Only 2236 Voters Cast Ballots In Hot City Fight

3 to 2 Margin Favors Recall

Commissioner Frank Henderson was recalled yesterday by a vote of 1361 to 853. Mayor William Hartmann was recalled by a vote of 1399 to 813. Commissioner Lewis Goddard was recalled by a vote of 1361 to 853. Commissioner James Latture was recalled by a vote of 1418 to 794.

Of Plymouth's 3400 registered voters, only 2236 visited the polls to cast their ballots in what many have considered the city's most serious election in its entire history.

A campaign led by the Plymouth Citizens' League is given credit for the recall of the four commissioners. When a final tabulation was made, the Citizens' League issued the following statement about their victory.

"Throughout this entire campaign the Citizens' League has had only the best interests of the community at heart. We have fought for the past three months for the right of Plymouth citizens to vote on such important issues as those at stake in this election.

"We were confident at all times that desires of citizens for fair play in city government would eventually prevail.

"Naturally, we are gratified by the results of this election, and we trust that the losers will give full cooperation to the government approved by the majority of Plymouth voters.

"On behalf of the officers of the Citizens' League, I should like to thank all the supporters of the League who have sacrificed their time and money to make this victory possible."

Commissioners Goddard and Latture and Mayor Hartmann, the only three who could be reached for comment, issued the following statement in conjunction with the one made by the Citizens' League.

"Your decision has been made by a clear cut vote, to elect a new commission as soon as possible to govern the city of Plymouth.

"We sincerely hope and trust that this new commission will work for the good of ALL.

"We shall be ready and anxious to help restore harmony and maintain honesty and good will."

Several weeks of bitter campaigning by both sides in the current city fight came to an abrupt end about midnight last night, when final tabulations revealed the fact that the recall was complete on all four commissioners.

No plans have been revealed as to the League's program to recommend candidates to fill the vacated seats five days from now. Under the state statute, the governor will appoint four persons to occupy seats on the city commission for a 45-day period. During this time, their duty will be to supervise the continuance of city government and to conduct an election so that duly elected residents of this city may actually make final decisions on Plymouth's city government.

Both sides in the campaign expressed their opinions that they hope for immediate harmony in city political affairs once the issue has been settled by the electorate.

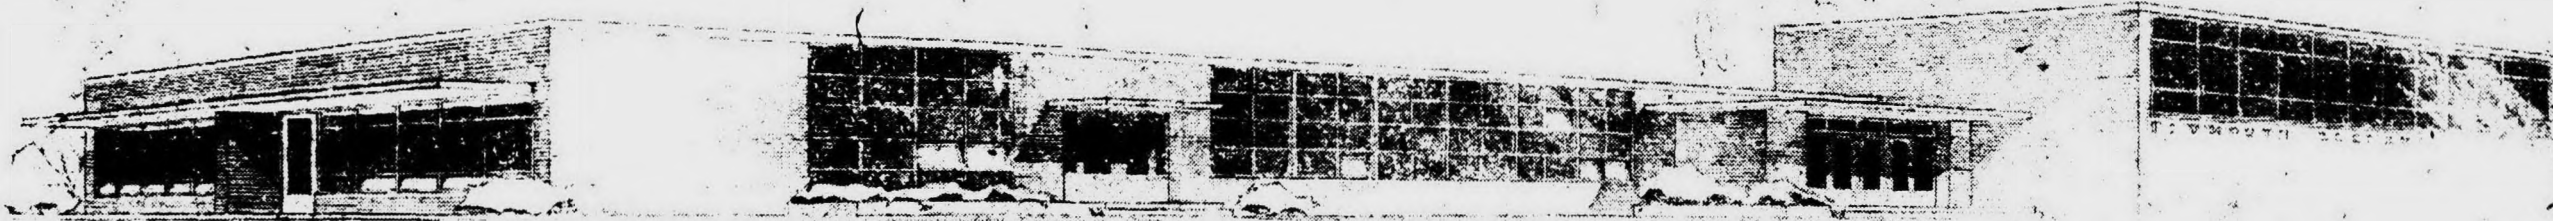

No plan for the official certification meeting has been made at this time by the city commissioners and the city clerk. However, by law it must be held within the next five days.

The box below shows how the city voted by precinct. It is interesting to note that in this election again there were some 92 spoiled ballots.

This is the final sketch of the 14 classroom grade school building to be constructed on Ross and Byron streets, one block west of Harvey street as approved by the Board of Education.

Attending the new grade school will be children from kindergarten through the sixth grade. Two classrooms will be used for each grade. Each classroom will have its own toilet facilities for both boys and girls, entered from the classroom. Also included in the classroom plans are a drinking fountain and sink for classroom activities with supply cabinets, book shelving, map drawers and ample storage space for supplies. Steel lockers placed in the corridors will be for the student's use.

Measuring 40 by 60 feet the combined auditorium and gymnasium will be able to handle about 300 persons. Folding tables in the gymnasium will allow the children to be served meals cafeteria style from the kitchen adjoining. In addition, boys' and girls' locker rooms with showers, connect with the gym.

After 27 years of service to the community, the Board of Education honored George A. Smith Tuesday evening by officially naming the new grade school the George A. Smith Elementary school. Mr. Smith was superintendent of Plymouth schools for 27 years before his retirement in 1945.

A health department, conference room, principal's office, teacher's room and general administration offices will be part of the new school.

The campus type plan shown is used extensively in the west and is proving very favorable in Michigan. Three wings project from the main part of the building, each wing containing four

Local Rotarians Collect Ties For Club in England

Here's good news for Plymouth housewives who are sick and tired of seeing so many of their husband's old neckties hanging around the house.

The Plymouth Rotary club has started a drive to pick up and ship to the old country every old and discarded necktie they can find in Plymouth.

At last Friday's meeting John Blyton, international relations committee, announced the intention of the club to collect old ties for the purpose of sending them to the Rotary club at Plymouth, England.

"You may be surprised to know that it is almost an impossibility to buy a necktie in England. Cliff Tait has advised me that he will send his truck to collect our ties and then he will clean and press all the old ties we can collect without expense to the club and after they have been cleaned, we will ship them to Rotarians in Plymouth, England, for distribution," stated Mr. Blyton.

It will be recalled that local Rotarians two or three years ago collected several tons of old clothing and shipped the goods to the English club. Rotarians at that time received numerous letters from people in England expressing their gratitude for the gifts they had received.

Burglarize Golf Club Twice in 48 Hours Last Week

Hilltop golf club was the "target for tonight" for burglars twice within a 48 hour period last week. The first theft provided a touch of humor when all the flags used usually to mark the holes at Hilltop were discovered on a make-shift miniature golf course set up in Plymouth's Kellogg park. One flag rested peacefully in the arms of the statue.

Thieves broke into the club house through a window Friday night and ran off with $450 worth of shirts, socks, cigars, candy and tobacco. They also ransacked the tractor garage and storage stand. The loss was covered by insurance. The sheriff's department is working on the case.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ralph Miller attended the performance of "Death of a Salesman" at the Cass theater in Detroit on Wednesday evening.

Congress Shall Make No Laws Abridging the Freedom of The Press

What I Think and Have A Right to Say
By ELTON R. EATON

WATCH OUT FOR KIDS!

Nearly 4,500 school children were killed or injured in pedestrian and bicycle accidents in Michigan last year. More than half of these killed, lost their lives crossing between intersections and running out from behind parked cars. This is why drivers should use particular care when driving on residential streets—especially on streets where cars are parked along the curb.

With the reopening of schools over one million children once more will be crossing streets. Tens of thousands of them will be crossing the street alone for the first time four times each day. Others will have become unaccustomed to crossing these streets safely during the summer and will be less careful.

A driver is entering a danger zone when he sees a child on the shoulder of the highway or on the sidewalk. He should be prepared to stop should that child thoughtlessly dash out into the street.

You, as a driver, know that children do these thoughtless things. Naturally, it is the duty of the parents and the schools to train their children to keep out of danger—but it is also the duty of every motorist to avoid an accident when such training fails.

A child forgets easily. He only has to forget once. Driver's must do some of the children's thinking for them.

Muriel Morgan Becomes Bride In Saturday Evening Ceremony

A garden reception at the Auburn street home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson, followed the wedding ceremony in Plymouth's First Presbyterian church when Muriel Morgan became the bride of John Henderson.

Before a setting of white gladioli and lighted tapers, the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward George Woods of Detroit, and Mr. Henderson, repeated their nuptial vows in a candlelight ceremony read by the Rev. Henry J. Walch at 7 in the evening on September 3.

Wedding music was presented by Barbara Anderson, soloist. Before the ceremony she sang "Oh, Promise Me," "I Love Thee" and during the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer." Her accompanist was Fred Nelson, organist.

Preceding the bride to the altar were the bridesmaids and the matron of honor. For her duties as matron of honor, the bride's sister, Mrs. Robert Brown chose a gown of gooseberry green taffeta fashioned with an off the shoulder neckline and full gathered skirt. A braided headpiece and mitts in the same shade of the dress, completed the matron of honor's wedding costume. She carried flowers of deep pink roses and ivy leaves.

The bridesmaids, Mary Rhoads, Carol Moen, Vicky Petschulat and Jean Wilson, a cousin of the bridegroom, were dressed identically in gowns of forest green taffeta styled along the same lines as the matron of honor's. They wore matching headpieces and mitts, and carried showers of light pink roses and ivy leaves.

Entering on the arm of her father, the bride wore a gown of traditional bridal satin, designed with a fitted bodice accented by a scrolled neckline embroidered in seed pearls. The full gathered skirt extended in a court train in the back. Repeating the same seed pearl design on the gown, the bride's satin headpiece held in place a tiered fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a prayer book topped with an arrangement of stephanotis and ivy centered by a white orchid.

As best man, the bridegroom chose Gerald Baity of Detroit. Completing the wedding party were the ushers, Ben Cornelius, Bill Swan, Ronald Baumgartner and Lee Weathers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a gown of white satin. The bodice of the bridal gown was styled with cap sleeves and stand-up collar. The hooped skirt was accented by a bustle in the back. White carnations centered by a white orchid made up the bridal bouquet.

As her maid of honor, the bride chose her cousin, Eunice Utley of Northville. Fashioned from fuchsia taffeta, Miss Utley's gown was designed along the same lines as the bride's gown. She wore hat and gloves in a matching shade and carried talismans.

Mrs. John Henderson

Formal length gowns in toast brown were chosen by both mothers, Mrs. Woods, and Mrs. Henderson for the Saturday evening wedding. Their gowns were complemented by the green orchid corsages they wore.

Two hundred guests were present at the reception which followed. Out of town guests were from Detroit, Canada and South Carolina.

Scott Cole Writes of Japan as he Saw it During Invasion and as he Finds it on Recent Return

Of more than ordinary interest pertaining to the present situation in Japan is a letter received by The Plymouth Mail from Scott Cole, a Northville-Plymouth young man, who went into Japan during the invasion of the American armed forces and who was recently returned to that country for another period of service.

Scott, as he is best known to his host of friends in Plymouth and Northville, temporarily gave up his studies at the University of Michigan to re-enter military service, is one of those unusually observing citizens who is able to search out the interesting things one would like to know about.

His letter in part follows: "At the present time I am in Japan, and Aide-de-Camp to Major General John M. Devine. As you know, General Devine was Commanding General at Fort Knox as head of the UMT program. He is indeed the finest type officer I have ever had the pleasure and good fortune to serve under. Unlike so many officers, he reasons as he thinks and is above all a great teacher.

"Japan has changed a great deal since I was here last. The huge devastated areas which I left behind in 1946 have since then sprung to life with new Japanese wooden houses complete with cheap wooden roofs. Unlike 1946, shops are flourishing with all kinds of cheap products which are colorful, but quite useless.

"Prices are much higher than they should be, which is a natural aftermath of the war. However, there are many items which are much cheaper than in the States, and of equal good grade. There is certainly a scarcity of food which is evidenced when one compares food prices.

"I don't feel that there are many people starving to death as during the years immediately following the war. However, I doubt if all the people go to bed at night with a comfortable stomach. The attitude has changed. I believe, more than anything else.

"Instead of being as docile type as they were in 1946, there once again is a certain note of arrogance in their being, particularly among the nouveau riche. Among the old important Zaibatsu runs a feeling of ultimate loss and I am quite sure a feeling of complete capitulation toward this new sound government.

"As you know, the Zaibatsu were the leading families in Japan who actually led Japan into war through their family control as well as their economic importance. These people now have scattered through Japan making out as best they can as shop keepers, laborers, or even students. The only evidence of their lost power and wealth is the enormous houses which dot the hills over central Tokyo.

"These houses alone should serve in making the Japanese people remember the domination and tension under which they lived for so many years prior to the war. Looking down from one of the palatial mansions one can see the shambles of average middle-class families. It is strange to find that up until now these people looked to their leaders with the attitude that "you are much superior to us so therefore you deserve what you have, and we must contend with so little."

"I wish you could be here and see how much of this occupation is operating. Day by day, step by step, we advance the Japanese closer to a goal of republicanism. We have gone out of our way to make sure that their contribution will be liberal for ages to come. Sometimes I feel that it is far too liberal and that they are advancing themselves too fast and that this government which they are adopting is too new. However, time will tell and perhaps Japan might be the greatest nation in the Far East. They are certainly mentally capable of this and are brilliant students, particularly in languages.

"Psychologically, I might say, they 'stink'. They are master copyers and it would be a safe bet to say that there is nothing under the sun which they cannot copy. Most of the things are not so good, but in certain patterns and objects so close to the real manufactured products we produce it is almost impossible to tell.

"As you know the biggest problem that Japan has to cope with at the present time is her system of economics. Can she balance her trade with other countries and can she cope with the already competitive industries and businesses throughout the world. A good example being our own silk industry in its infancy in Louisiana. I had an interesting talk with the president of Tokyo University the other day, and I will always remember his statement that the silk industry is Japan's life blood and if necessary, she will sell at a loss in order to drive and force other such industries out of the field.

"If this is true in the silk industry, why can't they do it in other industries? In order to succeed, the Japanese must understand and they have begun the ground work for this already. As soon as we leave, wages will drop to where they were 15 years ago. People reproduce too fast, consequently the country is crowded and labor is cheap.

"There will never be any release from this situation unless the population is scattered over a wider area, and through this, wages can be raised thereby putting this little country on a wage par and economic scale with her competitors.

"Through careful research and close application Japan expects the greatest crop in the history of the country. This alone is proof of the fact that our experts were the ones that caused it. Industrial control has also taken place through the courtesy of the United States Government.

"Japan has for the first time instituted a Bureau of Mines and Minerals. We have helped her establish schools for animal husbandry, and all forms of agricultural research. We have helped her with forest conservation, have stressed her electrical power plants and in some cases have even repaired her railroads.

"The point that I think should be stressed is this; that is true that Japan lost a great deal from the war by devastation. However, with this brought the com-

Symphony Notes

by Grace Von Bergen

If you should see a dapper band leader, complete with uniform waving a small baton—you will see a possible future band conductor or symphony orchestra conductor.

Little "Ted" Wagner, the son of Paul T. Wagner, director of the Plymouth Symphony, has been outfitted by his proud father, in just such a costume.

Teddy has a habit of keeping time and waving his arm when he hears music, something which the Wagners are not discouraging!

A letter came all the way from Puerto Rico this summer, asking that all available history and future schedules be mailed to a music lover and dealer in that section of the globe who has happened to hear of the symphony group. The letter, which was addressed to Mr. Wagner asked for all past programs; also requested to be placed on the symphony's mailing list and even offered to pay for same.

As the orchestra prepares its plans for the coming season, it can be proud of a summer well spent. The orchestra met once a month for rehearsals. Conductors were invited to direct the orchestra and musicians who happened to be visiting in and around Plymouth, put in an appearance at the rehearsals just for the fun of music—and keeping in practice, welcoming the opportunity to play with a different orchestra and to meet with fellow musicians and afterward to talk shop.

On June 14, Dr. William W. Norton, director of the Flint Symphony orchestra, took the podium; Professor Wayne Dunlap, director of the University of Michigan's Symphony orchestra, was present at the July 12 rehearsal and Thomas Lanese, associate conductor of the Fort Wayne, Indiana Symphony orchestra, appeared on August 9.

When rehearsals are over, the members of the orchestra are usually treated to a snack with coffee in the school's cafeteria, which is furnished by members of the board of Symphony Society who takes turns in serving and treating the musicians.

Following the July rehearsal, a special treat was in store, when the orchestra members were invited to a garden party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carlson Wall, which is located on the outskirts of Plymouth.

Here they were invited to make a tour of inspection of their home which is a creation by the noted architect, Frank Lloyd Wright. An impromptu musical program was given by Evelyn Woods, pianist, and Josef Lazaro, violinist and concert master of the orchestra.

Following the busy summer, the Wagners held themselves off to northern Michigan where they enjoyed two weeks at Dr. Rice's resort, near Elk Lake.

Here's a little story—Paul promised Helmer Nelson, the superintendent of the Plymouth schools, that he would take a complete vacation from music. He was going fishing. Well, he did go fishing—and with beginner's luck caught a small mouth bass, well over the legal size of ten inches, almost as soon as he was in the boat.

Along came Harold Von Bergen, personnel director of the orchestra, on the following weekend. Somehow or other, it was learned the final concert of Interlochen was being held on August 21.

It did not take much persuasion for Paul Wagner to climb out of those fishing togs and don his best suit and attend the concert.

But wouldn't you know it! While the Wagners and the Von Bergens were attending the concert, who should stop by the cottage, but Helmer Nelson and his clan. He left a note and let Wagner know that he suspected that he might be at the concert at the camp—and also dropped in the next morning to check further—and tell some very interesting stories about his vacation in Minnesota.

ing of Americans which advanced the Japanese people and their government 100 or 200 years. I think the people feel this and realize it, particularly those within the government. If only we can make this last for another two years, there will be no doubt as to which way the Japanese people will demand the government to go. This, indeed, is the best fight against Communism."

Prisoners Give up Their Savings to Buy Food for Hungry Mother

Long term prisoners at the Detroit House of Correction, including 32 who are serving life terms—do have a heart. They not only "have a heart," but they have plenty of human sympathy as well.

That became evident last week when many of the lifers and long term prisoners at the deluxe boarding house operated by Supt. A. Blake Gillies just west of the city, took from their meager savings a total of $115.10 to give to a hungry Detroit mother and her year-old son.

Appearing in one of the Detroit papers the other day was a picture of the mother and her babe who hitch-hiked their way to a police station to seek food.

She told officers that they had been without food for three days. The kindly Detroit police immediately provided them with something to eat and then made arrangements for the mother and son to be cared for by the Women's Division of the department.

The woman stated that her husband had deserted her in July. She had married him while he was a prisoner in Jackson.

It was the "human interest" appeal in the article which resulted in the long termers at the Detroit House of Correction in parting with a goodly portion of their savings to buy food and clothing for the distressed mother and her babe.

Recruits Can Get Aid at City Hall

Men and women interested in obtaining Army or Air Force recruiting information should visit the city hall on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Security and opportunities for travel are the two main attractions to those who are enlisting for peace-time service in America's Army and Air Force.

"During the month of July, 1226 men enlisted for service in the Army and Air Force through the Recruiting offices of the Eastern Recruiting district. Of those who enlisted, 851 elected to serve in the Army, while 375 joined the Air Force. In addition, 22 young women from the two states of the Eastern Recruiting district enlisted in the women's components of the Army and the Air Force—the WAC's and WAF's. Of the total number who enlisted, 33 were from this area," S/Sgt. W. D. Long said.

Enlistments for the Air Force continue to be on a strict quota basis, Sgt. Long says. Openings for enlistment in the Army, however, are practically unlimited.

Direct assignments to such famous branches of the Army as the Armored Cavalry, the Corps of Engineers, the Field Artillery and the Infantry are now guaranteed those who request such assignment. In addition, there are openings, on a quota basis, for Airborne training, direct assignment to the Far Eastern Command or to one of the Infantry divisions now serving in Japan and Germany.

Son of Former Plymouth Man Fatally Injured

Held on a manslaughter charge after crashing into a bicycle on which two boys were riding, killing one instantly and critically injuring the other, a Chicago man was booked in the Berrien county jail last week.

Jerome Becker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thurber J. Becker, former Plymouth residents, was thrown from the bicycle, dying instantly from a broken neck. His twin, Julian, is in critical condition with a deep cut in his throat and internal injuries.

Prosecutor Joseph E. Kilham, after reviewing the case, stated he would press the stiffest charges possible since "there was no reason why this tragic accident should have occurred."

The Chicagoan overtook the twin brothers, both riding the same bicycle, on an open highway. The salesman is reported to have failed to slacken his speed until he was about 30 feet from the boys and, according to police reports, he failed to swerve in an attempt to avoid striking them.

Plymouth relatives of the Beckers who attended the funeral services at the Pittsford Congregational church Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Otto Reamer, Mrs. Elmer Barlow, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Rorabacher, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holloway, Mrs. LeRoy Jewell, Mr. and Mrs. Derward Jewell, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Becker, Mr. and Mrs. Manfred Becker, Shirley Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Volinsky. Robert and Norman Julian, Richard Reamer and DeWayne Becker of Plymouth were active pallbearers for their cousin.

Accident Fatal to Plymouth Man

Ertmann Kessler, 46, of Cherry Hill road, was killed instantly, and his son, William, 19, injured when their car crashed into the back of a truck stopped on Ford road at Haggerty highway on Thursday evening, September 1.

According to the sheriff's report, the truck driver, Clayton Howard, 40, of Detroit, struck a road barrier. When he stopped to look over the damage, the car driven by Kessler struck the back end of the truck.

In a statement made to the road patrol by Howard and the younger Kessler, the sun blinded Kessler so that he could not see the truck in time to stop.

Taken to Wayne County General Hospital by the Schrader ambulance, young Kessler was released after examination.

Funeral services were held at the Geer Funeral Home in Ypsilanti at 2 p.m. Saturday. Interment was at the Cherry Hill cemetery.

Kiwanians Hear Industrial Report by Local Student

A report from one of the Interners of Industry was given at Tuesday's Kiwanis meeting by Robert Daniels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Daniel of Melrose avenue.

Young Bob was one of the 14 college representatives sent to Kansas City, Missouri, last summer to get first-hand information and experience in actual industrial situations. The group was sponsored by the American Friends Service committee, a social service organization of various Quaker groups.

Representing Miami university in Oxford, Ohio, Bob was impressed by the diversity of the representative group. Several students had foreign backgrounds—Chinese, Nisei, French, yet all apparently shared the same ideas on the industrial situation.

Living in the Fellowship house, a cultural center in Kansas City where negro and white persons meet during the winter to discuss racial problems, the group found their own jobs in industry and met at least twice a week to discuss their problems and ideas. In this manner each person as well as the group learned about actual situations in industry.

Bob said he got to know industrial leaders, labor leaders, and union presidents as well as a cultural center in Kansas City their families, and discovered not only how they think but why they think that way.

At the next Kiwanis meeting, officers and delegates who returned last week from the district convention in Detroit will report to the Kiwanians.

Discover Live Grenade in Car

State police are investigating a live hand grenade found on the floor of a used car in the Beglinger Oldsmobile lot on South Main street.

Discovered Tuesday by Vaughn Emblin, who is employed in the paint and bump shop behind Beglingers, the pin was in the grenade and it was very much alive.

Found in a '39 Nash repossessed from a family in Northville, the grenade was held at the Plymouth police department until state police picked it up for investigation.

New Buick Special

High on the list of engineering achievements on the new Buick Special is the design of the combined bumper and grille. Developed by Buick and offered on the Special for the first time, this innovation was accomplished by placing the verticle bumper grille bars forward of the single-piece bumper. Two bomb-shaped bumper guards, which also house the parking lamps, are mounted on the bumper.

Begin Work on New Race Track

The ground was officially broken two weeks ago for the new Michigan Racing association oval at Schoolcraft and Middlebelt roads in Livonia township. Work is now rapidly progressing on the $4,100,000 racing strip.

The Barton-Marlow company, general contractors of Detroit, have the contract for the preparation of the site and they report that heavy earth moving equipment has been brought in to move the 50,000 yards of dirt necessary in the preparation of the most modern track in the Midwest.

Despite the fact that the MRA lost in the neighborhood of $400,000 during their 80-day racing meet at the State Fair grounds, the officials expect to have the Livonia track ready for operation next Memorial Day.

Barton-Marlow's contract calls for the construction of a one mile and two half mile tracks. One of the latter is for harness racing and the other a training track. Their contract also calls for the construction of all roads, parking lots, sidewalks, standee's terrace and a railroad siding.

All told, approximately 50,000 yards of dirt must be moved, which amounts to a cone 358 feet in diameter by 358 feet high. There will be 59 acres of parking space, one and one half miles of water main, five miles of asphalt and gravel roads, and three miles of wire fence around the property and stable area.

Scorched Hands Result of Blaze

Firemen were called out twice within the last week to fight blazes, one of which resulted in badly scorched hands for a home occupant.

Local fire fighters administered first aid to the second degree burns on the hands of Charles Thorn after he attempted to extinguish flames started in the bedroom of his home at 336 Ann street Tuesday evening.

Paint remover, which Thorn was using in his bedroom, apparently ignited an extension cord, according to the firemen. Burned woodwork, dresser and rug caused approximately $365 worth of damage. Thorn burned his hands when he threw out ignited cans.

Called out at 8:17 p.m. firemen extinguished the blaze promptly.

A grass fire at the end of Palmer street brought firemen to the scene on Thursday afternoon, September 2. Summoned at 12:07, firemen put out the flames quickly with little damage resulting.

The automatic alarm system at Allen Industries was set off accidentally Wednesday morning, sending a false alarm to Plymouth firemen. There was no fire.

Here Are Pointers on Everything You Need to Know About Pickling

With the approach of the fall harvest season many Plymouth homemakers are thinking about putting up a supply of one kind and another.

For success in pickling, the American Red Cross Nutrition Service suggests that only fresh, good quality fruits and vegetables be used. Fruits may be slightly underripe. Directions must be followed exactly; right ingredients should be used and measured correctly; fruits and vegetables are to be sorted for size; and finally pickles are kept best sealed airtight and stored in a cool, dry, dark place.

What are the right ingredients to use when pickling fruits and vegetables? Vinegar should be a good, clear, standard kind—free from sediment—one with 4 to 6 percent of acetic acid. Fifteen or 20 years ago the standard vinegar had about 3 percent acetic acid. For that reason, if you try to make pickles according to old recipes they may be too sour. Pure granulated salt is best for brining.

Spices that are whole keep flavor longer. They can be tied in a cloth to cook with other ingredients and then removed before pickles are packed. When using a spice bag, be sure it is large enough so juices can circulate through the spices and draw out the flavor.

When it comes to choosing equipment to use for cooked pickles, don't use a copper kettle if it is the least bit tarnished because acid reacts with the tarnish and forms poisonous salts. Also don't use a galvanized pail. Here too acid or salt reacts with the zinc to form poisons.

Pickles keep best if sealed in airtight jars. Left in a crock or capped with paraffin, they are likely to mold and soften. Use lightning-type jar or one with a three-piece lid. Don't use zinc lids or metal lids with self-sealing compounds. Sharp, acid foods like pickles will eat into metal if they touch it directly. For more complete information about pickling and recipes available, address your request to the Nutrition Service, American Red Cross, 153 E. Elizabeth, Detroit 1, Michigan, or, call Woodward 1-3500, extension 247.

DILLED CUCUMBERS OR GREEN TOMATOES
40 to 50 medium-sized or large cucumbers or green tomatoes
1 cup (2 oz.) whole mixed pickle spices
Fresh or dried dill
1 pint (2 cups) vinegar
1 pound (1½ cups) salt
2 gallon water

Wash and drain the cucumbers or green tomatoes. Place half of the pickle spices and a layer of dill in a 5-gallon crock or stone jar. Fill the crock with cucumbers or tomatoes to within 4 to 5 inches of the top. Mix well with vinegar, salt, and water and pour over the vegetable. Place a layer of dill and remaining pickle spices over the top.

Cover with a heavy plate and weight it to hold the vegetable under the brine. Use only enough brine to cover the plate, for as the liquid is drawn from the vegetable the crock may overflow.

Keep pickles at room temperature, about 70 degrees F., and each day remove scum that forms over the top. Let pickles ferment until well-flavored with dill and clear throughout, with no white spots when cut. In about 2 or 3 weeks the pickles are ready to use.

TO STORE. Pack the cured pickles in hot, steril, quart glass jars. Strain the pickle brine, bring to boil, and pour over pickles to top of jar. If desired, add ¼ cup vinegar to each quart. Seal tightly.

WITH GARLIC. Add one-half pound garlic to above recipe. To prepare garlic break the clusters open and separate cloves. Remove the thin, brown skin from each garlic clove. Add a few cloves with the first layer of dill and pickle spices. Fill the crock with alternate layers of cucumbers or tomatoes and garlic cloves to within 4 to 5 inches of the top. Continue as in above recipe.

PICKLE POINTERS. When making dills, keep these points in mind:
• Use right amount of salt. In a brine too weak, pickles spoil; in a brine too strong, they shrivel.
• Have enough brine to cover well and keep pickles pushed under or they're likely to mold and get slippery.
• Take scum off top of brine every day or pickles may spoil.

PICKLED PEACHES
2 pounds small or medium-sized peaches
2 tablespoons whole cloves
8 two-inch pieces stick cinnamon
4 pounds sugar
2 quarts vinegar
Wash and pare peaches and stick two cloves in each peach. Or put cloves and cinnamon loosely in a clean, thin, white cloth and tie up tightly. Cook together spices, sugar and vinegar for 10 minutes, or until the syrup is fairly thick. Add the peaches; cook slowly until tender, but not broken. Let stand over-night.

In the morning remove spices if they have been cooked in a bag. Drain the syrup from peaches and boil syrup until thickened. Pack peaches in clean, hot sterile jars. Pour syrup over the peaches, filling jars to top. Seal tightly.

Keep in a cool place for several weeks before serving, to blend the flavor.

As ever, link sausages are ideally combined with apples. This time sliced apples sprinkled with brown sugar fill a casserole, topped with link sausages. The casserole is baked in a moderate oven until the fruit is tender and the sausages sizzling.

Breakfast or Sunday night pancakes become more delicious with bacon. Slowly panbroil bacon slices in a frying pan, then pour pancake batter over them and bake as usual.

Good Examples Are Important to Children's Diets

When your child is learning to eat solid foods probably the hardest thing you have to do is keep from over-anxiety and urging. Think how you would feel if someone were to sit tense and anxious throughout your meals urging you to try this or that or to eat all of this or that.

Winston Osborn, home economist at Michigan State college, emphasizes the importance of a good example in getting your children to eat well-balanced meals.

Food dislikes have many sources but the earliest and most difficult to overcome are those acquired at the family dinner table. A recent study showed that 25 percent of food dislikes could be traced to similar dislikes of members of the family. Children are the world's best imitators although at the same time they are going all out for individuality.

Young children tend to follow the example of older ones both at home and at school. So another influence you have to watch is that of your child's friends and schoolmates, the home economist contends.

The old saying that forbidden fruit is always sweetest certainly applies to food habits. Much as we would like to remove the temptation of too many sweets from our children, it is unwise to make a definite issue of it often has the opposite effect, she reports.

The wisest solution to this problem is to build up good food habits from pre-school days—the right foods, regular meals, pleasant surroundings and social ability and good example. Miss Osborn believes the well-fed child has less inclination to go on sweet spees and craving of sweets is often found in children whose total diets are poor.

Pleasing Ways to Serve Liver Given to Plymouth Homemakers

If liver with bacon and onions is the Plymouth homemaker's automatic combination, then there's a whole new field of cooking and eating enjoyment in store for her and her family.

French fried liver stands out in the parade of unusual and delicious dishes. Either beef, pork, veal or lamb liver is cut into ½-inch wide strips, rolled in seasoned flour, then fried in deep hot lard at a 360° F. temperature. When richly browned and thoroughly cooked, the strips are removed from the lard, drained and served. For a slight variation, the liver may be cut into 1½-inch squares.

Liver casserole presents even more variation. For preparing one tasty combination the liver is sliced, simmered in water for about 10 minutes, then cubed into bite-sized pieces and combined with chopped celery, sliced olives, hard-cooked eggs, paprika and Worcestershire sauce add a distinct taste to the liver cooking liquid which is thickened with a flour paste and added to the liver mixture in a baking dish. Buttered bread crumbs are sprinkled over the top and the casserole baked in a 350° F. oven for about 20 minutes or until the ingredients are completely heated.

The endless opportunity for satisfying liver dishes includes liver in ground form. For simple grilling, the meat is browned in a small amount of lard or drippings just until firm—about five minutes, then run through a food chopper. Leaves or individual patties may be formed or the ground meat is rightly combined with chopped onion, about ½-cup of sausage for added fat, beaten egg, milk, soft bread crumbs, chopped carrot and packed in a greased ring mold. It is baked in a slow 300° F. oven for about one hour, unmolded and the ring temptingly filled with a creamed vegetable.

New Sandwiches Add Interest to School Lunches

Fall spells back to school and likewise back to lunch box preparation for Plymouth homemakers. Sandwiches have long been the handy main fare of lunch-boxes and as home meals must be ever changing, so must sandwich fillings to spur lunch time interest, advises home economist, Reba Staggs.

A simple lesson in plump and tasty sandwich filling variety might well start with bacon. This crisp meat when cooked and chopped provides desirable crunchiness and is delightfully combined with sliced olives and cream cheese; peanut butter and pickle relish; baked beans, cabbage and mayonnaise; hard-cooked eggs and chili sauce; mashed banana; peanut butter or tart jelly.

Also there are ideal bread and filling combinations such as chopped ham, celery and mayonnaise spread between slices of raisin bread. Chopped corn beef with minced onion, mustard and mayonnaise on rye bread; ground cooked liver with finely chopped carrot, mayonnaise on whole wheat bread.

Other combinations include luncheon meat chopped with American cheese or deviled ham, sliced hard-cooked egg and mayonnaise spread on enriched white bread, potato bread or any of the tasty quick breads.

Successful Parenthood

BY MRS. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS
Associate Editor, Parents' Magazine

DO YOU HAVE MORE difficulty getting one child up and doing in the morning than you do the other children? It's a rare family that hasn't one laggard. In pioneer days, when every minute of daylight was precious for getting done the myriad chores necessary to keep the family fed and clothed, such a child was usually regarded as lazy.

But we have finally come to know that all body mechanisms don't do their work at the same speed. It has long been admitted that some persons need more sleep than others. Now we are beginning to understand that different things happen to the body during sleep. Some, for instance, find their bodies almost a dead weight in the mornings. Others are apt to be at their physical best after a night's rest.

Accepting the fact that persons start off the day at varying rates of activity, what can you do to help the child who finds it necessary literally to pull himself together in the mornings?

To begin with, you will probably find him wanting to stay up later at night than the other children, who will have worn themselves out by bedtime. His energies may be scarcely past their peak by then. However, since his day must be regulated by the same clock as his schoolmates, every effort should be made to establish an early hour for going to bed. But since you can't force sleep on him, some leniency is necessary in the matter of reading in bed or playing quiet games with himself.

If he is still awake when you retire bring him an orange or two buttered crackers, but no liquids. Sit by him while he eats and try to turn his active thoughts into more placid ones by reminding him of a day's fishing you once enjoyed together or a long walk in the woods. Or play a game to see which of you can act more like the family cat dozing before the fire.

In the mornings work out a program of family rising that will take into account the state of each person's energies. The one who is most fully awake when his feet touch the floor can be appointed the family getter-upper. This may be father or mother or even a 10-year-old child. After waking the others he starts a hot drink brewing—cocoa for the children, coffee or tea for the grownups. If mother is the first riser she will marshal the widest awake of the children into the bathroom first. By the time the hot drink is ready he will be nearly enough dressed to carry a cup of cocoa to his still dozing brother or sister. The hot drink will provide fuel to start the latter's brain and body functioning.

It is better for a child to perform this service than for mother, since there should be no suggestion of invalidism or favoritism about this morning pampering of the slow waker. In return, he should be assigned a service in the evenings for his sleeper brother, such as the final putting away of toys or games.

In other words, put the whole program on the casual basis of who does best, what and when. It is all in line with our repeated reminders that the surest way of treating your children with equal fairness is to discover in what ways they need to be handled differently.

windows facing north. The south wall will have directional glass blocks for the clearstory windows.

Hot water heating with wall hung convectors in grades one through six and floor heating in the kindergarten will keep the children warm during the winter.

The youngest children will enjoy going to school in this most modern kindergarten. On the south side of this room leading to the outside play area, will be a covered paved terrace with sand boxes and drinking fountain. This play area for the kindergarten children will be separated from the regular playground.

The building is so planned that the auditorium may be used for community activities without interfering with the students' studies or regular school activities.

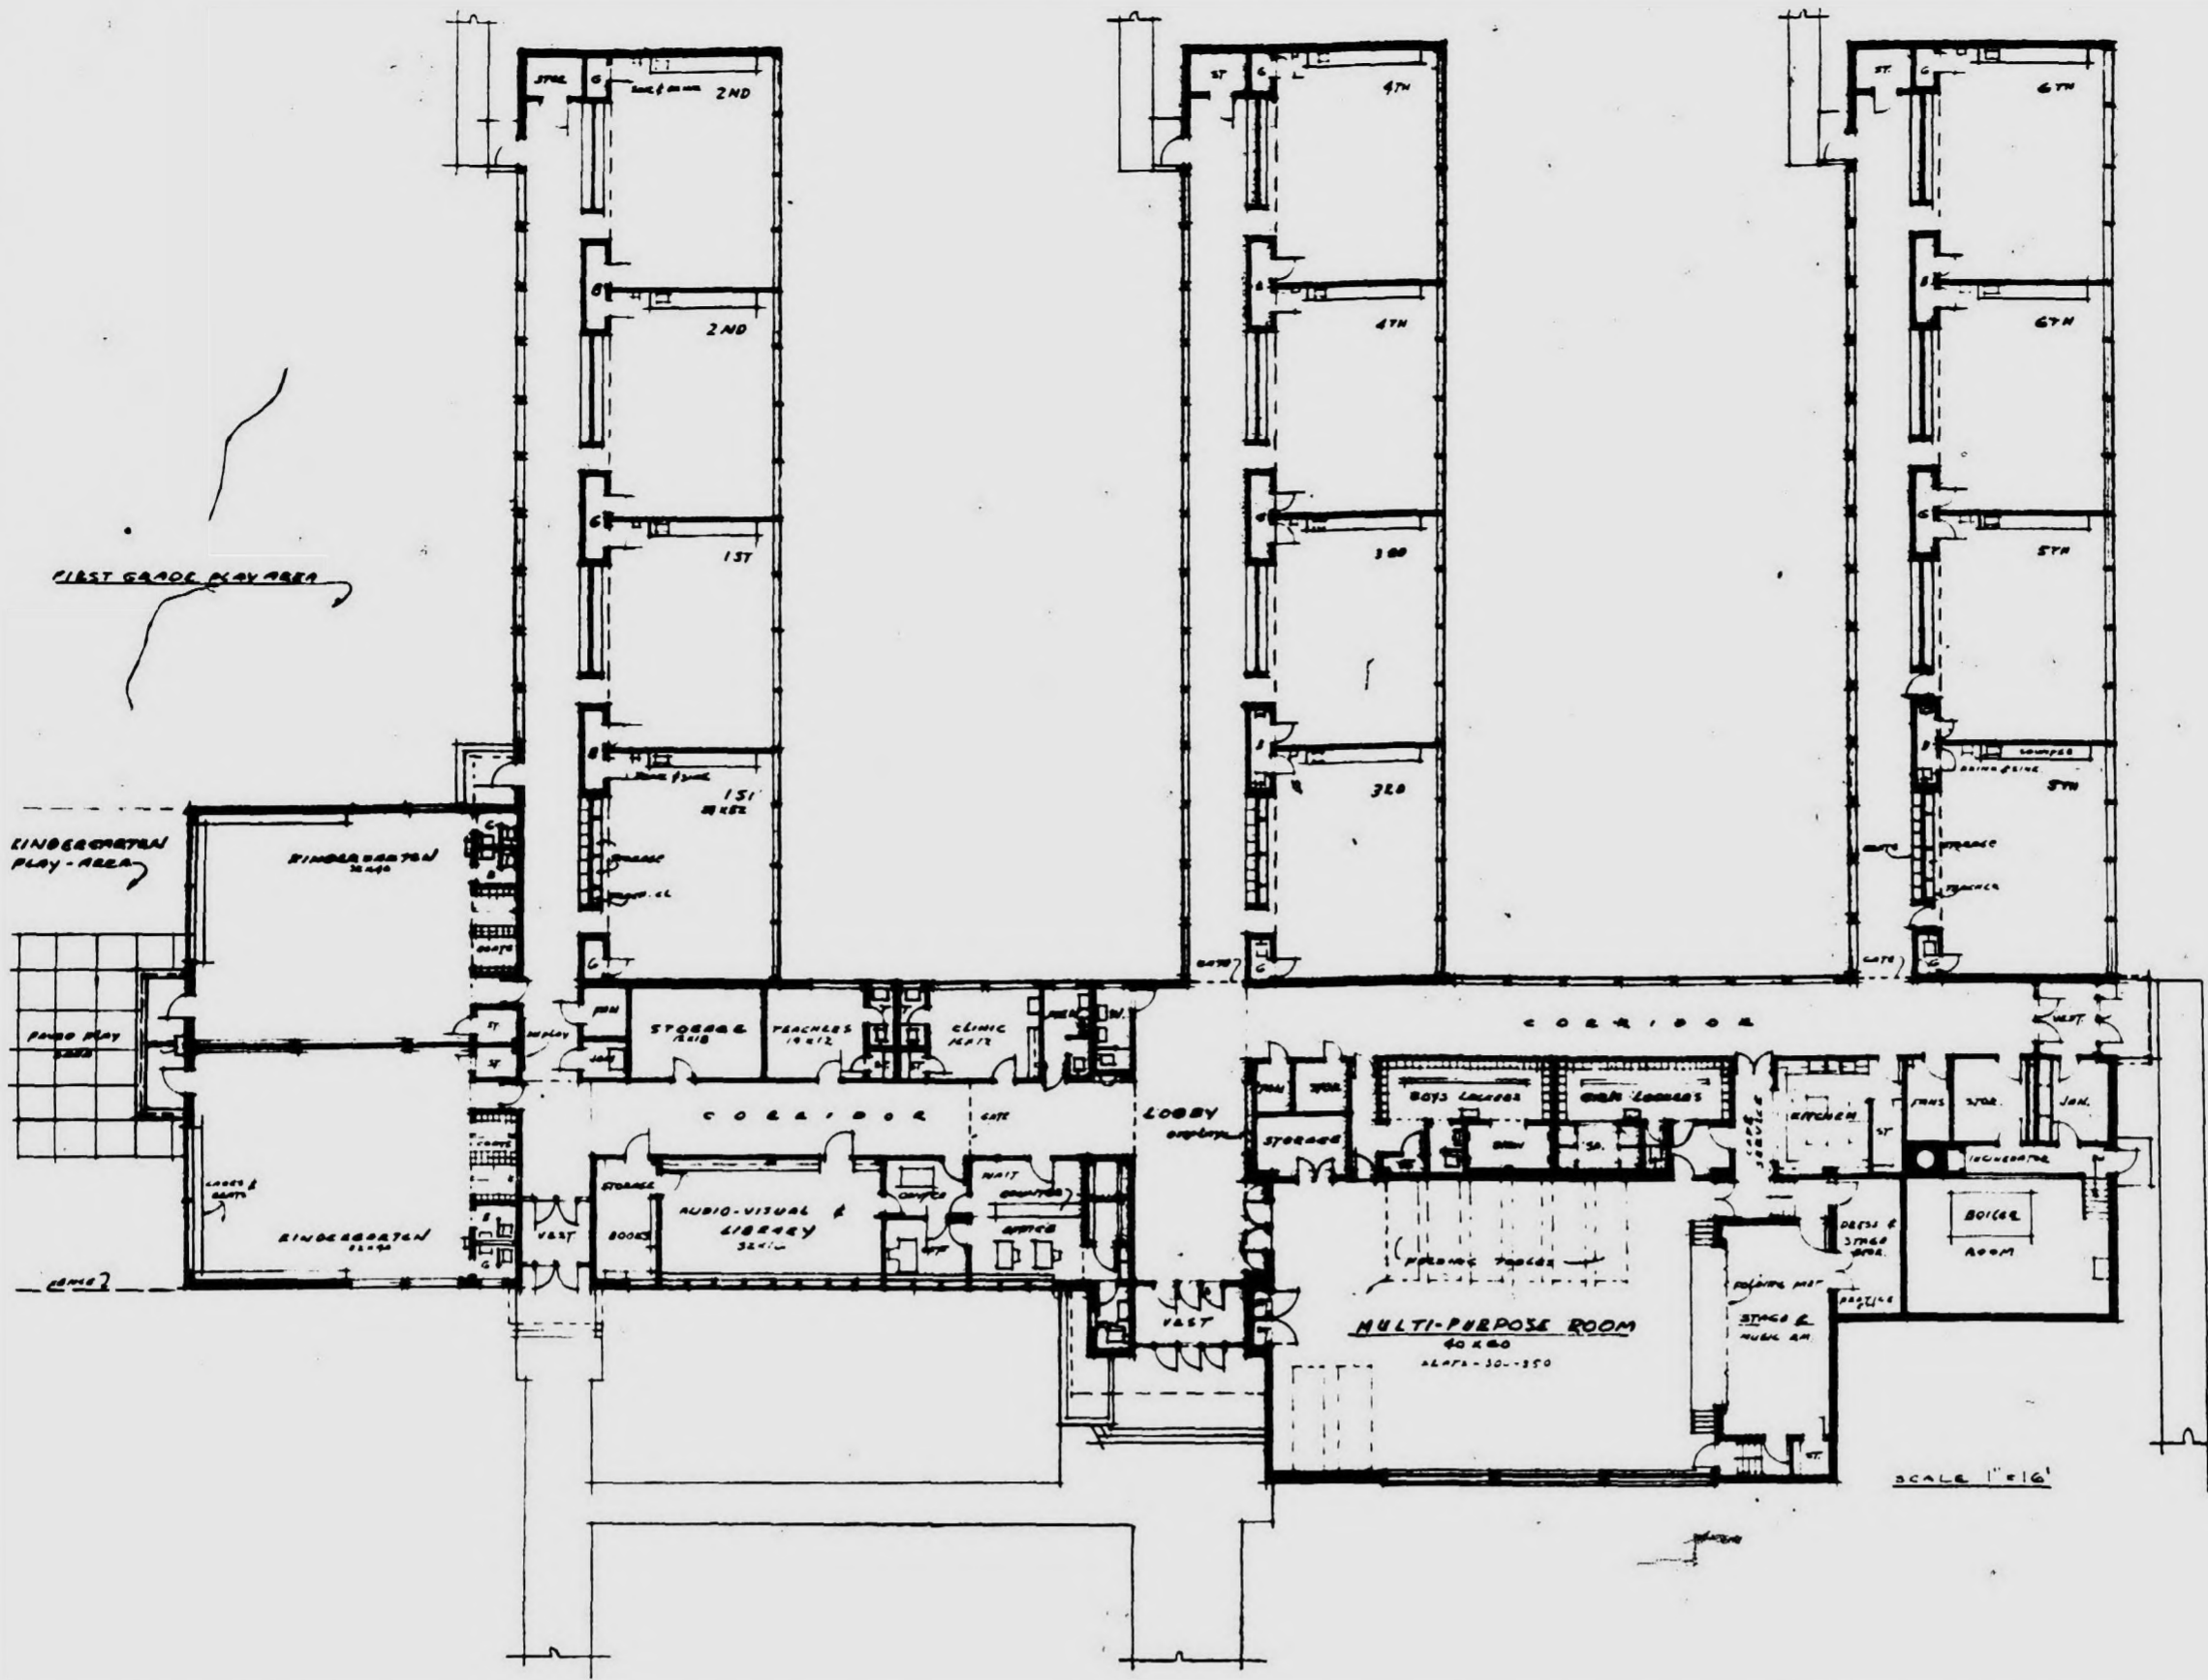

Using brick for the exterior of the building, the plans call for glazed brick tile wainscot and cinder block for the interior.

Asking for contractor's bids late this fall, the school will be completed by fall of 1950.

Working plans for the building are being prepared by Thomas W. Moss, Nathaniel O. Gould and Eberle M. Smith, Associates, architects and engineers, with offices in Detroit and Plymouth.

Floor Plan of the New Campus-Type Grade School Complete

This sketch of the 14-room elementary school shows the completely modern plans approved by the Board of Education. In each of the three extending wings two grades will be held—two rooms for each grade, with separate plumbing in each classroom. The large combination gymnasium and auditorium can be used for community activities without interfering with student activities or studies. In the audio-visual library students will spend many pleasant hours preparing their lessons. To be completed in fall of 1950, ground will soon be broken and construction begun.

Sally Mackintosh Aids in State Fair Program Sunday

Outstanding 4-H club member Sally Mackintosh of 45930 Mab-en road, participated in the candle lighting ceremony portion of the Young America program at the Michigan State Fair Sunday evening. She represented the state 4-H organization.

At the recent county 4-H fair, Sally won blue ribbons in sewing, canning, good grooming and gardening. She represented Wayne county on the canning judging team at the state 4-H show held last week at Michigan State college. She copped blue ribbons for canning and gardening exhibits at the East Lansing show.

An assistant leader in garden club and grooming projects in the Bartlett school district, Sally has led a sewing group for the past two years. Keeping up the 4-H tradition in the Mackintosh family is Sally's younger brother, James, who has completed his first year in club work, winning blue ribbons for a Hampshire lamb, electrical projects and a garden exhibit at both the county and state 4-H shows.

Wins Driving Diploma at School

DUAL CONTROL

Think it's easy to teach someone to drive? The group above, part of 78 state high school teachers and police officers attending a five-day Driver-Training Institute here (Monday, August 22 through Friday, Aug. 26), discovered most drivers pick up at least a dozen bad habits from relatives or friends acting as teachers. Co-sponsored by State Department of Public Instruction, University of Michigan extension division and Automobile Club of Michigan, the Institute fitted instructors to teach driver-training in Michigan high schools. Above, Hervey Beutler of Dimondale gets driver-training diploma from Institute Director Norman E. Borgerson of State Department of Public Instruction, while Lester C. Anders of Plymouth (left) and Donald Hochrein of Ypsilanti watch. All-expense scholarships were awarded the 78 educators by Auto Club.

If Michigan people do not look out, the little perch will be about the only fish left in the Great Lakes in addition to the smelt. Not only is the lamprey eel doing terrific damage, but commercial fishermen are not helping the situation in the least.

The newest threat is the nylon commercial fishing net. Not only is this net a threat, but the rapid decline in the tons of fish being taken from the Great Lakes is seemingly causing a general disregard of all fishing regulations.

In recent weeks, conservation officers have been removing big nets from the Great Lakes which were from 25 to 100 feet below the legal depth for setting nets. It is reported that a number of valuable nets were confiscated a few days ago in Lake Huron. But the new threat to the Great Lakes commercial fishing industry—introduction of nylon netting which some users claim increases catches as much as 300 per cent, and hence further depletes fish supplies, were aired at a special conference in the U. S. courthouse in Erie, Pa., recently.

Possible regulation of the new-type nets were discussed at the meeting which was attended by Dr. John Van Oosten, chief of Great Lakes fishery investigations for the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Fred Weserman, Michigan conservation department fish chief, as well as conservation officials of Canada and other states including Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. Commercial fishing operators and representatives of net manufacturers also were invited to the hearing.

A few Michigan, other Great Lakes states and Canadian commercial fishermen now are using this expensive but more effective netting which hangs in the water better, has better warping qualities, sharper twine and requires less twine to catch the same quantity of fish. Many Great Lakes operators who have large investments in cotton or linen fishing gear view the new nets with alarm, and one Canadian fishermen's association already has gone on record as favoring control of the tonnage of fish taken with these nets providing it is done on an international basis.

At one time commercial fishermen used linen nets almost entirely. When linen became scarce and high priced, they turned to cotton especially for the small-mesh nets. Although less expensive, cotton nets always have presented a law enforcement problem because of shrinkage.

Commercial fish production in all Michigan waters of the Great Lakes amounted to a below-normal 7,300,000 pounds through May, with the lamprey, weather and some pollution getting most of the blame by fishermen.

Classification of 438,459 acres of state land in 47 northern counties, with nearly half or 210,843 acres allotted for public conservation uses, completes over three years of special dedication work by the conservation department's lands division.

Remaining 227,616 acres were left undesignated subject to purchase or exchange application for private use or available to municipalities for local public use.

Working with county land use planning committee on the classification study since 1946, the department considered soil character, topography, forest growth, past and present uses and location before making recommendations to place nearly half of the acreage in state forests primarily, but also in state parks and public fishing sites. Counties in which over 9,000 acres were dedicated to conservation uses are: Baraga, Marquette, Iron, Houghton and Mackinac. Counties in which over 9,000 acres were left undesignated and subject to sale, exchange or available for local public use are: Baraga, Delta, Dickinson, Iron, Marquette, Menominee, Chippewa, Backinac, Schoolcraft and Houghton.

Not involved in the classification study were the other 36 counties in southern Michigan. Tax-reverted lands in this part of the state came under the new defunct state land office board whose sole function was to get these lands back into private ownership as quickly as possible and without regard to best uses. With the conservation department taking over administration of southern Michigan tax-reverted acreage, May 1, these lands in the future will be classified as to best usage before disposal recommendations are made.

Construction of a new 10-acre public fishing site on Barry and 'onia counties Jordan lake will be finished in time for first usage by ice fishermen, the conservation department's fish division announces.

Work crews now are developing a parking area and gravel road entrance for the large fishing access site to be located on the Barry county shore of the lake.

The fish division has about 426 water frontage strips on state lakes and streams, one-third of which are usable as boat launching sites and another third which are in the improved class with additional facilities. Strips are converted to public fishing sites as quickly as funds are available.

An all-out search for possible survivors of the disastrous blight that swept through the East's chestnut stands is under way, headed by Dr. Arthur H. Graves of Connecticut, the Wildlife Management Institute reports.

Once one of the most important timber trees and sources of wildlife food, the stately chestnut was reduced within a decade and a half to a puny, sterile, disease-ridden shrub. Sprouts of up to one inch in diameter still are common, surviving on the roots of their dead ancestors. As soon as this size is reached, or before, blisters begin to appear on the bark and the sprouts soon die back. As long as this process continues, however, the chestnut lives, and while life persists there is hope that a blight-resistant tree will be found.

Anyone finding an American chestnut over four inches in diameter, a chest height is urged to send a leafy twig for identification to Thomas J. Page, agricultural director, Radio Station WNBC, Radio City, New York. The horse chestnut, beech, and chinquapin sometimes are confused with the American chestnut, and cooperators should be reasonably sure of their identification before submitting samples.

Local Navy Men Spend Labor Day in Mexican Port

While hometown friends battled the crowded highways, beaches and pools to celebrate the Labor Day weekend, regular crew members James Leonard Russell, electronics technician third class of 376 South Harvey street, and James Andrew Smith, fireman apprentice, of 646 South Main street steamed leisurely into Vera Cruz aboard the USS Bristol with a navy destroyer division for a two-day holiday in Mexico.

Welcoming crowds lined the city's docks as the destroyers, part of a squadron from New Orleans engaged in training naval reservists, nosed into their berths for a visit in the Mexican port.

Unlike the naval force President Wilson ordered to Vera Cruz in 1914, the sailors visited the city as ambassadors of good will from the United States.

With some 400 naval reservists aboard, the cruise got underway August 29 from the ships' home port at New Orleans. They sailed to Key West for exercises in mock war maneuvers and then, on V-J Day's fourth anniversary, steamed across the Gulf of Mexico for Vera Cruz.

Daisy Boys Receive Medals For Their Excellent Play This Season

Members of the Daisy baseball team, who finished the season as runner up to Dearborn for the state championship, received medals for their excellent play during the season.

To receive these medals, the Daisy team topped the Western Wayne league in Class D and represented this area at the Michigan Recreation Association Junior Baseball tournament at Dearborn on August 17, 18 and 19. In this tournament, Daisy knocked out Highland Park, 7-0, behind the no-hit pitching of Dave Reitzel in the first round.

The second round of the playoffs found Wally Dzurus the winning pitcher against Ecorse, 13-4. With Jack Scheel pitching a masterful game, Daisy won the third round of the tournament, defeating Pontiac by a score of 3-2. For the state championship, the locals were beaten by Dearborn, 10-3.

Among the boys who received medals were members of the Daisy squad, two from Inkster Harrison, and one Cardinal. Following is the list of boys who were honored: Daisy-Ronnie Bouldin, Mickey Brown, Harold Campbell, Walter Dzurus, Tom Fairbanks, Richard Fenton, Bob Gow, Dick Gray, Edward Groves, Donald Healey, Phil Jacobus, John Kaczor, Preston Luzod, Bill Newstead and David Reitzel. Inkster Harrison-John Butler and Roosevelt Wilder; and Jack Scheel of the Cardinals.

Allen Industries Plays on Sunday

Allen Industries plays Clarenceville at Cass Benton at 3 p.m. Sunday, September 11. This game will disqualify one of the teams as each have lost one encounter. Romulus plays the winner between those two teams.

On September 5, Allen eliminated Grandale with a score of 6-4, they having lost to Romulus in a previous game 9-8. Clarenceville defeated Romulus 4-3, as the latter's pitcher walked five men in the ninth inning, which gave Clarenceville their tying and winning runs.

Shorts in Sports

by Al Larson

With the baseball season drawing to an end, football enters the picture as it does each fall. We find that only 47 boys, including the frosh, have reported for practice to Hilton Ponto. Plymouth High's new football coach, having such a small number of athletes on the grid field, competition will not be as tough and the true ability of each player will not be shown. Last year the Rocks finished a very disappointing season. We would not like to see this happen again. Let's hope the 47 can make a fine showing for Plymouth's fine coaches, Hilton Ponto and John Sandmann.

Lacking an experienced quarterback, the University of Michigan seems destined to end their 23 game winning streak on September 24. On this date a powerful Michigan State team journeys to Ann Arbor with nothing in their mind but to beat the Maize and Blue, to start an undefeated season for themselves. The Spartans from East Lansing will down the Wolverines by one touchdown in a very exciting game.

Playing two years in the Inter-County league, Plymouth Utilities has in both seasons, finished second in the playoffs for the championship. Last year Jack Lynch's Utilities team, playing Class B, was beaten in the final game by Wayne at Cass Benton park. This year the Line Construction boys, who had moved up to Class A, just qualified for the playoffs with a 3-0 average. Again Lynch's squad fought to the final game, but were subdued by Ypsi 9-4, at Riverside park.

Only seven games out of first place, the Detroit Tigers are sure to finish the season at least in the first division, and possibly higher than fourth. Three faces are new on the field and three on the sidelines. Johnny Groth, Aaron Robinson and Don Kollo-way playing their first full season with Detroit, have been a great help to the Bengals. Another figure which is known by every Tiger fan, is that of "Red" Rolfe. Tiger manager, who has brought together a fine team. The able coaching of Dick Bartel and Ted Lyons has kept the Tigers a battling team. Vic Wertz, enjoying his greatest season in the major leagues, has paced Detroit with his long ball hitting and also boasts a .300 batting average. Let's wish the Tigers luck in the remainder of the campaign.

Plymouth Utilities Loses to Ypsi; in Class A Championship Game

It happened again. Plymouth Utilities lost once more in the game that decided the Inter-County championship, this year to Ypsilanti by a score of 9-4. August 30, on Riverside diamond.

Heinie Dittmar started on the mound for Utilities, but in the fifth inning after giving up five runs and ten hits he was relieved by Jim Martin. Jim allowed only three hits the remainder of the game. Jim Bell went all the way for Ypsi and was in trouble only in the 7th and 8th innings. Bell walked six men. They all came in the last three innings. With three hits in three times at bat, including a double driving in a run, Bell led the attack for Ypsi.

Ypsi's biggest inning was the 7th when they scored three. Utilities scored all their runs in the last three innings. A last inning threat was made by the Plymouth team. After two were out, Kibitske walked and scored on Piscopink's double. The next batter then grounded out.

Rain held up the game a few minutes and it was played on a wet field, which might account for Utilities' five errors.

Ypsilanti played Flint Chevrolet at Royal Oak on September 2 in the first round of the State Class A championship.

Northville Slates Royal Blackstone Event For Friday

Another major stake event is scheduled for Northville Downs this week, and the question that still has to be answered is who's going to take on Royal Blackstone?

The race is a $5,000 pace set for Friday night, and although 33 other horses were nominated last April many of them may be reluctant to tangle with Mr. Big. Royal Blackstone was just a promising three-year old in April, having won 7 of 9 races last year, but now he stands in the top rank of American pacing horses.

Although Royal Blackstone's record of 12 victories in 14 starts this year, his money earnings of $18,600, and his mile performances in 2:01 and two-fifths and 2:03 three-fifths stamp him as the top candidate for the stake, other capable pacers are among the nominees.

There is Larry Chief, for example, another three-year old with winning ways. The roan gelding, from the rich harness country around Sabina, Ohio, has won 14 races this year and has numerous fast miles among those victories.

Others nominated are Ensign John, owned by the R. C. Dahlingers of Dearborn and in the money 12 times in 14 starts this year; Highland Scott, Jr., a speedy Illinois pacer that is driven by Harry Burright, the nation's top driver last year; and Hi-Scottie, a double winner at the current meeting.

Following the $5,000 pace, Northville's next stake event will be the $10,000 Northville Driving Club Trot on Friday, September 16.

Hold Picnic For West Brothers Baseball Team

A picnic was held for all members of the West Brothers baseball team in Riverside park on Wednesday, September 7 at 4:30 by Manager, Mike Spitz.

The feature of the picnic was the passing out of medals and a group picture of the team to each member of the squad. The medals were presented to the West Brothers team for taking the Western Wayne Class E championship. Nine gallons of ice cream was given to the boys, paying off a promise by Mike Spitz that he would buy a gallon of ice cream for each game in the league that was won by the squad.

Those present at the picnic were as follows: Manager Mike Spitz, Bill Batterton, Howard Pernie, Jim Rorabacher, Harold Secord, Jack Daggett, Bob Norgren, Derald McKinley, Jim Brinks, Dave Truax, Gary Hees, Keith Alford, Gary Sockow, Jim Stevens, Jerry Finnegan, Dave Wilkins and several of the fathers. Dave Wilkins, whose picture did not appear in the Plymouth Mail with the rest of the squad, broke his collar bone during practice and was not around when the picture was taken.

Mike Spitz wishes to thank all of the fathers of the boys for the splendid cooperation he received from them during the season.

Twin Pines Girls Thank S. Miller

"So that it can be known by the public what a great sponsor a 'little' business man can be, we, the players on the Twin Pines girls softball team, would like to take this opportunity to thank Shorty Miller.

"You, Shorty and Mrs. Miller, gave moral support to us by not missing a game this year. You were the most enthusiastic rooters a team could ask for. At the close of the season, you took us and our husbands and boyfriends out for a steak dinner. You have already expressed a desire to sponsor the team again next year. To the girls who play ball, a person like you makes it all seem worth while. To you we give our thanks.

"To the Recreation department we give our thanks for the individual trophies which we have proudly put on display in our homes.

"We would like to say that sportsmanship on all teams should be rated very highly this year, especially of Begliners. In the play-offs with the score very much against them, they stayed in there fighting until the last out was made."

75 Guests Attend Weekend Meeting Held at Riverside

With 75 out-of-town guests attending, the annual pro-amateur conference of the United States Amateur Roller Skating association was highly successful. The meeting was held on September 3, 4 and 5 at the Riverside arena.

Better understanding of the rules and regulations governing the judgment of the amateur skaters was accomplished at the meeting. Heading the list of those present at the meeting was USARSA President George At-dale, New York, Chicago, Washington, D. C., Indiana, Pennsylvania and other eastern states were also represented at the conference.

Sunday afternoon the Riverside club held a picnic for their out-of-town guests at Lower Rouge park. The weather was perfect for the picnic and many of the visitors were quoted as saying: "I believe I'd like to come and live in Michigan." The local hospitality for the complete conference was excellent.

State Tournament Slated at Hilltop for September 10

Michigan's first state recreation golf meet will be held at Hilltop golf course on Saturday, September 10 at 1:30 with four cities represented.

A traveling trophy will be presented to the winning team of the 18 hole meet by the merchants of Plymouth. In order to keep the trophy in their possession, a team must win the tournament twice in a row or three times.

Towns which will be represented in the meet are Pontiac, Ypsilanti, Willow Village and Plymouth. The five qualified players who will be representing Plymouth are Larry Bentley, Tom Lock, Elton McAllister, Hank Schultz and William Wood.

Rouge Team Wins 'B' Championship

River Rouge, Great Lakes Steel, took the State Softball championship in Class B, by defeating Marshall 3-1 at Ludington. Monroe took third place in the tournament, while Centerline, who represented this area, was knocked out in their first three games.

The Detroit House of Correction, who could not go to Ludington, would most likely have repeated their last year's performance had they been given the chance. DeHoCo last year were state champions behind the excellent pitching of "Bushy" Trombley and Bill Ball.

Wilder's Pitching Helps Daisy Win

Journeying to Flint on Saturday, August 20, Daisy encountered Hall's Kitchen, who were supposedly one of Flint's best teams. Daisy beat them 9-1 in a seven inning affair, behind the excellent pitching of Roosevelt Wilder.

Wilder, who was not synonymous with his name, while pitching only seven innings, struck out 16 Flint batters, allowing only three hits.

The same night asquad of 30, including a few parents of the ball players, ate dinner at the McNiven hotel in Frankenmuth. This trip was sponsored by the Daisy Manufacturing company.

C. Smiths Back Home After Tour of Western Parks

After completing a most enjoyable extended tour of the Middle and Western states, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Smith returned home last week relating their experiences to their many friends.

Traveling West the Smiths stopped at the famous Bad Lands and enjoyed the picturesque Black Hills in South Dakota. Wyoming's famous Yellowstone park attracted the Plymouth visitors who marveled at its spectacular beauty.

In Seattle, Washington, the Smiths were guests of Mrs. Smith's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Anderson, formerly of Plymouth, were pleasantly surprised by the Smiths visit at their Culver City, California home.

Drawing our visitor's attention were the colorful Western rodeos which supplied all the excitement of the old West.

On their southern trip home, they traveled through Yosemite and Zion National parks, Arizona's Grand Canyon and New Mexico's Carlsbad Caverns were a few of the sights viewed by the Smiths.

Enchanting New Orleans kept the Smiths in Louisiana for a few days before crossing the border to Pensacola, Florida and traveling north to Angola, Indiana where they visited Mrs. Dae Butz and son, Jack. These former residents wish to be remembered to their many Plymouth friends.

Michigan Forests Attract Travelers From Plymouth

After traveling more than 1,700 miles through Michigan's beautiful forests and picturesque countryside, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Squires returned to their North Harvey street home last week.

Watching the deer at sunrise standing on the shore of Mud lake near the edge of the dense forest is only one of the many sights which impressed the Squires in picturesque Northern Michigan.

Leaving on August 7, the Plymouth travelers stopped at Mackinac Island before going on to Ishpeming where they were the guests of the L. R. Drakes, A. C. Lawry and the Thomas Bennett families.

At Toivola, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ingram and daughter, Kay, at their "Ka He Bo" camp, the Squires fed the tame deer which roam the highway near Eagle Harbor.

The best way for a farmer to keep the "grass from looking greener on the other side of the fence" is to adopt a better pasture improvement program than his neighbor, Michigan State college crops specialists advise.

Barn Fire Caught by Photographer

Frank Heike snapped this action picture of a blazing barn just outside of Plymouth a couple of weeks ago. The Plymouth Mail is pleased to print this fine shot taken by an amateur photographer and welcomes other good pictures as publication material for future issues.

Supt. Nelson Gives Reasons For Opening Schools in Spite of Polio

Supt. of Schools Helmer A. Nelson this week announced the various reasons Plymouth's schools opened on schedule in spite of the acute outbreak of infantile paralysis in this part of the state.

Action to open the schools on time followed a conference on poliomyelitis held in Detroit which was attended by health officers and school superintendents from Oakland, Macomb and Wayne counties.

After thorough and careful evaluation of the scientific and social aspects of the problem, a unanimous recommendation was made at the conference to the effect that schools should not be closed nor their opening delayed.

Basis for the judgment of the conferring officials is found in the following facts, reported Mr. Nelson.

Experience shows that when opening of schools was postponed during 1939, 1944 and 1946 epidemics, outbreaks of polio were in no way affected. It was found that delaying the opening of schools disrupted the normal routine of adults and children and resulted in creation of undue anxiety on the part of the general public.

Health services provided in all schools in the metropolitan area help early recognition of signs and symptoms of the disease. Past experience shows that school health programs are very effective in controlling those diseases which may be controlled. Certain precautions, such as avoiding strange and large crowds, over-exertion and fatigue should be taken.

For winning main fare, melted butter or margarine followed by lemon juice is poured over tender veal chops just before serving.

The term "hand" in measuring the height of a horse, is four inches.

Know your insurance man!

The peace of mind you may derive from your insurance protection depends upon the confidence you have in your insurance agent.

To write insurance intelligently requires knowledge and judgment on the part of the agent. He must know intimately the many forms and rates which apply; he must have a sound understanding of values and be able to determine the kinds of insurance you should have for your proper protection.

That is why the insurance companies he represents entrust him with the handling of their business in your community.

We represent the America Fore Insurance Group. If you give us the opportunity of serving you, you will know that your insurance is properly written in the best stock insurance companies.

Art Students Are Preparing For Second Exhibit

With an eye to the approaching art exhibit to be staged in October, students at Plymouth's Artists' Guild are beginning new paintings to be entered in the group's second show of 1949.

Scheduled for the week of October 10th, the exhibit will give art enthusiasts in this community and in neighboring cities opportunity to see the excellent work accomplished here by the classes of Mrs. Marion Rigby.

New students are invited to try their hand with oils or water color in time to exhibit in the October showing. New classes begin each week.

Well over 300 persons from Ann Arbor, Northville, Detroit and Plymouth viewed the Guild's first exhibit held last month. Sponsored by the department of recreation, the guild is providing a cultural outlet for those with an artistic bent.

Collin's Band Has Reunion

Cottagers at Base lake had a real treat last Sunday when the members of Alvin "Rip" Collins band held their annual reunion on the waters of that popular lake. An event which has been held every summer for many years, this turnout proved to be the best the band has ever held.

Mr. Collins' big cruiser the "Sour Note" loaded the band members early Sunday morning and most of the day was passed serenading cottagers on Base and the surrounding lakes. During the course of the morning serenade, a rope was tied to fisherman Jack Taylor's boat which was in the middle of the lake, where the local banker was trying to catch at least one fish before the season was over. He was taken in tow for the rest of the day's activities which ended with a picnic supper late in the afternoon.

Although the band says Mr. Taylor wasn't too enthusiastic about joining the party at first, he soon was so enthralled by their music that he gladly gave up his fishing for the rest of the day.

In attendance at the reunion were Mr. Collins, Alford Strasen, Edward Drews, Martin Strasen, William Seger, Ted Strasen and Edward Beyers. They were joined by their wives for the picnic supper.

It's thought to be lucky for people to stand during the home team's half of the seventh inning at a baseball game.

Optimists and Hi-12 Clubs to Attend Walker Dinner

Both the Plymouth Optimists and the Hi-12 club in the city are attending the DeLoss Walker banquet Monday as the first scheduled meeting of autumn for the two groups.

Monday's league bowling at Plymouth Recreation and Park-view alleys has been postponed for a week because of the large attendance expected at the Chamber of Commerce event.

Diamonds, sapphires, emeralds, rubies and opals are the five recognized precious stones.

Buenos Aires is the largest Spanish speaking city in the world.

Class of '44 Plans Reunion

Class of '44, take notice! On Sunday, September 11 a class get-together is planned in Riverside park.

Meeting Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the central comfort station, all class members are invited to bring their families or a friend.

Everyone is asked to bring his own sandwiches and a dish to pass.

Let's make this the best class reunion yet.

The Golden Text (I Corinthians 2:9,10) is: "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit." Among the Bible citations is this passage, (Hebr. 11:1,3): "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Though faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear." Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 468): "Spirit, the synonym of Mind, Soul, or God, is the only real substance. Celmer-Agodorny Rites Performed at 10 o'clock Ceremony Saturday

Before a flower banked altar, Dorothy Celmer and John Agodorny, Jr. were united in marriage during a morning ceremony performed at St. Peter and Paul Catholic church last Saturday.

Rev. Fr. Francis Granza read the double ring rites at 10 o'clock.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of traditional white satin fashioned with a lace bodice and a long full train. Her fingertip veil of illusion completed her ensemble. Her American colonial bouquet was centered with white roses surrounded by stephanotis and greens.

Preceding the bride to the altar were six attendants dressed in taffeta gowns in pastel shades of the rainbow styled similar to the bride's. Acting as matron of honor, Mrs. Sally Agodorny, aunt of the bridegroom, wore aqua taffeta. The bridesmaids were Delores Celmer, Theresa Schema, Bernadine Celmer and Eleanor Agodorny. They carried American colonial bouquets of red roses.

Wearing a pink gown, little Marlene Celmer acted as flower girl, while George Zelmanski carried the pillow bearing the wedding rings.

The bridegroom asked his brother, Steve Agodorny, to be his best man. Seating the guests were Joe Bester, Tom Dooley, Ed Thomas and Lawrence Schema.

The bride's mother chose a blue print dress while the bridegroom's mother wore a black print. Both pinned orchid corsages to their shoulders.

After a reception for about 250 families at the Polish Saloon's House, Detroit, the new Mr. and Mrs. Agodorny left for a week's wedding trip to Niagara Falls.

The young couple will be at home on Schoolcraft road after their honeymoon.

HOURS: 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. — Saturday: 9 A.M. to 1 P.M.Former Plymouth Pastor's Outdoor Study at His Harrisville Cottage

Rev. Leonard Sanders and His Outdoor Study.

There's never an idle moment in the life of Rev. Leonard T. Sanders, former pastor of the First Methodist church of Plymouth, who is now serving his third year as pastor of the First Methodist church of Owosso.

A number of years ago Rev. and Mrs. Sanders purchased a small cottage up on the shores of Lake Huron at Harrisville, where they expected to spend their vacation periods in quiet and ease.

A few days ago The Plymouth Mail photographer happened to be in the vicinity of Harrisville and he stopped for a moment to extend a word of greeting to the former popular Plymouth minister.

What was he doing? Working like a beaver in his "outdoor study."

During the first days of his vacation he had arranged a study table and chair out in the shade of an old apple tree just a few paces from the shores of Lake Huron. While in meditation he can watch the rolling waves as they find their way to the shady beach that runs along in front of his cottage or gaze at the fleeting clouds as they sail overhead. "Give my best regards to all our good friends in Plymouth," he said as he glanced up from a book he seemed to be intensely interested in reading.

"This is a great place to study and rest at the same time. The air is so bracing and the scenery is so beautiful any way one might look that it serves as an inspiration for one to work harder and more diligently," he added.

When Rev. and Mrs. Sanders find a few moments to spare, they keep busy doing such repair work as they find necessary, dobbing paint here and there, improving the lawn, trimming out brush, pulling weeds—and performing all the other tasks that one can find around a summer cottage.

Their summer home seems to be a mecca for Methodists and friends from the many charges that Rev. Sanders has filled around the state.

Rarely a day passes that some former parishioner does not call to extend greetings to Rev. and Mrs. Sanders. Frequently there are numerous old friends at the cottage at the same time from various cities in this part of the state.

It is a dream—and it may come true someday—this energetic Methodist leader and his wife are hoping that, sometime when the age of retirement has been reached and their strenuous ministerial duties are over, they may go to their present summer home and build it into a permanent residence where they can spend the remainder of their lives.

Rhode Island was the first state in the Union to build its own airport.

In 1911 the first American aviation pilot's license was issued to Glenn Curtiss.

Experiments in flying were carried on by the Wright Brothers at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina because winds there are the steadiest and strongest of any place in the United States.

Garlings Observe National Home Week SEPTEMBER 11 - 17 With New Homes Open in Plymouth!

Why Garling Homes are Built to Last?

Garlings know that a pleased and satisfied home owner will do more to win customers and make friends for Garlings than anything else could possibly do. Years from now Garlings want to be able to point to your home with pride and say "That is a Garling Home. We built it."

What Kind of Materials Go into a Garling Home?

Materials for a Garling Home are more carefully selected than if you yourself were making the selection. Only men with the knowledge and good judgment that come from many years of experience select the materials that go into a Garling Home. Garlings are constantly on the alert to find and use new improved materials that will give you more comfort, more enjoyment, more value for your money.

What Garlings Think of You — The Home Owner of Tomorrow?

Garlings believe that every man is a vital part of the community in which he makes his living, that every industrious person is entitled to a home of his own, a place of relaxation, comfort and peace, where his children will be close to a good school, where he may have a small garden, all the graciousness of living that is the American Way of Life. Garlings have all these things in mind when they build a home for you.

Why Garling Homes are Full Value Homes?

Construction on all Garling Homes is closely and carefully supervised. No part of construction is OK'd that could be improved with a little more time and attention. Good home building can not be rushed beyond a certain point. With the finest of materials and expert workmanship, Garling Homes are built with one aim in mind—that the buyer shall be one hundred percent satisfied.

The real secret of building at a price without the sacrifice of quality is to standardize as much as possible without sacrificing all qualities of individualism in a home.

It has taken years of experience and conscientious effort to perfect a small home that would meet the demands of a public so thoroughly educated in building procedure and critical of materials and workmanship as are the present prospective home owners.

Garlings have selected several models on which we have been able to make a considerable reduction in costs through quantity buying of materials, judicious financing and closely supervised workmanship. Among these models, several stand out.

BABSON'S Discusses Truman's Experiment

The following is an impartial report as to what the Truman Administration is attempting to do to prevent further unemployment. The plan is not as radical as Mr. Roosevelt's experiments, —most of which failed. It, however, seems to most Republicans like trying to "sweep back the ocean from a sandy beach with a broom." Conservatives believe in letting the tides come in and go out as nature intended.

The Fire Department Theory
The President's friends would use a city Fire Department as an illustration of what they are trying to do to stop a business conflagration. A Fire Department does not prevent fires from starting, but only from spreading. The Fire Chief waits until a fire starts and then rushes to it and puts it out.

Apply Unemployment to Fires
The Truman program is based upon a similar theory. If unemployment starts in a certain state—as it now has in Massachusetts and Rhode Island—the President wants to rush aid to that section immediately and stop the spread of that unemployment to other sections. To a certain extent the President is right in theory.

When the textile and shoe workers of New England are idle, their purchasing power is cut down. This causes other plants elsewhere to lay off employees. Then unemployment increases all over the country like an epidemic of flu. On the other hand, if enough government orders and aid are rushed to these sick places, the unemployed would go back to work and would again buy goods. This helps every other part of the country. At least this is the Truman theory. Whether or not it will work no one knows; but it seems worthy of trial.

What About Stocks?
But granted that this Truman experiment will work, and I surely hope it will, Fire Departments do not build new houses nor start new businesses. Likewise, this experiment of extinguishing a depression at the start "with a bucket of water," will not change human nature and prevent a readjustment sometime. Certainly, the Truman experiment will fail unless labor leaders have a change of attitude. They can set fires faster than any Fire Department can extinguish them!

Plan Manitoba Hunting Trip
One, two, three, four five six! One, two, three, four, five! One, two, three, four! One, two, three!

That's the way Matt Powell is counting the days at present. It happens, however, that Bert McKinney, Matt's hunting partner, is counting them the other way. Six, five, four, three, two, one! Five, four, three, two, one!

Bert insists this is the best way. The day counting business is all due to the fact that Matt and Bert and Dewey Cobb are all packed up ready to go up in Manitoba on a big game hunting trip just as soon as the Canadian hunting season opens.

First they are going to the Lake of the Woods country, where they will camp for a few days on one of the hundreds of islands that can be found in the Canadian hunting and fishing paradise.

Dewey doesn't believe in any of this day-counting business. He thinks the three of them should take matters as they come and go.

"It doesn't hurry matters up a bit to sit and mope all day long about how long the days and nights are. When the time comes we'll go—and that's all there is to that," commented Dewey as he sat watching Matt and Bert counting the days on their fingers.

At any rate the three have all of their plans made for a fall hunting trip up into the Canadian northwest. They expect to leave in order to be there when the hunting season opens.

Fires Run in Cycles
There is one feature about the fire illustration concerning which my Truman friends don't like to talk. This is the fact that with all the wonderful and efficient Fire Departments of our country, the total fire losses—over a long period—go up and down according to Newton's Law of Action and Reaction. The best Fire Chiefs in the world can't control the human element involved in connection with fires.

During certain years people are careless and then there are an extra large number of fires. These so increase that the insurance companies—through the National Board of Fire Underwriters and its efficient leader W. E. Mallalieu—get busy and start a campaign to educate people to be careful. This, combined with other factors, bears fruit and fires decrease for a series of years. But people get careless again and fires again increase. Statistics show that fires have their cycle the same as employment, commodity prices and general business.

Fires Run in Cycles
There is one feature about the fire illustration concerning which my Truman friends don't like to talk. This is the fact that with all the wonderful and efficient Fire Departments of our country, the total fire losses—over a long period—go up and down according to Newton's Law of Action and Reaction. The best Fire Chiefs in the world can't control the human element involved in connection with fires.

During certain years people are careless and then there are an extra large number of fires. These so increase that the insurance companies—through the National Board of Fire Underwriters and its efficient leader W. E. Mallalieu—get busy and start a campaign to educate people to be careful. This, combined with other factors, bears fruit and fires decrease for a series of years. But people get careless again and fires again increase. Statistics show that fires have their cycle the same as employment, commodity prices and general business.

What About Stocks?
But granted that this Truman experiment will work, and I surely hope it will, Fire Departments do not build new houses nor start new businesses. Likewise, this experiment of extinguishing a depression at the start "with a bucket of water," will not change human nature and prevent a readjustment sometime. Certainly, the Truman experiment will fail unless labor leaders have a change of attitude. They can set fires faster than any Fire Department can extinguish them!

Plan Manitoba Hunting Trip
One, two, three, four five six! One, two, three, four, five! One, two, three, four! One, two, three!

That's the way Matt Powell is counting the days at present. It happens, however, that Bert McKinney, Matt's hunting partner, is counting them the other way. Six, five, four, three, two, one! Five, four, three, two, one!

Bert insists this is the best way. The day counting business is all due to the fact that Matt and Bert and Dewey Cobb are all packed up ready to go up in Manitoba on a big game hunting trip just as soon as the Canadian hunting season opens.

First they are going to the Lake of the Woods country, where they will camp for a few days on one of the hundreds of islands that can be found in the Canadian hunting and fishing paradise.

Dewey doesn't believe in any of this day-counting business. He thinks the three of them should take matters as they come and go.

"It doesn't hurry matters up a bit to sit and mope all day long about how long the days and nights are. When the time comes we'll go—and that's all there is to that," commented Dewey as he sat watching Matt and Bert counting the days on their fingers.
