

U.A.W. Strike At Burroughs Idles 3,400 Here Despite Plea By Union Leaders To OK Contract

In complete repudiation of their own leadership, 3,400 members of U.A.W. Local 1313 struck the Plymouth Township plant of the Burroughs Corporation Friday in the second major work stoppage here in less than a month.

On Sept. 6, 1,125 hourly workers at the Ford Motor Co. facility on Sheldon Road joined the nationwide Ford strike.

They also are members of the U.A.W., but of Local 845.

Together the two strikes mean that more than one-third of the industrial work force of Plymouth and Plymouth Township now is on the picket line instead of at their jobs.

The payroll at Ford's Plymouth plant totals approximately $400,000 per month. At Burroughs it runs well over the

$1 million a month.

ALTHOUGH LOCAL 1313 struck three Burroughs facilities Friday, neither of the other two—both in Detroit—is comparable to the Plymouth plant in number of employees. There are approximately 800 hourly employees in one of them, 200 in the other.

President Tom Katona, of Local 1313, revealed that he and the U.A.W. regional director, plus the four members of the union's bargaining committee, all had recommended ratification by the local of a new contract proposal which was submitted for membership approval Thursday.

The combined vote from the three plants was four-to-one against ratification.

Katona was admittedly surprised at the outcome and commented, "It's quite a blow to my ego."

The proposed contract offered hourly workers a wage increase of 73 cents an hour over a period of three and a half years.

KATONA SAID this was not the major stumbling block to ratification. He mentioned pension and seniority issues as the prime areas of dissatisfaction, and expressed the hope for a quick and satisfactory settlement.

However, neither the union nor corporation indicated when contract negotiations will be resumed.

Having arrived at terms which had the stamp of endorsement of the union's appointed bargaining representatives, and seeing those terms rejected, negotiators now must re-analyze the issues in groping toward a mutually satisfactory agreement.

The old Burroughs-U.A.W. contract expired June 1 and workers stayed at their jobs when that pact was extended as negotiations continued. Any terms of a new contract would be retroactive to that date.

Once the strike was called, picket lines immediately were established. Friday's scene on Plymouth Road was one of milling pickets at every gate, with officers of the Sheriff's Road Patrol watchfully maintaining order.

REIGNS OVER FUND DRIVE --- Carol Karshneski, a statuesque blonde secretary employed at the Burroughs Corporation, was selected this week as "Miss Sweet Charity" of the 1967 Plymouth Community Fund campaign to raise a record $98,586 for support of 13 public service agencies. Her first official act will be to preside over the kick-off torchlighting ceremonies at 7:15 p.m. Monday, Oct. 9 in Kellogg Park.

City Hope For Federal Funds Given Rude Jolt

Any hope that the City of Plymouth may have had of obtaining federal funds for urban renewal of the Central business district or elimination of the Main Street railway crossing were dimmed during the past week.

The disheartening news was delivered by Al West, Area Representative for Housing and Urban Development who spent several hours in the city with a group of leaders on a tour of the downtown area.

Following the tour he announced that any Federal assistance program in Urban Renewal would have to meet these priorities:

1. Critical housing area
  2. High unemployment area
  3. Critical need.
- He pointed out that, from what he saw on his short tour, the City of Plymouth would not qualify in any of these categories.

GIVEN SEVERAL specific problems, West made the following points very clear:

- 1 -- There are no funds available for the current fiscal year.
- 2 -- There are no funds available for a railroad underpass.
- 3 -- The P&A Theater, which recently was given to the city as a gift, may qualify for an Historical Preservation grant only.
- 4 -- The Northwest quadrant of the central business district may qualify for rehabilitation but not for total clearance.

After making these observations the Federal agent suggested that it may be possible for the Regional Office in Chicago to send an expert to Plymouth to recommend a self-

City To Get Purchasing Ordinance

After being in business for almost two decades the City of Plymouth is about to have its first purchasing ordinance.

The new document that will outline all procedures for spending the taxpayers' money, will be acted upon at the Commission meeting on Monday evening.

Heretofore, all purchases were made on a partial bid basis. That is, bids were taken, and studied, but local merchants and dealers were given consideration before contracts were let.

Under the new ordinance purchases still will be made on a bid basis, according to City Manager Richard Blodgett, "but there will be little or no area for recognizing local area dealers."

Along with this ordinance, the Commission also will have the final plans for the loop traffic program, and the zoning ordinance before it.

These actions will clear the way for the big public hearing on the zoning ordinance on Monday, October 9. The Commission is expecting a large gathering for the zoning hearing.

The ordinance has been two years in the making and, inasmuch as it will designate land use for the entire city, it is one of the most important documents to be brought to the public attention in a long while.

Ralph Lorenz On The Mend

Ralph Lorenz, operator of the Mayflower Hotel, who has been confined to St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor for the past week, is showing some improvement according to the doctors.

Suffering from loss of blood, he was given seven transfusions during the past week.

Plymouth And Livonia Join Forces To Solve Garbage Problem

The City of Plymouth's plea for help to solve the garbage and trash disposal problem has been answered—at least temporarily.

The help came last Wednesday evening when the Livonia City Council, in a joint meeting with the Plymouth Commissioners in the Livonia City Hall agreed to have the Livonia City attorneys draw up plans for a garbage authority that would attempt to find a solution for both cities.

This agreement is the most forward step taken by either city in the long, drawn out battle with the problem. And it marked the climax of a move suggested by Plymouth Commissioner Arch Vallier some months ago. At that time he announced in an open Commission meeting that Plymouth couldn't solve the problem alone and would require help from its suburban neighbors.

"Why not ask the City of Livonia to join with us?" he said at the time. "That's a city, much larger than we are, and it has the same problem. Why not let our rich neighbors help."

SEVERAL WEEKS later City Manager Richard Blodgett reported that he had contracted the top officials in Livonia, but had not heard from them.

"You contacted the wrong people," Vallier answered, "if you want action you've got to contact the Council President over there. And I suggest now that you do that in a hurry. If we don't get help soon, we'll be in a lot of trouble."

The new approach worked. For it wasn't long until Plymouth officials were invited to a joint meeting with the Livonia Council to discuss the problem.

Wednesday night's meeting and agreement resulted as both groups seemed well pleased with the attitude of the other and the seriousness with which the problem was attacked.

"We were treated just fine," City Manager Blodgett commented after the meeting, "and I think we'll get some place with this joint effort."

Aside from City Manager Blodgett, other Plymouth officials who attended the meeting were: Mayor James Jabara, and Commissioners Arch Vallier, James McKeon, James Houk, and George Hudson. The Livonia delegation consisted of Council President Pete Ventura, Vice-president Robert Nash, Rudolf Kleinert, and Ed McNamara.

NO DETERMINATION was made at the meeting whether the first approach would be toward the building of an incinerator or the acquisition of land for a joint land fill program.

Research Expert Will Address Forum

Robert E. Pickup, executive director of the Citizens Research Council of Michigan, will address the noon luncheon of the Plymouth Businessmen's Forum Thursday, Oct. 5 in the Mayflower Meeting House. It is the Research Council which will conduct the unification study to determine what advantages or disadvantages would be inherent in an amalgamation of governmental entities in the community.

A research team from the Council will launch its survey in mid-October under Pickup's over-all supervision.

Last spring, business, civic, educational and political leaders of the community met in a day-long leadership conference at Schoolcraft College, and the stimulus for the unification study came out of that session.

A resolution proposing such a survey was adopted by the conference, and later received formal endorsement of the Plymouth City Commission and Plymouth Township Board of Trustees, plus a qualified endorsement by the Trustees of Canton Township.

Fire Buffs Get Chance To Buy Truck

FOR SALE One slightly used fire truck, vintage 1948, complete with 400 feet of three-quarter-inch hose and original tires. Driven less than 8,000 miles. Some repairs necessary. Cost when new, $9,500. Bidding starts at $400 and best offer takes. Call or write Paul Albright, Public Safety Director, Plymouth Township Hall.

It isn't that Plymouth Township is getting into the increasingly popular "garage sale" sort of thing, but what do you do when you clean out the closet and find a few items that might bring a few bucks?

Run a classified ad, of course. The Township owns this old junker of a fire truck, and the wise beards who administer affairs figure that somewhere there may be someone who would like it as a collector's item, or maybe as an orchard spray rig, or even as another toy for the kid who has everything.

Of course, the speedometer has been out of whack for something like 12 years, and the windshield wipers busted two years before that, but get a load of those tires. Note that they're still the "originals." It's hard to come by that kind of rubber any more, and think of how many slingshots they'd make.

Albright told the Township Trustees Tuesday night that it would cost at least $2,000 to put the six-ton piece of apparatus in fire-fighting condition, even as an extra emergency piece.

Supervisor John D. McEwen, a canny Scot, reasoned with his colleagues that this would be a mite wasteful of the tax dollars they so valiantly protect and that idea was nixed.

RAIN AND COLD didn't dampen the spirits of pickets who appeared at the Burroughs Corporation Plymouth plant for the first time in 60 years Friday. Local 1313 ordered the strike when negotiations with management failed to reach an accord. The pickets are: (from left) Pat Demetro of Redford Township; Picket Capt. Norm Vetter, Detroit; Jack Dempsey, Plymouth; Bill Mitchell, Garden City and Frank Brunell, Redford Township.

Area Commission Begins Third Year On Optimistic Note

The Area Planning Commission begins its third year of operation under the guidance of a full-time director on Monday and optimism never was higher.

"With our big gains in population and the development of attractive industrial sites, our future looks very bright," Harold Fischer, the director, pointed out.

"The trend seems to be in this direction and with the building of the expressways in the next few years, we are looking forward to more activity and a continuing broadening of the tax base."

The Commission at present is composed of the following members: Richard Palmer, Robert Wade and Thomas Alexsy, of Canton Township; Ralph Garter, Clark Finley, and Frank Millington of Plymouth Township; George Lawton, Harold Guenther and Clarence Moore of the City of Plymouth; and James Rossman, Cal Strom and Carl Schultheiss, of the Plymouth Community School District.

The new officers are Thomas Alexsy, president; Frank Millington, vice-president; Cal Strom, secretary; and Clark Finley, treasurer. Harold Fischer will continue as the full-time director.

During the past two years with a full-time director, the Commission has had a part in assisting nine industries to locate in the area. When these buildings are completed approximately $19 million of increased valuation will be realized. Aside from broadening the tax base, these nine industries will furnish jobs for 2300 additional people and their payrolls will be a big boost for the area's economy.

Along with the plan to increase the industrial development, the Commission also encourages commercial improvement at every opportunity.

With all suburb communities growing, competition for business and industry is becoming keener than ever and the Commission attempts to keep on top of every prospect.

All "leads" reaching the office are carefully followed by Harold Fischer, the director, until a choice is made.

Along with this activity the Planning Commission also takes an active role in the attempt to preserve the Central Business District and develop additional parking areas.

Much of the ground work in the purchase of the Davis property on Penniman Avenue that will eliminate an "eyesore" of long standing, was done through the Commission office.

Plymouth Sculptor Paid High Tribute

Dr. Joseph N. DeLauro, a sculptor who moved to the Plymouth community only three months ago, has been a high honor for one of his profession.

His latest work, a statue weighing 1300 pounds and standing eight feet high, has been placed in the Cass Avenue court of the Detroit Public Library. It was dedicated just a week ago with very elaborate ceremonies.

The work, which was two years in the making, is the first of Dr. DeLauro's statues to grace a public building and marks another fine chapter in a notable career.

THE STATUE, named "Exploration" is a dancing female and it was cast in bronze at the Battaglia foundries in Milan, Italy.

Dr. DeLauro, who heads the Fine Arts Department at the University of Windsor and who makes the return trip by automobile each day, confided that he spent a bit more than two years preparing the work, from the first model to the final casting.

A plaque on the granite base defines it as "an invitation to viewers to discover the joy of ever-changing beauty produced by form, light, and shadow."

Aside from this latest work Dr. DeLauro's recent commissions include two bronze figures for the grounds of the Sisters of Mercy, Province of Detroit, in Farmington, as well as a crucifix for the Mother of Mercy Convent chapel. In addition, Dr. DeLauro recently completed "Fountain Figure" for the garden reception center at the Hiram Walker Company in Windsor.

A GRADUATE of Yale and Iowa Universities, Dr. DeLauro has worked in many media. Prior to joining the faculty of the University of Windsor in 1960 he was a member of the art department of Marygrove College in Detroit for 14 years and also taught at the University of Detroit.

"I have been out here only a few months," Dr. DeLauro commented, "but I like the Plymouth area and would like to take an active part in the many activities now going on for the beautifying of the community."

He resides at 7560 Birkland Drive.

The Stroller...

Perhaps it was the Tigers' blunders in the late innings that caused a switch in conversation, but the other day at the luncheon table they fell to discussing suicide and The Stroller was amazed at some of the things he heard.

It so happened that there were several items in the daily press that morning dealing with suicide attempts. They caused Frank Palmer to ask this very interesting question:

"How would a guy feel if he failed?"

No sooner had the question been asked than there were all sorts of reactions.

One of the guests recalled that he knew of a doctor who had deliberately taken an overdose of sleeping pills—but was foiled when a friend came to his rescue and saved his life.

"You know," he said, "that doctor never was the same after that. It was common knowledge that he had made an attempt on his life—and it marked him. He became the most timid and shy person in the community."

"It always seemed to us," he went on, "that Doc felt bad because his attempt was foiled."

"So, I know from that, it must be a terrible feeling when you attempt to take your life—and fail."

Just about then Doc Salan spoke up. Doc has been around for some time and he always speaks from a background of rich experiences.

"Shucks," he began, "when I was an intern, we never tried to stop the fellows who wanted to do away with themselves. Matter of fact, we'd help them."

According to the good doctor, the popular method of taking one's life in those days was by slashing your throat.

"Some of the lads used to 'chicken out' a bit and they hacked away at their wind pipe," he recalled.

"When that happened, we'd get hold of them and show them how to cut the jugular vein and do the trick. There's no return from a slice in the right place."

It was a rather morbid conversation and The Stroller couldn't help but wonder what the conversation would have been had the Tigers won a couple of those close ones.

THERE'S REASON FOR SMILES

If you chanced to meet Sam Dibble on the street these days and noticed a broad smile—there's a very good reason.

Sam managed to make a deal for an antique car he wanted.

He now owns a 1933 Auburn in good condition. What's more, he drove it here all the way from the northeast corner of New Hampshire.

It was a trip of more than 900 miles over three ranges of mountains, but he made it in little more than two days.

"Worst spot I encountered," he chuckled, "was in Buffalo. I got there just at the 5 o'clock rush hour and really had a time of it until we reached home on Thornapple Lane."

This must be your real pride and joy, he was asked.

"No," Sam replied, "I still like my 1931 Lincoln the best of all. You see, it's got an aluminum body."

What a hobby!

AND SPEAKING OF HOBBIES—

The Stroller dropped in to visit an old friend, Ray Grimm, the other afternoon.

To relieve boredom Ray is building a home on Birkland Drive—and what a home!

The giant fireplace in the family room is built with stone that Ray collected on his many stone-hunting expeditions around the country. It is most interesting when he points to the various stones and gives you their pedigree.

"Here's an agate from Montana," he'll tell you with a feeling of pride, and then name the places he found each stone.

Aside from building the home, he also is a stone hunter and delights in cutting them and extracting the jewels. He has a display the equal of any jewelry store in the land.

Every time The Stroller visits with Ray he can't help but recall an evening some years ago when both of us served on the City Council in Livonia. We had served together on the Charter Commission in 1949 and then sat on Council to try to make the document work.

We were discussing a subject, now long forgotten, one evening, when Ray seemed to be changing his mind and straying from one side to the other.

"Make up your mind," The Stroller called to him across the table. "You're changing it every five minutes."

Without ever lifting his head or looking around the crowded Council Chamber, Ray shot back—"Every five minutes I get smarter."

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY:

Make your morning as long as you can—your afternoon will be long enough.

New Form Of Government?

To the Editor:

The various articles that appeared in recent issues of the Plymouth Observer concerning the Plymouth City Work Program and water problem certainly must be commended as relatively adequate attempts to cast some light on the problems of Plymouth City Government. However, the central problem facing Plymouth has never been brought before the electorate; namely, the growing irrelevancy of the very structure of City Government itself.

Plymouth's Commission form of government is one of but literally thousands of anachronistic units of local government that are sustained throughout the United States by the fallacious pseudo-political theory that non-partisan semi-professional government best guarantees local, civil and political prerogatives.

We have only to look at the obviously mediocre governmental situation in our own community to realize that there must be something more to expect from government than that it be merely non-partisan and reflective of a lost rustic simplicity. It would seem that the time has come for the attention of Plymouth's electorate to be focused upon the true purpose of government which is to command the loyalty and vigorous interest of its citizens. If, as is the case in Plymouth, non-partisan government fails to achieve this, then perhaps

Letter To The Editor

It is not too bold a step to institute a form of government which calls upon the partisan interest of the electorate—namely, a strong Mayor-City Council form of government.

Certainly a city government whose officials publicly commit themselves to a policy or policies designed to facilitate the welfare of the community is preferred to a government whose officials gain election to office by simply putting their name on the ballot, sitting back and waiting to slosh into office in the wake of an electoral apathy and indifference induced by the governmental system itself.

To those who might raise objections by pointing out that a non-partisan commission form of government safeguards against corruption, graft, abusive political patronage and the numerous other deficiencies usually attributed to partisan government I can only say that they would be hard put to prove categorically that non-partisan government is in itself an automatic guarantee of civic rectitude. As long as governments are composed of men they guarantee of civic rectitude. As long as governments are composed of men they shall suffer from the evils brought about by human nature no matter what their form. The point still remains that there are forms of government preferable to others; forms which can instill in the electorate an interest in government which can make of it something more than a part-time Monday night country store session.

The citizens of Plymouth, whether they know it or not, deserve by governmental virtue of their citizenship in a democratic Republic something more in the way of city government than a Commission whose credentials in administration leave one wondering if dictatorship isn't the answer after all. Government, no matter on what level it exists, is a full time job. It is indeed something more than just a hobby or an ego inflator or perhaps a stepping stone for those who harbor Napoleonic complexes ever so slightly below a thin veneer of civic enthusiasm and altruism. Government is a religion; a sacred and imperishable religious faith between a citizen and his public servant. The press should stop kidding itself and this community. The issue is not that the present form of government should do things better, but that it should not be allowed to do anything at all until government is placed in the hands of full-time public service oriented professionals. Respectfully yours, Gary A. Mirto

Take A Color Tour In Woods Near Plymouth

It's easy to miss autumn's breathtaking beauty as you whip around town in your car.

Right now, when the leaves are starting to turn, is the perfect time for families to take walks among all the color.

A check with Mrs. Dan Fowler, Girl Scout hiking advisor, revealed that there are plenty of wooded trails only a few minutes from Plymouth.

"The William P. Holliday Forest and Wildlife Preserve is only about 10 minutes from Plymouth," she said.

"Or you can go to the Pluckney, Waterloo, Kensington, or Silver Lake recreation areas if you want to get a little farther away. Maps of the trails are available at the area headquarters of all those places.

"Of course, Edwards Hines Park is beautiful this time of year, and nice to walk in. But you can't get away from the distracting traffic."

FOR AN area near Plymouth yet far from the rushing traffic, Mrs. Fowler recommends the Holliday preserve.

It starts at Nankin Mills Nature Center and runs for six miles to Koppernick Road near Hix Road. Besides this long trail, which would be a 12-mile round trip walk, there are several shorter trails which can be followed.

Different short trails branch off from the preserve's four entrances.

From the Nankin Mills entrance on Edward Hines Drive near Ann Arbor Trail there is the mile and a half Acorn Trail.

The Cowan Road entrance is, like all the entrances, marked with two brick posts near a parking area. This entrance can be found just across from the Westland Shopping Center parking lot.

Two short trails branch off from the Cowan Road entrance. These are a wildflower trail, which is really better in the spring, and the two mile Pheasant Run Trail.

The Newburg Road entrance is just north of Warren Road. There are no short trails near this entrance, but it is possible to follow main trail from here.

The Koppernick Road area is the prettiest, Mrs. Fowler feels. It can be reached by going south on Hix Road, past Joy Road, turning right off of Hix onto Koppernick, and following that about a mile to the preserve.

From this wooded area there are two short trails, as well as the end of the main trail. The Beech Woods Trail and the Tulip Leaf Trail, the short trails, are each about a mile long.

Sometimes the trails come into open fields and you see and hear the cars passing by. But particularly around the Koppernick area, the trails wander through quiet wooded glens, that might be miles from civilization.

All the trails are marked and well worn, so they are easy to follow.

THE MAIN trail is named the Tonquish Trail for the Indian chief who was killed along Tonquish Creek in the last Indian battle in this area, back in the 1800's.

Arthur Richardson gave the land for the preserve to Wayne County in memory of his uncle, William Holliday, a nature lover.

The only restriction for hikers in the area is that they don't pick plants or wildflowers.

Art Party In Woodlore

Brenda Parker and Gayle Sayre held an art party for children at the home of the Judson Spencers in Woodlore (Brenda lives with the Spencers), last Saturday.

Both girls are students at Schoolcraft College. Brenda is majoring in elementary education, and Gayle in art. So they combined their talents to organize this party for four to seven-year-olds in the Spencers' neighborhood.

There was finger painting and crayon drawing from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Spencers' garage. Twelve budding artists attended.

Now the girls plan to organize a party for children from eight to 12 years old.

Amy and Sue Schultz, daughters of the Roy Schultzes of Lilley Road, and Sandra Schmidt, daughter of the Donald Schmidts, also of Lilley Road, had a chance to appear with the Michigan State University marching band Saturday, Sept. 30.

The girls represented the Cherry Hill 4-H Club in a half-time demonstration at the MSU-Southern California game. The girls were part of a huge 4-H sign which was formed on the field in honor of 4-H Week which starts Oct. 1.

Before the game the girls were taken on a tour of the University.

Mrs. James Parshall took part in the dinner meeting and panel discussion on "Opportunities Unlimited" at the Sept. 26 meeting of the Garden City, Ridgewood Osteopathic Auxiliary in the Holiday Inn in Dearborn.

Specialty of the House Serve Pastry -- Rich and Sweet

CHOPPED WALNUTS are used on one of the pastries, and ground almonds are on the other one.

"Kringles," a rich pastry confection, is a hit with the Leonard Solon family of Greenbriar Lane.

The three young Solon boys are anxious to go out and play after dinner, so the family has developed a tradition of having a dessert-snack with milk just before bedtime.

Mrs. Solon finds this an ideal time to serve the kringles, which take only a few minutes to make.

The Solons are newcomers to Plymouth, having just moved here from a large farmhouse near Saginaw.

KRINGLES

1 cup flour
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 tablespoon water
Mix thoroughly. Divide mixture into two equal parts. Pat each part into three inch wide strips on large ungreased baking sheet.

Top this mixture with following pastry recipe.

1 cup water
1/2 cup butter or margarine (butter is better)

1 cup flour
3 eggs

1/2 teaspoon almond extract
Heat one cup water and half cup butter to boiling point. Add one cup flour, stirring until smooth (about one minute).

Remove from heat and stir in eggs-one at a time. Beat well after each addition, then add almond extract.

Spread this mixture on top of dough on baking sheet and bake at 400 degrees about 40 minutes. Top will be golden.

When cool frost with icing made of:

1 1/2 cup powdered sugar
1 1/2 tablespoon butter

1/2 teaspoon almond extract
Sprinkle with chopped or ground nuts. Mrs. Solon especially likes hickory nuts, but if they aren't available often uses pecans or walnuts.

It's Not Official, But It's Intense

There's something about junior league football you don't see in professional, college or even prep games.

The bigger guys don't show their emotions on the surface, in their faces or bodies. The younger fellows do.

Chief photographer Jim Hubbard captured on film these emotions on a recent visit to a local gridiron. It happened to be in Livonia, but it could have been the Jack Lowther League in Farmington or any other suburban league anywhere—even a sandlot game.

The games are between specially organized teams, not schools, and there's no "school spirit" or professional motivation behind them. Yet you couldn't find that same emotional intensity in any other kind of game.

The dads are in it, too. The kids play for fun, but without knowing it they're absorbing from the fathers certain classic virtues—seriousness of purpose, self-confidence, teamwork, quick wits.

But let's let the pictures tell the human story.

"THAT WAS a rough play," Larry Winey seems to be saying.

Starting A New Life

After 23 Years, Back To School

"My stomach was down to my toes when I walked up to that building. It was really a frightening experience for me."

The words of a spy involved in a cloak-and-dagger case? Not at all. That is the statement of a Livonia housewife who found that she had to go back to school after 23 years on the home front.

Last December, Helen Woodruff lost her husband, victim of a sudden heart attack. She has four children, two married daughters and two teenagers at home.

"AT FIRST the thought of work panicked me; I knew I would have to work, not only for income but because I just couldn't sit at home."

"But I realized I didn't have any skill at all, nothing that could help me find the kind of job I wanted."

Mrs. Woodruff is now enrolled in a secretarial course at Schoolcraft College. She began classes last week and plans to continue until she has acquired enough skills to land a good secretarial job.

"After that, well, maybe I'll just try for a degree," she says.

BEGINNING A NEW life for herself has not been easy, but Mrs. Woodruff claims the hardest part was making up her mind about what she had to do and then actually going to the college.

Since there, she has been impressed with the helpfulness of both college personnel and the younger students.

"I was afraid the other students wouldn't accept me, but they have helped me a lot. They treat me just like any other student."

Most days, she has classes for four hours in the afternoon. "People kept talking to me about night school," she says, "but I wanted to be in school while my children were, and have evenings at home."

"When I do get home, I'm tired; but I realize how exciting it has been. Really, going back to school is quite an experience for me."

She added: "I just wish more women realized that they should get out and get some training before they really have to. You just don't believe that you could be in a position like this. I should have gone to Schoolcraft years ago."

Art Institute Sets 8 Local Workshops

The Detroit Institute of Arts will offer eight art workshops for students from first grade through high school in Farmington and Livonia beginning Oct. 21.

The sessions will be held at the Institute and at five suburban centers.

They are sponsored by the museum's education department and registrations can be made in Detroit up until Oct. 20 during the education department's regular hours—Monday through Friday 9 to 5 p.m.

The workshops are designed to give the students an opportunity to explore a variety of drawing, painting, and sculpture media.

The five suburban centers are: Larkshire School, 23800 Tuck Rd., Farmington; Whitman Junior High School, 32306 W. Chicago, Livonia; Inkster Public Library; Washington School, Ferndale; and Harmon Elementary School, St. Clair Shores.

Bridgit Dubriwny, who taught for four years and is now working on her masters degree at Wayne State University, will teach the session in Farmington.

John Martin of Livonia will be at Larkshire School.

The registration fee for the eight week sessions is $15. 50. Grades 1, 2, and 3 will meet from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Grades 4, 5, and 6 from 12 p.m. to 2 p.m. Grades 7 through 12 will meet from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Madonna Cultural Talks Open

Madonna College will initiate its cultural series at the college, with speaker The Rev. Anthony Kosnik defining the role of the college student in the renewal of Church law.

Father Kosnik is professor of moral and pastoral theology and associate professor of ethics at St. Mary College, Orchard Lake. He is known for his column in "The Michigan Catholic", "Here's the Answer", and he is currently pro-synodal judge for the archdiocese of Detroit.

Stated for the second event is Rev. James A. Maloney, director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith in Detroit. His topic will be, "The College Woman and Dating", Oct. 17.

MRS. EDWARD C. BRUCE JR.
(Kristi Gentz)

Kristi Gentz Wed To Edward Bruce

Kristi A. Gentz and Edward C. Bruce Jr. exchanged marriage vows before the altar of St. James Lutheran Church, Verona, Wis., Sunday, Sept. 10.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Boyd H. Gentz, of Verona. Mr. and Mrs. E.C. Bruce Sr., Livonia, are the parents of the bridegroom. The bridegroom is stationed with the U.S. Air Force at Truax Field, Madison, Wis.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length A-line gown of white crepe with attached train. The gown had an empire bodice of white lace with a scalloped neckline and bell sleeves. A white lace bow headpiece held her shoulder length bubble veil.

Kathy Byrne, of Madison, was maid of honor, and Judy Behls, Madison, and Cathy Matts, Verona, acted as bridesmaids. They were identically attired in willow green floor-length A-line gowns and matching bow headpieces. All three bridal attendants wore necklaces with a silver bell, a gift from the bride.

Al Andrews, Truax Field, Madison, was the best man. Groomsmen were Ron Ames, Truax Field, Madison, and Marty Griffin, Madison. Ushers were Michael Gentz, Verona, brother of the bride, and Jim Stromer, Truax Field, Madison.

A reception for 250 guests was held in the church parlor following the ceremony. The couple was married on the 25th wedding anniversary of the bride's parents and her father's birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Gentz entertained 150 guests at their home in the evening.

Mrs. William Hamel, Mrs. William Simms, Mrs. Stuart Vaughn, and Mrs. Joseph Vaughn.

Guests are invited and should call Mrs. William Simms, 422-7896, for reservations.

CHRISTINE DI MAIO

Mr. and Mrs. E. Di Maio, of Goldsmith Avenue, Farmington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Christine, to Dennis Beaubien, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Beaubien, of Dearborn. The bride-to-be is a graduate of Our Lady of Sorrows High School and is employed by North America Life Insurance Co., Southfield. Her fiancé, a graduate of St. Alphonsus High School, is serving in the U.S. Navy. A February wedding is planned.

ARLENE MAIOLO

Mrs. Arthur E. Good, of Grosse Pointe, announces the engagement of her daughter, Arlene Lucia Maiolo, to Steven Ross Sivy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sivy, of Farmington. The bridegroom is a student at Eastern Kentucky University. They will be married in January.

LINDA ZIVKOVICH

Mr. and Mrs. George Zivkovich, of Auburndale Avenue, Livonia, announce the engagement of their daughter, Linda Georgiann, to Larry LaBo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joel F. LaBo, of Curtis Avenue, Livonia. Both are graduates of Franklin High School, and the prospective bridegroom attends Ferris State College. No wedding date has been set.

DIANNE HOWARD

Mr. and Mrs. Grant D. Howard, of Eleven Mile Road, Novi, announce the engagement of their daughter, Dianne, to Dale Wallace Chamberlin, son of Mrs. Lorelei Chamberlin, of Twelve Mile Road, Farmington. The bride-elect is in her senior year of training in the Harper Hospital School of Nursing. Her fiancé, a North Farmington High School graduate, will enter the U.S. Army this month. An August wedding is planned.

MRS. DALE GORDON HALL
(Julie Kay Lent)

Couple United By Vows In Plymouth

Julie Kay Lent became the bride of Dale Gordon Hall in a candlelight wedding ceremony last month in the First Methodist Church of Plymouth.

The Rev. Herbert C. Brubaker heard the couple's vows. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell J. Lent, of Hartsough Avenue, Plymouth. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon N. Hall, of Auburn, N.Y.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length semi-fitted gown of scintilla linen, with a short train edged in lace. She carried white daisy mums and roses.

Aileen Hall, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and the bride's sister, Mrs. Karen Peltz, of St. Clair Shores, and Linda West, of Plymouth, were bridesmaids.

Their cocktail length A-line dresses were gold lace over crepe and they carried butter-scotch and yellow daisy mums in baskets. Philip Lawley, of Auburn, was best man. The ushers were Tom Anderson, of Cincinnati, Roger Schultz, of Kalamazoo, William Elkovich, of Auburn, and James Lent, the bride's brother.

The pair greeted 175 guests in a church hall reception before leaving for an Upper Michigan wedding trip. They will live in East Lansing while completing studies at Michigan State University. The bride is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

Women Of WSU Meet

"Different Stages in a Woman's Life" will be up for discussion in the first fall meeting of the Farmington-Livonia chapter of Women of Wayne Alumni at the home of Mrs. Winnie Christ, 15486 Surrey, Livonia.

COIFF TALK

By DREW and MARIO

What shade should I tint my hair? A common question to hairdressers.

A stylist will first talk to the prospective color patron. It's important to know what's expected of the color; are we covering gray, highlighting a drab appearance or changing completely to compliment her good looks.

A difficult decision, but a professional can help you pick the color that is best for you. Come in to see us. Look at our color selectors. Talk to us so we can better serve you.

Prep Game Of Week: Franklin Vs. Thurston

The two defending co-champs, Franklin and Thurston, go at it next Saturday at Thurston in what shapes up as one of the week's feature for area high school football teams.

Both have run into some early season troubles, but a lot can be forgotten by coming through on top in this one.

Our Land of Sorrows, winners of two straight in its bid to repeat as divisional champions in the Catholic League, tackles perhaps its toughest test Sunday when Orchard Lake St. Mary's invades Farmington High at 2:30 p.m.

A victory Sunday would put Sorrows in the driver's seat for a repeat crown.

BENTLEY FINALLY comes home after three straight road games to play Redford Union. It'll mark the first of four home tilts for Bentley, which has advanced its starting times to 7:30 p.m.

Plymouth also has a home date Friday, taking on Allen Park at 8 p.m.

Stevenson's surprising team tackles tough Flint Northwest Saturday in a non-league at Stevenson at 2 p.m. while Clarenceville invades Brighton Friday night.

Both Farmington and North Farmington are on the road this week.

Farmington goes to Waterford Friday evening while North Farmington takes on Oak Park on the Parkers' grid Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Hunting Season Dates Are Listed

Going hunting this fall? Here are some dates to keep in mind:

Oct. 1--Ruffed grouse, rabbits, squirrels and raccoons join woodcock on small game hunting list in Zones I and II.

Goose season starts in Zones 1 and 2 at 11 a.m.; opening of statewide archery deer season with bears also fair game for bowmen in Zone I only; start of second early bear season in Zone I; cubs protected.

Action opens on pheasants in parts of Menominee and Delta counties. Woodchuck hunting begins in Zone II.

Oct. 9--Start of statewide

Franklin Ace Runs Home Easy Winner

Jack Clark of Livonia's Franklin High School carried off individual honors in the annual Schoolcraft College Invitational cross-country team.

The brilliant Franklin star was clocked in 10 minutes, 49 seconds, for the two-mile test over the loop course at Cass Benton Park.

Team honors went to Redford Union with 50 points. Garden City East had 86, Franklin 88, Garden City West 88, Wayne 118, Stevenson 151, Plymouth 181, Thurston 190, Bentley 210, and John Glenn 287.

Clark and teammate Dave Collins, along with Bruce Cavender from Plymouth were honored on the all-invitational team while Bentley's Tom McGhie gained honorable mention.

Soccer Rivals Battle Again

It'll be Schoolcraft vs. Lorain College of Ohio next Saturday in a repeat match at Schoolcraft. Game time will be 2 p.m.

The teams battled to a 1-1 tie in their first meeting of the season with Bahram Fahrmann, a 20-year-old sophomore, getting the lone goal for Schoolcraft.

"Ask the Man Who Owns One . . ."

Ah, you remember that advertising slogan employed by the folks who made Packard autos!

Sure you do, now, if you're in your 50's or maybe just a trifle under.

He was the "man who knows." Why, it was as popular in the '30's as Avis' current business about trying harder "because we're No. 2."

All this introductory stuff is not meant to revive the Packard or give Avis an extra boost.

The business about "Ask the Man" came to mind the other afternoon when we ran into Rod Place, one-time coach in the Livonia school system, now assigned to supervisory and administrative work at Franklin High.

It was a natural question to ask Rod, so we did:

"Do you miss coaching?"

Like every other "retired" coach, Place admitted he did.

His reasons:

"Well, I'd say when you are engaged in coaching you are working with kids, all of whom are interested in what they are doing."

NOW, AREN'T all kids interested?

Place laughed.

"Let's take the average class room. Say we have 30 students taking English, or math, or home economics.

"A good majority are there to learn something. But five or six out of 30, maybe sometimes more, attend the class because they just have to.

"It takes work and drive and everything on the part of the teacher to try and reach these uninterested. Occasionally you succeed, and when you do you go home happy that you have accomplished something.

"More often, you don't succeed. But you can't feel sorry for yourself, because you know that the majority of the students wanted to learn something from you . . . and did . . . that particular day.

"But, now you're a coach. It's football or basketball or baseball or swimming.

"All of the boys who come out for the team come out because they want to be a part of the team. They have a desire, an interest, a wish to succeed on that team.

"This makes the job for the coach, as a teacher, so much easier.

"The kids are so much more cooperative. They give you 100 per cent attention. Their thoughts aren't off in the woods or wondering about whether the car will start or whether Suzie will accept a date to attend the clown's dance a month from now.

"Thus, a coach finds himself working actively with those who care. And, I think, too, in coaching you can see your labor paying off much more quickly.

"This is not to knock brother teachers in academic subjects. But a coach can spot marked improvement in a boy's play or a team's play within the matter of a week.

"A passing attack can begin to click . . . the defense can tighten up . . . a million other things can happen in sports for everybody to see.

"In the classroom, of course, the improvement is more gradual. If a boy is a poor reader, it might take him an entire semester before he shows signs that he has accomplished something. It might take a girl four weeks to learn how to thread a needle."

THERE'S A THIRD Livonian, in addition to Denny McLain and Joe Sparna, who has his eyes set high on the Tigers getting into the World Series.

It also would mean something in the pocket-book for Ray Herbert, who once pitched for the Tigers as a regular, and now hurls batting practice for the team every day they're home except on Saturdays, when he's too busy working at Sears.

Herbert's role with the Tigers is a short one. Just 15 minutes of work.

Precedent usually dictates that the bullpen pitcher is "cut in" on a small share of the World Series loot.

THERE WAS SOME unhappy news in these parts this past week, but the saddest of all concerned the passing of Jerry Hoxie, the "silent half" of the greatest tennis coaching team the Midwest ever has known.

Jerry, 64, was the husband of the famed Jean Hoxie, known nationwide for the job she has done developing young net players, most of whom are residents of Hamtramck.

But Jerry did his part, too. He was always close to Jean on tennis courts.

He passed along his share of advice and help. But few ever heard much about him.

It was his wife who sought—and got—the big publicity. And deservedly so.

The Hoxies didn't restrict their efforts to just Hamtramck youngsters. There were boys and girls from Livonia, Plymouth and Bentley who have benefitted from the coaching of this Mr. and Mrs. combination.

It was Jean with Jerry's aid who developed junior tennis around the Detroit area.

He passed away quietly on Tuesday and was laid to rest Friday.

Jerry Hoxie will be missed—and more than just by his wonderful wife Jean.

Soccer Makes High School Scene; More Variety In Fall

Soccer on the varsity level has crashed on to the area high school scene.

Stevenson, the newest of the schools, is the first to boast a soccer team contesting on a full-fledged schedule.

Meantime, both Franklin and Farmington High have instituted informal teams with the eye to possibly adding the sport to their program in another year or two.

Not only has Stevenson instituted a team, but the booters have enjoyed immediate success, winning two in a row.

First the Livonians upset Country Day School, long a soccer power on the prep beat, by a 2-1 score. Then came a 1-0 win over Birmingham High.

MOST OF THE credit for Stevenson starting up soccer must go to Athletic Director Cal Fetz and Larry Christoff, who has been the coach.

Christoff comes from Greece where he played as a schoolboy. He later played at Michigan State.

"It was our feeling that many boys around the school were being cheated in the fall, because there was no sport they enjoyed playing," said Christoff.

"In the fall, the kids have a choice of only football and cross country, contrasted to three activities in the winter and four in the spring."

Christoff found Fetz thinking along similar lines with him when the matter of soccer was discussed.

Goose Season In Saginaw

SAGINAW--For the first time since 1963, geese will be legal targets this fall in the Saginaw County Goose Management Area under permit systems and special regulations, the state Conservation Department reports.

The area, closed to goose hunting for the last three years to promote a build-up of local and migratory flocks, will be managed during the Oct. 16-Nov. 17 season for quality shooting on about 65,000 acres.

It will cover the Shiawassee National Wildlife Refuge, the Shiawassee River State Game Area, and adjacent private lands.

SPORTSMEN HOPING to hunt on the federal refuge have through Oct. 1 to get their postmarked permit applications in the mail. Their applications must be sent to headquarters of the national wildlife refuge at Saginaw.

Special forms for these permit entries are available from the refuge's headquarters and the Conservation Department's district headquarters at Pontiac Lake. They also may be obtained from the Department's Game Division in Lansing, its Detroit information office, the Pointe Mouillee State Game Area, and conservation field offices at St. Charles and Caro.

Hunters applying for daily shooting spots at any of 20 blinds to be open at the national refuge must submit each application in parties of two. When the number of these entries, outnumber permits to be issued for any day, drawings will be held.

Sportsmen will be limited to one hunt on the refuge during the season and they may submit only one application. Each permit holder will be charged a hunting fee of $2.

NO PRE-SEASON application or fees are required of those who want to hunt at the Shiawassee River State Game Area. Free daily permits will be mandatory for the area's "managed hunting unit," but they will not be needed elsewhere in the state game site.

Hunters can get in the running for these permits by showing up daily at the Department's St.

Charles field office at 5 a.m. and 11 a.m. Drawings will be held at those times to select each day's lucky hunters for 88 available shooting posts.

Stevenson will engage in a seven-eight game schedule before the season is over.

Price Of Poaching Goes Up

LANSING--The price of deer poaching is much steeper under a new law which tacks onto regular fines and court costs a special reimbursement penalty covering the value of wildlife illegally taken.

Compared with previous years, when many violators got off with wrist-slapping, these game cheaters are now paying an extra reimbursement fee ranging per animal from $200 to $300 for elk, $100 to $200 for deer, and $5 to $10 for small game and waterfowl.

Among those feeling the pinch under these added mandatory rates was a McBain man who recently was hit with the maximum $200 penalty for each of three deer illegally in his possession.

Tracked down when county sheriff officers found deer hair and blood in his automobile, the man was also fined $100 and ordered to pay $18 in court costs by a justice of the peace in Manton. Conservation officers seized the poacher's late model car in which the deer were transported.

The arrest and subsequent court appearances brought out information involving three other persons who now await trial.

Industry, Si; Workers, No!

By TIM RICHARD
Managing Editor

the last word

Right in our own back yard, there are something like 6,000 or 8,000 guys off work, and yet the strike at Ford Motor Co. seems somehow remote.

At the Livonia transmission plant at Plymouth and Levan, the estimate is 6,000; at the Livonia parts depot at Plymouth and Middle Belt, about 1,000; at the Sheldon Road heater-air conditioner plant in Plymouth Township, another 1,100.

But most of those guys don't live around here.

The estimate I got talking to UAW members and leaders on the picket lines was about 10 per cent actually live in the same town where the plant is located. Most of the rest come from Detroit or the more southerly suburbs.

It brought to mind the observation of a man who has his finger on the pulse of the Plymouth community's development: "More people now work in Plymouth than live here."

IT'S ONE of the curious things about suburban municipal administration and real estate policy.

Everyone wants industrial development, but building homes that the guys who work in the plants can afford is another matter.

It has to do with per capita tax base. If you have lots of industry, you can keep the property tax rate low.

You control the population through "breathing space" zoning ordinances. Instead of 55 and 60 foot lots, you require minimums of 70 or 80 or 100 feet.

A Livonia official figures that $35,000 homes would provide the break-even point in the tax base. That is, if industrial development is maintained, and if the average home price is $35,000, then the property tax rate can be kept stable. A laudable goal, keeping taxes stable.

SOME PEOPLE in Farmington a few months ago had a University of Michigan professor of public administration in to speak about local development and consolidation.

This professor said housing ought to be provided under local plans for the people who are going to work out there.

To some members of the audience, this was heresy. They are paying some pretty stiff taxes, and you don't keep taxes from soaring out of sight unless you protect your industry and maintain the highest possible quality of residential development.

But no one argued publicly with the speaker. Hmmp! The guy was a professor, and what does he know about practical things?

Another time, there was a dinner with some Farmington school teachers, and they complained in conversation that a lot of them didn't live--and couldn't afford to live--in Farmington. The dinner was in Danish Inn, which isn't exactly a humble cafe, so possibly the teachers were exaggerating a little.

SO HERE is the practical question facing suburbia's policy makers:

Can you lure industry's investment without having the industrial plant workers move out here, too?

And the moral question is similar: Should you lure industry to the suburbs with no intention of providing homesites for the plant workers?

The answer to both questions seems to be "yes."

ANCHORED GUARD RAIL WON'T IMPALE CAR THAT HITS IT

'SEE-THRU' SCREEN BETWEEN LANES ON I-96 AT KENSINGTON PARK

Off-The-Road Safety Steps

No sooner had our Sept. 17 picture story on off-the-road safety hazards hit the streets than we received these pictures from the State Highway Department. The Observer story quoted 19th District Congressman Jack McDonald's comments on safety hazards that exist for the driver who, for one reason or another, goes off the road.

The Highway Department story said these improvements were being made as part of its safety program. "Breakaway" signs, for example, were replacing rigid posts and will be moved back from the pavement's edge.

The anchored guard rail was a point McDonald had advocated, but he had called for the front edge of the rail to be flared back from the edge of the road.

"See-thru" screening, aimed at softening headlight glare, is being installed on highways where head-on accidents have been frequent or medians are narrow. In this case, I-96 is narrow as it crosses Kent Lake in Kensington Park.

F'ton Players Set 'The Male Animal'

The Farmington Players will open their 1967-68 season the first week in November with "The Male Animal."

The comedy-farce, by James Thurber, will run for three weekends.

Performances will be in the Players Barn, on 12 Mile Rd. west of Orchard Lake Rd., on Nov. 3-4, Nov. 10-12, and Nov. 17-18.

THE PLAY is directed by Kaye Britton, whose work will spark the fast and funny play about academic freedom.

Joel Hepler has the male lead with Joan Stone as Ellen Turner, his wife.

Others in the cast are Mildred Sullivan as Cleota, Barbara Shotwell as Patricia Stanley and Hugh Schulkins as Wally Myers. Ted Budgen will portray Dean Damon and Dennis Broadhead will appear as Michael Barnes. Joe Ferguson is played by Jerry Austensen, Mrs. Damon by Diane Brown and John Wilson and Marl Marilyn Betts have husband and wife roles.

SCHEDULED for mid-winter by the Players is "Anastasia," with "Barefoot in the Park" slated for spring.

Season tickets may be obtained by calling Virginia McNelly, 476-2749. Friday and Sunday night season tickets are $5 and Saturday night season tickets are $6.

SEN. GEORGE KUHN: LAWS FOR 'CRIMES AGAINST SOCIETY'

Even before the Detroit riot of late July, there had been growing concern, not only in the metropolitan area but across the state and nation, about the soaring crime rate.

The State Senate, some months ago, organized a crime investigating committee, and one of the men appointed to this unit was Sen. George Kuhn, R-West Bloomfield. Kuhn represents the 14th Senate District, which includes Livonia, Plymouth and Farmington.

Kuhn, as a Ford Motor Co. executive and a Naval Reserve officer, believes in pinning down responsibility when a situation goes sour, and he's planning to ask some tough questions.

One of the men he seems particularly eager to quiz is Detroit's Mayor Jerome Cavanagh, with whom he (Kuhn) had a long battle over the non-resident feature of Detroit's income tax.

We asked Sen. Kuhn about the investigation, what he expects to find, what his theories of the crime problem are. Here are the questions and his answers:

Police Chiefs

QUESTION: You've been appointed to a State Senate Investigating Committee on Crime, headed by Sen. James Fleming of Jackson. What is your committee's assignment?

KUHN: "Well, the committee's original assignment was to study the crime in Michigan--the rate of which has been accelerating in the last two years quite significantly."

"For another reason, our Senate Judiciary Committee has been unable to report out satisfactory anti-crime legislation."

"Secondly, because of the recent Detroit riots, our assignment has been expanded to include the riot situation."

"This crime study is not confined to the Detroit metropolitan area. . . Flint, Jackson, Grand Rapids, Muskegon and all parts of the state are being considered."

QUESTION: The Legislature is going to have a session in October. Will the crime problem be brought up then?

KUHN: "Very regrettably, the governor, at this point in time, has omitted the anti-crime or riot legislation as an item on the agenda."

"I personally am sending him a letter indicating in my humble judgment that this is of the highest priority and should be the No. 1 item on the agenda this October."

"I do not think we can talk about any other matters until we have law and order in the streets."

QUESTION: In the crime investigation, your committee will go into several cities. Whom will you ask to testify? And what are you going to ask them?

KUHN: "In a preliminary organizational meeting before the hearings, we've already decided to call in all the past state police commissioners, all the past Detroit police commissioners--Herbert Hart, George Piggins, Don Leonard, George Edwards, who's now a federal judge, and of course current Commissioner Ray Girardin."

"It is our desire to learn as much as possible about the background of the crime issue over the last 10 to 15 years and get the current status."

"Besides these commissioners of police, we've asked certain judges to take part; we've asked Mayor Cavanagh to take part and other political leaders who have got knowledge or close association with this crime issue."

QUESTION: Do you think you'll get a diversity of views among these police commissioners, past and present?

KUHN: "Yes, it is our understanding that some of our past police commissioners have been considered rather liberal in their treatment of the law and individuals in the treatment of crime, and there are some who are rather moderate, and some might be considered rather tougher on the issue of crime."

"We'll get a divergence of view."

"We're also calling two other individuals, I might add: Walter Shamie, who's been a leader with the Detroit Grocers Association, and a leader of Detroit Police Officers Association, Carl Pursell."

"Some of the questions that will be asked each one, besides their in-depth knowledge, is what legislation is necessary, if any, to cope with the current crime problems."

Mayor's Policies

QUESTION: After the riot, Mayor Cavanagh suggested that the Congress might be to blame for not passing enough social legislation. . . What's your view?

KUHN: "Personally, I hate to get into this particular controversy, because I happen to be one that shares the view that possibly all this money out of Washington--nearly $200 million so far--if that is treating Detroit unfairly, I think they rate as the top city in the country as far as congressional help and money."

"But despite this money, I don't think it's proved to be successful. I think we must look at other causes or reasons."

"I for one have a number of questions to ask Cavanagh on his so-called part in the last five years. . ."

QUESTION: What sorts of questions? KUHN: ". . . This means we must address ourselves to what Detroit is attempting to do in terms of measuring the impact or results of what his political policies have been, to see whether or not they've been effective."

"Personally, I believe there's time for thorough analysis and re-evaluation of the entire picture. We need to do some new things and start a new approach."

"I think that the whole problem, in my judgment, is education and jobs--not necessarily money. Money can't solve all problems."

'A Breakdown'

QUESTION: Senator, why do you think there has been an increase in crime, not only nation-wide and in Michigan, but in cities, suburbs and everywhere else?

KUHN: "Generally speaking, I believe a lot of problems have started in the home. There's the lack of discipline and respect for parents, the lack of parents taking proper steps for the control of children. . . It's penetrated to the public streets."

"There's a great breakdown of law and order in the streets, possibly caused by policies in the political arena in terms of charges being watered down by our police departments and the court treatment of criminals and judicial decisions coming from the highest courts in the land. . ."

QUESTION: Then you're suggesting that, in addition to new laws which the Senate Investigating Committee on Crime will consider, perhaps there could be better enforcement of existing laws?

KUHN: "That is correct. I think there's laxity in current enforcement of existing laws. More importantly, I think we need to address ourselves to a whole new body of crime laws, particularly since the riots."

"We need strong deterrents to another holocaust such as we've just seen--where we've literally burned down a city, causing a billion dollars worth of damage."

"I'm concerned about a whole new body of laws called 'crimes against society.'"

"I think we all remember the Nurnberg trials in Germany where they tagged it 'crimes against humanity' in the sense of mass murders. . ."

"And I do believe we need some strict, tough legislation for looting, burning, attacking our police and firemen in the line of duty as they attempt to do a public service."

"I think they should be stiff in their penalties, maybe for 20 years minimum and up to life, depending on the severity of the crime."

"But we cannot tolerate insurrection on our city streets. We cannot tolerate civil unrest where they attack our police officers, our firemen, our National Guardsmen. I think this is a very serious matter, and we need a whole new body of laws to cope with severe crimes--not just assault and battery charges, not just a crime of disorder."

QUESTION: This new concept in riot legislation--how does this differ from the legislation we already have on the books?

KUHN: "I think the current legislation is weak and watered-down and ineffective in terms of dealing appropriately with crimes against society, such as looting and arson and insurrection, attack our public servants."

"Our new laws should be written to be a deterrent against crime with minimal sentences of 20 to 100 years, and treated as felonies instead of misdemeanors."

Stiff Sentences

QUESTION: Besides looking into the possibility of new laws, will the committee go into any other aspects of crime and riot control?

KUHN: "Well, as you know, there are studies and mock riot demonstrations taking place in Michigan."

"And there are new techniques, such as using apathy gas to disperse crowds."

"I think we want to be as humane as possible, but on the other hand we must maintain law and order in the streets as the first order of business."

QUESTION: Senator, you mentioned the Judiciary Committee earlier, and that some legislation has been bottled up. What's going on in the Judiciary Committee? What kind of legislation is being considered?

KUHN: "The Senate Judiciary Committee has been taking under advisement a series of anti-riot and crime bills, including a stop-and-frisk law, but it has not seen fit at this date to put the matters on the floor of the Senate for a vote."

QUESTION: Why not?

KUHN: "Partly, to be honest about it, I'd say it's political--and a need for more urgency in this matter. I hope that we will, this fall, get the matter on the agenda so we can enact four bills I have pending before the Judiciary Committee."

"One is on stop-and-frisk, which would allow police officers to stop persons suspected of carrying a dangerous or concealed weapon. . . I believe strongly we must disarm the people who are carrying dangerous weapons, especially those that are unauthorized."

"Then there's the matter of anti-riot legislation, which the governor did issue by proclamation during the recent riot. That is, the prohibiting of three or more persons from assembly in situations that would tend to be riotous, to discourage mob action and buildup of crowds."

"Then there's another bill, SB 186, that is a dangerous weapon act, making it unlawful to carry knives, razor blades or ice picks. . ."

"In Detroit alone, we had roughly a 60 per cent increase in murders in the last calendar year."
