

NEWLY ELECTED board of education member Robert S. Jenkins of 525 S. Sheldon Road, together with his family, went over the results of Monday's election that saw him defeat incumbent Robert Utter

Jenkins wins school post, tops Utter by 145 votes

Three Plymouth Community residents were elected to office in the annual school election Monday as a slim 10 per cent of the voters turned out to cast ballots.

Robert S. Jenkins of 525 S. Sheldon Rd. led a field of four to defeat incumbent Robert Utter 480-335 for a post on the Plymouth Community School District Board of Education.

He was joined in victory by Samuel Hudson of 44951 N. Territorial Rd. who edged out Mrs. Rosina Raymond of Livonia for the post of Schoolcraft College trustee-at-large by a 5,243-4,964 margin.

Harold Fischer of Plymouth ran unopposed for a seat on the Schoolcraft board.

In the local race, Jenkins — father of four school-age daughters — was the only candidate to conduct an active campaign with house-to-house distribution of literature taking stands and pledging courses of action.

facilities study committee be established to examine future needs, and that a plan be developed for timely acquisition of future school sites — particularly a second high school.

(4) He argued that plans should have been announced and steps taken to build a new senior high school for use in the 1967-68 period.

(5) Jenkins claimed that additional educational and recreational facilities are badly needed.

(6) He decried lack of action to prepare for school needs in the face of burgeoning growth and increasing population.

(7) Jenkins charged that the school board has failed to keep the public informed on educational needs and ways of achieving them.

If elected, he pledged to establish a standing school board advisory committee to satisfy community interest in school activities and communicate needs.

Such a group, as Jenkins sees it, would include representatives of civic associations, PTA's, service groups and other organizations. It would meet monthly with school board personnel.

A "program for progress" was promised by the Lincoln-Mercury Division executive. It would include comprehensive study of immediate and long range needs of the school system and recommendations for a total program and means of accomplishing it.

JENKINS PROMISED to institute immediate action on the new senior high school by developing preliminary planning premises and laying the foundation for participation and support throughout the community.

Together with the other candidates, he made his points at a meeting of parents in the Farrand School area and before a session of the Plymouth Education Association.

Jenkins won handily in all precincts except No. Two where he lost to Utter 96-93.

Total vote for the four hopefuls was:

Jenkins, 480; Mrs. Harland Smith, 108; Roger Smithling, 159; and Utter, 335.

In Plymouth Community balloting, Hudson rolled up a 735-vote margin — enough to make the difference in district-wide voting. He defeated Mrs. Raymond by only 279 votes.

Harold E. Fischer polled 939 votes in his unopposed race for Schoolcraft College Trustee from this area. Complete tabulation of local voting appears below.

Isbister on school's plan for future

Editor's note: One of the consistent complaints voiced in the Plymouth Community is that the problems of the school district are not effectively being communicated. In an effort to answer issues our editorial staff has heard about most, we asked Superintendent of schools Russell Isbister to comment on the following questions. Melvin Blunk, assistant superintendent - business, was also present during the interview, and answered some of the questions.)

Mail: Will there be enough classrooms in the fall to maintain our 30 pupils-per-teacher ratio?

Isbister: Yes. We will have enough to maintain our 30 to one ratio. That doesn't mean we will not have classes with more than 30. But for every one with more than 30 we'll have one with less than 30.

Mail: Will there be enough classrooms in the middle of the year?

Isbister: Yes.

Mail: Will there be enough next year, the fall of 1966?

Isbister: For the fall of '66 we are Building 12 rooms at elementary school No. 7, four at Bird, and four at Gallimore, total — 20 classrooms. I wouldn't want to (Continued on Page 6)

Fall Festival pledges keep rolling in Schools up all salaries

In a report to the Board at their regular meeting June 9, William Fehlig, chairman of the Plymouth Fall Festival Fund Drive, reported a total of $910.00 pledged to date.

This represents approximately one-third of the $2,700 budget to be raised from business, professional and industrial groups.

To date, the following community firms have pledged their financial support of the 1965 Festival:

Alexander Hamilton Life, American Community Mutual, Anchor Coupling, Box Bar, Colonial Cleaners, Consumers Power Company, Daly Drive-In, Dr Carney, Dr. Hammond, Dr. McCubrey.

Fehlig Real Estate, Melody House, Merritt Insurance, Moore's A & W, Penn Theater, Penniman Barber Shop, Pilgrim Drawn Steel, Plymouth Iron & Metal Company, Plymouth Mail, Plymouth Stamping.

Schrader Funeral Home, Schrader's Home Furnishings, Servomation of Ypsilanti, Speciality Coatings, Inc., S. S. Kresge Company, Tait's Cleaners, Townsend Company, West Brothers Motors, Western Auto, Western Electric.

Pay increases for all classified personnel of the Plymouth Community School District were approved at Monday night's regular meeting, with one board member voting "no" on the proposal.

The employee relations committee, headed by board member Robert Utter, presented proposed pay increases in accordance with the estimated 3% pay hike authorized during the spring millage vote.

At that time voters approved a 3.25 operating millage increase, which included, among other things, a 3% across the board increase for all employees, and money for the normal salary increments.

Board member J. D. McLaren voted "no" on each raise. In voting he said:

"I object to the $74,000 as the figure we sold the voters as needed for built in salary increments, and we have exceeded that by approximately 20%. I have no objection to the raise itself. But the fact that we agreed on one figure and are now exceeding it I don't like."

President of the board Gerald Fischer said he could not agree.

"We think conditions resulting from negotiations warranted some deviations. We don't know what the second year requirements will be. We have to recognize we can't plan specific items in advance. Therefore, I, at least, feel warranted in voting 'yes' without obviating the plans on which the millage went through."

McLaren voted "no" and emphasized he did not oppose the raises but the amount of the raises:

"The whole package is an override on what was originally offered."

Approved raises include:

- From 4.4 to 12.4 cents per hour raises for custodial employees.

- From seven to 12 cents per hour for secretarial employees.

- A $6,400 salary for the director of transportation, a $300 increase; and several raises for mechanics and bus drivers, the drivers moving to a top of $2.65 an hour.

- Seven and five cent per hour raises for cafeteria employees; the top being a $2.25 maximum per hour for managers.

- A raise from $75 to $90 for co-op students under 18, and raise from $1 to $1.15 for co-op students over 18.

- A $300 increase for building and grounds supervisors, from $10,200 to $10,500.

Also involved was an increase in fringe benefits, and time and a half for overtime.

Administrative personnel annual salaries were also raised:

- Elementary school principal from $1800 to $1900 above scale the first year, to a top of $2600 above teachers' scale for the fourth year.

- Assistant principals, a first year $750 above scale, a second year $950 above scale and a third year $1100 above scale.

- Junior high principal salaries were upped from $10,600 to $11,400 and $11,300 to $11,950.

- Senior high assistant principals, the fourth year, $1800 to $1900 above scale.

- The high school principal from $12,600 to $13,300, the assistant superintendent - secondary education from $12,750 to $13,550, and the assistant superintendent - business from $12,750 to $13,650.

- Superintendent of schools from $18,200 to $19,100.

Twp. studies volunteer fire procedures

Plymouth Township Board of Trustees at their June 8 regular meeting tabled a letter recommending the method to be used in appointing members of the volunteer fire department for further clarification.

Written by Fire Administration Board chairman Clayton Koch, the letter stated that after the fire department and fire administrative board had met on the appointment of a man that it then be referred to the Township Board for tentative approval.

The appointment is subject to review after 90 days and it becomes final after one year, according to the letter.

Township board members called for further clarification because of the wording of the letter, not the contents. The board authorized the township engineer, Herald Hamill, to get an easement for extension of the trunk sewer west of Sheldon Rd.

Bad checks

City assistant police chief Loren Johnson issued a stern warning this week to local merchants to seek better identification of people cashing checks.

Johnson reported that he has had a rash of bad checks in the last two weeks.

"They are all small checks. If a small business gets hit with a $40 check it can cut into their profits."

He said on many of the recent bad checks he has had nothing to go on. He urged that local businessmen "know who they are cashing a check for."

Johnson said that every unidentified person should be required to show his driver's license. The number and the state of origin of the license should be noted on the back of the check.

Fourth plans final; air show, beer garden add to holiday fun

Plans for the Fourth of July weekend are reaching final stages, according to the Jaycees, and will be highlighted by the traditional Miss Plymouth Contest, the air show and the fire works display.

New in the works is a Bavarian beer garden at the airport air show, complete with beer and the five piece Larry Livingston combo, who will provide German dance music.

Scheduled for July 2, in the evening, is the Miss Plymouth Contest, honoring this year's queen, Miss Krisan Fluckey.

The Fourth will feature the traditional parade, watched last year by 15,000 people. Plans call for six bands, including the Chrysler Highlanders, a Scottish precision marching group.

The JayCee raffle for a RCA color TV will be held; three tickets cost $1.

The fireworks, representing the largest display ever, have been donated by the Chamber of Commerce. About $800 in fireworks is planned.

The annual peanut drop during intermission at the air show has been scheduled.

Immediately following the parade, the four area fire departments — Canton, Plymouth Township, City of Plymouth and DeHoCo — will engage in their annual water battle and basketball fight.

ALL activities will take place at the airport after the parade, and will be capped by the fireworks display at 8:30.

Airplane rides will be available, along with Coney Island hot dogs and chicken box lunches.

Airplanes from Beech, Cessna and Piper will be displayed, along with antique cars and experimental air-airplanes.

The names and some of the sponsors of 18 of the Miss Plymouth candidates were available as The Mail went to press. They are:

THE JAYCEES annual Fourth of July celebration will include an airshow and this finely decorated airplane with over 5,000 hand painted checker boards. This bright red F-30 WACO is valued at over $30,000.00. The 33 year old beauty will be power-dived and stunted along with the newest production models by champion Harold Johnson of All Star Air Show, Columbus, Ohio fame.

PHS graduates seniors Thursday

Over four hundred PHS seniors will graduate Thursday, June 17, beginning at 8 p.m. marking once again the largest class ever to receive diplomas.

The seniors went through the traditional baccalaureate services last Sunday.

Marshall Pease, a Detroit Edison vice president, will be the commencement speaker. Pease, a graduate of Massanutten Military Academy of Woodstock, Va., has been with Edison since 1924.

He is a trustee of the Detroit League for the Handicapped and a member of the Detroit port committee.

The band, directed by James Griffith, will play the professional, and Reverend Peter Beckwith of St. Johns' Episcopal Church will give the invocation.

The class will be presented by principal Carvel Bentley and Keith Baughman and Philip Johnson, class sponsors.

Assistant superintendent Melvin Blunk and school board member J. D. McLaren will award the diplomas.

Also included in the program is an instrumental solo by one of the seniors, Robert Wilson.

The class of '66 will furnish the flowers and the ushers for the ceremony.

The program, normally held at the football field, will be moved indoors in the event of bad weather. Each senior will receive four tickets to the indoor ceremony.

Drums?

Got one of those old wooden street drums around the house? Maybe it's hidden away in the attic or basement. If so, Plymouth Optimists could put it to good use.

The local club is trying to organize a drum corps within Plymouth State Home Boy Scout Troop 855 which they sponsor.

Persons who have a drum or two that they'd like to donate to the Optimists for the drum corps may call S. W. Scott at 453-0446 or F. Richard Merriman at 453-0141.

Canton ok's 3 new ordinances

Canton Township board of Trustees approved the adoption of three ordinances last week:

A sewer and water ordinance.

An ordinance to regulate used car lots.

An ordinance to regulate swimming pools.

According to Township treasurer Philip Dingledey, the sewer ordinance established the tap-in costs, and was added to the old water ordinance.

The pool ordinance will regulate locations, fencing, health and safety of pools, both private and public.

The used car lot ordinance is designed to help clean up junk yards, and up-grade used car lots. On this new law, Dingledey noted:

"We had some complaints... cars too close to the road... they didn't become serious."

THE BOARD also received and discussed a petition presented by Mrs. Letha McDermid seeking to get written notification of all zoning changes. The petition was signed by 65 or 70 people, according to Dingledey.

Dingledey noted that the idea might be something the board would adopt, and that the present zoning discussions in Canton are on proposed changes, not actual changes.

Fence mending needed

One way of interpreting the results of Monday's school board election here in the Plymouth Community is to view the victory of Robert S. Jenkins over an incumbent as a sign of some dissatisfaction.

In a hackneyed phrase, the natives were apparently restless.

A relatively select group of residents normally votes in school district elections where no tax monies are at stake. They are the natives, teachers and school personnel and parents of students.

While the turnout Monday represented far less than 15 per cent of the registered voters (a deplorable figure, but apparently taken as a matter of course in school balloting) those who did vote gave Jenkins what amounted to a five to three margin over incumbent Robert Utter.

And although Farrand School parents, having gone through a winter of discontent with overcrowded facilities, played an important part in the results, analysis of returns indicates that Jenkins would have won handily without them.

Jenkins worked hard for his win and we would take nothing away from it but it seems that his victory is less meaningful than the loss of incumbent Robert Utter—whose defeat is not so much a personal affront as expression of a desire for change in the board as a whole.

Based on the election, we think it would behoove the board, including Jenkins and members of longer standing, to ask themselves what changes—if any—should be made.

As an organization that is in constant contact with many segments of Plymouth Community society, The Plymouth Mail would offer these comments:

- The public as a whole does not seem greatly sympathetic to the school board or its policies and programs.

- People, and particularly parents of school children, have expressed the opinion that the board seems coldly unconcerned about the problems and welfare of children—especially when it relates to facilities and crowded conditions.

- There is an impression that the board neither solicits nor wants expressions of opinion from parents; and that it would prefer to operate without disconcerting and raucous interruption from without.

Some of this is unearned and unmerited. But it seems to us that other aspects of the criticism are richly deserved.

Admittedly, being a school board member is a time consuming, tedious and often thankless job. Even so, we feel there are steps which could be taken to improve the public's concept of the board of education.

(1) Attitude. The electorate is not an unintelligent group. Board members could well afford to take pains to treat them as mature voters with real problems and not as caterwauling kids.

(2) Environment. The room where board meetings are held is small and cramped and potentially stuffy. Meetings might be held in surroundings more conducive to citizen attendance and participation. Junior High School East is located just in back of administrative offices. It would provide a more spacious setting.

(3) Frequency. With the expanding growth rate of the district, all business obviously cannot be transacted at one open meeting. Fewer committee meetings and more open sessions are in order. They would, in addition, impress upon the public that the school board is not a private organization to which they have limited access.

(4) Timing. "Comments and suggestions from citizens" is invariably at the tail end of the board's meeting agenda. Since voters are paying the piper, they should be able to call the tune without undue waiting and delay.

In conclusion, The Plymouth Mail interprets Monday's school election as a call for public relations fence mending on the part of the Plymouth Community School District Board of Education.

Our growth rate being what it is, problems will multiply in the near future and rapport with the public is vital now and will be increasingly important in the future.

LETTERS:

Community loses man of respect and honor

June 9, 1965

Dear Editor: When Cliff Manwaring died this morning our town lost far more than they perhaps realize. We lost a man of integrity and honor and deep respect for the law. Cliff was a quiet and self-effacing man whose modesty and humility were deceptive.

We are living in a small community and we frequently pride ourselves on knowing our neighbors and friends, but in many instances and particularly Cliff's, I believe this is not true.

Many of his closest friends in the legal profession were not aware of the truly remarkable knowledge of History and Philosophy and many other subjects he had. In fact, in the field of History I believe he was one of the most knowledgeable persons I have ever met.

In his dealings with people he never failed to treat them with patience and kindness, it was often characteristic of him to treat their unwarranted criticism or the thunder of a worried client with a gentle chuckle and the comment, "Well, they are entitled to their opinion."

SOMETIMES Cliff's greatest fault, if it can be called a fault, was that he nearly always thought of the other person first. He would have died a wealthy man if his many friends and clients had paid him for the many hard hours he labored in their behalf. I will miss him; we will all miss him in the practice of law and as a personal friend.

The town as a whole has lost a man of honor and integrity, as well as a friend.

Very truly yours, Robert B. Delaney
EDITOR'S NOTE: This touching tribute to a departed friend seems to sum up the feelings of many who knew Clifford H. Manwaring, a Plymouth attorney who died last week. We print it because so many of us in The Plymouth Community are too little acquainted with our fellow citizens.

Rest of school district doesn't deserve scorn

Dear Editor: I have just read your editorial about Farrand School and wish to take issue with you—rare interest indeed! I don't mean to condemn them—they deserve praise for their actions. But the rest of the school district doesn't deserve your scorn. If our children were suffering the same fate, don't you think every PTA group in the district would take similar action?

Several years ago Canton Township felt they were not being properly represented on the school board and they not only nominated but elected their candidate.

Another time, the high school band parents were displeased and they made it known by appearing before the school board.

A LARGE number of us spent much time and energy working to get a millage election passed that had previously been defeated.

What I am trying to say, Mister Editor, is that when our children and their future is involved, we are very interested and will go to great lengths to see that they are protected and educated.

We have done so in the past and will continue to do so in the future. Thank you for listening to me.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Robert A. Baskins

Pick Pytkas as Gallimore's new principal

The appointment of Arnold E. Pytkas as principal of Gallimore Elementary School was approved by the Plymouth Community Board of Education at their Monday evening meeting.

Pytkas, who taught physical education in Plymouth elementary schools from Feb. 1952 until June 1954, returns to Plymouth from the South Redford School District where he has been principal of Vandenberg School since 1956.

He holds a Master of Science degree from Wayne State University and has done post graduate work at the University of Wyoming.

A World War II Navy veteran, Pytkas also took part in the U.S. Naval Cadet program at Pensacola, Fla., in 1949 and 1950.

Pytkas is chairman-elect of the communications commission of the Michigan Association of Elementary School Principals and has been public relations chairman of region II Association of Elementary School Principals since 1963.

In spite of repeated warnings from the profession that laymen shouldn't meddle, it seems impossible to avoid conversational crossings of the hallowed ground of law and legality.

Like the other night when a cohort and I strayed into the ideological swamp of what's useful and useless when it comes to jurisprudence.

"Any law," he argued, "that 90 per cent of the people don't observe, is useless." And he emphasized the point with a stab of his forefinger at the label on a cigarette vendor that read, "Minors are forbidden to operate this machine."

At this point, sex (blush) reared its lovely head. There arose a dichotomous image of "Playboy" and the "Ladies Home Journal," both of which have recently carried articles questioning the validity of some of our sex (blush) laws.

But I am sorry. I have strayed from the limits allowed a family newspaper columnist. Where was I? Oh, yes, useless laws.

Following our weighty conversation, the thought came that it would be fun to check on the relative usefulness of a new, or recent, law.

So I dressed in my white bermudas, donned my cranberry sweat shirt with the white "Plymouth Mail" emblem, hitched up my cranberry knee socks and rattled off in my (sob) non-cranberry station wagon with the four-on-the-floor.

At the nearest hamburger stand I stopped, determined to do a man on the street interview about Ordinance No. 312, City of Plymouth, Michigan—otherwise known as "an ordinance to license and regulate drive-in restaurants."

I pulled up next to a GTO with one headlight missing on each side and primer black squares painted on the grille.

The happy sound of a radio speaker laboring at peak loud pervaded the parking lot.

"Double-you-ex-why-zee, bleepa deep bleep bleep," it squalled and I apologize, for it is impossible to duplicate—phonetically or otherwise—the aural assault of that particular station break.

A shapely, unclad female leg obtruded from the rear window of the car while faint squeals fought with those of the recording group that had replaced the station identification.

"Hi," I said warmly, running my fingers through my princeton. "I'm from the Plymouth Mail and I'd like your reactions to Ordinance No. 312, City of Plymouth, Michigan."

"What a flaky frat," a voice in the GTO commented. "Turn the radio down and let's listen to him. It might be good for laughs."

"Gee, thank you," I said. "I'm glad you turned that off. It's against the law."

"Whaddaya mean it's against the law?" the driver said.

"Well," I explained, "it says right here that 'the licensee shall not cause or permit to be caused any noise or other nuisance on the premises of a drive-in restaurant whereby the quiet and good order of the premises or of the neighborhood is disturbed.'"

"You're putting me on," the voice said and a paper cup spiraled out of the window and landed soggily at my feet.

"Hey," I said, "don't do that. The ordinance says the parking lot must be 'free from all rubbish, waste products and debris, including napkins, straws, paper cups and plates, and other waste material.'"

"What a flaky frat law," the voice commented. "They're putting us on."

"And, young lady," I said, turning my head away, the law also says 'it shall be the duty of the licensee to maintain good order upon the premises of a drive-in restaurant, and the licensee shall not permit disorderly or immoral conduct or loitering.'"

"So what?" she replied. "I ain't got a license and I ain't loitering. You trying to put me on?"

"Of course not," I said. "I'm just trying to determine the usefulness of this new law."

"What else is in it?" the carload asked.

"Well, as I read it, it says you can't blow your horn, race the motor of your car, suddenly start or stop your car, or make any loud or unseemly noise."

"You can't drink beer or any other alcoholic beverage or congregate for any time whatsoever at any location on the premises . . . other than in the restaurant building, or in a legally parked motor vehicle."

"No ARE putting us on," the group chorused. "You I'm not. It says here, 'any persons so congregating shall be deemed loitering.'"

"Hey, buddy," a voice behind me said. "Move on before we take you in for loitering."

"But, officer," I argued, "I'm not loitering."

"Yeah, sure," he said. "I suppose you're interviewing for the newspaper or something."

"That's right," I replied. "See my cranberry Plymouth Mail sweatshirt?" The policeman zeroed in on my chest with his flashlight. At last, he shut it off and spoke.

"You're putting me on," he said.

St. John's Bay Rum made from the original Virgin Island formula

St. John's Bay Rum is carefully distilled and blended from the oil in the leaves of bay trees—not a product of modern chemistry. Such trees are found in abundance in the Virgin Islands. Its spicy—though subtle—aroma is thoroughly masculine. After shave or bath it tingles the skin, then soothes it to a blissful refreshment. Packaged in a hand-woven palm frond jacket and available at fine shops. Eight ounces, three dollars; sixteen ounces, four dollars and fifty cents—plus tax.

Announce winners in Symphony round-robin bridge tournament

Winners in the Plymouth Symphony League sponsored round-robin benefit bridge play were announced at the annual luncheon, Monday, in the Mayflower Hotel.

In its third year, the bridge games netted $1,537 for Plymouth Symphony.

There were nine groups of 20 women each in this year's play. The women met in groups of four ten times from September until June to play bridge. Each time they played they donated one dollar. Entrants had their choice of singles or doubles play and each group of four decided upon the time they wanted to play, daytime or evening.

This year's chairman was Mrs. Howard Smith, who is also chairman of the Lost Chords Symphony group which was in charge of the fund raising event.

Mrs. James Randall of Burroughs St., originated the idea three years ago when she chaired the Lost Chords group. Each symphony group is responsible for one fund raising event a year.

Wayne Dunlap, conductor of Plymouth Symphony, presented ten dollar awards, enclosed in balloons to the following winners:

SINGLES
Mrs. Robert Olen, Mrs. F. R. Hoheisel, Mrs. John Sergeant, Mrs. Robert Visser, Mrs. James O'Day and Mrs. Albert Stanwood.

DOUBLES
Mrs. Nagel Post and Mrs. George Kenyon, Mrs. William Bannon and Mrs. Ralph Lorenz, Mrs. A. E. Vallier and Mrs. J. W. Selle, Mrs. Aldred

Barkley and Mrs. E. O. Baldwin, Mrs. John Hoffman and Mrs. John Ward, and Mrs. Joseph Minahan and Mrs. Harry Wiley.

Mrs. Ward and Mrs. Hoffman had individual high game, while Mrs. Sergeant and Mrs. H. F. Gilbert had individual low game.

Lost Chord members active in planning the bridge play were Mrs. George Spaniel, luncheon chairman; Mrs. George W. Broome, prizes; Mrs. Leslie Gallagher, name tags, and Mrs. Robert Vorach, treasurer.

Chairman of the nine groups were Mrs. G. W. Broome, Mrs. Les Gallagher, Mrs. James O'Day, Mrs. Henry Breneman, Mrs. John DeMott, Mrs. Donald Urquhart, Mrs. Fred Campbell, Mrs. James Randall and Mrs. Spaniel.

Reservations for next year's games are now being accepted by Mrs. Fred Sigmon, chairman, and Mrs. Conrad Krankell, co-chairman. The Nightingale Symphony group will organize the coming year's play. Play is open to anyone and next year pin-ochle games will be added to bridge.

LITTLE DID THESE WOMEN know the balloons they were looking at contained ten dollar bills for three of them. Later in the afternoon, Wayne Dunlap, dressed like a clown in accordance with the circus theme, presented prizes to the 18 winners in the Symphony League sponsored round-robin bridge. Above, waiting for festivities to begin are Mrs. Ralph Lorenz, chairman Mrs. Howard Smith, luncheon chairman, Mrs. George Spaniel, Mrs. John Ward, and Mrs. John Hoffman.

Trefoil doings

Saturday, June 12, was the last official training session for the 32 Roundup girls of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council. All last minute questions were answered or cleared up and all loose ends tied together.

As practice for Roundup each patrol was given a picnic table kit to assemble, complete with everything from bolts to nuts. So with hammer in one hand and instructions in the other, they began to put the parts together. When assembled they were even sturdy enough to sit on.

After lunch they were given last minute instructions on their transportation to and from Roundup and some tips on first aid. The girls will leave July 14 at 12:57 from Ann Arbor. Their train should arrive in Chicago around 4:40 and will leave from the Union Station at 6:30.

During this transfer in Chicago, the girls are expected to eat supper and are then free to do what they want.

The train leaving from Chicago, filled only with girls bound for Roundup, will travel to Spokane, Wash.

When they reach Spokane, which will be around 3 p.m. the next day, they then will take a bus nine miles to the Roundup campsite at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. From that moment when they step off the bus until the day they leave, their only transportation for getting around camp will be by walking.

The correspondents and reporters from each patrol were also given their press cards and a large envelope full of things which each will need in order to fulfill her obligations as either girl correspondent or girl reporter.

The bride's sister, Janice, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Barbara Taylor, Sonia Clark, Donna Williams and Janet George.

The girls wore gowns of blue organza trimmed with lace at the empire waistlines and sleeves.

Douglas Clark, the bridegroom's brother, was his best man. Seating guests were the bride's brother John Taylor, Fred Mitchell, Walt White and Jim Chappel.

The bride's mother selected a turquoise crepe dress trimmed with lace and matching accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Clark wore an ice blue silk dress with matching accessories.

Following a reception at the Conservation Club in Plymouth, the couple left on a wedding trip to Florida. They will live in Plymouth.

Treasures from Plymouth pantries

A delicious recipe for baked chicken which also is simple to make, "Baked Chicken Continental," has been suggested by Mrs. LeRoy Woodard, 860 Palmer Ave.

The Woodards have lived in Plymouth for 13 years. Both also graduated from Plymouth High School, class of 1946. Mrs. Woodard is the former Lorraine French.

They have three children, Ruth, 16; Connie, 12, and Robert, 7.

Attending classes at the University of Michigan has been keeping Mrs. Woodard busy for the past year and a half, she said. She decided to go back to school to work for a bachelor of Arts degree in English, she explained.

The children have become much more interested in school, since mother has become a student, Mrs. Woodard added.

For a simple summertime dinner, Mrs. Woodard suggested placing baking potatoes in the oven with the chicken and preparing a tossed salad.

BAKED CHICKEN CONTINENTAL
 4 or 5 chicken breasts, split
 1 stick butter or margarine
 1 C. fine bread crumbs
 1/2 C. grated Parmesan cheese
 1/4 tsp. garlic powder
 1 tsp. salt
 1/4 tsp. black pepper.

Combine bread crumbs, cheese, garlic powder, salt and pepper. Melt butter. Dip chicken in melted butter and roll in crumb mixture. Place, skin side up, in shallow baking dish and bake for one hour at 350 degrees.

School questions

stand up and raise my right hand and guarantee a 30-1 ratio. I don't think anybody knows at this point.

Mail: Where or how will the new money be spent, the $760,000 just borrowed on tax anticipation?

Isbister: We have given the green light to the architects to proceed with preliminary drawings for a 12-room building at the site of elementary school No. 7, the four rooms at Bird and the four rooms at Gallimore. Also included is the three-room renovation at the high school. We have also authorized detailed plans for the athletic field.

Mail: What will the eight rooms at No. 7 include?

Isbister: There will be eight classrooms, and a kindergarten, which is worth two. It will not include a multi-purpose room or kitchen. We may bring hot lunches in. That is yet to be determined. We are spreading our money. If we did the multi-purpose room we would have to delete something somewhere else; maybe take off two classrooms and build them later. Later we may take a look at the money and it is very possible the board may say go ahead. The board can make the judgement.

Mail: Where is the site of the next elementary school?

Isbister: Let's say in the Joy Rd.-Haggerty area. Elementary school No. 8 will be built here . . . a September, 1967 school.

Mail: Exactly when will talks on a new high school become public?

Isbister: I think the board will activate an advisory committee to assist for planning of a second high school. Planning will get underway next year. The bonds could be sold by 1967; construction started for completion in 1968. We can't suddenly catapult from one high school into two full-blown high schools. The question is how do we do this.

Blunk: We don't want to over-build. Good planning dictates full usage of buildings, as you are building.

Mail: Exactly when will the advisory committee be appointed?

Isbister: My recommendation to the board would be to appoint an advisory committee in the next school year.

Mail: When do you foresee an end to the modified pay-as-you-go financing system?

Isbister: We are shuffling off it. Last year we floated two year bonds. This year - five year bonds. After that we will be on long term bonds. This (the name pay-as-you-go) is my technicality. But these have been bond issues. We used the same procedures you would use in a 25-year bond. We didn't have to vote it because the state says a district may issue bonds for two per cent of assessed valuation less current total indebtedness . . . We will borrow again in June 1966.

Mail: Then we are no longer on pay-as-you-go?

Isbister: We've been off it for two years.

Mail: How will the new high school be financed?

Isbister: Long term bonds.

Mail: What about the seven mills voted in 1955?

Isbister: That would be ample. It has to be revoked. It will be paid off in '66. I'm sure that we can keep the levy at 2.8 and make the final payments.

Mail: Does the fact that this is the first year that we have had a net gain over the school year in students affect plans?

Isbister: The net gain has been 125.

Blunk: It indicates that it will happen again next year and we will plan accordingly.

Mail: Will we reach our projected 7,000 next year?

Isbister: Where are they coming from? I'd say less than that.

Blunk: I would predict 6850 or 6900 at the beginning of the year. I think it may go to 7,000 during the year . . . by May.

Mail: Is it possible to buy sites ahead of time, and sell or trade them later?

Isbister: Yes.

Mail: Do we do that?

Isbister: We haven't. We own two sites other than the elementary No. 7 site.

Blunk: How much money should a school district tie up in sites? The second high school site needs attention this year.

Mail: Can we add the cost of performance bonds to school costs to better guarantee schools being done on time?

Isbister: We've talked about it a number of times. Those who have experience with it personally say that your initial bidding is going to be high. It's costly to do it. As far as we can determine, this is rarely done.

Serving As We Would Wish to be Served

Come to Church

It is no accident that men, the world over, have built clocks into the steeples of their churches:

Reduce life to its simplest components and what have you? TIME and GOD.

Time marks the beginning of life. It measures the growth of our bodies. It provides opportunity for our work and play. It reveals to us our human limitations. And then, one day, Time leaves us behind . . .

But God is the origin of life. He measures the growth of our souls. He provides our strength and empowers our weakness. He reveals to us His limitless Love. And, never deigning to leave us behind, God beckons us on — even beyond the circle of time.

A parable then: the clock in the steeple! Man finds material security and temporal happiness as he learns to respect Time. Man finds spiritual security and eternal happiness as he learns to love God!

A total of 7,800,000 World War II veterans took training and education under the G.I. Bill.

Is there anything beautiful about a hole in the ground? There is to the Dywasuk family, because it's the site of their new home in Warren. And there is to Keith Muir (right), manager of our Jefferson-Chene office, because he helped make it possible. The Dywasuks had dreamed about the home ever since they saw the model. So they talked with Keith—arranged their financing—and will close the loan right in his office. It's just a couple of blocks away from Jerry Dywasuk's place of business. Of course, the Dywasuks are very special people...they're customers of ours. But then you can be, too.

From Washington Foreign aid — a boon in disguise

By Congressman Weston E. Vivian

The House of Representatives passed the Foreign Assistance Act of 1965 recently. This Act authorizes the funds required to continue our programs of military and economic assistance to a limited number of nations abroad which we believe can benefit from our aid, and which we believe to be in the national interest to support and help.

85% SPENT IN U.S.
An important but little-known aspect of the foreign aid program is the fact that approximately 85% of all monies appropriated are spent here in the United States on goods and services supplied by U.S. companies. Thus, a very large portion of all the funds expended provide employment of our own people.

This is an important fact, for it means that American enterprise is being stimulated and American jobs being created.

Serving our country
Wesley Sims, Airman Wesley E. Sims, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sims of 7835 Koppernick Rd., graduated May 21 from Aviation Boatman's Mate School at the Naval Air Technical Training Unit, Philadelphia, Pa.

In nearby Clinton, The Ford Motor Company manufactured almost $23,000 worth of parts used in the Philippines.

One of the largest cities in the Second Congressional District, Ipsilanti, accounted for only $684 worth of General Motors Machine and Mill work parts shipped to Pakistan, while Tecumseh, a small city in our District produced over $107,000 worth of Tecumseh Products cold storage plant condensers and parts that were put into operation in the Congo, Turkey, and Pakistan.

I believe that those of us who live and work in the Second District of Michigan should take pride that part of the great abundance of goods we produce, is used to aid peoples in countries halfway around the world, in their search for a stable, productive democratic role in the community of nations.

For, as our late President John F. Kennedy said, in his Inaugural Address, "If a free society cannot help the many who are poor, it cannot save the few who are rich."

More than 6.5 million people came to Michigan as tourists in 1964.

Africa and me

Elephant walk

by Lon Dickerson

Lon Dickerson, some natives, and the elephant they stalked. It was our columnist's first sight of an African elephant.

Immediately in front of me I saw the elephant. It was a female which the men said was only about two years old.
My first thought was that it looked so small and defenseless in death. Yet it probably would have stood five feet at the shoulders and weighed between one and a half to two tons.
It had been killed by a hunter in his late teens with a single shot from a homemade rifle.
I was surprised by three things in its appearance. It had been dead for only about five hours, but already the stomach was bloated to twice its normal size.
It also had small, wavy tusks. I soon learned that this is another distinction between the African and Indian species.
The third thing was the short, prickly hair which could be seen upon close examination of the animal.
When we approached it, everyone broke off a small twig from nearby trees and placed it on the elephant. I was told that this ritual is always observed.
Because the brush was so thick the chief then ordered the men to clear away the surrounding vegetation so that I would be able to take pictures. The men's machetes made quick work of the task.
Next a group of men were selected to skin the elephant. The hide was so tough that another man designated to keep the machetes sharp was kept busy throughout the operation.
Once one side of the beast had been skinned a slit was made in the stomach. Almost immediately the bloated intestines and colon began to flow forth in a seemingly endless manner. Suddenly it burst, spraying forth the gas produced by the fermentation of the green forage the elephant had previously eaten.
The odor was repugnant.
IN DUE time the intestines were cleared away, and the men had cut the meat into manageable sections. One in front and one back foot along with a tusk are always given to the chief.
The hunter gets the remaining tusk and feet, plus the choicest meat including the heart and liver. The villagers get the rest of the meat.
By the time I got back to the village the sun had begun to set. As a final gesture the chief presented me with one of the elephant's ears.
Exhausted I then returned to the house of my host for the night. The next day he helped remove the meat from inside the ear. The meat was later cooked for supper. Once the sun the ear was ready to return with me to Freetown.
The primary school students and teachers at the schools after Gaiya Niimi yema were amazed at the size of the ear when they saw it inside the bookmobile. The vast majority of them had never seen an elephant before.

Legion to host Lions June 19

F. Harger Green, a past president of the Plymouth Lions Club and Wayne E. Squires, currently serving as a state Vice Commander, will be the speakers on behalf of their respective organizations on Saturday evening, June 19, at the American Legion Home.

This will close out the 1964-65 series of "Why Are We?" informative programs. The Plymouth Lions club will be hosted. Buffet supper is at 6:30 p.m. with the program to follow at 7:30 p.m.

Program Chairman Ernest Koi states that since the inception of the series in February, 1964, when the City and Township officials were the first guests, some 600 local members of the various organizations in Plymouth attending the 1 banquets to date, have been in attendance.

"We of our organization have learned much of the other organizations' aims, goals and problems and in turn, we hope that they have gained some knowledge of our aims and goals," stated Koi.

F. Harger Green has been a resident of Plymouth for 11 years, is married, and is the father of a son, David, a graduate student at the University of California, and a daughter, Judy, who is a student at Albion College.

Green is also a graduate of Albion College and is employed, currently, as production manager of the Fisher Body plant in Livonia.

He served in the Army during World War II for 5 1/2 years and was a Captain in the Ordnance Corps at the time of his discharge from the service. Green has been a member of the Plymouth Lions Club for 10 years and in addition to being a past president he has further served on the District level as zone chairman and deputy district governor.

He is a member of the First Methodist church where he has served on various commissions and as chairman of the official board.

Squires, a World War II veteran, has served in practically all of the offices both on the Post and District level. He was an active member of the Flat Rock Color Guard and Drill Team when that group was a top contender for state honors. Currently, he is serving as a State Vice Commander in the American Legion and is basically responsible for membership in the Legions' 1st, 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th Districts.

He is married and resides in Wyandotte and is employed by the Ford Motor Co. as a production controller.

The series will be resumed in September when the Business and Professional Women's Club and the Women's Club of Plymouth will be the guests. October will host the Smith School P.T.A., November - The Goodfellow and the Firemen's Association; the Newcomers Club and the Senior Citizens will be the guests in December.

'When I was your age' ... a jealous phrase

"Back when I was your age... How many times have you heard that? You've heard it from your father, or a father when you were a teen, or a mother when you were a teen. No matter who you are, it's inevitable that you've heard it from someone at some time.

But what makes it different today? What causes that little cliched phrase to be tinged with the sweet and the bitter?

This is a new world—newer and more changed than any other world spanning any two generations. This is a transition time, a growing up, awkward time. Never before has the gap between generations been so wide, or the chasm so deep, or the attempt to conquer it been made so hard.

The common ground of the old and new is being whittled away. New norms, styles and ideas, new definitions of old and new, good and bad, truth and falsehood are being established.

And what's the main vein to be carried into the world on? What's the machine that will take these, mold them together, make them penetrate our society and form tomorrow's world?

The students of today.

On June 17th the largest class ever to graduate from Plymouth High will go through the routine ceremony. Over four hundred will file across the stage. Quite a contrast to a typical 1930 senior class where maybe only forty would receive diplomas. But aside from the difference in sheer numbers, many other factors separate the two.

The minor ones—from the black bottom to the frug, from people-stuffing bars to people-stuffing telephone

Mike Ross

According to the institution that made and administers the California Test, today's graduating high school senior has as much knowledge and comprehension as a 1930 student finishing his college sophomore year.

Does this mean today's generation is smarter? No. It simply means that we're now taking more advantage of man's learning capabilities than we did thirty years ago. The capacity of the human brain appears endless, but it has just been recently that was discovered.

Another factor directly connected to education is the question of dropouts. It seems hardly a day goes by without something in the paper or on the radio concerning the alarming, and ever-increasing number of dropouts.

Percentage-wise, though, today's dropouts number hardly one-half of what they did in the previous generation.

But 1930 is an unfair year to compare this in. Many young people, understandably, were forced to quit school and take on jobs to help the family through the depression years.

Too, the jobs requiring a high school or advanced education were in the minority, whereas it's literally impossible to advance without a high school diploma now.

College is a further comparison point. Out of this year's graduates are going to school 80% of them on to higher education. That was an unheard of number in dad's graduating class. These students are going on to specialize in the field of their choice, a chance given to few before this time.

But, what with hundreds of community colleges, and plans for thousands more, the generosity of many organizations, and the "Go Now—Pay Later" plan offered by so many universities, the percentage of high school grads going on in their quest for personal betterment has skyrocketed.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR young people have likewise boomed. Everyone agrees travel is one of the best teachers. But who could ever afford to travel?

Now few people give it a second thought when they read the names of the students on exchange programs that are to spend the summer in Germany, Switzerland, Austria, or England. This type of travel is now just taken for granted.

Jobs, too, through more education have come within the reach of many more. Junior secretaries are common. Even high school bookkeepers in many stores are becoming a regular sight. No longer must even a sixteen or seventeen year old settle for a job in a gas station or be restricted to mowing grass.

Such was the case in the depression.

The differences between then and now are more than just a simple thirty-five years. They are a bridge of years spanning the greatest advances our society has made. So when you hear someone say, "Back when I was your age..." are they happily reminiscing? No, they're jealous.

PHS senior athletes and their coaches were honored at the annual Kiwanis banquet last Tuesday, June 8.

James "Bingo" Brown, consultant to the Moff Foundation in Flint, executive of Eastern Michigan University, Michigan boxing commissioner, and famed speaker, Michigan sportsman, was the featured man, as the aging, but still lively figure, spoke with a booming voice and delivered his speech quickly.

He recalled his 35 years behind his desk at EMU and recounted experiences of several sports personalities he has known.

"In the college classroom they don't care if you play football end or you're just plain John Doe," Brown commented.

"The athletic field is where a man finds himself," Brown continued. "There they are taught lessons never found in textbooks."

The saga of Joseph R. Fletcher

Doug Johnson

I first met Joseph, R. Fletcher after I had been working at the Mail for about two weeks. He would periodically boom into our offices from his upstairs and ask for scissors, or glue, or paper, or some publicity for his pet project. Joe, along with a handful of other Plymouthites wanted to build a swimming pool. They had formed a corporation, of sorts, named the organization "Colony Swim Club," and were proceeding, for the second year in a row, to drum up 300 members at $300 apiece. He would plead with our editorial staff for coverage and the plans of the group. We ran a front page story and an occasional blurb on the sports page.

But Joe wanted more. He wanted pictures. I finally capitulated and agreed to a dramatic photo taken at the site, complete with the pool's founding fathers, blueprints and fingers and arms pointing to where the pool was to be. This was in February 1, 1965. Saturday morning, March 2, was the Great Storm, in which, you may remember, we left Plymouth snowbound. But there we were Saturday morning in Fletcher's highpowered Ford roaring toward the site. Present in hip boots and heavy clothes were Fletcher, Les Gallagher, Bill Kloote and myself. Fletcher had suggested taking a picture of any 'ol snow covered field, but I had insisted on the actual site.

So on this sunny snowclogged day we trudged a quarter of a mile back in from the road to a little knoll. "This is it," Fletcher said as he stumbled into a four foot drift and sank to the ground. He pointed to an open field.

"Ok, let's get this over with," I said, "Quickly." We lined up Gallagher and Kloote in a picture looking at plans and the site, and I was about to shoot the picture when: "Wait a minute," Joe said, floundering out of another drift, "I don't want that old shed in the background." "What old shed?" I asked. "That one," Joe said, pointing to an old chicken coop. "I have to shoot it this way. I can't shoot into the sun." "I said, "Get in the picture, Joe."

"Nah," Joe didn't want to be in the picture. I thought it may have been something else — fear. We must now turn from this hardy band of pioneers, to the present and the sunbaked and arid land the proposed pool is supposed to go on. This spring the first step was to get water — by drilling, because a tap-in was not available at a reasonable price. From time to time as the weeks progressed I would ask Joe how his pool was coming. "Great. We're drilling a well now. Gotta find water," he'd say.

For some reason each time I'd ask, some of the enthusiasm was gone from his voice. Finally, one Saturday morning, not too long ago, I asked him, over coffee at Ellis' restaurant, how it was going. "We're going for our fourth well this week. Gotta find water. This is it buddy," and he punctuated his comments with a fist punched into the air. I ducked a bit and said: "What happened to the first three?" "Dry. All dry," Joe said. "Well, we gotta go to Lansing." They were off.

Now must come the storybook ending, the fairy tale to end all, the happiness-is-water-for-the-Colony-Swim-Club pool book. As the third well was running dry, the pool board went to a neighbor Mrs. A. B. Hersh, and asked for water rights. According to Joe she agreed if a douser could go over the land with a diving rod and find water, she would consent. "I told him (Martin Strasen) I'd name the pool after him if he found water," Joe told my boss, Dave Wiley, recently. Sure enough, Strasen, an engineer, retired, went over the ground, located water and marked the spot. The well driller moved to the new site and sunk a well. Water was soon forthcoming. That brings us up to date on the saga of the Colony Swim Club. Hapless Joe, one of the truly free-wheeling, lovable guys in the Plymouth Community, is recuperating from an appendectomy. He thinks the pool will be ready by July 15, barring another disaster.

OLGC surprises pastor with 35th anniversary party

It's not easy for an entire parish, including 800 school children, to keep a secret for so long. But it was almost an accomplished fact that the celebration of the 35th anniversary of the Ordination to the priesthood of the Rev. Francis C. Byrne, pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel church, was unknown to the honored guest.

And only because Father Byrne announced that he would be out of town on June 6, was it necessary to tell him the big secret—just four days before the celebration.

Other guests included Father Byrne's cousin, the Rev. LaSalle Lenk, Church of St. Germaine in St. Clair Shores; the Rev. James Embler, CSB, Catholic Central High School; the Rev. Stanley J. Shater, Presentation of Our Lady Church, Detroit; Father Rupert, OFM Cap., and the Sisters of St. Joseph from OLGC school.
