500,000 men between the ages of 21 and 36 years have been registered. Only men who can meet high standards are acceptable to the army. Of such men, the army will require 800,000 this year, and 900,000 in each of the succeeding four years. The country is attempting to select as soldiers only the very cream of its young manhood," explains the article in the medical journal.

"To date the number of deferments and rejections has been large, so great indeed that considerable concern is evident in Selective Service, in the army and in the country as a whole. It is estimated that less than 15 per cent of the 16,500,000 registrants are being classified as available for general military service. This situation obviously calls for analysis and for the adoption of remedial measures.

"Criticism has been abundant and bitter and is on the increase. Obviously, some remedies are needed and something must be done to diminish the number of rejections, something to rehabilitate registrants suffering from remediable defects and, in addition, something to improve the physical condition of the youth and of the people of the country as a whole.

"With this in view, the Medical Advisory Council of Selective Service offers this plan for pre-habilitation of registrants. The plan provides that (1) registrants familiarize themselves with the physical standards required, (2) registrants apply to their local physicians and dentists if they fall short of the stipulated standards, (3) family physicians and dentists correct defects if they are remediable, and (4) registrants carry certificates of pre-habilitation to local and induction boards at the time they present themselves for examination.

"The purposes of the plan are to select more suitable men and increase the number of inductions, to cultivate in the registrants the spirit of self reliance, initiative and patriotism and to effect pre-habilitation through maintaining the normal relationship of the patient to his family doctor and dentist. The mechanism for effectively carrying out the plan is now largely set up and available. The sole additional requisites are an appropriate committee in each state representing all the participants and sufficient funds to support the educational program involved. The family doctor and dentist are in the best position to remedy any existing defects if they are readily remediable. Presentation of a certificate of pre-habilitation by the registrant to the local and induction boards will indicate his desire to serve his country in its time of need.

"It is hoped that this plan will make a deep appeal to registrants, their families and the nation. It should serve to diminish the number of rejections with all the attendant humiliation and inconvenience involved. It should give him a plus instead of a negative mark. Above all, it should bring into the army more and better soldiers who have prepared themselves for duty."

Michigan has seven counties with more than 100,000 population each. Wayne, Oakland, Kent, Genesee, Saginaw, Ingham and Macomb.

Defense savings bonds were offered for sale beginning May 1 to help finance America's huge rearmament program. The first group of $10,000 bonds is shown (right) rolling off the presses under the supervision of Harford Powell, director of information of the defense savings staff, and Alvin W. Hall, director of the bureau of engraving. Sale of the bonds is under the supervision of Harold N. Graves (left), assistant secretary of the treasury. The bonds are almost identical with the present U. S. savings bond or "baby bond." Three different kinds of bonds are being offered, with special savings stamps for investors who find it impossible or inconvenient to pay cash for the bonds.

Long Distance Rates Slashed

The Michigan Bell Telephone company announced today that reductions on long distance calls from Plymouth and any of its other exchanges to any other Michigan point more than 42 miles distant became effective last Saturday, April 26.

George M. Welch, president, said the company has filed the new tariffs with the Michigan Public Service commission, which has granted authority to initiate the reduced rates at that time. The new rates follow the recent decision of the state supreme court upholding an order of the former Michigan Public Utilities commission cutting intrastate rates to the level of interstate charges. Welch estimated that the reductions will mean a savings of $700,000 a year to subscribers, based upon current usage of the long distance service.

Long distance operators of the company will be enabled to quote the new rate to any requested Michigan point.

Welch also said that Judge Leland W. Carr, of the Ingham Circuit Court, will be asked, probably early next week, for a decree authorizing the procedure for refunding approximately $1,500,000, representing the difference between the two rate schedules on intrastate toll calls made since August 1, 1938, the effective date of the former commission's order. The money has been impounded, under bond and without interest, in a bank designated by the court.

Further information is not available at this time on the method of making the $1,500,000 refund, Welch said. He also emphasized that it will take some time before the company can start refunding due to the size of the task. He pointed out that the company must check the records of 65,000,000 long distance calls on the accounts of approximately 700,000 telephone customers.

REDUCED

Long Distance Rates

Effective

Saturday, April 26

● Reduced rates on long distance calls from any Michigan Bell exchange to any other Michigan point more than 42 miles distant became effective on Saturday, April 26. Based on current volume of usage, that will mean savings of $700,000 annually to the company's customers.

Your Long Distance Operator will quote the new rate to any point requested.

As soon as possible after authorization by the Courts, refunds or credits, totaling $1,500,000, will be made for the difference between the old and new rates on such long distance calls made between August 1, 1938, and April 26, 1941. It will be some time before such refunds or credits can be made because of the great volume of work involved in checking more than 65,000,000 long distance calls in the accounts of 700,000 users.

Until the work of checking your account is completed, further information with respect to specific refunds or credits will be unavailable.

Corporal Richard Innis Tells of Trip to West via Panama Canal

Richard C. Innis of Plymouth, who has been stationed with the air corps at Orlando, Florida, has been transferred to McChord field, Tacoma, Washington where he holds the rank of Corporal with the thirty-fourth bombardment squadron. Officer Innis, who is due for discharge from the army in August, says the most interesting of all was the trip I took on the U. S. Army transport "Hunter Liggett" from Charleston, South Carolina to San Francisco via the Panama Canal. We were scheduled to leave on the third of March from Charleston, so I was sent from Orlando, Florida on the first of the month by rail to Fort Moultrie, S. C. I arrived there on the second and while there was given a sailing number and all the necessities that would be needed for a sea voyage, including two large cans of lemon drops, to be used for the prevention of sea sickness. On the morning of the third I was taken by bus to the dock at Charleston where I boarded the ship.

"During the two and a half years that I have spent in the U. S. Air Corps, I have had many interesting experiences but the most interesting of all was the trip I took on the U. S. Army transport "Hunter Liggett" from Charleston, South Carolina to San Francisco via the Panama Canal. We were scheduled to leave on the third of March from Charleston, so I was sent from Orlando, Florida on the first of the month by rail to Fort Moultrie, S. C. I arrived there on the second and while there was given a sailing number and all the necessities that would be needed for a sea voyage, including two large cans of lemon drops, to be used for the prevention of sea sickness. On the morning of the third I was taken by bus to the dock at Charleston where I boarded the ship.

"I found that I was only one of the 1100 soldiers riding Troop Class, and that the Hunter Liggett was a ship about 500 feet long with four decks and a crew of 30. We, the troops, were billeted below decks in the hold and our bunks were three high and close together. After spending about an hour on board I was beginning to feel that maybe I had made a grave mistake in ever coming on this trip, but it was too late now to back out and all I could do was grin and make the best of it. We sailed at two o'clock on the afternoon of the third and within three hours were out of sight of land.

"There were seven companies each consisting of between 150 and 175 men. I was assigned to the first company which with the second was to pull all the guard duty on board ship. The first company was divided into four squads and a non-commissioned officer was put in charge of each squad. Each squad drew 24 hours of guard duty and then were off for five days with only one regular company duty to do. The first meal I ate on board ship was fine but after that all the way to San Francisco I did not feel just barely of health. Call it sea-sickness or whatever you will, but whatever it was, it sure had me down. Afternoons, if we were not on duty we were allowed to go up on deck and sit around and loaf.

"The third day out while we were on deck, we noticed a school of porpoise coming toward us. It looked like they were constantly in danger of being hit by the boat but they always managed to just barely get out of the way. Finally they tired of following the ship and dropped astern. A short time later, we noticed a shark fin coming up on the port side and one of the sailors got a length of quarter-inch rope and attached a huge hook with a piece of meat on it and threw it overboard. The shark just swam along unconcerned for a time and then suddenly darted to the side and grabbed the meat. For ten minutes, that sailor had all he could do to hang onto the rope, but the shark finally tired and they pulled it along side so that we could see it. It was about eight feet long with a gray back and a white belly and small pointed teeth. The sailors pulled it aboard and then each one took one of its teeth. According to legend, a shark's tooth is supposed to bring good luck to a sailor. That cured me of ever wanting to go swimming where there is any chance of a shark being around.

"We arrived in Colon, Panama on the ninth of March and were given shore leave for four hours. I had often heard that Panama is considered the cross-roads of the world, and after looking around for a while, I could readily understand why it is called that. I believe that while I was there I saw every race of people on earth represented. In the business district, there is practically no class distinction between the people as they all mill around together and talk and joke on the streets.

"On the night I was there, it seemed that all I could see was soldiers and sailors with quite a few military police from the army and shore police from the navy. With a group of men from my company I walked into a tavern to get something to eat and drink. We had barely been seated and given our order when a strapping M. P. walked up to our booth and said that the place was off limits and that we had better leave. One of the fellows in the crowd said that we would go just as soon as we received our orders. The M. P. just looked at us for a minute and then said that when he said "now" he meant "NOW." We left.

"We went back to the ship and went up on deck to watch the stevedores unload the ship. About 11 o'clock that night, we started through the locks, the first of which were the Gatun Locks. After passing through these, we were in Gatun Lake where we had to wait for other ships to pass through the locks on the Pacific side. The canal between Gatun Lake and the Pedro Miguel Locks averages about 200 feet in width and there is plenty of room for two average-sized ships to pass. We arrived in Balboa, which is the Pacific entrance to the locks, at eight that night. We docked there for about eight hours while some of the cargo in the holds was unloaded, after which we proceeded out to sea and on to San Diego where we arrived March 16. There were many sailors and marines in San Diego which is a naval and marine base. We left there early the next morning and arrived in San Francisco at 5 o'clock in the morning on March 18. We passed under the Golden Gate bridge and were docked by four huge tugs. This being my port of debarkation, I was landed and sent to Fort McDowell on Angel Island. We passed within 200 yards of Alcatraz on our way to the fort and while on the bay, I was able to get a wonderful view of Frisco. I stayed at San Francisco for three days and then was sent to McChord Field at Tacoma, Washington by rail. Thus one of my ambitions had been fulfilled for the trip offered a wonderful experience, good training and education. Although I saw a lot of sights that many people never get a chance to see and have been stationed at a fine field, I still think I would like to be back in Orlando, Florida," young Innis concluded.

What does that say? And in what language is it printed?

It is taken from the Bible, being Psalm 23, printed in the native language of the Apache Indian tribe of Arizona.

Translated, it says:
The Lord
is my shepherd;
I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down
in green pastures;
He leadeth me beside the
still waters.
He restoreth my soul:
He leadeth me in the paths
of righteousness for His name's sake.

Recently the printing department of The Plymouth Mail published several thousand copies of a 26-page booklet for the Evangelical Lutheran Indian Mission of Arizona, the order having been placed with The Mail by Rev. Edgar Hoencke, pastor of the Plymouth Lutheran church, an active member of the Joint Synod of Wisconsin and other states.

Not only is Rev. Hoencke an active worker in the Synod, but he is chairman of the Apache Mission commission. The publications were shipped direct to the mission at San Carlos, Arizona.

It was no easy task for the linotype operators and composition of The Mail to follow through the original manuscript of strange words and strange spelling, but it was done without a single error in the entire booklet.

The publication is entitled "My Life, How Shall I Proceed?"

Written by the superintendent of the mission, the booklet contains in addition to an Easter message written in verse form, several hymns, the twenty-third Psalm and well-known Biblical passages setting forth fundamental principles of the Christian faith. The Apache version and the corresponding English translations are presented on opposite pages of the booklet, which is completely illustrated with pictures of Mission school children and baptismal ceremonies of parish members.

The pronunciation of the Apache dialect is explained in the preface of the booklet. The letter "a" is pronounced as in the word "art"; e as in met; i as in machine; o as in bone; u as in rule and ae as in bare. It is explained also that av, iv and ov are nasal sounds; q is pronounced as the German ch, in, ch or ach; zh as the English z in azure and k or t are consonants with a glottal stop before the following vowel.

The pictures published herewith are some taken from the publication, the electrotypes having been made from photographs taken at the various Lutheran Indian missions in the southwest.

Knights of Pythias Host to District

The local Knights of Pythias lodge was host last Thursday evening to the members of the sixteenth district from Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Brighton, Chelsea and Manchester with a total of 100 guests in attendance. Dinner was served at 7 o'clock after which the ritualistic work of the third rank was exemplified by the members of The Dramatic Order, Knights of Khorassan of El Cairo Temple No. 66 of Detroit, with the Grand Master at Arms Samuel Raskin in charge. At this meeting the district trophy the little brown jug was captured by the local lodge for having the most members present on a percentage basis. All members and visiting brothers are urged to be present at the next meeting on May 8.

Teachers Attend Conference

Plymouth high school teachers and Principal C. J. Dykhouse attended the seventy-sixth annual meeting of the Michigan Schoolmaster's club at Ann Arbor last Friday.

Included on the program at the teachers' conference were Thomas H. Briggs, noted leader in secondary education from Columbia University, who discussed some "basic considerations" in what high schools ought to teach.

Dr. Charles H. Judd, the dean of American educational statesmen, and Howard McClusky of the National Youth Administration now on leave from the University of Michigan.

"The Challenges in Meeting the Problems of Youth" was the subject of a talk by Professor McClusky in which he pointed out that in spite of national defense activities, there are more than 3,000,000 young people still out of work. The solution does not lie in the impetus given to employment by the defense emergency, he declared, for the defense program helps in certain areas only such as the steel or aircraft centers. The defense industry is of little or no consequence as an employment source in the rural areas, he added.

Stating that twice as many young people have the capacity for a college education as are now financially able to attend college, Professor McClusky declared maladjustments in the economic system.

"It is difficult to tell young people that there are no jobs for them until war starts and then tell them they are needed badly," the speaker declared. "It is important that the local communities accept their share of responsibility in helping find and create employment through scholarships and apprentice work and through the extension of the NYA and QCC programs for youth," he concluded.

There is one good reason for knocking and that is when, by vigorous hammering, you can open a door to better things.

Rotarians Visit Nearby Prison

Members of Plymouth's Rotary club were guests last Friday noon of Warden Blake Gillies of the Detroit House of Correction, the regular weekly meeting of the club being held in the dining room of the Women's Division of the institution.

Following the dinner, the visitors were taken through the institution that has frequently been declared one of the best conducted penal institutions in the United States. Many members of the club had never before visited the prison.

All of the Rotarians were keenly interested in the various departments as they toured both the women's and men's divisions. Monday and Tuesday of this week many members of the club were in attendance at the annual district Rotary conference held in Ann Arbor.

Drama Festival Opens May 19

The Ann Arbor Dramatic Season committee announces its annual drama festival program opening at the Lydia Mendelssohn theatre May 19 and running through June 21. Sparkling plays with brilliant stars of stage and screen are to feature the five weeks run, artists who have already been engaged including Conrad Nagel, Ruth Gordon, Ilka Chase, Madge Evans and Hiram Sherman.

A gay opening is assured, as the first attraction will star Conrad Nagel in "The Male Animal," a rollicking comedy of campus life written by James Thurber and Elliott Nugent. Mr. Nagel is not only a recognized Hollywood star and director but in recent years has become famous in the radio field notably in his Sunday night "Silver Theatre" of the "Air." "The Male Animal" was a Broadway hit of last year and has won constant acclaim during its tour this winter. Ann Arbor audiences will be the first to see Mr. Nagel in the leading role.

The second week brings Ilka Chase of stage, screen and radio fame, in "Skylark," by Samson Raphaelson.

Ruth Gordon, in "Ladies in Retirement," will play the third week of the festival. The English melodrama in which she will be seen in Ann Arbor has been rated the best mystery play since "Kind Lady" and it has been scaring and delighting audiences on Broadway and on the road during the last year.

"Man and Superman," George Bernard Shaw's play of comedy and philosophy, will be presented ed the fourth week with Madge Evans and Hiram Sherman playing the leading roles. Miss Evans' return is by popular request as her appearance last year in "The World We Make" established her as a favorite with Ann Arbor audiences.

Valentine B. Windt who directed the season last year will return again this year as director, with Mrs. Lucille W. Walz as business manager and James D. Murnan as company manager. Counter sale of season tickets opened Thursday, May 1, at the Garden Room, Mendelssohn theatre with mail orders being filled before that date.

ATTACK ON AMERICA

THE STORY SO FAR: More than 200,000 foreign troops which had been secretly transported to Mexico suddenly invaded the United States. Intelligence Officer Benning had discovered their plans while a spy in Mexico City where he had gained the confidence of Finke.

The boat bobbed across the harbor; Benning decided that Bravot must be headed back for some secret rendezvous in New York, a part of some crafty maneuver to cover his littered trail. In that event Benning decided to strike in the darkness the instant the launch reached shore.

A few minutes later the launch swerved sharply out of its course and slowed down. Benning saw the massive shadow of a ship looming over his head. A voice called down from above. Bravot got to his feet, edged his way to the bow. A boatman made the launch fast to the ship's ladder. One by one the passengers swung onto the ladder and were swallowed up by the night.

"Go ahead, Bromlitz!" a voice commanded when Benning hesitated.

Fincke caught Benning's arm, gently forced him forward. Benning made a swift estimate as he stood in indecision. Quickly he saw that but one course lay ahead. In the bobbing little boat he knew he would stand no chance if he put up a fight for possession of the craft. As for swimming ashore, even the strongest swimmer could not expect success in that feat tonight.

Benning swung to the ladder and mounted to the deck. Close behind him came Fincke. On the deck there was a glow of light from an incandescent.

Inside the Austrian tossed off his coat and stretched himself. His face now was exuberant.

"Himmel, but what a comfort, Bromlitz!" he exclaimed with a vast sigh of relief. "Now a fellow can take a free breath."

Fincke paused to give Benning a knowing wink.

"What does it matter if we're sitting over a cargo of high explosives, eh, Bromlitz? It'll not blow up until we give the command—and that'll play the biggest card in the whole Van Hassek deck! Cheer up, Bromlitz, in ten days from now you'll be back with your girl in Mexico City!"

Now it was all to clear to Benning. Fincke at last had visualized the meaning of this cruise, the reason for his own restless misapprehensions. This ship, with its cargo of explosives, clearing New York with papers for San Francisco, was part of an intricately laid plot to destroy the Panama Canal and strip the Atlantic seaboard of the protection of the United States fleet.

CHAPTER XVI

General Hague nervously paced the floor of his office despite the long days of driving toil and anxiety that had drained his energies to the point of exhaustion. The last troop trains had moved south with the force of fifty thousand men that was to stop Van Hassek on the Fort Worth-Dallas line. But reports from the south shook him with new misgivings and he had sent for Colonel Flagwill.

Young Benning got away this morning for Mexico City, didn't he? Flagwill's face dropped. "Sorry, General. Benning has vanished in thin air. Not a word from him all day."

"Benning missing?" General Hague scowled incredulously. "That doesn't sound like Benning."

"I authorized him to follow a Van Hassek agent aboard a Norwegian tramp freighter, thinking we'd get a haul of spies. A destroyer overhauled the boat last night after it sailed, only to find Benning was not aboard as planned. The ship's captain claimed not to have seen anyone resembling Benning."

"Nothing should have prevented Benning's flight to Mexico City, Flagwill," Hague complained. "All right, let's hope he turns up soon."

Flagwill drove at once to Belling Field where a fast new O-47 observation plane put him in the air shortly before dusk. Seven hours later, as the plane approached Dallas, a radio warning told the pilot to avoid the Dallas airport and put down at an emergency landing-field south of the city.

The say go ahead of action bombs caught Flagwill's eye as his plane dove past the city. No sooner had his plane reached to a stop in the emergency field than his ears rang with the deafening air bombardment over Dallas. A staff officer from Army Headquarters was waiting for him.

"Dallas and Fort Worth are taking an awful beating tonight," the staff officer reported. "We're forced to detain troops and munitions north of the city. An hour ago a bomber registered on one of our troop trains three hundred miles killed. Things are in a pretty bad jam here, sir."

"I'll be frank with you, Flagwill," General Lannes said in a peevish, overwrought voice. "If Van Hassek sizes up this mess and hits us promptly, he'll roll up my Third Army in spite of me."

Lannes' voice was drowned by the mighty crash of a heavy bomb and Bravot, two enemy officers, but his warnings had gone unheeded. Foreign forces led by Van Hassek pushed relentlessly forward. His troops were vastly superior in numbers and equipment to the American forces which opposed him. Returning to New York, Benning that set the earth shaking under them.

"In spite of hell and high water!" he concluded as the room cleared of vibrations. "I'll take me days to straighten out this tangle and it'll only take Van Hassek a few hours to run up here with his motorized and mechanized outfits!"

"General Hague probably has told you, sir," Flagwill said, "that we've got to hold on this line. The country is in an uproar and everyone in Washington, sir, feels we've got to have a victory."

"Sure we've got to hold!" Lannes raged. "But don't forget that fifty thousand men are fifty thousand soldiers only when they're shaken down, organized, supplied, and ready to fight."

The Army commander stalked to a wall map and pointed to his dispositions and immediate plan of action.

"Mole is taking an artillery lacing at the minute, which means attack on him at daybreak. With the reinforcements I've sent up, he must hold on the Colorado as long as possible. Then he's got to fight delaying actions and make another desperate stand behind the Brazos. Somehow Mole must delay Van Hassek at least three days, maybe for a week, until I can get in shape to take the enemy on here in front of Dallas. It's going to cost us a lot of men, Flagwill, a lot of men! But I want you to go out and see the situation for yourself—and tell Hague why I'm forced into these desperate delaying actions out in front!"

"Take your hands off my coat."

An hour of patient driving put Flagwill down the Army's projected front. Whole regiments stood about in the dawn, still waiting for orders and supplies. The men were tired and hungry. Shortage of ammunition was general, even in the infantry. Ammunition was reported available at the railroad, but the railroad was swamped with demands and there were insufficient truck trains at present for all purposes.

As the sun shot over the horizon, Flagwill turned back to the Lannes command post. Squadrons of American combat planes had combed the air of Van Hassek's night attacks and the day had quieted down to a rumble of artillery columns and a hum of friendly planes.

Given a day or two, Flagwill concluded, the hastily assembled Third Army would shake itself down. American ingenuity somehow would overcome the shortages of supplies, motor vehicles, the obsolete organization tables, the unco-ordinated staffs, automated weapons, the lack of training in team-play of higher units. At least the officers had sound academic training in the science of war.

General Lannes, his face flushed and hurried, his eyes distended, sat feverishly at the end of a field telephone as Flagwill re-entered the command post. After a staccato, fretted exchange he hung up the receiver and got to his feet.

"Van Hassek is driving at Mole with everything he's got this morning," Lannes raved. "Only the reinforcements I sent up to him last night kept Mole from being cracked up early this morning. Sage hell be lucky to hold on till noon. My God, Flagwill, this mess is going to cost as five thousand men, maybe ten!"

By eight o'clock Mole saw he could hold no longer. Glancing losses were multiplying, his tanks were threatened. Now the American air service held the supremacy of the air immediately over the heads of Mole's troops, which made possible the dangerous operation of daylight withdrawal.

"I'm pulling out of here now, Lannes!" he shouted fiercely over unearthed a vast spy ring. Benning continued to pose as a friend when he unexpectedly met Fincke in Washington, and accompanied him on a mysterious mission which took them aboard a small boat in the New York harbor.

the field telephone. "I can't hold another minute! I hope you have strong reinforcements for me at the Brazos."

"All right, Mole, use your own judgment," Lannes retorted. "But no matter what it costs, we've got to delay Van Hassek until I can get my Third Army ready to stop him!"

CHAPTER XVII

Benning woke from a brief fretful sleep and went to a porthole. There was a bright sun rising across a smooth sea. He calculated from the speed of the freighter that the craft must be well down the coast of Virginia, perhaps off North Carolina and not far from Cape Hatteras. For a time last night he had flirted with the desperation of jumping overboard on the chance of making shore. Now he had given up hopes of being rescued by the Navy.

He was mulling at the porthole when a figure passed along the boat deck close to his eyes. The fellow wore a black mustache, dark horn-rimmed glasses; his clothes were seedy and his shoulders sagged. But the profile was not to be mistaken.

"You knew Bravot was aboard?"

Benning said to Fincke.

The Austrian hilly admonished. "Don't talk so much, Bromlitz! How many times have I got to tell you not to mention names?"

"I thought we were clear of all that trouble," Benning retorted. "Not with a brand-new crew on one boat. We still got to watch our tongues."

"You think these sailors aren't Bravot's men?"

"Just use your brain, Bromlitz. Sailors wouldn't hardly sign up to get blown to hell, if they knew the score."

"I presume," Benning sneered, "the captain and crew don't even know what their cargo is?"

"The skipper knows, and a few of his good men. For two years Schmolz has been laying his plans for just this cruise."

The door of their cabin banged suddenly open. A chunky man with a squarish, rough-hewn, leering face swaggered in. The fellow wore a dirty cotton suit and an officer's cap, and bristled with authority and short temper.

"Who are you two?" he demanded, searching first Fincke's face, then Benning's.

The Van Hassek spy leaped to his feet and gave the identification formula. Benning was more leisurely in rising to identify himself. He guessed that the intruder was Schmolz, skipper of the ship.

"I don't like your looks!" the fellow blurted, fixing Benning with glinting green eyes.

"Don't worry about him, Captain," Fincke promptly intervened. "He's a major—the two of us been working together in the United States."

Schmolz rubbed a cauliflower ear ruminatively and gave Benning a parting glare in which there was mingled distrust and dislike.

"Major or no major, there's something about your looks I don't like," he grumbled.

Their noon meal was brought in by an American deckhand, Grimes. After luncheon, Fincke went out on deck for exercise. With the complication of Bravot's presence on the ship, Benning knew he must keep to cover during daylight. Also that he must strike against the Van Hassek spy-master without delay if he expected to survive this cruise for many days.

Benning sweltered in the torrid little cabin through an insufferable day. With full darkness he examined the mechanism of his automatic pistol and went out on deck. As he suspected, Bravot was living in the captain's quarters. Lolling in the porthole he saw Bravot sitting alone on his berth, his face cold and imperturbable as he listened to the news from the Texas front.

Blare of the radio blotted out other sounds on the deck and Benning was not conscious of the figure driving down on him along the dimly lighted deck until stout fingers closed on the lapel of his coat.

He turned to see Schmolz glaring at him out of eyes that seethed with rage.

"See here, Schmolz!" Benning shot back hotly. "I'm not one of your deckhands. Take your hands off my coat! If you object to my listening to the war news over your radio, why don't you post an order to that effect?"

"Listen all you want to," Schmolz mumbled, cooling perceptibly at the rebuff and releasing Benning's collar. "But keep away from in front of my stateroom after this. I don't allow nobody to do that."

As Schmolz swaggered into his room with a muttered imprecation, Benning returned to his cabin. For some time Benning waited in tense readiness for eventually. He knew that if Schmolz communicated his suspicions to Bravot, prompt and disastrous investigation was sure to follow.

Our annual May festival at the Wayne County Training school will be held on Wednesday evening, May 7, at 7:30 o'clock. Everyone is welcome.

Newburg school is taking part in the chorus, the folk dancing and in the voice-speaking choir.

Thirteen-year-old Mitzie Jackson of the Newburg school won third prize in an essay contest, sponsored by the National Sojourners club, with her composition, "Daniel Webster, Defender of the Constitution." The prize-winning essay follows:

"Of all the men of the United States who made it the great country it is today, Daniel Webster is among the foremost."

"He was a native of the New Hampshire Hills, one of the youngest sons of a poor farmer."

"As a frail child Daniel Webster was unable to enter into such physical exertions, as working on the farm, so he spent much of his time studying nature in the New Hampshire Hills."

"His patriotic enthusiasm was awakened when, as his good fortune to have as a companion an old soldier who deserted from British ranks to fight for the Independence and Liberty of his country. Daniel was a willing listener and the old man often entertained the boy by telling him of the battles on land and sea that most assuredly paved the way to the Independence of the country and actually to the great Constitution. Daniel grew to abhor all oppressors of our Constitution. His admiration for the Constitution can be shown by this illustration:

"Upon visiting a store one day he noticed a plain cotton handkerchief upon which was printed the Constitution. Finally after several months he was able to purchase his great treasure. From this handkerchief he learned the Constitution perfectly. This was unusual for an eight-year-old boy, but the boy, himself, was unusual."

"Once while laboring in a hayfield with his father, a well-bred college gentleman stopped and talked with Mr. Webster after that he expressed a desire to send Daniel to college and he said he would work long and hard to obtain his goal."

"The following year Daniel attended Exeter Academy; the other pupils were rather wealthy and they laughed at his country clothes and manners."

"Daniel was very sensitive and could scarcely bear this heckling."

When in front of a class of boys he was unable to utter a word.

"Upon graduating from the Academy a tutor was hired who prepared him for college."

"At college everyone was astonished, for his bashfulness had disappeared. In fact, nothing delighted him more than to hold an audience spellbound by his marvelous voice."

"After two years in college he taught school so as to be able to send his brother to college."

"After teaching he played an active part in politics and was soon elected to congress. Some of the many debates there at that time were Henry Clay and John Calhoun, leaders of southern states. Webster often opposed them on many issues."

"One of these issues was over a tax on imported goods. Clay expressed the opinion that there should be a tariff to protect the growing American industry, while Webster talked against it."

About this time however, the New England states had increased their manufacturing and were in a position to place a tax on the competing goods imported from other countries. Webster, being a New Englander, began to talk in favor of the tariff. By this time the Southern states had found it was cheaper to buy from foreign countries. Clay, being a Southerner, was now opposed to the tariff. However, the bill was passed and became a law."

The Southerners held mass meetings and declared the new tariff a violation of the Constitution, they even threatened to withdraw from the Union. Senator Hayne issued this Southern Doctrine—saying that any state has a right to disobey the nation's laws. Webster agreed to reply to Hayne. He had but one night to prepare his reply. But none knew the Constitution better than he. One of his friends said, "It is time, it is high time that the people of this country should know what this Constitution is."

"Then," answered Webster, "by the blessing of the heavens they shall learn this day before the voice goes down what I understand it to be." The Union came first and the state second in his mind. He had waited a whole life time for this moment. His closing words, "Liberty and Union, now and forever one and inseparable inspired, all loyal Americans with deeper devotion to the Union."

"After this speech he was at the highest point as a public speaker. His face and voice were perfectly suited to an orator. His voice perhaps most remarkable of all. In conversation it was low and musical. In debate it was high and full."

"By his defense of the Constitution he won a national fame which brought talk of presidency."

"From his boyhood he had loved the flag with an intensity which increased with his years. Daniel Webster was a true American citizen. His chief desire was to see the nation great and glorious and he strove with all the ardor and force of his great soul to preserve the union. For years he poured the message of nationality into the ears of the people. He it was who fostered and strengthened this spirit so that, when the South seceded the North had the courage to perform her mighty task."

"This is the debt the American people owe to Daniel Webster and in this lies his importance in the history of our country."

This summary of Daniel Webster's life was taken from "A First Book in American History with European Beginning," by Southworth and "From American Leaders and Heroes," by Gordy.

Like the Hospital . . .

Modern Americans have learned that the sick are best treated at a hospital. Similarly, most people agree that funeral services are best conducted at a mortuary.

For, like the hospital, the funeral home is equipped with all the equipment needed for the proper care of its clients. The modern mortuary is beautiful in appearance and can handle large groups of persons with greater comfort than the average residence. Hence the increasing preference for our funeral home, which is available to clients without extra charge.

Locals Win T.V.A.A. Trophy

The six schools of Dearborn, Ecorse, Plymouth, River Rouge, Wayne and Ypsilanti who are members of the Twin Valley Activities Association participated in the annual subdistrict contest of the State Forensic Association on April 23.

Calvin Furlong, representing Plymouth in the declamation contest held in the afternoon, placed first with a speech entitled "Ropes." Second place was given to Rufus Willison of Ecorse who gave "Touissant L' Ouve-ture."

In the evening the representatives of the schools participated in the oratory contest. The winner of this was Everett Robb of Ypsilanti with a speech entitled "America First." Wayne's contestant, Clark Reir, spoke on "Wake Up, America!" James Zuckerman of Plymouth placed fourth with the oration "Quick-sand."

During the orations the extempore speakers worked out their speeches. Larry Burns of River Rouge was the winner with "Should America Feed France?" In the second place, John Goodman of Plymouth received second place with the speech "Greece and the Present War."

The judges from the speech department of Wayne University were Dr. Preston H. Scott, Prof. Sherman A. Wilson and Prof. Garnet R. Garrison.

Because of Plymouth's first, second and fourth places, we received the highest place in the contest. Because of this Plymouth was awarded the T.V.A.A. trophy.

Track Demise

Plymouth placed second in a triangle track meet with Ypsilanti Central and Baldwin high schools at Birmingham, Thursday. The score was Baldwin, 83; Plymouth, 24 and a half; and Ypsilanti, 22 and a half.

Baldwin, redundant with athletic prowess, captured 12 places in 12 events, gathered 13 points in second, third and fourth place points.

Lacking almost totally in several track departments, Plymouth gathered place points enough times to finish second, ahead of a still weaker Ypsilanti team.

Judges agreed on four places for points because the meet was triangular and gave five points for a first place, three for second, two for third and one for fourth.

In a close 100-yard dash, Paul Harsha placed third and Vic Ribblett fourth. In the 220, Whittaker was second in the 220, Whittaker fourth. Bob Kirkpatrick netted a second in the half mile when his Birmingham opponent displayed a final withering sprint that no other runner could match. Jack Christensen placed fourth. Second in the 440 was Jim Sexton.

Field events yielded no quantities for Plymouth. Jack Baker finished fourth in the shot put; Paul Harsha fourth in the broad jump; Jim Wellman tied for second in the pole vault.

Relay team ran the fastest race, but Plymouth's early relay lead and closing sprint did not compensate for straight speed running by Birmingham. Plymouth baton wielders Harsha, Sexton, Whittaker, Sessions, finished second to Birmingham, far ahead of Ypsilanti.

Jr. High Assembly

Colorful, interesting and informative was the assembly of American folk lore presented by the Griffins to the junior high school last Wednesday, April 23. The entire hour's program was concerned with the characteristics and habits of the American Indian.

Mr. Griffin, although a native of Australia, became interested in the American Indian through his study of the aborigines of Australia which have some of the same characteristics and customs of the Indian.

The program consisted of several of the Indian dances, including the war dance, medicine dance and the rabbit dance. He and his assistants, a young woman colorfully attired in Indian skins and beads, also illustrated the Indian sign language, the ceremony of lighting and smoking the peace pipe, and some of the magic the medicine man used to mystify the Indians.

The stage was beautifully decorated with blankets, totem poles and drums. All the costumes worn by Mr. Griffin were brightly hued in rich colors typical of the American Indian.

The junior high students felt, at the end of the hour, that they had been transported back into the very early history of our nation. The program succeeded in accomplishing its purpose—to help students in understanding the Indian and his habits.

Music Festival

Each year a group of songs is selected by the schools in the Twin Valley Activity Association to be sung at a festival in the spring, led by a different director each year.

Six songs were studied this year by all the glee clubs in the T.V.A.A. These were practiced and rehearsed for nearly a whole semester before the music festival, which took place in Pease Auditorium in Ypsilanti last Thursday evening, April 24. First the audience heard the entire chorus of mixed voices, after which they heard the smaller groups, such as Plymouth's triple trio.

The songs this year included Sigmund Romberg's "Serenade," "To Thee We Sing," a Russian church song by Konstantin Kovalev; Theresa Del Riego's "Home at Night," a Russian folksong; "In Silent Night," Johann Sebastian Bach's "Now Let All the Heavens Adore Thee" and Rudolph Friml's "Giannina Mia." The girls' triple trio sang "Calm as the Night" and "Carmina."

The guest director this year was Conway Peters, who led the Albion concert enjoyed by Plymouth students last month.

Back Stage

J. L. Hudson company, second largest department store in the world, has as much to offer backstage, behind the 'employees only' sign as it has to the casual shopper.

Thirty retail selling students of Mr. Sutherland's afternoon class spent over an hour Wednesday afternoon on a tour behind the scenes at Hudson's. They were invited to witness the company back stage from the eighteenth floor to the third and fourth basements.

Making the tour by arrangement with the store, senior retail sellers peered at the world's largest basement store, watched laboratory workers manufacturing Hudson's own cold creams, heard a lecture and the noise and bustle of the marking and receiving rooms.

Contrary to general belief, they learned Hudson's does not shunt more expensive goods to the basement store. This department is a complete store in itself, buying its own goods, making its own bargains.

Plymouth students visited the employee's restaurant, the well-staffed hospital, the copy and advertising rooms, the make-up department. They peeped into the giant vault room where store cash flows back and forth. Switchboard information given them showed the store uses 80 operators at Christmas. A regular staff of 8,000 is hired to 12,000 on holidays.

Although Hudson's extends service for such trips to many institutions, the Plymouth group was the first to make the trip since March. Mr. Sutherland called the trip the best in the line of retailing selling he's ever taken.

Banquet Plans

Statistical work on the annual honor banquet is being carried on by members of the Student Council. In addition to determining those to be honored for scholarship, the boys earning letters in the various sports, the girls letter winners, participants in speech activities, drama, and music, and special senior honors must be checked on so that everyone eligible for the banquet will be invited to attend.

A plan for decorating the tables has been suggested. Each table will represent one of the things being honored. For example, one table would carry out the athletic theme and be appropriately decorated including the use of some of the trophies Plymouth has won in athletics. This plan will be carried out by the Student Council, scholarship girls' letters and the rest of the honors.

The speaker has not been secured but will be announced next week.

Plymouth's golf team defeated Howell, 361-369, last Thursday at the Plymouth Country club. Warren Hoffman was the low scorer of the day with 83 for the 18 holes, 44 for the first nine and 39 for the second, out of a par of 72.

The results are as follows: For Howell, Griffin 45 on the first nine and 42 on the second; Sandling, 45 and 43 to total 88; Ziska, 50 and 44 making 94 shots; and Niblack carded 51 and 49 summing 100. For Plymouth, Hoffman, 44 and 39 making 83; Shoemaker shot a 50 and 40 for a 90; Zuckerman knocked the ball around for a 49 and 40, totaling 89; and McAninch hit a 54 and 45, carding the sum of 99.

Hoffman had eight par holes and a birdie 3 on the 317-yard long twelfth hole while Sandling, of Howell shot a birdie 4 on the second hole, 468 yards long.

Thinclads Lose

The Plymouth track squad was squelched by Belleville, Tuesday, April 22, on the Plymouth track, 69½ to 34½.

The first event, the high hurdles, where Plymouth fell down because they had no experienced hurdlers. All three places were taken by Belleville. The same thing happened with the 100-yard dash was good: Wenzel took a first with a 11:00 seconds, followed by Harsha with 11:01. Jack Baker took a first place in the shot put, throwing 42 feet eight and one-half inches. The Plymouth boys did exceptionally well on the 880-yard run, because they took all three places. The squad again dropped in the pole vault, for they had only one contestant. He tied for second place with a jump of 8 feet 6 inches. The high jump was taken by Belleville, with O'Neill and Ross tying with a 5 feet 3 inches and Wilnow taking second. The mile run was taken also by Belleville. Plymouth retaliated in the relay by jumping ahead in the first and holding it all the way around.

World as I See It

"Deeds, not words," was the philosophic utterance of Winston Churchill a few weeks ago, but he added, "There are times when we must pause to reflect upon our aims and accomplishments." While deeds are important, for it is by them that the world is most likely to judge us, our thoughts and views are important too, for they control our deeds. As this year's senior class completes its last few weeks of school, the deeds of the last four years will come to a close. It is only appropriate then to pause to reflect upon the deeds of the past and to consider the paths to be taken in the future.

In the next seven weeks seven seniors, four girls and three boys, will tell how the world, crazy as it is, appears to them. These seven—representing widely different personalities, interests, and, consequently, viewpoints will discuss their attitude toward school, problems of church, marriage, and divorce, their aims in life, and the effect they believe the war will have on those aims.

Greece was a brave and hardy nation, fool-hardy some say, but a nation that fought to the last ditch. Her people were strong and independent, so fond of their independence that they refused to accept the yoke of bondage offered them last year. They, by nature a peace-loving people, preferred to fight and die. They struggled first against Italy, faced tremendous odds; odds that daunted them little for they had the spirit of perseverance. That determination was at first uncracked, but as the war of weeks stretched into months, observers began to speculate as they had in the beginning when "doping" the Finnish-Russian war. First they asked "How long can Greece last?" later, "What's wrong with Italy?" then, "How long can Italy hold out?" and last and probably most significant, "What will Hitler do?" for do something he must since Italy was his ally. If Italy lost, Germany would also lose in a sense, and that was too dangerous to risk.

And now Greece is dead. Yes, dead in the sense that the people are no longer free, that they cannot say, "This is my nation and my flag," that an autonomous government is no more. But never dead so long as her language is spoken or written, so long as her architecture and culture are admired, so long as her bravery is remembered.

For the Greeks of ancient time are still admired as the Greeks of this era will be. The Greeks of ancient time have not been forgotten though they were conquered by Rome; the Greeks of today will not be forgotten though they are conquered by Germany.

Yes, add Greece to the list of lost, missing, dead but qualify it by adding—"Resurrected!"

Trifles discover character more than actions of seeming importance; what one is in little things he is also in great.—Swift.

Editorial

Last week there was added to the already long list of lost, missing, and dead, the name of another nation, the name of brave and valiant Greece. It is with sorrow and regret that one finally realizes this nation, too, had to follow the long, hard road to oblivion.

The world as I see it is interesting and intriguing as well as frightening and uncertain. We high school graduates of today seem to be stepping out on a great, icy, skating rink and not all of us are able to skate.

In one corner of the rink are heavy defense programs with plans for speeded production. In another are plans for promoting military selective service. In another are mediation boards trying to quell labor troubles between corporations and unions. In still another is the hustle, bustle activity of a boom spending spree. And then, overshadowing the whole rink is War.

This War affects every skater directly or indirectly. Whose War is it? I believe it is everybody's War. It is world wide. More and more the United States has made it her war, too. Could or should she have done otherwise? I do not know. Who will win? That I cannot say. There has always been, and I hope there will always be, an England. Win or lose Great Britain deserves much credit. She has earned her name—"Great Britain"—not because of the great number of possessions she has, but because of the great courage, stamina, loyalty, patience, and spirit her people have shown. What if the Nazis win? I prefer to try to skate right by that question without looking back.

Now that we are going to step on the rink and don our skates as independents we must think of other issues such as marriage, divorce, our religion, smoking, drinking, and so on.

I know there are a lot of marriages followed by divorces within a month or so, and yet, I still look upon marriage as the most wonderful institution in the world. Statistics show the number of children per family is decreasing, which could be due to many causes such as a higher educated class of people, a high-

Select Daniel as Best Boy Citizen

Adding another honor to his already long list, Robert Daniel, president of the senior class and editor of the Pilgrim Prints, was selected best boy citizen of the graduating class by his school-mates and teachers last week. The points taken into consideration in choosing the outstanding citizen are dependability, including truthfulness, loyalty, and punctuality; service, cooperation, courtesy, and consideration of others; leadership, personality, self-control, and ability to lead, and patriotism, unselfish interest in school, community, and nation.

Besides being president of the senior class and editor of the Pilgrim Prints, Daniel has been a member of the debate squad four years, school orator in his sophomore year, member of the student council for three years, and vice president of the class in his junior year.

The three other students nominated by the class, were Paul Harsha, former editor of the Pilgrim Prints, and chief of police of the hall trooper system, Bill McAninch, student council representative, and Bob Norman, outstanding athlete in football, basketball, and tennis.

Virginia Rock, mayor of the school, was selected best girl citizen on the same points last winter.

A TROUBLESOME ISSUE SETTLED

When Plymouth adopted its present form of government a number of years ago, it was written into the charter that any one to hold an elective office in this city must be "a freeholder of the city and resident thereof for at least two years prior to his election."

While there has been some argument that the phrasing of this sentence meant that a person was not required to own property for a period of two years previous to the election, as far as we can see it, there is no question as to its intent that elective city officials be both property owners and residents of the city for two years previous to an election.

If it had not been the intent of the voters at the time they voted upon the charter they could easily have voted them down at that time. But they overwhelmingly approved these restrictions.

It is to be presumed, and rightly so, that the voters of the city of Plymouth set up these requirements of two years of property ownership and two years of residence because of the fact that the city government of Plymouth is supported entirely by taxes taken out of the pockets of the property owners. The city has no other form of income to support its fire department, its police department and its other constituted governmental agencies. And as long as elective city officials are spending only money taken away from the property owners, it is not unreasonable to require that property owners be elected to supervise the spending of property tax money.

The two-year residence clause is as sensible as is the other requirement. The voters when they adopted the charter apparently believed that one could not become well acquainted with the problems of the city without a residence here of less than two years, and so they wisely wrote that provision into the charter.

Because of the fact that some have raised a question as to the intent of the voters at the time they adopted the charter concerning the length of time one must own property before being elected to office, the city commission at the last election submitted to the voters a new amendment of more forceful wording than that in the former charter.

The voters again overwhelmingly approved of the two-year property requirement. In fact, the vote in favor of it was almost six to one. There can be no question as to the intent of the voters pertaining to the charter requirements of a residence and property ownership of two years at least before one is qualified to hold an elective office in this city.

The Plymouth Mail does not care to enter into a discussion of the other issues raised in connection with the recent action of the city commission in refusing to seat one of the candidates who won a place to the commission by six votes more than his nearest opponent.

As we see it, there was absolutely no other action for the city commission to take. It was not an easy matter for any official body to face, but the commission did so frankly and fearlessly, for which it is to be commended.

We believe that this troublesome issue has now been definitely settled for some time to come, unless of course, the voters should at some future date desire to remove the two-year residence and property ownership clause from the charter.

But as long as the property owners provide the funds which support the city government and as long as they believe that property owners will be more cautious about spending tax dollars than those who pay the city no tax dollars, there is little likelihood that there will be any change in the present charter provisions.

This is a home rule city, operating under the state home rule statute and we can run our own government as a majority of the voters of Plymouth decide, just so long as we do not violate the state home rule law—and that we have not done.

All of our charter provisions have been passed upon favorably by the Governor of Michigan, and that means that they comply strictly with ALL the provisions of the constitution of the state government. It is the Governor's duty to see to it that village and city charters as well as charter amendments comply with constitutional provisions before his official approval is given—and Plymouth has the Governor's approval of its charter and all of its charter amendments.

ROBERT BAUGHN.

It never pays to overdo—to go beyond one's strength—but it is human for a tireless worker to violate this rule of nature. From early morning until late at night worked Robert Baughn among his plants and flowers in his greenhouse and flower store. There were no eight hours a day for him, and no five-day weeks. He was devoted to his business and the flowers he loved so well.

The other day he had worked longer than usual, some sixteen hours or more. A business trip had called him to Northville. No one will ever know just what was the cause of the accident on the Northville road that resulted in his death, but one can rightly assume that he was tired out and that possibly he dozed in his car for a moment and during that moment his auto went straight ahead and into a dangerously located roadway abutment. His instant death followed.

Citizens of Plymouth who knew Robert Baughn well, who knew of his love of beautiful plants and flowers, who knew of his strict attention to his own business, will regret his passing. The death of any worthy citizen, especially one so young, is always a public loss.

TAXES.

It begins to look as though the government in Washington is going to take from the pockets of the people of this country most of the money they earn. Probably enough will be left for the individual to buy the necessities of life, and that is about all.

We have talked long and loud during recent years about state and federal squandering of tax dollars. Most of these complaints have been justified. The shameful waste of public dollars since the dawn of the "Roosevelt economy" administration, the graft and corruption in public affairs that have taken place in the last eight years, will provide future historians with material for the blackest pages ever written into American history.

But this is somewhat beside the point. While we have been taxed heavily in past years to provide funds for this squandering and to pay off those "on the take," and to feed an army of nearly a million public job-holders, many of them useless misfits, we will soon be asked to pay for our defense program.

Washington newspaper dispatches indicate that it will be the severest tax bill ever levied upon Americans.

While The Plymouth Mail has detested and loudly proclaimed its abhorrence of much that has taken place in Washington in recent years, and while we have been one of the many victims of the vicious political system that has developed within our present national administration, we feel that our country is faced with a tremendously grave danger.

News dispatches from across the Atlantic and the Pacific provide almost hourly proof of the dangerous situation this country faces. But it is not necessary to depend upon the current news from Europe and the Orient to bring to us a full realization of the plight our country faces.

For more than six long years we have known what Hitler has been doing and what he intended to do—and we twiddled our thumbs and poured our tax dollars down the political rat holes throughout the 48 states of the Republic in order to control elections instead of building the most powerful mechanized war machine in the world.

The administration talked to us about peace and plenty and false security when it should have been telling us the cold, hard truth.

But the hour is not yet too late.

It is going to take a mighty, MIGHTY effort to make up for that which we have lost in the last six or seven years.

What has happened must for the present be overlooked—and EVERY AMERICAN—EVERY REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRAT—must put his shoulder to the wheel and push with all his might to make America SAFE FOR AMERICANS.

It is going to take tax dollars—and plenty of them—therefore we should face this MINOR part of our responsibilities without a whimper. If by paying taxes we can help stem the tide that is now threatening us, we should gladly pay every tax dollar the government asks. We should not only do that, but if we have a few extra dollars, those dollars should go into the purchase of defense bonds.

Pay—and PAY GLADLY—if by so doing we can return safely and unharmed to the communities of America the clean, progressive young men we are now sending into army training camps—and at the same time keep America free and independent.

A VICTORY WON.

The enactment by the present legislature of the bill drafted two years ago by the writer to forever terminate the rule of political bosses and fixers of Wayne county political conventions is gratifying indeed.

The bill passed the house of representatives two years ago without a single vote against it, but it met its defeat in the state senate by one vote when a former senator of the political bosses, Felix Flynn of Cadillac, failed in his responsibilities and voted against the bill in compliance with their wishes.

This year, with Flynn out of the senate, it had the vote of every Republican senator.

The measure was re-introduced by Representatives Neller and Sawyer and while it met some little opposition in the house, it has now been passed and we are sure that it will provide for the people of Wayne county and Michigan all the benefits that are anticipated. We commend the legislature for its approval of this most progressive and beneficial piece of legislation.

The Plymouth Manufacturing company is the name of a new company which has just been formed to manufacture the rope making machines. The new company is capitalized at $25,000 and is incorporated under the state laws of Michigan. The officers of the new company are N. E. Sherwood, president; Henry Sage, vice-president; W. T. Pettigill, secretary; and E. O. Huston, treasurer. These officers with J. B. Hickey form the board of directors. For the present the company will occupy the building known as the Wherry shop on Dodge street. Henry Sage will be the superintendent in charge of the factory.

A special election will be held in Plymouth for both the village and township, Wednesday, May 24. The election is called pursuant to a resolution adopted by the board of supervisors relative to the question of changing the boundaries of the village of Plymouth, by annexing thereto a certain territory in the township of Plymouth, in accordance with a petition filed in the office of the county clerk. The territory which this proposition embraces is situated on the western side of the village and includes the new Elm Height subdivision

HELPING HITLER

Production loss in airplane plants during the past eight months due to CIO strikes meant one thousand less fighting machines for defense of America. When a law is proposed by the Michigan Legislature to stop sabotage, our kid Governor gives its opponents, (CIO), a pledge of aid to kill the bill by an unholy alliance with groups seeking to handicap the American government in every way possible in its War Preparedness Program. Why is Canada able to show the world her willingness to fight to save civilization and in a few months build up an air force of such huge size it amazes England? Well, as a starter, 10,000 young men of the United States enlisted as pilots in one year; 25,000 crossed the border and were trained as airplane mechanics. The plants in which they were educated were not dominated by the CIO. The only training plant in the United States for these mechanics is the Ford-Rouge. The CIO, to help Hitler, wants it closed. — Milton Carmichael in The Detroit Courier.

HOW TRUE!

In the good old days, when a man did a good job, you could hand him a five-dollar gold piece, but now you have to write a check, deduct social security, and report the gift to the U. S. government. It's like asking a girl friend for a receipt for your orchid—Adrain VanKoeveing in The Zealand Record.

NO EXCUSE NOW

The Roosevelt administration no longer has any excuse for handling communism with kid gloves. Every Communist, and fellow-traveler, too, should immediately be forced out of labor organization offices and out of government and state employment. There are Communists and pinks in federal employment. Columbia University has at least two influential Communist sympathizers on its staff, and both have been writing textbooks for use in public schools. Madame Perkins has been having a playful game of tag with Harry Bridges for the past five years. The Dies Committee has compiled a long list of Communist workers, many actually in the pay of Moscow, who have-bored themselves into high places in labor and government circles.

Heretofore, the administration has pursued a hush-hush Communist policy. Washington has flirted with Moscow in an attempt to line up Soviet Russia with the Democracies. One of the first acts of the Roosevelt administration was to offer the hand of friendship to Russia. While the rest of the world was denouncing the grab of Finland, not one move was made by the American government to stay Russia's drive, or even protest it very strenuously. Washington didn't want to hurt Russia's feelings, as though Russia had any feeling.

We have played Russia's game. We have given her aid and encouragement. And finally we have received our pay for it. With the consummation of the Russian-Japanese treaty there remains no reason whatever for continuing to tolerate Communist workers and fellow-travelers in the United States. It is time to crack down—Nelson Brown in The Ingham County News.

THE PUNK STATE FAIR

What to do about the state fair at Detroit, with its investment of several million dollars in buildings and equipment and its stupendous annual deficits, is agitating state solons at Lansing. One proposal is to remove the fair to the campus of Michigan

State College at East Lansing, abolish its horse racing and carnival features and make it strictly an agricultural show.

Another, quite as far removed from the first as is sin from saintliness, is to make it a year-around exhibition at Detroit, utilizing the investment in buildings and grounds for a recreation park in summer and a skating rink in winter, with the huge buildings available at all times for large gatherings such as expositions and conventions.

In its groping the legislature may not hit the right answer of its own volition. That answer is to kick political hitch-hikers off the state fair payroll and hang one of the familiar "no riders" placards on the state fair windshield.

The Detroit exposition has too long been a roosting place for lame ducks, a political football freely kicked around. Its well paid managerial positions are political rewards and it has provided salaries if not work for party favorites.

Under political management, with shifts in personnel with each change of administration, it has not prospered. Under business management it might wipe out its own deficits without running annually to the state grab-bag at Lansing.

What many people may not know is that since 1849 the state fair has been moved sixteen times and has been shown in eight different cities. It has always gravitated back to Detroit, and that may be its logical locale.

Its educational features are sorely needed in Detroit. It would be wholesome for the people of Detroit to learn more about agricultural Michigan. They need to know that milk comes from a cow and not from a truck, that potatoes represent arduous plowing and planting and cultivating and digging and that all manner of foodstuffs do not originate in the food store. There is no other place in Michigan where practical education in agriculture is more sorely needed, along with some sensible instruction in the economics of the industry.

Agriculture may have erred in always putting its best foot forward at the Detroit fair. There should be an exhibit of "parity," the elusive goal of the farmer. Detroiters do not know "parity" from a turnip. Premiums could be offered for the largest and the smallest AAA checks, and a mortgage booth might be enlightening. Market manipulators who meet the farmer at one end and the city consumer at the other end of the distribution line might be induced to put on a highly informative demonstration.

That sort of education is not needed at East Lansing, where it is proposed to locate the big show. East Lansing is information headquarters on all of those subjects, as well as upon the outdoor bathrooms and out-moded washubs that still linger on many Michigan farms.

Instead of moving it to the state college, it would be better to pull the political weeds on the state fair grounds and make the fair a more comprehensive and all inclusive agricultural exhibition.—Donald F. Cochran in The Hartford Day Spring.

WORKING FOR ADOLPH

The Axis powers cannot help but be pleased, satisfied and encouraged by what is going on at Detroit, because it is perhaps just as the smart boy over there had planned. America may wake up to what is boring from within, but it will be at a tremendous cost of lives and money before it is all ended. The Ford strike is just as long planned.—Al Weber in The Cheboygan Observer.

SHOULD DO THE KILLING, TOO

If only union men are permitted to work on defense projects and reap the benefits of high wages, then only union men should be conscripted to do the fighting.—William Berkey in The Cassopolis Vigilant.
