Jack Cook on Mill St. between Ann Arbor Road and Ann Arbor Trail, in Plymouth Township. Cook's buildings are up for rent - one has 16,000 square feet, the other 32,000 square feet. Both will be done in the near future, one in about four weeks, the other in about eight. Cook, who is the president of National Concrete Products on Mill, is building the two industrial structures with private capital; he undertook a similar project when he built the plant presently occupied by Welduction, immediately adjacent to these two buildings. Here Cook, and Township Supervisor Jack McEwen look over the new building.

Take 300 lbs. of flour, 48 gallons of syrup, 25 lbs. of butter and 475 lbs. of sausage - mix well, add 90 hardworking Kiwanians and you have a very tasty and successful pancake breakfast.

That's what visitors will find at the Plymouth Fall Festival Saturday, Sept. 11. Starting at 7 a.m. that day and continuing until 7 p.m., the Plymouth Kiwanis Club will be serving pancakes and sausage to a crowd of over 2000. As in past years, this event will be held in the Masonic Temple, adjac-

New car, TV stolen from Calhoun Ford

Almost $900 worth of equipment and a '65 Ford Mustang belonging to a customer were taken from the Leo Calhoun Ford agency on Main St. sometime Tuesday morning, Aug. 31.

According to Assistant Police Chief Loren Johnson, the thieves pried the lock to the parts room and forced their way in. However, he said, the building itself was locked and there were no signs of forced entry and no fingerprints. Whoever entered the building.

he said, must have had a key. Stolen from the parts room were a Philco portable TV, a calculator, a typewriter and a hand grinder. The thief also helped himself to a customer's burgundy Mustang.

Jenkins has been outspoken in his criticism of the Board's financing polcies. Jenkins said at one point in the meeting: 'We are in trouble. The days when we are not in trouble are long past."

Here's a rundown on Jenkin's motions, which came after a lengthy review of Board plans for 1966 and 1967:

'There is still no multipurpose room," Jenkins said, 'I'm concerned with stage building; we don't have the use of the schools, and we suffer in increased costs. This is a decrease; I'd like to see us keep pace with planning."

Gerald Fischer, board president, said, "Well, our obligation . . . 'moral obligation is to set millage at 26.95."

"Our moral obligation is to provide educational facilities. We need to be educationalminded more than financeminded," Jenkins replied.

At this point Jenkins moved a one-mill tax boost to "provide for complete and total educational service." The motion died, with no second.

And, two important additions have been included in the curriculum by the construction of the new building - auto mechanics and electronics.

Michael Kohut, long-time air line mechanic who now holds both a B.S. and a Masters in Industrial Arts from Eastern Michigan University, will teach the auto course. His enthusiasm for the new class is contagious. "I think they can leave here with a salable skill . very qualified and I think they can get a job," Kohut said in a recent interview. "Many of the students will come in here with the idea this is a hot rod shop. We've got to knock this out of their heads right away."

THE CLASS will be very practical and business like. Students will be required to work under strict supervision, with work orders and formal schedules.

Kohut said his class will stress fundamental auto maintenance, both theory and practice.

"We'll spend a lot of time on electronics. Most mechanics are very weak in instruments. It doesn't take much to pick up a rachet and take off a few nuts and bolts.

Kohut brings several years experience as a power plant mechanic for Eastern Airlines to his job. He has attended General Motors training center in engine tune-up, and the Delco-Remi school. In WW II and Korea he was a combat photographer.

Included in the course will be instruction in ignitions, test equipment, wheel balancing, minor welding techniques, brakes, valves, fuel systems - even air conditioning.

It's work . . . it's fun . . it's wet . . . for YMCA youths

(Editor's note: Several YMCA youths have been taking part in a summer camping and work program under the direction of two adults. Tom Workman, and Tony Monte, (both of whom work for the Plymouth Schools), and Dale Livingston, a college student. Here, in their own words, is what the boys did)

The group traveled by bus which was donated to them earlier in the year. Upon arrival in camp they were divided into two groups. Dale Livingston was assigned to Group 1 and Tony Monte was in charge of Group 2.

Group I left Roscommon by the South Branch River and from there they paddled down to the AuSable River which took most of the day. Late in the afternoon they found a suitable camp site and pulled the canoes to shore. This was a perfect spot because it was a high sandy hill, sheltered by pine trees and covered with grass.

All the boys got their gear out of the boats, pitched tents and started gathering wood. All the wet articles were hung on low branches of the trees to dry out.

Dale Livingston was the cook and he appointed an assistant at each meal. They all enjoyed dinner and, after swapping stories around the camp fire, retired early,

At 6:30 a.m. the next morning two boys who had been previously appointed, gathered fire wood and started the fire which felt good because it had been cool during the night and there was a heavy dew on the ground. At 7 a.m. the rest of the campers arose and rolled up their sleeping bags and took care of all their personal gear. They washed up in the river, packed the canoes and were ready for a hearty breakfast of pancakes and bacon.

After cleaning up the camp site they started paddling down river again and reached McMaster's Bridge where there is a store. They went shopping and waited for Mr. Workman. When he did not show up they left a note on the bridge and continued down stream to the next bridge, ate lunch there and met Mr.

Workman at this spot.

They were given their food and supplies for the second day.

It was such a beautiful night and the stars were shining so brightly that they decided to sleep on the ground and did not set up their tents.

About three hours later, they were awakened by a crack of thunder and they all scurried for the large shelter nearby. One group of campers had already found protection there and lit a large campfire in the fire place so that is was warm and dry in spite of the heavy rain.

The next morning they loaded the canoes after breakfast and went down river to the Mio Dam.

The wind was blowing hard and there were white caps on the lake so the boys took their ponchos and made sails and they coasted across to the dam.

They had to portage around the dam and then to McKinley Bridge, down stream. The pulled in at this bridge and met Mr. Workman.

They packed their gear into the bus and placed the canoes on the carrier and were driven to Mr. Wood's farm to spend the next three days working. They cut the tops out of white pines because they were diseased. They also cut and trim-med the sides of the road wandering up

At night they listened to ghost stories around the campfire and studied the con-

Sunday proved to be a rainy day and though they started to work several times, the down pour was so heavy that they were not able to accomplish much outside. They had a good breakfast and about 1:30 Mr.

Wood invited all the boys in for a chicken dinner in the large farm house.

They had chicken, corn on the cob, fresh apple sauce with ginger bread and homemade ice cream which the Wood's had churned in their old-fashioned ice cream

After this king's feast, the boys went back to the bunk house and Mr. Workman told them stories of the Chippewa were assigned two to a tent.

They learned to help one another and to work well together. They were instructed in proper use of ax and how to work with it, with careful supervision.

After dinner they played football to practice for the refereed game on Sunday.

They ate three good meals a day with fresh milk and a balanced diet. They stresed camp cleanliness.

There were no complaints about doing dishes and chores. All pitched in and got the work done.

Although they had beautiful weather to do their work, it rained for the rest of the time while they were canoeing down the

They did not gripe about this. Eric Morton was Mr. Monte's right hand man and his brother. Steve Morton, kept everyone laughing no matter how wet it was or how miserable. He really kept their spirits up.

The distance traveled on this trip down the river was about 90 miles and they really roughed it.

Although they had bad weather, they had the satisfaction of beating the other team in football, 18-6.

The boys were counseled in learning how to develop leadership and given special attention; all took their responsibility and carried it out. One boy lost at a game and did dishes for four days straight without any complaints. It was a first canoe trip for some of the boys and it taught them how to care for themselves, to be independent, and although no one leaned on the other, they did help each other when needed.

No one got sick and they were proud of the fact that they had earned their camping trip by working.

The only mishap was caused by a bee stinging one of the leaders.

Closed lot parking solution temporary

Temporary steps toward easing downtown parking snags were taken last week by the Plymouth City Commission; but that's all they were emporary.

Someone once said that governnent can never be creative. But the temporary step suggested by Commissioner George Hudson showed signs of creativity.

The snags in the central parking lot (behind Kresge's) have been caused by all day parkers. Customers, on busy shopping days, have been forced to park elsewhere in the City's hodge-podge of parking lots.

Employees fill the lot early in the morning. As many as 90 cars have been counted in the lot before 9 a.m. Employers report only moderate success in getting employees to park in other lots.

Hudson's suggestion: Close the lot from 7 to 9 a.m. when employees fill it up. The idea caught the fancy of some Commissioners, at least as a quick way of finding out if there is enough room for downtown Plymouth's almost 1,000 strong work-force.

The lot would be ostensibly closed for cleaning. Work-bound employees would be forced to park in other lots, most of them within one or two blocks walking distance. Employees will be disadvantaged to some extent by not being able to park at the back door of their work.

The closing of the lot will be tried on a temporary basis, mostly to see if there is room for the cars elsewhere. Maps with available lots will be passed out to all employees affected, indicating where to park.

Commissioner James McKeon didn't like the idea, and apparently felt

There are, however, special con-

the matter could be handled in a more business-like manner. "We're better than that," he commented.

He probably meant that a survey by the City's management of all available parking, and the number of parkers would bring the same results, but would take longer.

But then that would have been uncreative, and government has so little chance for this kind of maneuver.

Despite Hudson's coup d' etat, something more than a shuffling of downtown parkers is needed:

(1) The City should undertake a study of parking revenue surces. Most municipalities reach a point where downtown parking must be paid for by the shopper and the worker. Shopping center parking is paid for by the center organization, and the merchants involved. There is no such thing as free parking.

(2.) The idea of a gate and a parking ticket is sound. If the merchants so wish, they can reimburse the shopper; many other merchants in other cities have done it.

(3.)) Inequities have existed for some time in downtown parking, and they should be considered. A handful of merchants have provided parking on their own for their employees and their customers; in addition they have contributed to the central parking lot.

(4.) The idea of a ramp for the central lot, and more parking lots should not be considered until a revenue source has been determined, and put into effect.

(5.) Finally, a current survey of parking and parkers should be undertaken under the auspices of the City government.

America's preoccupation with sophisticated nuances of public relations becomes agonizingly apparent when one opens the mail in a newspaper

There are "news releases," good and bad, from every conceivable occupational segment - all more or less competently aimed at improving that wispy, intangible wraith-like thing called "image."

They come from such diverse groups as religious institutions and the distilled spirits industry, doctors, lawyers and dentists and labor organizations.

From booze to baptism, professional image polishing to pipe wrenches, they all seek one thing:

Free publicity.

It is particularly enlightening to observe a given group's reaction when, for one reason or another, they have received what may be construed as "bad press."

Here is a current case in point.

For those of you who have been on group tours of Siberia during the past week or two, let us say - for the sake of background - that Wayne County Sheriff Peter L. Buback has been having his share of minor

If the sheriff himself has suffered no loss of prestige, the atmosphere surrounding the department as a whole has been doing a bit less than coming up roses, and sunshine and flowers and stuff like that.

It has almost been downright messy.

Now, given a nasty situation, what better way to shine up the ol' image than with overtones of things sacred? The recipe follows:

Take a happy priest in a grim jail room. Add transparent paper, "stained glass" windows, carpeting and an altar. Mix well with sermons, hymns, masses and The Salvation Army. When well done, frost with the sheriff and his wife.

Presto! The ecumenical glitter and eclesiastical dazzle of the resulting press release may well knock your eyes out.

very happy man with his 'new' chapel in the Wayne County Jail.

"Fr. Paul J. Hickey," the release begins, "is a

"Each Sunday for years the priest . . . performed the ritual in a grim room at the jail."

In contrast, however, to the former grimness of the jail's old facilities, the news story paints this angelic picture:

"... The chapel has been completely renovated. Transparent paper 'stained glass' windows were pasted on the panes. Interested groups . . . donated carpeting and an imposing altar. The room," the release concludes triumphantly, "now looks church-

Not only that, the whole darned jail must seem church-like, since the news story points out:

"The inmates hear sermons and religious songs seven days and seven nights a week, mostly from jail corridors. The Salvation Army is among the many groups offering spiritual programs."

And the whole thing is wrapped up in a poignant final paragraph which includes a burst of eloquence from the sheriff himself.

"Sheriff Peter L. Buback and his wife found three old fruit crates being used for an altar in the Chapel of the Wayne County Jail when Mr. Buback first became sheriff. Mr. and Mrs. Buback and their friends have been working for several months to create this new chapel. 'A handsome chapel, complete with pews, now offers an appealing and church-like place for County Jail prisoners to worship and attend Mass, said the Sheriff."

I'm overwhelmed.

How refreshing it is to learn that the department is vitally concerned with the spiritual welfare of prisoners, if not staff members.

And how pleasant to learn that the orange crates have given way to more appropriate spiritual fur-

Fix-up activities in the Wayne County Sheriff's Department apparently extend well beyond the temporal realm of traffic violations.

Shall we pray?

PLYMOUTH STATE HOME is actively seeking more volunteers for their programs, which are due to expand a great deal in the next few months. The Plymouth State Home Auxiliary is staffed by many Plymouthites. Left to right, the officers are: Mrs. Eugene Niles, 399 Pacific, Secretary; Mrs. Edmund Meredith, 12141 Amherst, Treasurer; Mrs. Henry Breneman, 48300 Gyde Rd and Mrs. John McIlhargie, 550 Jener, Moderator. The Plymouth Chamber of Commerce is planning a series of advertisements and newspaper releases to explain the role of the Chamber in the community.

Chamber President Wendell Lent said that the community is not aware of the tremendous amount of civic programs the Chamber conducts.

The releases will discuss community living, labor, laws and regulations, the economic character of the Plymouth Community, education, transportation, housing, retail shopping, financial data, population studies and recreational opportunities.

members of the Chamber serve on committees, including urban renewal, economic development, education, finance, legislation, public relations and retail business.

The Chamber works with civic organizations and service clubs. They also participate in Symphony, Junicr Chamber of Commerce

Your Chamber In Action

The 171 members of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce wish to welcome 37 new business firms and professional men who have become recent members.

Chamber membership represents a concerted effort to maintain the uniqueness and individuality of the Plymouth Community.

During the coming weeks information vital to the community will appear in the newspapers. Your Chamber of Commerce in action will discuss such matters as community living, economic character, education in the Plymouth Community School District, financial data, housing, labor, laws and regulations, population and projected population, postal receipts for the area, professional personnel, raw materials, recreation in general, retail shopping, utilities, and truck and transportation lines.

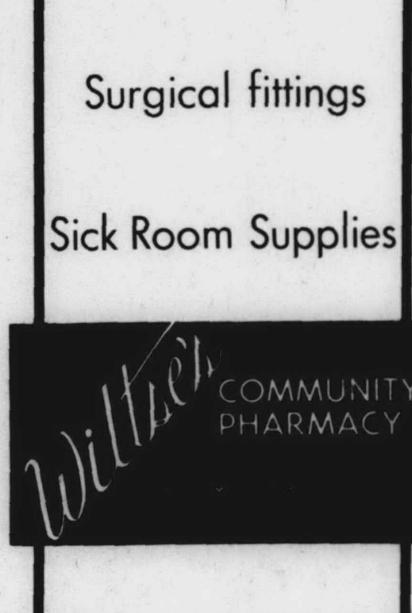

The Chamber is designed for everyone in order to foster good business practices and community programs.

The Board of Directors wish to thank everyone who has participated in the affairs of the Chamber, and, we certainly welcome new members.

There's nothing like a new perspective to change your attitude toward life.

When Junior is bored, he simply stands on his head for a new slant at things. The floor flips to the ceiling, with tables and chairs hanging from it, and people walk upside-down. At least that's the way it looks to him.

It is a good idea to gain a different perspective - to step back and get a new slant on things around you. But you don't have to stand on your head to do it.

Instead identify yourself with a church. Take your family and go regularly to worship. You will find a new perspective. Genuine values will keep their importance; unimportant things will diminish.

Today's life will be happier; tomorrow's full of hope. Nothing is upside-down, but everything claims its rightful place when you view life with the faith of a Christian.

ating to the building and site sinking fund; that is, transfer tax power from the operation of the schools to the building fund millages. Mrs. Esther Hulsing asked if the Board could afford it. Fischer replied: "Not in my view. It's dangerous in view of the requirements for next year. I would prefer to stick with the basic plan."

"That doesn't give us a multi-purpose room," Jenkins said.

"Nope," Fischer replied. Melvin Blunk, Superintendent in charge of school business, felt the shuffle would mean the Board couldn't live within its present budget. Jenkins continued his push for funds for the multi-purpose room: "It's not where the $100,000 goes as far as I'm concerned, four classrooms could go. You just don't build a house without a kitchen." Continuing.

"THE AREA is fast-growing and I don't think it should be penalized because it's fastgrowing."

Mrs. Hulsing noted that other schools had gone through it in Plymouth.

"I don't like it either. I'm not happy we're not building a complete building," she said,

"There are means available to us," Jenkins replied. "There is no opportunity for us on elementary school No. 7 in time for fall, 1966, beyond tonight. I'm sorry about this; there are ways open to us; then all of a sudden we should get so concerned about plans."

"I don't know what you mean about all of a sudden," Fischer said. "I've been on the school board for five years, and we've been planning all along. The community school district can go down hill real fast if we don't have the confidence of the people. I'm interested in keeping that confidence.

Fischer then said he was open to board action; Robert Soth commented: "I'm happy with the way it's presented here, Gerry."

"I see no reason to jockey figures," was Carl Schultheiss's comment. At this point Jenkins moved a .9 mill shuffle from operating to the operating to the building and site fund. His motion died for a lack of a second.

"Is the president allowed to make a motion?" Fischer asked, indicating some displeasure. He was told "no" by Russell Isbister.

"What do you want me to move, Gerry?", Soth asked. The Board acted upon the 26.95 millage, agreed to move building funds alloted to boiler rehabilitation to operating, and agreed to re-open the study of finances after bids on the present projects are in, and enrollments are determ-

The Board discussed ways of raising funds for the multi-purpose room, including a .25 shuffle of millage, and installment payment on school sites. The Board reviewed tax limitations open to them, which ranged from a .35 decrease to a raise up to 31.5

Budgets were examined closely, and building projects, their priority as yet not established, were gone over. They include: Elementary school No. 8 ($615,000), six new rooms at the high school ($180,000), Allen kindergarten ($29,730), Gallimore addition ($135,000)) and Bird ($132,-

OTHER financial matters considered:

The extremely high construction market, which, for example, pushed the cost of the multi-purpose room under dscussion from $90,-000 to $115,000 in three months. Costs are up in some case 35% from a year and a half ago.

Fall Festival

(Continued from Page 1) Club, the pet show will attract every conceivable type of pet. And, after the last pancake has been eaten, Kellogg Park will echo to the sound of the caller as the people enjoy an old fashioned square dance beginning at 8 p.m.

To take care of the appetites created by square dancing, the Junior Chamber of Commerce will operate a chuck wagon featuring ¼ lb. charcoal broiled hamburgers.

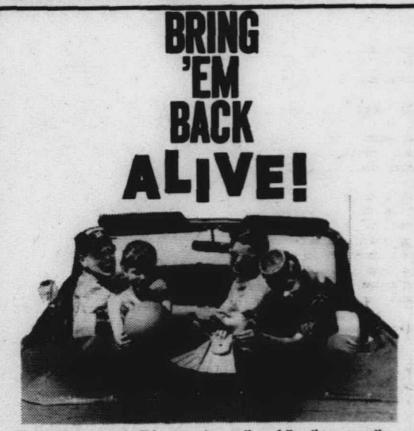

KNOWN IN the Plymouth Community as the "Dynamic JayCees," this organization has received national recognition for their aggressive contributions to the community.

In addition to the chuck wagon, the JayCees will also serve a charcoal broiled rib dinner starting at 7:30 p.m. This will be a pre-sale affair and limited to 200. Members of the JayCees should be contacted for tickets.

Opening Thursday evening, Sept. 9, and running through Sunday, Sept. 12, this year's festival will include many unusual and interesting activities. Among these will be an "Old Fashioned Garden" Show put on by the Plymouth Branch of the National Farm & Garden Club.

Featuring a wide array of floral arrangements, the show will be held in the Leo Calhoun Ford Agency in Plymouth. A one-day affair, the show will be open Sun-day, Sept. 12 from 12 noon to Kohut has spent several weeks gathering equipment for the new shop which will way from Circuit Court to also include a section for sophomores and juniors, called power mechanics.

All the auto dealers in the area have agreed to donate engines for the shop; they will have both live and dead engines to use. Kohut indicated he needed old motors, starters, generators, lawn mowers - anything to work with in his class.

The beginning class in auto mechanics will involve funamentals and reading specifications; the more advance class will work with live engines a great deal.

Kohut's business-like approach will make the class valuable, but not too easy for the student. Kohut indicates he has no intention of making the course a loaftime class.

Other additions to the shop included new weling facilities for Keith Baughman's welding classes, an electronics room where several thousands of dollars have been spent for new equipment, and two new drawing rooms. The machine and wood shops remain in the High School an-

LEECHES FOR SALE

At one time, you could buy jars of leeches at most pharmacies. That was in the days when bleeding was considered a cure for many ailments. And leeches are good bloodletters! How lucky we are to be living in this age of modern medications, with effective-and pleasant-treatments for infections and other illnesses. Remember, reliable medications are important to you-they may mean the difference between pain and comfort . . . between life and death. So, when you are ill, see your physician first. Then come to us for the medicines he prescribes.
