ONE OF THE LOVELIEST Easter Sundays in years was many things to many people. Thousands attended the church of their choice, dinner guests were the order of the day in many homes, and on Ford Freeway seven died. In Riverside Park, however, these four Plymouth young people,

Does LSD Cause Birth Defects?

Questions should be sent to the Community Commission on Drug Abuse, P.O. Box Drugs, Livonia, Mich. 48151.

Q. What are they going to do about the laws against LSD now that it's been proved that LSD doesn't cause birth defects in people? That's the only danger that was ever blamed on it anywav. R.S., Redford

A. It has still not been proven that LSD does not cause birthdefects in humans. All that has been pretty well established is that this drug does not cause birth defects in certain animals that were tested. The possibility still remains that LSD may be implicated in human fetal abnormalities. Just remember that Thalidomide produced no birth defects in certain animals.

And by the way, it is generally agreed that psychotic episodes may be dangerous and can be brought about by LSD. So there are dangers inherent in the drug other than the one you refer to.

Q. What do you think if parents take tranquilizers, is it wrong?

A. In most instances, tranquilizers are taken by adults rightfully. There are a number of situations, however, in which adults do abuse tranquilizers.

Legitimate tranquilizers are obtained in some cases from black market sources rather than on a physician's prescription. Some people obtain this sort of medication by lying to a physician about something like a "death in the family." Others use tranquilizers given to them by a "friend." Still other people. take more doses in a day. than the physician author-ized, or take them for a longer period of time than authorized. These are just a few examples of how adults may be 'wrong' in taking drugs. And by wrong we mean that they may be endangering their health. The only "right" way for one to take tranquilizers is on a prescription by a physician.

Q. Would you please send: me any information you: have on drugs. I am doing a report on drugs for school and I would like to know something about drugs. P.S. Please hurry.

D.S., Detroit A. We have contacted you: and we hope that we were of; some help to you. Readers who have questions of similar nature can be helpful in two ways. First, be specific. "Drugs" do cover a lot of ground. Secondly, try not to be in a hurry.

WHAT I'VE DONE to deserve it eludes my memory, but the fact remains that of late culture instance, Rt. Rev. Edward J. Hickey, who is about to become a displaced person; Gae McCord, eties of art among our school age youth. of the Fine Arts Council; Penelope Wright, of the Three Cities Art Club, and Jenny Materyn, who represents herself, all have expounded on the glory of their hobby, and I didn't have the heart to admit I wouldn't know Rembrandt Harmensz van Rijn even if he were on the next bar stool.

I must concede that it would be a poor world outh's stature as a nice place to live. if the only artistry appreciated were that of a Gayle Sayers snaking through an open field to a touchdown, or of a Brooks Robinson gebbling up all within his reach at third base. If your "thing" is the art of canvas, the written note or the stage, then to each his own and the better for all of us.

MSGR. EDWARD J. HICKEY is seen entering his Art Guild this week with another statue to add to the collection of paintings and statuary that is on display there. This one is of Pope Pius X, whose reign ran from 1903 to 1914. The building which houses the art collection soon will be destroyed, and a new location is being sought. (Observer photo by Bob

It has been done by going right into the schools with programs showing that art is a living thing. With it there also has been adult emphasis in such directions as craft classes and afternoon discussions which have broadened appreciation among parents. It is an effort that adds to Plým-

PUTTING YOUR WORK on public display is one of the few rewards for those with a love for this type of expression, and both the Arts Council and Three Cities Club are to be complimented for the exhibits they frequently have arranged.

The fever they have engendered has had a by-product in the mind of a woman who doesn't belong to either organization, Mrs. Materyn.

Dedicated to more public display of the work done by students in their school art classes, she has moved in two directions. First, she talked to art teachers at Central, East, West and Pioneer to learn their reaction.

Encouraged, she now has set out to see how many business places can be enlisted to show rotating student art exhibits either in their windows or shop interiors. The teachers will make the selections, and if you happen to be in business and care to volunteer, call Mrs. Materyn at 455-2762.

All this has been healthy evidence of cultural development and appreciation in Plymouth in realization that art is not one of those things that's too good for the peasants. But in the same realm of interest a crisis has grown.

THE GREATEST COLLECTION of oil paintings, bronzes, statuary and other works which we have in Plymouth is in that old white house at the corner of Deer Street and Ann Arbor Trail, which is Msgr. Hickey's Art Guild of St. Mary's,

It was the emergency of the riots of 1967 which caused all of these works to be brought from Detroit to Plymouth for safe keeping. The monsignor began collecting while in his teens and now has more than 3,000 objects on display here and at his other location on Grand Blvd., but whether the Plymouth gallery continues is a question mark.

After the riots, John Kamego, Harold Guenther and others persuaded Msgr. Hickey to establish the local gallery, and Earl Demel provided the building. Now, however, that structure is about to be torn down for the Deer Street paving project and a veritable treasure in art must go elsewhere.

The collection is one of great variety as the result of many trips abroad. It, too, adds greatly to our cultural advantages in Plymouth and Msgr. Hickey, now 77, says he will welcome any suggestions of a building where the gallery could be relocated. While passing out phone numbers, his is 453-8472 in case you have an idea that will help.

"Make Indians pay for garbage pickup"

Apparently Running Bear had been closeted for days with his tribal council in the high temple in an attempt to balance the tribal budget. He had just begun to recount the tribal treasury's wampun for the 77th time when Maximilian walked in.

Engineering 18/16:916:91-1011 Deans Visit Schoolcraft

Deans of engineering schools from various Michigan universities gathered at Schoolcraft College recently to explore curriculum problems of mutual concern.

Dwimsuits gr Dpectacular Focus was on the needs of today's engineering student and ways by community colleges and fouryear institutions, through joint effort, can better meet these Joint chairmen for the meeting were Dr. Gordon Van Wylen, dean of the College of Engineering of the University of Michigan, and Dr. Paul Jones, dean of Highland Park Community College and president of the Michigan Community College Association.

Dr. Eric J. Bradner, president of Schoolcraft and host to the gathering, said the visit acquainted the deans with community college facilities, programs and development. He anticipates their visit will launch joint action by community colleges and the senior colleges, through representative committee.

Deans and assistant deans from the University of Michigan, Michigan State University, Wayne State University, the University of Detroit, Oakland University and Michigan Technological University were attendance.

It's funny how fishermen's attitudes change from one run-off from melted snow, souls along the Huron River. end of Michigan to another. Here in the southeastern part, the sucker is considered a despicable fish, and the prevailing, attitude is that only an ethnic minority group would angle for and consume them.

But over on the St. Joe River right about now, the banks are lined with silent majority types, from Lake Michigan up to Berrien Springs, who have no qualms about the sucker.

ICE ON the inland lakes is getting mushy, and the trout season doesn't open until the end of April, so from late February until early in May, it's the sucker which keeps fanatical fishermen occupied.

The farmers have a little time their strikes for the congregate in deep pools. The angler who can find a pool of them can haul away a gunnysack full of them.

You never hand-hold the rod. You get a forked stick and lay the rod in the crotch, then watch the rod tip for the tunk-tunk that signals a bite. The old-timers add an embellishment -- a tiny bell clamped on the rod tip.

LEGALLY, the sucker is a "rough" fish, which means there's no size limit, no creel limit and no closed season. But that doesn't mean a sucker can't give a pretty good account of himself on the line. Towns Lagging In Park Work

Some 187 local project requests calling for $5.9 million in recreation bond money were recently forwarded to the State Legislature for its final action, reports Michigan's Department of Natural Resources.

The latest requests, cleared by the DNR in consultation with the state recreation advisory committee; represent the fourth slate of local proposals to be approved for legislative consideration.

Under three revious rounds review dating back to September 1969, a total of 196 local projects have already qualified for $11.7 million in recreation bond funds. DNR those projects to be launched.

HOWEVER, beyond this

LANSING point, many communities have lagged in completing their engineering plans which are needed before construction work may begin. Largely as a result, development is moving ahead on about only 60 of the projects which have been processed for funding under the recreation bond program.

Only three of the 196 approved local projects have been completed.

Joseph Seavey, chief of the DNR's recreation services division, observes:

"Our department and its of screening and legislative advisory committee have made good progress in getting bond funds behind deserving projects, but this program is running into snags at the local level. officials and local leaders Frankly, we are disappointed have signed work agree- to see so few of these proments authorizing 124 of jects get off the ground for lack of final engineering plans."

As part of the program's new, written ecological code, sites will be acquired and designed to offer the best potential for public use and provide maximum safeguards for esthetic values in and around these project

Along those lines, toilet facilities at public access sites will continue to be carefully engineered to prevent pollution. On another important point, waterways workers will regularly empty waste disposal barrels and make an all-out effort to enforce anti-litter laws at new sites, just as they already do at existing public access fa-

Also included in the program's statement of criteria is the Waterways Commission's practice of acquiring and developing access sites to promote traffic and pedestrian safety as well as to prevent boating and other water accidents.

"This means, among other things," explains Wilson, "that we lay out launching facilities and parking space side by side. We steer away from locations where highways would divide the facilities and create traffic hazards."

FOR THOSE reasons, and to void confusion among boat-toting motorists, access sites are posted far enough ahead of their entrances so that drivers can prepare to pull into these points in a careful manner and at safe speeds.

In keeping with the program's general tone of meeting property owner interests as well as boater needs, the Waterways Commission has reaffirmed its previous policy of providing maximum screening between access sites and adjacent private holdings.

This involves setting aside an adequate buffer strip on each property line, reports Wilson. "Our commission believes that screening is extremely important to local property owners-so much so,

What's wrong with three balls for a walk and two strikes for an out in baseball?

Nothing!

Just ask the coaches, the players and everybody connected with high school baseball in the Gatholic League.

It was five years ago that the then director, Ralph Owens, decided something had to be done to perk up prep baseball. So he came upon the answer: Three balls walk a batter, two strikes he's

THERE WERE those who scoffed, claiming it never would work.

But Owen asked the coaches to give it a try. And the skeptical suddenly turned from against to for it.

After five years, even though Owen has left the Catholic League, the teams still find three balls and two strikes the way to play baseball.

"It stimulates the game," says Bill Hayes, now the assistant director of the league. "Instead of two and three-hour games, we now get through in an hour or 75 minutes.

"We have found that the pitching is sharper and that the batters no longer stand around and wait out the pitch. They have to be swinging all the time . . . and they do."

Obviously, there must be growing interest in such a change. It was experimented with in Arizona by some of the major league teams this past spring and according to Hayes the entire recreation program in suburban Oak Park has adopted the three-ball, two-strike plan.

I for one, have found the Catholic League version of prep baseball far more interesting from an umpire's standpoint... and not because the games are played in far less time than in other leagues.

THE CATHOLIC LEAGUE teams seem to hustle along more. The players are on their toes, They have to be.

What always has graveled me is to see coaches and managers in schoolboy games give the "take" sign to batter when they have a strike

It takes away the aggressiveness a batter should have. Why put the batter in a jam, just because you think the pitcher might make a bad pitch and there's a chance your man will walk?

I also think that the Catholic League rule is a good one for Little Leaguers and players in the 14-15-16 year-old bracket during summer play.

Here are kids who are developing their arms. Why not do something to reduce the number of pitches? I know that many of the public school prep coaches around Observerland prefer to stick with the way baseball has been played for a hundred years or more. Why be radical? Why change something that has been good? So they say.

But, it's generally agreed that baseball could use some kind of a shot in the arm...that it needs a lift...and maybe the solution, at least on a schoolboy level, is what the Catholic League has found very successful in recent years.

It's worth considering!

THE WEATHERMAN HAD BETTER CO-ODerate with prep athletes this spring.

Looking over the various schedules, we have

1 - Most baseball teams will average 31/2 games per week.

2 - Track teams will compete on the average of twice per week.

3 - Golfers.will play in 3-4 meets per week. 4 - Tennis teams will stage 21/3-3 meets per

OBSERVATION FOR

Value Added Tax Part Of Answer to $$ Crisis

Livonia was hardest hit in sheer numbers. It has given notices to 289 teachers, and it may not fill other vacancies that occur.

Farmington sent notices to 71, Southfield to 236, Birmingham to 160, Redford Union to 37, Wayne to 149.

If it's done, it will put a terrible crimp--perhaps even an intolerable one-in the teaching that's done in our suburban public schools.

THE TWIN problems are lagging state aid and the voters' reluctance to approve the kinds of property tax rates which the schools need. Not only are voters unwilling to vote new taxes, but in Livonia they wouldn't even renew 3.5 mills that they've been paying for some years.

"Crisis" is a word that's used so much that the public probably doesn't respond to it anymore. But "crisis" is what we've got on our hands.

Farmington and South Redford will be asking for millage increases. Wayne County in 1972 will probably ask a mill for a new jail which, as a matter of common humanity, we sorely need. The Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, which runs a string of superb parks, will be on the ballot in a year or so for a quarter-mili. Wayne County Community College still doesn't have a cent of local tax money to run on.

It's depressing to contemplate.

BUT THERE MAY be some hope.

Gov. Milliken, who in a recession year has said he didn't want any new taxes, may be changing his mind.

He's not due to spell out the specifics to the Legislature until next week, but he has indicated that he will seek a "value-added" tax and use it to replace all or part of the school property tax.

Now, a value-added tax isn't my idea of the best way in the world to raise money. What it amounts to is a kind of sales tax-each manufacturing or processing company is taxed on the amount of value it adds to the final product.

The idea is that the tax will be loaded into the price that the consumer pays. It would be at a flat rate, but in actual practice it would be "regressive"--the poor man would pay a greater proportion of his total income than the rich man.

And it could put Michiganmade autos and machine tools at a competitive disadvantage states or countries.

BUT THE QUESTION, at this point, isn't whether the "value-added" tax is the best one in the world. The question rather is whether it's better than the property tax.

Clearly it is. It's related to economic production, which the property tax hasn't been since our subdivisions and shopping centers were corn land. It would take the burden off old folks, many of whom are scared stiff at the prospect of having to sell their homes.

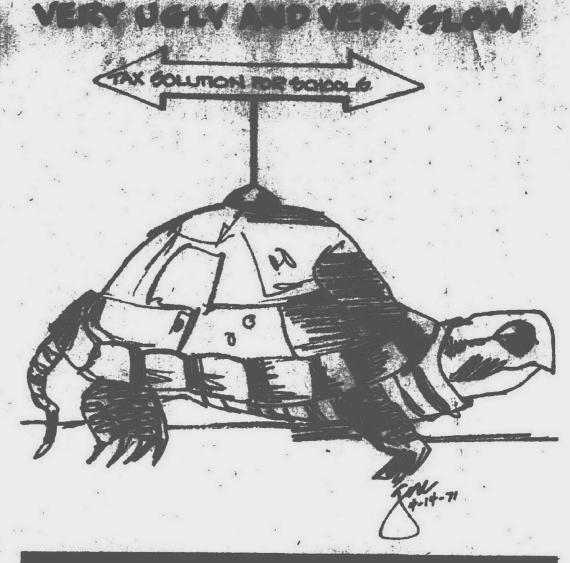

The governor wants to education are talking about. phase out the property tax as the prime source of school Under these circumstances, I'll funds. That's one of the more buy it.

laudable notions ever advocated in western civilization. There's simply no relation in the world between the amount of taxable property in a school to products made in other district and the needs of the kids in that district.

> SCHOOLS TODAY take 'a lot of criticism, possibly because we sometimes talk as if we expect miracles of them. Yet the truth of the matter is that they're far better than they were even in my youth; students get better designed courses, more attention, better methods.

> We would set our schools back at least two generations if we had to go through with the kinds of faculty and staff layoffs that our local boards of Constitution On Block?

For those unaware of the fact, the U.S. Constitution was ratified more than 150 years ago and is still believed operative by most Americans.

But it might become necessary to make that salient fact a banner news story because it is unknown by some Farmington residents

There are some in Farmington who think parents ought to be given the opportunity to place the U.S. Constitution on the ballot for approval or rejection.

Then, if the Constitution is rejected, the Farmington Board of Education can follow the mandate of the populace and vote not to implement a curriculum program on minority understanding.

OF COURSE, those urging that the minority understanding program be placed on the ballot are not outwardly asking for a second ratification of the Constitution, but that is the

Because the minority understanding program asks only the following: recruitment of black teachers and other minorities; housing for minorities hired; the volunto.. exchange for one month of white Farmington teachers with black Detroit instructors; student assemblies on minorities; and student clubs to foster minority understanding.

If the school board were to be so foolish and irresponsible to place the proposed curriculum on the ballot, residents voting against the program would also be voting against open housing, equal opportunity employment, freedom of speech and right of assembly.

If Farmington residents delivered a "mandate by ballot" instructing the board not to implement the minority understanding program, the board could proceed to implement the entire program.

IF RESIDENTS in the Farmington School District can get the other 50 states to join their "mandate," then the objectives of the minority understanding program can be killed.

Otherwise, a vote on the program is an exercise of futility and a game to be played by the ignorant whose knowledge of history only goes back about six months.

The suburbs may want to close their doors to blacks and other minorities. But the progress made over the past 200 years should not, and will not, be set aside to please a few for but one lifetime.

having more children.

And the Canadian system of paying child allotments, once advocated for the U.S. by Senate candidate Jerome Cavanagh (sire of eight), would be out of the question.

Indeed, one could earry the game to the local level and say that the first two children could be educated free in the schools, but the parents would be charged $900 a year taxes for every child after the second, since it costs about that much to educate a child.

Even though a child doesn't start school until age five, the tax would start at birth, allowing the school district to set up a sinking fund to build new buildings for the excess population.

GASOLINE FUMES from the internal combustion engine are the source of 60 per cent of our air pollution, but we have a cents a gallon whether you burn one gallon a year or 5,000.

So let's have a graduated rate tax on gasoline. The more miles you drive and the more powerful your car engine, the greater the tax, proportionately, you'd pay.

Since automobiles take up proportionately more space per passenger and cause more fumes than the various mass transit methods, our pro-environment tax policy would start using gasoline taxes to build mass transit systems.

(A few weeks ago, Gov. Milliken proposed raising the gasoline tax 1.3 cents a gallon, with part of it earmarked for mass transit. The road builders and the auto companies howled. I myself was dubious at first, but no longer. Milliken's right, and all proenvironmentalists will stand by him on this point.)

Difference In Talk

It was a different breed of sixth grader that adult workers for the Keep Southfield Beautiful committee heard this year when representatives from the city's public and parochial schools met for the annual spring luncheon.

Even two years ago, a workshop luncheon of this type would have brought ideas and suggestions for painting ash cans and planting tulip bulbs, but not now. The vanishing adolescent author Edgar Friedenberg warned us about over a decade ago has indeed vanished, and with him such adolescent ideas.

THESE KIDS were talking about war. War, mind you, in a Keep Southfield Beautiful workshop. They talked about overpopulation and when the "world blows up." One child gave the distinct impression that between the war and pollution he was not really too sure he would ever reach age 18.

Those in the lower grades talked about cleaning up their schools, maybe taking a field trip for greater insight, but for the most part it was evident that their world, in reference to beautification at least, pretty much stopped at the end of the school yard.

But as the older groups talked, their worlds had spread by leaps and bounds. There was one out-and-out plea for adult direction.

THEN THERE WAS a frustrating note on adults. One child thought students "should set a good example for our parents." One child criticized the host group for using paper plates and cups at the luncheon. Another commented "We hope adults start to understand these problems."

We can't say we didn't see it coming. We saw it when the political clubs started making inroads into the high schools throughout the state. We saw it clearly when the college demonstrations stretched down into the high schools. Even so, it was a surprise to hear this from 12-year-olds.

Now we are given to understand that Birmingham's Seaholm High School is ready to cross its annual field day off the calendar this spring. The adolescent rah-rah-schoolspirit-pep-day may vanish off the Seaholm campus for lack of a student committee to plan the event.

I wonder how long it would take those same kids to drum up a committee in defense of Army Lt. William Calley. My guess is about three phone calls and 10 minutes.

How About A Lottery?

By FRED NUTTALL Garden City

As spring arrives, so do the homeowner's property taxes and the possibility of being asked to vote on new millage proposals, which most of we homeowners violently reject.

We homeowners must realize that good education is costly, but when will our lawmakers realize that property taxes are not the only source of financing our schools? This archaic system once was a reliable way to gauge a person's ability to pay, but not any more.

Our senior citizens who have worked 25-30 years paying off their mortgages and coupled with inflation find the burden of property taxes are too much. Now they are forced either to sell their homes or live in a substandard mode of

This clearly points out the fact that our property tax system is not fair to people living on a fixed income.

There have been manysuggestions as to how to improve this system, but it still exists. Instead of raising taxes on property, gasoline, and other necessities of life, why don't our lawmakers pass a bill to start a state lottery?

Our current strange gambling laws prohibit this, but why is it that anyone can openly purchase a lottery ticket for the Irish Sweepstakes or any other out of state lottery? New York and other states have proven this method as a good system to raise money.

As a homeowner I would rather buy some lottery tickets than have my property taxes raised again.

Why don't our Michigan lawmakers realize this as a great potential for financing our school systems? Property taxes are not the only means to finance our schools.

Parkland Desecrated

EDITOR:

Last spring a construction company occupied a number of acres' of Livonia's park land for storing fill dirt, tile, cement, field-office, etc. The council, which is the only authority to issue such permission, did not grant this authority, nor did they condone it or attempt to vacate the violators.

The mayor, who has not the authority, gave them permission and did not condone the squatters. While using the park lands, they saved many thousands of dollars (the construction company, not the taxpayers) and you and I paid the shot.

After many months of "free rent," the ugly mess was mostly cleaned up and the land leveled and seeded in the fall. It became a lush green meadow by snowfall. This spring it has become part of a trail for the use of heavy equipment and a parking area of those city trucks now starting to develop the

The eventual entrance route to the park is being ignered. For the City of Livonia, it's "seed in the fall, drive on it in the spring." I, for one, will be heartsick to see this area at Six Mile and Hubbard turned into another ugly mess this year too.

Now that the city has come to use slogans like "Keep Livonia Beautiful," and words like "ecology" and "conservation," it's high time they learned to practice what they preach.

Sugaring Off Time Is Delicious

When the last snowdrift melts away and there's frost at night but it's warm by day, suddenly you know -somewhere they're sugaring

They tell me it's all plastic hoses and automatic evaporatory now. In memory it's a segar shanty set deep in the woods and weathered to a soft silver gray. And there's the smell of wood smoke and sweet steaming upp. And there's that wonderful day at the end of the season, the Sunday when everyone comes, cousins, aunts, uncles, friends and neighbors. Turkey platters filled with clear amber "taffy" are set outdoors to speed their cooling. There are maple sugar cakes in fancy iron molds. And every year, Cousin Belle's husband, Finley Wilkinson, does what no one else could ever do. He drinks a whole dipper full of the fresh maple syrup saying it is his spring tonic.

There's a skinny little city kid, loving every minute of it and everybody there, running out to check the taffy at least 10 times before it is "set."

The predictions, "She's going to get pneumonia, running in and out like that," never came true.

The old-fashioned glamour of the sugar season may be gone but if you are lucky enough to have some pure maple syrup there are many ways to use it other than on pancakes and waffles.

MAPLE SYRUP PIE 1 c. maple syrup

1/a.c. Water 3 T. cornstarch 2 T. cold water 2 T. butter

¼ c. nuts, chopped pastry for 2-crust pie

Boil the maple syrup with the half cup of water for five minutes. Blend the cornstarch with the two tablespoons of water and add to the syrup. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture is smooth and transparent. Add the butter and chopped nuts and let cool. Bake between two crusts in a 400-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes.

MAPLE FUDGE 1 c. mapie syrup

3 c. light brown sugar 1 c. white sugar

2 T. baking powder 2 c. half and half Pinch of salt

1 T. butter 2 T. vanilla Chopped nuts (Optional)

Place all ingredients except the last three in a large saucepan. Cook over medium heat stirring constantly. The syrup will swell at the beginning but will go down. Cook until soft ball stage or until a candy thermometer reaches 240 degrees. Let the fudge into a buttered pan. This will make two pounds. SUGAR SHANTY COOKIES vanilla and the nuts. Spread

1/2 c. shortening -1 c. maple syrup 1 egg

1% c. flour 1 t. salt

2 t. baking powder 14 c. raitins 1½ c. oatmeal

1 t. nutmeg 4 c. milk

1/2 c. mats, chopped These cookies may be made with bacon or ham fat substituted for the shortening. Toasting the oatmeal in the oven adds to the flavor. Place the shortening, maple syrup and east in a bowl and beat until creamy. Sift together, flour, salt and baking powder. Add oatmeal, raisins and nutmeg. Add the milk and the mits. Blend this mixture thoroughly with the creamed mixture. Drop by teaspoon onto a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a 375degree oven for 15 minutes. Makes four to five dozen

HAM SLICE 1 ham slice, 136 inches thick Whole Cloves 2 t. dry mastard 2 t. lemos juice

% c. maple syrup Cut the glad from the slice and slash the fat in several places to keep it from cutting. Put a few cloves in the fat. Mix the mostard with the lemon juice until smooth, then add the syrup. Place the ham slice in a pan and spread some of the syrup mixture on top. Bake, uncovered, in a 350 degree oven for 50 minutes. Baste several times during baking.

In a suit filed by the NDC asking for reapportionment and delay of the June trustees electon, Judge Olzark ruled that the current board should come up with a plan for equal apportionment. The board must submit its plan to the court on June 1. To give the court time to examine the plan and make any changes, the trustee election was postponed until Sept. 13.

Both the judicial decision and Stempien's bill would call

He said the course offers a "new approach to discipline and a more effective way of handling any and all conflicts that are sure to arise in every family."

He added that the course is helpful to parents of adolescents because the method "noticeably lessens the storm and stress so common between teen-agers and parents as they come into conflict over dating, smoking, drinking, driving, dress, manners, studying and almost everything else."

FOR PARENTS of young children it is especially beneficial, Dinwoodie said, "because they don't have to unlearn old methods before learning new ones."

delays which have plagued the new Plymouth High School from the start, the from a parental committee

The new gymnasium, capa-ble of accommodating up to 4,000 parents, relatives and friends, will be the site and Gov. William G. Milliken has been invited to deliver the commencement address. He has not yet advised whether he can accept, however.

Actually, the first two major events to be held in the gym - which was a farfrom-finished shell when classes began in September - will be baccalaureate exercises for the seniors Sunday, June 13 and their honors assembly Thursday, May 20.

Bob Thams, social studies teacher who is faculty advisor to the class of '71, said he anticipates approximately 620 students receiving diplo-mas in the first graduation program held at the new school. The exact number will not be determined until final grades are known.

Each senior will be allowed six tickets for the graduation ceremony.

The crowd at baccalaureate services the preceding Sunday is not expected to be as large, for attendance even of seniors is optional. This annual event is sponsored by the Plymouth Ministerial Association.

ALTHOUGH THE spacious new gymnasium will be utilized for the honors assembly, baccalaureate and commencement, three other major activities on the remaining calendar of the graduating class will be held off campus.

These will be the senior prom, the senior banquet and the class party.

The prom will be held Saturday, May 15 in the ballroom of Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti. Tickets will be $6.50 per couple and will go on sale next week when school resumes after the annual Easter vacation.

For the banquet site on Wednesday, June 9 the class committee has chosen Weber's restaurant at the western edge of Ann Arbor. Cost will be $4 per person and school busses will provide the transportation, returning to Plymouth by 10 p.m.

The banquet is only for seniors and their invited guests, with the program featuring mock awards and a reading of the class will.

THE CLASS PARTY will follow the commencement program June 17 and, just as in recent years, will be held at the YW-YMCA in Ann Arbor.

Mini-Bikes Damaging To Allen

Some students riding minibikes have destroyed a number of trees on Allen Elementary School site 11100 Haggerty, off Ann Arbor Road.

Neighborhood children have been riding their minibikes "in, around and over" clumps of trees that were planted by children, teachers and parents as an ecological project, said Mrs. Earl Gibson, Allen teacher.

Mrs. Gibson said the bike tracks are evidence of the vandalism and so far the school has not caught the youths. Even after the children and teachers erected a fence to protect the seedlings and larger trees, the vandalism continued and now the fencing is broken.

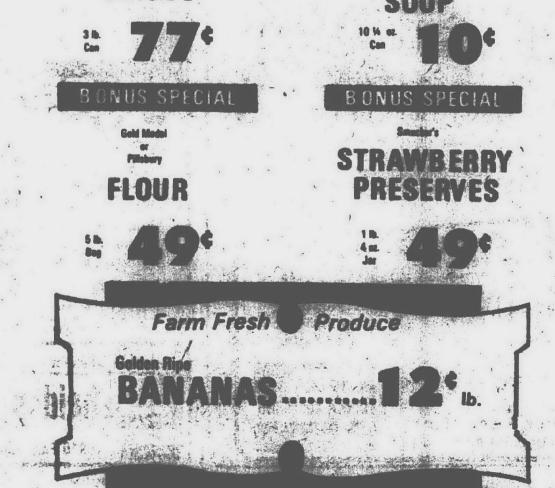

SHE AND Mrs. Sally DeRoo are especially concerned because the school is planning a full day of tree planting and gardening in which more than 100 parents, teachers and students will continue their project to improve the school site.

"We have had tremendous cooperation by parents and children," Mrs. Gibson said about the ecological project.

Have a happy day

Why does Wrigley take a full page to wish you a happy day? For very special reasons:

We want you to have a happy day.

You don't even have to come to Wrigley to have it.

But it wouldn't hurt.

We're doing our best to see to it that your shopping day is a happy one.

How?
