NOT HURT: No one was hurt in a spectacular five-car accident last Wednesday night that drew a huge crowd of onlookers along Ann Arbor Trail near the Park. Charles Owen and his wife Edith of Brighton, were pulled from their car after it hit a walk light post and two parked cars, and flipped over. They were released from the hospital almost immediately. Owen hit the two cars above at a high rate of speed, police say. The cars belong to Francis Wall, of Plymouth, and John Jarvis of Allen Park. These two cars bumped, in chain reaction, two other cars, owned by Thomas Widmaier of Plymouth, and Howard Marburger of Plymouth. Owen was freed from the car by City of Plymouth firemen, who stood by in case spilled gasoline ignited. Police speculate that Owen hit the walk light post on the Main-Trail corner at a high rate of speed, then the two cars, and flipped, after losing control.

A charge of forged health certificates was leveled at the Mayflower Cab Company of Plymouth by City police this week.

The matter came before the City Commission Monday night, and they declined to hold a hearing on it. City manager Richard Blodgett, refusing to call the company by name, noted that "several drivers had falsified information on cab licenses", and had not had required physical examinations.

But Commissioner Arch Vallier, obviously angry, reported that the oridnance did not require any physical examination, just a test for contagious diseases.

"THERE is nothing in the ordinance that suggests a need for physical examinations. Let's live up to this as it reads. Also, we are supposed to inspect those vehicles and we are not doing it. I'd like to see us inspect them. You all know darn well they never have been inspected."

Commissioner George Lawton noted that he felt the City was outside of the ordinance. Police

School report well done; poses new challenges

Proof that the Plymouth Community shares common problems with every rapidly expanding suburb in the Detroit area can be found in the recent 40-page report from the Citizens School Facility Committee.

Appointed by the Plymouth Com-munity School District Board of Education, the Committee made an exhaustive study of Plymouth's needs.

Among their conclusions are: that the schools face a critical facilities problem over the next few years; that sites are needed to be purchased on a "land bank" plan; and that a second, complete high school should be started today if it is to be used by the fall of 1969, and within the summer if it is to be used by 1970.

The community owes a debt of gratitude to the committee, chaired by William Fronk, for their painstaking, thorough, and well documented report.

Fronk took the trouble to present the matter to the Board with slides and a talk. His presentation condensed the 40-page report, which he presented to the Board last Monday night, April 4.

Fronk also took the trouble to organize the report very well, and knowing how much work it took for his 13-man committee, went on to recommend staff be added to the administration to do such studies on a continuing basis.

Thus the report was more than tables of growth and projected home development. It contained some well thought out, brief recommendations, including closer relations between the Board, and the municipal planning bodies, namely the Plymouth Township planning commission.

Elementary schools will have to be built at a new rate, the report said, and the district faces a third junior high school-all within the next four years. By 1970, the report urges, we must have a second high school, a third junior high, and three new grade schools.

And, more money will be needed in additional bond issues as tax payers will be asked to assume a greater financial burden.

We applaud Fronk and his committee, and their work. And we would like to urge several steps to be taken before the end of the summer.

1. Appraise the immediate future, and if mobile classrooms, or rented facilities are needed, plan for them, in time. This fall, when the Farrand Elementary School opened it held slightly over 700 students. with a capacity set at 720. The current total at the end of March was 754, with a class of first graders in a storage room. At Bird school a similar problem developed and a teachers' lounge is used for a class.

Both the Farrand area and Bird are slated for new classrooms. But if last year was any indication, school construction can be late despite all efforts to speed it up. It wasn't until the second semester that the addition to Farrand opened last year, and took three classes out of a multi-purpose room.

Parents were back this fall to complain bitterly about the overcrowding, and asked for mobile classrooms to ease the load. Their demands came too late to be met. with the Board feeling the problem was not too critical. Now is the time to have all figures on some alternatives available, for action on a month's notice.

2. Establish, immediately, better, more formal communications between the schools and the area planning commissions, particularly the Township planning commission. Better communications between all planning authorities - both in the City, the Townships of Plymouth and Canton, and the School Board has long been urged by the Mail. Independence among planning groups, of which the School Board is certainly one, can not be profitable.

3. Make provisions for selecting sites more formalized, and farther in advance. For instance, Holiday Park developers south of Joy Rd. have announced their intention to build 533 homes. At the current rate of 1.18 school age children per new home, that means out of Holiday Park will come 630 students, many of which will go to a grade school.

Fred Greenspan made a similar declaration, and has fulfilled his promise. The result has been overcrowding for two years in the Lake Pointe school, with construction about six months behind. The lateness of that school's addition provided a lesson that can be applied elsewhere.

4. Consider strongly foregoing spending money to add to the high school, and start a new one. Even now a new one could split the estimated 1900 students that will be in grade 9-12 next year in half, between two buildings. And, when the second one is completed, many more students will be enrolled.

We feel the report was very independent of School Board thinking, and well done. Fronk told the Mail many months ago that he was organizing good research on the project, and that it would be extremely factual and thorough.

That it was, and the community has gotten, free of charge from conscientious citizens, a well done report.

Thrift, economy and meanness

with Yvonne Schmitz

With the last shred of Easter grass picked up off the carpet and the remaining eggs consumed in the form of egg salad, we have settled down once more to the regular routine of daily living at our house There were only six baskets lined up on the dining room table this year instead of the usual seven. Our eldest daughter had her Easter eggs on the sands of the Gulf of Mexico near Bradenton, Florida with her grandparents; so she really didn't mind too much not getting the usual chocolate bunnies and jelly beans. She managed to meet some "fine guys and girls" (it is no longer cool-the word is fine) who shared her enthusiasm for surfing and water skiing. So the entire ten days was spent soaking up sun and surf to her complete delight. "It is just like a paradise here," she wrote. Oh for the exuberance of a 17 year old.

Meanwhile back on the homefront, the other little members of the Schmidtz clan enjoyed their jelly beans and chocolate bunnies - with one exception. This one is a real little saver—a trait she definitely does not inherit from her mother. Her basket is still stuffed to overflowing with goodies and it isn't that she doesn't enjoy them. She just dearly loves to hoard things and it is the same with money. She can hold her allowance in her hot little hand longer than anyone in the entire house. Whenever anyone needs a loan (myself included) we always know exactly where to go. And this little miser is not yet 10 years

On the other hand, her little sister is just the opposite. The sun hadn't set on Easter Sunday when she announced that her basket was empty and was searching the house for other baskets to invade.

Somewhere between the two extremes lies an important virtue, which our two little ones will eventually learn-with good fortune. That virtue is thrift. Without it there can be little domestic security.

Phillis McGinley, in her Pulitzer Prize winning book, "Sixpense in Her Shoe," described thrift, econ-omy and meanness in the following manner:

"Economy saves pennies, trims corners, and has a tidy mind. On the household side, it prefers meat loaf to crown roast not because it is tastier but because it is cheaper. The poor may receive economy's handouts, but they will be relentlessly entered on a tax return. Meanness ruthlessly stints the table, lets others pay the check, and when it gives old coats to refugee committees, cuts off buttons and fur collars. Thrift is something else again. When thrift serves stew to the family to ease a budget, it sees to it that the dish is savory as filet mignon; and it delights to share with anyone who comes to the door."

"Or let me give a stricter example, one I have seen in operation."

"Meanness inherits a set of silverware and keeps it in the bank. Economy uses it only on important occasions, for fear of loss. Thrift sets the table with it every night for pure pleasure, but counts the butter spreaders before they are put away."

"Thrift saves for the future because the children must be educated and because one must not be a burden in old age; it has no miserliness. Thrift keeps the house painted and the roof in repair, puts shoe trees in shoes, but bakes a jar of cookies for neighborhood children. It is never stingy and never antlike. Thrift is a preserver rather than a hoarder and rejoices in hospitality."

The author's philosophy, I wholeheartedly endorse, particularly the "rejoices in hospitality" part.

How much more pleasure good fortune and prosperity afford us when we are willing to share them with others-whether it be a batch of brownies for a tired neighbor, a dinner for good friends, or a trip to Europe from the more affluent.

When thrift can be transformed into charity, kindness, or hospitality, it is truly a virtue.

Getting back to our own little hoarder. When she discovered that her big sister just returned from Florida had no Easter basket this year, she suddenly disappeared and returned seconds later with her most prized and biggest chocolate bunnie from her collection, to present to her sister with a smile. I would say that she had started on the road to learning the value of thrift.

I'd like to add my words of praise for the Plymmouth schools to those of Charles Bruce, president of Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Company, who wrote a letter to the editor last week commending the atmosphere of Bird school.

A couple of weeks ago I had an opportunity to observe some high school science classes, particularly chemistry. There is this crazy reoccurring notion that I get that someday I might like to teach chem-

Unless the ink on your diploma is still damp or you have high school age children, it's hard to realize the revolution that has been made in education since the time when you were rooting for good old Local High and decorating the gym for the Senior Prom.

I hadn't considered myself too far removed from that delightful era, that is until I paged through the current chemistry text that is being taught at Plymouth High. The material covered by our high schoolers was mostly reserved for graduate studies when I was doing my undergraduate work just five short years ago-science is advancing that rapidly.

No longer do students memorize a list of dry facts and figures as a process of learning but the emphasis is on the why and how of things. It's an entirely different, abstract approach where previously drawn conclusions do not always hold. One and one does not always equal two, it can equal "10" if you are dealing in the base "two" as a computer does.

Students and parents sometimes complain that they aren't learning anything because they can't recite the facts which we used to use as a measure

What they are learning now is how to think and how to rely on their own instincts for problem solving. This results in a person much better equipped to take part in the changing world of today.

An article I recently read in an alumni bulletin quoted Scientist J. Robert Oppenheimer on today's pace: "One thing that is new is the prevalence of newness, the changing scale and scope of change itself, so that the world alters as we walk in it, so that the years of a man's life measure not small growth or rearrangement or modification of what he learned in childhood, but a great upheaval."

Educators are doing their best to prepare today's young people for the upheavals that are going on in our college and university campuses-upheavals in space technology, medical research, political science, religion and culture-and I'm confident Plymouth's students are as well prepared as any.

Sales of $66,440,000 for the three months ended March 31, 1966 represented a 26 precent increase over the $52,572,000 for the corresponding period of 1965. Earnings per common shares. based on the average number of shares outstanding during the period and after preferred dividends, were $.75 in 1966 as contrasted to $.59 for 1965, adjusted for stock dividends and the 1965 stock split.

IN MARCH Evans successfully completed the sale of 300,000 shares of common stock. The net proceeds of $13,225,000 substantially bolster net worth and, according to Orloff, will assist Evans to continue the growth pattern followed in the past several years.

Orloff confirmed his estimate that 1966 sales will be $300,000, 000 and net earnings approximately $11,100,000 or $3.65 per common share based on estimated average shares outstanding during 1966. Stating that the company now has the largest open order file in its history, Orloff expressed confidence and optimism over the Company's prospects for 1966 and thereafter.

NOTICE OF REFUND TO GAS CUSTOMERS

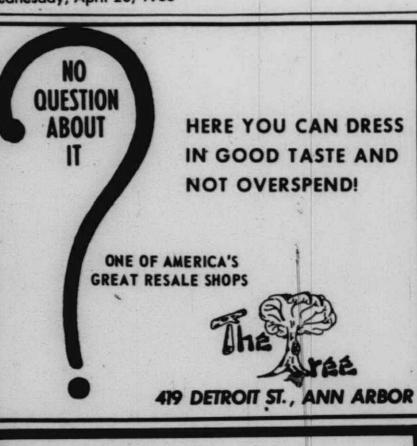

ROYAL JET SPRAY

With the approval of the Michigan Public Service Commission, Consumers Power Company will refund to its gas customers during the next few weeks a pro rata share of refunds recently received by Consumers Power from its suppliers of natural gas. Refunds are to be made in the form of credits on customer bills mailed after April 4, 1966.

To be eligible for a refund, the customer must have received gas service from Consumers Power Company during October, November and December, 1965 and must have been a customer of the Company on March 25, 1966. The amount of individual refunds will be based on each customer's gas usage during the last three months of 1965. Customers using gas to heat their homes during that period will receive refunds averaging $1.50; non space heating customers will receive refunds averaging 30 cents.

Customers who moved since December may not receive the refund automatically in the form of a credit on their next bill, because of their change of address. To obtain their refund, these customers should apply to their nearest Consumers Power Company office no later than July 1, 1966. The Company urges these customers to contact Consumers Power Company as soon as possible.

MAKING ITS debut this season is a new state park, Tawas Point on Tawas Bay near East Tawas. The park has 202 campsites and features an excellent beach, hiking, swimming and boating.

Other major improvements include:

- Western Upper Peninsula: The capacity of Fort Wilkins State Park, Copper Harbor, has been doubled with the addition of 85 campsites, while Van Riper State Park near Champion has 82 new sites for a total of 232. Nearly 70 campsites have been added in state forest campgrounds.

- Northern Lower Michigan: Among more than 900 new campsites are 90 at Mitchell State Park, Cadillac, 80 at Mears State Park, Pentwater, and 66 at Interlochen State Park, Interlochen.

- Southern Lower Michigan; Some 70 campsites have been added at four state recreation areas, including 40 at Bald Mountain near Lake Orion.

STATE PARKS generally offer the most complete facil-ities with bathhouses, flush toilets, electricity and con-cession stands. Most of the state and national forest campgrounds have pit toilets, picnic tables, fireplaces and a water supply.

Federal aid granted to College

Schoolcraft College will be receiving $19,080 in Federal funds to participate in the College Work-Study Program during the 1966-67 academic year. The funds, available on June 30th, will allow the College to continue the program which has been in operation since April 1, 1965.

College Work-Study is designed to provide employment for students on the campus and in nonprofit off-campus agencies. Considered part of the overall student financial aid program, the jobs help the student supplement his income and gives him the opportunity to work in areas related to his educational goals.

STUDENTS are eligible for College Work-Study if they can demonstrate that financial help is required. Any current student at the College or anyone accepted by the College may make application for the Program.

The College Work-Study funds will supplement funds forthcoming from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to begin a financial grant program for promising low-income students. The College received approval for participation in the Educational Opportunity Grants program several weeks ago.

An office audit may be handled either by correspondence or by interview at the local internal revenue office. In Michigan, returns are initially selected about equally for interview and correspondence audits. An interview audit is required for more complex returns while a correspondence audit only covers the simple items such as exemptions, deductions for contributions, medical expenses, interest and taxes.

THE REQUEST for an office interview by the Internal Revenue Service is much the same as for the correspondence audit except that no questionnaires are enclosed and a definite hour and place for the interview is stated in the letter at which time the taxpayer is required to bring the necessary documents to substantiate the tax return.

A few taxpayers question why their tax returns are selected for examination for two or more consecutive years. Each tax year stands by itself and the Internal Revenue Service makes a selection of returns designed to assure itself that correct returns are being filed.

A. M. Stoepler, the District Director of Internal Revenue, recommends "Take all allowable deductions but be prepared to substantiate any item on the tax return." It is recommended that for tax affairs more complex than those of the average person or if there is one or more unusual transactions during the year the following publications are most informative:

By Les Carroll Get 'With It' With A Guitar..at a Cook-Out

"Cookouters have become smitten with the do-it yourself hootenanny," according to Robert Keworth of a musical instrument company which is a leading producer of the main instrument involved, the guitar.

"The image of the cowboy strumming his guitar, croon ing by the light of the lonely fire is being transferred to that modern American campfire -the cookout grill in the backyard."

And the guy who leads the charge to the outdoors-old (or young) Dad-is, not surprisingly, matching his desire to be chief cook (but not bottlewasher) with some guitarsmanship while riding the notso-lonesome range of his patio.

Though father interest is reflected in recent surveys, conducted by the Kay Musical Instrument Co., there is evidence of great influence on cookout-singouts exerted by the younger set.

Learning to play the guitar isn't nearly as complicated, or as expensive as it would seem.

In only a few sessions most persons strum enough basic cords to get through many folk songs and old standards.

Questions & Answers

Why do potato salads made in France seem to have more flavor than those made elsewhere?

The trick to this treat (a bit of magic, incidentally, used in many countries and even in some sections of our own) is simply to season and dress the potatoes while they are still hot. So treated, the potatoes turn the trick by absorbing the dressing almost completely.
