Cape in court on ordinance violation

Thomas Cape, builder of the Byron Ave. Bryn Mawr apartment development, will face charges of violating City ordinances Wednesday night in Municipal Court.

He has been charged by building inspector Charles Thompson with allowing one of his units to be occupied without a proper occupancy permit. The permit is issued only after final inspection.

Thompson gave Cape a notice of violation ticket.

Thompson said the fine ranges fro $25 to $500 with a possibility of 90 days in jail.

The apartment in question is Apt. F of building E, 1098 Byron where, until recently, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hall lived. They have moved out.

FOUR-DAY WINGDING

Antique Mart to bring Gay Nineties memories to Festival

By JOHN HERB Fall Festival Publicity Chairman

It's official-the gold and orange oak leaves flutter from the lamp posts in downtown Plymouth and their banners announce that the 1965 Fall Festival will be held Sept. 9, 10, 11 and 12.

Soon, before the frost is on the pumpkin, the Plymouth Community will turn back the clock for its festival days.

Opening at noon Friday. Sept. 10, and running throughout the balance of the Festival, will be the famous Antique Mart operated by the Plymouth Symphony League.

It is the consensus of opinion among antique dealers that the Antique Mart, sponsored by the Plymouth Symphony League, is one of the finest in the state. This year, twenty dealers will be displaying and selling their choice treasures at the Community Building and the Grange Hall.

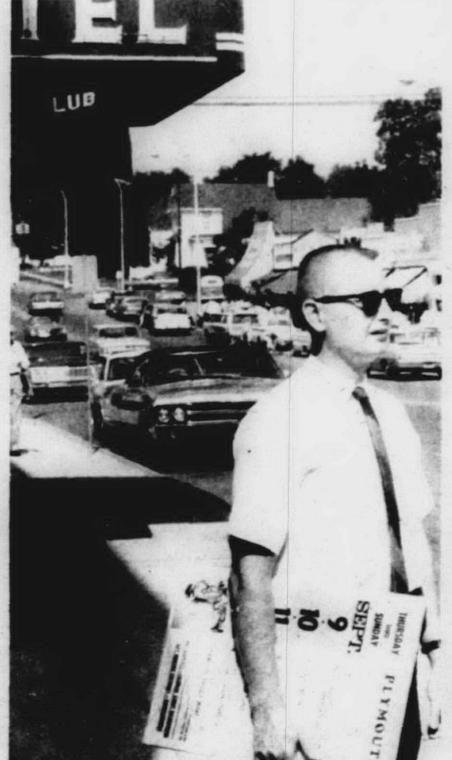

From Farmington will come dealers noted for their fine primitives and furniture. Ann Arbor dealers will feature glass and old books. Indeed, dealers will be on hand from all the major antique centers of Michigan and adjoining

Members of the Plymouth Symphony League have worked hard to make this one of their best antique marts. Over 8,000 calico squares have been made to be used in decorations. As an added touch, Symphony League members and their children will be guilty and the Halls have to dressed in costumes from the turn of the century.

> The Antique Mart will open at noon Friday, Sept. 10 and will be open from noon to 10 p.m. Sept. 10, 11, and 12. Refreshments will be served by members of the Plymouth Grange.

In addition to the Antique Professional Women's Club man Chocolate Cake, with a Mart, a number of other in- will hold an old fashioned German band for entertainteresting and varied activities German Night in Kellogg ment. will be featured each day of Park. the Festival. Thursday even-

EARL HARRINGTON, Fall Festival manager, and a teacher in the Plymouth schools, spends much of his time in the summer handling the ever-increasing amount of administrative details and leg work. He passed out the orange and black Fall Festival posters all last week.

FRIDAY evening, Sept. 10, the Lions Club will have their Melon and Ice Cream Social in the park.

Saturday, Sept. 11, the Kiwanis Club will again serve their delicious pancakes and sausage all day long.

Climaxing Saturday will be a square dance, with the Jay-Cees operating a chuckwagon to provide food for the even-

The Festival will end Sunday, Sept. 12, with the Plymouth Rotary Club's now famous Chicken Barbecue.

Supplementing these major activities will be a schedule of varied and interesting attractions. One of these is the Children's Pet Show, held Saturday morning and sponsored by the Optimist Club. If past years are any indication, visitors can expect to see an unusual collection of pets at this show.

Equally as unusual, although perhaps not quite as animated, will be the display of antique cars to be seen at the Rotary Barbecue Sunday.

A wide variety of antique cars will be driven into Plymouth that day and will be on display adjacent to Kellogg

Indeed, Fall Festival days are fun days for the entire family. For good wholesome family entertainment, in the theme of the Gay 90's, plan to come to downtown Plymouth Sept. 9, 10, 11 and 12.

One of the natural bents of teenagers is the desire for thrills of almost any nature. Mixing youthful exuberance and devastating freedom of movement, today's teen can find almost anything to satisfy his desire to raise hell.

It came to my attention that an old pastime was taking on more vicious and modern tactics in the Plymouth Community . . . the great old sport — destruction of mail boxes. Imagine this.

You are whizzing down the country road late at night, armed with an old car, a large piece of wood mounted in some way on the car for jousting at unsuspecting mailboxes. Zap! You hit one at 50 miles an hour. You see metal box, red flag, post, wood and letters all go flying about the car for a

The phantom mailbox killer strikes again! And

And so on into the night, the great fun goes on. A firecracker dropped in a mailobx explodes and destroys the thing; next morning a rural mail carrier is faced with a bent up mass of metal that looks like a marshmallow.

People you don't like you get on a regular basis two or three times a month.

Wait until pumpkin season. To the pumpkin patch, load up on pumpkins, and off you go.

Ever see what a 40 pound pumpkin does to a four pound mailbox when hooked from a sixty-mile-an-hour car? Oh, it's beautiful.

And watermelon is available in the summer. A call to the local postal authorities revealed that it has always gone on sporadically. The Post Office has no way of prosecuting if and when anyone gets caught, unless mail has been damaged or the mail stolen; then it becomes a Federal offense.

The Sheriff department's hands are tied unless a victim knows exactly who did it. It is a crime, and a complaint can be filed if a license number is available. Aside from that, mailboxes are fair and easy game.

We, in the adult world, have always told ourselves with that particular brand of severity, that always ends with us forgetting our youth, and paying ourselves a compliment, that we, somehow, weren't as bad as today's teens. We were better because we knew when to quit. We were the camp followers of too much work makes Jack a dull boy, but we knew where to draw the

"Maybe you should read a good book," you'll say. "Like what," he'll say. Already, he's got you. "Oh, gee, like 'Ivanhoe,' or 'Black Beauty,' or something like that," you'll say.

That funny look is because he struggled through a Classic Comic book version of 'Ivanhoe' in the tenth grade, and never will read 'Black Beauty,' thank goodness.

Like our own confusing war in Viet Nam, there is no answer to a teen's battle against the adult world. Perhaps only that it never seems to end, and that the solution is somehow us being parents that aren't bonehead enough to suggest staying home and reading 'Ivanhoe.'

Brickbat for builder.

There is a tendency on the part of all of us as human beings to grow a trifle weary with the workings of governmental apparatus.

We complain about taxes.

We mutter about red tape.

We decry the slowness of bureaucratic processes, both local and national.

But most of us realize that the keystone of civilized society is government and we take little conscious action against the system that, in the final analysis, is the reason human progress has attained its current level.

From time to time, however, there are individuals who lose sight of the fact that systematic rules and regulations are established-not only for the good of the individual-but for the greater good of society as a whole.

And when the individual flaunts these rules and is contemptuous of them, civilized society as a whole is the loser.

A local case in point.

Local apartment builder Thomas Cape seems to have made it his preoccupation to skirt the edge of rules and regulations established by the City of Plymouth. In development of his Bryn Mawr apartment projects, located in the southern end of the City, Cape has repeatedly violated municipal rules.

Earlier this year, at the May 3 meeting of the city commission, Cape was taken to task for his policies (or lack thereof) in development.

At that time, it was pointed out that he took out a single family residence building permit with no intention to build such a structure. Then he went ahead and roughed in walls and fixtures for apartments.

Technically, Cape can legally do this as long as he has only one kitchen in the building. This is what he did, earmarking other kitchens as "lounge areas." At that time, City Attorney Edward F. Draugelis told the builder:

"You can't do this. Time and time again you've gone ahead without first getting approval."

It was at the same May meeting that commissioners turneddown Cape's request for the city to dedicate to him part of Byron Ave., behind the A & P building, so he could bring his land space up to building requirements for 32 apartment units.

Recently, Cape took it upon himself to pave the property which the city had refused to give him. He had asked for permission to pave the area but was told to wait for a report from city engineers.

Draugelis told the commission last week that the paving operation was in violation of city law.

Whether Cape is aware of it or not, laws are made for a reason. They are formulated for the protection of all. And his contempt for the law is a black eye for all of us.

We get no pleasure out of hurling editorial brickbats at individuals; but it seems that Thomas Cape, just like Joe Doaks, should be made to obey city regulations.

City officials should not permit him to act as though jurisprudence is applicable to everyone except him-self.

A two-wheeled problem which could use a little fixing was brought before Plymouth's city commission last week when a local resident made an appearance before the legislative Kenneth R. Bisbee of 440 N. Harvey St. expressed his concern about the bicycle safety situation in Plymouth.

He is right.

There is little or no control over cyclists in Plymouth and, as he pointed out, someone is bound to get hurt.

Any day of the week, it's not hard to stumble over bicycles which kids have strewn outside downtown stores on the sidewalks. More than a few citizens have come within an ace of cracking their craniums on the concrete after tripping over a bike.

Neither is it a difficult task to get oneself mowed down by a rider on the sidewalk nor to mow one down when he darts into the street in front of your car.

The Plymouth Optimists club has taken an interest and promoted a bicycle safety program, for which they deserve credit and praise.

But it seems to us that more is needed.

We wouldn't want to see a situation in which local kids couldn't have fun on their bikes; but we do feel that Bisbee merits a bouquet and city officials should take seriously his suggestions that a licensing program be adopted and present ordinances be re-evaluated.

My wife and I are failures.

For going on 10 years now, we have done everything in our power to be good parents. Because of my Marine Corps training, I tend to be overstrict and old cohort has been a restraining influence.

"Quit beating the child and reason with her," she will say.

On the other hand, she, like all mothers, is unduly lenient and I do my best to provide counsel.

"Stop talking and clobber the kid," I suggest. We have alternately counseled and reasoned and occasionally punished; and now we learn that we are all washed up.

We aren't understanding parents.

All this we learned the other evening when I was absent mindedly riffling through the monthly offering that McCall's Magazine sends us.

Naturally, I read "Betsy McCall Writes a Letter from Camp" first, cut old Betsy out and dressed her in her camp clothes, and then I turned to other portions of the publication.

An advertisement caught my eye and I read it. "Hey, old thing," I said, "are you an understanding mother?"

"Of course I am," she answered.

"Uh oh," I said, "more money to spend."

"What in the world are you talking about?" "This ad. Listen: 'The understanding mother knows that the formative years are the most important years in her daughter's life-the years for which "Littlest Angel" expanding bra was especially designed.

" 'And, because your child's emotional needs often outweigh her physical requirements, this bra . . . .

will give her confidence in herself-and in you. 'It tells her that you are truly An Understanding

"You're kidding," she said.

"Wanna bet? Here, read it."

And so the Wiley parents found out that, not only aren't we understanding parents, we have no desire

I have long been in a state of semi-repressed rage about our Mickey Mouse society's penchant for accelerating the wants of youngsters; and the "Littlest Angel" ad really ticked me off.

It's bad enough that the big girls have to fight emotional problems because they aren't well developed without some nitwit designing brassieres" in sizes 28, 30, 32, 34, 36. One size cup," which is to say flat.

McCall's pretty well negated the effort, however, by publication of an extended interview with Katherine Anne Porter, celebrated author of "Ship of Fools." The interview carries over on the facing page and Miss Porter makes these comments:

"Today's youngsters know far too much about sex far too early, and it has destroyed something that was rather nice . . . When I was a girl, a girl and a boy together at a party didn't take their minds off each other for one split second, yet all we could do was look at each other. But oh, what a lot we got from those looks.

'But they have destroyed something that ought to exist in sex. God knows it's an animal instinct; but we are not four-footed creatures, and when it's debased, we're destroying something profound in human nature. Today's children know so much about sex they can dance without touching each other-narcissistically, by themselves, a ritual that has nothing to do with real dancing. Dancing should provide great pleasure, based on sexual attraction to one another, not preoccupation with self."

For those, however, who should latch on to Miss Porter as the epitome of domestic wisdom, it's worth a look at her next comment to the interviewer.

"But," she says, "let's get back to my marriages."

This is not normally a corner that devotes itself to activities of a social nature because, if I set myself to write a wedding story, it would come out sounding like a cross between Max Schulman and Doug Johnson -which, let's face it, is a horrible thing to con-For a few short paragraphs, though, I must de-

Mayflower Hotel Manager Ralph Lorenz and his family outdid themselves at Saturday evening's wed-

The Lorenz family's transformation of the old I.O.O.F. Hall into the Mayflower Meeting House is nothing short of a local masterpiece and it underscores the Lorenz's legendary faith in downtown Plymouth. Actually, by Friday evening, the project had escalated into a community affair with former mayor Harold Guenther washing basins in the gal's john and bearded Doctor A. C. At any rate, Saturday is now a delightful fait accompli.

The crowd was happy, the music was good, the food was out of this world and Sheila and her mother, Mabel, were beautiful, beautiful, beautiful as bride and bride's mother.

Oh, yeah, Ralph. I don't think he'd like it if I said he was beautiful. He just looked like a proud papa.

Heights.

Sheila Beth Lorenz, daugner of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Lorenz of Ann Arbor Tr., and Lieut. Frederick Reiner Osann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Osann, Jr. of Birmingham, spoke their marriage vows in an Aug. 7

The Rev. Jay P. Coulton performed the double ring evening rites in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Livonia.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a Bianchi gown of white silk organza. Finely tucked pleats comprised the bodice and re-embroidered alencon lace was appliqued in the belle skirt and flare sleeves.

A chapel train of peau de soie fell from her shoulders and a crown of valley liles held her bouffant veil of imported illusion. She carried a cascade of Amazon lilies, philoneopsis and liles of the valley. Linda Ahoe of Detroit, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sharon Noetzel of Bloomfield Hills, and the bridegroom's sister Carol Osann of Birmingham. Another sister of the bridegroom, Sally Osann, was flower girl, and the bride's brother, Randy Lorenz, was ring bearer.

The bride's three attendants and flower girl wore floor-length gowns of white Swiss lace over azure taffeta. Their empire waists were accented with narrow satin ribbon and the girls carried antique white lanterns with cascades of graduations of blue delphiniums.

Serving the bridegroom as best man was John Russ of Dowagiac. Guests were seated by Frank Russ of Dowagiac, Randolf White of Ann Arbor and the bride's brothers, Kirk and Staton Lorenz.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Lorenz selected a floor-length gown of printed silk chiffon with velvet accents. The bridegroom's mother wore a floor-length yellow chiffon over white silk gown.

Following a reception in the Mayflower Meeting House, the couple left on their wedding trip to Tides Inn, Irvington, Va. Mrs. Osann selected a three-piece wine silk outfit for her going-away costume.

Both the bride and bridegroom graduated from Michigan State University in June. Mrs. Osann was affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta sorority and her husband was a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

OFFICIAL NOTICE OF SALE

$700,000.00

PLYMOUTH COMMUNITY SCHOOL DISTRICT WAYNE AND WASHTENAW COUNTIES, MICHIGAN

NOTES

Sealed bids for the purchase of tax anticipation notes of Plymouth Community School District, Wayne and Washtenaw Counties, Michigan, of the par value of Seven Hundred Thousand Dollars $(700,000,00), will be received by the undersigned at the Board Room, Administration Building, 1024 South Mill Street, in the City of Plymouth, Michigan, until 8:00 o'clock, p.m., Eastern Standard Time, on the 23rd day of August, 1965, at which time and place said bids will be publicly opened and read.

The notes will be dated August 1, 1965, will mature April 1, 1966, and will bear interest at a rate or rates not exceeding four per cent (4%) per annum. Both principal and interest will be payable at a bank or trust company to be designated by the original purchaser of the notes, which paying agent qualifies as such under the Statutes of the State of Michigan or of the Federal Government. Denominations and form of notes to be at the option of the purchaser. Accrued interest to date of delivery of such notes must be paid by the purchaser at the time of delivery.

For the purpose of awarding the notes the interest cost of each bid will be computed by determining, at the rate or rates specified herein, the total dollar value of all interest on the notes from September 1, 1965, to their maturity and deducting therefrom any premium. The notes will be awarded to the bidder whose bid on the above computation produces the lowest Interest cost to the School District. No proposal for the purchase of less than all of the notes or at a price less than their par value will be considered.

The loan is in anticipation of the December 1, 1965 operating tax.

A certified or cashier's check in the amount of 2% of the par value of the notes, drawn upon an incorporated bank or trust company and payable to the order of the Treasurer of the School District, must accompany each bid as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the bidder. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be promptly returned.

Bids shall be conditioned upon the unqualified opinion of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, Attorneys, 2500 Detroit Bank and Trust Building, Detroit, Michigan, which opinion will be furnished without expense to the purchaser prior to the delivery thereof, approving the legality of the notes. The purchaser shall furnish notes ready for execution at his expense. Notes will be delivered without expense to the purchaser at a place to be designated by the purchaser.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Envelopes containing the bids should be plainly marked "Proposal for Notes".

The schools in Siernna Leone are closed now for the long break, and it is vacation time. I'm taking the opportunity to travel through other countries in West Africa. Making the month long trip with me are two other Peace Corps Volunteers.

We left Freetown by Plane on July 24. A pleasant five and a half hour flight brought us to Accra, Ghana, a distance of 970 miles.

We spent four and a half days in Ghana. In that time we were able to travel to various parts of the country.

One day was spent walking around the capital city, Accra. It is a charming city of 350,000 people. Everywhere there are new, modern buildings and roads. We visited such places as the libraries, museums, and parliament in our tour. The real city, however, was seen as we walked through it.

ANOTHER day we traveled to Kumasi, the second largest city in the country and headquarters of the Ashanti Tribe. It too is a modern city. Of special interest here was the beautiful Kwame Nkwmeh University where we spent the night.

Transportation to and from Kumasi was troublesome. We left Acra in a small bus which crowded together 22 people. The total distance of the trip was 168 miles, but less than a third of the way to Kumasi the fanbelt on the bus broke and we had to flag down a lorry to complete the

We planned to return to Accra by bus the next day in four hours, but three flat tires along the way extended the trip to nine hours.

On still another excursion into the interior of Ohana we hitchhiked 68 miles to Akasumbu, site of the Volta River Dam. When completed the project will provide electricity to industries and homes througrout most of the country. The American government is providing a large portion of the money to build

To orient new PHS students

School in the Plymouth Community School District will begin September 7, the Tuesday after Labor Day, according to school officials.

One more orientation session is slated for August 17; all incoming sophomores and new students should attend if they haven't been to a previous one.

Plymouth High School Principal Carvel Bentley and Assistant Principal Gus Gorguze will conduct the sessions. All incoming sophomores are asked to attend, and any high school students new to the district.

A student new to the district must check at the guidance office at the high school as soon as possible; the office is open from 8:30 to 4.

John Hoben, head of the guidance office, reported last week that two or three new students come in each day.

"We had two from Chicago last week, and one from Whittier, California. It will get heavier, and we'll have about 15 or 20 the first day.

To register at the guidance office, a student's family must be a resident of the school district. All prospective students who do not reside in the district will be required to a pay a day-to-day tuition until such time they move into the dstrict.

Superintendent of Schools Russell Isbister said it was not a local rule, but a state law. Tuition is $1.56 per day for elementary children, and $1.66 for secondary school children, grades 7-12. Parents must reside within the district. Residency in a motel, or at the Mayflower Hotel does count, and no tuition would have to be paid on that basis.

Pair beaten in car while camping

Two Plymouth youths ran from a crazed escaped inmate in the wilds of Northern Michigan after he had beaten them on the head early Saturday.

Doug Jaskierny, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Jaskierny, 41960 Brentwood and Jay Reynolds, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Reynolds, 42011 Brentwood, were sleeping in a makeshift bed in the back seat and trunk of their car when the man attacked.

Both were beaten badly about the face before they could escape down the road.

They were on an isolated stretch of M-18 near Prudenville, a town close to Houghton Lake. They were on a camping trip.

The pair was taken to the Grayling Mercy Hospital, patched up, and released to their parents.

THE YOUTHS report the man woke them up when he started hitting them with what they thought was a flashlight. They got out of the car and the man screamed at them to "get out of here."

The state police told Mrs. Jaskierny that the man had escaped on the 26th of last month. The man took a flashlight and a little food. He took no money, or articles of

Jay Reynolds related his experiences to the Mail Tuesday:

"About 6:30 I guess . . . this guy started beating the heck out of us, trying to shut the trunk. . . . .

"We decided to get out of there . . . We were bleeding real bad by then. We started to walk down the road. About two or three minutes from where we had gotten beaten, we saw a cottage. We woke the guy up and he took us to the State Police. . . ."

Don Byers loses fight for life

Stark Road, lost a valiant fight for his life last Tuesday when he died of injuries he receved in a freak accident in March.

He died in Mt. Carmel Hospital of head injuries suffered when a car on which he was working slipped off a jack at McAllister's Standard Service on Northville Road March 4.

The injuries were termed severe, and he underwent complicated brain surgery several times. He had been at home under intensive care, but had lapsed into com a when he was returned to Mt.

Elton McAllister had started a drive to help the stricken father of three, a drive that a spokesman for the family termed "very successful."

Mr. Byer's services were held Saturday at Wilkie Funeral Home at 1 p.m. Burial was at Grand Lawn. He is survived by his wife

Rena; his parents, Eldon and Sylvia Byers; one brother and two sisters; and three children, Sandra, Thomas and Dawn.

SCHOOL BOARD president Gerald Fischer replied: "I am satisfied after months and months of study that we don't have any leeway."

Fischer, however, did comment there may be a possibility of changing the individual operating and debt fund

As a result of Jenkins' objections, a special meeting of the school board was set for Aug. 30. The finance committee may meet in advance of the Aug. 30 meeting. It is possible that the millage total could be changed at that time. The tax rate has to be set by September I.

McEwen said Monday that the water line out Territorial to Glenview Subdivision was expected to be completed by Friday of this week. He also noted the other projects were moving along, including the Sheldon Road tie-in to the Northville Detroit water line.

Jenkins noted: "I would rather make my decision then, not merely justify it." The motion of Robert Soth to set the rate at 26.95 was passed 5-1, with Jenkins voting 'no'.

In other action, the school board approved the retireent of the school's nurse, Mary Carless. She will step down after 34 and one-half years of service.

Upon the recommendations of Robert Soth, the board:

· Approved a storage building for athletic, shop and maintenance equipment to be located near the football field.

· Approved a $4150 repair job on the high school boiler room roof.

 Discarded a proposed roof line extension on addition plans for Gallimore and Bird Schools.

They wallowed, the blind leading the blind, and the result, it seems, is less than favorable. Adult guidance was lacking. No one had ever been faced before with a group of students of this age set off as a separate educational and social level, and the planning for it had been inadequate. The same teachers that had taught seventh through ninth grade before were put to work in their respective TRUE, it was the teacher's own fault if he let this type of conduct go on in the room, but why were the students trying it now more than when they had been a part of the elementary school?

Few people attributed it to anything but "kids are going bad." They didn't want to strain their brains looking for a more plausible answer, so they settled for what seemed to be the h and iest, and easiest. But there was something far deeper and more complex than a silly little reason that was used only to shirk responsibility. The real answer lay in the backs of the mind's of the junior high students themselves.

No problems had emerged at the advent of the new schools for various reasons.

The first two or three years the newness of it all sparked the dominant emotional and psychological factor of both the children and their par-

It appeared, from the outset, that no one had sufficiently delved into what might happen, psychologically, to children this age when placed in a contoure environment, suited for them exclusively. It looked like great fun and would relieve overcrowding. For this problem, I admit, it was a brilliant idea.

But the adverse after effects have led me to believe they've outweighed the one problem solved.

As its name implies, it is a 'junior" high school. A miniture senior high, in a sense. It has a little football and paseball team, a few class of icers and a student council, and the like.

But they are only shells, the student government being the biggest mockery. The "advisors" let the students play around as if they have a voice only to knock them in the teeth a little later. But as this wore off the parBut as this wore off the parit tired of saying his child

Since it is the thing to be "in" in the high school, all junior highers must shoot at that same goal a m o n g st themselves. But their ideas of "in" attitudes and actions differ greatly from most high school students.

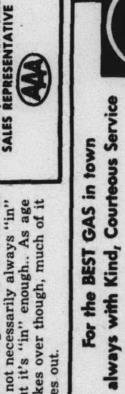

THE GREASE, the big hood, is the big man in the junior high. This is cool. It is not necessarily always "in" out it's "in" enough.. As age akes over though, much of it
