

To vote October 3 on $5 1/2 million in school bonds

A giant step toward the realization of the Citizen's Facility Study Committee $17 million school package was taken Monday night.

The Plymouth Community School District Board of Education agreed to set October 3 as a date for a special election in which voters will ballot on $5 1/2 million in long term bonds.

The election was scheduled by special resolution. No millage increase is seen, and it is expected the bonds will be financed with current levies.

However, a second election is planned for next summer, at which time the Board will apparently seek the balance of the $17 million. In that request, a small millage boost is inherent.

The citizen study group, which recently finished a highly praised exhaustive study of Plymouth's school needs, recommended a total $17 million package to build four new elementary schools two new junior highs and the much discussed second high school.

They further recommended a building and site debt retirement millage of nine mills, 7.3 of which is currently being levied, and 1.7 of which would be new additional millage.

Voters, then, if the recommendations is followed to the letter, vote this October to bond for $5 1/2. They then will vote on the balance in June of 1967. That vote will bring a millage boost of 1.7 mills, if approved.

The Board weighed the alternatives in a long meeting Monday night, and agreed to the bonding issue for October. That issue will:

- * Provide a $100,000 fund to plan the new high school. That fund will pay for a principal to be hired as soon as possible, some teacher time, fees for building consultants and travel.
- * "We want to make sure we don't build obsolescence," school superintendent Russell Isbister commented.
- * Provided $1 million to land bank sites at a rate even more aggressive than suggested by the citizen's group.

- * Build and equip a third junior high school.
- * Enlarge elementary school number eight from 420 capacity to 720. The first phase of that school is already well underway.
- * Build elementary school number nine as soon as possible at 720.

"We didn't want to go with the big picture," was Board president Gerald Fischer's explanation. Both he and Isbister apparently feel the voters will not approve a $17 million package all at once.

The Board had to act quickly if they wanted to get on the ballot. Special election dates have been limited because of the primary and regular November election activity. Dates from late September to early October were the only ones available.

The Board met with the Citizen's group, chaired by William Fronk, Fronk, whose detailed report forms the basis for the next five years planning of school facilities, was present as Fischer reviewed how the Board had acted on various recommendations.

Among those, the Board has:

- * Agreed to start the twelve month planning process for the new high school as soon as possible.
- * Be aggressive in the purchase of sites. To that end, meetings with the area planning commission have been held already. That group has agreed to assist.

- * Adopt a 5-3-4 school organization plan. That was accomplished two weeks ago; the actual practice, however, will take a few years to complete fully.
- * Agree that 30 pupils per classroom is desirable. Fischer noted that additional special service teachers in the lower grades (music, art and physical education) help that ratio.
- * More formal planning with commissions and realtors as the district booms. That is being accomplished through a poll of realtors to see if they are willing to help, and through meetings with groups like the Area Planning Commission.

The remainder of the meeting was spent in discussion as citizen committee members and School Board members weighed how to get voter approval.

Fronk urged that at least two years be allowed for the construction of the new high school. He feels, as his committee suggested that the school be done by the fall of 1969.

Isbister and Fischer feel the months between October and the election next summer can be used in planning the new high school.

"The vote in October will cover the items in the most immediate future," Fischer said.

Freeway is knotty riddle for planners

The yet unde terminated route of the M-14 freeway cropped up again on at least two occasions at last Wednesday's Plymouth Township planning commission meeting.

State Highway Department officials insist the route is not fixed.

But it appears if the Township is to plan the western portion of its domain, it needs to be fixed.

Plan new homes for Sheldon

Homes on Sheldon Rd. and 192 apartments for Lake Pointe topped the list of new business on the August Plymouth Township planning commission agenda.

Albert Simkins announced plans for 71 new homes on twenty acres of land midway between Ann Arbor Rd. and Joy Rd. on the west side of Sheldon Rd. The land is currently properly zoned to fit Simkins' needs, and the planning commission accepted the first plot plan, and turned it over for examination by the board's professional planner, W. C. Johnson.

Simkins, an Oak Park builder, also built the Shangra-Villa apartments behind Byron St. in the City of Plymouth.

Fred Greenspan was also on hand, and outlined plans for 192 two-bedroom apartments on the site he was granted commercial zoning several years ago.

When the Lake Pointe area was first presented, the land between the point of Wilcox and Schoolcraft Rd. was designated for a shopping center.

But recently, plans were unveiled for a freeway along Schoolcraft Rd.

"We are on deadcenter," Greenspan explained. "No one is interested in the shopping center because of the freeway. The best thing for us to do is to turn it into multiple family units."

Involved is about 16 acres of land near the site of Township fire station Number Two.

In other new business, persistent land developer Robert

Among the problems that came to light Wednesday night was a request from the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad for rezoning for tracks they plan to lay to serve the new Ford plant. A railroad supporting yard and storage tracks are planned, and industrial zoning is needed.

About 20 acres of land midway between Beck and Sheldon Rd. north of the tracks is involved.

C & O real estate manager Herbert Harms explained lead track for the Ford heater and air conditioner plant was needed as soon as possible.

"Ford wants the track in September. They are pushing because they have several heavy pieces of equipment they need to unload by rail," Harms explained.

Irv Rozian, planning commission member, insisted the matter should be discussed in light of plans for the freeway, which will cut across the Township midsection south of the tracks.

Ralph Garber, commission member, suggested the freeway question was not involved.

"But they are inseparably linked," Rozian said. However the Rozian appeared not interested. In fact, chairman Maurice Breen suggested the matter was cut and dry.

"We've already approved Ford. It seems logical we'll let them put the tracks down."

The commission listed the request for a public hearing.

The freeway route, which was revealed in news stories in the Plymouth Mail and the Plymouth Observer about one month ago, has come under severe fire from Rozian.

Among other things, Rozian charged that the C & O was involved in creating prime industrial land, and that the state was all but ignoring the Township's wishes, as well as its master plan.

To make his point, Rozian held up commission members after they had completed the regular agenda and told them of a meeting he and several Township officials, including supervisor Jack McEwen, had had with Highway Department officials that same day.

Rozian outlined again the essential route of the freeway along Schoolcraft, across to Sheldon, dipping south of the

A BIG QUESTION in school officials' minds is the completion date of the Five Mile Rd. Tanger Elementary School. Administrators hope one-half the rooms will be done in time to put the school's expected 380 students on at least a half-day schedule. A meeting held Tuesday was to determine how far behind the construction is, which was delayed by a nation-wide strike.

Nix Oldford's bid to expand center

A three month battle to expand the Ann Arbor Rd.-Sheldon Rd. shopping center 158 feet westward ended Wednesday night when the Plymouth Township planners turned down land developer Stewart Oldford's request.

The action, taken at the regular monthly meeting of the Planning Commission, came after a strong recommendation for passage was presented by planning consultant W. C. Johnson.

Johnson, in a brief written statement, called the request "reasonable" because it merely permitted an increase in floor space in the center.

However, the planning board was faced with severe and well organized opposition from the residents of nearby Park Lane subdivision.

Signatures representing 28 homes were on hand from the previous meeting, when a public hearing had been conducted.

The planning commission voted four to one to deny the request.

Austin Stecker, Carl Hartwich, Clayton Koch and Ralph Garber voted no, and Irv Rozian cast the lone favorable vote.

Oldford reaction was short: "It simply means we can't build as nice a shopping center as we had hoped."

Oldford announced plans that the center was to be leased through M. E. Arden Co. in the spring of 1965. Since then, a storm sewer has held up plans to begin building.

Objections according to the petitions included that the plan (1.) opposed a master plan, (2.) would serve no need by altering the original zoning, (3.) establish strip commercial zoning, (4.) and would result in property losses to area residents.

Objections also were on hand in the form of a detailed letter from T. A. Cook, 10405 Robert Ln.

Oldford explained that he had simply found more tenants than he had room for. They include a Wrigley Super Market, Cunningham's Drug Store, a Montgomery Ward store, a dime

Six hurt in two accidents

Six people were hurt in two separate accidents in Plymouth last week.

A fiery two car crash in front of Burroughs Corp. on Plymouth Road Saturday morning, Aug. 20 resulted in a Walled Lake man being rushed to St. Mary's Hospital in Livonia for treatment of injuries.

Billy Spencer, 24, was taken to the hospital by Schrader Ambulance shortly after the accident at about 8:15 a.m.

He was hurt after his west-bound car smashed into the rear of another vehicle driven by Charles F. Knuepfer, 52, of 22400 Plymouth Rd., Detroit.

Witnesses told Wayne County Sheriff's officers that the Knuepfer vehicle, headed west, slowed and started to make a left hand turn onto Haggerty Rd. from the right hand lane.

They said Spencer who was followed behind in the left hand lane, swerved to the right to avoid a collision but was unable to keep from hitting the right rear of the other car.

Officers said Knuepfer denied making the left turn from the right lane. He said he was in the left traffic lane.

Knuepfer was not injured. Five persons, including a Plymouth resident, were injured.

Equalization aids school operation budget for year

The cost of operating Plymouth's schools will go up $620,000 this year, with no increase in millage seen.

Revenues will increase due to additions to the tax base and sweeping equalizations of assessments.

The tax base for the entire district is up $10.8 million, due largely to the aggressive equalization of the Wayne County tax committee.

Every area but two shows an increase in operating costs as enrollments continue to climb and new classrooms and staff are added.

The figures show: The total budget will be $4,158,899, up substantially from last year.

Increases include: $265,917 in elementary instruction; $231,880 in secondary instruction; $50,000 in operations costs; $34,235 in administrative costs.

Based on an anticipated district-wide enrollment of 7350, increases are due to 14 new teaching stations at the Tanger Elementary School in Lake Pointe, four more rooms at Bird and four more at Gallimore schools.

Each of these must be staffed. Salary adjustments for all district employees total $275,702. The lion's share went to the 310 teachers of the district, as they form the largest employee group.

Costs related directly to increased enrollment totaled $249,320.

Program improvements are also contemplated in the new budget, including department heads at the High School, increased recreational program and an additional librarian.

A new administrator, director of administrative services, is also in the budget. The man filling this post will coordinate special education programs and special district services, elementary instruction and curriculum, and special Federal and state aid project applications.

A recapitulation shows increases came from the following areas:

A. Required Cost Increase	$ 77,450.00
B. Cost Resulting from Increased Enrollment	287,649.00
C. Salary Adjustments	275,702.00
D. Program Improvements	35,350.00
E. Miscellaneous	(56,408.15)
Total 1966-67 Operating Fund Budget Increase Over 1965-66 Actual Expenditures	$619,742.85

The budget in 1965-66 totaled $3,558,192. Actual expenditures were $3,539,156.

Money to operate the schools comes from 19.65 mills levied against the districts $126,730,-966 valuation; from state aid at $278 per pupil; and other smaller sources such as fees, transportation reimbursement and Federal aid.

Decreases in the budget are shown in maintenance and capital outlay. Last year the maintenance budget financed a new boiler at the High School, and that item will not be included in this year's monetary plans. In capital outlay, last year the new lighting at the High school football field was budgeted, and this year will not be included.

For those who want to figure how their tax dollars are going to the schools, here's a millage breakdown:

19.65 operation
1.18 1955 debt
1.22 1964 debt
.20 1965 debt
.30 1966 debt
4.40 Bldg. and site sinking fund
26.95 total levy

Operating millage comes from: 8.90 allocated for schools by the county; 5, voted and expires in 1966; 3.50 voted, expires in 1968; 2.25 voted last March at 3.25, expires 1969.

Evans designs new type freight car

A new type of freight car, specially designed in Plymouth for the shipment of plywood, lumber, gypsum board, pipe, structural steel and similar building materials, as well as other lading usually carried on flat cars, is now being demonstrated to railroads and shippers by Evans Products Company.

Evans' 100-ton Building Products Flat Car is equipped with movable, self-locking bulkheads, Hydra-Cushion sliding sill underframe, a unique new deck design with convertible sections that form load-bearing pieces, and chaintie-downs that are adjustable lengthwise and across the car.

The car is designed to fit the load. Movable bulkheads brace the lading at each end of the car, eliminating the need for wooden dunnage. The two bulkheads are easily rolled to and from the face of the load by one man. Each bulkhead moves on roller bearings, operates over a 10-foot range, and can be locked at 2-inch intervals.

The bulkheads are equipped with multiple sets of extra strong locking pins. These pins and the operating handle are under constant spring tension, a design feature which assures automatic locking of the bulkhead when the handle is released.

Both bulkheads are 10'6" high and at the same time strong enough to resist impacts normally encountered in train handling.

The new system of convertible floor sections is designed to raise above the top of the deck to act as bearing pieces and make loading and unloading of building materials by lift trucks especially easy. No wooden dunnage bearing pieces are needed. When not required, the metal floor sections fold into the deck of the car out of the way to provide a flush deck surface.

Evans' engineers have incorporated multiple tie-down positions along each side of the car providing inboard and lengthwise securement to accommodate large variations in lengths and widths of loads.

The car is also equipped with stake pockets to permit use of stakes if needed. The full 20-inch travel shock-absorbing Hydra-Cushion underframe with which the car is equipped prevents impact damage to both car and lading.

The new car has been impact tested up to fourteen miles per hour with a load of gypsum board 10'3" high and weighing 184,000 pounds without damage to bulkheads, car, or lading. The car is now undergoing over-the-rail tests.

In developing this new car Evans had in mind the needs of shippers of building products and other lading who want to load and unload in much less time than can be done with other types of cars, who want to eliminate dunnage expense, and who want to reduce damage in transit.

Evans also believes the new car will be an excellent revenue producer for railroads. Two-way loading possibilities are enhanced because the car can be used for a variety of lading, producing maximum car earnings.

The prototype car measures 58'6" between bulkheads when located at extreme ends of car; 38'6" when both bulkheads are moved inward; bulkheads are 10'6" high and 10'2 1/2" wide. It is a development of Evans' Research and Development Division located at Plymouth.

Evans manufactures freight cars, freight and truck damage-prevention equipment, and automotive and other industrial equipment. The company is also an important producer and distributor of plywood and other building materials.

The Michigan State Fair is the oldest in the nation. This year's, August 26 - September 5, will be the 117th annual.

New homes seen for Sheldon site

Wedler was back for the 15th month in a row in the Township Hall, applying for commercial rezoning for the southeast corner of Ann Arbor Rd. and Haggerty Rd.

Wedler has been a thorn in the side of both the Township Board and the planners, and has received one denial from the planning commission, and one from the Township Board on two different proposals.

His application was set aside because it did not contain the signature of the owner of the land involved. Wedler is expected to appear on the September agenda.

Builder William Schwartz of the Hope Valley Land Company presented a proposal for a 13 acre home development, a 12 acre apartment development and an 11 acre commercial development near the right-of-way of the I-275 freeway.

The site, encompassing all three, lies between Eckles road and the proposed freeway, and between Ann Arbor Rd. and Ann Arbor Trail.

The item was accepted with little discussion and passed to Johnson for study.

An expansion of the Ridge Road trailer park area also came before the planners. Theodore Brown, who recently obtained rezoning across the street, said the plans call for 26 home sites, 100 apartments and 150 trailer sites. The trailer sites would add to the present development being completed for Robert Wolloughby and Louis J. Dettore. The commission accepted the trailer park plan for study.

The good life

Everybody wants power

Doug Johnson

I see nothing wrong with 'black power'.

Talk to any of the professional sociologists and they will tell you that power is necessary in modern community life and relations.

They, in almost the same breath, will tell you existing community councils and agencies are for all intents and purposes impotent.

Anything controversial gets maneuvered into paralysis. And the Negro wanting to live like you and I is controversial, let's face it.

The problem was reviewed by Harry L. Miller, an educationist, for an adult education journal. In his report of power, he quotes from Floyd Hunter, "Community Power Structure" (1953):

"The top leaders, according to Hunter, are riddled with fear, fear of danger to the American way of life, fear that the power structure may become known, fear of reform, not unmixed with some guilt at holding the power they wield. The professionals are uniformly pessimistic. They are isolated from the effective power source, and also from the average citizen; yet most are dedicated to the social improvement of the underprivileged. Their professional principles often conflict with power-group decisions, and must consequently be set aside in a drearily continuous frustration. Their files are crammed with studies and reports of experts of what could be done to relieve some of the tensions in the city, which never reach an action point."

The concentration of power is in state and Federal government, and in big urban areas. The rural areas suffer under the delusion that they control politics, but they have only a limited influence. The tried and true campaign that appeals to rural areas is to raise the 'race issue'.

The question of shared power is being bantered about in rebuttal to the now famous Stokely Carmichael 'black power' comment.

The possibility of shared power is an illusion clung to by those who tend to generalize and have never actively engaged in getting something done in a community.

It is offered as substitute for 'black power' but shared power can never diminish the desire the Negro must have to have a potent organized national voice.

Urban life is organized along very definite power lines. And the Negro has not been involved here. During racial tensions almost any Negro who will talk at the first wobble of a reporter's pencil is a 'Negro leader'.

But such leaders are for the most part myths, creations of the moment. Those of us who are organized can feel some security in our power structure even though our individual voice is not heard.

It is the Negro who has little or no voice, and it there that 'black power' seeks to go, filling a void.

Big-time do-gooders will grab headlines with the annual 'paint up and clean-up the slums campaign', but brooms and paint will do little where absentee ownership and lethargic city officials have no conscience.

In the meantime, supporting or damning 'black power' is a political gambit which can be used to get votes, depending on who you are and where you live.

The freeway is set to begin in 1971. Rozian, who is aware the Township does not hold the veto power an incorporated city does, nevertheless appears willing to lead the fight to allow the Township a say in the route.

It's a startling phrase, like Beatie J. Lennon's remark about the rag mops being more popular than Jesus.

It hits at what you believe and feel. For some it probably presents the spectre of hooded figures with dark faces marching down Main St. and camping in Kellogg Park.

The black man deserves his power wedge. It is everyone's duty to see that he gets a responsible educated one, and we're foolish to think its possible to suggest they sit on the sidelines.

I wouldn't.

tracks once past Western Electric.

"The route is not firm, but they said it is their policy not even to ask about a route where church or state property is involved," Rozian said. He was referring to the state institutions that dot Five Mile Rd. as well as St. John's Seminary. The community is already divided by the I-275 freeway, and a possible Five Mile route would be more to the Township's liking.

The freeway is set to begin in 1971. Rozian, who is aware the Township does not hold the veto power an incorporated city does, nevertheless appears willing to lead the fight to allow the Township a say in the route.

AT STATE FAIR

Contests will add to old-fashioned fair fun

Beauty queens and baton twirlers, youngsters and oldsters, singers and sheep shearers. All will be part of the contest scene at the Michigan State Fair, which opens Friday, August 26, and runs through Monday, September 5 (Labor Day). Among the most popular are those staged each weekday for the kids — watermelon eating, ponytail, blueberry pie eating, bubblegum blowing, and others sure to prove messy and funny. YOUNG DRUM MAJORS and majorettes also will compete daily, in divisions ranging from novice to the most expert. The state's best baton twirlers always compete in the State Fair contests. For girls a bit older, the Miss Michigan State Fair competition offers a chance to be named fairest of the fair. Contestants who have won beauty queen titles in the past year in Michigan are eligible to compete. Competition will start Wednesday evening, August 31, with the crowning of the queen slated for Thursday evening, September 1, in the Music Shell.

Teen-age singers and musicians will compete in the Teen Scene section of the fair. Preliminaries in the amateur band contests will be held a week before the Fair, with the 36 top groups slated for competition during the Fair. Folk-singing groups, also of high school age, will vie daily in the Teen Scene.

ON OLD TIMERS' Day at the Fair, Monday, August 29, the state's senior citizens will take part in contests for oldest man and woman, longest married couple, longest mustache, and most grandchildren.

Husband calling and hog calling will be in the spotlight on Friday, September 2, with cash prizes going to those with the best (or loudest) voices.

Sheep shearing contests also are on tap for Friday, September 2, with Michigan champions being crowned.

Of course, the spirit of competition also will be present in all the livestock and farm classes. The Fair is offering more than $140,000 in premium money for those with the best cows, steers, swine, sheep, horses, pigeons, rabbits, and poultry.

Even bees will get into the act, with prizes going to top hives and best honey.

The Coliseum will be in constant use for contests, with judging of livestock during the days and horse shows in the evenings.

Americans thrive on competition. And the State Fair proves it.

Quest for biggest sunflower goes on

Newsmen never know what will catch the public fancy, and once they find out they usually choose to ignore it. They will ignore it because they are sure they know what will entertain the reader, and chaf when they find they are wrong.

As the summer season ends, most newspapers receive calls for requests to take pictures and write stories about out-sized or odd-shaped vegetation.

Such as a tomato that looks like Abe Lincoln. Or an ear of corn that looks like Lyndon Johnson.

Or six petunias that grew together to form a giant flower that resembles the Washington Monument.

Last week the Mail ran a picture of the James O'Day children and a sunflower over ten feet tall.

Reaction and public interest has run high. The Don Lightfoot family, who run the produce stand on Main St., reports a sunflower twelve and one half feet high behind their home at 337 Joy St.

Ken Kovach called to report a tall sunflower. A call from 700 N. Evergreen brought a report of a seven foot tomato plant.

Michael Hunt reports a sunflower 15 feet high. And Doug Walsh, 12, reports a plant over 10 feet tall and a sunflower blossom 16" wide.

Who has the tallest sunflower? The Mail would like to settle this thing, so call away, 453-5500.

Association President Roger Norris anticipates an overwhelming response to this emphasis upon Plymouth's adult generation. Norris feels that the Ball can become an annual part of Plymouth's gala Fall Festival.

The combination of Pablo and the Mayflower Meeting Room promises some of the finest entertainment made available in the area.

This being the last commentary to issue from this corner, I'm a bit at a loss for words which — let's face it — is certainly out of character.

Readers (both of them) have been asking what I would do for the last column, inferring that they were expecting me to stand figuratively in the center of Kellogg Park and shake my fist at the world in general and Plymouth specifically.

Nuts to that. Perhaps, however, the time is here to do some summing up, to reach for some conclusions, to make sort of a last stand.

These, then, are some things I've been riding hobby horse on for the past two years. If little change has been noted so far, more will become apparent in the years to come.

Plymouth needs to broaden its horizons. While this community has done well, thank you, with its talk of "identity" and "atmosphere," it needs to remain aware that any way you hack it, Plymouth is part and parcel of the world as a whole.

The retailers in this area had darned well better learn that some of them can keep going their own merry way for just so long. It is indicative that the most prosperous appearing businesses in Plymouth are operated by those men who are most willing to participate in unified activities.

These are the people who are eager to establish and maintain constant hours, adequate parking and new approaches to selling.

They know the secret to success is service and a self discipline similar to the rules and regulations that are enforced upon tenants in the large shopping centers about us.

Others are followers and hangers-on. Their cracker barrel approach may see them through another 10 years or so, but not much longer.

Local governmental entities will be forced to come to grips with reality. In the City of Plymouth, commissioners — God bless them — are going to have to dispatch their business more quickly and surely without so much of the attendant haggling and hair splitting that has marked recent months.

As editor, I have become aware of more than a little discontent with the commission — some of which I agree with, and some of which I think stinks.

For what it's worth, I think the late, lamented urban renewal project, properly handled, could have done a lot for the City of Plymouth. And I think the senior citizens' home is something we owe our older residents.

Plymouth Township is on the eve of having realistic tax assessment procedures jammed down its throat, something that's long and seriously overdue.

The township board, in my opinion, is badly in need of new voices and new thought and it's a travesty that one lonely man has provided the only indication of interest in the job of trustee. Admittedly, township people are little concerned with changing the status quo. After all, how can you knock low taxes?

The most pressing and costly problems to face Plymouth in the next few years will involve the schools.

I believe the Board of Education is making an honest effort to come to grips with the obstacles ahead and hurdle them.

They need support, constructive suggestion and one heck of a lot more interest in their activities that they've had in the past.

Mostly, however, it's you and I who will have to tangle with tangible and philosophical questions in our community.

We will have to face up to the fact that Plymouth can not, should not, will not remain a pretty, white ghetto forever.

It will become ever apparent that whining about the size and scope of the state and federal bureaucracies without vigorous participation in local government is childish and ineffectual.

It's also about time that we realized that local governments are neither inclined nor equipped to cope with many things.

This is the latter half of the 20th Century, not the 18th, and we'd better know it.

Finally, then, some thanks. Thank you to the readers who have been faithful to a guy presumptuous enough to call them as he saw them each week.

Thanks to governmental and business leaders who provided valuable news, advertising and personal support.

And thanks to the people who bore up under the hours and effort and time required to produce this newspaper — the other staff members of The Plymouth Mail.

Most of my gratitude, however, is reserved for a select group.

They are the ones who knew and understood why daddy was late for supper and seldom home afterwards. They humored his preoccupation with newspaper work and all that goes with it.

And if they don't know it, my two urchins and good old wife should realize that they had a hand in any successes realized during the past few years.

So it's with mixed emotions that I leave. Sorry to say good bye to you, but kind of glad that I'll be able to say hello to them a bit more regularly.

Speaking of Women Contemporary Art

It's no substitute for words

A can of tomato soup hangs on the wall of an art institute. Swirling lines are all that make up another picture in a museum.

"I don't understand it," many people say. Hal Stein, of Ball St., himself a talented artist, discusses contemporary art. Mr. Stein, who teaches art at Wayne Memorial High School in Wayne has strong and sincere ideas on the subject of art.

"The contemporary artist is a man of his own time," states Mr. Stein. "He takes ideas of the past and goes one step further."

"Just because it has always been a practice to paint pictures so that they are like photographs or representational art it isn't necessary to continue to do so."

"No one expects a doctor to only use medicines that were developed before 1900. Why put a fence around an artist and say he can only paint the way those before him did?"

"Representational art is a picture which represents something that exists. A spectator looks at it and is able to associate it with something, usually he has memory associations which he connects with the picture."

"A contemporary artist eliminates the memory part of the picture by painting a picture that doesn't represent something specific."

"A non-representational picture is an experience by itself. The painter doesn't want to paint a picture that can be described in words. Art should not be a substitute for words. Art objects should have a life of their own."

"A viewer must respond to the work of art for what it is rather than what it represents."

Mr. Stein gives two examples of conventional and non-representational art.

"In the conventional way the artist might paint a bouquet of flowers and in the midst of them would be one dead one. The viewer could grasp that the idea of the painting was that in the midst of life there is death."

"A non-representational painter might have lots of bright, gay forms on a canvas, and over on one corner there would be a ragged black blob. The viewer could then see that in the midst of order there is an unhappy presence." Mr. Stein feels that the contemporary way of doing it gives the painting a much more universal meaning. He also says that the viewer must work at appreciating modern art. The viewer shouldn't look at a non-representational painting and try to figure out what the lines represent. He should look at the painting and get what he can out of it as an experience in itself.

"A modern artist is concerned with total mental and sensory responses," continues Mr. Stein. "He is concerned with the relationship of shapes, with light and dark. For instance what makes a happy or moody pattern of light and dark?"

"Of course there are poor artists who are just throwing color around. But a highly trained artist can control depth, space, color and movement in a painting to create an effect and give the viewer a feeling or experience when he stops and looks at it."

Mr. Stein goes on to discuss other modern art techniques.

"Op art is as old as the zebra. Butterflies really look like light and shadows. The objects and their background are continually changing place."

"The principle behind this kind of art is the destruction of the object — background relationship."

In discussing pop art he points out that we are so accustomed to seeing things like brillo boxes in the context of a store, we hardly think about them.

"When the artist takes these everyday items and puts them on canvas we look at them differently. We see them as objects made by man."

"People criticized Jackson Pollock because he left spots where his paint dripped on the canvas. He wanted to do this."

"Modern artists show that a black line is a brush stroke, rather than a tree. This way people can share with the artist in creation."

This sort of thing also should help the viewer respond with his sense of touch. Mr. Stein uses a collage of his as an example of how this should work.

The collage is a bout fall and he uses real leaves to give a quality of reality, and helps the viewer evoke the feeling of running and jumping in the leaves.

Mr. Stein paints both representational and non-representational art, as well as doing sculptures. The main reason he gives for his painting is to satisfy himself.

Plymouthites visit churches

A group of 26 modern day pilgrims left Plymouth today for a tour of three Canadian shrines.

The group from Our Lady of Good Counsel Church joined over 200 others from the Detroit area.

Mrs. Matthew Krump organized a group from Plymouth to join the pilgrimage four years ago. It was so successful that it has been repeated every year, with several people going back more than once.

The trip will take one week with stops at St. Anne De Beaupre shrine outside of Quebec, St. Joseph Oratory in Montreal, and Our Lady of the Cape in Trois Rivières.

The oldest of these shrines, St. Anne's was built over 300 years ago by three fishermen. They were out in their boat during a storm and promised to build a church if saved.

Our Lady of the Cape church is 250 years old and was built at the mouth of three rivers by a bishop who landed there and dedicated the cape to Our Lady.

The newest of the shrines is St. Joseph Oratory, in the early part of this century built by a monk who had great devotion to St. Joseph.

THE RICHARD FRITZES have returned from a brief visit to New York. They went to New York to pick up Mrs. Fritz' parents who had just returned from a European vacation and were unable to get transportation home due to the airline strike.

While there, the Fritzes stayed at the Sheraton Hotel, and especially enjoyed dancing at The St. Regis Roof.

DOCTOR NILS J. KORSNES and his wife and two children have recently moved to Plymouth from Boston, Mass. Dr. Korsnes, a dentist, is associated with the Bentley Clinic.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Martin, formerly of Plymouth, now of Visalia California arrived Friday, August 12 for a visit with their friends Mrs. Maurine Baldwin and son, Robert of Ann St. The Martins also visited relatives in Detroit, before they left for home August 16.

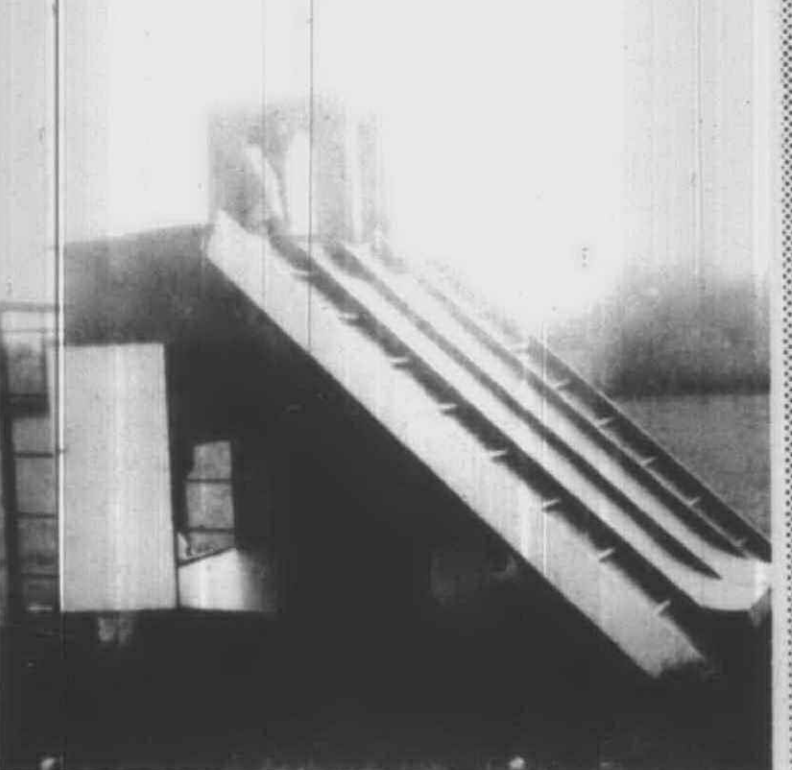

This non-representational painting of Mr. Stein's is done mostly in blues, and hangs in the Stein's living room.

Fathers' work makes children's play

This fun house was built by fathers of the Plymouth Children's Nursery, Inc. It can be used for playing store, plane, boat, puppet stage, and of course just climbing and sliding.

The idea for the house was developed by Popular Science magazine on the advice of nursery school teachers, pediatricians, child psychologists, and the staff of the Gessell Institute of Child Development in New Haven, Conn.

It took two fathers over 100 hours to construct it, many assisted in assembling it on the playground.

It cost the nursery school $250 for materials and would have cost $700 if ready made.

The cooperative nursery school has openings in the four to five year old groups.

There will be an orientation on September 19 to acquaint all parents with the routine and purpose of the school.

Further information and registration blanks may be obtained from Mrs. James Sonnega, 453-6069, or Mrs. Lawrence Venaska 453-6440.

Tomato soup adds flavor to cake

Mrs. James Hothem of Betty Hill Rd. shares one of her favorite cake recipes this week. Mrs. Hothem, the mother of two sons, Mark and Gregg, is the immediate past president of the Plymouth Newcomer's Club.

"I enjoyed it, and gained a lot personally," says Mrs. Hothem about her year as head of the organization. Although she plans to help in a small way with the coming election for the Republican party, her main plans for this year are to relax and concentrate on her hobbies. Her house is her main hobby. The modern Y shaped house was designed entirely by the Hothems.

"We started with ideas we knew we wanted. Then we visited models to find other ideas we liked and incorporated them into our house."

Mr. and Mrs. Hothem spent about five years designing the house so that is suited their needs.

They have many worthwhile ideas such as a living room fireplace the back of which serves as a bar-b-que for the patio.

One of Mrs. Hothem's favorite parts of the house is the large front hall. Any woman who has struggled with guest and coats in a small entrance hall will understand why.

A dessert all the Hothems enjoy is:

TOMATO SOUP CAKE
 1 cup sugar
 1 can tomato soup
 2 cups flour
 1/2 cup walnut meats chopped
 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 1 teaspoon cloves
 1 teaspoon baking powder

1 teaspoon nutmeg
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup shortening
 1/2 cup raisins
 1 teaspoon soda (in the soup)
 Cream shortening, sugar and soup with the soda in it. Sift the dry ingredients together and add them to the first mixture.

Bake in a 9 by 5 loaf pan at 350 degrees for about 45 minutes, or until a toothpick will come out clean.

Mrs. Hothem also recommends lining the pan with wax paper.

A cream cheese frosting goes very well with this cake, Mrs. Hothem has found. She suggests this frosting recipe or the one on the cream cheese package.

CREAM CHEESE FROSTING
 1 three ounce package cream cheese softened
 1/2 teaspoon of vanilla
 2 1/2 cups sifted confectioners sugar about 2 teaspoons milk

Blend the cheese and vanilla. Gradually add sugar, creaming well. Add enough milk to make the mixture of spreading consistency.

Mrs. Steve Arban

Miss Cahill wed at Greenfield Village

The Martha Mary Chapel at Greenfield Village was the scene, on August 13, of the double ring wedding of Miss Nona Lynn Cahill and Steve Edward Arban.

The former Miss Cahill is the daughter of Mrs. Teresa Silber of Cherry Lane, Plymouth and Mrs. Richard Cahill of Chicago. Mr. Arban is the son of Mrs.

Paul Tackett of Sandra Lane, Garden City.

Reverend Peter Schweitzer officiated at the six p.m. ceremony.

Given in marriage by Richard T. Cahill, the bride wore an ivory peau de soie gown trimmed in lace and seed pearls. Her veil was attached to a bow, which was also trimmed with lace and pearls. She carried white orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Deiter Luelsdorf was matron of honor and Miss Robin Jo Silber was the bridesmaid. Both of these attendants wore blue empire-waisted gowns.

A charming touch was added by the two flower girls, Jill Ann Silber and Stephanie Arban, and ring bearer Steven Arban.

The groomsmen were Scott Dodge, Calvin Silber, Terry Kot and Charles McWaters.

After a reception at Hawthorne Valley Country Club the new Mr. and Mrs. Arban left for a wedding trip to California.

The bride is a graduate of Plymouth High School and works for Plymouth Township. The bridegroom, also a Plymouth High School graduate, is attending Eastern Michigan University.

An August 1967 wedding is being planned.

INTERESTING OLD HOUSES

Story of farm goes back to 1825

The nostalgic charm of an old farmhouse still exists at the home of the Edward Ayers at 39505 East Ann Arbor Trail. Now slowly being surrounded by subdivisions, the old farmhouse was built over 100 years ago.

In 1917, Mr. Ayers' father, Harry Ayers, bought the house and surrounding 150 acres to raise Brown Swiss cattle. Harry Ayers had been raised on a farm near Dexter and always wanted to return to a farm.

Shortly after he bought the farm, the county took 30 acres for Riverside Park which runs along Hines Drive.

"It isn't profitable to raise cattle unless you can grow feed for them," explains Mrs. Edward Ayers. "My father-in-law then consulted agriculture experts from Michigan State University, who told him that the soil was too sandy to grow anything but trees. He then planted different kinds of fruit trees."

He called the place Hope Farm, and it was a well known orchard in the area for many years.

The history of the farm goes back long before the Ayers bought it.

It was not always a happy history. The land, as Harry Ayers found out, was too sandy to farm successfully.

Throughout the stark legal terms in the abstract runs the thread of human tragedy as time and again the land was mortgaged and foreclosed.

In 1876 a sheriff's sale of the property took place.

The story began in 1825 when different parcels of land which make up the farm were received from the government in small homesteads by several people.

In 1847 Thomas Gorton started to gather the land together to make one large farm.

There is a possibility that he is the one who built the house the Ayers now live in.

After Thomas Gorton's death his son again sold the land in small parcels.

Later some people named Springer bought several of the parcels. Although no one knows for sure the best evidence is that either the Springers or Gorton built the house.

The hand made nails, and basement beams which are merely logs cut in half lengthwise, with the bark left on are part of the evidence which indicates this house is at least 100 years old.

The land remained in small farms until 1904 when a Mr. Jones gathered it back into the 150 acres that Harry Ayers bought from him in 1917.

When Ayers bought the land he was in the coal business in Detroit. He had no intention of living on the farm. So he wasn't particularly interested in the house, it just happened to be on the land he had bought.

Later the Ayers started coming out on weekends and the house was divided into a duplex, half for the Ayers and half for the man who managed the orchard for Ayers.

Eventually Harry Ayers retired and brought his family out to the farmhouse to live.

In 1927 he had the house remodeled by Thomas Moss, an architect who remodeled many of the old houses around Plymouth.

Moss did an outstanding job adapting the Greek Revival style popular when the house was built.

Originally the house was a style often seen in farmhouses. The second story went only half way across the front of the house. Moss added to it so now the second story covers the entire house.

The Ayers continued to live on Hope Farm. Now Harry's son Edward and his wife live there, surrounded by many of the family treasures that have been collected in almost a half century of living in one house.

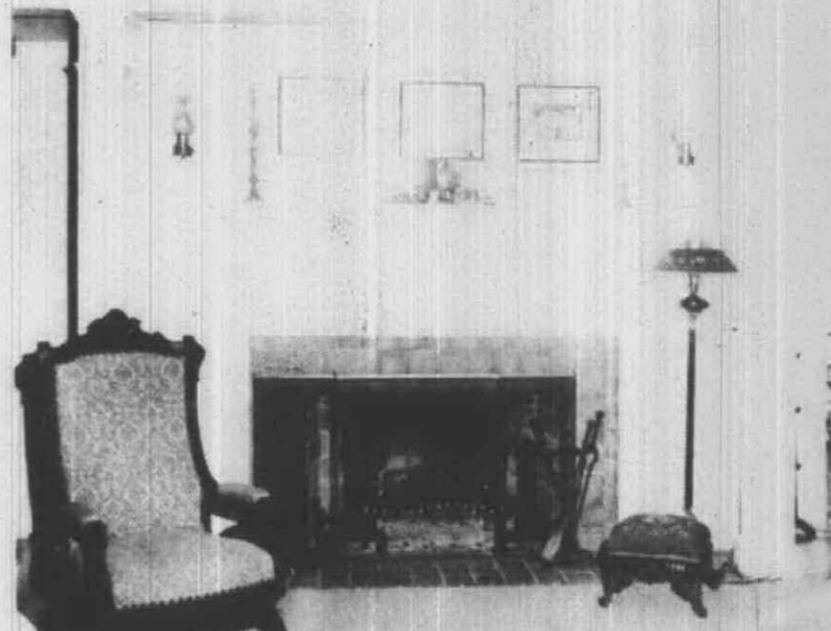

There is an old sword that belonged to Harry's uncle in the Civil War and an old roll top desk that Harry used in his coal business.

The Edward Ayers have two sons, Harry, who is married and lived in Livonia, and Jimmy who was just married to Sue Robinson of Plymouth in July. The orchard is no more. The Ayers have sold most of the land to subdividers.

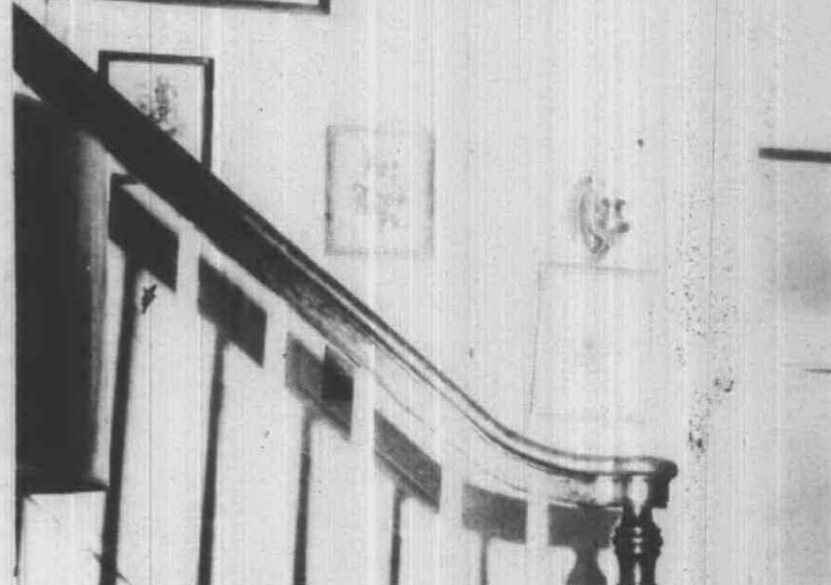

So the story of Hope Farm has come a full circle, from small homesteads to farm, back to homes. But the subdivisions are a far cry from anything the early farmers who struggled to grow crops on the sandy soil ever imagined.

The front of the Ayer's comfortable farmhouse has charming lines.

Thomas Moss placed pillars around the fireplace to emphasize the Greek revival styling of the place.

The paneled and flowered prints add to the simplicity and homey air of the old farmhouse.

when there has been no progress made in the current C-2 commercial zoning, I see no reason to expand it."

Koch was referring to the eight acres across the street on the Michigan Bank site, as well as the Lake Pointe commercial area owned by Fred Greenspan. Neither these two, nor Oldford, have buildings in progress. Oldford said after the meeting that the denial did not end plans for the shopping center. "It was disappointing. We will scrap everything and start over. But it definitely does not end plans for the shopping center."

Oldford, his father, and brother, have been local builders for some time, and have gained wide respect for the Woodlore development of homes. In other action at the lengthy meeting the commission: * Denied a request to rezone two lots of Arbor Village subdivision Number 4 for offices near the corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Haggerty Road. There were objections from area residents.

* Approved, and sent to the Township Board for a final passage, amendments to ordinances covering greenbelt requirements when a subdivision house backs to a main highway. Passed to the Board an amendment permitting banks in both professional office and commercial zoning.

Six hurt in two accidents deputies reported that David Wall, 19, of 12305 Beck Road, Plymouth; Mrs. Helen Dexter, 52, of Portage Lake; Mrs. Earlyn Dexter, 33, of Portage Lake; Allen Sampier, 14, of Portage Lake; and Pamela Weigartner, 2 1/2, of Portage Lake, were taken to the Livonia hospital.

The five were taken to the hospital for examination where Sheriff's deputies reported the two Dexter women, Wall and the tiny girl were being held for additional x-rays of bruises, possible fractures and scalp wounds.

The Sheriff's reports show that Wall, driving west on N. Territorial in a sports car, had just started over a knoll when he found a car almost completely stopped in front of him.

The cause of the accident? The sheriff's deputies reported that three boys, riding bicycles, had stopped in the road to look at some cows in the nearby farm. This caused the driver of the first car to come almost to a complete stop and brought on the resulting mishap when Wall came over the knoll.

He braked his car sharply, according to the reports, and it went into a spin sideways and hit the approaching station wagon, driven by Mrs. Helen Dexter broadside.

The left front side of Wall's car was completely demolished and there was considerable damage to the front of the station wagon.

Pens pollution article

Congressman Wes Vivian

Citizens across the nation have become aroused because of the deteriorating quality of the nation's rivers, lakes and streams. Government bodies, community organizations, conservationists, and many, many individuals are asking immediate and drastic action to end the abuse and to restore the quality of our nation's valuable water resources, so that they can serve better not only our present generation, but also our sons and daughters generation as well.

The 89th Congress is presently engaged in efforts to discern the most effective course to follow — what to do immediately, how to distribute the cost of local and regional and national programs, what research needs to be done, and so forth.

One such Congressional undertaking involves the work of the House Subcommittee on Science Research and Development. This Subcommittee, of which I am a member, is holding hearings to investigate the status of research on environmental pollution and the consequences of pollution on the health and welfare of the American people. Over the past several months, this Subcommittee has heard experts from all fields of endeavor testify on this vital subject. The valuable information collected during these hearings will enable the Members of the Subcommittee to recommend sound legislation aimed at curtailing water pollution.

I have personally undertaken the task of providing my colleagues, and the nation as a whole, with a more thorough background in the problems of contaminated water. Recently I began a series of articles in the Congressional Record which discuss the problems and consequences of unabated pollution. I am presenting this series in the hope that they will bring the issue to the forefront of national attention, and that they will provide the public with additional insight into this very complex subject.

Water pollution is a direct outcome of our modern society. The many advances that have taken place in this country — those which have contributed to the growth, development and prosperity of our nation — have placed a tremendous burden on our water resources.

We have now reached the point where Nature can no longer carry this burden alone: Man must now provide Nature with the means by which to defend herself against the many abuses of modern living.

U of M EXPERT

Boom to continue in house building

While residential construction is down this year, it will increase to meet rising demand and exceed any levels previously reached, a University of Michigan authority predicts.

Russel A. Pointer, supervisor of the state-wide Certificate Program in Real Estate offered by the University, says the forthcoming building boom is one of at least eight factors which support an optimistic view of the future.

- Despite the temporary effects of the tight-money situation, he says the real estate business will see an ever-increasing volume of business in the foreseeable future for reasons which include:
1. The continuation of the highway program on both national and state levels will bring communities even closer together.
 2. Recent changes in the Federal agricultural program will result in larger farms with more land devoted to agriculture.
 3. The effect of the World War II baby boom will result in a sharp increase in new family formations and demands for housing.
 4. While new residential construction is down now, it will expand beyond any levels previously reached.
 5. The increase in leisure time will see a change in living habits with a second home in resort areas becoming "more of a necessity than a luxury."
 6. The typical purchaser will continue to improve his living standards with new and larger homes.
 7. Industry will continue to expand its plant facilities and relocations will continue for some time.

8. More and more people will be investing in properties as a hedge against further inflation. In Pointer's opinion, today is a good time to purchase real estate if the buyer intends to take advantage of a booming market.

Volunteer teen finds more to life than surfing, Beatles

Among the hundreds of people who volunteer for duty at the Plymouth State Home, an institution housing mentally retarded, are many teenagers. One, Carol Schult, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Schult, 34035 Dorais, Livonia, wrote a letter to Bill Boyd, community relations director at the Home, expressing how she felt about being a volunteer.

Miss Schult is the daughter of L. Schult, a community relations director at Northville State Hospital.

Here is what she wrote: "Dear Mr. Boyd: "Yesterday, several girls (mentally retarded) went on a small picnic across from T building. I noticed one of the kids (it doesn't matter which one) picking weeds in a field nearby. I was about ready to go and drag her out when I saw the expression on her face. She was smiling. I had never seen her smile before, and when she looked up, I smiled back. She gathered the weeds in a bouquet, eliminating some of the dry ones, and handed them to me.

"They looked pretty scrappy and limp. I decided to tell her how pretty they were, and then throw them away when she wasn't looking. Before I had a chance to say anything, she said something very softly to me.

"Flowers, pretty." "Suddenly, they were pretty, I mean it. Seeing how this kid had put her whole self into picking those weeds, I couldn't fake my appreciation . . . it was real.

"Maybe she gave me the bouquet as a little thanks for playing with her and giving her a little extra attention . . . but in a way, I should have been thanking her. Thanking her for the many experiences she has given me . . . showing me even a weed can be pretty if it has an honest purpose.

"I am very happy you have volunteers at Plymouth State Home. It shows the volunteering teenagers there's more to this world than surfing, amusement parks and Beatle shows." This letter was forwarded by Bill Boyd, who comments "we always have room for more volunteers like her."

Sheldon Hayes makes grant to Schoolcraft

Dr. Eric J. Bradner, president of Schoolcraft College has announced a $10,000 gift to the college from Sheldon G. Hayes, Northville industrialist.

The gift will establish the Sheldon G. Hayes Grant and will be used by the college for student scholarships, loans and grants. A provision of the gift is that the college match the sum. Dr. Bradner said the college is taking steps to fund the matching portion of the grant.

Hayes also made an outright gift of $3,000 to the college for a Schoolcraft College sign to be installed on the campus, and agreed to underwrite the cost of a directional sign at the intersection of Seven Mile and Haggerty roads, Dr. Bradner said.

Lots of gas

The average Michigan motorist used 812 gallons of gas during 1965.

The State Highway Commission said Michigan motorists consumed nearly three and one-half billion gallons of gasoline and other motor fuels last year, an increase of 5.9 per cent compared to the previous year. Nationally, motor fuel consumption was up 4.7 per cent.

Student members of the Pilgrim Prints staff operate the used bookstore and have offered to give up some of their vacation time to operate the store prior to the opening of school.

New books only are sold at the new bookstore. Assistance will be given to those who need to know the books they will be using in classes.

College begins work on two new buildings

Trustees of Schoolcraft College last week (Aug. 17) set in motion the first phase of the college's 1966 building program when they authorized appropriations of college funds totaling $1,527,911 for five projects with a total cost of $2,283,078.

The college's share of the costs of the first portion of the program will come from the sale of a $3,000,000 bond issue approved by district voters on June 13.

Major project in the initial phase of the program is construction of a new classroom building at the south end of the campus. Of an estimated cost of $1,256,000 for the 32-classroom structure, Schoolcraft will receive a federal grant of $358,903 under the Higher Education Facilities Act of 1965, and $219,614 appropriated by the state. Both the federal grant and the state appropriation have been approved.

The classroom building will contain a 170-seat lecture hall designed to serve also as a small theater for musical and dramatic programs. Construction is expected to start early in 1967.

Trustees also authorized $89,000 in planning funds for a proposed physical education plant. Architects are now preparing preliminary drawings on the building, which will include main and auxiliary gymnasiums, a swimming pool, handball courts, remedial areas, and other physical education facilities. Schoolcraft officials expect to start construction early next year.

Other projects funded by the trustees were:

- Remodeling of the Forum Building, the initial classroom building. Cost of the project is $119,775, of which the state has contributed $37,500.

- Equipping the new Vocational-Technical Building and the new Waterman Campus Center; and purchase of instructional equipment and maintenance and staff vehicles. Total budget: $707,300, of which $136,150 is reimbursable from federal funds.

- Site improvements, including hard surfacing the north student parking lot, development of roads and sidewalks, landscaping and signs. Total cost: $111,000, of which $3,000 was received as a gift.

GETTING ACQUAINTED — Essa Sackllah, left and Lynn Bender get acquainted with one another as they both get acquainted with Schoolcraft College at one of six freshman orientation meetings in the new Waterman Campus Center on the campus last week (Aug. 15-19). Essa, who lives at 33522 Florence, Garden City, and Lynn, 634 Sheldon Road, Plymouth, were among approximately 1,200 entering freshmen who attended the get acquainted sessions and toured the campus during the week. Registration starts Aug. 29, and classes begin Sept. 1.

IT'S STATE FAIR TIME. Two children of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Benson, of Penniman Ave. size up two of Herman Bakhaus's prize Black Angus beef on his farm west of Plymouth. Paul, 6, and Kristin, 5, aren't quite sure how they will grill these two, which will be part of the annual State Fair celebration which begins August 26 and runs until September 5 at the State Fairgrounds near Eight Mile Rd. and Woodward in Detroit. Dr. Benson is an obstetrician. Bakhaus owns and operates Cloverdale Dairy; the handler in the picture is Charlie Bullman.

Both sides at College learn bargaining process

In what may be a pace-setting approach to collective bargaining in Michigan education circles, Schoolcraft College has sent both administration and faculty representatives to school to learn what happens when both sides meet across the bargaining table.

When Eastern Michigan University announced a workshop on collective negotiations in public education for Aug. 3-19, trustees of the young college in northwest Wayne County voted to pay tuition not only for a member of its administrative negotiating team, but for a member of the faculty negotiating team as well.

Why should a collegiate "employer" provide bargaining know-how for its employees? Harold E. Fischer, chairman of the Board of Trustees, put it this way:

"From the very beginning — even before the college opened its doors in 1964 — the Schoolcraft faculty has been involved in planning and policy decisions. We have worked consistently toward creating a common spirit among the trustees, the administrative staff and the faculty, and we saw no reason to draw the line at this point.

"We believe the college, its students and patrons will benefit in the long run if both administration and faculty possess a common background in the techniques and problems involved in the bargaining process," Fischer added.

As a result of the board's decision, college business Manager W. Kenneth Lindner, Vice President for Instruction John W. Brinn, and Anthony V. Rizzo, a geography instructor and member of the faculty since the college opened, attended the workshop. Rizzo was designated by the Faculty Forum, the recognized bargaining body for the faculty.

There were plenty of raised eyebrows when others of the 80-odd persons enrolled learned the circumstances under which Lindner, Brinn and Rizzo were attending.

There was amazement,"

Optimists win title at Jackson

Last inning rallies gave the Plymouth Optimists and Plymouth the nicest surprise in many a sports season Monday when they nipped Pontiac in Class 'D' baseball and won the state championship.

This was the same team that finished third in the local Connie Mack League in Livonia.

They dumped Pontiac 2-1 behind the three hit pitching of Gary Robinson.

Earlier, ace hurler Jack Robertson trimmed Wyandotte 5-4 as teammate Russ Carlson had two RBI's.

Robinson went six innings and one out in the seventh. Then coach Cliff Burpo sent in Robertson, who got the last two batters out. Earlier, Robinson had put one batter on base with a walk. It was a great victory for both pitchers. Robinson came from the Plymouth Elks as the Optimists were allowed to pick up players for the tournament.

The Optimists scored two runs on two hits. Carlson singled in Robertson for the winning run. Robertson at this point was playing second base.

Against Wyandotte, the Plymouth squad scored three runs in the last inning to upset the downriver team's appercart.

The Optimists beat St. Johns in the regionals 3-1, and then Jackson 2-0. The Livonia Giants threatened them early in the touny, but they turned the tables, and won, 1-0.

In the game Monday, Pontiac scored their lone run in the fourth inning.

Plymouth's cancer center has small budget, big work load

Cancer patients of the Plymouth community are receiving vital services from a Community Fund agency - the Plymouth branch of Michigan Cancer Foundation.

The Cancer Foundation is one of 13 organizations that will share in the $88,543 Community Fund budget for 1967. Its allocation will be $4,125, according to Mrs. Robert D. Nesbitt, general chairman.

Plymouth's Community Fund united-giving campaign will be conducted during the October 10 - November 4 period with Edward W. Schening as general chairman. Schening is plant manager for the Burroughs Corporation in Plymouth.

More than one-third of the Plymouth cancer fund - $1,550 - will be directed into research, while other expenditures will be for educational materials, pamphlets and films; for dressings and certain medical supplies; for assistance with scholarships and professional education. Other items supported by the fund are an equipment loan service for patients and the payment of certain medical care costs.

On a recent day, 13 Plymouth community patients were receiving help through physician or Visiting Nurse Association referral.

The Plymouth branch of the Foundation produces 10,000 cancer dressings a month and its services have been extended to patients ranging in age from nine months to 80 years.

Volunteers are mustered by Mrs. Nesbitt and her co-workers to produce the cancer pads, to keep many other items of supply in readiness, and to help with seasonal educational programs in the schools. Organizations giving the Cancer branch a lift have included the Grange, Senior Citizens, the Salvation Army and numerous church groups.

Equipment available from the loan closet ranges from hospital beds to emesis basins; from crutches and canes to walkers.

Available to the patient at the request of the physician is a limited supply of Hoyer lifts, Stryker frames, Barron food pumps, oxygen gages and masks, aspirators, I.V. stands, blanket cradles, irrigator cans, electric sterilizers, vaporizers, heating lamps, food blenders, traction and electrolytic.

Many expendable items are available to medically indigent cancer patients.

Information on the entire gamut of services, the loan closet and the referral system may be obtained at the Plymouth branch office of the Michigan Cancer Foundation, 173 N. Main street. The telephone number is GL 3-3010.

Plymouth groups take part Patient's Fair at Northville

On Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, August 23 and 24, two months of planning by committees and sponsoring groups will culminate as Northville State Hospital has its 14th Annual Patients' Fair. In order that 1300 patients can come into the hospital's Fair area, each for a two-hour period, and in order that 700 shut-in patients can be reached by volunteers who will be bringing the Fair's music, food, and excitement to them, much of the hospital's usual daily work is reduced to a minimum.

The diversified effort involved for this eagerly awaited event, co-chaired by Louis J. Schuldt, Director of Community Relations, 34035 Dorias, Livonia, and Richard V. Lindsey, Social Service of 1300 Lafayette E., Detroit, is the responsibility of many individuals.

As Ed DeSantos and his orchestra, Eddie Schick and his orchestra, The Smith Music Company of Plymouth, and the Patients' Combo provide the music background, the patients will move among the 17 booths, testing their skill and luck with the various games. These include ball throws, horse-race contests, easy bingo, and a shooting gallery. Many groups will be providing the necessary 150 volunteers, financial support, or both, to insure a worthwhile event, including these from Plymouth.

WILLOUGHBY'S
to know and care

Our shoes can stand his back-to-school detours.

A challenging tree. A fence waiting to be climbed. A short-cut that takes twice as long. He needs shoes as sturdy as he is—Jumping Jacks. They're made of fine prime leathers to take all he hands out. And they're unlined to give gentle support and barefoot freedom. Our experts fit him as perfectly as it can be done, so you can send him to school comfortably.

Questions & Answers

How can you make sure that sauteed or fried eggplant will be crisp?

As eggplant is a watery vegetable, it should be drained of its excess liquid before being cooked. Cut the eggplant as required for the recipe, salt the pieces, and let them stand under a weight on an inclined surface until the water has drained off. Unless this procedure is followed, the eggplant will steam rather than saute or fry.
