Vallier Charges Gross Laxity In Assessing

In an open letter addressed to the Editor of the Mail & Observer and which was spread on the official minutes of the City Commission meeting last Monday evening, Commissioner Arch Vallier has charged extreme laxity on the part of Kenneth Way, the city assessor, and accused Way of issuing incorrect statements.

In the letter, Commissioner Vallier charges that in a recent report, 216 of the 320 accounts on the personal property rolls had never been audited and that an additional 61 had not been checked since 1960.

He further charged that some businesses had been audited and their tax base adjusted while their competitors had not been. Vallier said this was not fair.

THE LETTER is an outgrowth of a statement made at a recent Commission meeting in which Commissioner Vallier asked that a complete audit of the personal property tax rolls be made, and that of 64 accounts audited there was a discrepancy of $1,180,930 or 37.9 per cent.

At the time, the assessor said that he would welcome a comprehensive audit, stating that cases had been reviewed from time to time, and there should be no major discrepancies.

In his letter, Commissioner Vallier took exception to this statement and added that much of the problem centers on certain taxpayers who have not been correctly declaring to the assessor the value of their personal property, and that the assessor has not been taking the necessary steps to correct them.

The Assessor was at the meeting when Commissioner Vallier read his letter for the official minutes. He failed to issue a statement before leaving to attend the Municipal League Convention at Mackinac Island.

Commissioner Vallier's complaint is another in a series protesting the discrepancies in the tax rolls in both the city and Plymouth Township, where some residential areas are assessed at 40 per cent of true cash value and vacant property at only 25 per cent when * Please turn to page 2

The incident occurred shortly after 3:00 a.m. Wednesday and came dangerously close to being a success.

According to the police report, the bolts and angle iron holding the cannon on its cement platform had been severed, the hubs of the wheels had been oiled to make it easier to push, and the cannon itself had been rolled almost to Penniman Avenue when police arrived.

Two hacksaws were found by the cement slab and it was estimated by police that the perpretators probably had been at work for an hour before being

In its recommendation the Committee asked that local laws and ordinances be enacted prohibiting discrimination by reason of religion, race, color or national origin, on the sale, rental or dealings concerning real property located within the confines of the City of Plymouth.

The recommendation further stated "that since discrimination in housing adversely affects the continued development, renewal, growth and progress of the people of the City of Plymouth and the Townships of Plymouth and Canton, it is hoped you will give this matter your utmost attention." Immediately upon hearing the recommendation, Commissioner Robert Smith moved that the City Attorney be directed to study the Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti ordinances that had been offered as examples and prepare an ordinance for Plymouth.

The motion opened a lengthy discussion in which there were no negative comments, but efforts made to have the ordin- don't deprive other people of ance, when written, as complete as possible.

This report shows that out of approximately 320 accounts, 216 had never been audited and an additional 61 had not been checked since 1960. Also of equal concern is the fact that some places of business had been audited and their tax base adjusted while their competitors have not been which is not fair. Mr. Way stated, "here and there, there may be some differences but this is due to the fact that the reports from the taxpayers. are delayed in some instances." This is not a correct statement. Audits of 64 personal. property accounts have been conducted by the Wayne County. Bureau of Taxation, Personal Property Department, during the years of 1964, 1965, and 1966 showed that the taxpayers filed statements totaling $3,108,110 and the audits showed that the statements should have totaled $4,289,040 or a deficiency of $1,180,930 or 37.9%. Also, it showed that some statements as filed were 100% or more incorrect. The State Tax Commission's reports confirm-this condition. "If this condition is not corrected, we have been warned that the additional equalization will be applied to the city. If equalization is applied, 4t would be applied to the city as a whole and this would mean that the homeowners and building owners would have their taxes raised unfairly to cover this deficiency in personal property accounts. This audit is to be done by the Plymouth assessor with the assistance of the Wayne County Bureau of Taxation on the large accounts." Sincerely yours,

A.E. Vallier Commissioner. City of Plymouth

SERVING THE PLYMOUTH COMMUNITY

The Stroller . . .

Every now and then The Stroller delights in going visiting and seeing how other folks livewhat they have—and what they do for enjoyment.

It was such a trip that took him to the banks of the St. Clair River last weekend and one of the most enjoyable experiences he has had in a long time.

Just sitting there, under the shade of a tree, looking at what seemed to be a neverending parade of boats from the big lake freighters to the costly yachts and down to the little fishing smacks, one seemed to be in another world.

Here he was, sitting on what has been called the most peaceful border in the world, and such things as labor strikes, the school problems with the teachers and the war in Vietnam seemed like things out of the past.

It was so quiet and peaceful. The only thing that disturbed one's peace was the sudden shriek of a whistle or the fog horns on the freighters. And they were just warnings to vacationers.

Thousands of dollars, yes millions, went floating by during the afternoon and one wondered why other borders in the world couldn't be the same.

Here is a stretch of water-the St. Clair River-which is the link between Lake Huron and Lake St. Clair-that carries more traffic than any other waterway in the world. It is part of the St. Lawrence Seaway and foreign boats lend even more glamour as they slide silently by with nary a bit of disturbance.

One sits there, in what appears to be only a stone's throw from Canada, and looks into a foreign country and wonders.

Just what is there about this border that makes it more peaceful than the others? It couldn't be lack of natural resources, which other borders claim keeps them close to war, because at the moment a large gas line is being laid under the river and into Canada. And while one sits wondering about such things The Stroller also got a mental picture of how dreadful it would be if the folks on either side of the river were torn by strife. It was this thought that gripped him as he sat

Sure, the peace is wonderful-but how horrible it would be under war-time conditions such as they have in other lands.

Such visits help to cleanse one's mind and give him a better idea and appreciation of the nicer things in life. Try a visit up there some time-But be sure to stop and rest a while. There's not another border like it in the world. The Stroller feels that you'd enjoy it, too.

A DEUCE WITH A THRILL

Ralph Lorenz, genial operator of the May flower, returned from his vacation with a smile as wide as that. And he had good reason.

Asked if he enjoyed himself he laughed, sort of stuck out his chest, and proudly said, "I had three deuces in one round of golf-and one of them was an eagle."

He calmly admitted to a 75 for the round, but in all conversatons he kept returning to the three

"I've had only one hole-in-one in 30 years of golf," he ventured, "but that eagle 2 was a thrill. I'll never forget it."

It is little things like this that make a vacation worthwhile.

HOW'S THIS FOR IRONY?

Richard Blodgett, the tall, angular City Manager, spent the greater part of the week at the annual convention of the Michigan Municipal League on Mackinac Island-and was a member of one of the panels.

What do you think the panel discussed? "Recruiting and retaining professional, technical and administrative personnel."

Reports of the session haven't reached back home, but no one on the panel could have had more experience on the subject than Dick.

SOME OF THE ODD THINGS YOU HEAR:

In one of our larger shopping areas the other day The Stroller heard a woman ask: "Is this genuine synthetic?"

And then there was the man who entered the mart and asked:

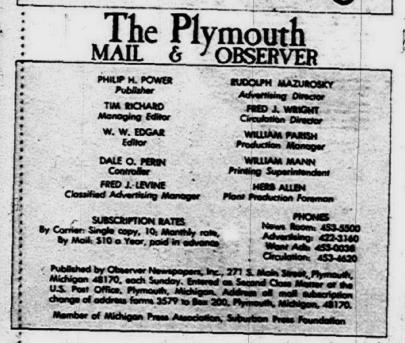

"Have you anything new in antiques?"

But The Stroller always has liked the one they tell of the fellow who said, very seriously: "I'll never forget what's er, er, er, what's her name."

THOUGHTS WHILE STROLLING

Wouldn't it be nice if the various clubs and organizations that participate in the annual Fall Festival, would tell of the charity work being planned with the proceeds-before the Festival?

Art of Communication Makes Plymouth A Beacon In Field Of School Problems

While members of the various boards of education across the state were feuding with teachers over terms of a new contract and parents kept their fingers crossed pondering the possibility of having the education of their children impaired, the Plymouth Community School District was not among them.

Peace with the teachers in Plymouth was assured last Tuesday morning when the pact was signed and all parties joined in looking forward to a great yeareven though it may be a challeng-

What was done in Plymouth to bring this about?

What did Plymouth do that other areas didn't?

These questions have been bandied about all week and rightfully so.

When one area can succeed with seemingly little frustration where countless others failed-even under the prodding of official fact finders -there must be a reason.

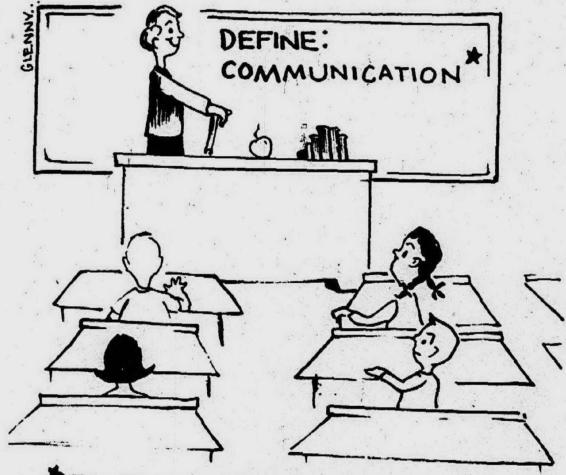

Without going into the fine details of the new pact with the Plymouth teachers and all of the benefits, fringe and otherwise, one thing stands out.

It was communication between the parties.

It is known that the negotiators for both the Board of Education and the teachers have been laboring diligently-and without much fanfare and bluster-in order that differences could be settled amicably and in time for the new school term

This type of communication always helps. But it goes even deeper

Much of the reason for peace in Plymouth is the fact that over the years each side has developed a wholesome respect for the other. During his regime Russell Isbister. former Superintendent of Schools who retired only last June, built up down and that Plymouth could be a fine relationship. This was not headed for trouble. just an occasional matter with him. It was communication through the such thinking.

One side always knew, pretty well, what the other was doing. And over the years there has been a sense of fairness all along the line.

When it was learned that Isbister was planning to retire, there It changed generals. were many who believed this bridge

It usually is a perilous matter to inject a new general into the scheme of things with what could be a big battle in the offing. But that's what Plymouth did.

Fortunately, the new general-

Isbister's picking and this thought brought some relief for the worriers.

Still there were others who adopted a "wait and see" attitude. Then came the silver lining in what could have been a cloud of

One of the last acts performed by Rossman before leaving the Lakeview Schools in St. Clair Shores was to negotiate a new contract with the teachers.

So, when he transferred to Plymouth, he had the feeling of confidence that there would be little trouble. More important, the teachers also realized that they were going to deal with a man who had been through the wars and had been fair to all concerned.

It was a happy situation. So, with this foundation and the continuance of communication, the task lost much of its perilous look.

Therefore, it was no surprise when the announcement came a few weeks ago that the members of the Board of Education had agreed to the terms of a new pact. It was no surprise, either, when the teachers' representatives in the discussions urged the teachers to sign the document.

.The work had been done by many, many hours of study and discussions, but at no time was there a barrier placed in the stream of discussion.

So, it was because of this that friendly relations were built up without the blaring of trumpets. In the end it brought results.

And we wholeheartedly salute the members of both negotiating

Other areas would do well to look to Plymouth for a guiding

This is not meant for teachers alone. All others in labor disputes could learn a lesson in the value of communication.

of Mrs. Roland Bonamici's house at 899 Hartsough is that of art forms of all kinds dominating everything else.

In the living room an antique pie safe stands next to bright modern posters. A green and white paper Tiffany lamp hangs near the door. But most important of all are the bright, vivid-colored paintings.

This juxtaposition of what seems to be opposites is puzzling until Mrs. Bonamici explains her main interests.

"I like all kinds of folk art and music--things that are primitive," she said. "And I've always been intrigued by color, form, and design."

The old pie chest was used on an early, more primitive farm in this country. The housewife would spend one morning baking for the next few days, and then store her

The stylized flower-like shapes of the holes in the tin appeal to Mrs. Bonamici's love of design. Suddenly the pie chest seems to belong next to the intricately designed modern

Most of the pictures which fill the room were done by Mrs. Bonamici and are examples of her "hard-edged" geometric painting:

'In hard-edge painting the colors don't blend into each other," she explained.

However, sometimes optical illusions are created as in a large red and green picture in the bedroom. This painting is made up of squares and circles, and when you stare at one shape for a while, it will appear again after your eyes have moved away from it.

"This is a technique used to expand the vision." explained Mrs. Bonamici. And the technique will be familiar to everyone, who as a child. stared at a bright colored object and then saw its image again on a white ceiling.

As a contrast Mrs. Bonamici has put an old Shaker clothes rack draped with oldfashioned bonnets and shawls just underneath the stark, modern picture.

The hallways and doors of the house are decorated with

"I love my posters" said Mrs. Bonamici pointing to a picture of that longtime comic strip favorite the Phantom holding up a tiger. "They are such fun." Some of her other posters are of Batman, and Superman breaking chains of green kryptonite.

Another of Mrs. Bonamici's interests is folk music. One wall of her living room is filled with primitive flutes, African drums and other native .

In reading his description it becomes rather evident that most of us play the game at one time or another. When it is a question of a law that we like we find ourselves in the role of the cop.

If, on the other hand, we come up against a law or the possiblity of a law we do not like we assume the role of the robber. The reasons for liking the one law and disliking the other are immaterial (and often immature) but the fact remains that most of us play our role to

New Year, New Schools

As usual this fall, suburban school districts are opening a number of new buildings and additions to meet growing enrollments.

Biggest single project is Oakland Community College's new Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington Township (photo at left). Schoolcraft College has a physical education building under construction but it won't be ready until next year.

Clarenceville topped local districts with three projects -- a high school auditorium wing and two elementary additions. Farmington and Plymouth districts each have a new elementary school, but neither was able to open on schedule last week.

Later in the school year, Livonia will have two new buildings--Dickinson Junior High School and Sec. 15 elementary school.

OAKLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE'S Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington Township is expected to be completely finished by April 30, 1968. Dr. Richard E. Wilson, Orchard Ridge provost, said that the overall cost of the campus will be around $18 million. Right now, Wilson said, 60 percent of the campus has been completed and is usable. By next April, there will be 11 buildings. Seven of the 11 are being used now.

School, was unable to open on schedule last week. It is scheduled to have the district's first non-graded format. It's located at 34545 Old Timber Trail, in a stand of virgin timber FARMINGTON'S NEWEST, Forest Elementary that is slated to be developed into a nature area. Approximate cost: $700,000. Conducting their own building inspection are sixth grader Sari Britton and third grader Brad Braunreuther, both of Northwick Drive.

Clarenceville district, has an addition that area, and conference room. It's at 19814 includes administrative offices, science, art Louise, Livonia. Cost: $220,000.

GRANDVIEW ELEMENTARY School, in the and music rooms, teachers lounge and work

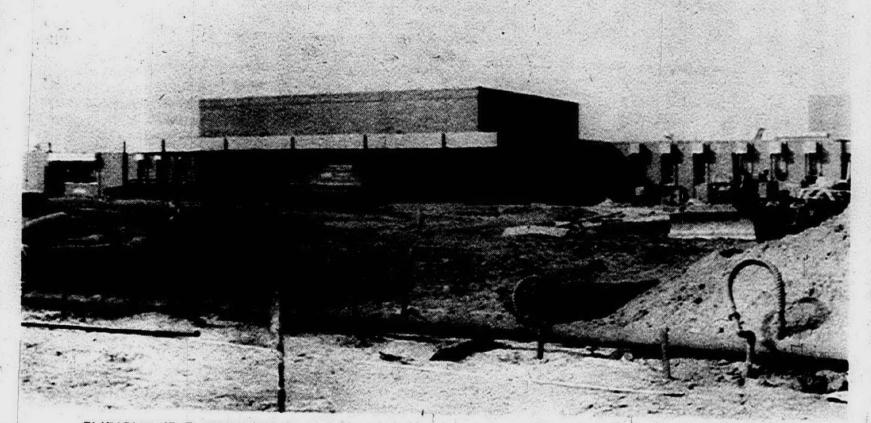

Clarenceville district, boasts a new addition that includes a library, two special purpose rooms, three classrooms, art room, conference room and teachers lounge. It's on Osmus Avenue in Farmington. Cost $335.000.

RIGHT: Livonia didn' t open any new buildings this year, but it does have two under construction and expected to be available later in fall or early winter. This one is Dickinson Junior High School on Newburgh Road between Six and Seven Mile Roads. Designed for 900 to 1,000 students, it will cost more than $1.8 million and have 39 rooms.

Time For Planting Needle Evergreens

By BETTY FRANKEL Special Writer

Evergreens are the crown jewels in the landscaping around the home.

In this area, broad-leaf evergreens are best planted in spring. However, September is the best month for planting needle evergreens.

Before any planting is done and before any purchases are made, a plan should be made. Know what effect you are trying to get and what plants can be used to get this effect. Keep the design simple, and it will be more effective.

Use only a few varieties of plants and do not plant too many or put the plants too close together. Remember that they will increase in size as they grow older and allow for

THE NEEDLE evergreens can range in size from creeping plants only a few inches high to tall forest giants. Be sure you know what the plant you choose will grow into and choose one that will naturally fit the spot you have for it without having to be pruned and cut frequently.

The pines, spruce and hemlock grow into tall trees. These tall varieties are not suitable for planting around the foundation of the house. However, they make choice material for screens and background planting or for an accent specimen on the lawn.

Pines have soft textured needles. Spruce have stiff, short needles that surround the twigs like a round bottle brush. Hemlocks have needles arranged so they are flat and feather out on two sides of the twig.

The dwarf evergreens are the ones that are most valuable for foundation planting. These grow slowly and can be expected to remain within a prescribed size. The prostrate forms creep along the ground and remain less than a foot tall. Spreaders grow many reet across but only a few feet tall. Globe forms develop into spheres a few feet in diameter. There are also upright forms that grow into columnar or conical shapes but remain within bounds.

THE YEWS (taxus) are the very choicest evergreens. Their needles have a good texture and remain a rich deep green all year. The female plants have attractive red berries in fall.

The dwarf Japanese yew (Taxus cuspidata) is an excellent low-growing variety. It is one of the most frequently used "spreaders". Hick's yew is an upright columnar form that is used for evergreen hedges as well as accent plants in a foundation planting. Hatfield's yew is a tall pyramid or cone, and Brown's yew grows into a globe shape.

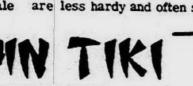

The junipers have gray-green or blue-green needles much lighter in color than those of the yews. The lighter color and the feathery texture of the foliage contrasts nicely with the yew foliage.

There are some very dwarf forms that creep close to the ground and are suitable for use in a rock garden. These are most attractive. Slightly taller are Andorra juniper and Sargent's juniper. The latter has a blue-green color. The former is frequently planted because the foliage which is green in warm weather turns a purplebronze during the winter.

Next in height range is the dwarf Pfitzer juniper. It is a small version of the Pfitzer juniper which is one of the most widely planted of all evergreens. It is a hardy plant which grows well in either sun or shade and thrives in even quite poor soil. The Pfitzer juniper often attains great age and can spread very widely. although it will withstand very severe pruning.

Hetzi juniper has a beautiful blue-green hue and tall arching branches. There are also tall upright junipers, including a variety known as silver cedar.

Dwarf Muhgo pine is the only pine suitable for foundation planting. Arbor Vitae are also used as landscape material but they are less satisfactory than yews or junipers because they are less hardy and often suffer the form of the plants becomes distorted.

EVERGREENS CAN be used to accent the entrance of the house, soften the strong lines at the corners, and provide a feeling of transition between the house and the landscape.

It is not necessary to completely surround the house with shrubs, or to line them up all along the front of it so the house looks as though it is sitting in a nest. In fact, more interesting effects can be achieved if the plants are grouped and the house is left exposed in some places.

LANDSCAPE planning must be an individual thing, planned and custom tailored for each individual house, but there are some "rules of thumb" that can serve as rough guides in planning. One expert suggests that the plantings in front of the house should have the shape of a funnel leading to the front door, to funnel attention to this spot. On a photograph or sketch of the house make a mark at each corner midway between the eaves and the ground. Connect each of these midway points with a point on the center of the door sill. The mature height the shrubs planted should be within the line.

Plan a heavy grouping of plants at the corners, and if space permits, flare this out from the house in a wide wing. Plan an accent at the doorway, and use low spreaders beneath windows.

Evergreens should be moved carefully, with the roots encased in a burlap-wrapped ball of earth. Prepare the hole so it is larger than the ball and fill in around the ball with a mixture of top soil and peat moss. Water thoroughly.

WHY SO MANY centennials in 1967? It's strange that everyone is becoming 100 years old at once, because the areas were all settled at different times.

In fact, most were founded in the period from 1824 to 1832. This was after the Erie Canal was opened, and settlers from New York, Connecticut and other eastern states began flocking to the old northwest territory.

What they're all celebrating is the 100th anniversary of their incorporation as villages.

provided the answer. It was a young staff assistant named David L. Norrgard, writing in the March 1966 issue of the MML's magazine, the Michigan Municipal Review. In a nutshell, the answer is that in 1857 the Legislature passed a general law for the incorporation of villages after 30 years of inactivity when no municipal corporations had been organized as such.

MICHIGAN HAD, until that time, an extremely weak tradition in local government.

Norgard writes that the French and English followed a pattern of either military rule or a civilian governor and administrative council. In 1815 Detroit was incorporated as a city, In 1820 Monroe followed suit. Then there was total inactivity for 30 years. Fight Is On Issues Mild Conservatives -Huber

"The split in the Republican party in Oakland County is not a Huber-Farnham quarrel, as many have tried to present it. but instead a legitimate disagreement on the issues of property rights, personal rights, and the question of the rule of men versus the rule of law."

So said State Sen. Robert Huber (R-Troy) at the first annual summer rally of the conservative Republican Citizens Committee of Oakland County, last week.

Huber said there are philosophical differences between the members of Huber's Republican Citizens Committee and the official Republican Committee headed by Joseph Farnham. Under Farnham's leadership. Huber said, the Republican Committee said nothing when the governor and the Legislature *deliberately wrote the recent income tax legislation to deny the citizen his constitutional right of public

1 Michigan's first constitution in 1837 was silent on local government, but the second constitution in 1850 provided for the election of judicial and other officers of cities and villages. It also gave the Legislature powers to confer powers to cities and villages.

The Legislature responded with a general law in 1857 and then with specific acts as each unincorporated community sought village status.

There is no discussion in any text of what motivated the rash of village incorporations after 1857, but it's not difficult to

Urban merchants may have wanted paved streets that farmers were reluctant to vote for in the township annual meeting; they may have wanted their own fire departments or water systems, which farmers couldn't use . . . a lot of reasons like that.

THE CHARTERS which Plymouth and Farmington and other villages got were a far cry from the charters of today.

The Legislature then had a lot to say about the form of government of a municipality. Someone with an ax to grind-perhaps legislator himself--would present a written charter, and the other members would pass it pretty routinely.

In 1908 Michigan became a pioneer in the "home rule" movement. Cities and to some extent villages could, by a vote of the people, decide whether they wanted wards or at-large elections, partisan or non-partisan ballots, mayors or city managers, and a host of other questions.

But the 1857 law was a beginning.

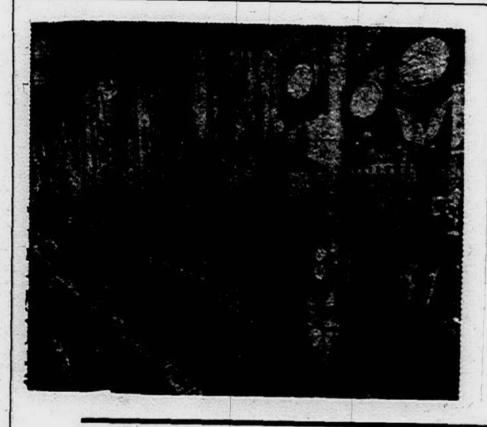

And in 1867, a lot of pioneer communities took advantage of
