$800 Per Day Spent On Street Cracks

The cracks in the streets that have been the bain of motorists in the city may not be good looking--but they are costly.

The City Commission found this out last Monday night in a report from City Manager Richard Blodgett when he stated that the cost of repairing the cracks was approximately $800 per day.

"$800 a day", the Commissioners countered, "why this sounds impossible."

"Okay", Blodgett said, "figure it out. The contractor, the Cadillac Company, has two crews working and the men get about $5 an hour. It doesn't take long to add up."

After a bit of figuring Commissioner Vallier asked why the work was put off until this late in the season and was told that few companies wanted to do the job.

The two crews had been at work three or four days and there remained about one more day of work to complete the job in the main areas.

"I asked about this program some time ago," Vallier pointed out, "and I see no reason why it wasn't done then. ' It may not have been so expensive."

Asked why the DPW couldn't have done the job, or part of it, Blodgett answered that the city forces were collecting leaves and hanging Christmas decorations.

Some of the Commissioners still were mumbling "$800 a day" when they left the meeting.

City Approves $187,200 Street Improvement Plan

The Plymouth

MAIL & OBSERVER

The City of Plymouth is planning to spend approximately $187,200 on a street improvement program in the spring of 1968.

Approval for the huge outlay was given by the City Commissioners last Monday night when they authorized City Manager Richard Blodgett to engage consulting engineers to prepare the necessary plans.

The program is being planned to cover the following streets:

1. Ann Arbor Trail from the

C&O Railroad to the east city limits--$78,000. 2. Amelia Street, from Farmer to Liberty--$28,200. 3. Linden, Main to McKinley, $63,000.

4. Extension of Farmer

In his letter to the commis- of construction, sion, Blodgett pointed out that

Second Open Housing Request

Plymouth's Human Relations Committee has scheduled an appearance at the Township Board's regular meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 28, to urge the trustees to pass an open housing ordinance.

The committee recently lobbied at the City's open housing public hearing Nov. 13 urging the city council to adopt its own ordinance.

One of the most important items in the program is the extension of Farmer Street. This will help to ease the traffic on Starkweather and Spring Streets and be a help to the renovated business establishments in that area.

When the railroad crossing is blocked, traffic piles up on Starkweather and the opening of Farmer would provide considerable relief.

At the moment, the proposed widening will include the razing of a dwelling and the purchase of a right-of-way on another lot. The commission was given to understand that there will be little or no trouble in acquiring the right-of-way. although no width bac cided upon for the new section of the street. The improvement of Ann Arbor Trail calls for a 44 foot. back-to-back improvement, and that on Linden specifies 31 feet, back-to-back, the same as that planned for Amelia. The program is a continuation of a long-term project in which all of the city's streets are to be improved -- unless the taxpayers decide otherwise. Some time ago, the commission approved the paving of Evergreen but met with a storm of protest from the abutting property owners who pleaded for the right to retain the gravel road and "a rural appearance." The work on the 1968 project is expected to begin as soon as the weather breaks in the spring.

He's Due To Land Dec. 2 By Helicopter

Santa Claus has given up his sleigh for a helicopter again this year so that he can get to Plymouth sooner and faster.

ARD

He is scheduled to arrive on Dec. 2, and will land in the middle of Main St. in front of Kellogg Park.

This year Santa will visit with children in the P&A Theatre instead of the igloo he used in past visits.

The Garden Club is decorating the theatre to look like Santa's home in the north and while the children tell him what they want for Christmas their parents can wait in the lobby and keep warm.

Children can talk and visit with Santa on Dec. 2. 9, 16 and 23 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and on Dec. 7, 8, 14, 15, 21, and 22 from 4 to 8 p.m.

In connection with Santa's coming and the Christmas season, most retail stores will begin night openings, until 9 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 27, and continue through Saturday, Dec. 23.

Nov. 27 has been established by the Retail Committee of the Chamber of Commerce as the official opening date of the Christmas season in Plymouth.

The city has already begun decorating the downtown area so that everything will be ready for "go" the day after Thanksgiving.

The Human Relations Committee has appeared in the Township before but was told by the Board that the Township may not have any legal status in regards to open housing legislation.

If the State Legislature passes the open housing bill currently before it the township will automatically be covered by the state law.

At the present time, the board has authorized its attorney, Ralph Cole, to come up with a legal recommendation as to how the board should act in the matter and hopes he will be ready with it next Tuesday. Also scheduled at the Nov. 28 board meeting is the reappointment of Frank Millington, Republican, and Elizabeth Hartmouth Township's Board of the area. Canvassers to the four-member board.

The other two Board of Canvassers' members are Anne Blackman, Democrat, and Barbara Stecker, the other Republican. Their terms as board members expire in December of 1969.

Each member carries a fouryear term with alternating appointments made every two years.

State Public Act 65 provides for a four-member Board of Canvassers in each city, township, village, and district.

Saxton Named

William Saxton, of Saxton Garden Supply, has been named to a third term as chairman of the Plymouth Chapter of the Federation of Independent Businessmen.

Plymouth Township is going to take televised pictures of its sanitary sewers in the Phoenix Park Subdivision. Rather than take dye tests that are costly and take longer than television, the Township will spend $500 for a five day shooting period.

Children Hit New High In Population

The number of children --both school age and younger --has increased in leaps and bounds over the past six years. The Plymouth School District reported a grand total of 12,398 for 1967 as opposed to 7,880 in 1959.

The increase over last year's child population was 901 when the figure was 11,497 children. Of the 1967 total, 2,839 children are under the age of four and 9,559 are in the age bracket 5-19.

Plymouth Community School District has deposited $3 million of its Building and Site Fund balance in Certificates of Deposit. This increases the interest of receipts for the Building Fund $45,000 a year or $123.28 a day.

The money was deposited with the National Bank of Detroit at 5.5 per cent interest. The remaining balance is in Savings Deposit Receipts with NBD bearing 4 per cent interest.

Township To Revise Zoning Ordinance

The Plymouth Township planning Commission has scheduled zoning code for the township another special meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 29 to finalize revision of two of the town-, mission and approved by the ship's ordinances.

The State Legislature recently revised its plat regulations and accordingly the township must bring its Subdivision Ordinance 13 in conformity with new state requirements by January 1968.

Ordinance 13 governs construction of subdivisions by contractors. It requires the builder to meet specific codes on sidewalks, streets, lot size, building requirements, and various other things connected directly with subdivision development.

Trio Hurt In Traffic

Two accidents in which three people were injured were reported by the Wayne County Sheriff's Department on Thanksgiving Day.

One accident occurred at 41665 Plymouth Road.

A car driven by James Abat, 28, of Livonia, was struck by a vehicle driven by Edward Keener, 47, of River Rouge.

Two passengers in Keener's car were injured. They are Ann Eacherm, 51, of Allen Park and Dewey Donnaho, 57, of Lincoln Park. Their condition is unknown

The Sheriff's Department claimed that Abat pulled into the path of the other car.

The other accident occurred at Five Mile Rd. and Fry and one person was injured.

Alex Carlson, 15, of 15411 Parklane, Plymouth, was struck by a motorcycle driven by Leroy Joseph Gootee, 32, of Livonia.

Sheriff's officers said that Carlson was struck when he stepped into the path of the motorcycle which was traveling east on Five Mile.

Carlson was taken to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, but his condition is unknown.

It was the lull that usually comes after indulging in a big meal. The golden brown turkey that had been so appealing to the eye and appetizing to the palate was now only a battered old carcass as we wended our way to the family room to watch the football fare on TV.

As The Stroller started the action on the tube, one of the guests casually remarked, "Haven't lost your love for sports after all these years."

Before either of us could say a word, another of the guests asked a not too surprising question, "How did you ever get started in newspaper work, and especially sports writing?"

The Stroller often has been asked this question, but it was more appropriate now than ever for it was on a Thanksgiving Day in the long ago that his entire outlook on life was changed and a solemn vow was taken to save any other young fellow from the embarrassment he had felt after doing what he thought was a great thing.

Back in those days when Howard Johnson had only two flavors and folks were using Absorbine Senior we had no such things as football extravaganzas in our living rooms. Not much attention was given to the big college games and the interest was centered on the home town high school team.

On this particular Thanksgiving Day afternoon the Boy Scouts, a group of young fellows who couldn't finish their schooling because of economic conditions at home, were playing the high school team and interest was at a high pitch. There was a goodly crowd gathered at the old Creek Field despite the fact that the weather was terrible. It was dark and gloomy and every now and then the rain would fall.

For three periods the Scouts, of which The Stroller was a member, battled the students to a scoreless tie. And from the showing in those three periods it didn't appear that either side would gain an edge in the required time.

Then it happened.

In the greasy pile-up the ball came squirting out and fell to the ground. Quick as I could I pounced on it and gave the Scouts possession of the ball deep in high school territory. From there it was only a matter of two or three plays for us to score the touchdown that decided the game.

The young man who grew up to be The Stroller had visions of being hailed as a football hero - the player who saved the day and made it possible for the Scouts to win the game of the year.

You can imagine his shock and disappointment the next morning when reading the account of the game he came across this line: "It was too dark and the players too mud-spattered to detect who recovered the fumble that turned the tide of pattle.

City Commission Can Find Answers To Questions On Its Own Records "When I came to Plymouth some NICE TARGET ?

years ago, we were a city of doers. We got things done. But lately, we have seemed more than willing to have others do things for us.-I wonder what's happened. It's about time we started doing things for ourselves again."

The speaker was George Hudson, a member of the City Commission, and he had just helped to defeat a recommendation that the city planners - Vilican-Leman Associates-be given the task of drawing up final plans for the beautifying of Kellogg Park at a cost of $1200.

The recommendation was voted down on the theory that it not only would be a money-saving move, but that the Beautification Committee could do the job-and do it well.

If Commissioner Hudson had looked about or just thought for a moment he would have had no need to ask, "I wonder what's happen-ed."

The very vote of turning the park project over to the Beautification Committee was another example of "what has happened." Things are turned over to committees and little, if anything, is heard from them again.

The beautifying of Kellogg Park is not a new project. It has been discussed for years and if one is to judge the future by the past it will be discussed a lot more. The only work that has been done in the beautification program was the in-stallation of gas lights and it took the women in the Garden Club to do that.

Inasmuch as Commissioner Hudson has raised the question it might be well to review the record of delays and frustrations over the past several years.

Here are just a few items that have been lolled around for what seems to be no good and sufficient reason:

6 — Removal of the Penniman Avenue "eyesore," officially known program has been under study for the better part of 10 years, yet nothing definite has been done. Meanwhile, businesses have failed and are still failing for want of a common lure for customers.

The garbage problem has been on and off for months on end. It has run the gamut from building an incinerator to acquiring additional land fill and joining with other areas. It concerns collections at the moment, the raising of prices and the very system for establishing rates. Yet, no reports are being made to the public. The same is true of the water situation, though an early report was promised.

When the question of reports is raised, "We'll have them by the end of the year," seems to be the stock answer. Well, we're nearing the end of the year, so there may be some hope.

It is no secret that months passed from the time a study of the rail crossings was approved and the work of taking a traffic count started.

The same has been true of the boarded front of the Davis property. That has been a problem for years - and still is, even though a plan was approved, with the consent of the property owners, to levy a special assessment and raze the building.

Months have elapsed since Commissioner James McKeon asked for a study leading up to a well round-ed program for the city. Nothing has been heard since he made the plea.

Even Commissioner Hudson, who brought up the subject of revising the city charter and asked that he be made chairman of the committee some months ago, hasn't made any semblance of a report of any progress being made by his Committee.

No wonder he made the remark publicly at the last Commission meeting:

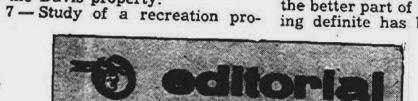

"We used to be a city of doers. I wonder what's happened." We, too, have cause to wonder.

Lansing, Michigan,

At that very moment a broken hearted young man vowed that someday, if at all possible, he would become a sports writer. And if he did, he would always make it a point to identify the players - regardless of conditions - and thus save some other young fellows from the embarrassment he suffered in the aftermath of a Thanksgiving Day football game.

And The Stroller is proud to say that fate took him down the sports trail and for a quarter of a century he never missed identifying a player.

No wonder. The thought of that Thanksgiving still haunts him. * *

SPEAKING OF GOOD SCOUTS

When it comes to fellows who always are willing to step in and do a good turn you'll have to go'a long way before finding a better one than Ed Schening, the big boss at Burroughs.

Not many men would have left their offices, driven into the country and arranged for the purchase of a turkey in Kellogg Park, just to keep a promise.

But Ed did. Now you know why he was made head of the Scouts in this area a year ago and his team went way over the top in the Community Fund Drive a year ago.

He's a great scout.

THE HUNTER WHO NEVER FIRED A GUN

With each passing day word comes to The Stroller's desk of some hunter who just returned with a big buck. And on the highways it is almost a daily sight to pass cars that have one, two and three of the antlered specimens strapped to the body.

And with every call or every "kill" passed on the highways I get to thinking of my Uncle Tom, long since gone.

He always looked forward to the hunting season, yet he never fired a gun. In fact, he was a timid sort when it came to hurting animals. But he loved to cook and to play cards. He was a shark.

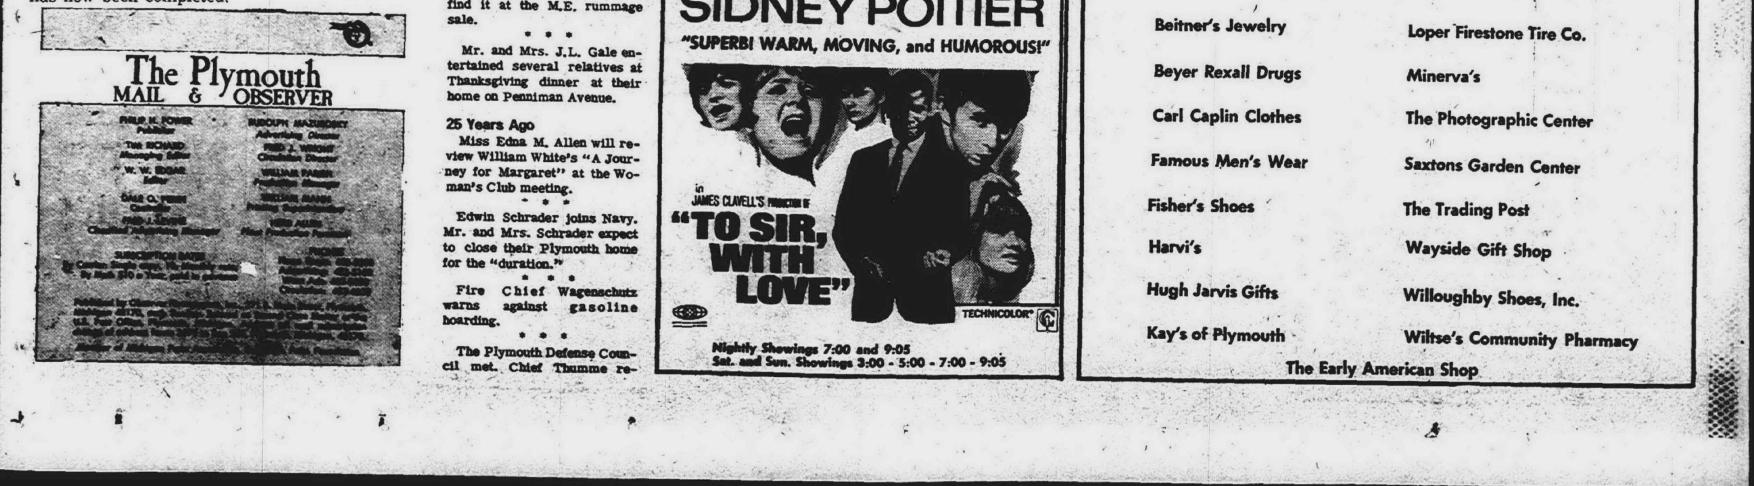

So, he went to camp every year and always came back laughing.

He didn't have to lug a carcass home or be bothered with antlers.

He'd rattle the silver dollars in his pocket and chuckle, "Nobody got more bucks than I did."

THOUGHTS WHILE STROLLING

Funny thing, no one has complained about the cannon being missing from the park. Wonder how many noticed it. Or that the gas lights installation has now been completed.

After reading the interesting article by Judge Draugelis on "Unification is the key to the future" I feel I must ask whose future, little old City of Plymouth with its old-fashioned ideas and architecture or eight times larger, modern progressive, and expanding Plymouth Township.

I agree with the judge on the question of "identity" and the population question, but as a Township resident and homeowner, I find it hard to consider the proposal put forth by him that both communities should petition the Township to drop its petition on the Plymouth Heights question and secure an agreement from the City of Plymouth government that no annexation shall occur during the time the people have the opportunity to vote on the unification question, mainly be-

He also advised that the Wayne County Drain Commission had requested that plans for covering this drain be submitted to them and asked who would assume the engineering cost for this drain enclosure. Michigan's Presidential Timber

By TIM RICHARD Sunday Editor

If Gov. George Romney can win the Republican nomination for President in 1968, he will have done something no Michiganian has done for 120 years.

And if he wins, he will be Michigan's first contribution to the White House ever.

Michigan, a great producer of timber, has never produced much presidential timber. Only one Michigan resident has ever won a presidential nomination from a major party.

Nevertheless, a number of Michiganians have been "mentioned"-as the big time columnists say-as presidential possibilities, and several others have won nominations in minor parties.

New York, Massachusetts, Virginia and Ohio have dominated the list of nominees throughout American history, with California, now the most populous state, statistical-· ly destined for a bigger share.

Michigan's contributions to Potomac fever have been Birney, Cass, Knox, Dewey, Vandenberg, Williams, Munn and now Romney.

BIRNEY !? WHO on earth was he? Well, James G. Birney was the 1840 and 1844 candidate for president of something called the Liberty Party. It was an abolitionist group and later merged with the Free Soil Party, one of the many forerunners of the Republican Party.

Birney got something like 294 votes from Michigan in his 1840 bid. He fell ill and couldn't campaign much in the 1844 election.

Sometime in that period, Birney settled in Michigan at Saginaw and ran unsuccessfully for governor in 1843.

Later, Birney served in the State Senate. He was author of an 1859 bill to pay a 10 cent per barrel subsidy for the production of salt. A jokester offered an amendment to make it 10 cents per bushel, and it passed.

Some businessmen in Birney's home district promptly began the evaporation of brine and made a killing. Whereupon, the Legislature repealed the subsidy.

And that's all you'll find in state histories about James G. Birney.

LEWIS CASS was probably the most prominent man nationally that Michigan produced in the 19th century.

At one time he held military rank, and during the war of 1812 he was appointed territorial governor. He served until 1831, concentrating on exploring the wild young state, encouraging new settlement, negotiating with the Indians.

VANDENBERG

Americana praises his work in public relations after the bombing of Pearl Harbor and for expansion of the Navy for war. Knox died in office in 1944.

CASS

THOMAS E. DEWEY was born in the little Michigan city of Owosso; attended the University of Michigan, where he was an editor of the Daily; and graduated from the U. of M. law school.

But his entire adult life is associated with the State of New York. A crime-busting district attorney, Dewey won the first of three terms as governor in 1942.

Dewey won the 1944 and 1948 GOP presidential nominations but lost the elections to incumbents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman.

Dewey became a king-maker in 1952. He got one of the loudest roars in convention history when he announced in his deep baritone: "New York casts four votes for Taft"-short pause-"and 92 for Eisenhower."

Now 65, Dewey is making a lot of money practicing law in New York.

He won't talk politics. When we attempted to call him to ask his reaction to Gov. Romney's candidacy, we were unable to get past his secretary. We enlisted a former Dewey associate to intercede, but he brought back the message that Dewey would make no political statement and would discuss no other politician.

And so, if Tom Dewey has any political or nostalgic reason for wishing George Romney well, he is keeping it to himself.

ism, and became a chief architect of the bipartisan foreign policy.

When the GOP won control of Congress in 1946, Vandenberg became chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. As the time drew near for the Republican Party to pick a presidential candidate, Vandenberg had a lot of unsolicited support.

"I would have reluctantly accepted a draft," he wrote in his diary. "But there was never a chance for a draft . . . Gov. Stassen (of Minnesota) was, I be-lieve, ready" to swing behind Vandenberg on the second ballot.

Vandenberg wrote that he didn't want to destroy his work in the bi-partisan foreign policy field, a work he loved with "a passion," by running for president. Moreover, he was 65 years old, worried about his health, and afraid he might not live out a term.

Nevertheless, he got 62 convention votes -Michigan's 41 and a scattering of othersand privately listed some impressive potential supporters:

"Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr." of Massachusetts, Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, Sen. H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey . . . Sen. Morse of Oregon (then a Republican, now a dove Democrat), Sen. (John Sherman) Cooper of Kentucky, Claire Booth Luce of Connecticut . . . The only direct word I had from Robert A. Taft was his statement to me, a few days before we came to Philadelphia, that he would wish me to be his secretary of state.'

Vandenberg died in offfice in 1951.

G. MENNEN WILLIAMS once had a timetable to his career, and some time a few years back he was supposed to be in the White House. Williams had been connected with another prominent Michigan Democrat - Frank Murphy, former mayor of Detroit, one term governor of Michigan, attorney general in the Roosevelt Administration and U.S. Su-preme Court justice. Williams was his law clerk in the high court. Murphy, though nationally prominent, never seems to have been considered presidential timber.

Williams made Michigan a twoparty state by defeating Republican Gov. Kim Sigler in 1948 and former Gov. Harry Kelly in 1950. He didn't enter any of the 1952 presidential primaries, but he was a candidate at the national convention that year.

Although Williams' name figured prominently in the news columns and broadcasts, he had nothing more than a handful of convention votes outside the Michigan delegation. In 1960 Williams was a favorite son candidate but quickly threw the Michigan delegation behind Sen. John F. Kennedy. - When Kennedy won, Williams' name figured prominently in the list of potential Cabinet appointments. But he wound up only as under secretary of state for African affairs-a post so obscure that not one person in 5,000 can name either his predecessor or successor.

A HILLSDALE COLLEGE professor, E. Harold Munn Sr., was a candidate for president in 1964, but his own state never saw his name on the ballot.

Prof. Munn is a Prohibitionist. His party has been unable to muster the approximately 20,000 signatures it needs even to get on the ballot in Michigan, and only a few states had a Prohibitionist ticket in 1964.

The Prohibition Party today isn't even a pathetic shell of what it was a half-century ago. Ideologically, it has moved into far right field. The last time it was on the Michigan ballot was in 1960, when it got little more than 2,000 votes.

From 1831-36 he was secretary of war in the Jackson Administration, his first jump into the national political sphere. It was for this service-not his direct work as a Michigan official-that a county was named after him; a southern Michigan county was named after every prominent person in the Jackson cabinet, which was in office at the time

Michigan became a state. Cass held the nation's top diplomatic post—minister to France—from 1836-42. The next two years he was a regent of the University of Michigan, but in 1845 the Legislature elected him to the U.S. Senate.

It was as a senator that he won the Democratic nomination for president in 1848.

His opponent was war hero William Henry Harrison, "Ol' Tippecanoe." Cass was hurt by his authorship of the idea of "popular sovereignty," under which each state was to decide for itself the issue of slavery. This concept was a concession to the South and unpopular with the anti-slavery vote. Many of Cass' fellow Democrats deserted him at the polls, and Gen. Harrison won.

Cass' service wasn't ended. He was reelected to the Senate in 1848 and served until 1857, when he lost his seat because of his stand with Sen. Stephen A. Douglas in sup-port of the Kansas-Nebraska bill.

At this point, President James Buchanan tapped Cass for secretary of state. When Buchanan refused to act strongly to end southern secession, Cass quit in December of 1860. He retired to Michigan and died in 1866.

He came closer to the presidency than any Michigan resident, before or since.

ids, Knox graduated from Alma College in 1898, joined the Rough Riders and fought at San Juan Hill in the Spanish-American War. After the war, he joined the now-departed Grand Rapids Telegram as a reporter, and in 1900 he purchased the Sault Ste. Marie News from Chase S. Osborn.

Knox shows up next as Osborn's campaign manager in the 1910 gubernatorial contest. When Osborn won, Knox became GOP state chairman.

In the 1912 split between the Taft regulars and the Teddy Roosevelt Bull Moose wing, Knox lined up with the Bull Moose. The national convention, how-ever, seated the Taft delegation. He rejoined the GOP fold in 1916.

Knox pops up next in 1917 in New Hamp-shire, joining an infantry regiment. He fought at San Miehel and the Meusse-Argonne campaigns. After the war, he was president of something called the Military Training Camps Association.

From 1927-31 Knox was general manager of the Hearst Newspapers, and in 1931 he bought the Chicago Daily News.

History pays little attention to how Knox became the No. 2 man on the Landon ticket.

ARTHUR H. VANDENBERG, U.S. senator from Michigan, twice was in the running for the Republican presidential nomination.

There hasn't been a midwesterner in the White House since Missouri's Truman and Ohio's Harding. Possibly that will swing weight.

Livonia Blondes Sport Scottish Kilts

When Mrs. Mary Gummoe of 10750 Laurel, Livonia, returned from her hometown of Strathaven, Scotland, with an authentic tartan for her fiveyear-old great granddaughter, Dawn, she ran into a slight problem. Mrs. Judi Roberts, Dawn's mother, wanted one too.

On her next visit to Strathaven, a town built around the ancient castle in which Mary Queen of Scots was beheaded. Mrs. Gummoe purchased a second tartan.

The tartan is of the Gordan clan--dark blue and green with a tiny line of yellow running through it.

ONE MUST be granted official permission to wear a tartan -- ancestry traced to determine the correct clan.

At a yearly gathering of the clans no one needs an introduction, the clans are "read" by merely taking note of the distinctive patterns of the tartans.

When Mrs. Gummoe purchased Judi's tartan she asked for something in a plaid.

The clerk looked at her in dismay, surely a native of Scotland knew that the "plaid" is the large piece of material that is thrown over the shoulder of a Scottish Highlander and that when you ask to see skirt material you ask to see

As before, under food inspection laws, deer may not be kept with hides or in rooms where commercial meat or foods are stored. Slaughter and locker plant operators are familiar with these regulations. the department says, and there should be no problems for hunters.

Department food inspectors recommend that deer be promptly and carefully dressed after killing. The body cavity should be flushed with clear water or wiped as free of blood as possible.
