

Vallier Raps Railroads, But Sees No Quick Solution

Leveling a blast at the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Thursday, City Commissioner A. E. Vallier, Jr. accused C & O of avoiding an obligation to the community. "They have a responsibility that they're shirking," the city commissioner and Wayne Co. Supervisor said to a group of Plymouth businessmen at a Businessmen's Forum luncheon sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Vallier expressed dissatisfaction because C & O officials failed to show up at the noon meeting at Hillside Inn. "The problem," he said, "is serious. But it's going to get worse instead of better." Vallier was speaking by invitation on the subject of chronic street tieups in the city of Plymouth as trains pass through town. The situation has become exaggerated lately, he pointed out, because of C & O's merger with the Baltimore and Ohio. Trains that used to switch at Romulus now come through Plymouth on their way to Detroit, he said.

The obvious solutions are overpasses or underpasses, but financing is the chief obstacle. "WHERE ARE you going to get the money?" Vallier asked. By law, he said, railroads are only required to pay 15 per cent of the cost of such a project. "We're stuck," he noted succinctly.

Vallier mentioned another area related to C & O that cost the City of Plymouth money. When city officials became convinced that gates were needed at the Starkweather St. crossing, Plymouth was forced to bear half of the cost and is now paying $600 per year for maintenance of the gates, he said. "And," the city commissioner noted, "C & O doesn't pay one cent of tax to the City of Plymouth." Railroads, telephone companies and telegraph facilities are taxed directly by the state, under terms of a law passed around the turn of the century. Wayne County can offer no help, Vallier said, because no County roads are involved and, for the same reason, the State of Michigan can do nothing. There is a very slim chance of Federal funds, he noted. Predicting a worsening of local traffic conditions after opening of the I-275 freeway in the Haggerty Road corridor, Vallier said one over or underpass would not solve the problem. Two are needed, he claimed. The logical location, he noted, is on Plymouth's Main St. at an estimated cost of $1 million. But construction at the Main St. crossing would put Kroger's, Bode's Coffee House, Allison Chevrolet and other firms in the vicinity out of business. (Continued on page five)

Install Kiwanis Officers, Plan Anniversary

With installation of 1965 officers completed last week, Plymouth Kiwanis set about the task of gearing for a gala Golden Anniversary celebration to be held Saturday, Jan. 23 at Loty's, located at Ann Arbor Road and Lilley. Well-known Detroit radio reporter-at-large Bud Guest will highlight the anniversary celebration. Actually the Jan. 23 event will be the first of two anniversaries Plymouth Kiwanians will observe during 1965. Later in the year they will commemorate the 40th anniversary of the founding of the Plymouth Club. This month's celebration will mark the Golden Anniversary of the founding of Kiwanis International. Installed last week, as President for the 40th or 50th anniversary year (depending on whether you look at it from a local or international standpoint) was Marvin J. Terry. JOINT EFFORT: To Choose Six-Man Recreation Site Group

Following an agreement reached Wednesday evening in a joint meeting at Plymouth's City Hall, a six-man committee is expected to be appointed to investigate the feasibility of a Plymouth Community recreation area, including a swimming pool and how it could be financed. The governing bodies of Plymouth Township, the City of Plymouth and the Plymouth Community School District will each appoint two representatives to the committee. In addition, Canton Township Supervisor Louis Stein is expected to be contacted and asked if his governmental unit would be interested in participating. If the effort bears fruit, it would mark the first large scale co-operative move by the autonomous governmental units which make up The Plymouth Community. Kicking off discussion at the Wednesday meeting was City Commissioner James Jabara. A panel of members from each of the governmental units, presided over by Mayor Richard H. Wernette, sat at the council table at the front of the room. Those around the table were Township Supervisor Roy R. Lindsay, School Board Secretary Mrs. Esther Hulsing, Township Treasurer Elizabeth Holmes, Superintendent of Schools Russell Isbister and Wernette. After the city was petitioned by interested residents, Jabara noted, a committee composed of himself and Commissioners A. E. Vallier and George Lawton discussed the question of a municipal swimming pool. THE TRIO felt, Jabara said, that it would be best to get together and hold a joint meeting to learn how members of the other governmental units felt. "How do your units feel?" Mayor Wernette asked Supervisor Lindsay and Isbister. "I don't know that much about it," Lindsay replied. "I would have to hear a lot more." Asked if any Plymouth Township residents had expressed an interest in swimming facilities, Lindsay said none had, as far as he knew. But Mrs. Holmes pointed out that a group had come before the Plymouth Township Planning Commission last year to ask rezoning of an area of land for a private swim club. City Commissioners noted that many persons living outside the limits of the City of Plymouth had signed the petition requesting commissioners to investigate the matter. "Sure," Lindsay commented, "people are for anything that involves pleasure, without thinking of anything else." Lindsay said financing of a recreational project would have

LEARN BUSINESS

What motivates teenagers to join Junior Achievement? "We had a good company and product last year and worked hard," Jolene Wendell, president of Jafeco said, explaining why she came back for a second year. Miss Wendell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wendell, of Gyde Rd., added her company, last year, was runner-up for the best in southeastern Michigan award. Jafeco, which stands for J.A. Free Enterprise Co., is making lid locks to hold car trunks down when you can't close them, Miss Wendell explained. Fred Higgs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Higgs, of Beck Rd., and vice-president of Uppoab, said he joined for a second year because he enjoyed seeing how well he and others could run a company to meet the challenge it presented. Many of the teens gave similar reasons for joining. Uppoab, so named by the girls in the company, according to Higgs, is making ash tray caddies and will sell them complete with ash trays. Wecan is making two products this year, according to Paulette Oakes, vice-president of sales. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Oakes, of 9092 Corrine, explained her company is making lid locks first, to build up their income so they can purchase materials to make soap racks. "Wecan" means "we can sell," Miss Oakes explained. Waste baskets are being made by Jacona, president Rick Plecha, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Pleach, of Livonia, reported. Jacona stands for J. A. Inaugurate "Total" Service

With the mailing this week of a 23,000 circulation, value-packed January Clearance Sale shopper to Plymouth area homes, The Plymouth Mail this week inaugurates the first in a series of dramatic changes for 1965. Beginning next Tuesday, Jan. 19, one section of The Mail will be delivered to every home in The Plymouth Community. Commenting on the move, Editor and General Manager Dave Wiley said: "We feel The Mail's new total service program will combine the best features of both full coverage and paid circulation." Local advertisers may choose exclusively paid circulation or a combination of free distribution and paid coverage at a slightly higher rate. The move was brought on by intense interest on the part of local retailers and merchants, Wiley said. "IN KEEPING with our 76-year tradition of fulfilling the needs of The Plymouth Community," he said, "we felt a decisive move in this direction was called for." He emphasized that the total service section of The Plymouth Mail would not, in any way, sell paid subscribers short. The main body of local news coverage, features, sports, columns, and editorial comment will be included in the newspaper sections sent to paid subscribers. Termining the move, "just a start," Wiley pledged to strive for noticeable and substantial improvements (Continued on page five)

CORRECTION

Because of a typographical error, last week's story on an election at Plymouth's D.S.I. Corp. noted that the International Mailers' Union was selected as "executive" bargaining agent. The first paragraph of the story should have read: "The International Mailers' Union was selected as exclusive bargaining agent for Plymouth's D.S.I. Corporation at a representative election conducted Wednesday, Dec. 30, according to Acting Regional Director Jerome Brooks of the National Labor Relations Board." The results of the election do not apply to any of D.S.I.'s executive personnel. We regret the error.

★ The annual meeting of The Plymouth Community Fund will be held next Tuesday, Jan. 19 in the Plymouth Township Hall at 8 p.m. The agenda will include election of new directors and evaluation of The 1964 P.C.F. program. Contributors, agencies supported by the fund and interested persons are invited to attend.

★ Plymouth Township fire losses rose nearly $4,000 in 1964 as firemen saw their total runs rise to 198 from 180 the year before. Fire Chief Barney Maas said losses totalled $29,260.43 compared to $25,495.46 in 1963. Dwelling fire losses were down, however, dropping to $15,159 from a 1963 total of $18,406. Chief Maas said the increase in the total came from a rise in miscellaneous fire losses which skyrocketed to $9,866.37 from $761.61 in 1963. Included in the miscellaneous figures are vehicle, boat, machinery and grass fires.

20,000 American Students Studying in Other Countries

As U. S. colleges braced themselves for record enrollments this fall, some 20,000 American students were on their way, by boat, plane, train, bus and thumb, to universities in 60 nations, around the globe.
The exodus swells by an average 14 per cent annually, about twice the growth rate of U. S. colleges. This year, our wandering scholars will be knitting their brows in such exotic cities as Baghdad (Al-Hikma University), in such romantic lands as India (for example, at Visva-Bharati University, in Santiniketan), and in such ancient and honored cultural capitals as Paris (for instance, at the Sorbonne).
The ambition to study abroad isn't new among Americans. In colonial times, wealthy Southern planters, disdainful of New England's colleges, sent their sons over the dangerous Atlantic to European universities. All through the 1800's, a final year of study in Europe put the finish on many a bright, well-to-do young American.
But today our roving scholars aren't necessarily listed in the Social Register. Mass education, cheaper travel, scholarships and generally lower living costs overseas have helped change that.
Although specialized graduate study and postgraduate research still draw many U.S. students abroad, the most dramatic revolution in foreign study has been among undergraduates. At least 6,000 of them — mostly juniors and some sophomores — will attend foreign universities this school year. Their numbers are growing so fast that many U. S. educators predict that study abroad will soon be a standard feature of American college education.
What motivates these youngsters? Wanderlust perhaps? A youthful yen for freedom? Much more important, professors say, is the challenge today's students find in dealing with new problems, unfamiliar languages and strange cultures. And when our far-flung scholars return home to finish college, they usually take their studies much more seriously, and many go on to advanced degrees.
One reason for their fresh motivation is that they have been up against the "cream" of foreign students. European educational systems, for example, use rigorous examinations to decide what types and levels of schools the student may attend.
A net result is that a mere 4 to 7 per cent — a picked few — of all 18-to-21-year-old Europeans get to attend a university. In contrast, U.S. colleges enroll 24.7 per cent of all Americans in the same age group.
Our overseas students also find little "spoon feeding" in foreign universities. Teaching is quite specialized. "Survey" courses summarizing broad subjects are all but unknown. Instead, European professors lecture in fine detail only on special aspects of their topics — and leave it to students to round out their knowledge through independent research.
In Europe, the saying is, "knowledge is not taught but searched for."
As best he can, the European student selects those courses he believes will prepare him for the long oral and written examinations he must pass, after three or four years' work, in order to get his degree. There is no homework, and there are no quizzes, question periods, mid-term or even, in some cases, end-of-term examinations to guide and measure student progress.
Does all this mean that the American undergraduate is out of his depth in Europe? Absolutely not, say U. S. professors. But he does need language preparation and, in nearly all cases, special guidance of the kind now provided in many U. S.-sponsored foreign study programs.
Such programs try to "bridge the gap" between American and foreign universities so that U. S. students can harmoniously fit a year or a semester of solid overseas study into their college careers. Intensive language training, orientation, arrangements for rooms and meals, academic guidance, special instruction and examinations are among the services the better programs usually furnish.
This programmed approach is the prime cause of the dramatic expansion in foreign study.
The cost of most programs is surprisingly low — actually in line with fees at private U. S. colleges. A year of study in Europe may cost from $2,400 to $2,600, including round-trip ocean passage, tuition, room, board, special language training and field trips. One-semester programs typically cost about $1,600.
The results can be striking, academically. The consensus of U. S. professors is that students returning from sound programs are generally well advanced in their fields, adept in using a foreign language as a study tool, more disciplined in scholarly techniques, and possessed of a marked distaste for the "rah-rah" aspects of campus life.
Or perhaps one young American studying in Paris put it best when he said: "I think the big thing here is that you grow up!"

AN OPEN BOOK
When the medical profession approves a new remedy, it is made public so that everybody may benefit from it. Poliomyelitis vaccine is a good example. Should you read or hear about a "secret remedy" for the cure of some serious disease, be on guard. Shun it by all means, because its use could be disastrous. Consult your physician. Ask his views on "mystery remedies." He will give you a candid evaluation. There is nothing hush-hush about medical research and its discoveries. Medicine is an open book — for all the world to see.

To Name Six to Man Recreation Site Group

 to come before Township residents by referendum. The Township Trustee Louis Norman spoke up, and his comments set the course for the remainder of the meeting.

"We need a large enough piece of property," Norman said, "for a recreation area. It could include a culture center, and it would probably get a lot of support from people."

Trustee Richard Lauterbach voiced approval of Norman's suggestion.

"I agree with Louie," he said. "I think we need an area for recreation." Lauterbach pointed out that such an area could include tennis courts, ball diamonds and other facilities. He cited rapidly expanding population in the Township and pointed out that acquisition of an area must come soon, if at all.

IBBISTER noted that the school district has considerable experience in swimming pool operation and commented that it involves both substantial capital investment and heavy maintenance costs.

However, he said, the high school pool is filled to capacity in the summer months.

City Commissioner James Houk expressed interest in what could happen if the community banded together.

"If we don't," he said, "private groups will join forces and do it commercially. I like Louie Norman's idea," he added. Houk said if ground is not acquired soon it will be gone, or virtually priceless, five or ten years from now.

Service clubs might be able to help in financing such a project, Commissioner Robert Beyer said. If clubs raised half the money, perhaps the community could come up with the other half, he said.

School Board member Ernest Henry said he liked the idea of community financing. He suggested that everyone could contribute a little.

The possibility of Federal funds for site acquisition was brought up by City Commissioner George Lawton. Under a water and land conservation bill recently passed, he said the Federal government would provide matching funds for an area similar to that suggested by Norman.

AT THE PRESENT time, Lawton said, indications are that funds are being channeled toward land acquisition and not for construction of facilities.

School Board member J.D. McLaren pointed out that the main question seemed to be methods of financing. How, he asked, would the financing be done?

Mayor Wernette said the city would have to hold a referendum and millage vote. Lindsay agreed that Plymouth Township would have to do the same.

"You know how these things go," he commented. "They approve the referendum and turn down the millage."

If someone came up with the land, Commissioner Beyer said, he felt sure local service clubs could come up with the money.

Wernette said he felt the city could handle their portion of the financing. He said if matching funds were available, a site should be bought.

"The first thing we should do," Commissioner Houk said, "is to decide if we want to work together. If so, we should appoint an authority."

Mrs. Holmes said the Township would have to determine if they could legally become a part of an authority.

"And after it's formed," she pointed out, "we must define if it will be a municipal effort or private. It can't be half and half."

"IF WE CAN legally form an authority," Norman said, "with the governing boards in an advisory capacity, the facility could be put on a self-supporting basis with nominal charges for swimming, skating and use of other facilities."

"I think the thing to do tonight," he said, "is appoint a committee."

Mayor Wernette pledged that the City of Plymouth would find out what was needed to make progress on a recreational site program. He expressed hope that the Township would do the same.

Supervisor Lindsay said the Township would appoint two representatives to the committee at its meeting scheduled for tonight (Tuesday). Wernette said the city would do the same and voiced hope that the school district would also appoint representatives.

Canton Township was apparently inadvertently notified of the Wednesday meeting, but Wernette said he would contact Canton Supervisor Louis Stein.

Notice of Application for Homestead Exemptions

FOR: Blind Persons
 Servicemen on Active Duty
 Disabled Veterans or Their Unremarried Widows

Applications for any of the above exemptions will be received in the Office of the City Assessor, 201 S. Main Street, until February 12, 1965.

Blind persons must supply proof of their visual disability in compliance with the State Law.

For servicemen on active duty, the application may be filed by the serviceman or his wife.

To meet the eligibility requirements, a veteran must have lived in this State at least six months prior to entering service or was a resident of this State for five years prior to filing. Those persons with an annual income in excess of $7,500 are not eligible unless they have a service connected disability. The property value limitation is $10,000 of state equalized value, which would be approximately $8,500 of assessed value in the City of Plymouth.

When filing a claim, each person must have a copy of discharge papers, proof of property ownership, an uncashed VA compensation check or letter of adjudication and/or a death certificate if applicable (widow or veteran). Each claim filed is simply an application and must be approved by the State of Michigan in May of each year.

An application for Homestead Exemption must be filed each year by those persons who are eligible. These application forms can be obtained from the City Assessor's Office. If there are any questions concerning this application, please do not hesitate to contact the City Assessor by calling GL 3-2324.

995 Enroll at Schoolcraft for Second Semester

When Schoolcraft College's second semester opened Jan. 4, 995 students were enrolled in day classes — only 97 less than when the college opened in September.

The college refused admission to approximately 125 non-resident students so it might maintain its small classes and high quality of academic work.

In the evening college 800 students are enrolled making a total of 1,795 students.

This semester the Campus Center, a new food facility, was opened for students. Its seating capacity is 225 and has all types of vending equipment.

At their Jan. 6 meeting the Board of Trustees revised their tuition policy and employed the firm of Eichstedt and Grism, Associates, to develop a landscape plan for the campus and made plans to pave parking lots as soon as possible.

Hereafter, students will pay their tuition on an hourly basis, according to the new plan. Residents will pay eight dollars a semester hour and non-residents $12 an hour.

Revised tuition for the practical nursing program is $50 the first semester, and $100 for the second semester and summer session.

The evening's program will be an interview between a Roman Catholic priest and a Protestant minister concerning recent developments in Christian Unity. Carl Cederberg of WBJK will moderate the discussion.

Tickets are two dollars a person and may be obtained by calling your church representative. They are St. John's Episcopal J. W. About the March of Dimes

On the front page of this week's Plymouth Mail appears a news story about the March of Dimes effort in Plymouth. Initial appearance of the publicity is, admittedly, a week late.

But there is a reason.

Information submitted last week was withheld while we debated how far this newspaper should go in backing the March of Dimes campaign.

First and foremost, there is no question about the merit of National Foundation and its work. No sane human being would rap an organization which has distinguished itself by contributing to elimination of a dread affliction such as polio-meyelitis.

Neither would anyone question the National Foundation's efforts in the areas of birth defects and arthritis.

But, in all fairness to ourselves and The Plymouth Community, we must raise some question about the Foundation's unwillingness to become a part of the Plymouth Community Fund.

Here in Plymouth and Plymouth Township the Community Fund, like the United Foundation in other areas, was established to consolidate, in one concerted, annual effort, the numerous charitable drives which were being conducted throughout the year.

The National Foundation has repeatedly been requested to seek its funds in Plymouth through the channels of the Community Fund. Because of policy at the national level, local March of Dimes workers have pleaded an inability to do so.

This year, as in 1964, Plymouth City Commissioners reluctantly granted permission for a drive and peanut sale within the city limits. In doing so, they emphasized their unhappiness with the National Foundation's refusal to affiliate with P.C.F.

Legally, in fact, there is some doubt about whether commissioners could refuse permission for a canvass to a bonafide charitable organization.

And, morally, we feel it would be less than humane for this newspaper to suppress news of March of Dimes fund raising activities.

However, since we support the Plymouth Community Fund and its goal of unifying charitable collection efforts, we cannot — in good faith — give the impression that we are backing or promoting the March of Dimes.

We report the National Foundation's efforts because of our obligation to do so; but we feel that their failure to co-operate with The Plymouth Community Fund is in direct opposition to the purposes for which P.C.F. and similar efforts elsewhere are organized.

Refusal of help to the March of Dimes is the last thing we would encourage, but we do urge Plymouth Community residents to suggest to workers that a renewed effort be made to convince National Foundation officials to co-operate with unified collection efforts.

RECEIVING certificates of recognition for placing in the top ten percent among students nationally who took the National Education Development Test are, left to right, Olivia Way and Diane Hagmayer. Assistant Principal John M. Hoben made the presentations. Of the 84 tenth graders who took the Nov. 7 test, 49 received recognition for placing in the top ten percent. The honored include Jack Bauman, Mary Bloom, Don Burleson, Clark Chapin, Lynda Cline, Marjorie Cogger, Judith Conn, Michael Coxford, John DeMott, Kathleen Drawe, Jill Dunlap, Darryl Dusbiber, Norman Fischer, Frederick Godwin, Steve Hulce, George Johnson, Mary Kelley, Peter Kenney, Rodger Ketchman, Vicki Kuhns, Janis Laroche, William Leonard, David McGuire, David Meredith, Carole Overholt, Jane Palmer, Richard Radcliffe, Shawn Robison, Walter Rybka, David Sibbold, Janet Silvis, Paul Smith, Dona Tate, Dan Tripp, Karen Upton, Mary Vallier, Sarah Van Antwerp, Stuart White, Ann Whitesell, Ruth Whitmore, Richard Wilkins, Mark Williams, Andrew Wisniewski, Bill Wolfe and Anne Wood.

New library for Plymouth is possibility — county aid to be granted, officials are considering site in civic center. Prospects are bright towards the culmination of another important city project within the near future. If present plans are carried out, a city library will be established within the civic center. This fact became known yesterday when members of the Wayne county library commission came to Plymouth to discuss with Mayor L. E. Wilson, City Manager Clarence Elliott and other city officials the selection of a suitable site somewhere around the civic center that is being developed.

Due to the thoughtfulness of members of the Wayne county road commission, lights have been placed at Wilcox

Serving As We Would Wish to be Served

The Grim Pilgrim

By DAVE WILEY

A friend, in conversation last week, cited a recent spate of public service documentaries on television — programs that ranged from civil rights to foreign affairs to Appalachia and its chronic economic ills.

Was it possible, he asked, that the pendulum of American public interest was swinging from an hedonistic obsession with material goods to interest in mankind?

A pleasant question, a stimulating one, a query well worth wrestling with.

Frankly, I wonder. Over a generation of colossal self interest has taken America and its denizens from a slough of monetary despair in the 30's to a pinnacle of affluent comfort in the 60's; and we could do worse than consider where, in fact, we shall go from here.

Perhaps a good starting point would be to ask what brought us where we are.

Herewith, some personal theories:

The parents of people my age were in their hey day in the roaring twenties. Self indulgence was at an all-time high and the world was everybody's plumb. There were, we are told, speakeasies, The Charleston, raccoon coats and Stutz Bearcats. The War to end all Wars was a comfortable memory. Fortress Americana was impregnable, easy come — easy go, and everyone was down' the varsity drag, vo-do-dee-oh!

The few still, small voices came from a wretchedly ugly, red-faced, red-headed man named Sinclair Lewis, a roaring incoherent named H. L. Mencken and a group of unkempt youngsters on the left bank of Paris who kept muttering about a "lost generation."

Thomas Stearns Eliot termed it a wasteland. F. Scott Fitzgerald saw it as a life of party after party after meaningless party, and surly Ernest Hemingway found respite in the world of bullfights and physical exertion.

Then came the thirties — the tired, terrible, traumatic thirties.

Personally, I came along in the middle of the decade and memories are sketchy and few. Dad was pastor of a small church in a Pennsylvania mountain town in the coal mining region.

He was making, I think, about $1,500 a year and our life was pleasant compared to some.

People were scarred by the soup lines, the hungry days, the chilly nights and many, I believe, determined that their children would never endure similar hardship.

War and accompanying prosperity created the wherewithal for parents to make good on their pledge and, in doing so, they brain-washed their offspring.

Security raised its blurry head and became the byword for a nation.

The best of all possible worlds, junior was told, is a secure world. One's faithfulness is, above all, to oneself and a comfortable existence for the family.

Don't take chances; be secure. Comfortable mediocrity is a far nobler goal than precarious excellence. Don't worry about the other guy; to do so may screw up one's own plans.

In short, think small — think self.

Now the question arises: Having thought small, are John and Jane American a wee bit dissatisfied? Has security become empty?

I hope so. I hope my friend's question about increased concern with mankind can be answered affirmatively in the last half of the 1960's. It's a concern that's long overdue.

Still, there are disturbing signs.

Too many of us have set our eyes on acquisition of vehicles and appliances and houses made of ticky tacky. Too many of us are comfortable. Too many of us are content, myself included.

Norman Vincent Peale and others, bless their hearts, have talked inner peace so long that we have lost the realization that inner turmoil can be worthy.

What Americans and Plymouthites need is a catalyst, not for internal tranquility, but for self-dissatisfaction. And there is one that does a dandy job of throwing one's equanimity all askew. To wit, this presumptuous question:

What impact is my life having, taken from a cosmic point of view?

The answer should be shattering.

It should make you question the worth of things, the value of so-called security, the importance of yourself.

And it might make you concerned, a trifle, about mankind.

Going Steady, Parents Are at Fault Too

By Mike Ross

Walk down any street or any hall, go to a public gathering or any place and you'll find a fellow with a girl. Don't get me wrong, I'd be the last to ever knock this arrangement for various reasons. But I'd be happy to take a hammer and chisel to some of the forms of this arrangement or any other way possible to re-mold the form.

The specific example I refer to is the institution of "going steady." Twenty years ago "going steady" meant the step just before engagement. Today that definition has given way to a new and abominable one.

The fact that a boy happens to be walking with a girl two days in a row in the hall can start rumors that spread like fire on an open, dry field.

If he happens to take her out once or twice, especially consecutively, this labels both boy and girl untouchable, in the sense that no one else can attempt to date either one of the two for fear that it would hinder the possibility of the two being joined together by those solid and joyous bonds of "going steady."

They're about as solid as wet toilet paper and as joyous as Milton's Hell.

I am not attempting to crucify all forms of "going steady." A few, very few, high school students are mature enough to carry on a steady relationship within the bounds of their age and to resolve in as diplomatic a way as possible their problems.

What I am persecuting, though, is the repulsive concept that Junior High students and far too many High School students have regarding the sacred exchange of dime store or class rings.

The cheap little pieces of trash Junior Highers buy or heist from the counters are symbolic of the feeling they have for the person they grant it to. The class rings of juniors and seniors, wrapped in sloppy tons of angora fall in the same category of symbolism.

One tenth-grade girl proudly displayed, like medals for valor or good conduct, three young men's rings billowing with mounds of fuzzy yarn giving them the appearance of little rats.

She said she just simply couldn't make up her mind which one to go with, and giggled like the ten year old she seemed to be. After three days, the crises was over and she was going with a completely new guy. But she had been "going steady" with the three other boys for 96 hours. The number four clod lasted only 72.

When I asked a 9th grade girl how many times in the last week she had gone steady, she said only twice, but three times the week before, twice with the same guy. But he wanted his solid nickle and glass ring back to give to the girl's best friend. Of course, she had never gone out with one of the boys she had "gone steady" with, but she had walked with each of them between classes every day.

These short relationships seem to have spread into married life. Now, more than ever before, marriages are breaking up almost as fast as they start, resulting in one out of every four marriages ending in divorce. The unsurprising fact is that teen marriages skyrocket the divorce rate to what it is today.

I'm not saying today's victim of a 12 hour "going steady" relationship is going to be tomorrow's victim of a 12 month marriage, but rather the short relationships in early adolescence earmarked by immaturity parallel the same immaturity in short marriages.

But, contradicting many outward appearances, the teens aren't entirely to blame for this situation. Parents, especially mothers, "want Jimmie to be accepted socially." That's a fine ideal, I suppose, but not when it's pressed into the urchin's mind at age four or five.

The idea of social acceptance carries through to adolescence and blooms in the form of "going steady." There's no end in sight for the present teen generation, but if parents realize the problem now, it can be averted in the up-coming generation.

PLYMOUTH HIGH NOTES

By Sharon Olin

On Jan. 12, the high school, along with the other public schools in Plymouth, was dismissed at 10:45. The schools were dismissed early so that teachers could attend the curriculum study session.

The International Relations class will sponsor a dinner on Sunday, Jan. 17 from 1-3 p.m. The price is $1.50 and all profits will go to the class for their trip to New York in February. The dinner will be served in the main cafeteria of the high school and decorations will correspond with an international theme.

The IR class will also have a hootenay on Jan. 23 in the gymnasium. Anyone interested in participating should contact Bob Davidson '65 at once.

Last week all sophomores took the required Differential Aptitude Test, which was directed by Assistant Principal John M. Hoben, and other members of the guidance staff.

The senior English classes will attend the Shakespeare play "MacBeth" on March 10. The play is being presented in the Hillberry Theater at Wayne State University. The price is $1.55 and should be paid by Jan. 15. Mr. Larry Ordowski is making the arrangements.

Lina Riberico, PHS' newest exchange student has come to Plymouth from San Paulo, Brazil. Lina is staying with the Joseph Galleja family and finds Plymouth quite different from her hometown with a population of 4,500,000 people.

Her subjects include American history, English, fourth year French, International Relations, sociology, and gym. This is a "light" schedule, however, as compared to the nine or ten subjects she took in her home country.

The other exchange student attending PHS is Gilla Ryening from Sweden, who is living with Terry Feekart '65.

Mrs. Ethylene Hazelwood is the new teacher replacing Miss Gleason in the business administration department. Mrs. Hazelwood is teaching beginning and advanced typing and beginning stenography.

How You Can Avoid Snow Tangle

Every year more than 10,000 people are injured by falls on icy sidewalks. About half as many suffer heart attacks caused by the exertion of shoveling or trudging through heavy drifts. From these and other indirect effects of snow, approximately 1,000 people die annually. Just as real, but more difficult to express in accurate terms, is the loss of efficiency resulting from the slower movement of people and vehicles trying to avoid accidents, as well as those additional maintenance costs involved in moving snow, and scraping ice.

If you're wondering how to avoid the snow tangle, you might try melting it before it sticks and piles up. It's a relatively simple, yet very real, solution, discovered quite by chance.

During a snowstorm, someone noticed that where steam lines ran under walks or pavements, the surface areas remained clear. Engineers decided to circulate a warm fluid through steel pipe coils buried in paving to control removal of snow and ice.

The idea snow-balled. Experimental systems were installed in critical areas, such as steps and ramps, or those areas with commercial appeal, such as sidewalks adjoining stores, or paved areas around filling stations. Result — better snow-removing efficiency and economy than ever was hoped for. Theory became a proved product.

THE SUCCESS of these early ventures, and the improved design of the system, have caused a rapid expansion in the field during the last few years. Today, you can see snow melting systems in many different locations, including walks, driveways, ramps, parking areas, street intersections, hangar door tracks, and turnpike toll plazas, to name a few.

Where snow-removing puts safety in a walkway or crossing, butt-welded steel pipe puts durability in the system itself. Butt-welded steel pipe possesses unexcelled strength — and that means complete safety from both shocks and stresses. In addition, snow removal systems of steel pipe give economy from the ground up. In most cases, a building's existing heating system can be adapted to handle the melting. One reason for this is that the fluid circulated through the pipes has to be only 40° to melt snow at the rate of one inch per hour; this is usually fast enough to handle all but the biggest storms.

A CHURCH in Erie, Pennsylvania, found where snow-removing and shoveling sidewalks would cost roughly $50 a day for a 4,500-square foot area, steel pipe snow melting would do the job for just about 45c an hour!

A steel pipe snow-melting system can also permit traffic to move normally even in the worst of snow storms. Thousands of buses move in and out of New York Port Authority's West Side Bus Terminal, for example, regardless of ice or snow, thanks to the efficiency of snow melting systems. Now that the steel pipe snow removal system is growing in popularity, you can avoid the snow tangle completely. You can walk, shop, drive and play in the wonderland of winter without inconvenience or danger.

Two days after Antoine Cadillac landed at Detroit in 1701, he established St. Anne's Church, Michigan's first church and next to the oldest parish that has been maintained continuously in the United States.

History of Ice Cream Dates Back to First Century

A long time before Dolly Madison first served ice cream in the White House, people were licking, spooning and enjoying what has often been called the dessert of kings.

Nero, Emperor of Rome, employed runners to dash off to nearby mountains and bring back snow. Honey and fruit juices were added to create what was really a first century A.D. form of sherbet. Nero was so jealous of the delicacy that he ordered it reserved exclusively for his use.

Marco Polo, who spent his life traveling, brought a recipe from 13th century China back to his native Venice. Milk was substituted for the snow Nero had enjoyed; and whatever the Chinese word for ice cream was, the Venetians denizens who tasted it called it delicious. Only the wealthy could enjoy it, though, since the freezing process was so difficult. Still, the art of making ice cream as we know it began with Marco's remarkable recipe.

Ice cream was a favorite in the 17th century English court of Charles I, and by royal decree the cook who knew the secret was sworn not to reveal it to anyone. But according to legend, the man was a blabbermouth and talked his head off — literally, for revealing the recipe he was beheaded!

The dessert was introduced into the American colonies in the 17th century.

George Washington had two ice cream freezers installed in his home, Mount Vernon; and Dolly Madison, wife of President James Madison, served ice cream at the White House for the first time in 1809.

Using home freezers to make the cooling appetite delight soon became part of the American way of life. Today ice cream freezers come in both hand operated and electric models.

Quality in ice cream depends more on weight than volume. Commercial ice cream is usually about half air. Home ice cream freezers will give home-spun desserts that have no more than one-third air and actually will be of finer quality than the average commercial product, according to researchers.

Town Crier Complains About TV Commercials

By Jacquie Town

After a meeting the other night, a group of us sat around discussing the subject of television commercials. All the women present were disgusted with just about the same things — idiotic vignettes that try to sell the American housewife everything from soup to nuts.

While many of the worst offenders seem to be detergent companies and those who advertise household products, there are a few others that got our vote for stupidity as well.

The most stomach-upsetting commercial is the gem with the man suffering intensive nasal congestion using a microphone to tell the world how congested he really is.

I sincerely believe this company is in cahoots with the buffered product for relief of pain. After you've viewed this sickening performance, you naturally need an aspirin.

The golden pendulum ticking off head discomfort was blasted by professionals as being psychologically indecent, noting it possibly had a hypnotic effect. It's still with us though, so perhaps that's what the company is aiming for. They don't need the pendulum to give me a headache.

The commercial alone does an adequate job. My heart bleeds for the poor gal who can't get her cake frosted because it's on the ceiling. I wonder why she doesn't switch to the heavier shortening just to cut her working time in half. I'll be darned if I'll climb ladders running after a floating cake.

When the little genius says it's scientifically impossible, he is oh, so right;

I couldn't use the product that makes my washer ten feet tall. I only have eight foot ceilings. They've lost a sale on sheer arithmetic alone, think of the extra cost in roof repair. When one is bothered by irregularity, one doesn't usually discuss it with one's neighbors.

Some people have no scruples; even relatives are informed.

Between us girls, where would you put the dirty clothes if your washer contained a giant? There are times I'd love to shove my husband down a sewer, but not because he recommended a certain soap.

Some of the dog food commercials are agony, but I can't picture a Tom cat running home to try the latest gourmet menu's. Not if he's like most tom-cats.

You'd think that being completely deodorized and having sweet-smelling breath automatically makes you an up and coming executive. Don't brains count for nothing?

After doing some research on one cal cola, it was discovered that the Chinese soup tasted better than all of them. That's beating them at their own game.

People would rather fight than switch show definite signs of being sadistic. They need help. I prefer brand X and it doesn't demand physical pain in return for enjoyment.

Beginning in last Sunday's Free Press, a series by Samuel Lubell, "The Battle for Your Mind", is well worth reading, especially for the Madison Avenue boys. We're all a little tired of commercials directed at housewives portrayed as brainless idiots.

We are offended that advertisers fail to realize that most of us have the ability to decide for ourselves what we like or dislike, and we can read the claims made by the manufacturers without the help of a middle man. Then of course, there is "Consumers' Report." Perhaps they haven't heard of that publication.

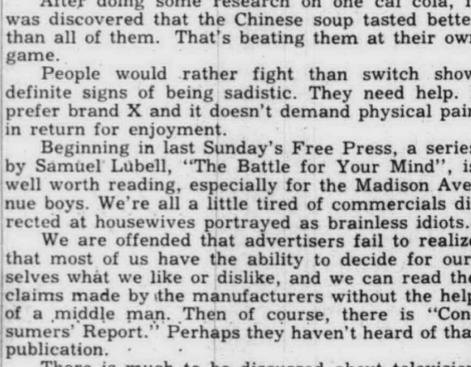

There is much to be discussed about television commercially, and it's high time they aimed their ads at women over 18. Instead of beer drinkers acting their age, perhaps the agencies should remove the rattles and booties from their scripts and grow up.

A delicious lemon sponge cake is offered to Plymouth Pantry readers this week by Mrs. John Daziens, 1313 Beech St. Her husband and children, Patty, 5, Ronnie, Sue, 10, and Barbara, 9, who attend Smith School, consider it a real treat when Mom bakes this cake for them. Moving to Plymouth in 1960 from Coral Gables, Fla., Mrs. Daziens has become active in the AAUW, Our Lady of Good Counsel Rosary Society, and Smith School PTA. She admits to reading extensively, but her main avocation is home decorating. Fortunately, she is able to use the many interesting items collected by her husband on his travels to Mexico, Europe and the Caribbean Islands in his position as Travel Account Supervisor with Maritz Travel Agency, Detroit. The lemon sponge cake is very tasty served plain, with powdered sugar coating or with lemon icing, states Mrs. Daziens.

LEMON SPONGE CAKE

- 8 eggs
6 Tbl. cold water
2 C. water
3 Tbl. cornstarch
2 C. cake flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. lemon extract
Sift flour, put cornstarch in a cup and fill to brimming with sifted flour. Mix and sift twice the cornstarch and flour with the baking powder and salt.

Separate eggs, beating yolks together with cold water until thick and lemon colored. Add sugar very gradually. Beat two minutes after all the sugar is added. Add flour mixture to the egg and sugar combination. When thoroughly mixed, add the egg whites, which have been beaten very stiff. Add lemon flavoring. Fill angel food cake pan and place in an oven preheated to 275°. Now reset temperature - 300° to 325° - and bake 50 to 60 minutes. When done invert cake in pan to cool.

REMOVING her "lemon sponge cake" from the oven is Mrs. John Daziens, of 1313 Beech St. The cake can be served plain, coated with powdered sugar or lemon icing, she explained.

Common Mishaps to Avoid When Moving to New Home

Moving - across town - to another city - or overseas - can be a pleasure, if you avoid these common moving mishaps compiled by one researcher. If you plan on doing your own packing, don't depend upon your memory. Label cartons so that you can tell the movers what room or location in your new home they should carry them to. Be sure to clean out and clean up everything you can. Sort your property, making sure of those items you want to move. Don't leave flammable materials such as lighter fluid, gasoline, cleaning fluids, open cans of paint, or turpentine lying around; throw them out. It's illegal for a moving firm to transport inflammables, paint, explosives, ammunition, animal or plant life. Pack drawers with light, non-breakable articles, but not bed linens or other heavy items. Use lots of padding between items and arrange each drawer so that nothing can slide around inside. Most people nowadays prefer to have the moving company do the major packing, particularly on long distance moves where every care must be taken to see that fragile items are properly packed. Packers may dismantle beds, roll carpets, packages springs and mattresses in cartons, and furnish wardrobes for clothing to avoid unnecessary packing and resultant wrinkling. Don't forget to leave certain articles aside so that they can be loaded in the van last, and unloaded first. Included in this category are eating utensils, non-perishable food, bedding, soap, towels, hammer, screwdriver, wrench, half a dozen light bulbs and

Spice Meals With Surprises

Do you need something to spark the family meals these winter days? A classic dish with a difference is string bean spaghetti and meat sauce. It's not only guaranteed to perk jaded appetites, but it is much less caloric than the original. STRING BEAN SPAGHETTI AND MEAT SAUCE: 1 lb. string beans, 1/2 lb. ground beef, 1 large can Italian-style tomatoes, 1 green pepper, 1/2 cup tomato sauce, 3 medium onions, 1 tsp. sweet basil, 1 tsp. oregano, 1 garlic clove. Salt and pepper to taste. Cut string beans into thin strips. Cook in enough salted water to cover until tender; remove and drain. Brown the chopped meat under broiler in pan over flame. Dice onions. Remove stems, seeds and membranes of green pepper, then chop. Chop tomatoes and broil all together in juice from tomatoes, till soft and brown. Mix meat and tomato mixture with basil, chopped or sliced garlic, seasonings and tomato sauce. Sprinkle with oregano. Simmer for two hours. Pour over hot beans. (Serves 3) Desserts of fruit or ice cream are not only delicious, they are healthful and easy to prepare. They can be almost magically glamorized with the right sauce. Guests will be charmed if you offer them a new kind of ice cream sundae. Instead

IN AND AROUND PLYMOUTH

The Sporting Thing

By Bill Nelson

A trip to Ann Arbor last Saturday to investigate personally what all the noise is about this University of Michigan basketball team proved worthwhile.

Michigan battled off a strong University of Illinois team 89-83 on this day. Michigan won the game on brute backboard strength.

The Big Ten race, nonetheless, is going to be no cinch for Michigan. Illinois had been unbeaten in two previous Big Ten encounters, while this game was the first conference contest for Michigan.

Illinois threatened to pull this one out late in the game, but Michigan's board power proved decisive. However, the Wolverines will have to play more consistently (they have suffered several letdowns particularly on foreign courts during the young season and did again in the early fourth quarter last Saturday). It could be a different result at Illinois.

The Michigan band in attendance at the Fieldhouse, incidentally, really booms out songs like "The Victors" and it is an exciting addition to the basketball games there.

In other stories on this page attention is focused on the Plymouth Hockey Association and others who are planning on seeing a Red Wing—Old Timer game on January 25 in Olympia.

It is an attempt by the people involved to show their appreciation for the Red Wing Alumni Association, which sent a $250 check recently to Plymouth to support local hockey.

The Red Wing old timers raised the money last year in the first old-timer game, which was won by the present professional team 6-4.

All the players who will play for the old-timers, will be former Wings, except Gordie Howe (36) and Ted Lindsay (39) who will be assigned to the old-timers for this game.

Lindsay and Howe will be teamed with Sid Abel (45) so that those in attendance will have a chance to see the greatest hockey line in modern times in action again — albeit a step or two slower than when at its peak in the late 40's and early 50's.

Other names (with ages in parenthesis) that may tickle your memory of Red Wing old times are Stu Evans (57), Bob Goldham (42), Don Grosso (49), Harry Lumley (38), Marty Pavelich (37), Jimmy Peters (52), Leo Reise (42), Lefty Wilson (45) and John Sorrell (at 57, the oldest).

There are others not so famous, but that's enough to give you an idea that it will surely be an evening full of fun at Olympia, with a touch of sentiment and good purpose. The money raised is spread around to different young hockey groups in the metropolitan Detroit area.

And with Lumley in the net and Howe and Abel with Lindsay on a forward line and Reise and Goldham on defense — well the present Wings should have it so good.

Over 130 boys registered for the new Plymouth Community Junior Basketball League. At present league officials are contemplating some 12 teams for the boys, who age in at eight to twelve.

The young enthusiasts will be classified in A and B groups, with most of the younger boys on B teams and most of the older ones on A teams.

John Van Wagoner, instrumental in forming the league, says that no boy who applied was turned down for lack of a fee, so that all who wanted to register were taken. He expects a few more will register this week. Competition starts Jan. 23. All games will be played at Junior High West.

The big registration for this program has more than pleased all concerned.

Organize Group To Attend Red Wing Old-Timer Game

Plymouth Hockey enthusiasts and civic leaders, appreciative of support from the Detroit Red Wing Alumni Association, are organizing a group to attend the next Red

Wing-Old Timers' game to be held at Olympia Stadium at 8 p.m., Monday, Jan. 25. Tickets are $1.00 and all seats are unreserved. Those interested in seeing this game should contact Plymouth Recreation Director Herb Woolweaver's office at GL 3-3100 before Wednesday, Jan. 20. Already 22 Optimists and another 22 Plymouth Hockey Association hockey fans have joined up as have another dozen interested citizens. Those going will have the unusual opportunity of seeing the famed Detroit Red Wing Production Line of Sid Abel, (now coach), Ted Lindsay and Gordie Howe (both still active) teamed together again against the current Red Wings.

IN ADDITION. Goalie Harry Lumley and defenseman Bob Goldham and Leo Reise, Red Wings during the championship era 1949 through 1955, were named to the squad by Stu Evans, past president of the Red Wing Alumni Association and chairman of the Old Timers' game, at Olympia's monthly Press Luncheon.

Evans also released the names of 17 other players — including himself — who will face the current Red Wing squad in the first half of a hockey doubleheader.

In the second game, an All-Star Team from Detroit's new Metropolitan Junior Hockey League will meet the Red Wings' Hamilton (Ont.) Junior B. Team.

Evans said 15 players named to the Old Timers team also participated in last year's contest, won by the 1963-64 Red Wing team, 6-4.

Making their first appearance in the classic will be Lumley, Goldham, Reise, center Don Grosso and left wing John Sorrell.

Grosso, a member of the Red Wing Hall of Fame and the team's top scorer in 1941-42, played for Detroit from 1938-39 through 1944-45. Sorrell, oldest of the Old Timers at 57, was an active player from 1930-31 through 1936-37.

John Cabot, English explorer, received ten pounds, $28 by today's currency values, from King Henry VII in 1497 for his discovery of Canada.

Vern Schilawski and Mayor Richard Wernette. People interested in obtaining tickets to the game should contact director Woolweaver's office before January 20 at GL 3-3100. The game will be played at Olympia on January 25. Tickets are one dollar and all seats are unreserved.

PICK GRETZINGER MSU Captain — Michigan State swimmers have picked Dick Gretzinger, 21-year-old senior from Plymouth, as team captain for the current season. He holds Spartan varsity records in the 200 and 400-yard individual medley events and has been an All-American selection the past two years. Last season he swam on State's Big Ten championship 400-yard freestyle relay team. Dick is a 1961 graduate of Plymouth High School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Gretzinger of 390 Adams, and majors in physical education at State.

Frosh Win 3rd In Row

The unbeaten freshman rock basketball team pushed its record to 3-0 last week by beating Wayne's John Glenn Junior High School 49-26.

Frosh forward Mike Stakias again led Plymouth, this time with 26 points on eight field goals and nine free throws. Twenty-six points in a game is the lowest he has totaled so far for Plymouth.

Guard Mike Kubick contributed 12 points on three field goals and six free throws. Freshman Coach Casey Cavell said that forwards Jeff Adams and Bruce Cavender together with Stakias and Kubick controlled the backboards for Plymouth.

Cavender is a 6' 1" spring transfer student from Northville and was playing his first game for Plymouth.

The freshmen will play at Northville at 4 p.m. Friday.

Air Force Obtains All Personnel by Recruitment

Maintaining a steady flow of manpower into the Air Force is the most important duty of TSGT Jack Bunch, local Air Force recruiter. Recruiting is an essential function of every armed service, but it is doubly important to the Air Force for they obtain no personnel whatever through Selective Service.

Men completing their military obligation leave the Air Force every day and must be replaced. To accomplish this mission, recruiting detachments are established throughout the country. One office is located at 6228 Middlebelt Rd., Garden City. Here, Bunch maintains his center of operations.

After graduation in June many young people will be faced with one of the most important decisions of their lives — "Where am I heading?" The Air Force feels education is of the utmost importance, according to Bunch. It wants to further the education of its members to increase their value to the Air Force.

There are numerous educational programs available to members of the United States Air Force. They range from correspondence courses to programs terminating in a college degree. These are accomplished while serving in a full pay status and allow an individual to satisfy his military obligation and at the same time extended his education.

Two educational programs offered by the Air Force are "Operation Bootstrap" and "Airman Education and Commissioning Program."

Under Operation Bootstrap, Air Force members acquire college credits during off-duty time, either on the campus if one is nearby, or on-base in classes conducted by university instructors where distances are too great. The Air Force pays up to 75 percent of the tuition costs. If one year or less is required to graduate, the member may be assigned directly to the college of his choice on a temporary duty status as a full time student. During this time, he draws full pay and allowances.

Frankers Lose To RU, Thurston

Plymouth swimmers will be in Allen Park at 7 p.m. Thursday after suffering two successive defeats last week. The Rocks were beaten twice in the Plymouth pool, first by Redford Union 62-43 last Saturday and later on Saturday by Thurston 56-49.

Union, which is coached by Plymouth resident Ralph Deetz, was the first ever to beat Plymouth since the Rocks took up swimming 10 years ago. Despite the twin losses, Coach John McFall expressed himself satisfied with team efforts in the Thurston meet.

"This was a good team effort, much better than the Redford Union meet," he said of his Rocks. PLYMOUTH opened with a first place in the 200 yard medley relay against Thurston. John Skinner, Don Norman, Tim Wernette and David Cook performed for Plymouth.

Dan Decker was second in the 200 yard freestyle, while Jeff Haarbauer was third. Dick Berry won the 50 yard free style and Al Saxton was third.

HISTORIC MOMENT — for Plymouth resident Ralph Deetz is pictured here as his Redford Union swimming team upended Plymouth last week 62-43 in the Plymouth pool. It was the first time in Plymouth's 10 years of swimming competition that an RU team has beaten the Rocks. Coach Deetz is in the foreground above as his RU team cheers a relay team to victory.

Cagers Host Allen Park After Loss to RU

Plymouth's basketball team returns home to meet Allen Park at 8 p.m. Friday to play its first game of 1965 before a home-crowd. The Rocks suffered two defeats on foreign courts last week, although they nearly won their first Suburban Six League of the season at Redford Union.

The Rocks came rolling back on two free throws by guard Gary Grady and a basket by Dave Tidwell with five seconds left. The surge was too late, however, and Redford Union won 51-50.
