Lord Mayor of Plymouth, England, Accepts Centennial Bid

The City of Plymouth is going to play host to an outstanding visitor during the week of July Fourth.

The Hon. Frank Chapman, Lord Mayor Designate fo Plymouth, England, has accepted an invitation to attend the Centennial Celebration and spend a few days in the Plymouth Community.

This invitation is an outgrowth of the original invitation extended to the Lord Mayor by Philip H. Power, Publisher of the Mail and Enterprise, who acted on behalf of the Centennial Committee while in England some time ago.

Mr. Chapman, who will be inducted into the office of Lord Mayor on May 22, has written to former Plymouth Mayor James Houk and announced his acceptance.

Mr. Houk had been planning a trip to England for some time and had hoped to be in Plymouth. England, on May 25. However, in his letter of acceptance, the Lord Mayor Designate has invited Houk and his family to attend the induction ceremonies as his guests. As a result, Mr. Houk will leave on May 20 and personally tell the new Lord Mayor of the pretentious plans for the observance of Plymouth's Centennial.

Because of the importance of our visitor, the July Fourth Celebration takes on added significance. Originally, the highlight of the day was to have been the annual parade sponsored by the Plymouth Jaycees. Now, the parade will be only a prelude to other activities which will include an address by the Lord Mayor of Plymouth, England.

It also is expected that the Mayor of Plym-outh, Massachusetts, will be here for the big time. And, through friends, the Mayors of all other cities named Plymouth have been invited.

However, the visitor from England will be the principal guest, and his attendance at the activities will make the Centennial an event that will long be remembered.

Another industrial windfall has hit the Plymouth Community.

The Parker-Hannifin Corporation, manufacturers of hydraulic and pneumatic power cylinders, which has been in the Plymouth area for two years, has announced that it will double the size of its present plant on Plymouth Road, next to the RCA facility.

In making the announcement, funds of the city. The massive planting was the outcome of a study made by the Commissioners in a desire to keep the City of Plymouth a very attractive community. Through the years some of the beauty of "Old Plymouth" was lost through the loss of trees, either diseased or removed. It was the desire to regain some of the quiet, colonial atmosphere that the tree planting was agreed upon.

"It is our aim" City Manager Richard Blodgett remarked, at one of the tree planting sessions, "to have a tree in front of every home.

"However," he pointed out, "in cases where there is more than one tree, rest assured that the city furnished only one -and the tenants the other." "This is a great program."

Mayor James Jabara confided. "It-is one way of showing those who come after us that we appreciated the community."

hereabouts in years.

Under the terms of the agreement the study will be made by the Michigan Citizens Research Committee at a cost of approximately $500 to be shared with Plymouth Township.

The Township Trustees were first to approve the plan. This was done in a surprise action a week ago and also without a dissenting vote. At the time those in attendance waited anxiously to see how Supervisor John McEwen, an opponent of the plan to unify only the two areas, would vote. He didn't vote, claiming that as Supervisor he voted only in cases of ties.

While the study has been approved and ordered, three other communities still will vote on the proposal. They are the City of Northville, Northville Township and Canton Township. These communities have been added as an appendix to the agreement. Those who wish to join the study will pay their proportionate share of the cost.

Northville Township failed to act on the project last Tuesday night, preferring to wait on the action of the City of Northville which is due this week. Canton Township also will vote on the proposal during the coming week.

The request for the study has been sent to Lansing and the Board of the Research Council will act on it as quickly as possible. If favorable action is taken it may be several. months before the actual study is begun.

Should the study recommend the unification of the city and the township this could still be a long way off.

This was brought to the attention of the business and civic leaders on Thursday when William Gable, assistant director of the Institute of Public Administration and Associate

Community Center Plans For Area Study Approved

"Unification isn't easy," he explained, "and in cases where there is an elected charter commission, you have to wait the status of an "arena" and now until the two-year-terms of the commissioners expires." (Plymouth Township has a newly elected Charter Commission).

He also pointed out that a thorough study is desired before any attempt is made to unify an area. He strongly advocated boundary lines that would do the greatest good for the greatest number. And he stressed that before any unification plan is completed there must be assurance that there are adequate public services, such as water, sewage disposal, schools and the other services.

"Providing these things can be costly," he emphasized, "but the area must be planned and planned well before any steps are taken."

While he spoke to the Forum, the members of the new Kiwanis Noon Club also were guests and listened with intense interest. Among the guests was Mayor James Jabara, president of the new club, who let it be known that he was heartily in favor of the unification study.

Sunday, May 7, 1967

This projected study is to cost $2,000 and will be part of the building cost if the plan is approved. However, if after the study is completed, the project is turned down, the cost of $2,000 must be met. This is the decision the Commissioners must make Monday evening in the meeting recessed from last Monday. There still is much speculation on the outcome, but much criticism of the plan was erased at a long and earnest discussion of the plan a week ago.

At the conclusion of the meeting many of the so-called opponents of the plan, agreed to work and offered their services for any help that might be needed.

The latest plan for the Community Center calls for an enclosed rink, with a seating capacity, and an area that can be used for other activities.

Under the plan now being studied it will be financed through the sale of revenue bonds and should be self sustaining.

The general public, as always, is invited to the Commission meeting and it has been promised that the project will have an early place on the agenda. The meeting is called for 7:30 o'clock.

Adult Education Reaches New High

High School Diplomas Will Be Awarded to 30 in June

All Ages In Class

Plymouth's largest adult education program in the four years since its inception will result in high school diplomas being awarded at least 30 of its enrollees in June commencement exercises, Director Herbert Woolweaver disclosed this week.

A total of 158 adults currently are taking night classes for credit in what Woolweaver calls the program's "personalized curriculum" of 18 separate courses.

They range in age from 16 to 58 and show a wide variance in individual requirements which they seek to complete to meet high school graduation prerequisites.

When the program was launched in Plymouth during the 1963-64 academic year, the adult enrollment totaled 65. It has increased each year since then, and another step upward is expected when classes resume in September.

The current adult education class schedule runs through June 8, and those completing their basic high school requirements will receive diplomas in special ceremonies June 16, at the high school,

Anyone interested in the subjects to be offered next semester may obtain information by calling 453-3100.

No charge is made for enrollment, as long as the student is working toward a high school diploma, Woolweaver explained.

England Has More Than Mod

Mrs. Jack Cooper is having a hard time getting used to pushing a light switch down instead of up to turn it off. In her native England, Mrs. Cooper is accustomed to flicking light switches down and seeing light flood the room.

her hand at basket weaving.

However, extreme miniskirts may never move across the ocean to this country because boots and mini-skirts are dying out in England. Just what will replace them is anyone's guess.

Right now English designers are concentrating on men's fashions. The Edwardian look is "in". The well-dressed young man goes out in the evening wearing a ruffled shirt with lace on the cuffs. "But not the working man with family," stressed Mrs.

Cooper.

Class distinctions are much greater in England than they are here. The family man is kept too busy supporting his family to go in for such fancy finery.

The English family generally has a lower standard of living than its American counterpart, according to Mrs. Cooper.

"Many of the homes still aren't centrally heated," she explained. "Of course, you have to understand that we don't have the extremes of heat and cold that Americans do.

"We can leave milk out all day, except in the height of summer."

Mrs. Cooper was amazed at the size of her daughter-inlaw's refrigerator.

"The average English woman has a much smaller refrigerator," she said. "English women haven't learned what a luxury it is to shop weekly. They go to the store once a day in spite of the fact that most of them have jobs outside the house."

While England is only about the size of Michigan, each of it's different counties has a dialect and foods of its own. "I can't understand a person

"I like it here, but I don't really want to stay," said Mrs. Cooper who will be returning to her husband, and another son and his family in England.

For Teens The Big Job Hunt Is On

College and high school stu-

are scarcer this summer. To help the situation, Mrs. Eugene Crosby and Bill Townsend, from the Plymouth YMCA, are running a free employment service. Here is a rundown of the types of jobs available for teens in this area:

The starting pay for girls is during the summer. "Working conditions are gen-

Most of the openings in the nearby state hospitals are for childcare. Older girls are needed to watch youngsters at play, and teach tham simple crafts.

In some of the Plymouth restaurants, tips are pooled. This gives bus boys and others who ordinarily wouldn't get tips a chance to share them.

CONSTRUCTION -- This is a job strictly for boys. Generally the only requirements are a driver's license and a willingness to work hard. The hours worked vary according to the weather, but the hourly wage is about $2. Occasionally it is possible to earn more if you have a particular skill.

Beginners drive trucks and are general helpers.

YARD WORK--Often boys will band together and form crews to do different yards. There is a great demand for this type of work. But overhead can be high, if you have to maintain mowers, and possibly a truck.

Mrs. Crosby pointed out that it is sometimes possible to find " a higher paying job by going out of this area, but that most teens want to work in Plymouth because of convenience.

"Many teens lose out on a job they want, because they don't know how to act at the interview," said Townsend. "We've had employers tell us they didn't hire someone because of his attitude."

Townsend suggested that youngsters who are looking for a job pay careful attention to their approach, appearance, interest, manners and vocabulary.

"A slip in one of these items could cost them the job," he said.

If you've been courteous, well dressed and polite during the interview, and still haven't heard from the employer, Townsend suggested a follow-

Adam And The Fallen Man

By Earl Philip First Reader

Guest Sermon

In the Christian Science Church, there is no pastor, in the usual sense of that term. Instead, the Lesson-Sermon comprising scriptural selections from the King James version of the Bible and correlative passages from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, are read from the platform by the First and Second Readers. The citations are provided by the Christian Science Quarterly. It contains a Lesson-Sermon for each Sunday in the year, and is uniform throughout the world.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon being read this Sunday is "Adam and Fallen Man". The Golden Text is from Proverbs (29:18): "Where there is no vision, the people perish: but he that keepeth the law, happy is he." Excerpts from the Lesson-Sermon include the following:

Genesis 1:27, 28: "God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them. And God blessed them, and God said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth."

From Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures (page 516): "Man, made in His likeness. possesses and reflects God's dominion over all the earth.

This is the doctrine of Christian Science: that divine Love cannot be deprived of its manifestation, or object; that joy cannot be turned into sorrow, for sorrow is not the master of joy; that good can never produce evil; that matter can never produce mind nor life result in death. The perfect man--governed by God,. his perfect Principle--is sinless and eternal."

What's the first thing to do if you're thinking of remodeling? Remodel your thinking. A big part of the cost of home improvement is the interest on your-loan. The more money you save on interest rates, the more you can spend on your home. Logical?

Think savings. Think lower interest. Think CREDIT UNIONS. A credit union is owned by its members. And there's no point in charging yourself high interest rates.

Let's Build Barrier Against Crime Wave

Remember the old saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

No matter how old the saying is, it could be put to good use today as an unprecedented crime wave is rolling across the country.

Fortunately, it hasn't struck the Plymouth Community as yet - but it is getting a bit too close for comfort.

The brutal murder of two innocent little girls in Westland, supposedly by a 14-year-old boy, calls forceful attention to the fact that we had best take a good look at conditions in our own area - and act accordingly.

It was ironical that the double murder in Westland happened during the same week that the backlog of work in the City of Plymouth police department came to light. But it could be a blessing in disguise.

What can be done to halt the crime wave is a question asked on every side and there seems to be a different approach in most every area.

It's like weather. Everyone talks about it, but few do anything.

So, the time has come to act not alone to hold back the wave, but to prevent it from taking shape.

Thus far, most of the time has been spent on attempting to place the blame. On every side you hear claims that the fault lies with the parents - that the schools are too lenient — that the courts, likewise, let the perpetrators off too lightly.

editorial

Maybe so. But all of this comes after the crimes have been committed. So the question now becomes-"What can we do to stop it?"

Billy Graham, the famed evangelist, touched on this subject on television the other evening when he said, "we've got to let these young folks know that they will be punished."

He brushed off any thought of making the punishment more severe. He didn't say so, but he inferred that more severe punishment was not the answer when the punishment wasn't being meted out any way.

How can these youngsters be impressed with the fact that there is punishment for wrong-doing?

Perhaps, we will have to go back to the "good old days" when police walked a beat. True, they didn't cover much territory, but they safeguarded homes and maintained law and order.

You folks who can remember, will well recall the days when the youngsters, seeing an officer approach, would cry "Cheese it, the cop."

Just the sight of the police officer was enough to break up gangs and we never got around to such things as "smoking marajuana" or "sniffing glue." In those days it was harmless corn silk and even little of that.

With the passing of the "cop" on the beat things changed. True, it was an economy measure based on the fact that two police officers, riding in a car, could cover more ground than his predecessor, the "cop." But the one thing that was over-looked was the fact that you don't get close to young folks riding around in a car. More than that, under present day rules, the police officers are not allowed to leave their cars to-give chase to any one.

In the old days the officer on the beat not only knew the youngsters, he also knew their families and he was familiar with all the family troubles in a community And the best of them struck up friendships with the youngsters and earned their respect.

Glenny .. 5/67

Perhaps, it was a bit more costly. But it did the job. And it might be well if we returned 'to the "cop on the beat.'

Who was it who said, "The future belongs to those who plan for it"?

tory is made.

So, The Stroller strolled into the lobby of The Mayflower Hotel last Monday morning just in time to see the first official sale of liquor-by-the-glass since the hotel was built in 1927.

This was history - for it marked the end of a struggle of more than 20 years to have the spirits sold to the public in a public place. The voters ended the "dry" status of Plymouth late last year and now the fruits of that victory were being tasted.

Nostalgia and sentiment walked hand in hand as the first set-ups were placed on the tables. And, as could be imagined, the conversation got around to the building of The Mayflower and a bit of wondering what changes would have been wrought had liquor been available all these years.

"You know," Ralph Lorenz, the owner, remarked, "one of the most amazing things about the hotel - at least to my way of thinking - is the manner in which the money was raised to build it.

"A group met at the location one morning and by late-afternoon, $225,000 had been raised and the dream became a reality."

The Stroller learned that four of the original directors Ed Schrader, Carl Shear, Ernest Allison and William Taylor are still living.

"One of the things I best remember" Harold Fischer confided, "is that, as a lad, I used to come down town to watch the "Human Fly" scale the building. And that was quite a treat for the kids of those days.'

Casually, one of the guests asked "What would downtown Plymouth be like today if we would have had liquor-by-the-glass all these years?"

The answer was almost a chorus.

"It could have been a much different place," they said.

We might have had conversations and the like. Maybe a bigger hotel - and the rest of the downtown area would have followed suit - if the people hadn't voted to remain "dry" when the rest of the state voted against prohibition."

And so, the course of history changes.

A TIP OF THE TOPPER

Despite his admitted 78 years Karl Starkweather, the walking encyclopedia of Plymouth, attends the regular meetings of the Detroit Economic Club in the Veterans Memorial Building - and gets real enjoyment out of them though the trip takes the greater part of a day.

"I go down by train" he confides, "and it isn't far from the railroad station to the Veterans Building - just a nice walk. Then, I come home by train — and it makes quite a leisurely day." Not many men would do that - but Karl is always eager to learn and keep up with the passing parade.

Liquor By Glass Sale Brings Responsibility

Now that the City of Plymouth know, too, that the least slip will no longer is the desert of Wayne bring down the wrath of those who County and the public sale of liquor-by-the-glass has been inaugurated "dry." So, they should be overly there are several important things to be considered. First, despite the plaints of the do-gooders, the change has permitted the City to take on the aura of a metropolitan city and compete on even terms for modern business. This means that the City of Plymouth and its facilities will be more attractive for major dinners, large business meetings and such events that have been by-passing us because of the lack of the public sale of liquor-by-the-glass. Second, no matter how we feel about spirited beverages, the modern way of life for the vast majority of folks is to enjoy a cocktail, or two, before dinner. Or, of an evening, to enjoy the companionship and togetherness provided by the ever popular cocktail parties. Third, the public sale of liquorby-the-glass, is not a one-way venture. It carries with it no end of responsibility and the license to sell is also a privilege and should be accepted on that basis.

In today's world we are constantly under-going change. And the transformation of the City of Plymouth from a desert to a modern city, should be beneficial to all concerned as time rolls on.

The Plymouth Community, according to all planners, is due for a great upsurge in the next few years and with this growth will come increased demands for meeting places and who knows - possibly small conventions.

In these modern times folks go where the spirited beverages are available. So, with the change that has transpired this week, the City will now be in a position to serve the public to a greater degree.

Contrary to what many folks have believed, there will be no sudden sprouting of "saloons." The City Commission has dedicated itself to this safeguard as was evidenced by the refusal to approve a new license and re-instate an old one several weeks ago.

So, the change that took the City of Plymouth out of the ranks of the "drys" for the first time in 35 years, could be a help instead of a

Centennial Project Simply Misunderstood

No project ever undertaken in the City of Plymouth has been more misunderstood than the proposed construction of the permanent memorial for the Centennial celebration.

From the very outset the project, conceived in good faith, has been a sort of football kicked from here to there and back again.

The idea was fostered when the committee met for the first time and agreed to follow the lead of Detroit that started its Civic Center as part of a gift for the 250th birthday.

Joseph Tarantino, then general manager of the Gaylord Company, was named chairman of the Steering Committee and he immediately extended verbal invitations to all interested groups to come forth with plans — a deadline was set for February 8.

At the time there were three projects in the making. The first of these was a skating rink. Next was a Youth Center proposed by the museum.

Youth Center with the church as the locale was turned down. The Senior Citizens and members of the Historical Commission withdrew by stating they had no way of getting plans drawn and that this sort of project should be built by the city.

This left the skating rink alone. This was adopted. Immediately, the Committee learned that the words "skating rink" were not palatable and especially at a cost of $170,000. So, a quick move was made to become more progressive and adopt the arena project which would include the rink and become a youth center, too. This was at a cost of about $350,000, to be financ-, ed, if possible, by revenue bonds.

Under this plan there would be no cost to the taxpayer and the arena would be self sustaining.

This still is the plan. But somewhere along the line the thinking went awry and folks became confused, believing that the taxpayers' money was to be used.

Such is not the case - if the

For the past three years a handful of state retirees, without help from any group or organization, have tried to effect an increase in these checks. No change in the retirement setup has ever been made, however, in 1952 Social Security was incorporated with the state retirement which improved it somewhat.

Finally a House Bill #2123, patterned after the recently passed City of Detroit retirement raise, has been introduced by Reps. Bennett, Young, Kelsey, Ziegler, Fitzgerald, Mahoney and Jacobetti to correct this, but committees have pared it down so that only a few retirees before Social Security was incorporated will benefit. Is appalling that the great state of Michigan would have retirees with a monthly check of eight and ten dollars. Many have worked twenty and thirty years and receive under twenty and thirty dollars monthly. They retired under a low income, and figured in the same way as at the beginning.

In the last twelve years the state employees have enjoyed at least eight blanket raises. But not the retirees. And the employees raise planned for July this year will cost around twenty-seven million, while the retirees would be about two million for this time only. (Be-

How About Eyesore On Penniman Ave.? To The Editor:

A BAROMETER ON ECONOMY

When General Motors celebrated the building of it's 100 millionth car a few weeks ago in Janesville, Wisconsin, it was another glowing chapter in the growth of America.

If you'd like some idea of how the automobile has taken over in this country The Stroller calls your attention to these steps:

Founded in 1908, General Motors built its 25 millionth car on January 11, 1940 and the 50 millionth on November 23, 1954. The 75 millionth was built on March 14, 1962 and the 100 millionth April 21, 1967.

In other words, it required 32 years for the first 25 million cars and not quite 15 years for the second 25 million. It required only little more than seven years for the third 25 million and only five years for the fourth 25 million.

That's going some.

THERE'S REASON FOR THE SMILE

If you've noticed the big smile on Jack Selle's face during the past two weeks, don't be misled.

It isn't because he sold a few more cars. To him it was even more enjoyable than that.

The Stroller learned that Jack had been deep sea fishing in Florida and landed one that weighed more than 200 pounds. The day he caught it, the fish was the largest taken out of that part of the water this year.

Jack is anxiously waiting word that his "catch" survived the late rush and that he'll be the champion. If that happens he really will smile.

of my committee and as supported by the Administration, the amendments to the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 would continue narrow categorical aid requiring local school districts to deal directly with the federal government. I and other members of the minority of the committee have proposed that this approach be discontinued to be replaced by a system of wider and more general grants to the states.

'Widen School Aid'

"In the last few weeks our proposal, known as the Quie amendmeni, has gained considerable support among members of both parties -- so much support that the Administration has convinced the leadership to postpone floor consideration twice.

In the meantime, the White House sent out work that under our approach non-public schools would be cut off from federal monies. Some of you may have received such a warning in material recently passed out at churches in the district. Actually, nothing could be further from the truth. Our measure contains the same safeguards for children in private schools that are contained in the current law. The GOP school air plan would not take away funds from private schools as the Administration would have you believe.

Why, then, would the President go so far in attempting to kill our amendment? It all boils down to federal versus local control -- it's the same battle that was fought the first time around; only, this time Congress has more supporters of local control. We now have more Congressmen who have seen that federal control stiffles local initiative, involves reams of red tape for local school administrators and generally has wasted valuable funds.

Instead, more and more members of Congress are beginning to see the block grant plan to the states as being sound and ultimately bringing greater benefits to pupils in both private and public schools by involving a more efficient use of the people's money and wider latitude for creative programs to meet local needs.

The battle line has been drawn and whether this Congress will be able to stand up for what it knows to be a better idea remains to be seen."

THE ROAD THAT DOES DOUBLE-DUTY

The beauty of Edward N. Hines Parkway is the first thing you notice about it, but there's more to it than that.

Hines Parkway has few cross streets, and so it serves as a major traffic artery for west suburban traffic headed in and out of downtown Detroit.

Few park roads carry much traffic; few traffic arteries are beautiful. Hines Parkway thus is a road that does doubleduty.

Unique in concept and design, Hines Parkway is the sort of jewel found in few places in the U.S. Its only rival within a thousand miles is Fairmont Park on the banks of the Schuylkill River in Philadelphia.

It parallels a branch of the Rouge River starting at Seven Mile Road in Northville, going almost due south to Plymouth, crossing southwestern Livonia, slicing through Dearborn Heights and ending at M-153 (Ford Road) in Dearborn.

The road is about 20 miles long, and the park area surrounding it ranges from 25 yards to a quarter-mile.

The appearance is rustic throughout. But if you look beyond the park's borders, you can see anything — farmland, commerce, suburban homes, schools, industry.

Its facilities are many. The parkway is dotted with baseball diamonds and football fields, tennis courts, picnic tables, grills, bridges across the stream. Fishermen try their luck from shore for trout and bass, or whatever might come along. A few have luck.

In winter, other parks become cold and drab. Not Hines Parkway. There is ice-skating on Newburgh Lake, one of two along the route; and a big mound for sledding and skiing east of Middlebelt Road.

But mostly, people just relax. They get off the beaten path, they soak up sunshine or rest in the shade of a tree, they walk on grass instead of hard pavement, they look at the swift little brook with its streams and waterfalls and tiny dams. They can think.

The idea was conceived in 1930 by Edward N. Hines, then chairman of the Wayne County Road Commission and missionary in the struggle for good roads. Hines convinced the county to take on the project, and it remains county-run.

At first it was just a winding drive. But Hines pushed for acquisition of land along the right-of-way to create the parkway panorama. Grass, picnic tables and grills came first; game fields came later.

For years, Hines Drive extended only from Seven Mile in Northville to Telegraph Road in what is now Dearborn Heights. Then in 1956, Ford Motor Co. deeded 410 acres to the county for an extension of the drive, and the portion from Telegraph to Ford Road was completed in 1959.

In 1963 another attempt to add a section to the drive was made, but residents surprisingly objected and fought off the plan.

In time, however, Hines Parkway will likely be lengthened. Meanwhile, it remains one of the most esthetically beautiful and economically useful drives in the land.

VisitTo A Formal Garden On A Standard City Lot

By Betty Frankel

Clarence and Mary Stoll's pink house on Hillcrest Street in Farmington is as romantic as the formal garden they havecreated around it. The house has been furnished with antiques, and the garden has charm and perfection that only come from being conceived and executed with love and sensitivity.

The basic plan is simple and creates an atmosphere of dignity and formality. However. materials and plants are used in a natural manner, adding freshness and beauty.

The view of the front entrance is framed by the gnarled branches of an old plum tree. At this season it is frosted with fragile-looking blossoms but its chief interest comes from the bent old trunk that leans toward the door.

The surprises really begin as one passes through a rustic wooden gate into a narrow area between the garage and the lot line. Not much wider than a passageway, this area has been turned into a small courtyard enclosed by a rustic, stake fence and paved with flagstones. This enclosed court-yard extends beyond the garage past the dining room.

Against the fence, opposite the dining room window, is an unusual bird feeder, a long narrow shelf with a gabled roof to provide shelter for a statue of St. Francis and for the bird-seed scattered at his feet. A luxuriant winter creeper euonymous climbs the fence beneath the feeder, giving a splash of green all year.

BEHIND THE house is the main garden, a unique blend of formal and informal design. Gardens planned along for mal lines generally have a central axis or line of view which terminates in a focal point of some sort. In addition to the main axis there are often one or more cross axes so that the garden is laid out in the form rustic bench has been built against the silvery plank fence. The bench is sheltered by a slatted lean-to roof which gives small summer house.

Amont the other surprise features is a tiny fan-shaped pool at the side of the yard. Flapping its wings at the edge of the pool is a large black lead goose. Its upstretched neck and bill spout water into the pool.

Nestled into a corner of the pool is a single pot of golden yellow marsh marigolds. Later in the season Mrs. Stoll will left this pot out and replace it with a pot of native water iris. The Stolls have planted an assortment of flowering trees and shrubs.

These flowers, though, are not essential to the garden. They are merely additional decorative accents. The evergreens give the garden shape and structure, and even in winter it is colorful.

In contrast to a formal gar-START 2nd WEEK in MAY den, a naturalistic or informal garden has no central axis and has a less obvious sort of balance. The lines are generally curved, and even though nature is not being actually copied, the plantings are arranged in a more casual way that appears less studied and rigid. The Stolls have combined a formal layout with a rustic fence and an informal arrangement of plants. The definess with which this has been accomplished accounts for much of the charm and distinction of this unusual garden.

French doors open from the living room onto a small flagstone terrace, just large enough to hold comfortably a large, low octagonal metal table and four chairs.

Extending from the terrace to the fence at the far end of the yard is a broad grass path about six feet wide. Flanking this path at the terrace end are a matched pair of large upright yews (Taxus cuspidata) that are meticulously sheared into conical shape. Pairs of Pfitzer junipers line the path, and at the mid-point low pedestals hold small black metal urns.

The focal point at the end of the path is a bird bath that serves as a pedestal for a statue of a youth pulling a fishing net from the water. This dark metal sculpture is set off by the fine-textured soft colored needles of a cedar tree planted behind it and an underplanting of other spreading junipers.

Near the statue of the boy a

The $1.9 million Ford Life Sciences Building, which the Jesuits order dedicated Wednesday, is a new concept in campus' construction at the University of Detroit. The building, made possible by the Ford Motor Company Fund, the Kresge Foundation and thousands of contributors to the U. of D. Challenge Fund, was blessed by the Very Rev. The Ford Life Sciences Building, designed by Glen Paulsen and Associates, architects, Bloomfield Hills, includes three separate units -a lecture building, greenhouses, and a three-story laboratory building.

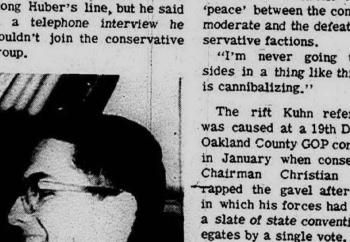

The lecture facility, joined to the others by two corridors, thus isolating it from the labs, includes a 275-seat lecture arena, a similar lecture arena, two other lecture rooms, and some smaller rooms.

The laboratory building is an unusual structure on two points according to Paulsen:

1. The general floor layouts are applicable not just to biology, but other sciences, such as physics. 2. The entire unit may be duplicated, as ground space permits, with subsequent buildings joined to the original and each other at utility and stair towers. The customary rows of long lab benches have been eliminated.

Kuhn organized the suburban group when he was mayor of Berkley in order to fight Detroit's income tax on non-residents working in the city.

Kuhn said the group's goals now are (1)to remove cities' power to levy a half-per cent income tax on non-residents and (2) to get a limitation on any state income tax the Legislature may pass.

Sunday, May 7, 1967 GOP Plans To Amend 'Great Society'

By Tim Richard

Jack McDonald, 34, was one of 47 Republicans, many of them young, who unseated Democratic congressmen in the 1966 elections, In Washington, the young Republicans have attempted as a group to make their votes felt and have tried to alter, without repealing. many Johnson Administration Great Society programs.

On his recent trip back to the district, we talked with McDonald about many things --conservatism, the image of the Grand Old Party nationally, the serious split between conservatives and moderates in his own 19th District organization, firearms, the economy.

The former Redford Township supervisor this weekend was scheduled to be in Lebanon for the International Conference on Roads at which experts were to speak on new techniques in highway construction. A construction businessman himself, McDonald said he was signally honored as a freshman lawmaker to be picked by his Public Works Committee chairman for the trip. He will return May 11. Here are the questions and his answers.

Factions To Merge?

Q.Christian Powell, the conservative who was chairman of the 19th District-Oakland Republican organization until the Republican State Convention of two months ago, has an office set up in conflict with the office of John Cartwright, who was recognized by the state convention as being the head of the Republican organization. Whom do you personally deal with? Or do you intend to try to deal with both groups in your tenure as congressman?

A. McDonald: "As congressman, I have a responsibility to all the constituents of the district, whether they be Republicans or Democrats--that's my first area of concern.

"I think it quite unfortunate that there seem to be two organizations in Oakland County. I feel that if the Republican Party expects to win control 'in the House of Representatives and elect a President in 1968, they can do so by offering good programs and by being unified. Without being unified, it would be difficult to do so.

"And I would urge that the two groups merge for the common good, not only of the party, but for the common good of all the constituents of this district and the nation." Q. Whom do you yourself recognize as the duly elected 19th District-Oakland chairman? A. McDonald: "I recognize the chairman that was designated by the convention, as the legal interpretation of our state law would state that he is the legal chairman, being seated by the convention." (Editor's note:

McDonald: 'Yea-Sayers Should . . .

group, and would hope to continue to receive support from them, and that they do represent people who believe in the Republican philosophy."

Q. Are any efforts being made to bring these two groups together?

A. McDonald: "I've talked to many people from both sides attempting to bring the groups together for the common good. Hopefully, some time in the near future, this could be accomplished."

Q. How near? Do you have any indication? A. McDonald: "Well, certainly before the 1968 elections."

Congress Conservative

Q. Is the 90th Congress more conservative than the 89th? How would you measure it? A. McDonald: "Yes, no question about it. The 90th Congress is much more conservative, not just because there are more Republicans, but I think the Democrats are becoming more conservative. In the 89th Congress, legislation was passed in Congress without sufficient debate.

"In the 90th Congress, a great deal of time will be taken up with going over many of the programs that were enacted in the 89th.

"One in particular, that my committee (Public Works) is working on, is the highQ. & A. possible to complete because of the cost; because of the fact of hardship, not only on business people but the hardship on the consumer -- the traveler.

"In other areas, we'll see many viable alternatives to programs passed in the 89th Congress. One would be the Human Investment Act that I introduced, that would really be a partnership between government and business through tax credits, so that people who really need training would be trained by industry and would have an opportunity then to go to work once the training was completed."

GOP 'Alternatives'

Q. You keep using the term "alternatives". It popped out repeatedly in your speech today. What's the reasoning behind this?

A. McDonald: "Well--the alternatives to what? The alternatives to programs that have been offered the last four years. I agree --whole-heartedly--with the intent of a great deal of the Great Society legislation: The fact that people are in need in this nation: that we have to do something to help those less fortunate.

that will protect their rights and their dignity as an individual: that will promote incentive; and that will give us a dollar in benefit for a dollar spent.

image of the Republican Party, because of the fact it has been in the minority so long, has been saying 'no' to many of the programs they felt were not good programs for this nation without offering programs that would take care of the problem.

"I think we have to be 'yes' sayers rather than 'nay' sayers, and we have to offer not only alternatives but new programs to prove to the people of this country we as Republicans have the proper answer; but even more important, as public officials, we have a responsibility to solve the problems facing us."

Firearms Bills

Q.For a couple of years, Congress has been pondering the possibility of legislation regulating firearms. Can you tell us where the Congress stands at this point and what feelings you have on what Congress should do about this social problem?

A. McDonald: "Well I'm sure that in this session of Congress, some sort of firearm legislation will pass both houses.

killed in our wars.

The attorney general has never given the official statement on this. But had the funds not been released, members of Congress would have demanded that some decision be made as to whether or not it was constitutional for the President to take this action."

'Economic Downturn'

Q. The American economy has shown some signs of sluggishness; in Michigan, we feel it most in automobile sales. Are we, in your opinion, in an economic downturn or on our way toward it?

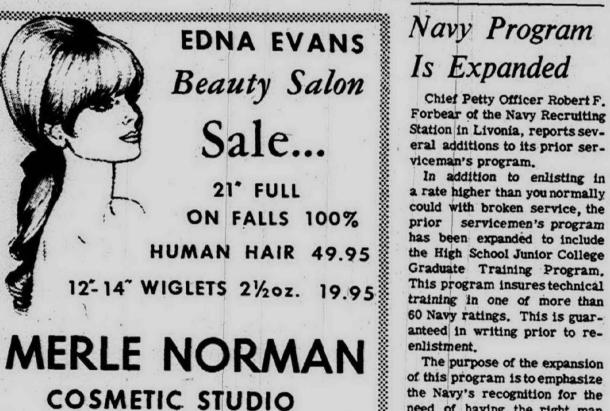

A. McDonald: "I feel that we are in an economic downturn. The latest indicators show the gross national product is not increasing as it has in the past. I think that if things continue along the path of the past several months, we could find ourselves -- for the first time in the history of this nation -- in a period of inflation and a period of recession at the same time."

Q. The first time? What about 1957-8? A. McDonald: "We had periods of recession at that time, but not with the inflationary pressures we could feel this summer, fall and next spring."

He meant John Cartwright, leader of the moderate forces.) "However:

"Once again I must say that I have received support from people who belong to each

Lefty 'Dandy' -- 2 Victories In A Week

"He's a dandy"

Coach Frank Fisher of Plymouth high's baseball team pointed in the direction of Dan Camp, a small guy, who is one of the best pitchers in the metropolitan area when it comes to schoolboy pitching. Twice this week, within 48 hours, Fisher turned to the lefthanded slant of Camp. Camp twice responded with victories--first a 4-2 decision over Trenton, then a 3-2 thriller over Allen Park.

The net result: Plymouth with a 3-1 record stands in the thick of the battle for the lead in the Suburban Six League.

Besides winning games.

In the sixth, Camp showed he can hit the ball, too. He drilled a triple and crossed with what proved the winning marker when Pat Williams singled.

Came the seventh, a walk to Carlson, a sacrifice and an error netted another run to the Plymouth total.

The pitching of Camp and the hitting of Dave Prochazka decided the Plymouth-Allen Park duel in favor of the Rocks. Two unearned runs had helped put Allen Park in front. Plymouth cashed its first run when Carlson was safe in the third and Prochazka knocked him across with a hit. It was one of two hits delivered by lines on the national scene. It also was the mile which made the big news last Thursday when Franklin downed North Farmington, 70 1/2-47 1/2, in a Northwest Suburban League dual meet.

What made the race all the more spectacular and exciting was the fact that sophomores ran one-two-three.

Leading the group home was Dave Collins of Franklin, a tenth grader who was timed in 4:28.4 for a new track record at Franklin where Dan Ryan ran a brilliant 4:28.5 last year.

Collins had to go all out to nip Rick Rabdall of North Farington who was timed in 4:29.5. A close third at 4:33 was Jack Clark of Franklin, another tenthgrader.

"This had to be one of the best mile races seen in a high school meet in a long time." said Franklin coach Dave Junke. Meantime, Franklin's 880-yard relay made up of Paul Lucas, Jerry Sabo, Keith Iler and Bob Rogalski sped to a new varsity record of 1:33.1. The former Franklin mark had stood at 1:33.5.

starred for Franklin. Garry won the low and high hurdles. Bob was second in 100-yard dash and third in the long jump. North Farmington's Gary Smith, an exchange student from Australia, continued his fine efforts with a victory in the long jump and another conquest in the 220-yard dash.

Franklin was third in a triangular meet in which Redford Union tallied 54 1/4 points to Edsel Ford's 48 and Franklin's 44 3/4.

Franklin was turned in by Troia in the long jump when he soared 19 feet, 2 inches.

Then it was Moersch, this time walking. Draughn doubled, Hellstein singled, Atkinson doubled, Salhaney singled and so did Paden.

All of which made matters easy for Wendrick who held the North Farmington team to two hits -- a single by Rick Knocks and a double by pinch-batter Don Petterson. Wendrick fanned eight batters. Although Franklin squeezed past Oak Park 48 hours later, the job would have been simplified with just a few of the runs from the fifth inning of the North Farmington game. Franklin used three pitchers, despite the low score. Rick Mack started and gave way to Fred Davies in the third. When Davies was hurt, Wendrick with a 3-1 mark.

Camp boasts an earned-run record that ranks second to none. In 42 innings this season, he has yielded only two earned tallies. This pair of runners was chalked up by Trenton after Camp had gone 32 frames without giving up an "honest" marker.

Trenton had taken a 2-0 lead before Plymouth rebounded for a 2-2 tie in the fifth. A twoout error put Rick Carlson aboard. Then hits by John Gillis and John Bida followed, the latter's knocking in the runs.

Little Hit, Big Runs, OLS Wins

If the Tigers could win without making a hit, what was to prevent Our Lady of Sorrows from downing Country Day, 5-1, with just one safety the entire afternoon.

That's right, nothing. Between errors and walks and the lone safety off the bat of Jim McGrath in the sixth inning, Sorrows cashed more than sufficient markers to make matters easy for Greg Main, who started, and Bob Thiesen, who finished.

Two errors, a stolen base and a grounder produced Sorrows' first run. Two more tallies came across in the sixth On McGrath's hit, a pair of stolen bases, a wild pitch, an error and three walks.

In the seventh, four walks and an error added two more runs. Main allowed four hits, but in a losing cause as Orchard Lake St. Mary's downed Sorrows, 4-2. Three of the runs off Main were unearned.

He now boasts 46 strikeouts in 24 innings of pitching this season.

Tom Webster singled in Dave Hickey with Sorrows' first run and Mike McAskin tallied the other on an error.

So what if Stevenson high's that accounted for Stevenson's baseball team boasts not a only, yet very decisive run. single senior?

Nor a home field?

The newest of Livonia's high schools is making its presence felt in the Interlakes Conference and one of the biggest reasons has to be Paul Tonnemacher, lanky six-foot, four inch junior.

Tonnemacher appears headed to writing a fancy chapter in sports before he is a member of the school's first graduating class next year.

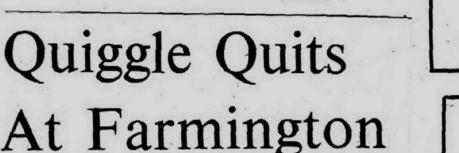

A standout in basketball, he is equally as brilliant in baseball.

Thanks to his artistry, and his bat, Stevenson stands "right up" there in the league's title chase. After three conference games, Stevenson boasted a 2-1 mark.

Tonnemacher came within a whisker Tuesday of joining the very select society of no-run, no-hit pitchers when he turned in a 1-0 victory over Walled Lake.

He gave up just one hit -- a single with two out in the sixth inning by the Lakers' Jack Norton.

What's more, it was Tonnemacher who cracked the hit

Lawmakers Hold To Party Line

State representatives from this area stuck to party lines in the 57 to 48 House vote Thursday that rejected a state income tax proposal.

Republicans ' Raymond Baker of Farmington and Louis Schmidt of Livonia were among the 46 Republicans and two Democrats who favored the bill, Democrats John Bennett of Redford Township, Vincent Petitpren of Westland and James Tierney of Garden City were among the 49 Democrats and eight Republicans in opposition.

The bill would have levied a 2 1/2 per cent personal income tax, a 6 per cent corporate tax and a 7 per cent financial institutions tax. It would also have abolished city incoine taxes on non-residents but replaced some of the lost revenue by earmarking some of the state income tax for cities, townships and villages.

John Fernald Directing Chekov Play

ROCHESTER -- John Fernald is back, working at the job he loves best--directing the Meadow Brook troupe.

For the past two months, Ferhald has been resting and making plans for the Academy of Dramatic Art which will begin classes in the Fall at Oakland University. Now Fernald is at the helm again, putting the company through rehearsals for the final production this season, "The Three Sisters" by Anton Chekhov.

Fernald, who came to Oakland and Meadow Brook from the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London, is perhaps best known in England for his productions of Chekov.

Fernald says, "If it had not been for Chekhov, modern drama would never have developed the way it has. He replaced nineteenth century dramatic convention with true with the New York Philharmonic on CBS - TV, with the Philadelphia Orchestra, and with leading orchestras in Europe. The Bentley Orchestra will perform the Egmont Overture and the Seventh Symphony to complete the All-Beethoven program. Musicians and critics pointed out that a concert of this magnitude is a monumentundertaking for a high 21 school orchestra. That notable results are achieved in the music department at Bentley high school are born out of comments of E. Green of the University of Michigan who said:

"This is in many ways remarkable work for an orchestra of less than symphonic proportions. Here is a string section that can really play."

William Savola, the orchestra's conductor, returned to Bentley this year following a leave of absence during which time he was engaged to conduct radio and symphony orchestras in Europe. He has also appeared in Asia and has been invited to conduct in the Middle-East.

The Bentley high school auditorium is located on Hubbard road at Five

THE CENCER FAMILY knows what it is to have trouble - but they also know what it is to have friends. Friends from the Metropolitan Club, having read about five of the seven Cencer children having Muscular Dystrophy, offered their help. Harmonica To Star At Navy Concert

One of America's masters Navy began when he was called of the harmonica, Richard Bain, will appear as soloist as well as program commentator when the United States Navy Band, conducted by Lieutenant Commander Anthony A. Mitchell, USN, performs in Our Lady of Mercy High School auditorium in Farmington on Saturday, May 13.

No other service band features a harmonicist as a musical star. But Bain has made his little mouth organ as important as any of the 125 other parts of the famous Navy ensemble.

An alumnus of the famed Borrah Minevitch Harmonica Rascals, Bain has demonstrated the harmonica's potential as an instrument for serious music. A leading critic recently labelled him "the Heifetz of the Harmonica." Bain's connection with the hower, to play the harmonica.

After his discharge, he began a concert career as a harmonica soloist, appearing with Fred Waring, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and on the Ed Sullivan TV show. He was recalled to the Navy during the Korean conflict, and since then has performed as guest soloist with the Army and Air Force Bands as well as in his Navy capacity. A frequent entertainer at official Washington functions, Bain has played for Queen Elizabeth of England and the Duke of Edinburgh, King Saud of Arabia and many others. He was a special favorite of former President Eisenhower, and on a Potomac cruise celebrating the Eisenhowers' wedding anniversary, taught the President's grandson, David Eisen-
