Commission delays action on Finlan apartment project

No action followed a lengthy hearing that lasted nearly two hours in Plymouth's City Hall Monday evening on a proposed amendment to City Ordinance No. 182, the zoning ordinance.

City commissioners tabled the matter after a group of citizens protested the pro-posal of Plymouth develop-er Patrick J. Finlan to build a luxury type, five-story apartment building on the east side of S. Main St. two lots south of the Food Fair Supermarket.

The amendment would have permitted Finlan to build the high rise apartment structure, by reducing the required square footage of land per unit from 3,000 to 1,500. In addition, city fathers

McEwen views his job and area's future

John D. McEwen at 58 is the most important man in The Plymouth Community. His appointment last spring as Plymouth Township's supervisor capped not one, but two careers in government.

As the Township's chief executive, he rides the crest of a gigantic building boom that is sure to engulf the Township's almost 16 square miles of land with new homes, new businesses and new in-

MAIL: How do you assess your first six months or so in office?

McEWEN: It's the most challenging position I've ever held. Let me elaborate. In attempting to run and manage the Township in which I have made my home, I want to keep it in a livable condition so I can enjoy the rest of my life here.

MAIL: What else?

McEWEN: I guess you want to know why I took the position. Ten years ago when I first came out here I had no intention of becoming involved in local politics. I had purchased a home for retirement purposes. In the course of these years through the unco-operativeness of the adjacent municipality, I became mayor of the City of Plymouth Heights, and have been for the past six years.

To date I have had no complaints relative to the management of that office. No other mayor can make that statement.

Subsequent to the death of Township Clerk Fred Miller I was asked to fill that vacancy. I had retired from another position with the County of Wayne as supervisor of records and records reproduction. I took the office of Township clerk under Supervisor Roy Lindsay. I was appointed to fill out his term.

MAIL: How do you feel about being supervisor? McEWEN: Needless to say I have a huge pair of shoes to fill in attempting to manage and administer Plymouth homes for dinner the functions of Township government as well as my predecessor did.

MAIL: What do you foresee ahead for the Township in the next few months?

McEWEN: Well. I have made a list here. Our most pressing problem now, and in the immediate future is the completion of sewer and water projects, enforcement of zoning laws and other ordinances, and gravel roads that existed prior to our subdivision ordinances. Some action must be taken to upgrade those subdivisions that still have gravel roads and no sidewalks. Sidewalks are an item by themselves.

Also, one of my desires is to secure civil service and retirement for those loyal and faithful employees who have been with the Township so many years. I'm quite amazed that we are able to operate a Township this size for the amount we are expending this year - about $199,000, operating

A new state law, Public Act 379, of Public Acts 1965, calls for granting the teachers the right to determine a bargaining agent. They will have the power to negotiate a contract for the teachers.

The board may stipulate that the PEA is the agent, or the PEA may ask for a ballot of the teachers to be conducted by the National Labor Re-

The other agent involved in the American Federation of Teachers, a teachers union that has risen to prominence in the last few months.

The matter should be setfled at the Nov. 22 meeting of the Board. Chairman of the employee relations committee of the Board, Carl Schultheiss, made the rereport, along with John M. Hoben ,immediate past president of the PEA, and regional MEA president.

A tangible step in the fight for awareness

The Plymouth Ministerial Association last week gave $50 to the Plymouth Assembly for Equal Opportunity to help begin a scholarship fund for Negro college students.

The Assembly will sponsor the fund, and administer it through the scholarship office at Schoolcraft Community College.

The scholarship will be granted to Negroes from the Detroit metropolitan area on the basis of financial need. It is estimated that about $1000 is needed to get the fund going, $500 a year for one student, who will attend Schoolcraft, a two-year institution.

Up until now, the Assembly's activity's have been limited to informative programs and a once-a-year drive for signatures on their open housing covenant.

Now the group has taken a tangible step in their fight to make Plymouth, an all-white suburb, aware of the problems of minority races, specifically the Negro.

And the Ministerial Association has felt the fund worthy of the support of its members, which include the First United Presbyterian Church, Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, the Methodist Church, St. John's Episcopal Church, Assembly of God, First Baptist Church, Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Epiphany, The Salvation Army and Lutheran Church of the Risen Christ.

The Assembly has posed the question: Are the members of one community, like Plymouth, responsible for members of another, like Detroit's Inner-City. The Assembly membership has answered the question 'yes', several times in the face of severe criticism.

It is to this responsibility that they have dedicated the scholarship fund for a deprived Negro student.

And it is to the credit of both the Ministerial Association and the Assembly for Equal Opportunity that this has been undertaken. The fund should indicate that Plymouth's doors are open, not only to hear the Negro problem but to help solve it.

The Assembly's goal has been to make any Negro feel welcome in The Plymouth Community. The scholarship fund, supported by Plymouth people, is a concrete move toward that objective.

Whatever steps are taken on the problems of the Negro, it is important that Plymouth take them logically, openly, and without fear or hate.

It is a national problem that has been taken to the streets and back alleys in other communities. That should not and cannot happen here. And with the work of the Ministerial Association, and the Plymouth Assembly for Equal Opportunity, together with the local governmentsupported Plymouth Human Relations Commission, it won't.

Some personal discomfiture has arisen lately each time one of those messages ballyhooing the worth ofhigher education-which is to say college-has made itself apparent in print or over the air.

It would seem that as a nation we are reducing education to its lowest possible level:

Money And here in Plymouth we are as college conscious as any gathering of people. Attend college and graduate, the litany goes, and you will earn many thousands of dollars more than the jerk who does not. Don't attend college and you are in

Respectable girls will have little to do with you. Respectable people in respectable circles will Respectable personnel officers in respectable corporations will not talk to you.

No tickee, no shirtee. Which arguments, you will pardon the crudity, I consider to be a large crock.

By way of explanation, this particular outpouring of personal venom was prompted by a couple of readings done in the past few weeks.

One was a book produced by a certain John Keats and titled, "The Sheepskin Psychosis."

Keats, who is not the poet of the same name, has personally written other books castigating subdivision housing, the automobile industry, public education and other things. He is a Vance Packardish kind of social

In his concluding chapter, Keats refers to thoughts voiced, diversively enough, by Cardinal Newman and Stephen Leacock: "College is the people who attend

"The Cardinal said that if he had to choose between living in a dormitory or attending classes as a means of acquiring an education, he would choose the dormitory. Mr Leacock said if he were to found a university, he would first found a smoking room. As funds became available, he said, he would add a library, a dining hall, a dormitory. Were any funds remaining, he might consider hiring a professor.

" . . . The most poignant lessons would seem to be those one learns in youth from one's contemporaries, and at college these are learned in the dining halls, in intellectual argument in a dormitory room, in all the places young men and women meet on and around the campus; .

"In any event, it is difficult to say that, apart from bringing people together for the purposes of intellectual discourse, a college does anything else that is uniquely valuable.

To be sure, a college provides courses of instruction. But so does a night school. It has a library. But so does any major city. It provides an opportunity for an people to learn to live together. So does a roominghouse. It gives youngsters an opportunity to look after themselves. But so does a hobo jungle. College may indeed be a place offering the most convenient and maximum opportunities in all these regards, but it is not the only place in which life's basic lessons may be learned or information acquired. It is unique only in its aspect as a contentious forum."

Keats cites as examples several students who wearied of the patent pedanticism of campus life and Reading them over rang a bell. When I was thigh deep in Michigan State University's journalism school, I bumped into an instructor who took active issue with my course selections. "My God," he said, "you don't want to take classical Greek and Roman History. "Why," he inquired, "are you signing up for so much psychology when it's not required?

"Forget the literature courses," he advised. You've taken enough to fulfill the requirements.' So one summer I decided I didn't need to learn to set foundry type at a university. And the break was made before I took courses in History of Journalism and How-to-Write-an-Editorial. "Look," the instructor told me in some consternation. "You can't leave now. You gotta get that ol"

And the thought arose: How terribly perverse our outlook has become when education is nothing more than a "meal ticket."

I hope it's not subversive to say these things. I would deter no one from formal education if it's of personal intellectual or philosophical value to them. But I would recommend a reading of Keats's book to all. Particularly his parting words:

"... Heretical as it may now seem, candor de-mands that we should acquaint ourselves and our children with the fact that going to college is not the only path to a useful, happy life. Using the youngsters' own language, we might tell them this:

"College isn't all that great. It's great, yes, but not too great. It is mainly just teachers who think college is red, white and blue, five trading stamps, and a partridge in a pear tree. Actually, there are about fifty other ways to make the scene, if you want to think about them. But you know something? It takes talent and guts

What PCF stands for

At the victory dinner held by the Plymouth Community Fund last Thursday evening at the Mayflower Meeting House, division chairmen of the annual drive reported impressive gains in virtually all areas of the campaign. Their accounting was greeted warmly by the crowd present at the dinner-and it should have been.

Government and business leaders from throughout the community should take a great deal of pride in the Plymouth Community Fund and what it signifies.

For the import of the annual effort goes further than mere acquisition of funds for charitable purposes.

PCF is symbolic of our community and what it stands for. United Fund officials have a large map of Wayne County, according to Community Fund President Frank Palmer. And on that map every community is blacked out to show that it has become a part of UF - every community, that is, except Plymouth which remains a small, white, stand-

There are people, Palmer said, who want in the worst way to see Plymouth absorbed into the metropolitan area effort, to no longer retain its autonomy in the yearly torch by satisfaction? Simply this: If you don't get all the hot water you want,

in a struggle to avoid being swallowed up in the faceless whole. Individually, that's what we're battling for.

That's what The Plymouth Community Fund symbolizes.

That's why we should offer thanks to those whose efforts did so much this year to create the pleasant aura of success.

Among those who deserve a grateful wave of The Plymouth Mail's red feather are the division chairmen: Terry West of National Bank of Detroit, James Doyle of Plymouth Community Schools, Bob Sincock of J. L. Hudson Realty Co., R. R. Barber, M. D., George Burrows of Crown-Zellerbach Container Division, and Mrs. Leona Schomberger of the residential division.

The Plymouth Community Fund officers and board should be recognized for long and hard work. And thanks should be said to the Plymouth Community Federal Credit Union, Detroit Bank and Trust, First Federal Savings of Detroit, The Michigan Bank and National Bank of Detroit for the part they played as sponsors.

The countless workers will never receive adequate thanks and neither will the man who spent so much time heading up the 1:65 Plymouth Community Fund drive. He is gentle John Kamego, the soft-spoken manager in this area for Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

He is, in larg? measure, responsible for the remarkably triumphant record of PCF this year. He is, in the words of a song, Mr.

student to attend Schoolcraft College. Rev. David Strang, paster of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Epiphany, gave a check for $50 to Thomas Healy, chairman of the assembly. Rev. Strang is treasurer of the Plymouth Ministerial Association, the first organization in the community to contribute to the fund; assembly members hope to raise about $1000. The scholarship will be open to any Negro in the Detroit area, and will be granted primarily on the basis of need. (See editorial,

The Sporting Life Will cover the Rose Bowl?

Doug Johnson

The second year of the Plymouth Community Junior Basketball League began Saturday. Parents, youngsters, and league officials gathered at Junior High West to register. The whole thing is masterminded by a man who would just as soon not see his name in print. He's John VanWagoner, who saw the League get off the ground last year. John is a salesman who devotes much of his energy to his job. He still finds time on Saturday to adminis-

Recently I traveled to Michigan State University to see the footballers walk all over poor Northwestern. It was Homecoming for all the misty-eyed alumni, myself included, with openhouse and cider and donuts all over East Lansing.

They have a great team, and once in a while I mention it around Plymouth, which is lousy with U of M misty-eyed alumni. Usually the topic turns to something else, like "MSU sure does have a beautiful

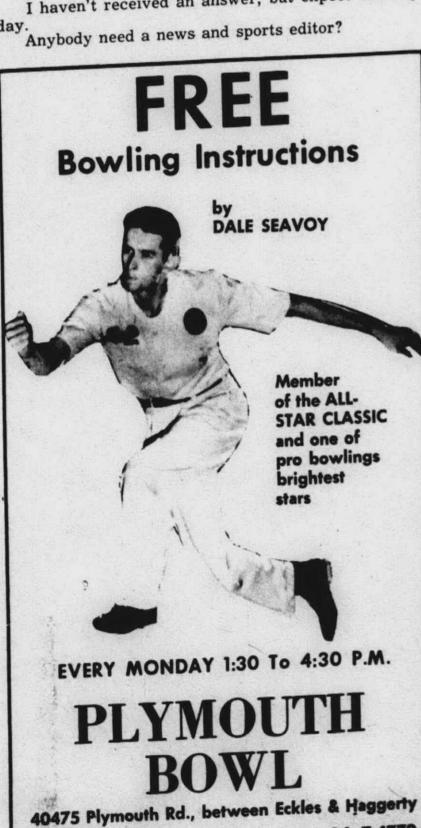

It sure does. And it's covered with roses, with a capital R for Rose Bowl.

Myself, Dave Wiley, our woman's editor, Mary Jane Minahan, and our advertising manager, Jim Miller, all went to Michigan State.

"Minnesota is strong, and Ohio State will be trying to return to power. But we plan on defending our title. We only hope that Bump Eliot, football coach, has used up

This week we join in remembering our valiant veterans. These our friends, neighbors and countless strangers gave of their very best that our way of life and our ideals might be preserved.

For many this meant the sacrifice of life itself, to their memory a special heartfelt remembrance. To the living, we honor your superb courage and heroism.

Both the living and the dead have given to us the finest of gifts. The gift of freedom.

I get a kick out of you says WMU coach

When Dale Livingston left for college at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, he never expected to be a gridiron hero.

He went to play tennis, and play in the band.

Instead, this fall, he has led the Western Broncos through an exciting and surprising season - all on his kicking talents, which lay relatively unnoticed while at PHS.

The hefty sophomore kicks extra points and field goals for the Broncos. October 30 he won a game for Western late in the fourth quarter against Marshall with a field goal, his third for the day. His 14-yard kick against a strong wind clinched the game for the Broncos.

LIVINGSTON, son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Livingston, 529 Jener, won a game against Toledo when he set the stadium on its ears with a 17-yard field goal with four seconds left in the game. Livingston, who came to ing has allowed Western to put together an unusually good record in a season that saw Doolittle with a major rebuilding chore.

He spends his time in practice kicking from all angles, and under all conditions. He told Jack Moss, Kalamazoo Gazette Sports Editor, that he didn't know if he would return to tennis. Last year he was a member of a championship team.

"I remember him as a big kid," said his high school tennis coach, Jim Doyle, now a PHS guidance counselor, last week. "But he had tremendous co-ordination, and was able to move very well."

Livingston apparently went to Western to play in the band, upon the urging of his father, who is a band instructor in Plymouth. But Livingston can't be seen at halftime. He's in the locker room listening to coach Doolittle, and warming up that surprising toe of his.

Howard Stuedeman, who led the Plymouth cross country team this season, was named most valuable player *team voting last week. Stuedeman ran in the state meet, and placed 23rd. He Plymouth then took over the ball, promptly got caught in the end zone when Don Fitzgerald blocked a punt, and then recovered it in the end zone.

That ended the Walled Lake scoring splurge for a few moments. Plymouth Dick Micol fumbled, Walled Lake recovered, and pushed deep into Rock territory.

"Maybe it's worth sacrificing money to keep it the way we want it," he said.

Commissioner James Jabara pointed out that colonial architecture often raises the cost of building, making it economically unfeasible.

"But what advantage do we expect to gain from this?" Dunlap asked.

DON'T ASK me," Mayor James Houk replied. "I didn't propose it."

Commissioner George Lawton pointed out that the property is presently zoned commercial. He noted that a service station or drive-in restaurant could be built there now with a consequent reduction in adjoining property values. When the apartments were first proposed, he said, he felt they were on a level with developments in Birmingham, Mici. and "not the two-story box apartments we've been used to."

Commissioner James Mc-Keon said he felt the height was not as objectionable as thought.

"Why can't we run the ladder truck down there and run them?" he asked.

The most vigorous opposition on the city's legislative body was voiced by Commissioner A. E. Vallier. He said the city had turned down one project because of lack of land under the terms of the ordinance and he saw no reason to make an exception in this case. And he objected to Commissioner Lawton said most of the commission had been in basic agreement when they met with the city's planning consultants and it up to 45 feet to show planning commission in a joint meeting on the matter.

"I wonder if we aren't perhaps being a little flippeople don't know what they're talking about," he said in reference to the planners. "It's their business to know what they're talking about." But Commissioner McKeon took another viewpoint.

"I would rather try to second guess the planners or the planning commission and give these people what they want or what they think they want than to arbitrarily decide on 1,300 or 1,500 square feet," he said.

Commissioner Vallier moved that the proposed amendment be denied, but it was superceded by one by Commissioner Hudson to table the matter until a meeting with the planning consultant could be arranged.

The tabling motion was passed with Commissioners Smith and Vallier voting no. The commission postponed

While Albee was writing "The American Dream," he received a commission from the Festival of Two Worlds for a short dramatic piece to be performed at the Festival's summer program in Spoleto, Italy.

Putting aside "The American Dream," Albee took some of the characters, put them out of dcors and wrote "The Sandbox."

The result of tryouts are as follows: Karen Upton as Mommy, Steve Ott playing Daddy, and Mary Arnold acting as Grandma.

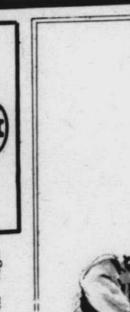

Mary Anne McKenzie takes the part of Mrs. Barker, and the role of musician will be taken by Ed Jones. Brian Donnelly will be the young man in both plays.

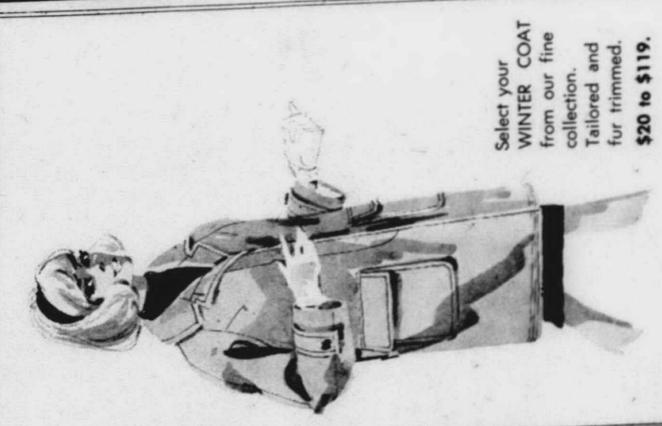

The plays are both surrealistic in nature and are seldom performed in high schools.

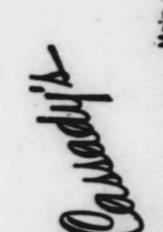

Some comments on "The A m e r i c a n Dream" are: "unique ... brilliant ... a comic nightmare, fantasy of the highest order." — "The New Yorker". "It is packed with untamed imagination, wild humor ... sheer creative talent." — "N. Y. Post."

Of his own play, Albee says, "I hope that it transcends the personal and the private, and has something to do with the anguish of us all."

Other plays by Edward Albee are: "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolfe?", "The Zoo Story", and "The Death of Bessie Smith."

dies Monday ctim of ain-car Salem Third crash

Wallace Struss, 14, of De- w troit, died Monday of injuries she received in a car-train accident in Salem on Oct. 31.

Two other people were killed in the crash.

Driver of the car, Paul N. Spario, 27, of Oak Park, and a passenger, James P. Morris, 13, of Detroit, were killed instantly.

Two other passengers in the car were Sturss and Thomas Goldberg, 13, of Detroit who was released from the hospital after having treatment.

Witnesses told officers that the car slowed down for a moment as it approached the stop sign and then onto the tracks. Shapiro's car went through a stop sign at a Salem Township railroad crossing and was struck broadside by a locemotive moving at 55 miles an hour. Shapiro's car was headed east on Six Mile Rd.

At the crossing there is no signal lights but there is a stop sign on both sides of the track.

Mrs. James Watson from South Lyon was the demonstrator. Refreshments were served by the hostess and daughter, Belinda The fireman and the PTO joined forces and had a Halloween party Saturday evening at the Town Hall in Salem for child ren and parents. Over 150 children attended and almost that many parents. Games were played and costume prizes were played and costume prizes were awarded. Fire engine rides were given the children. The following credits are due these people: the firemen of Salem, who donated the doughnuts and cider and the rides, Mr. Carl York, president of the PTO in Salem School who was the M.C., Mr. and Mrs. Dave Fulkerson who donated the prizes, Mrs. Carl York, head of the Brownies and Mrs. John Siterlet, head of the Junior Girl Scouts, who did the Hall. The car was dragged 84 feet along the northeast side of the tracks, then broke locse from the engine and was thrown a distance of 48 feet through the air off the northeast side of the track.

The car then rolled over, slid 94 feet, went through a farm fence, rolled over on its wheels and came to a stop. The locomotive traveled to a one-fourth mile beyond the point of impact.

Officers said the driver of the car of the car should the stop. way, said he was headed southeast on this track with his locomotive pulling only a caboose. Scarbrough said he sounded his whistle one fourth mile northwest of the Six Mile Road crossing.

Two residents said they heard the whistle as it was approaching the crossing. After one of the crew pointed out the car on the tracks Scarbrough applied the brakes; the train was sliding when it struck the left side of Shaniro's car
