Time for Heights Charter approval has arrived

On Tuesday, August 2, Plymouth Township voters will go to the polls to vote for the third time on a proposed charter to incorporate Plymouth Township as the City of Plymouth Heights.

The Plymouth Mail recommends that they vote "Yes."

In the past, both editorial and public sentiment has been against the Plymouth Heights Charter. People tended to look at it as a somewhat pleasantly convenient, though slightly hypo-critical means of staving off annexation proceedings by what was then the smaller but wealthier City of Plymouth.

The charter, we feel, has served that purpose well and now - almost ironically - it presents what could be the strongest hope for community homogeneity and cooperation.

Originally, of course, the charter was drafted because of abortive attempts by the City to annex some of Plymouth Township's choicest tax base, including the huge Burroughs Corporation

When the document was first voted on in 1961, it was felt that Township government still promised the most for the least for the area's residents. In 1963, the same was still, in large measure, true.

But that time is past.

Plymouth Township is growing at such a rapid rate that vital city services are needed. The minimal police protection provided by the Wayne County Sheriff's Department in the past will no longer be enough.

Residents are going to want more than the Township form of government can deliver.

Too, some in the community thought that defeat of the charter left the way open for achievement of a degree of unification that would, in the end, provide a stronger means of preserving those characteristics that made The Plymouth Community delightfully different.

Obviously, that has been a pleasant pipe

The terms of the proposed City of Plymouth Heights Charter provide for a strong mayor form of government. This could be a definite asset to the community. For that mayor will either deliver what his constituents want or he'll be voted out of office.

Basically then, we support passage of the present revision of the City of Plymouth Heights Charter.

We support it because, as a member of the charter commission pointed out, the governor's office termed it one of the most perfect documents of its type they had ever seen.

We support it because it provides an equitable way of rendering needed services to area residents at a reasonable cost.

We support it because we think approval would be best for The Plymouth Community as a whole.

And we urge voters to support it by going to the polls on August 2 and answering "Yes" to the question on their ballot, "Shall the proposed Charter for the City of Plymouth Heights drafted by the Charter Commission elected on September 1, 1964 be adopted?"

Many choices in August 2 primary vote

The vote to incorporate about half of Plymouth Township into a city will be the key issue in the August 2 primary as voters face over 75 names.

Only Plymouth Township registered electors will vote on the incorporation, established Griffin is unopposed in the priby the Plymouth Heights Charter Commission.

At the same time they will cast ballots in uncontested primaries for supervisor, clerk treasurer and trustee. On the Republican ticket, John McEwen is running for supervisor, Mrs. Helen Richardson for clerk, Mrs. Elizabeth Holmes for treasurer, and Ralph Garber and Gene Overholt for trustee. All are incumbents. On the Democratic ticket, Rev. David Strang of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Epiphany, is seeking a trustee seat.

There are no local propositions in the City, and the only at Farrand School, 41400 candidates running are precinct delegates. Delegates will also be elected by each party in the Township.

County wide offices include three Circuit Court judgeships and the county auditor post. The primary ballot will contain six names for the State Senate - three from each party. Carl Pursell, John MacLellan, and George Kuhn seek the GOP nod, and Louis Odette, Earl Demel and Paul Livingston the Democratic nominations.

George Meader and Marvin Esch will vie for the U.S. Second Congressional nomination on the Republican ticket. Democratic incumbent Weston E. Vivian is unopposed.

In the State House of Representatives contest James Tierney, Democratic incumbent, and John Tripp, Republican challenger, are unopposed.

The ballot for the Democrats will also contain the names of G. Mennen Williams and Jerome P. Cavanagh, one of whom will be nominated for the U.S. Senate race. Republican Robert Plymouth Twp. a new city?

Shall the proposed Charterfor a broad range of powers northe City of Plymouth Heights drafted by the Charter Commission elected on September 1, 1964, be adopted?

That question will face Township voters in an otherwise uninteresting local primary August 2.

The charter proposes the incorporation of the easterly portion of Plymouth Township (from McClumpha Rd.) into a full fledged home rule city. The charter, if approved by the voters, would form Michigan's newest city. The last to be formed was Westland just a few short months ago. General provisions call for mally assumed by a home rule city, and granted in the state constitution.

IF VOTERS pass the Charter, John McEwen, current Township supervisor, would become mayor, Ralph Garber, a trustee, would become municipal judge, and Mrs. Elizabeth Holmes, would be treasurer. Also, Mrs. Helen Richardson would become clerk in the new city, and Gene Overholt and Dick Lauterbach would become councilmen. All are incumbents in the present Township government. Cavanagh tells Plymouthites the 'Torch has been passed'

Echoing back to John Fitzgerald Kennedy's famous inaugural speech, - "Let the word go forth to friend and foe alike that the torch has been passed to a new generation" - Jerome P. Cavanagh whistle-stopped his way across Michigan Saturday, capping a long and often disappointing day with a plug for votes before about 400 Plymouthites.

They had gathered at the C & O depot at about 8 p.m. to hear Cavanagh as he made his last of nine stops in a tour that took him from Detroit to Pontiac, Fenton, Durand, Owosso, Pewamo, Grand Rapids, East Lansing, Plymouth and back to Detroit. Using the old fashioned whistle stop technique made famous by Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Cavanagh, Detroit's youthful mayor and one of the Democratic nominees for the U.S. Senate seat, was accompanied by several relatives, over 140 supporters and a vast array of newsmen.

Speaking at each stop, Cavanagh noted his youth, his opponents G. Mennen Williams' hand-shaking campaign, his own record in Detroit, his own stand on Vietnam. Not once did he mention Democrat.

Sitting in a plush red chair in the rear car of the train - a car Cavanagh aides said was built in 1908 and once used by President Kennedy-Cavanagh reflected on the

"There's a logical peak or climax to a campaign," one young worker said. "The idea is to reach it right before the election. It worked for John Lindsay, and it worked in Florida and Pennsylvania. People will only take so much of the campaign, then interest lags."

Cavanagh started late and other aides are not as optimistic. He must beat Soapy Williams, a political pro who's been campaigning since January. Williams is endorsed by Labor and most of the state's Democratic organizations.

Reception was coolest for the mayor in Grand Rapids, which traditionally shutters its doors on Saturday and Sunday, harking back to a strong Protestant religious tradition.

Cavanagh was met by no more than 50 at the Division Street station in Grand Rapids. His motorcade of six cars and a bus traveled along nearly deserted streets through the Negro section of the Furniture City to Rogers Plaza, where only a handful of shoppers were on hand.

The Portland Review and Observer, from nearby Portland, had announced Cavanagh's arrival noting "Jerome Kavanaugh" (sic) would be in Pewamo togreet townsfolk. The misspelling of Cavanagh with a 'K' was not a casual error.

"It's not very often a fellow like that would stop here. He would go to larger places," one Pewamo resident said. He also proudly adds that now Pewamo has a bank with assets nudging $1 million.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Three primary election races involve offices that directly affect The Plymouth Community's representation in either Lansing or Washington. They are the Republican primaries for U. S. Congressman in the Second Congressional District, and the 14th State Senatorial District, and the Democratic primary in the 14th State Senate District. Plymouth Mail recommendations in these three contests appear

Esch only suitable GOP candidate

In the race for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Second Congressional District, a former seven-term Congressman and a relative newcomer to the political wars, a freshman State Representative, are pitted against each other.

They are George Meader and Marvin Esch, both of Ann Arbor.

The Plymouth Mail endorses the candidacy of Esch, Republican State Representative from the 53rd District.

Esch, the younger of the two men, has distinguished himself at the state legislative level in his first term - winning recognition from the Lansing press corps as the outstanding Republican freshman legislator.

His educational background is solid and includes a bachelor of arts degree in political science and a master of arts and Ph. D. degrees in speech and education. Esch has been a member of the staff at both the University of Michigan and Wayne State University.

From a legislative standpoint, Esch has showed a positive approach to issues including civil rights, county home rule, motor vehicle inspection and executive reorganization.

In contrast, Meader's record has been one of negativism and appeal to a tired status quo.

He has opposed civil rights legislation, adopted an ultra conservative position in the 1964 campaign which he lost to Congressman Weston E. Vivian and modified that stance and attempted to present a facade of moderation in his announcement for the present campaign.

Meader has criticized the incumbent Congressman for mailing newsletters to his constituents in franked envelopes while conveniently ignoring the fact that he, as a former Congressman, blanketed the district with an anti-civil rights bill speech he delivered in 1964. Copies of the speech were mailed at government expense to occupant lists of district residents. In addition, Meader modestly mailed at government expense laudatory comments about himself by other GOP lawmakers.

While displaying such vital concern about the use of government funds for postage, Meader also apparently forgot that he had employed one of his children in his office while he was a Congressman.

Esch's campaign material bears his name in capital letters followed by a large exclamation point - apparently a p l a y on its phonic suitability as an expletive.

It very well sums up our feeling about Meader.

ESCH!

Marvin Esch is the only remotely suitable Republican candidate for Congress and we urge Republicans to vote for him.

Pursell best GOP Senate hopeful

In the 14th State Senatorial District, which includes Plymouth, three Republicans are competing for nomination for the four-year term.

They are George W. Kuhn, John A. MacLellan and Carl Pursell of Plym-

The Plymouth Mail thinks Pursell is best qualified to represent, not only Plymouth, but the needs of the entire district.

Pursell holds degrees in political science, economics and administration from Eastern Michigan University. A former teacher, he has built a thriving business from the ground up here in Plymouth.

Pursell has proven his leadership at the local level in the Chamber of Commerce and at the political level in the Plymouth Republican Club which he heads.

He stands for intelligent programs of tax reform, integrity in government and a rapid transit system for the metropolitan area.

We don't feel that Pursell's partisan activity leaves him with a closed mind on important issues.

Pursell's competitors for the nomination, we feel, e a ch have drawbacks that detract from their acceptability as potential senators.

George Kuhn resigned his position as mayor of Berkley to invade the 14th district and, as a political carpetbagger, run on the coattails of his better-known brother, Richard, a candidate for U. S. Congress.

John A. McLellan, while apparently qualified in general respects, has served as counsel to special interest groups on legislative matters. While, technically, he is not a lobbyist, we feel these connections reduce his suitability as a senatorial candidate.

In summary, then, we feel Carl Pursell is the best of the three Republican candidates for the State Senate nomination in the 14th district and we urge GOP voters to cast their ballots for him on August 2.

Demel suited but needs homework

The Democratic race for the nomination for State Senate in the 14th Senatorial District, like the Republican primary, features three candi-

They are Earl J. Demel, Paul F. Livingston and Louis C. Odette.

Of the three, Demel seems best qualified to get things done if elected to the senate.

An attorney, Demel got his law degree from the University of Detroit's law school in 1931. He is known locally as an extremely successful lawyer. Many give Demel credit for masterminding the legal strategy that helped Plymouth Township stave off annexation attempts during the time he served as Township attorney Demel has gone on record in favor of improved driver licensing procedures, increased state aid to schools and property tax relief. He favors a tlat rate state income tax in a program of over all tax reform. The other candidates have failed to come up with concrete proposals for legislative action if they are elected. Odette's campaign has been run at a slow pace. He has evidenced little real interest in securing the nomination. In response to repeated requests, Odette failed to appear for a newspaper interview on his stand as a candidate.

Livingston has conducted an aggressive campaign, but most of his comments, while articulate and erudite, fail to show where he stands on the issue of tax reform and other questions.

On the basis of background and qualification, Demel holds a slight edge over Livingston - the only other active candidate.

But if Demel is nominated, we feel he needs to do some serious homework on the issues and their pertinence to the 14th district if he hopes to win election in November.

At this point, however, he seems to be the best of the three Democratic candidates and we recommend Earl J. Demel to primary voters.

On the other hand, I am told the Cavanagh effort has been wandering here and there - the epitome of disorganization, malorganization and misorganization - missing dates, arriving late or getting to the wrong places at the right time. Further, they have committed the gross political error of calling for a meaningful discussion of issues.

Party workers have been doing their best to see that "Mennen," (as he is called by those who would leave the impression they are bosom buddies of his,) gets the best breaks, the biggest crowds and the heartiest applause.

The Plymouth Mail will not be endorsing in the U. S. Senatorial primary but, if I vote in the Democratic primary, (only my analyst knows for sure) Jerry Cavanagh will get the nod. It's a shame everyone says he's going to lose - mostly because it will cost me two steak dinners bet in a weak moment early in the campaign.

One of the little glories, they say, of living out here in luxuriant, chorophyl-laden suburbia is the golden opportunity to surround one's self with greenery and plant life.

Oh yeah!

Dear heart and I sent away this spring for one of the package deals that promise 138 assorted trees, shrubs and crawling things for only $8.83.

A parcel was delivered at the next door neighbor's one day while we were away and one of our kids found out about it and came home with the comment, "Hey, one of the trees you ordered

My neighbor's wife still snickers every time she looks at the four-inch high row of twigs labeled privet hedge that we tore up a couple of yards of worth-its-weight-in-gold Merion Blue for.

Maybe half of the shipment will survive, no thanks to the stupid cats, dogs and kids.

We have been spending some of our Saturday' evenings of late at what the U of M bills as "the airconditioned Lydia Pinkham Theater." No that's not right. It's "the air-conditioned Lydia Mendelsohn

Sorry about that.

Last Saturday it was "The Birthday Party" by Harold Pinter.

I guess I have been too long removed from the Halls of Academe and gotten inept at interpreting all of the complex symbolism that goes into modern theater.

This guy is more obscure than Edward Albee, and I thought Albee did well when he delivered himself of "Tiny Alice."

Would you believe a whole play that comes off like the first chapter of William Faulkner's "The Sound and the Fury?"

Prices are going up all over.

We are always getting printing customers who inquire, "Hey, how come this is more than I paid ten years ago?"

And so it goes.

Coffee just became available at the venerable Mayflower Hotel for twenty cents a cup.

Some of the business people who spend most of their day soaking it up (coffee, that is) have complained. But hotel management assures them that it's the only place in town where they can have as much coffee as they want for two dimes.

That's true.

Take a gallon thermos along on your next coffee break.

Two of Plymouth's largest service clubs have, in recent weeks, entertained a guy by the name of David Moltrop - a representative of the National Small Business Association — not to be confused with the government's Small Business Adminstra-

I listened a week ago Tuesday evening as Moltrop came out for Barry Goldwater, cracked a couple of tawdry racial jokes in a spurious Negro accent, and attacked credit unions, Senator Hart and Congressman Vivian.

One person suggested that we'"not dignify" his remarks by publishing them - a kind of liberal censorship no less insidious than any other kind. So a brief story appears this week.

Frankly, what right-wing political Neanderthals say doesn't bother me nearly as much as the fact that certain individuals jump to their feet for standing ovations and their weaker brethren follow suit.

It gets tiresome sitting there alone.

Speaking of Women

Fore women

Ladies day is everyday on the golf course

"Mother, look who's that stranger, ain't he queer? That's no stranger, darling child,

All them golfing guys look wild . . . That's your father."

The words of this poem by J. P. McEvoy are no longer appropriate. Gone are the days of the golf widow. Women have invaded the golf course in large numbers.

Plymouth is no exception to the wave of interest that is engulfing women throughout the coun-

There are many women who play in foursomes with their friends, and there are also several different leagues in the area.

The newest of these leagues is the one started by the Andante group of the Plymouth Symphony League. Mrs. George Spaniel is in charge of the Symphony group and Miss Helen Gilbert has taken over the golf chairmanship.

The main reason the group was organized was to raise money for the symphony. It meets Tuesday morning at Hilltop.

This group is designed especially for people who are learning to play golf. It is open to anyone and Mrs. Spaniel urges people who want to see if they would like golf to come out and try.

'Sometimes people would like to play golf, but hesitate to ask friends who they know are much better players," she explains.

Mrs. Price Watts, a former physical education teacher, is giving f r e e lessons to everyone who plays with the group.

There are about 18 every week who come out for the lessons, besides another six to eight who come out just to play.

Many like Mrs. James Knowles find they are enjoying the freedom and relaxation of getting out on the golf course.

The group is planning to have a fun day at the end of the season, turning the course into a series of obstacles. This will be followed by a luncheon at the Hillside Inn where trophys will be awarded for such things as the best player, and the most improved player.

Because of the enthusiasm of those who have played this year Mrs. Spaniel and Miss Gilbert are hoping to expand the league next year. They plan to have a longer season and have others besides the beginning players.

Mrs. C. C. Wiltse is someone who has been playing golf for a long time. She, along with Mrs. Wilson Augustine and a few other women from Plymouth were among the first members of the Ladies Northwestern Golf League when it was ora ganized about four years ago.

This group of women from Plymouth and the neighboring towns felt that while it is fun to play with a friend, it is more of a challenge when you belong to a league and have something to work

This group meets at Braeburn on Tuesday morning, and Mrs. Harvey Cooper is president.

Another group that started with only a few members from Newcomers Club about the same time now has 45 dedicated players who meet on Thursday mornings at Hilltop. Mrs. George Bovaird, who is the chairman, has organized the group so they play in flights, and in case they don't all know each other they wear name tags.

Mrs. Henry Albert who has been with this group since its beginning says that her husband was a golfer and that he was very pleased when she took it up.

One good shot keeps you coming back for more," says Mrs. Albert, probably expressing the feeling of a lot of women.

Still another league plays way out at Salem Hills golf course on Tuesdays. Mrs. Edwin Wingard and Mrs. Warren Todd are two of the Plymouth people who go out there to play.

"I think it's one of the most challenging courses around," says Mrs. Wingard giving one of the reasons she drives way out there to play.

So for many different reasons women around Plymouth are taking up golf and finding that they enjoy it.

decided to copy European villas. The house is distinguished by the four slanting sides of the roof, with the flat top, and the tall windows. In the 1850's when these houses were first introduced they were decorated with lots of "gingerbread" on the outside. But by the 1880's this had gone out of style.

The Danes, however, had always wanted a house with *gingerbread". So when one of the old houses was torn down for the new city hall, they went over and got some of the ornamentation from that house which they have put under the eves of their house.

When the Dane's house was built Maple St., or Bowery St. as it was known then, deadended right after the house and the Plymouth Fair was right next to it.

The Plymouth Fair Association held a fair every summer from the mid-1880's until 1904. This is where Fairground and Fair St. get their names.

The Fair was the high point in the life of a youngster in Plymouth in those days. There was horse racing, ball games, a merry-go-round, a ferris wheel, side shows. And of course farmers and their wives won prizes for their produce and cooking.

Everyone had a chance to participate in the fair. Children were brought in from the neighboring one room schoolhouses by horse and wagons. Ladies of the different churches used to cook and serve suppers. In 1903 the main fair building burned down. It is sometimes possible to find porch railings when old houses are being torn down. The railings and the old table legs can also be found in antique shops. *THE MOST significant aspect over a long range of time is that the U.S. must re-examine its allies and alliances throughout the world. We must find the real strength of the bilateral alliances. Obviously many of these international alliances are being modified and changed beyond our control. A case in point is NATO, and we've yet to fill the vacuum NATO left," Esch said.

On civil rights, Esch said he had introduced a bill to encourage the formation of local human relations commissions. It would allow a complainant to file locally, then appeal to the State. "The real question is how can the State encourage local action," he said.

On Federal-State-local governmental powers, Esch said the most significant thing in the next decade will be to define what are the functions of government at the local level, at the state level, and at the Federal level." He pointed to the Hilldale con-

Hospital staff learns public speaking

About 30 members of the staff of Northville State Hospital, including psychiatrists and registered nurses, attended a seminar on July 6 and 7, to learn public speaking.

The occasion was a Speaker Training Seminar conducted by Smith Kline & French Laboratories, Philadelphia prescription drug firm. Meetings were held at the hospital which is located on Seven Mile Road in Northville.

Purpose of the program is to help these professional men and women communicate more effectively with lay audience by teaching them gestures and other techniques of good speech delivery.

The seminar lecturer was Harold L. Hayes, Ph. D., Director of Speech Training for Smith Kline & French and formerly Associate Professor of Speech at the University of Minnesota, Duluth. Dr. Hayes addressed the group on the principles of speech organization and presentation and how to handle questions and answers. Between lectures, the participants formed small practice groups, each moderated by a trained speaker from SK&F, and rehearsed reading of a prepared talk as well as extemporaneous speaking.

Thurber' tickets on sale at EMU

Tickets for the comedy review, "A Thurber Carnival", at Eastern Michigan University, will go on sale Thursday at the Quirk Theatre box office.

The box office, will be open daily from 12:45 to 4:30 p.m. daily, and tickets will cost $1.50 with all seats unreserved. Telephone reservations may be made by calling the box office at 482-3453.

"A Thurber Carnival", to be presented at 8 p.m. July 28 through 31, is a collection of zany stories, fables and dances reflecting the acid wit and reflective comedy of James Thurber. When it opened in 1960, critics called it "easily the funniest show on Broadway."

THE REVIEW will be presented in the outdoor amphitheatre built into the Quirk Dramatic Arts Building, one of three theatres provided in the building. A tiered hillside auditorium with comfortable seating for 250 faces a stage on which the colorful settings will be assembled nightly. The audience is flanked by flowerbeds and backed by a colonade and a pleasant lawn. Insect control and the availability of the Quirk Auditorium in case of rain make this an outstanding outdoor facility.

sponsored by the Plymouth

This year the Fall Festival, eagerly anticipated pleasure. beginning at noon on Thursday, September 8th, and continuing through Sunday, September 11th promises to be bigger and better

Twenty-two antique dealers will bring carefully selected authentic antiques and will be assisted by members of the symphony league in setting up and displaying their collections in the Grange Hall and commun-

Colonial costumes, gala decorations, calico streamers, autumn colors and sidewalk tables provide a festive setting for the delectable food cooked and served by members of the Plymouth Grange. Last year they sold between 600 and 800 dozen cookies, innumerable servings of fresh, home baked apple and pumpkin pies, while their large and luscious sandwiches and "sloppy-joes" were in constant

THE FIVE groups of the Symphony League alternate in taking charge of the arrangements and this year the Allegro group under the capable chairmanship of Mrs. James Jabara with Mrs. George Hudson as co-chairman will work closely with general chairman, Mrs. W. antiballistic missile plans resentatives debated on one of the most important bills to come before the 89th Congress this year. This was the appropriation bill for the Department of Defense, for the fiscal year which began on July 1. This bill is significant for two estremely important reasons: first, the appropriation must be designed to best protect the peace, freedom and security of this Nation, and that of all other free countries in the world; second, the $58.6 billion requested for the defense of our country represents approximately one-half of the entire annual budget. In view of these facts, it is obvious that each aspect of this appropriation bill must be carefully weighed before its passage.

The most controversial aspect of the appropriation bill came to light, last week, when Congressman Cohelan (Calif.) offered an amendment to delete $153.5 million provided for the preproduction of an antiballistic missile system, because he did not feel that such a system would add to our national sec-

I joined Congressman Cohelan in support of this amendment, and I presented to the Members

Last week, the House of Rep- of the House of Representatives three reasons for my action. As a scientist, I have studied this matter very thoroughly for the past twenty years. I am very familiar with current research on missile systems - both defensive and offensive. On the basis of this knowledge, I maintained that there is today no concrete evidence of the probable efficacy of this proposed program. To proceed with an antiballistic missle system at this point would, at best, provide us with a very weak defense system against a potent offensive force such as that possessed by the U.S.S.R.

As I urged, during the debate. "Do not be deluded into believing that we can simply spend dollars and attain an effective defense." I urge that further research be conducted before starting on a costly program

The second factor which, in my estimation, calls for the deletion of the antiballistic missile system from the appropriation bill is the consideration of defense strategy. During the debate, I stated, "I think we all realize that when two nations such as the U.S.S.R. and the United States each possess an unstoppable offense, a certain balance of terror exists. It is an imhuman balance of ter-a balance." At present, our "balance of terror" is under a great deal of stress; the development of an antiballistic missile system would upset this precarious balance. It is evident then, that this defense system will by no means insure that our national security will be increased; the tension of the present time has made the world too unstable for such an assump-

The third consideration that led me to support Congressman Cohelan's amendment is the fact I am not convinced that this is the proper TIME to act. The President is the proper person to decide that our country is ready for installation of hesitate to vote for the needed funds. But the President has not called for funds for the antiballistic missle system, and I believe that such funds should be appropriated only in response

The defense of this country's freedom is a vital matter. The consequences of the decisions we make today will affect not only us but the entire population of our planet as well - today and for generations ahead.

Is there anything one can do to event spinach from turning black after it has been cooked?

After cooking or steaming spinach, run cold water through the leaves and, with both hands, gently squeeze as much water as possible from them at once. It is the immediate removal of the moisture that will prevent the spinach from darkening.
