Chief Alerts Police Against Teen-Age Rebellion

Taking note of the vandalism that forced the closing of The Chip, Plymouth's gathering place for teen agers in the rear of City Hall, and the damage done at the Girl Scouts Club House before it was destroyed by fire a week ago, Police Chief Robert Corrington has alerted the City of Plymouth police to be on guard for any signs of increased activities of destruction.

"Thus far," he said, "the record in Plymouth is about normal. We are in no grave danger, but you never can tell. For that reason the entire force has been alerted.

"The damage reported this week consisted of only three broken windshields within the city.'

What does he think has caused this outbreak of violent destruction by the teen-agers across the country?

"While we, here in Plymouth, have been rather fortunate so far, I think the current wave of teen-age destruction is a rebellion against authority.

'It is a clandestine rebellion, for most of the damage is done under the cover of darkness," he explained. These young people are simply getting rid of their frustrations and showing defiance against the law and so-

Isn't there some underlying reason for this frustration and rebellious defiance, the Chief was asked.

"It is my own personal opinion as a police officer," he replied, "that it is the result of the absence of a father image. A pyschiatrist may be able to tell you better than I, but it is the break-down of the father image the top authority - in our homes today.

One has to look only to the Chinese and the Japanese for an example. You hear very little of such things as juvenile delinquency and vandalism among them. There is a reason. In the home of both the Japanese and Chinese the father is the head of the house. He is the boss and his children are trained to respect law and order.

"That type of father image, which we, too, used to have, now is missing in most instances. As a result the teen-agers, not having been trained at home, rebel against authority on the outside."

Police Chief Corrington isn't taking any chances of an uncontrollable outbreak in Plymouth. He has alerted the police and they are on guard.

Little Johnny Returns To Herald Fall Festival

He arrived during the past week and took up residence in Kellogg Park.

It is his annual visit and his return--like the swallows in Capistrano-heralds the approach of a big event. It is the Fall Festival, scheduled for Sept. 7 to 10, judging from the preparations being made around the area and the enthusiasm of the workers, it should be bigger and better than ever.

While there is change in the schedule from other years there will be a continuous line-up of entertainment that is destined to surpass anything in the past. The Festival, itself, will follow the usual pattern with these special nights designated:

Thursday, Sept. 7 -- German Night, sponsored by the Plymouth Business & Professional Women.

Friday, Sept. 8--Lions Club Melon and Ice Cream Social, Firemen's Ball.

Saturday, Sept. 9 -- Kiwanis Pancake Festival Jaycees Beefsteak Dinner

Square Dance. Sunday, Sept. 10 -- Rotary

Club--Barbecue Chicken Din-Along with these special nights the Antique Mart will be open three days at the Community Center Building and the Grange Hall.

The committee in charge, anticipating thousands of visitors to the area during the four days, has concentrated on entertainment that will run the gamut from organ recitals to regular old-fashioned country hoe-down music.

NUMBERED AMONG the entertainers for the week are Karen McAllister, a music student at Interlochen; the Alpine Four, a popular quartet; an old fashioned German Band from Ann Arbor, and the Harmonica Kittens, a group of Plymouth Senior Citizens.

Township Water Plan Moves Step Closer

One of Plymouth Township's biggest water main projects of all time, a 9.3-mile, $1 million extension, moved a step closer to fruition this week when it was given the go-ahead by the Ways and Means Committee of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors.

The full County Board has the project on its agenda for Wednesday, Aug. 23, and approval is expected, according to Township Supervisor John D. McEwen.

Financing will come through the sale of municipal bonds, and the Board of Supervisors' approval of the project is necessary to have the County's "good faith and credit' backing.

Township Engineer Herald Hamill is hopeful that work can be started in October and completed by late winter. When this job is finished, it will bring the township's network of water mains to 57.25 miles and will open vast new acreage to potential industrial and residential water service.

Major arteries earmarked for inclusion of water main installation in this project include portions of Five Mile Rd., Beck Rd., Powell Rd., Amherst Court, Joy Rd., Northville Rd., Edward N. Hines Dr.

at the same time. THIS PROGRAM of carrying the problem to the people was decided upon by the Centennial Committee in the hope that the work on the project can be completed.

Early in the year, when the Centennial Committee was appointed, it was asked to study, and recommend, a facility that would stand as a permanen memorial of the centennial.

After months of study and meetings with citizens, it was decided to make a further study into the possibility of an ice skating arena that could be used for other purposes, too, when the ice was removed.

Later, after speaking with designers and planners, a feasability study by experts was looked upon as the most intelligent approach. The firm of T.E. Samuelson, of Chicago was contracted to make a feasability study. THE RESULTS of this study were presented in preliminary form on Wednesday evening with the estimated cost of $625,000.

The report, given by C.P. Heinzelman, considered an expert on such matters, included drawings of a two building layout. The larger of these was an ice arena 120 feet by 220 feet, with a concrete floor and a seating capacity of 1800 for proved by the township board . a hockey game. The school provides private care and education for emotionally disturbed and mentally retarded children, and is badly in need of financial reorganization. That will be Rev. Schweitzer's No. 1 task.

Earlier this year he won a seat on the Plymouth City Commission after a court battle over a charter provision requiring that he own land before filing for the ballot.

Shortly after his election he learned his "employer," the Methodist Church, intended to transfer him from the Plymouth parish. He decided to stay in Ply-

The school is located in the Trinity Episcopal Parish House, built in 1890 by the then owner of the Detroit News. James E. Scripps.

During the summer, about 15 students are in classes, and in the fall, between 50 and 60. They come from all over the Detroit metropolitan area, and enroll on a tuition basis.

Rev. Schweitzer was hired by the school's board of directors after a member of the Plymouth Methodist congregation suggested he apply for the job.

Budapest Visit Tops 5-Week Concert Tour For Rock Trio

this summer as members of the Musical Youth International concert troupe recall their visit Baldwin-Wallace College this to Budapest, Hungary, as the most memorable highlight of their five weeks abroad.

Cornelia Delaney, 48130 Gyde; Don Burleson, 757 Burroughs, and Ted Randall, 1364 Maple, have just returned from the third annual MYI tour conducted as part of the Peopleto-People program.

They were members of the 50-piece MYI band which also was accompanied by a 50-voice chorus, with 10 adults going along as chaperones. The 100 youngsters were chosen from band and choral groups at 51 Michigan and Ohio high schools.

From jumbled memories of concert appearances in England, Wales, Austria, Hungary and Germany, plus follow-up appearances at Expo 67 in Montreal, Washington, D.C. and Gettysburg, Pa., Miss Delaney singled out the Budapest visit as her most vivid recollection. The boys concurred.

"We presented the concert in a church and the audience was made up mostly of older people," she recalled.

"Afterward, many of them came up and hugged and kissed us and were so appreciative we could really feel the warmth of their reception." Also while in Budapest, the entire MYI entourage attended an international youth camp on the banks of the Danube River where each of the American visitors was given a hand-made heart as a remembrance of the

Victorian Shadow Boxes Have Found A New Home Here In Plymouth

Throughout the rest of the year, the first three Tuesdays of every month will be set aside for orientation meetings.

Volunteers can work with children or, since many women find this difficult, they can also do clerical or lab work.

The Stroller..

For years The Stroller has been a firm believer that education is not always found in books-that a great deal of intelligence can be gained by keeping a sharp eye and ear on things. It is most amazing what one can learn just by listening. A good example was furnished the other evening at a meeting of the Plymouth City Commission when it became involved in garbage pickup and decided that any "substantial" container would be approved.

The discussion had evolved about the relative merits of plastic bags, which seem to have become the rage hereabouts. Some held out for a metal container. Commissioner McKeon asked what was wrong with a heavy paper bag such as that used for the dispensing of fertilizers in garden centers.

But it was the plastic bag that caused most of the trouble - and the laughs - when it was stated that "because black plastic was considered too gruesome, the manufacturers now were turning to brighter colors." How's that for a bit of knowledge?

Finally, The Stroller recalled a report that had been given City Manager Blodgett by Ken Vogras, head of the Public Works Department, and thought it might be timely to take another look at it. The report was most enlightening.

"The problem with some of these plastic bags," the DPW boss wrote, "is that when the rubbish men grab these bags they sometimes tear and if they are not tied properly they become open.

"The problem our contractor is having with these bags is that, he claims, when these bags are cycled through his truck they contain air that cannot escape. This causes air pockets in the truck. With these air pockets he cannot get the volume in the load that he would ordinarily get. "He also is charged twenty five cents a cubic yard to dump at our landfill and he feels that he is not getting his money's worth. For example, when he takes a twenty yard truck out to the landfill he is charged with twenty yards, regardless of how much he has on his truck.

"I feel there also is a problem with these plastic bags at our landfill. Plastic will not deteriorate underground.

"Also, if these bags do not get broken during the landfill operation this also would create underground air pockets. When this happens you cannot get proper compaction, which would cause a spongy condition.'

Isn't it amazing what you can learn just by listening?

SOME MORE ABOUT THOSE CHICKENS

After going into detail about the right sides and left sides of chickens for the big Fall Festival barbecue, the Stroller feared an avalanche of calls questioning the practice and why the right sides are kept separate from the lefts.

Instead, the sweet young voice on the other end of the line asked:

"Do you stack the chickens with the bone side or the flesh side toward the flame when you barbecue them? Do I understand that you turn them? If you do, how about roast chickens? Must you turn

The Stroller had to confess that his knowledge of preparing chicken never got beyond the ability to fry eggs-sunny side up.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

In a recent edition of a railroad magazine a new plan of garbage disposal was shown and it might not be a bad idea to delve into it for our area.

The railroads now have taken a hand in the disposal by loading the garbage on flat cars and then hauling it miles away for some land fill project. Such a program around here would solve a lot of problems and end a lot of debates.

THOUGHTS WHILE STROLLING:

Since when can hens tell the time of day - or why does the price of eggs change about 11 o'clock each morning in our popular eating establishments?

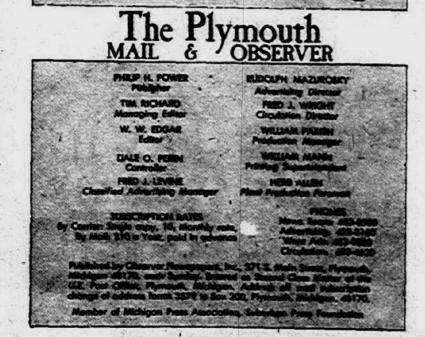

Is there any activity anywhere in the world to match the annual chicken dinner at the Fall Festival where more than 12,000 peple are fed in little more than six hours? As an alumnus of the "sauerkraut stands" at the fairs in the Pennsylvania Dutch Country, where mass eating was in vogue, The Stroller must doff his cap to the chicken dinner.

Have you ever given any thought to the riches underground? Not the oil and ore that must be pumped or mined, but the amount of water and sewer pipe, conduits for lights and other carriers for telephone wires?

The Stroller often wonders how much steel is lying in the walls of our hotels and modern motels, put there by the simple practice of discarding dull razor blades.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

When you get down into the gutter to fight, remember, you always bring some of the gutter up with you.

Time Has Come To Get Serious About Planning For Future Of Plymouth Area

Now that the businessmen in Plymouth are going to take a firm stand in planning for the future of the city, the time has come to discard all delaying tactics that have been used in the past and get down to work on some long-range views.

For several years any number of committees have been at work on one project or another, often working in opposite directions. These committees often overlapped and there were times when a thought was advanced, no one knew which committee should be assigned the work.

This was true from the top officials in city government to the fraternal and civic groups. There were plans on top of plans until no one knew just what the future held in store.

There was only one area of agreement. That was the fact that in Kellogg Park, right in the center of the downtown area, Plymouth had a jewel matched by few cities. Most of the plans started from the park, only to go off in all directions.

An example of the overlapping came to light only recently when, through the efforts of the Garden Club, gas lights were installed in the park. For a time there was a question of whether this activity businessmen, taking their cue from should be handled by the Garden hands, raised the money for the install them.

One of these is the loop traffic pattern for the Central Business District. This plan has been cussed and discussed for the greater part of 10 years and still is a matter of conjecture among members of the city commission who are now bogged down with the speed limits result the plan is left hanging.

Now, after all these years, the same."

This is the reasoning behind the plan of the Chamber of Commerce to sponsor a series of breakfast meetings, starting in September. Working on the theory that nothing was achieved without enthusiasm, the meetings will determine just how far the businessmen want to Many cities around the country had much less with which to start than Plymouth already boasts. These possessions are priceless.

With courage and imagination they could be made into real jewels.

It took courage and a lot of fortitude for the cities of Jackson and Kalamazoo to install their malls in the business section and thus beautify the areas. But it was done and the area took on a type of beauty that has lured customers to the business centers.

Grand Junction, Colorado-not a large city by any means-took five blocks of its business sections and not only saved it but built it into a thing of beauty and a tourist attraction in the desert country. A picture of the Grand Junction development is shown on this page.

What has been done in these cities can be done in Plymouth. But it will take courage and determination. Most of the planning to date has been on what may be termed a haphazard basis. This approach must be changed.

It no longer is feasible to plan for next year or the year after that and do it on a small basis. The time has come when we must think in big terms. Livonia, our neighboring city, for example, has a plan and a model design of a 20-year

That's why the breakfast meetings are being held. If there is enough courage uncovered at these meetings, there can be a bright future for Plymouth.

By GEORGE MACK ADAMS An Old, Old, Old-Timer

In talking over the old days with the younger generation of today, the question of how we amused ourselves always comes editorial to the fore.

Just what amused us?

What really WERE our amusements?

How did we spend our time in Plymouth when there were no automobiles, no radio, no TV., no movies, no electric gadgets in the kitchen and around the home?

No hot air, hot water or electric furnaces.

No bathrooms --- just a shanty on the back of a lot.

Bathing was done behind the stove in the living room or in the kitchen, mostly on late Saturday nights.

No electric refrigerators--the iceman filled your ice box with ice from last winter.

No automobiles in which to ride. If you had the right kind of a horse you might take a buggy ride around town or a few miles out in the country.

No swimming pools. If you wanted to go swimming you had to be a man or boy and go down to the river or creek where no one could see you in your nudity. Bathing trunks were as unknown then as electric tooth brushes.

No electric lights --- beautiful hanging lamps were all the go in my Plymouth days.

Well, we didn't have all those present-day gadgets and appliances, to be sure.

But nevertheless we all had a pretty good time, as I remember it. Once or twice a year we had a home-talent play in the Plymouth Opera House, a nice little indoor playground in the back of the city hall. And everybody --- or nearly everybody --turned out to see how their friends or neighbors "acted" in the new play. And their abilities were commented upon for days and even weeks after the play had run its course-which, if it was a big success, might be three or more

This is the fourth in a series of excerpts from a letter written by George Mack Adams dealing with his life in the old days in Plymouth. In today's segment, he tells of amusement and what was done for entertainment in the days before radio, television or the movies. Other segments will follow until his letter is concluded. — Ed. performances.

Then we had our private parties, and sociables. Some club, organization or church society was always giving some kind of a shin-dig for money, marbles or chalk.

There were the W.C.T.U. rallies, auction-off-the-lunchbox socials at various places in and around Plymouth, attending balloon, ascensions in Plymouth and Northville; skating in the winter at Phoenix or Wilcox ponds; attending Christmas, New Years' or Fourth of July bust-outs; Farmers' Picnics, local Fairs, and. band concerts in the park on Saturday nights.

The first spadeful of ground was turned over Monday noon for the new building in Plymouth that will be the home offices of the American Hospital Benefit and Community Mutual Life Insurance Company. A group of nearly 50 people gathered at the site along Plymouth road, just inside the city limits, as John J. Temple, president of the two firms, dug into the soil and turned over a healthy spadeful.

Donors Thanked

By Red Cross

The Southeastern Michigan Red Cross Blood Program would like to thank the many generous donors who responded to our plea for blood during the recent crisis.

Standing in line to donate on a hot day is not the most pleasant way to spend an afternoon, but close to 4,000 people did just that, without complaint.

Over 3,000 pints of blood collected kept our hospitals in adequate supply of blood. Of that, 567 pints were used by hospitalized riot victims.

Again our most sincere thanks to donors, and particularly to the media who made this possible.

Sincerely yours,

The Rouge:

A Water Un-Wonderland

There's a dark side to the assets of the .Water Wonderland.

You see it about this time of year, especially in the Rouge River branches of suburbia. The streams are low. They're clogged with debris and silt. The waters, bright and sparkling in June, have turned green with . slime. A sophisticated population, with much leisure time on its hands, has dumped the empty containers of its leisure time entertainment into the water.

Parks, as a rule, are considered more desirable if they can be on a body of water.

At this time of year, however, much of that water has become virtually unusable. Because it is low and warm, the water lacks oxygen that can support any great amount of fish. Because it is stagnant, the water is a breeding ground for mosquitoes. Because it stinks, people don't want to go near it, and kids don't go there to throw stones, chase frogs or wade.

IT'S MORE THAN a problem of pollution. Gradually, suburbia is building sewers, and so its wastes getting into the water table can't be blamed for the entire problem.

Rather, the problem seems to a great degree to be one of the flow of water. Ironic as it seems, it's something of a twin to the problem of flood control.

Look at it this way:

The river in many places twists and turns. In early spring, rain and melted snow rush over the frozen ground into the stream. The stream's ability to handle the water depends on the size of its channel and the speed of the flow. If the speed is hampered by twists and junk and landfills, it can handle less water. So it floods.

And vice-versa. In mid-summer, those little oxbows in the channel become tiny ponds. They are stagnant. They present all the problems and undesirable characteristics of stagnant water anywhere. Rocks, hunks of cement, old furniture, mattresses, a million cans - all of these dumped into the water cause more tiny obstructions and render the stream unsafe and unsightly.

The pictures on this page were shot on a single day in three different segments of the Rouge River - the Upper Rouge in Farmington; the Middle Rouge in Northville, Plymouth and southern Livonia; and Bell Creek, in middle Livonia.

THE U.S. ARMY CORPS of Engineers is taking an interest.

In 1963 it issued an information report on the flood plain in the City of Farmington. It currently is asking for easements for a channel clearing and straightening project for three-quarters of a mile in Secs. 35 and 36 of Farmington Township, south of I-696 and in the vicinity of Tuck Road. And it is planning to issue a report on the river in Livonia and northwest Detroit in June of 1968.

The report on the City of Farmington section states: "There have been no federal flood control or allied purpose projects constructed in the River Rouge basin. In Farmington, some minor straightening of the Upper River Rouge was done by a local developer when the Twin Valley Subdivision was constructed . . . This minor improvement would have little effect on flood stages in the area."

The Army Engineers report notes with approval that the City of Farmington has an ordinance prohibiting the filling of the flood plain without approval of the City Council. Also, one subdivision has regulations on lots bordering the river which prohibit filling or encroachment of the river.

But the point here is that there seems to be some relationship between flood conditions in spring and stagnant conditions in late summer.

These will ultimately require cooperative solutions between municipal units, counties, the state Water Resources Commission and the Army Engineers.

Not to mention some prodding from the public.

Marinate BBQ Steaks In Beer

Prime quality steaks, as every backyard chef knows, grill to utter perfection over charcoal. But prime meats are both rare and costly for regular use. However the more conomical cuts, treated with a proper marinage can rival the choicest steak in flavor, juiciness and tenderness.

For steaks that will be charcoai grilled, by far the best marinade is beer. Men who've taken over the summer cooking chores for years can attest that a seasoned beer or ale marinade penetrates the meat with a tenderizing influence - and adds a delicious, subtle flavor,

MRS ALLAN TROYANEK (Nancy Oeftering)

Troyanek-Oeftering Vows Are Spoken

Nancy Ann Oeftering became the bride of Alan Troyanek in a bridegroom as best man, and double ring ceremony Saturday, Aug. 19, in the First Methodist Church of Farmington.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Oeftering. of Glenmuer Avenue, Farmington, and the bridegroom's parents are Howard Troyanek and Mrs. Pearl Troyanek, both of Ferndale.

Candlelight peau de soie was the bride's choice for her wedding gown. It was fashioned in A-line style, with knife pleats at the side, empire bodice and bateau neckline banded in reembroidered Alencon lace.

Her attendants, maid of honor Ruth Steinke, bridesmaids Sue Flabin and Tina Maffeo, and flower girl Kathy Sue Karazim, all wore apricot chiffon gowns with petal headpieces.

Sparma, Under Pressure, Worries About Vargo Ave.

The clock above the entrance door read 7:20 p.m.

The scene within the room was peaceful. You might almost hear a pin drop.

Over in a corner sat the man from Livonia's Vargo Ave. with a big No. 21 on the back of his business attire.

He was crouched on a little stool in front of a cubicle where his regular street clothes hung-not so neatly.

Another of his business associates, wearing a No. 37 on his back, stood by talking hardly over a whisper to one Joseph Falls of the Friendly Free

This was the Tigers clubhouse at Tiger Stadium . . . with game time against the Chicago White Sox now less than 40 minutes away.

The No. 21 was Joe Sparma, enjoying a great season with the Tigers and one of the biggest reasons they're in the midst of the most jammed-up pennant race in the history of the American League. We don't have to say it's been a five-team.

struggle for weeks now.

JOE SPARMA dug into his pocket. Out came a piece of bubble gum. He's not the tobaccochewing type.

As we approached, he looked up, and the same question that was on his mind back in early April down in Lakeland, Fla., still bothered him:

"What's your paper doing about getting my street paved?"

What else could we do but shrug our shoulders? "It's getting worse and worse . . . bumpier and bumpier . . . and dusty, too," explained the man who within moments would be standing by himself in the middle of the diamond with over 20,000 staring at him, with many more thousands glued to their radios and TV cameras carrying each of his actions back to the Chicago area.

"My wife and I will ruin our cars. So will the neighbors. . .

Joe paused. "Hey, my wife should be here by now. She always comes down to see me pitch. And she's here with the other players' wives on Fridays, too. That's about all she can get away. Baby-sitting problems, you know, can be expensive.'

THE NO. 37 MOVED to where Hank was sitting. The No. 37 was swinging a bat and in case you don't recognize him, he's the most Famous hitter in history-Hank Aguirre.

"Showing off to Joe Falls about your hitting?" quipped Sparma to Aguirre.

Coach Retires

Smith, retiring this spring after

21 years at the school, served for six years as the head grid

Former Wayne State University head football coach Herb

"You should talk," snapped back Aguirre. "How come your average is so lousy (Sparma had one hit in 54 times at bat entering the present week's action)?"

"Simple." said Sparma. "I never have been to bat so much in my life." "Don't let success get to your head," roared

By George Maski

observing sports

Aguirre as he bounced out of the clubhouse to hit

Sparma talked about his new business ventures for the coming fall (after the world series, naturally) . . . and kiddingly asked if the Pistons could use "another small guy."

"Don't laugh," he continued. "I was captain of my high school team in Ohio. I even wanted to play for Ohio State University, but it seems like they had a guy by the name of Jerry Lucas and another by the name of John Havlicek . . . and just a few others when I was there."

So Sparma devoted his athletic career to directing the football team at quarterback and pitching for the Buckeyes in baseball.

THE QUIET IN THE BIG Tiger clubhouse was interrupted. Willie Horton rolled in from fielding practice.

"Get this one over in 2:15 (two hours and 15 minutes)," popped Horton. "I'll settle for a victory in three hours," ripped back Sparma. The clock had moved around to 7:37. "Guess it's time I gathered my stuff up; a guy has to earn a living, you know." He arose, jammed another piece of bubble gum in his mouth, reached for his hat, his glove and his heavy jacket.

Boy, this is a lot of stuff to take out there when you won't be around for two innings." It was a misjudgment of the highest order. Sparma survived those two innings . . . pitched well enough to win, but was jinxed by an error. The calm of the Tiger clubhouse now was gone. Al Kaline, Don Wert and all the rest were storming in to make final preparations for the night's work coming up. The man from Vargo Avenue in Livonia headed down the tunnel leading to the Tiger dugout and the diamond. On his broad shoulders he carried what the fans and his team wanted most-the pennant.

Conservatism à Go-Go

Managing Editor

A rump group of Republican conservatives in the 19th Congressional District is giving its brand of political doctrine a fresh, mod, go-go appearance.

It's delightful to look at it from the outside, although one suspects that some of the group's own members are a trifle startled at what the leadership is doing.

These, to refresh your memory, are the deep conservative brand of Republicans -opposed to income taxes, hostile to Big Government, smelling Commies all around, admiring Barry Goldwater and Strom Thurmond, pals with Dick Durant.

In a big fight at last spring's Republican State Convention, the conservative group, led by West Bloomfield J.P. Christian Powell, was ousted from its delegates chairs in the 19th District (western) portion of Oakland County. They're O-U-T as far as the state Republican leadership is concerned, but the conservatives have nevertheless set up business as the "19th Congressional District Republican Executive Committee" with headquarters at 3513 Elizabeth Lake Road, Pontiac.

BUT ABOUT that new look: First, they have opened their executive committee meetings to the public (8 p.m. on the fourth Thursday of each month in the West Bloomfield Township Hall). Having no official party standing, they're safe in going public. Nevertheless, it's an astounding thing for a conservative group, traditionally hostile to press scrutiny, to do.

Second, this strait-laced. thin-lipped conservative organization sponsored a "Combo Clash' for eight teen bands with such un-conservative names as "The Unknowns," "The Wild Angels" and "The Reign of Time."

Accompanying this was a Talent Directory of teen bands in the Oakland County area -a list of outfits like "The Tribe," "The Grypp" (this from Farmington), "The Manic Depressants," "The Breed Apart."

In a foreward to the directory, Chris Powell solemnly writes: "May it encourage you in the further development of your talent and add to your success as you now first enter into the stimulating world of the American free-enterprise system."

How to Paint With Spray Gun

gun it is best to hold the gun six to ten inches from the object you're spraying. Move it across the surface

When painting with a spray with steady, even strokes that are made with a free arm

Keep the gun perpendicular to--and an equal distance from -- the surface.

The Talent Directory has the usual run of "compliments of ..." ads, but it also has ads from the Oakland County Conservative Club, a group of conservatives' conservatives, and from Young Americans for Freedom, a right-wing organization praised by Ronald Reagan, Barry Goldwater, Dean Clarence Manion and Strom

THE BIGGEST CHANGE in outlook of all, perhaps, was the approach of Dave Bradbury, the Powell group's P.R. man. Now, any good newsman will usually tell you that if you write about conservatives in anything less than 100 per cent flattering terms, you get snarls about the "left-wing press" or the "brain-washed liberal establishment hack journalists."

But not from Dave Bradbury. When this newspaper referred to Powell's group as the "rump" outfit, we got one of the sweetest, politest notes you ever did see from Dave Bradbury, gently contending that the other guys -- headed by John Cartwright -- were really the "rump" crowd.

"It was the 'rump' elected slate that was ultimately approved by the established hierarchy," wrote Dave Bradbury. It's a contradiction of terms: A group recognized by the state convention can hardly be called a "rump" group, and it's really the Powell conservative organization that's a "rump" outfit.

But it's a rump organization that can teach the moderateliberal crowd a few lessons -open meetings, sponsorship of mop-haired bands, politeness to the press.

They make "Soapy" Williams with his square-dance calling look like something out of the 19th Century.

Prep Gridders Facing New Coaches, Physicals

over for the area's high school football players.

In fact, for some the "rest" has ended. They have been going through stiff conditioning drills -- either on their own or with teammates -- for several days to prepare themselves for the fall activities.

BUT THIS IS the week, the preps assemble for their physical examinations, draw their equipment and make sure that they get plenty of sleep.

A week from Monday, the schoolboy teams will plunge headlong into practice.

Since the coaches will have only 10 days available to them before classes begin, they'll be most anxious to take advantage of every moment of practice time.

Hence, there will be two-aday sessions at all of the area schools.

THE SEASON will dawn with two new coaches in command in the immediate area.

Some hard workers come in small packages.

While it might be hard to convince some mothers that a broom swishing bundle of energy this size is really much help when there is housework to be done, there is another "small package" which millions of busy mothers put to work time and time

OBSERVER Want Ads are small bundles of energy too, and they can be counted on to do big jobs at low cost anytime you need them. If you have something to sell, want to hire help, rent a spare room or vacant apartment, or if you are searching for a hardto-find item, all you need to do is put a Want Ad to work on the job.

It is a pleasant experience to place your ad, too. Simply dial GA 2-0900 or GL 3-0038. A friendly, helpful Want Ad Secretary will assist you in wording and placing your ad. 5-11 Misc. For Sale

REP. JAMES TIERNEY: REFLECTIONS ON GUNS, CRIME, LAW

James Tierney has been doing a good deal of thinking about crime, safety, riots, guns, courts.

He is a state representative from the 36th District, which includes Plymouth city and township, Canton Township, Garden City, part of Westland and a small chunk of Livonia.

A Democrat and an auto plant worker for many years, Tierney doesn't always hold to the strict party line when the conversation turns to courts and criminal procedures.

He thinks lawyers, notably in legislative committees, have a built-in bias in favor of persons accused of crime and are neglecting the effects on persons abused by crime. He is in favor of moderate gun control legislation but opposed to any rigorous clampdown on all guns.

Now 60 and in his second term in the Legislature, Tierney came to statewide attention when, as mayor of Garden City, he was shot down by an angry contractor at a meeting in a disput? over the price of a building. The release of the accused man from jail and a mental hospital over a period of years, and Tierney's failure to collect a large civil damage judgment, have profoundly affected his life, although he works hard at not getting bitter.

Avoiding personalities, we asked him about gun legislation, crime, lawyers and youths. Here are the questions and his answers:

QUESTION: You've been appointed to an interim committee of the House to investigate the gun laws of Michigan. What, precisely, are you going to look for?

· TIERNEY: "Speaker Waldron, a few weeks ago, appointed me a member of the gun committee. The work of this board will be, first of all, 2 review of our existing laws to see if they need to be strengthened or whether new legislation is needed to protect the public from the improper use of firearms.

"We will investigate this as it relates to the crime that has been increasing in the big cities and metropolitan regions. According to the FBI reports, the crime rate for major crime is increasing four times as fast as the population.

"First, we will have to review our (state) laws and the laws of our nation to see how they can be correlated to prevent people who want to commit crime from misusing the power that is given them in the form of a weapon."

QUESTION: Will that not require federal legislation?

TIERNEY: "I'm of the opinion that federal legislation is definitely needed, because many of the weapons in Michigan are purchased just across the (state) line in Toledo. The weapon that murdered a rabbi was purchased in Toledo just a short time before the murder was committed. "Mail order guns can be ordered not only from places in the United States, but also from foreign countries."

QUESTION: Some people are of the opinion that we have entirely too many guns. Do you think we have too many? Should more citizens own them, or should we clamp down and have fewer?

TIERNEY: 'I don't believe the pr lem is so great in the number of guns as it is in the misuse of guns, because there are many different methods of murdering human beings.

"I don't think it's in the number of guns as it is that too many guns are available to people who are going to use them for criminal purposes."

QUESTION: In discussing gun legislation, should we continue to distinguish between rifles and shotguns, on the one hand, and pistols on the other?

TIERNEY: "I think pistols are the guns that should be closely watched, and they should be recorded because of the fact that they're so easy to conceal and can be carried on the person. They can even enter large crowds, pull a gun out from underneath their coat and commit a murder. This goes for bank robberies.

"Occasionally, sawed-off shotguns are used. But predominantly, in the case of serious crimes, they use handguns."

QUESTION: In Detroit, a number of store owners and small grocers have begun to purchase guns and use them in selfdefense, not always with the encouragement of Commissioner Ray Girardin and the Detroit police. What do you think of the movement in general?

TIERNEY: "Well, I think the merchants in the areas where robberies, holdups and even murders are predominant should have weapons.

"But along with having weapons, they should be thoroughly trained in the use of those weapons.

'I do believe that the incidence of holdups and robberies will decrease when the criminal knows that he might be the one to get hurt, because most criminals are basically cowards also."

QUESTION: In regard to training these merchants, who should be responsible for it? How can we be certain that the merchant who is supposed to be protecting himself with a pistol will be careful and use it properly, and not hurt an innocent TIERNEY: 'I believe that training should be according to the availability. In some sections of the state, the only training facilities are for the local police or the sheriff.

'I think whatever agency is most convenient and best equipped should be the training agency.

'In Michigan, we have training agencies in the local police, the county sheriffs and also the state police. Many of these agencies have excellent programs of gun safety and accuracy in their use."

QUESTION: You've made the comment that the American judicial system and legal system are weighted somewhat heavily in favor of the defendant and against the public interest . . .

TIERNEY: "Definitely. "I think that some of the court decisions and rules of evidence and the conduct of criminal trials are based on the situation that existed a long time ago in our country, when people could be picked up and put through the third degree and so forth, and even military forces and law enforcement forces would invade a man's home and use physical force and other methods to put a man under strain so that he'd make a confession. "I don't think this is the case any more. The laws for protecting an accused person from a mistake in judgment of the authorities have been carried so far that the rights of the abused people -- that is, the victims of the crime--have become negligible,"

QUESTION: Can't the Legislature do anything?

TIERNEY: "Our legislative (judiciary) committees have a majority of attorneys on them. They're not deeply concerned enough about the shock and the misery and the deprivation that exist for the victim of a crime.

"They're more concerned about an improper accusation. This is natural from their background -- which generally is the background of defense attorneys.

"It would be only natural that their background would make them more concerned about the rights of the defendant than about the rights of the people abused by crime."

QUESTION: What you're saying, then, is that only a small proportion of attorneys have been involved in the prosecution side whereas the overwhelming majority of attorneys have been on the defendants' side and think in terms of protecting their clients, and that this inclination carries over when attorneys are elected to the Legislature.

TIERNEY: 'That is absolutely

"Attorneys generally always take the position that 'my client is innocent; he's being falsely accused by these law enforcement officers or society as a whole?"

QUESTION: The most recent FBI report shows that in 1966, in the suburbs of America, one-third of crimes were committed by or attributed to persons under the age of 18. Recently, it has come to the attention of the public that people are maturing two, three or four years earlier than a century ago because of our better diets. Yet our laws have not been changed with regard to age. Should we consider lowering some of the ages in our laws-inot only in voting but also what we consider a "juvenile" to be in criminal cases?

TIERNEY: "Yes, I believe this is long overdue, Besides, the means of communication and the means of learning are so far ahead of what they were when I was a youth myself.

"Very definitely they know right from wrong at a much earlier age than they did at that time. And I think that legislation to recognize the difference in the time of maturity is long overdue."
