Mail & Observer Picks Mrs. Hulce, Schultheiss, Strom

Voters in the Plymouth School district go to the polls Monday to elect three members of the Board of Education, approve or disapprove a proposed $8.5 million bond issue for a second high school and a renewal of a five mill levy for operations.

The Mail & Observer heartily supports the passage of the two financial issues. There is a need for a second high school. The children are there.

The proposition is very simple —: Either you, as a voter, think there is a need, or you don't.

The situation is much the same on the renewal of the five mills. The issue was approved five years ago by voters as an essential need, and most certainly the situation hasn't become better. The truth is that the need is greater today because of growth of the school system.

But the matter of picking members of the school board is something else. The Plymouth Board of Education will have to resolve many major problems in the next three or four years during which the student enrollment is expected to grow to heights never contemplated in this community.

There will be demands for more and more schools to take care of pupils. This means more transportation, more teachers, more of everything. And it will take all of the efforts of Trustees to answer all the problems.

This is asking a great deal from a group of individuals who are serving. Why do they do it? Because they feel it is their duty; because they have the interest of the community and the school district at heart; because they want to keep the educational system at the current high level.

That's why it is so important that voters study the field of 12 candidates, most in Plymouth history, carefully before making their selections.

During the past five years, we have had an opportunity to watch the activities of the school board and those interested in the school functions with a great deal of interest.

It is our contention that those who want to know what the school board is doing and what is the thinking of the administration can get that knowledge first hand by attending meetings.

It follows then that those who do attend and do participate should be the most likely candidates for Board positions at election time. This group should also include those who have taken the time to cooperate in the various studies of recent years — auditorium, curriculum, facilities and finance.

Using that as a basis for recommendations for the election, we highly support incumbent Carl Schultheiss, currently vice president and a very valuable member for the past four years. We believe he deserves another four years.

There is a second vacancy for a four-year term. For the other, we would give a strong recommendation to Cal Strom, past president of the Plymouth Jaycees, but more important a member of several of the citizen advisory groups.

Highly qualified are: William Saxton and John DeMott, although we don't recall ever seeing either at a Board meeting.

For the three-year term, filling the unexpired time left by the resignation of Robert Tripp, there are two well qualified candidates. We recommend incumbent Mrs. Joanne Hulce, because we know she has been interested in school activities for years. She has been a member of several of the advisory committees and has been a valuable asset to the Board in the short time she has served as an appointee to fill the Tripp vacancy.

Mrs. Mary Breen, who has taught in the Livonia school system for years, is a member of the Plymouth Heights charter commission, has been active in Lake Pointe affairs, is well qualified.

* That's the way we look at the situation. It's your choice on Monday.

Ask Bond, Millage OK Of Voters

More than 3,000 Plymouth School District electors are expected to cast ballots Monday on two multi-million dollar proposals besides electing three members to the Board of Education.

Seven precinct polling places in the City of Plymouth and five neighboring townships will be open from 7:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. in the culmination of one of the most pivotal and carefully planned campaigns in District election history.

Issues facing voters are:

1. Shall the existing five-mill property tax levy for school operating purposes be extended five years?

2. Shall the Board of Education be authorized to issue $8.5 million in bonds for construction of a second high school?

3. Make a choice between the incumbent, Mrs. Joanne Hulce, and her one rival, Mrs. Mary Breen, to fill the remaining three years of an unexpired term on the Board of Education.

4. Elect two others to the Board for four-year terms, choosing from a slate of 10 candidates.

Superintendent Russell Isbister, who retires at the end of this month after 16 years in office, believes that the plethora of Board candidates, plus weight of the two financial issues, will bring a turnout of approximately 30 per cent of the District's 11,000 electors.

The high school proposition stems from a recommendation made a year ago by a citizens study committee relative to the District's needs in ratio to a mushrooming enrollment. Although there seems no quarrel with the necessity for another high school, some opposition has developed over the projected cost.

The five-mill operating extension is considered a dire necessity by school executives who figure they would have to cull some $550,000 from the next academic year's budget if it fails to pass.

Based on current state equalized valuation, the five mills represents an estimated $830,000 per year or slightly in excess of $4 million over a five-year span.

Although there are two separate school board contests, few strong points of difference have arisen among the 12 candidates, all of whom reside in Plymouth or Plymouth Township. In most quarters this latter fact is interpreted as meaning there is general satisfaction in the over-all district with the present board's conduct of school affairs.

Candidates' views and qualifications are presented elsewhere in today's Mail & Observer.

Here's Profile Of Candidates

As a public service the Mail & Observer herewith presents the profiles of the candidates for the three places on the school board. They are in alphabetical order for the various terms.

Candidates for the remaining three years of the unexpired term of Robert Tripp. Two Candidates, one to be elected. MRS. MAURICE (MARY) BREEN, 41121 Greenbrook Lane.

As both a mother and professional teacher, Mrs. Breen stresses the contention that she is better acquainted with student problems than her rival. She is a Wayne University graduate. She has taught in Dearborn High School as well as both the elementary and secondary schools of Wayne and the adult education program in Plymouth. She and Mr. Breen have lived in Plymouth five years, and she has served as an officer of the Lakepointe Homeowners Association and the Jaycee Auxiliary. Mother of three small children, she advocates better cooperation between the Board and other governmental units, plus acquisition of land now for future school construction. Her husband is a practicing attorney. Mrs. Breen also is a member of the Charter Commission of the projected city of Plymouth Heights.

MRS. RAY (JOANNE) HULCE, Incumbent, 9275 McCumpha Road.

Mother of four children, Mrs. Hulce has been active in school and community organizations for 13 years. This has included PTA executive roles in both elementary and secondary schools and appointment to two separate Citizens Study Committees for school development. She has held presidencies or chairmanships of such organizations as the Symphony Women's League, Women's Study Club, Antique Club, Symphony Ball, Plymouth area Meadowbrook Festival Committee, and Plymouth Area Metropolitan Opera Committee. She was appointed to the School Board last January and advocates: Increased salaries matched by improved quality; sound planning to insure new schools being completed, equipped and opened on time; better utilization of facilities, and more effective communications between school system and parents.

School Propositions

Propositions to be submitted to the Plymouth School District June 12:

PROPOSAL 1

This proposal is required to renew 5 mills for operating purposes which expired with the 1966 tax. The 5 mills renewal is to be voted for a 5 year period, from 1967 to 1971, both inclusive. All registered voters may vote on this proposal.

On the ballot the proposal will be stated as follows:

1. Shall the limitation on the total amount of taxes which may be assessed against all property in Plymouth Community School District, Wayne and Washtenaw Counties, Michigan, be increased by five mills on each dollar ($5.00 on each $1,000) of the assessed valuation, as equalized, of all property in said school district for a period of five (5) years, from 1967 to 1971, both inclusive, for the purpose of providing additional funds for operating expenses (the same being a renewal of 5 mills for operating expenses

Centennial Edition Planned As Souvenir

In connection with Plymouth's Centennial celebration, the Mail & Observer is planning a special Centennial Edition.

This special edition, which will appear on July 2, will be something unique: A look at the past 100 years, and a glance into the future.

We want to make it as thorough as possible. If you, or your friends, have any old photographs, letters, antiques or other souvenirs of Plymouth's rich past, we'd like to know about them.

Perhaps we could use them in the Centennial Edition.

Please call the Mail & Observer at 453-5500.

City To Be Given Real Plymouth Rock

The City of Plymouth is going to be presented with a most unusual gift as a remembrance of the centennial celebration. It will be a stone taken from the same docks at Plymouth, England, where the original Pilgrims set sail in the famed Mayflower for their new home in America, in 1620.

Announcement of the unusual gift was made by John Jarvis, a local official of the BOAC (British Overseas Airlines Company), who resides here in Plymouth.

"It is a gesture on the part of our company," he said, "and we plan to fly the stone over here and present it to the Lord Mayor of Plymouth, who, in turn, will present it to Mayor James Jabara of Plymouth, at the big civic dinner."

The City Commissioners and the members of the Centennial Committee immediately voiced their pleasure at such a fine gesture and plans already are underway to provide a permanent location for the stone.

The City of Plymouth has a "Plymouth Rock" in Kellogg Park, but it is a native stone. The same holds true in Plymouth, Mass., where the original Pilgrims landed. The big rock up there is one they found on their arrival.

But the rock to be presented at the centennial dinner takes on added stature and glamour in that it is from England. It will have a place of prominence in the city.

No definite site or plan has been made--but there is some thinking of having it imbedded in a special form on the City Hall lawn or placed in a glass case in the lobby of the City Hall.

The presentation should be one of the highlights of the entire Centennial.

City Names New Judge On Monday

Unless something unforeseen happens, the City of Plymouth will have a new municipal judge on Monday evening.

The appointment was to have been made by the City Commissioners last Monday evening, but due to lengthy public hearings, the meeting was recessed until this coming Monday.

Who the new judge will be is still a matter of conjecture. Since Judge Ed Draugelis resigned several months ago at least four names have been bandied about as possible successors.

Leading the group is Tom Healy, present City Attorney, who has intimated that he would be interested in the position.

The selection is important due to the fact that under the terms of the new state constitution, municipal courts will give way to district courts.

Workshop Leaders Agree

Major Study Needed On Rail Crossing Problem

A comprehensive study of the railroad crossing problem in the Plymouth area is going to be made in the next few months with the hope of easing or eliminating the alleged strangulation of business in the downtown section.

The study which will include such things as a traffic count of Main Street, Sheldon Road and Starkweather, the timing of delays at the various crossings and the possible relocation of some of the C&O tracks was agreed upon Thursday afternoon at a workshop sponsored by the Mail & Observer.

The business, industrial, and civic leaders joined with officials of the C&O in agreeing that a complete diagnosis of the problem should be made before any sort of remedy could be attempted.

"We will do our part--and even more--to bring about a cure," Buford Nash, manager of the C&O, informed the gathering, "because we are very unhappy with the conditions that now exist."

He was referring to the fines levied by the city for unlawful delays at the various crossings. These fines amounted to more than $5,000 in 1966 and more than $3,000 thus far in 1967. "We just finished a plan in Saginaw, Michigan," the C&O officials stated, "and it was much tougher than this. In Saginaw we have a yard right in the city--but we have worked out a plan. And if it could be done in Saginaw, there is no reason why it couldn't be done in Plymouth."

The proposed study will be conducted by the City of Plymouth, working in conjunction with the Wayne County Road Commission, the C&O and Plymouth Township officials.

The idea behind the study is to determine where the problem is most acute, ways and means of remedying the conditions and the method of financing whatever the costs might be. It is expected that the study will require more than a month.

During the meeting it was learned that there is a plan afoot in Washington to inaugurate a grade crossing program with the government financing the construction in areas where the cost would be too heavy a burden on the community.

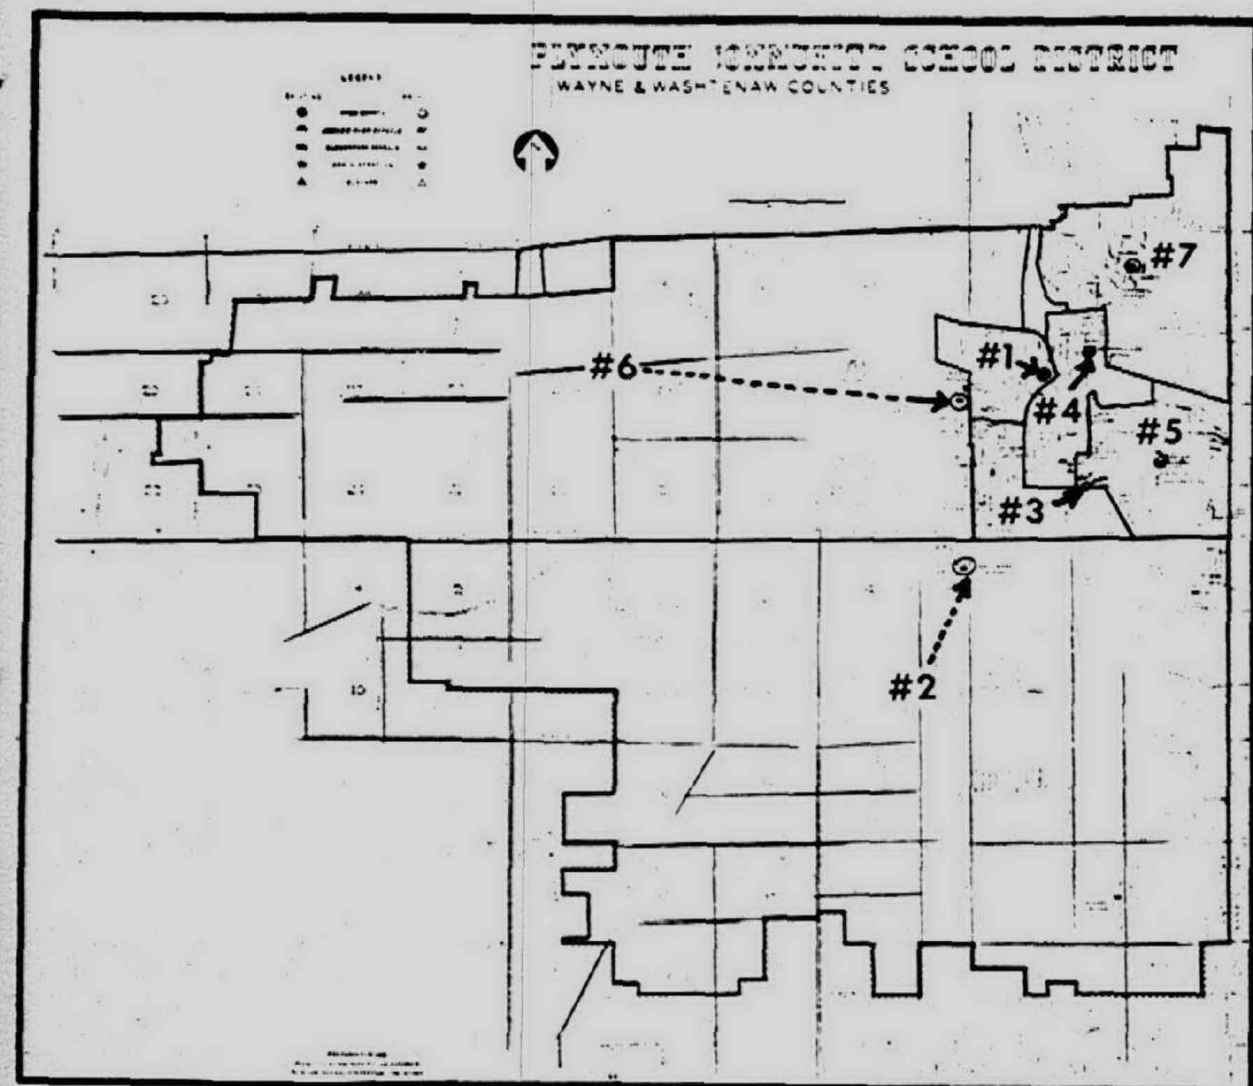

The workshop gathering agreed to alert our representatives in Lansing and Washington that the Plymouth area was vitally interested and urged support of any such bill.

Other possible means of financing which were discussed included the setting aside of a certain portion of the gas and weight tax each year to build up a fund for the purpose of

Your Guide To Voting Booths

Voters going to the polls Monday for the Plymouth Community School District election, will cast their ballots at seven sites instead of four as in the past.

The Board of Education added three precincts several weeks ago after recognizing that the mushrooming growth of the community made it necessary to increase the number of voting places.

Following are the locations of the seven precincts and the area included in each:

PCT. 1 -- At Plymouth High School. Includes City of Plymouth Precincts 3 and 5.

PCT. 2 -- At Gallimore School. Includes all of school district in Canton and Superior Township.

PCT. 3 -- Plymouth Township Hall. Includes City Precinct 4 and Township Precinct 5.

PCT. 4 -- Starkweather School. Includes City Precincts 1 and 2.

PCT. 5 -- Allen School. Includes Plymouth Township Precincts 3 and 4.

PCT. 6 -- Junior High West. Includes Plymouth Township Precincts 6 and 7 and all of school district in Salem Township.

PCT. 7 -- Farrand School. Includes Plymouth Township Precincts 1 and 2 and all of the school district in Northville Township.

School Propositions

PROPOSAL II

This proposal will authorize the school district to issue bonds in the amount of $8,500,000 for the purpose of constructing and equipping a high school, constructing and equipping high school athletic fields and for developing the site of the new school.

Only tax paying electors may vote on this proposal.

On the ballot the proposal will be stated as follows:

II. Shall Plymouth Community School District, Wayne and Washtenaw Counties, Michigan, borrow the sum of not to exceed Eight Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($8,500,000) and issue its bonds therefor, for the purpose of erecting, furnishing and equipping a high school building; constructing and equipping high school athletic fields; and developing and improving sites?

In addition to the two proposals previously mentioned, two members will be elected to the Board of Education for four-year terms and one member will be elected to the Board of Education for a three-year term.

Crossing Study Set

It was estimated that the overhead or underground passes would cost $2 million with another $1 million for street improvements in the city. And it was pointed out that a one mill tax levy would more than pay the financing of such a program.

However, nothing will be done in a financial way until the study is completed and the cost of the remedy determined.

But the first real diagnosis is being made--and that is the biggest step yet undertaken to find a remedy for a problem that has been troubling the area for years.

Rooftop Thieves Blanked

Thieves came down through the roof in two daring attempts at robbery in downtown Plymouth last week--but fortunately, nothing was stolen. The first attempt reported was at the office of Dr. Gerald H. Fitch, 320 South Main Street, and the second at the National Bank of Detroit at the corner of Main Street and Peniman.

The City Police immediately notified the FBI in the bank case and investigation is now underway.

Night School Plans Graduation For 30

In separate graduation exercises, 30 of the 182 students enrolled in the Evening School Credit Program will receive Plymouth High School diplomas in a special ceremony Friday, June 16.

Herbert Woolweaver, director of the Adult Education program under whose auspices the credit courses are conducted, said the age span of these graduates ranges from 18 to 41.

In many cases they started high school careers in other cities and states, and for a variety of personal reasons later found it necessary to leave school.

Their diplomas will be presented at a program scheduled for 1:00 p.m., June 16, in the Home Economics room at the high school. The presentations will be made by high school Principal Carvel M. Bentley, with members of the Board of Education also attending.

The program of evening classes for prescribed high school credits was started here in 1963, and this year's class of graduates is the largest to date.

Courses will be renewed in the fall and enrollment is free to both residents and non-residents who either are working toward a diploma, are taking post-graduate work under the age of 20, or are veterans of the armed services.

Let Your Conscience Be Your Guide When You Enter Booth In School Election

There are several very important things to consider as you wend your way to the polls on Monday to cast your vote in the school election.

The first of these is the fact that the Plymouth Community is no longer the cozy little section of Western Wayne County where folks, in a sense, lived unto themselves.

Second it must be realized that great changes have taken place in our way of life and that education no longer is a simple matter of just the rudiments of the three R's.

And the third item is the realization that costs in all areas of life have been ascending with the result that it requires a great deal more money to erect the most simple type of building.

Finally, determining the people you want to run the school system, in all of its ramifications, is most vital.

For these reasons Monday's election is one of the most important in years and the decisions made when voters step behind the curtain will have an impact on the community for many moons.

In admitting that the Plymouth Community no longer is the cozy little section you come to the stark fact that this is a fast growing area — with one of the greatest potentials of any in the state.

With the population explosion the entire area is going to grow. There will be countless additional children to be educated. This means fitting them mentally to face a much different world than you, as parents, knew when you attended school.

These new students are entitled to the best that can be offered, for it will be a battle of survival in the automated world we are facing. Perhaps, even the best may not be good enough.

And the cost?

Sometimes we look at matters with jaundiced eyes, but one thing stands out — prices are higher today than ever they were and if you want something good you will have to pay for it.

Sure, there may be what we sometimes call "frill" in the buildings — but these are all part of the new type education the youngsters of today must possess when they enter the business world on their own.

In the final analysis, you get only what you pay for.

There is another side, too. With the population explosion we will need a broader tax base to take some of the burden from the home owner. That means we must attract new industry — perhaps a lot of it. And one of the main lures to attract any industry is a good school system.

That brings us down to personalities . . . and your choice is most vital. This is a time when friendship and sentiment should cease and good, hard, common sense take over.

Running a school system is a big business. It should be handled as such.

So, in making your selections, make certain that you have chosen the persons who will do the best job — business wise.

And, above all, make sure you go to the polls and exercise the privilege of making your selections.

Don't take things for granted — and then moan at the outcome.

Do your part. Vote!

It wouldn't be difficult to find the proudest man in Plymouth these days.

He is Harold Fischer, director of the Area Planning Commission, and the big smile on his face is not because he has just induced some big, new industry to locate in the area.

That would please him, no end. But his present pleasantness and broad smile came about because his son, Mark, graduated at West Point during the past week.

Any father who has a son capable of surviving the rigors of West Point has a right to be proud.

Graduation at the Point marks the conclusion of four of the "toughest" years a boy — or young man — can have. And, unless you have visited the Army citadel on the Hudson you can't possibly appreciate the work required of the cadets.

For example, during their freshman year, they are not allowed to walk within the confines of "The Square" at anytime. They must be on a trot at all times. All this, aside from some of the most difficult courses assigned to students anywhere.

So, when a boy comes to the end of the line in good standing he has a right to feel that he has accomplished something. And the parents have a right to be proud, too.

No wonder Harold and Mrs. Fischer are all smiles and at peace with the world these days.

Letters To The Editor Gluttons For Punishment

Dear Editor:

I had the pleasure—or patience to sit through a meeting of the City Commission last Monday evening and what I saw and heard has left me sadder but much wiser.

There was a time when I looked upon the members of the City Commission as a group of autocrats who delighted in throwing their power around and making the taxpayers like it. Their action on the closing of an alley against the peoples wishes a few weeks ago was a prime example.

But my attitude was changed last Monday night and I have developed a greater degree of respect for these men whom I learned—to my astonishment—receive the munificent sum of $10 per meeting. The abuse they must take as representatives of the taxpayers was way beyond my wildest imagination.

It was a bit surprising to learn that instead of trying to eliminate some of the criticism and barbs thrown their way, they actually encourage it by scheduling as many as four public hearings at one meeting. At least this was the case last Monday night.

From what I saw and heard one public hearing a night would be sufficient.

I could have fallen off my chair when I learned that the delegation from Evergreen was there to protest to the paving of the street. I was even more amazed when, in a body, they informed the Commission they much preferred the rural atmosphere of a "small town", and this could be retained with a gravel street.

Oh yes, they didn't mind installation of curb and gutters. But paving, Oh no.

Here was a plan to help make Plymouth an up-to-date modern city—and it was protested on the grounds that folks want to remain "rural".

That was bad enough. But, much to my surprise, the worst was yet to come.

It happened when the spokesman for the group demanding the re-opening of the vacated alley inferred that the entire affair was a "shady" deal.

How could an individual Commissioner or the entire group be accused of such tactics on the closing of a mere alley. And all for $10 per meeting.

I went to the meeting in the hope of learning something about our city government. I did. I found that the Commissioners are gluttons for punishment.

IMA MAIZED

I was delighted when I entered the room and saw so many folks in attendance. I was naive enough to believe that most of them were in the same position as me—wanting to learn about city government.

What a shock I got!

It came at the close of the first public hearing. No sooner had the Mayor declared the meeting closed than an entire group up and left. Not one of them was interested beyond his own problem.

The same thing followed each hearing until, after the fourth, there was scarcely anyone present.

To me it was an evening of surprise in that I was glad I attended, but I must admit I learned little of city government.

A NEWCOMER

Public Hearings Shock Newcomer

Dear Editor:

For years I have been told that folks should take an interest in their local government—attend the meetings and follow what is happening in the area.

I was told that this was not only educational, but made for sensible conversation when out in groups.

Until we moved to Plymouth I never had heeded the advice. I was satisfied to let government officials to themselves—and I would mind my own business.

Now, as a newcomer, I thought it might be well to heed the advice and attend the meetings of our City Commission.

I attended the meeting last Monday evening. And if that is a sample of what happens at all meetings, then, Mister Editor, I have had enough.

I sat in the Commission chamber for more than three hours and I learned very little beyond the fact that people are selfish—and that there was some poor planning on the part of those in authority who prepare for the sessions.

In the first place I had never hear of such a thing as four public hearings in one evening at a regular meeting. What on earth could the Commissioners expect to accomplish, aside from the hearings. I understand that it is not the policy to act on any subject debated at a public hearing on the same evening.

Likes Student Art Displays

Dear Sir,

I would like to say a word of appreciation and thank you to the people responsible for the display of student art work in the local merchant stores.

My family and I received a great deal of pleasure in touring the store windows and examining the creative thoughts, expressed in a variety of art medium, of Plymouth students. It's a wonderful idea.

Sincerely,
MRS. R. T. ARLEN

Be Careful! Summer Is Dangerous Time

Now that summer is here, the schools are closed and we have longer periods of daylight, we are at one of the most dangerous periods of the year on the streets and highways.

With more folks traveling, either on vacations or just little jaunts to the markets and shopping areas, the element of chance is increased. For that reason driving is becoming more of a hazard and more and more responsibility is placed on the drivers.

One must remember that many of the folks on the highways at this period of the year don't travel over them very often and, therefore, are not too familiar with the ways of freeway driving. They should be given the advantage at every opportunity.

It is the same way in the cities. We will have young folks in larger numbers wending their way in the danger zones of the intersections. Many of them will be jaywalking — often to the irritation of the driver.

But one must remember that life is priceless and every effort must be made to keep death from riding the streets and highways — and moreso during these hot summer days.

It may be an extra burden on the driver, but it will be worth it.

There's Job To Do In School Vacation

In a few more days the young folks will be out of school for the summer and, possibly, things won't be the same around the house.

Before one complains of the added commotion and the fact that the usual tranquility of the home has been disturbed it might be well to look at the other side of the coin.

The period of the year when the children are free from the daily requirements of school could be a time of golden opportunity to get to know your offspring a bit better.

It is a known fact that there seldom is any trouble in a home where the parents become "pals" of their youngsters. You see Mother and daughter team up in various activities and fathers join with their sons to become buddies.

Conversely, it is from the home where such comradeship is not known that much of our trouble of today springs. The parents "don't have time" to take the youngsters into consideration.

First, the father works all day in the plant, or goes through mental strain in the office, and wants a rest when he gets to his "castle." Likewise, the mother goes through the hum-drum of keeping the home up to standard and is tired in the evening. Or, she may be a club woman, and tire herself at social functions during the day. Either way, the result is the same. They are too exhausted to take the time to enjoy some activity in common with the youngsters.

Such excuses can be accepted through most of the year. Good, reliable parents don't rely on alibis. They find the time to become "pals" with their children.

But now, with the school children on vacation, there can be no alibi. The children are available at all hours and it is a matter of record that they crave the companionship of their parents.

Perhaps, it will be just a trip to the playgrounds or a family picnic. It may be to a swimming pool or a fishing trip. At any rate there are many things available for the entire family to enjoy.

There is an axiom that nothing brings out the best in man more than a few hours on a fishing trip. This could be true in the case of father and son. By the same token there are many activities in which the mother-daughter combination would find enjoyment.

It is this "togetherness" that has done a world of good in many families. In fact, it has saved many homes. And what has happened in the past can happen again.

More of this type of activity during the summer would have a carry-over into the fall and winter. And it could be the best deterrent to crime there is in any community.

This is something to think about — now that school is out for the summer.

If you have had any misgivings regarding the children, or the "buddies" they've had at school, now is the time to step in and create the comradeship that is so vital to a happy home.

It may be a vacation for the youngsters—but it is the time when most parents could do their best job.

THINGS I NEVER KNEW 'TIL NOW:

From the National Livestock Meat Board comes these gems of information:

Last year, enough beef was consumed to average 103.3 pounds — an all-time high — for every person in this country.

American consumers had to spend 58 per cent of their earnings on food in the 1870's. Now they spend just 18.2 per cent of disposable income on food. This is the lowest in history, so they say.

This also compares with 29 cents on the dollar in England, 31 cents in France, 45 cents in Italy, and 53 cents in Russia.

Here's another dandy —

In less than 37 hours, the smallest number in history, today's American factory worker earns the cost of his monthly grocery basket.

Plymouth School Board Election Candidates Reviewed

Candidates for regular four-year terms. Ten candidates, two to be elected:

JOHN BATSAKIS, 1058 Maple.

Mr. Batsakis holds a Master's Degree in School Administration from the University of Michigan and during World War II won the Distinguished Flying Cross and 10 other battle decorations as a combat flyer. He hopes to activate citizens' interest in the schools to accomplish: Added personnel services, enlarged administrative services, better physical facilities, expanded services for exceptional children, more effective community relationships, more emphasis on health and safety factors, and increased curriculum offerings. He stresses that "every person of school age should be permitted to secure his education without cost to him." He is presently completing his 14th year as an elementary school teacher in Walled Lake.

JAMES BROWN, 47111 W. ANN ARBOR TRAIL.

Mr. Brown has been awarded college Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Master's and Doctor's degrees in the field of chemistry and currently is chief chemist of the Hydromotion Engineering Co. He and Mrs. Brown have two children enrolled in Plymouth schools. He possesses permanent elementary and secondary teaching certificates for Michigan, and is a senior member of the American Chemical Society.

JOHN DeMOTT, 1482 Sheridan.

Father of four boys enrolled in Plymouth schools, Mr. DeMott has held chairmanships of both the Citizens Curriculum Committee and Citizens School Planning Committee, served as president of the Bird School PTA, and was a member of the committee for planning the new high school. He has been a home-owner in the District 14 years and foresees an explosive school population growth, calls for a greater variety of school services, demands for more operating funds, reassessment of relations between teachers and the community, and fast development of new concepts such as year-round schooling and individually-tailored courses. Mr. DeMott is employed by the Ford Motor Co.

PATRICK FOLEY, 1022 Penniman.

Mr. Foley and his family, including four young children, moved to Plymouth little more than a year ago after he concluded seven years in state government. During that period he served six years as special assistant and legal advisor to Secretary of State James Hare and one year as assistant attorney general. He now is in private law practice in Detroit and holds a law degree from the University of Michigan. He has stressed that the school system must grow to meet the needs of a booming population, yet return to a pay-as-you-go plan of financing as early as possible. He foresees the day when the Plymouth District may need a third, or even fourth high school, and advocates proper advance planning to meet the situation when it arises.

SMITH HORTON, 42057 Lind-say.

Mr. Horton's objective is to establish a better means of communication between parents and the school administration. He feels neighborhood meetings can provide an opportunity for cross pollination of ideas and information leading to answers for such matters as curriculum, grading practices, discipline, special education programs, lunch program, bus system and special events. A Business Administration graduate of Michigan State, he also holds a degree in Governmental Administration from the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. Horton have two small sons, and he is employed by the Ford Motor Co.

CHARLES LAZETTE, 41351 Five Mile Rd.

Main points of Mr. Lazette's campaign are better communication between the school system and parents, have new facilities ready for use when they are needed, and ease crowded conditions in present classrooms. Mr. Lazette is a former school teacher who now is employed by the Plymouth Stamp- ing Co. He and Mrs. Lazette have four children.

JOHN MURAWSKI, 41020 Greenbriar Lane.

Mr. Murawski has been active in such civic endeavors as the Community Opportunity Center, Research Committee for Vocational Training, Fall Festival, and Plymouth Centennial. As a member of the Jaycees, Chamber of Commerce, Father and Son "Y" Indian Guides and Kiwanians he has worked for general community advancement. He will receive his Bachelor's Degree in Industrial Management from Cleary College June 17 and meanwhile is employed by the Gaylord Container Division of Crown-Zellerbach. He and Mrs. Murawski are parents of four small children. His major campaign points advocate effective use of communications, progressive outlook for all levels of education, proper use of school facilities, constructive use of financing and procurement of funds, and balanced school board activities.

WILLIAM SAXTON, 1190 Ross.

Mr. Saxton is the lone independent businessman among the candidates. Co-owner of Saxton's Garden Center, Inc., he suggests that a committee of local builders be formed to advise the Board on building details and wants a closer look given plans for the projected new high school before a specific cost budget is determined. He is opposed to "blank check" construction projects and feels the business community needs a "watchdog" on the Board. A resident of the area 25 years, Mr. Saxton is a graduate of the University of Michigan. He served in the Navy in World War II, is a past president of the Optimist Club, and has been active in the Community Fund, Chamber of Commerce and other civic affairs. He and his wife have four children, three of them still in school.

CARL SCHULTHEISS, Incumbent, 11705 Amherst Court.

An 11-year resident of Plymouth, Mr. Schultheiss was elected to the Board of Education four years ago after having been appointed earlier to serve out an unexpired term. He has held two key chairmanships on the Board, being head of the Facilities Committee and of the Employee Relations Committee, which was charged with selection of a new superintendent to succeed Russell Isbister. His platform for re-election is simple and concise: He stands on his and the Board's record of achievement over the past five years, and stresses an interest in problems of the total school district. He and his wife have seen two sons graduate from Plymouth High School and have a third child in Bird School. Active in local affairs, he is employed by the Burroughs Corp.

CALVIN STROM, 884 Palm-er.

Mr. Strom is a past president of the Jaycees and has served as a member of the community's Auditorium Committee, Citizens High School Facility Planning Committee and the Central Business District Committee. He holds a B.A. degree in economics from the University of Michigan, and he and Mrs. Strom have two young daughters. He is employed by Bristol Laboratories. His campaign has advocated establishment of a study group to investigate the commercial and industrial development of an expanded tax base as a means of supporting growth of the school system rather than depending on an increase in individual taxes.

Court Sets Duke Case For July 3

Examination of a Plymouth barber on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses from a Livonia bar owner in an entertainment license deal has been delayed until July 3.

Municipal Judge James R. McCann said Livonia Det. Sgt. James Grode, who headed the investigation, was assigned to Circuit Court and was absent when the examination was first set Monday. The case was set back at the request of the prosecutor's office and Attorney Marvin R. Stempfen.

Stempfen represents the barber, John D. Duke, who allegedly told Alfred L. Rogala, owner of the Shaggy Lion at 39305 Plymouth Road, he could get him an entertainment license for $1,000.

The complaint signed by Rogala stated that Duke approached him several times between April 7 and April 28 claiming he had influence with the Livonia City Council and Police Department.

Duke was arrested by Livonia Police after Rogala gave him an envelope containing $200 in $20 bills and 48 pieces of paper cut to the size of currency.

Careless Pill-Taking May Cause Trouble

by A.M.A.

Ever wake up, or at least be about half awake, in the night with a splitting headache? Or a pain in the tummy?

And stumble into the bathroom and reach for a bottle in the medicine cabinet. And gulp down a pill or two, or a spoonful of medicine?

Sure. All of us have. And we are risking serious trouble in taking medicine carelessly.

The medicine was prescribed by your physician, and he included specific orders for size and frequency of dose and how to take it. The American Medical Association reminds that there is a good, sound reason for these orders, and they're meant to be followed.

A few simple rules for taking medicine can help to avoid an accident that may make your minor discomfort a lot worse.

-Never take medicine in the dark. Be certain you can see the bottle or pill box, to make certain it's the right one.

-Read the directions carefully before taking. Those directions are there because they're needed.

-Don't increase the dosage or take more often than directed without checking with your doctor.

OPERATION CLEANUP: Boy Scouts from the Plymouth Community joined last week in removing refuse and debris from the middle section of the Rouge River to make the stream more enjoyable for summer use. Shown here wrestling with a dead tree which had fallen into the river are Scouts Keith McArthur (left), Curtis Powell (center), and Ron Stiglich. All are members of Scout Troop 1533.

Specialty of the House Jello Salad Is A Cool Dish For Hot Days

MRS. KNOWLES CHECKS the cream cheese to be sure it is soft, before making the salad.

Mrs. James Knowles often brings her molded apricot salad to pot luck suppers because it travels well and is easy to cut. On top of that, it tastes good. Cool fruit flavors make this a perfect summertime dish, and it can be fixed well ahead of serving time.

Mrs. Knowles is a busy mother of two, who found time to teach kindergarten at Smith school this last semester.

She recently was elected to the Symphony Society Board, and is active in a Symphony League group. Her other activities are Panhellenic, and AAUW. For the past few years she has appeared in the children's plays put on by AAUW.

APRICOT JELLO SALAD

- 1 large package apricot jello
- 4 tablespoons sugar
- 2 cups hot water
- 8 ounce package cream cheese (softened)
- 1 can #2 crushed pineapple (do not drain)

- 1 eleven ounce can mandarin oranges
- 1 envelope dream-whip (whipped)

Leave cream cheese out of the refrigerator for several hours until it is very soft. Add hot water to jello and sugar. Stir until well mixed.

Straw Wings Don't Prevent These Little Birds From Flying

Several years ago Mrs. Russell Isbister learned the old art of making straw crafts from Kathryn Seibel, an expert from Ohio. Mrs. Isbister was so fascinated with the art that she went to a craft shop near Lansing to take lessons from Mrs. Seibel.

Since then, Mrs. Isbister's straw creations have been shown at the fall festival, and garden club displays. And she has helped many of her friends learn how to make them.

Now she has agreed to explain to the Sunday "Plymouth Mail and Observer" some of the secrets of making straw crafts that she has learned. The most important thing is to get the straw early in July, even if you don't plan to work with it until Christmas time. In July straw is a soft golden shade.

"I'm sure any farmer would be glad to cut a handful of straw," said Mrs. Isbister. If he doesn't seem too eager to do it, she suggests going into a field and cutting it yourself.

First the straw must be hung in bundles, sheaves downward, to dry. A garage or basement is the best place to do this.

After they have dried out they must be husked--or perhaps peeled is a better word.

Cut off the heads. You will notice that the plant has three joints on the stem. Cut out each of these joints. Then you can slip off the outer husk, that covers the slender golden stalk.

The stalks vary in size between the joints, being much finer near the top and coarser near the bottom. As you husk the straw, separate it into three piles, according to the three sections of each stalk. When you look at the stalk it will be very easy to see how it varies from section to section.

After it is separated, if you don't want to work with it for awhile, simply put it away in a box.

The night before you want to make something, get the straw out and start soaking it in warm water. Change the water several times during the first hour. Then leave the straw to soak overnight, with a plate on top of it, so it won't float.

Many different things can be made from straw, however Mrs. Isbister suggested beginning with straw birds. Directions for these birds follow:

For the wings use nine 4 inch pieces of straw. It doesn't matter if you use coarse or fine straw, but the entire bird should be made from the same type.

Line up the pieces, and run a needle through the center of them, as shown above. This is to hold them together until they can be tied. Tie them as tightly as possible with crochet cotton. Wind the thread around the straw twice before you knot it. The tighter the thread is pulled the more the ends of the straw will flare out to look like wings, as in the picture below.

Next insert the wings and make the rest of the body. To insert the wings lift up three or four straws and slide the wings between these and the lower ones. See the picture above.

MISS PANAGOHLA CURIS (left) of 1587 Fairview, Detroit, and Miss Marie Adams, 891 South Harvey, set out for a bicycle ride around the scenic Bahamas capital. They were guests at the oceanfront Emerald Beach Plantation and Hotel in Nassau during their visit.

A CHRISTMAS TREE, REINDEER, a napkin ring, and a mobile are some of the straw articles Mrs. Isbister has made. Directions for making the birds on the mobile are given in the article.

Use 12 four inch straws to form the head and body. Gather them into a bundle.

Tie the straws below where the wings were inserted. This will help the bird's tail flare out.

Mrs. Isbister says red is the traditional color used for yarn with straw figures in the Scandinavian countries. If you want to follow this tradition cover all the crochet cotton that shows with red yarn, and then braid yarn through the straws near the ends of the tail and wings.

The birds can be used with flower arrangements or several can be tied with red string and hung as a mobile.

Good Buys at Grocers

By MARJORIE GIBBS
Michigan State Marketing Agent

POULTRY: With most red meat prices high this week, fryers have dipped a bit and are one of the best protein values in the retail markets. Whole, cut-up and fryer parts are being featured along with occasional buys on both Grade A and Grade B turkeys of different sizes and Cornish hens.

BEEF: Beef prices are steady to lower this week and probably offer the best red meat values. Special prices are more frequent--particularly on chuck and rib cuts, boneless roasts and steer liver. By comparing ads between markets, some good buys on hamburger and a variety of the more tender steaks may also be found. Freezer sales are continuing.

PORK: Prices are still relatively high. There is little outstanding activity in the retail market and ads are scattered between stores. A number of good values are available on loin chops and canned hams and some loin roasts and bacon are also being suggested though bacon prices have advanced.

FISH: The fish picture is very satisfactory for home-makers. Ocean varieties and frozen packs are plentiful and there are more fresh, top quality whitefish available from northern lakes, along with halibut. However Lake Erie is dropping off and smelt and perch are in smaller supply.

EGGS AND DAIRY: Supplies will continue to be larger than normal at least through July. The low retails have been virtually unchanged for over a week with large sizes still the best value by weight. A larger number of dairy features are available in most stores--mild cheddar cheese, a variety of cheese slices and spreads and chilled dairy orange juice.

FRUITS: Strawberries continue to arrive from California and quality is excellent.

Michigan should begin its first volume in the Benton Harbor area around June 10 and reach a peak about June 15.

Banana imports are heavy and more avocados are available. Honeydew melon should be at a low price point by the end of the week.

The Michigan peach crop is estimated at 3/4 of a full harvest this year due to the weather.

Blueberries are just getting underway in excellent quality and at attractive prices. Harvesting of cantaloupe in Texas, Arizona and California is in good volume and prices are moderate.

Oranges and pineapple continue to be good buys. Harvesting of watermelons, past a peak in Florida, is increasing in the central districts. Apples are in light supply and the first sweet cherries are high in price.

VEGETABLES: Green peppers are more plentiful and lower in price. More green onions and radishes are also available. Cherry tomatoes are on the featured list this week.

Children Take Their First Long Look At School

MR. ELSTON leads the pre-kindergartners on a tour of their school.

BARBARA SOWERS has made a new friend; his name is Allen Romen.

IT IS A BIG STEP to join the other children on the jungle gym.

For Hartwicks

Adopted Child Is A Gift

Last Christmas Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hartwick gave each other a present they had been wanting for a long time—a foster child. They financially “adopted” aeth P. Casupanan, an eight-year-old Filipino girl, through the Foster Parents’ Plan.

“My boss, Don Sutherland, has had a child for years,” Mrs. Hartwick explained, “and we have planned to get one for a long time.”

“The only thing we specified was that she be eight years old,” she continued, “because that is the same age as my granddaughter, Barbara Hornbrook. Elizabeth, whose birthday is in April, is only three days younger than Barbara.” This week, Mrs. Hartwick has been spending her lunch hours Christmas shopping for Elizabeth, since all packages have to be into the New York office of Foster Parents Plan by August 15.

“I bought her a Barbie doll, and some clothes. I also bought little toys and clothes for her sisters, Rosanna, and Maria Larina, and brother Dino.” Elizabeth and her family live in the slums of Manila. Because of money and health problems she is the only one who goes to school.

Her father was a laborer in a sewing machine factory, but is presently unemployed because he contracted tuberculosis. Her mother is a seamstress and, although she has a heart ailment, is the sole support of the family.

Space Age Supermarkets Here By 1975

About 12,000 food products—50 per cent more than there are today—and specially designed systems to allow shoppers to automatically select “menus of the day” will be features of 1975 supermarkets.

Michigan State University scientists say the modern supermarket will probably provide sidewalk-conveyors in a spiral-shaped building to virtually eliminate walking inside the store. Specially coded markers will stamp items and allow various products to be automatically selected and removed from the shelves.

Other attractions may include hostesses, a rotating “drum display” which will house the “special” of the day, a beauty shop, bank, post office, shoe repair shop, medical facilities, playrooms, and customer lounges, and automatic check-out boxing and sealing.

According to forecasts by the supermarket designers and consultants, the 1975 food shopper may drive her helicopter onto the parking ramp where an automatic parking elevator will issue a coded card. The card will specify the stall for her helicopter which will be automatically stored in a multiple-deck stall. Engineers say that 88 per cent of the automotive processes necessary to make this system possible are now being completed.

The woman’s earnings are about 40 cents a day, which is not enough to meet the needs of the family. Sometimes relatives help out, but they have their own families to support, and can’t do much.

Elizabeth’s family owns a one-floor shack, built of nipa palm leaves, old wooden materials, and galvanized iron sheets. The house is built on piles, about three feet from the ground.

Surprisingly enough there is electricity for lights, but water has to be carried in from a well, the same way Elizabeth’s ancestors did hundreds of years ago.

The place is sparsely furnished with things bought when the father was able to support his family.

The Foster Parents’ Plan, which began with one boy after the Spanish Civil War, gives medical help to all the family. This includes the mother and father and Elizabeth’s nine-year-old sister, Rosanna, who has asthma.

The $15 monthly payment, the Hartwicks send is used for both the family and the girl, so that they can better her environment.

Every month Mrs. Hartwick receives a letter from Elizabeth’s mother, thanking her for the things received. While some of these things vary from month to month, Elizabeth has always been given vitamins, a supply of rice, and a box of Tide.

The Hartwicks hope to keep Elizabeth as a foster child until she is sixteen (the age limit), and they also hope that sometime during the next eight years they will be able to visit her.

Foster Parents’ Plan is a non-sectarian, non-profit, independent, government-approved organization. A foster parent may choose a child according to age, sex and nationality and the plan will try its best to meet the specifications.

For information write to Foster Parents’ Plan, Inc., 352 Park Avenue South, New York, New York, 10010.

BPW Meets

The Plymouth Business and Professional Women’s Club will meet on June 19 at 6:30 p.m. in the Hillside Inn.

Guest speaker will be Laine Bradenstein, Director of the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan Detroit.

All members are urged to attend and take care of dues which have to be sent to National before June 30.

Plymouth Pair Pedal Pet 'Pachyderm' Past Ponderous Peaks, Perils & Puddles

There are all sorts of ways for traveling from Plymouth to New Haven, Conn., but anyone who contemplates bicycling those 1,100 miles would do well to consult Sandy Pentecost and Christine Strasen first.

The two determined Plymouth girls, both Spring graduates of Western Michigan University, just returned (by car) from pedaling that seven-state route on "bicycle built for two," an adventure which taught them there are two sides to every hill.

Their first decision upon returning to Plymouth was to sell the bike, which they've affectionately dubbed "Moose," to the highest bidder. The girls have had it.

The bicycling bug bit the pair about the time both graduated from Plymouth High School in 1963. College did nothing to cure it.

By the time they were ready to graduate from Western this year they had saved 11,111 pennies, used this money to purchase a shiny new tandem from Plymouth's Western Auto Associate Store, and on May 9 laughingly started pedaling toward Toledo.

Averaging 52 miles per day, the girls rode into New Haven, Conn., on May 29. They were just in time to see Miss Pentecost's brother, Randy, graduate from New Haven's Culinary Institute of America, which is what prompted their choice of a destination.

"If we'd let rain stop us, we'd still be in Ohio," the girls said in recounting their experiences, most of which spoke well for American hospitality.

Barred by law from freeways and toll roads, the two 21-year-old cyclists took "the scenic route," stopping overnight in tourist homes, YWCA's, and, in Southbridge, Mass., even the city jail because of a lack of other lodging facilities.

Their biggest problem? Hills, hills and more hills.

As motorists know, there are some pretty good bumps in the terrain in eastern Pennsylvania and from Albany, N.Y., to Springfield, Mass., but the Plymouth pair conquered all except one without help. They did hitch a truck ride for one leg of the journey.

Throughout the trip Miss Pentecost rode in front, and Miss Strasen in back. They strapped one duffel bag apiece to the rear and in those carried all their gear.

HOW TO SUCCEED IN CYCLING: This is one time when it's impossible to add, "without really trying," for these two girls pedaled 1,100 miles from Plymouth to New Haven, Conn., to celebrate their graduation from Western Michigan University. Christine Strasen (left) and Sandy Pentecost made the trip in 20 days, averaging better than 50 miles per day.

Miss Pentecost is the daughter of Mrs. Ostrid Pentecost, 49436 Oak, while Miss Strasen's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Martin Strasen, 9428 Ball.

And what are the girls going to do now?

They're looking for jobs as physical education teachers, of course.

Betty Crocker Salmon Showmanship

Whether you're serving salmon for party fare or everyday ways — go on pretty it up. With Alaskan steaks or fillets, lemon butter — is fancy: ¼ cup of hot, melted butter with 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 1 teaspoon grated peel. For red salmon, cold from the can — garnish with parsley or lemon wedges. Or lemon slices sprinkled with minced pimiento or green pepper. To dress up a salmon loaf, surround with grapefruit sections or thick slices of cake. For salmon sandwich filling — add sweet pickle, chopped celery and mayonnaise. And to convert canned salmon into winter's main dishes, see my recipes below. Easy, nutritious, low in calories.

DEEP DISH SALMON-CHEESE PIE

- 1 tablespoon chopped onion
 - 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 - ½ cup Bisquick
 - 1½ cups milk
 - 1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese (4 ounces)
 - 1 can (1 pound) salmon, drained and broken into large pieces
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - Dash of pepper
 - Biscuit Topping (below)
- Heat oven to 450°. Cook and stir onion in butter until tender. Remove from heat; blend in Bisquick. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is bubbly. Remove from heat. Stir in milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Stir in cheese, salmon, salt and pepper. Pour into greased 1½-quart casserole; heat in oven until mixture bubbles. Top with Biscuit Topping. Bake about 15 minutes or until topping is brown. 4 to 6 servings.

Biscuit Topping: Add ½ cup milk to 1 cup Bisquick all at once; stir with fork into a soft dough. Beat dough vigorously 20 strokes, until stiff and slightly sticky. Roll dough around on cloth-covered board lightly dusted with flour to prevent sticking. Pat or roll to fit top of baking dish. Cut 2 or 3 slits in center.

For a Salmon Bake that's quick, try this. Heat oven to 400°. Empty 1 can (1 pound) salmon into greased baking dish. Break apart, removing skin and bones. Sprinkle with ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Dot with 2 tablespoons butter. Cut 1 lemon in thin slices; place on salmon. Cover; bake 20 minutes. 4 to 6 servings.

Add a green vegetable. Fruit salad for dessert (banana slices, canned apricot halves). And there you are — a string of good ideas for simple salmon suppers.

Hybrid Fish Needs A Name

By GORDON CHARLES M.U.C.C. Columnist

Michigan has a new but nameless fish. Giving it a name should be a real ball.

It happened last fall when an imaginative fish biologist got to wondering what would happen if he should cross a coho salmon with a fall-spawning rainbow trout. The end result now finds about 2,000 frisky hybrids swishing around in the waters of the Harrietta hatchery.

Most of these half-breed fish species never do amount to much since they usually turn out to be sterile and the species dies a natural death. There are exceptions, of course, such as the speckled trout and lake trout cross which is now established in a number of Michigan lakes under the name of splake trout. RAINBOW TROUT are members of the salmon family, which makes this kind of cross possible, but beyond that nobody knows what else might come of it.

The new breed of fish do appear to be exceptionally wild little critters, which is a good quality. Most times, however, crossing two similar species results in an offspring with the worst qualities of both parents.

Ideally, a coho-rainbow cross would create a fish that grows a pound a month like the coho salmon did when first planted, yet would not die after spawning, which is what happens to Pacific salmon. This probably won't happen.

Should this hybrid take hold, though, what would you call a coho-rainbow mixture?

"COBOW" SEEMS logical but it might cause a lot of confusion. We imagine some people might figure with a name like that they were only native to Detroit and had a hall named after them.

One fellow suggested using portions of the coho-steelhead combination and calling the fish "coheads." We are sure this would cause a lot of misunderstanding in a lot of happy homes. What would your wife's reaction be if you told her you were going to spend the weekend chasing coheads? She might think you said "coeds."

"Hobow" is another possibility, but it suggests a worthless bum of a fish.

Might be a good idea to just wait a while to see what happens to those 2,000 hybrids at Harrietta. Maybe they will all die and that will be the end of the problem.

SPEAKING OF coho salmon, fisheries men were surprised to find some of these fish still hanging around this spring in the headwaters of a couple of the streams where they migrated last fall. These early migrants were supposed to have run upstream to spawn and die.

A Way That Seems Right

People are funny! Indeed they are. Be it on the positive or the negative side of human behavior people act in ways that other people fail to understand or at least find amusing. You laugh at my idiosyncrasies, and I get a kick out of your laugh - and so the ball rolls.

It is, however, quite amazing that man - God's highest and noblest creation, an intelligent being - can act as irrationally and unintelligently as he frequently does. And yet, I am more and more convinced that human behavior is always in terms of what seems right at the moment of action. It may be an act that he will be sorry for later - it may be an act that he knows is morally wrong - it may be an act with all kinds of negative repercussions and yet the exact situation of the moment seems to justify the behavior.

This is, I believe, exactly what the writer of Proverbs had in mind when he wrote "There is a way that seems right unto man, but the end thereof is a way of death" (Proverbs 14:12 & 16:25). Simply stated this verse says, "There is a straight road ahead which appears to offer happiness and prosperity but it may bring disaster instead."

In a way, what I am saying is that the behavior of a person in a given situation is almost pre-determined or at least over determined, - not in any way as a specific act of God but as an expression, in the moment, of all of the forces at work in his life.

This then puts advice givers out of business, especially in crisis situations. Be it from the Church, another institution, or an individual, advice at the moment of need is usually not helpful. If we are to have an intelligent rational approach to behavior it must be built in ahead of time through education and understanding, and must have control and flexibility. - Let me explain.

Sir Isaac Newton's third law of Physics states that for every action there is an opposite equal reaction. This is a prime theory in modern jet propulsion. -- In life this becomes, you hurt me so I hurt you, or I don't like your looks or your color so I'll reject you. This is a spontaneous reaction without flexibility or controls, like the simplest of all jet engines - the balloon. It is out of control from the time it is released until it crashes. Unfortunately, some people call this living by faith.

Now, if we take that same balloon and add stiffeners all the way around to make it rigid, we have almost a complete opposite. This time we have straight line control. That is, we can control the direction of travel by aiming it before release. What we really lack this time is flexibility. There is no built-in protection against the unexpected.

In terms of human behavior rigid people are those who can neither change nor tolerate change. The Church is many times a haven for rigid people who see the Gospel as rigid and fail to see that the Bible must be reinterpreted in light of the needs of every generation. Somehow, they also fail to see that part of the changelessness of God is his flexibility in providing grace for every human need.

But let us look again at our rigid balloon. This time let us add some control surfaces and a pilot and we change the entire situation. We add flexibility to its usage. We still have the spontaneity of the free jet. We also have the directionality stability of the rigid jet, but this time we are prepared for the unexpected; we are able to avoid hazards or make goal adjustments as necessary.

In life we need to be like the finished jet. We need a dynamic spontaneity which can truly add spice and feeling. We need backbone enough to have convictions and to stand for what we believe in, and we desperately need a flexibility of controls and emotions that we might keep pace with the changing times. If we can take this beautiful combination and add God as our "co-pilot" the way that seems right might indeed be a way that is right.

Serving As We Would Wish to be Served

Barking up the wrong tree has been one of man's fruitless pastimes for centuries. And I wonder if, maybe, it does not apply when it comes to all the shouts for peace that we hear and give off. We pray for it, hope for it and sometimes march for it. But do we really know just what it is that we are after. We want the bombing and the fighting to stop in Vietnam, and we want to see a quick settlement to the troubles in the Middle East. But even if these and other such hopes are realized, would we have an automatic peace? I do not really think so.

The other night the television reports of the war in Vietnam were followed by a movie which dealt with a Spartan war of a few hundred years ago. As I watched it I got to thinking of something that St. John tells us in the Book of Revelation. He says that there will always be wars and rumors of wars. History is a checkerboard of battlefields in one corner of the world or the other. But the same God who inspired St. John to write his Book of Revelation also promised to give us peace.

So why are there wars? Has God gone back on His promise?

I don't really believe that, but on the other hand his is not a peace that is going to be forced upon us. He told us that if we want peace we will have to pray for it, and that we will have to live in such a way that we deserve it.

We may not all be in a position where we can get up and give speeches in the United Nations. Nor can we get to the Red Chinese to tell them why they should want peace. But then war is not so much a story of kamakazi pilots and American battleships, or of U.S. Marines and the Viet Cong.

Presbyterians Pray For Vietnam Peace

Commissioners from the Synod of Michigan have returned from the 179th General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. in Portland, Oregon, after adopting "The Confession of 1967", which made pronouncements on issues of the church and society, and calling for a day of prayer for peace in Vietnam. It wasn't Plymouth's turn to send anyone to the sessions which ran from May 18 to 24. However, the "declaration of conscience" on the war was received at the Plymouth church this week.

"There is no moral issue more urgently confronting our church and nation than the war," the declaration read. "The church dare not remain silent. We must declare our conscience."

Through the National Council of Churches the church leaders wish to have all faithful participate in a day of prayer on a date mutually agreed upon as soon after June 1 as possible. United Presbyterians will be asked to have "The Declaration of Conscience" read on the Sunday nearest the Day of Prayer when it is requested the people fast and make offerings for the civilian victims of the war.

The Rev. Lewis Brown, associate pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church in Plymouth, pointed out that while this is a policy statement, it is not binding that all church members accept it. "The statement calls for a reduction in the bombing of the north," he said. "It urges our government to consider again cessation of bombing as one tangible evidence of our desire to negotiate."

"It is against further escalation, and for finding an alternate to the bombing of Vietnam," Mr. Brown continued. "Seeking arbitration through the UN, and exploring other alternatives, such as a fortified demilitarized zone, are some of the suggestions the declaration makes," explained Mr. Brown.

War is a story of people not trusting each other and of people using people. And on this level we can all do something. We could trust other people more than we do. And we could be more concerned with what we can give than with what we can get from the guy next door.

Trusting others does not

LEFT: From the Plymouth Rd. overpass, you couldn't tell which was the Rouge River and which was the E.N. Hines Parkway. This was the road scene Wednesday morning in Plymouth.

RIGHT: A constant headache to Houghton and Mason street residents, in southwest Livonia, was aggravated Wednesday when more water collected in this pond. Mothers complain the area is a breeding ground for mosquitoes, snakes and rats, hence unsafe for dozens of young children who live nearby.

Warm, Muddy Water

What suburbia's lawns and farms needed was a number of gentle, slow-soaking rains.

What they got was a down-pour—one of the worst in years—that flooded streets, interrupted power service, produced mosquito-spawning ponds, dampened floors and basements, and washed-out gardens.

Worst flooding in 10 years, said Plymouth city officials. "A five-year rain," said Livonia's engineering office.

THE WESTERN suburbs appeared to be harder hit than the surrounding city and rural area. Whereas Metropolitan Airport reported 0.63 of an inch in a 24-hour period, the Livonia engineering office measured 3.45 inches in only a slightly longer period, 26 hours.

What made it a "five-year rain"—that is, a rainfall one could expect once in five years—was the 1 1/2 inches that fell in a single hour, from 7:30 to 8:30 Wednesday morning. Another 1.35 inches were recorded from 5:10 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Farmington got off relatively easily. Traffic was tied-up when foot-deep water ran over the streets at Eight Mile and Grand River. Detroit Edison Co. there reported only five calls, mostly for minor lightning damage, and no areas or substations without power.

Only Farmington flooding reportedly was in the township's

Woodbine Subdivision, where sewers are being constructed.

Plymouth's flood waters couldn't get through tubes at Burroughs and Coolidge streets and backed up for two hours. Several streets reported flooding.

Water reached the floors of mobile homes in a Ridge Road trailer court. The Plymouth fire department reported wires down on Hamilton between Ann Arbor Trail and Maple, and on M-14. In the township, wires were down in several places, and lightning did light damage to two houses on N. Territorial Road.

A power failure knocked out lights in Plymouth's West Junior High School, at Sheldon and N. Territorial roads, delaying a Wednesday assembly program an hour.

LIVONIA SEEMED hardest hit.

Lightning hit two poles on Farmington Road south of Five Mile. The electrical failure which resulted set off burglar alarms in city offices.

The public works department reported at least 20 flooded basements—in Sunset Hills, Rosedale Gardens and scattered points—along with a dozen flooded back yards and 14 flooded streets.

A COMPLAINT to this newspaper came from residents on Houghton Street in the Schoolcraft-Newburgh area.

Excavations by a development firm west of Houghton have left several broad holes that fill with water. The ponds that are created are a breeding ground for mosquitoes, rats and snakes, and people use the open area as a dump.

The water there—as everywhere, for that matter—is a small boys' playground, but the residents said the depth is a potential hazard to small children.

As usual, the Edward N. Hines Parkway, which runs from Northville through Plymouth and southern Livonia to Dearborn, collected a heavy amount of water. It's in a low spot, paralleling a branch of the Rouge River.

PUDDLES ARE FUN — at least to sisters Sandra and Sherri Ferguson, who waded along Jacksonville Street near Grand River (the avenue, not the stream) in Farmington Township. Not far away, however, traffic was tied up for a half-hour.

TWO PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP public works Ann Arbor Trail. Parts of Plymouth had their employees worked on a plugged drain along E. worst floods in 10 years.

U-M Meteorologist Explains

What The Weatherman's Odds Mean To You

We may be unable to do much about the weather, but we can gear our activities to the weather—especially if we have good forecasts and know precisely the odds that something will occur.

So contends Prof. Edward S. Epstein, a meteorologist at the University of Michigan.

The Weather Bureau supplements its forecasts of "possible showers" or "chance of snow" with the mathematical odds—"40 per cent chance of rain" or "20 per cent chance of snow." These, Epstein says, acknowledge the uncertainty of forecasting.

The National Science Foundation has granted him $12,500 for studies of how to evaluate probability forecasts, work that involves a knowledge of probability statistics as much as meteorology.

So we dropped into his Ann Arbor office one day to talk about—the weather.

Its Economics

Q. Many city-dwellers can go from their houses to their garages without going outdoors, drive to work, walk a few feet to the office or plant and work indoors all day. We get lots of weather reports, but is urban America really as dependent on the weather as the agricultural America of 75 or more years ago?

A. Prof. Epstein: "We can do something about our activities more so than in the past; the forecasts are more useful. In times past, forecasts may not have been available. But even if they were, in the rural, agricultural society there was little that could be done about it."

"Today we're in activities—particularly major economic activities—such that we can react to these forecasts and do something about it, and there can be major economic benefits from the right kind of response to weather information."

"A major example might be something like the construction industry. I know of a study of the impact of weather information on the construction industry, which happens to be a major contributor to the gross national product. It was found quite clearly the value of weather information is very substantial."

"Certainly, you and I can get along very well without this weather information—get into our cars and drive through. Unless it happens to be a situation where the roads are impassable, we can get along without it for our every day activities."

"But weather changes have much more of an impact economically than they ever had before. In the past, we used to think tornadoes were very infrequent . . . but as we look at our records, the number of tornadoes seems to have gone up. This isn't because they have really gone up, it's because there are more people around to see them and to get in their way. A tornado can do a tremendous amount of damage to an urban society."

Q. What you're saying then, is that we may not be able to do anything about the weather, but we can do something about our activities and economic decisions if we have good weather information.

A. Epstein: "That's exactly it. 'One of the most important things is to get weather information to the public so they can make the right kinds of decisions.'"

He also cited electric utilities' dependence on weather information for scheduling repair crews and materials.

What Odds Mean...

Q. When the weather forecaster predicts a "40 per cent chance of rain," what does this mean? Does it mean that 40 per cent of the area will have rain? Or that the entire area has a 40 per cent chance of rain?

A. Epstein: "Let me say first that the probability statement is probably the best way of communicating to the public the maximum amount of information about the weather in a concise form.

"The forecast of the probability of precipitation should be interpreted as it would intuitively be interpreted if one didn't worry too much about what it means. In other words, it represents the chance that you will experience precipitation within a particular period no matter where you are in the area of the forecast."

"Now the probability represents the fact that the forecaster can't give you an exact statement as to where and when rain will fall. Sometimes it is because there's a situation where rain will fall in some areas and not others; he is not able to say where the rain will fall. One could argue in very scientific terms why this is impossible, but let's just say it can't be done as things are now . . ."

"On the other hand, there's also the fact that maybe the total precipitation system will not necessarily develop in a well predictable fashion, so there is that uncertainty whether precipitation will occur at all."

"Now the forecaster's statement is actually a combination of these two factors."

...What They're Worth

Q. You're doing some work in the mathematical evaluation of weather forecasts. Can you tell us about that?

A. Epstein: "We have not evaluated any forecasts, but rather we have been concerned with how does one proceed to make these evaluations."

"We've been most interested in evaluating these probability statements. The problem one faces in any kind of evaluation is that the reason you carry it out will affect the way in which it is carried out."

"The easiest example: It is easy to conceive of a situation where these forecasts be very valuable in one sense and not very useful in another. The example might be comparing two users of this information—one may want to carry out an activity any time there's a reasonable chance there won't be any rain; it rains, it won't hurt him too much. If there's a 70 per cent chance of rain, he'll go ahead."

"Someone else may be involved in an activity where rain might be disastrous, economically, if the probability of rain is beyond, say, 10 per cent."

"Now a particular set of forecasts may distinguish very well between those chances when the probability is 90 per cent vs. 50 per cent. Let's take the extreme case where the forecaster always says either 90 per cent or 50 per cent. The person who makes his decision depending on whether the forecast is above or below 70 per cent is very happy. But the person who has to wait until the forecast is less than 10 per cent can never do his job."

"Obviously, if you're trying to evaluate the forecasts, it depends on whose interests you have in mind . . ."

"The forecaster is interested in evaluation in a different sense. He would like to say nothing but zero per cent or 100 per cent, but he knows he can't do this. So he wants to know how closely he approaches this ultimate objective . . ."

"The probability represents his best judgment. Now, how good is his judgment? If he kept forecasting 75 per cent chance of rain, and it rained on three (consecutive) occasions, he'd have to recognize that this could happen just accidentally. If it happened 10 or 15 times, he'd have to recognize something was wrong with his forecasts."

"What we've done is developed a scheme where we've given him 'limits'."

"Let's say he has made a forecast of 40 per cent probability of precipitation on 20 occasions. We'd expect eight times it should have rained, though it could have been six or nine or something close to eight."

"On the other hand, if it had rained only three times, then there is good reason to think something is wrong. The forecaster knows the 'limits' we've evolved for this situation—40 per cent probability 20 times—the limits are between four and 12." (That is, he is reasonably correct if there were rain not less than four nor more than 12 times; and if he approached the upper or lower limits, however, he would suspect his own accuracy.)

Human Judgment

Q. A number of times, you have used the word "judgment." We know weather forecasters have many more tools and sources of information, some even coming from satellites. Is there really room for "judgment" in modern weather forecasting?

A. Epstein: "There's still probably more room for judgment than many of us would like to see."

"We have many kinds of tools, analyses, computations. A forecaster is given a great deal of guidance from the most sophisticated of equipment—this includes the satellites and the largest computers available."

"He has to assimilate all this information, and he has to put it together in terms of his own knowledge, his own experience in the area for which he is issuing a forecast."

"So his judgment still plays a very major role in the forecast."

Coach Moving To Farmington

With one thud this past week, Clarenceville lost its head boss in football, wrestling and track... and also its athletic director.

Ralph Temby announced that after eight years he was leaving the Middlebelt Road school to accept a new post as assistant football coach and head wrestling coach at nearby North Farmington High.

Meantime, Gene Scholes, the 1966-67 Clarenceville basketball coach, has been moved up to a new post in the district's headquarters. So he'll be gone from the cage wars.

"It was a tough decision for me to make," declared Temby in severing relations with Clarenceville. "They always have been great to me. But the new opportunity simply is one that I can't pass up."

Lynn Nutter, who formerly coached at Clarenceville and also was the athletic director before being promoted to administrative duties, also is leaving with Temby and reportedly also has signed to work at North Farmington High, although not in the athletic department.

A Year to Remember For Exchange Student

"I've learned to appreciate and live with people of another country."

There had to be a message that the torrid world of today might use to good stead in the remarks of 18-year-old Ross Smith as he looked back on the almost 10 months he has spent as an exchange student at North Farmington High School.

This week, Ross will receive his diploma and probably will receive an ear-thundering ovation from the student body, the faculty and the others who attend graduation ceremonies.

A YEAR at North Farmington, a year in Michigan, a year in the United States... they have meant so much for Smith.

In his short stay at North, Smith won varsity letters in football and in track. He set a school record that may stand for a long time when he leaped 22 feet, 2 inches.

That he excelled in track was no surprise. Ross had starred in the sport back home in Australia, where he will return within a few weeks to finish his fifth year of high school—a requirement for all students "down under."

HIS SUCCESS in American football was something else again. He had never played the game in Australia.

Ross did have a background in Rugby football, but as he admits, there's quite a difference in U.S. football and rugby in Australia.

"We play at home without padding, without helmets," Ross declared. "There also are many variations in the game."

"When I got to North Farmington and they asked me to come out for football, I found it very strange. It took me a few weeks to adjust."

NORTH'S FOOTBALL coach Ron Holland, who also directed the track team, was impressed with what he saw in Smith.

Smith became a two-way player for North. He was used as a running back and a split end on offense. Defensively, he played in the backfield.

He thus became the second exchange student in as many years to become a star at North Farmington.

The season before Bengt Hansen kicked his way to fame with the Raiders.

In track, Smith ran the dashes and on the sprint relay for North, in addition to participating in the long jump.

He emerged as one of the leading point scorers in the area.

What's in Ross' future? "Well, we (meaning the exchange students in the U.S.) will tour the country before we head for our homes," he says.

"Then, I have to finish up my high school, even though I have a diploma from North Farmington."

"I hope to go on to college and some day come back to visit in the United States. Will I ever stay here permanently? I just don't know—now."

ROSS CAN'T SAY enough nice things about people like the Glen Hubers in Farmington Township, who have made him feel at home while he has attended North Farmington.

"I've learned to appreciate and live with people of another country...."

Observer to Salute Stars

Three big sports features will appear in next Wednesday's edition of the Observer.

1 - The Annual All-Observer baseball team, heralding the cream of the players in the area.

2 - The All-Observer track squad, singling out the stars of the thinclads.

3 - The parade of graduating athletes who have starred for the 14 high schools served by the Observer newspaper group.

Don't miss next Wednesday's Observer for these great EXTRAS in sports features.

Observing SPORTS

By George Maskin

East Side, West Side, All Around the Town! You're wrong, we're not thinking about the Gay White Way and New York City.

But go east, west or north or south in Livonia and you'll find some stellar athletes in the high schools.

All of which kind of makes a monkey out of a certain sports writer (his initials are G.M.) who on a couple occasions has typed out words to the effect:

"The good prep sports performers in Livonia are down in the south end."

We remember saying as much when the then-new Franklin high opened its doors. There were those who led us to believe the second school for Livonia would play havoc with the sports fortunes at the old, established Bentley high.

And, maybe we said something like that again when the gates sprung open more recently at Stevenson high.

SO, WHAT'S THERE to say now except that we were all wet, especially when you look back at the now ending school year and note that all three of the Livonia school district schools did right well... and so did Clarenceville, also located in Livonia and Farmington, but operating in its own district.

Bentley, for example, was second in football, won the basketball and track titles, and captured the Les Anders' baseball crown. Franklin had a championship in baseball and was up there in the other sports.

Stevenson, notwithstanding the fact the school won't have a senior until fall, surprised in all phases of action and was not the "p a t s y" many expected the new school would be.

Clarenceville rebounded after some lean years and did the best, for example, of any of the area schools in the state track finals.

They tell us that within two years still another Livonia high school will open. This will mean, no doubt, that athletes who might have gone to Bentley or Franklin will wind up at the new establishment.

But there's no reason to believe any more that the "old" schools will suffer — athletically.

WHAT'S THE REASON for the Livonia success story?

"I'd have to say there are two big reasons," declared athletic director George Fefles of Bentley, who also coaches the school's basketball team.

"Our athletes get a tremendous indoctrination down in the junior highs. Not much is said about what the boys do in the eighth and ninth grades.

(Editor's note: The school administrations don't favor publicizing junior high sports activities, and the Observer newspapers agree.)

"But our coaches down there work hard with the boys, and by the time the kids get to the high schools, they know a lot about the sport they wish to participate in.

"Another thing, our kids out here long have been sports conscious. The winning spirit, started at Bentley, has caught on all over the city as Franklin and Stevenson came into the picture.

"Finally, we have some very excellent coaches and we get the finest support possible from our bosses."

So East Side, West Side, All Around the Town (Livonia) — the athletes are hard to beat.

How To Get Good Speakers

By NATALIE SHIRLEY
Special Writer

When your club or group invites a speaker, you are really inviting the person to be an honored guest. A speaker is giving up his or her time to be with your organization. Keep in mind the speaker must leave his business or home, travel to your meeting, attend, speak and then return home.

The time involved for his actual business of speaking may be short but, in fact, he has given several personal hours to your club before he even arrives. Because of this, your group owes a speaker an awareness of the contribution he or she is making, good attendance, every courtesy and a fee, if you can afford one.

A speaker should be invited as far ahead as possible, preferably by written invitation from the president or program chairman.

HERE ARE SEVERAL ideas your club may be interested in: There are programs that the American National Red Cross sponsors, complete with speakers, films and demonstrations. The address is 153 E. Elizabeth, Detroit; or call their speakers bureau at 961-3900.

The Detroit Bar Association at 577 Penobscot Building, Detroit, can arrange speakers on more than 100 topics. Your club secretary may write to them for a complete list. The Bar Association Speakers Bureau will gladly arrange for speakers to programs being planned by any community group. Call WO-1-3545, for further information.

YOUR LIBRARY is a great source of information for books on programs, public speaking, publicity, and club projects. For instance:

"The Clubwoman's Book," by Helen M. Avery and Frank Nye. Helpful hints on selecting and organizing your club as well as clarifying aims and planning the club year.

"101 Ideas For Clubs," by Renee B. Stern. This gives ideas ranging from how to start a club to suggestions for club names.

"New Ways To Better Meetings," by Bert and Frances Strauss. A discussion of how to provide the setting, framework and climate for better meetings.

"Basic Principles of Parliamentary Law & Protocol" by Marguerite Grumme. A common-sense guide based on Robert's Rules of Order.

Mercy College Offers Drama

Improvisation -- "instant dramatics" -- and body discipline for actors are highlighted in the Summer Theatre Workshop in Play Production Theory at Mercy College of Detroit. Applications are being received now for the sessions which will begin June 26.

In "instant dramatics," workshop students will act, create, direct and criticize presentations of spontaneous assignments.

Major effort of the workshop though will be directed to a full length production of a play to be selected at the start of the workshop sessions. The play will be considered from auditions, casting, back-stage and on-stage mounting to production in McAuley Auditorium at the conclusion of the workshop July 29. This will be, in effect, the final exam for the workshop.

Four hours college credit is offered for teachers and directors. Adults may take the course without credit considerations. High school students who will take a full part in the production will receive a certificate.

For further information, contact the Admissions Office of Mercy College, 8200 West Outer Drive, Detroit.

ELECTRIC REVENUE

The fact that 24 orders were placed in 1966 by investor-owned electric power companies for the construction of large nuclear units does not tell the whole story, according to W.J. Clapp, retiring president of the Edison Electric Institute. These 24 units will have a total capacity of about 18.1 million kilowatts, about 17 times the capacity of the 11 units now in operation.

Gross electric revenues of the nation's investor-owned electric utility companies reached a record high in 1966 with an increase of 6.8 per cent over 1965, according to a Detroit Edison source; this is the 28th consecutive annual gain for the industry and is expected to continue.

A gown of imported Swiss organdy with chantilly lace applied on the skirt was the bride's choice. It had lace cap sleeves, scoop neck, an A-line skirt and looped organdy train.

She wore a shoulder-length lace mantilla and carried a cascade bouquet of white phalaenopsis orchids.

Martha Lou Goss was the bride's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Constance Sowards, of Bluffton, Ind., and Martha Jane Stover, sister of the bridegroom.

Assisting the bridegroom were Timothy Jolley of East Lansing, as best man, and James Kent Williams, of West Point, N.Y., brother of the bride; Robert Brooks Stover, of Farmington, brother of the bridegroom, and George Casaday and William Fuller, both of West Lafayette.

Shelly and Elizabeth Reese, of West Lafayette, were flower girls.

After a wedding trip to Northern Michigan, the pair will live in Chicago. Both are graduates of Purdue University. The new Mrs. Stover graduated from E. Riley High School, South Bend, Ind., and her husband from East Lansing High School.

If you listen to me, you'll ask your dealer for the money to buy your new car.

Maybe you're like a lot of people: you want a car, but don't have the money to buy it.

Don't let that hold you back. I know where you can get the money. Just ask your dealer. He can make all the arrangements for an NBD Auto Installoan. He has a direct phone line to the Installoan Department at the National Bank of Detroit. His call is answered by a specialist who works exclusively with auto financing all year round. There's no long waiting period, no red tape. Your dealer can usually get an answer for you in thirty minutes or so.

If you wish, you can get your car insurance included in your loan. Life insurance to cover the unpaid balance is also available.

And remember, you don't have to be an NBD customer to get an Auto Installoan.

So if you're ready for a new car, go pick it out. And have your dealer make the arrangements for an NBD Auto Installoan at the same time.

Just take my word for it; at 11 o'clock, P.M. on channel 4, Ardis Kenealy.

BAROQUE ORCHESTRA and Director Jean Martinon take a bow after all-Bach Fair Lane Festival Concert.

Sunshine On Their Bach

The Fair Lane Festival concerts, on the lawn of the former Ford mansion in Dearborn, show off the music of the Baroque period in an atmosphere of performers in shirtsleeves and an audience on a picnic.

That was the atmosphere of last Sunday's first two concerts of the 10-part series.

The Chicago Symphony's Baroque Orchestra today (June 11) will present the third and fourth concerts. Guest conductor Antonio Janigro will lead a program of Italian Baroque music at 4 p.m., and concertos will be featured at 8:30 p.m.

Music director of the orchestra is Jean Martinon. The festival series is presented by the University Musical Society of the University of Michigan, which now owns Fair Lane as part of its Dearborn campus.

THE BAROQUE period covers roughly a century and a half (1600-1750) after the Renaissance.

In painting, sculpture and music, it was a time of irregular and even fantastic shapes. Its critics used the term "Baroque" in sarcasm, and later critics defined it as "anything so excessively ornamented as to be in bad taste."

Baroque was the time of Rubens and El Greco, the Counter-Reformation and the rise of the Jesuits. Musically, it was opened by Monteverdi, Gabrieli and Sweelinck and closed by Bach and Handel. Its executioner was Beethoven.

LAST SUNDAY afternoon the Baroque Orchestra performed Bach suites and concertos in shirtsleeves. One sweltering violin player said that he was actually more concerned with the effect of the temperature and sun on his instrument.

Direct sun with temperatures in the upper 80s threatened to roast both musicians and audience during the first section of the program, but lengthening shade from the large trees surrounding the concert area brought relief.

The audience seemed to enjoy the unique setting as much as the music.

Several with lawn area tickets could have been mistaken for sunbathers as they leaned back on blankets or on the rich, green carpet of the Fair Lane lawn and let the Baroque music drift over them.

Picnicking is allowed in most areas of the estate before and after the concerts.
