It was presented at the victory dinner meeting at Ralph Lorenz's Mayflower Meeting House last Thursday night by last year's chairman, Charles Bruce. The bird is an annual prize for the chairman of the PCF, with each adding his own part. Bruce added the egg on the bottom; he is president of the Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Company. ## Commission delays action on Finlan apartment project

No action followed a lengthy hearing that lasted nearly two hours in Plymouth's City Hall Monday evening on a proposed amendment to City Ordinance No. 182, the zoning

City commissioners tabled the matter after a group of citizens protested the pro-posal of Plymouth develop-er Patrick J. Finlan to build a luxury type, five-story apartment building on the east side of S. Main St. two lots south of the Food Fair Supermarket.

The amendment would have permitted Finlan to build the high rise apartment structure, by reducing the required square footage of land per unit from 3,000 to 1,500. In addition, city fathers

McEwen views his job and area's future

John D. McEwen at 58 is the most important man in The Plymouth Community. His appointment last spring as Plymouth Township's supervisor capped not one, but two careers in government.

As the Township's chief executive, he rides the crest of a gigantic building boom that is sure to engulf the Township's almost 16 square miles of land with new homes, new businesses and new in-

Here, in an interview with the Plymouth Mail, Mc-Ewen tells why he took the job, what hopes he holds for himself and the Township, and for The Plymouth Community.

MAIL: How do you assess your first six months or so in office?

McEWEN: It's the most challenging position I've ever held. Let me elaborate. In attempting to run and manage the Township in which I have made my home, I want to keep it in a livable condition so I can enjoy the rest of my life here. MAIL: What else?

McEWEN: I guess you want to know why I took the position. Ten years ago when I first came out here I had no intention of becoming involved in local politics. I had purchased a home for retirement purposes. In the course of these years through the unco-operativeness of the adjacent municipality, I became mayor of the City of Plymouth Heights, and have been for the past six years.

To date I have had no complaints relative to the management of that office. No other mayor can make that statement.

Subsequent to the death of Township Clerk Fred Miller I was asked to fill that vacancy. I had retired from another position with the County of Wayne as supervisor of records and records reproduction. I took the office of Township clerk under Supervisor Roy Lindsay. I was appointed to fill out his term.

MAIL: How do you feel about being supervisor? McEWEN: Needless to say I have a huge pair of shoes to fill in attempting to manage and administer the functions of Township government as well as my predecessor did.

MAIL: Are you going to run at the next election? McEWEN: I'm not ready for that. My intent now is to definitely watch the purse strings of the Town-

MAIL: What do you foresee ahead for the Township in the next few months?

McEWEN: Well. I have made a list here. Our most pressing problem now, and in the immediate future is the completion of sewer and water projects, enforcement of zoning laws and other ordinances, and gravel roads that existed prior to our subdivision ordinances. Some action must be taken to upgrade those subdivisions that still have gravel roads and no sidewalks. Sidewalks are an item by themselves.

Also, one of my desires is to secure civil service and retirement for those loyal and faithful employees who have been with the Township so many years. I'm quite amazed that we are able to operate a Township this size for the amount we are expending this year — about $199,000, operating MAIL: Have you made any changes since you took over from Roy Lindsay?

McEWEN: No, I have not made any, inasmuch as am following and continuing Mr. Lindsay's term in office. I have not had sufficient evidences to rate any MAIL: Among the problems facing the Township, you failed to mention police protection.

McEWEN: I'll mention it if you want me to. I have visited two homeowners meetings just this week, and at each one this problem was thoroughly discussed. Since I've been supervisor I have not had one person approach me on additional police protection.

At each of the meetings I left with the impression that those present felt we were getting adequate service from the Wayne County Sheriff's and the Michigan State Police.

MAIL: You said you were mayor of the so-called several years as an assistant Plymouth Heights. Where does that stand? McEWEN: The Plymouth Heights charter currently is in the office of the governor awaiting his approval, and or corrections, prior to its submission to the voters. MAIL: When will it be voted on? McEWEN: I can't say. Sometime next year -Monday, November 22, A March, April or May.

would have had to amend the amendment from 1,500 square feet per unit down to 1,300 to The citizens who appeared at the hearing didn't express any widespread opposition to rezoning the land from Commercial (C-2) to Professional-Residential (PR-2), but they did object to construction of a five-story building at the "I CAN'T see a five-story structure being compatible with the present buildings," Clarence E. ## Twp. sets hearing on 701 plan

(Continued from Page 1) Public hearings on Plymouth Township's new 701 federally-aided master plan will be held Saturday, Dec. 4, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m., at the Township Hall.

The hearings were set at a special meeting of the planning commission Monday night. Township supervisor John McEwen said Tuesday that the planners had completed the plan.

"This is the only hearing," McEwen said. "We hope that's going to do it. We're not going to do it in sections because we don't think we have to. The plan does not land use.'

The setting of the hearing climaxes two years of extensive study by the Township planning commission, under the direction of their professional planning consultant W. C. Johnson.

A tangible step in the fight for awareness

The Plymouth Ministerial Association last week gave $50 to the Plymouth Assembly for Equal Opportunity to help begin a scholarship fund for Negro college students.

The Assembly will sponsor the fund, and administer it through the scholarship office at Schoolcraft Community College.

The scholarship will be granted to Negroes from the Detroit metropolitan area on the basis of financial need. It is estimated that about $1000 is needed to get the fund going, $500 a year for one student, who will attend Schoolcraft, a two-year institution.

Up until now, the Assembly's activity's have been limited to informative programs and a once-a-year drive for signatures on their open housing covenant.

Now the group has taken a tangible step in their fight to make Plymouth, an all-white suburb, aware of the problems of minority races, specifically the Negro.

And the Ministerial Association has felt the fund worthy of the support of its members, which include the First United Presbyterian Church, Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, the Methodist Church, St. John's Episcopal Church, Assembly of God, First Baptist Church, Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Epiphany, The Salvation Army and Lutheran Church of the Risen Christ.

The Assembly has posed the question: Are the members of one community, like Plymouth, responsible for members of another, like Detroit's Inner-City. The Assembly membership has answered the question 'yes', several times in the face of severe criticism.

It is to this responsibility that they have dedicated the scholarship fund for a deprived Negro student.

And it is to the credit of both the Ministerial Association and the Assembly for Equal Opportunity that this has been undertaken. The fund should indicate that Plymouth's doors are open, not only to hear the Negro problem but to help solve it.

The Assembly's goal has been to make any Negro feel welcome in The Plymouth Community. The scholarship fund, supported by Plymouth people, is a concrete move toward that objective.

Whatever steps are taken on the problems of the Negro, it is important that Plymouth take them logically, openly, and without fear or hate.

It is a national problem that has been taken to the streets and back alleys in other communities. That should not and cannot happen here. And with the work of the Ministerial Association, and the Plymouth Assembly for Equal Opportunity, together with the local governmentsupported Plymouth Human Relations Commission, it won't.

The Bilgrim Hlymouth

Some personal discomfiture has arisen lately each time one of those messages ballyhooing the worth ofhigher education-which is to say college-has made itself apparent in print or over the air.

It would seem that as a nation we are reducing education to its lowest possible level:

And here in Plymouth we are as college conscious as any gathering of people. Attend college and graduate, the litany goes, and you will earn many thousands of dollars more than the jerk who does not. Don't attend college and you are in

Respectable girls will have little to do with you. Respectable people in respectable circles will Respectable personnel officers in respectable corporations will not talk to you. No tickee, no shirtee.

Which arguments, you will pardon the crudity, I consider to be a large crock.

By way of explanation, this particular outpouring of personal venom was prompted by a couple of readings done in the past few weeks.

One was a book produced by a certain John Keats and titled, "The Sheepskin Psychosis."

Keats, who is not the poet of the same name, has personally written other books castigating subdivision housing, the automobile industry, public education and other things. He is a Vance Packardish kind of social

In his concluding chapter, Keats refers to thoughts voiced, diversively enough, by Cardinal Newman and Stephen Leacock: "College is the people who attend

"The Cardinal said that if he had to choose between living in a dormitory or attending classes as a means of acquiring an education, he would choose the dormitory. Mr Leacock said if he were to found a university, he would first found a smoking room. As funds became available, he said, he would add a library, a dining hall, a dormitory. Were any funds remaining, he might consider hiring a professor.

. . . The most poignant lessons would seem to be those one learns in youth from one's contemporaries, and at college these are learned in the dining halls, in intellectual argument in a dormitory room, in all the places young men and women meet on and around the campus; . .

"In any event, it is difficult to say that, apart from bringing people together for the purposes of intellectual discourse, a college does anything else that is uniquely valuable.

To be sure, a college provides courses of instruction. But so does a night school. It has a library. But so does any major city. It provides an opportunity for a people to learn to live together. So does a roominghouse. It gives youngsters an opportunity to look after themselves. But so does a hobo jungle. College may indeed be a place offering the most convenient and maximum opportunities in all these regards, but it is not the only place in which life's basic lessons may be learned or information acquired. It is unique only in its aspect as a contentious forum."

Keats cites as examples several students who wearied of the patent pedanticism of campus life and

Reading them over rang a bell. When I was thigh deep in Michigan State University's journalism school, I bumped into an instructor who took active issue with my course selections. "My God," he said, "you don't want to take NOTE: It has never before classical Greek and Roman History.

"Why," he inquired, "are you signing up for so much psychology when it's not required? "Forget the literature courses," he advised. You've taken enough to fulfill the requirements."

So one summer I decided I didn't need to learn to set foundry type at a university. And the break was made before I took courses in History of Journalism and How-to-Write-an-Editorial.

"Look," the instructor told me in some consterna-"You can't leave now. You gotta get that ol' meal ticket.' And the thought arose: How terribly perverse our outlook has become when education is nothing more than a "meal ticket."

I hope it's not subversive to say these things. I would deter no one from formal education if it's of personal intellectual or philosophical value to them.

But I would recommend a reading of Keats's book to all. Particularly his parting words: . . Heretical as it may now seem, candor demands that we should acquaint ourselves and our children with the fact that going to college is not the only path to a useful, happy life. Using the youngsters' own language, we might tell them this:

"College isn't all that great. It's great, yes, but not too great. It is mainly just teachers who think college is red, white and blue, five trading stamps, and a partridge in a pear tree.

and a partridge in a pear tree.
"Actually, there are about fifty other ways to make the scene, if you want to think about them. But you know something? It takes talent and guts to make the scene in a really great way.

"If you don't have them, you'll never make it big matter how many colleges you go to. "If you do have them, then you'll make it whether you go to college or not.

What PCF stands for

At the victory dinner held by the Plymouth Community Fund last Thursday evening at the Mayflower Meeting House, division chairmen of the annual drive reported impressive gains in virtually all areas of the campaign.

Their accounting was greeted warmly by the crowd present at the dinner-and it should have been.

Government and business leaders from throughout the community should take a great deal of pride in the Plymouth Community Fund and what it signifies.

For the import of the annual effort goes further than mere acquisition of funds for charitable purposes. PCF is symbolic of our community and what it stands for.

United Fund officials have a large map of Wayne County, according to Community Fund President Frank Palmer. And on that map every community is blacked out to show that it has become a part of UF - every community, that is, except Plymouth which remains a small, white, standout spot. There are people, Palmer said, who want in the worst way to see politan area effort, to no longer retain its autonomy in the yearly torch

Two robberies were reported this week by Plymouth City police.

Several of the items were returned to the owner's father at 483 Ann St. Monday. The second robbery happened sometime over the weekend at a closed service station at 231 Plymouth Rd. A total of 17 tires and four batteries were taken, valued

The Sporting Life Will cover the Rose Bowl?

Doug Johnson

The second year of the Plymouth Community Junior Basketball League began Saturday. Parents, youngsters, and league officials gathered at Junior High West to register.

The whole thing is masterminded by a man who Chamber of Commercewould-just as soon not see his name in print.

He's John VanWagoner, who saw the League get off the ground last year. John is a salesman who devotes much of his energy to his job. He still finds time on Saturday to administrate the Junior Basketball League.

The idea of the league is to make basketball re- istic. We have a two-time All spectable in Plymouth. The system will turn over to head basketball coach Dick Bearup a few youngsters who at least know how to tie their gym shoes.

Another junior league program also began practice this week and that's the Junior Hockey Association. These rough and tumble kids woke up in the wee small hours of the morning a few days ago and traveled many miles to Toledo to practice.

League president Jim McKindles asked me if I would come over in the morning and take a picture. "I've got a friend who will wake you up about

5. We leave at 5:30," Jim said. I'm afraid my answer wasn't very coherent because I was mumbling to myself on the floor.

Ask Dave Wiley, the boss around here. I have never been to work at 5:30 in the morning, or 6:30, or 7:30, or even very often 8:30. I usually show up between 9:30 and 10, and Dave always is very nice: "Good afternoon," he says, and never cracks a smile. MacKindles and his icemen need ice time closer to home, anyone knowing of any is asked to call Mac-

Kindles. Please call; anybody who would get up at 5 a.m. to play anything should be given a helping hand.

Practice for most winter sports has begun, in the past few days, or will very soon. Two things to watch for.

One, the PHS basketball team will have a surprise or two up its collective sleeve.

Secondly, they have some great games lined up, including the opener against Walled Lake Dec. 3, there. The next night, Saturday, the team hosts Ford-

Normally extra games have come on Tuesday Cairo, Egypt, saw them scurnights. The Rocks play three Friday-Saturday com- rying around town to find tenbinations this year.

Recently I traveled to Michigan State University to see the footballers walk all over poor Northwestern. It was Homecoming for all the misty-eyed alumni, myself included, with openhouse and cider and donuts all over East Lansing.

They have a great team, and once in a while I mention it around Plymouth, which is lousy with U of M misty-eyed alumni. Usually the topic turns to something else, like "MSU sure does have a beautiful

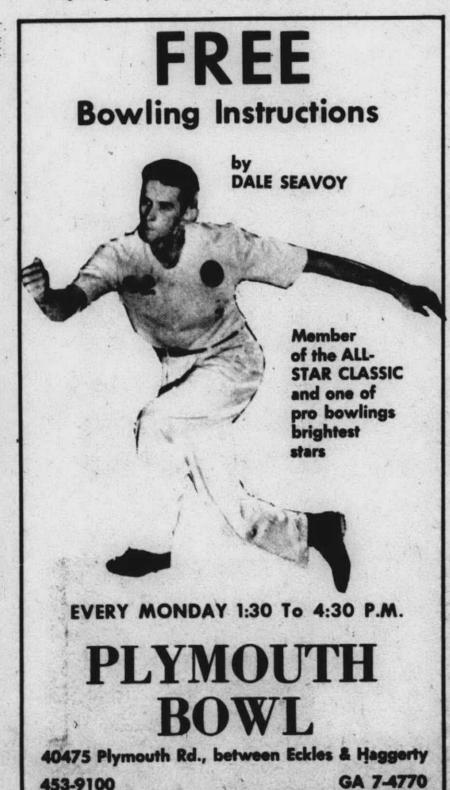

. It sure does. And it's covered with roses, with a capital R for Rose Bowl.

It must bother our publisher Russell Strickland, who is an old Blue graduate.

Myself, Dave Wiley, our woman's editor, Mary Jane Minahan, and our advertising manager, Jim Miller, all went to Michigan State. I have submitted a request to Mr. Strickland to be allowed to cover the Rose Bowl in person this New Year's Day, at the Mail's expense.

I haven't received an answer, but expect one any Anybody need a news and sports editor?

'We're optimistic' - Strack

Dave Strack goes into this year as the University of Michigan's head basketball coach with an optimistic out-

That's what he told the s p o n sored Businessman's Forum last week.

Strack spoke about his team for this year, and the summer he spent touring with last year's team in Middle Asia.

"We go into the year optim-American in Cazzie Russell. There is nothing I can say about this young man. He's the hardest working player we've got. Cazzie is better, than ever this year; he makes my day."

STRACK said his great center of last year, Bill Buntin, will be replaced by Greg Dill. The replacement, he feels, will leave them a little weak on the backboards.

Also expected to help lead the team is Oliver Darden. Michigan State is picked by Strack as the "surprise

'Minnesota is strong, and Ohio State will be trying to return to power. But we plan on defending our title. We only hope that Bump Eliot, football coach, has used up of our bad luck," he said.

Strack also outlined his trip with his team to Europe, Africa and Asia, this

"It was a tribute to our school and our basketball team. Each of us benefited a great deal," Strack noted.

He said his team was accepted extremely well, and was also fairly famous in the countries they visited.

THEY WENT, he said, as good-will ambassadors, not expecting to play much basketball. Their first stop in nis shoes for a size 13 foot in a country where the biggest is often size nine.

International rules were very different, and caused some hardship on their playing ability.

Strack's talk was casual; he spoke with no notes, and filled his speech with many anecdotes about their trip abroad, including the game in which they played a Greek team that had a seven foot 2:31.

allow this group to have a school bus, therefore it is necessary to charter a bus from a private concern. Coaches for these age groups are: Hal Shelley, Bill

fire Township aids huge dairy rail company

According to company officials, it is a part of Evans' program to expand its services to railroads and shippers,

Plymouth Township firemen were among men from several departments called to fight a fire at the Farm Crest Dairy on Six Mile Rd. late last Tuesday.

The famous barn at 42270 Six Mile Road was completely destroyed by a sudden fire, but the dairy store was saved.

Plymouth Township firemen used their tanker equipment to haul water for the blaze. A Wayne County Sheriff's deputy at the scene said as many as ten tankers stood by at one point. Four Sheriff's cars answered the call to help with the spectators who gathered in droves to watch the landmark burn.

About 100 Guernsey cows were removed from the barn quickly even before the first of the firemen had arrived. A LEADER in the railroad damage-prevention industry since 1915, Evans branched out into the car-building field last year and this year is entering the freight car leasing business with the acquisition of the United States Railway Equipment Company, a major Chicago-based railcar leasing company.

Firemen and scores of other workers stayed on the scene well after the fire was under control, working with powershovels to clear away huge piles of smoldering hay.

According to a story in the Northville fire chief Herman Hartner established spontaneous combustion in the hay loft as the cause.

The fire engulfed and destroyed the entire barn area and extensive millting equipment.

However, Friday, officials at the Wayne County Sheriff's here of also reported extensive questioning of two suspects, but resport "no evidence at this time."

WHY SETTLE FOR LESS? The fireman and the PTO joined forces and had a Halloween party Saturday evening at the Town Hall in Salem for child ren and parents. Over 150 children attended and almost that many parents. Games were played and costume prizes were awarded. Fire engine rides were given the children. The following credits are due these people: the firemen of Salem, who donated the doughnuts and cider and the rides, Mr. Carl York, president of the PTO in Salem School who was the M.C., Mr. and Mrs. Dave Fulkerson who donated the prizes, Mrs. Carl York, head of the Brownies and Mrs. John Siterlet, head of the Junior Girl Scouts, who did the decorating in the hall.

Mrs. Frank Dolan of Chubb Rd. entertained at a Knick Knack party Wednesday evening. Present were Mrs. John Sprenger, Mrs. Edwin Earehart, Mrs. Roy Ley, Mrs. John Lazor, Mrs. Orlando Cougar, and Mrs. Dickinson and daughter, Claudia from New Hudson. Mrs. James Watson from South Lyon was the demonstrator.
