One humid summer evening some years ago, a square shouldered blond haired chap walked into the sports department of The Detroit Free Press where The Stroller was then engaged in the pursuit of happiness and introduced himself-

"I'm Jack Adams," he said as he extended a hand, "the manager of the new Detroit hockey team, and I am opening a campaign to make this area hockey conscious."

"Oh, yeah?" the members of the sports staff chorused with cynical grins.

At the time, the Detroit Olympia was under construction and the Detroit team, then known as the Cougars, were due to play their first season in the Windsor Arena.

After listening to Jack for the better part of an hour as he extolled the finer points and the excitement of the Canadian game, the group wished him well and he departed.

MANY YEARS have passed since that night, but the memory of it came rolling through the hot sun the other afternoon as The Stroller, in his meanderings, visited the newly open facility-an ice rink and swimming pool - - in Southfield.

"This rink and pool is the best investment the city ever made."

Already time is at a premium for use of the ice rink, and it promises to be the center of attention for young and old alike when the cold blasts of winter arrive.

What has happened in Southfield is only a repetition of the experience in other cities were ice rinks have sprouted in the last few years.

Livonia was one of the first to turn to the enclosed rinks and now boasts two of them, with plans

Garden City is turning to its skating rink for the next big recreational move and plans are afoot to have it covered in the not too distant future.

Dearborn is ready to open a large facility on Ford Road. Wyandotte has the largest rink of its kind in the down river area and St. Clair Shores, on the east side, has had the Gordie Howe skating rink for several years.

THINKING OF these things on a hot summer afternoon also caused The Stroller to realize that the trend toward ice hockey has reached the point whereby it has moved far beyond the old days when playing "shinny" with tin cans was the peak of fun.

Today, the organized teams in the recreation programs, and now the advent of the game on the official high school schedules, are further proof that hockey no longer can be looked upon as a strictly Canadian game.

It has become part of American life and the impact will be felt in the Plymouth community when it gets around to building the ice rink that first was conceived back in 1967 as a memorial to the city's centennial.

It has taken a long time, but the rink is to be built on the old Central school property and will bring an end to the need for Plymouth youngsters to arise in the wee hours of the morning to find an arena in which to practice.

ALL THIS activity dates back to that humid evening when the man whom we later came to know as "Jolly Jack" embarked on the program to make the area hockey conscious.

He was a man of words - and deeds. While he did a lot of convincing talking, he also built the Detroit hockey team, first known as the Cougars and later as the Red Wings, into a championship group that still holds some of the top records in Stanley Cup Competition.

As one of the group that snickered years ago at the thought of becoming hockey conscious, The Stroller doffs his topper to "Jolly Jack," who is now in that Valhalla where all real champions go.

He really did a job.

If it wasn't for him, The Stroller wouldn't even be thinking about ice hockey to get relief these hot, humid afternoons.

"WHAT NATURE provides, you must preserve. And what nature does not provide, you must try to create in your real estate developments."

Urban planners, Pearson emphasized, have a responsibility to do something about the problems of the cities in which they work and live. He cited the problem of growing traffic congestion "which must be stopped before it blood clots our transportation arteries."

Such congestion, he added, makes cities less attractive places in which to work, shop, and live, causes real estate values to decline, and makes it more difficult even to get away to resort and recreational areas.

BUILDING MORE expressways is not the answer, the U-M authority said.

"The more miles of expressways you build, the more automobiles you'll put on them. Expressways take valuable land off the tax rolls. displace families and businesses, cut suburbs in half, and amputate neighborhoods.

"By tearing down houses to build more highways to accommodate more traffic, you drive residents farther and farther out into the country and, by suburbanizing your countryside, you destroy the very values that people seek there."

Pearson said that mass transit can provide the solution to traffic congestion. Rail rapid transit, he explained, is safe and can be made convenient and comfortable.

It is less expensive than highway travel, will relieve congestion for those who must drive cars, is faster for commuters and will not be affected as much by adverse weather conditions of fog, rain, and snow. Railroads, he added, also use less land than the highways, already own rights-of-way, and do not cause as much air pollution as cars do.

THE AIRPORTS of today will be the mainstreets of tomorrow, Pearson continued.

"As economic centers of gravity, airports will generate industrial parks, research and development centers, conference and convention facilities, cocktail lounges and motor inns, shopping centers, and new residential subdivisions.

"It will be the responsibility of land developers to provide buffer zones and to avoid overlapping and incompatible uses... The time is coming when the business executive will arrive in the morning at his destination near the airport, conduct his business that day, and depart from the airport nearby in the early evening having saved himself a frustrating long trip from that by mid-August Farmington, North Farmington

What a shame not to have the defending state Class A champs -- North Farmington -- on deck to stake their crown.

BIGGEST ITEM to pop up at the All-Star baseball festivities is how the American and National League teams should be selected.

Tiger fans are still burned a little at the thought that the game might have come and gone without Norm Cash performing at first base.

In other cities, there was a lot of furning, too.

However the selections are made, there's no way everybody will sing cheers. It's the same in football when they name the Pro-Bowl choices. . . the same in basketball when they decide who'll appear in the All-Star game each January. . . etc.

My own thought is that the selections should be left, in part, to the players. They know the best. And, with them, it's not likely it would boil down to a popularity vote.

We're not rapping the beloved fans, without whom there'd be no sports, but a great many who vote on such things just go for "names."

When people who reside in Idaho or Montana or Louisiana have the same say as those in Detroit or New York or Chicago, it can be understood why they'd go for a Boog Powell this season over a Norm Cash, when all close to the game know which guy is most deserving of rating No. 1 in '71 - at least, so far.

So, leave the starters up to the players. . . let the managers of the two teams pick a few of the players and maybe a vote of all the other managers round out the teams.

AND, HOW THE SPORTS parade moves on! Arnie Palmer has slipped. . . Jack Nicklaus is having some problems. . . and Lee Trevino has taking over the big spotlight in golf.

What a story. . . the Trevino one. A few years ago he was working for $35 on a golf course. Now, he's already earned upwards of $200,000 this year, an all-time record.

Take heart, kids... It shows what a little hard work can do for a guy.

That guy swinging a golf club at Whispering Willows in Livonia and trying to become another Trevino or Nicklaus is none other than Channel 4's Al Ackerman, Good luck, Albert.

IT'LL BE LITTLE LEAGUE playoft time again within a few days.

And, who'll forget the saga recorded last summer by South Farmington, which soared within an eyelash of qualifying for the world series of Little League.

And, all the other playoffs - Babe Ruth, Colt and Legion are just around the corner, too.

So are the Connie Mack and Adray, which will be answered in the prompts one to note: The summer, as always, is thoroughbred meeting that manager at Northville Downs. After bucking the worst . possible weather during a winter meeting which found the track winding up with a $234,934 nightly handle for the 44 nights, Carlo has nothing but a big smile now over the current summer campaign which is going along at an alltime high for betting and attendance.

After 15 nights of the 35night summer campaign, the 'Downs is enjoying the biggest business boom in history.

The half-mile plant enjoyed its second million dollar weekend last Friday and Saturday with total wagering of $1,052,745. The first million dollar weekend came just a week earlier.

Saturday's crowd of 8,777, second largest for Northville, sent $548,086 through the mutuel machines and that added to the $504,659 on Friday accounted for more than a million.

In 15 nights the 'Downs has handled $6,211,499 for a nightly average of $414,100 and that's 8.3 per cent better than figures for the same period in 1970.

The turnstile count is up 2.5 per cent with a nightly average of 5,679 and a total of 85,190.

All are records for the track... every possible mark was shattered a year ago.

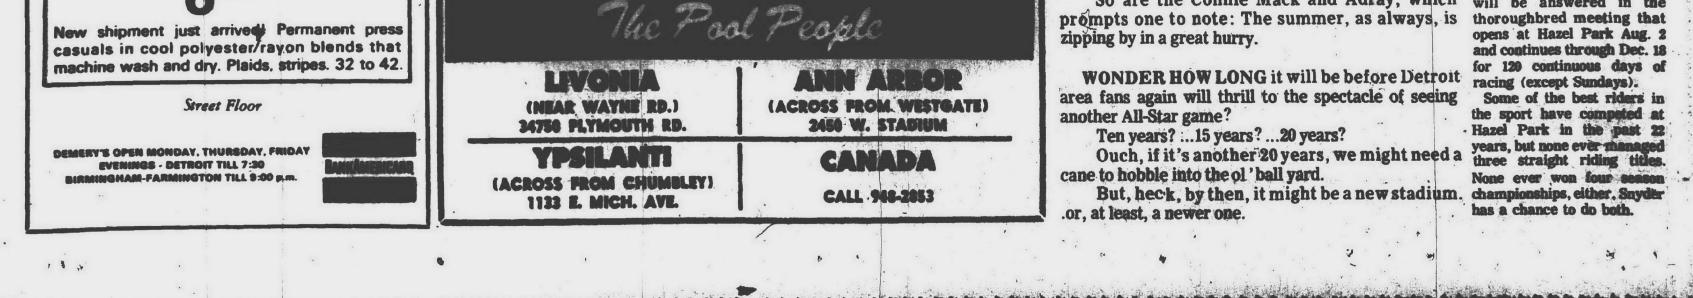

A WORD to the wise. Watch for the youngsters in the Doug Ackerman stable to win several of the Michigan championships this year.

The performances of Gunsmith, a three-year-old trotter, have had the experts buzzing. When the son of Hickory Pride stays flat he can go with any of the aged trotters at Northville Downs. Gunsmith came from far back Saturday to win in 2:06.1, beating many of the faster aged performers.

Owned by Ada Jean Ackerman of Galien, Gunsmith has won six of 11 starts and has banked more than $5,000. He'll bear plenty of watching from now to the end of the colt stake season.

CAN LARRY SNYDER become the first rider to win three straight i jockey championships at the Haze Park Race Track?

Pruning shrubs: Few things are more baffling than the subject of pruning trees and shrubs.

Here are a few guidelines to go by: Don't hesitate to trim out any branches or stems that are weak, sickly or dead. Cut them back flush with the main stem. Never leave a stub sticking out.

Don't worry about painting the cuts with a tree compound. Orchardists trim their trees every year and never bother to cover the wounds. Keep in mind that most spring flowering shrubs can be pruned any time after flowering, and these include forsythia, deutzia, beauty bush, shrub honeysuckle, viburnum, weigela, spirea, lilac, rhododendron, to name a few.

Prune forsythias by cutting out old stems, back to the ground. Take out thin wood. If the entire bush is overgrown with half naked stalks, I'd cut the entire bush back to the ground and let all new growth come up. Don't shear forsythias as these plants are not adapted to shearing. They are "weepers" with long shoots.

Mock orange can be thinned out now, if you think they are overgrown. You can even cut the top back a bit if it's too high.

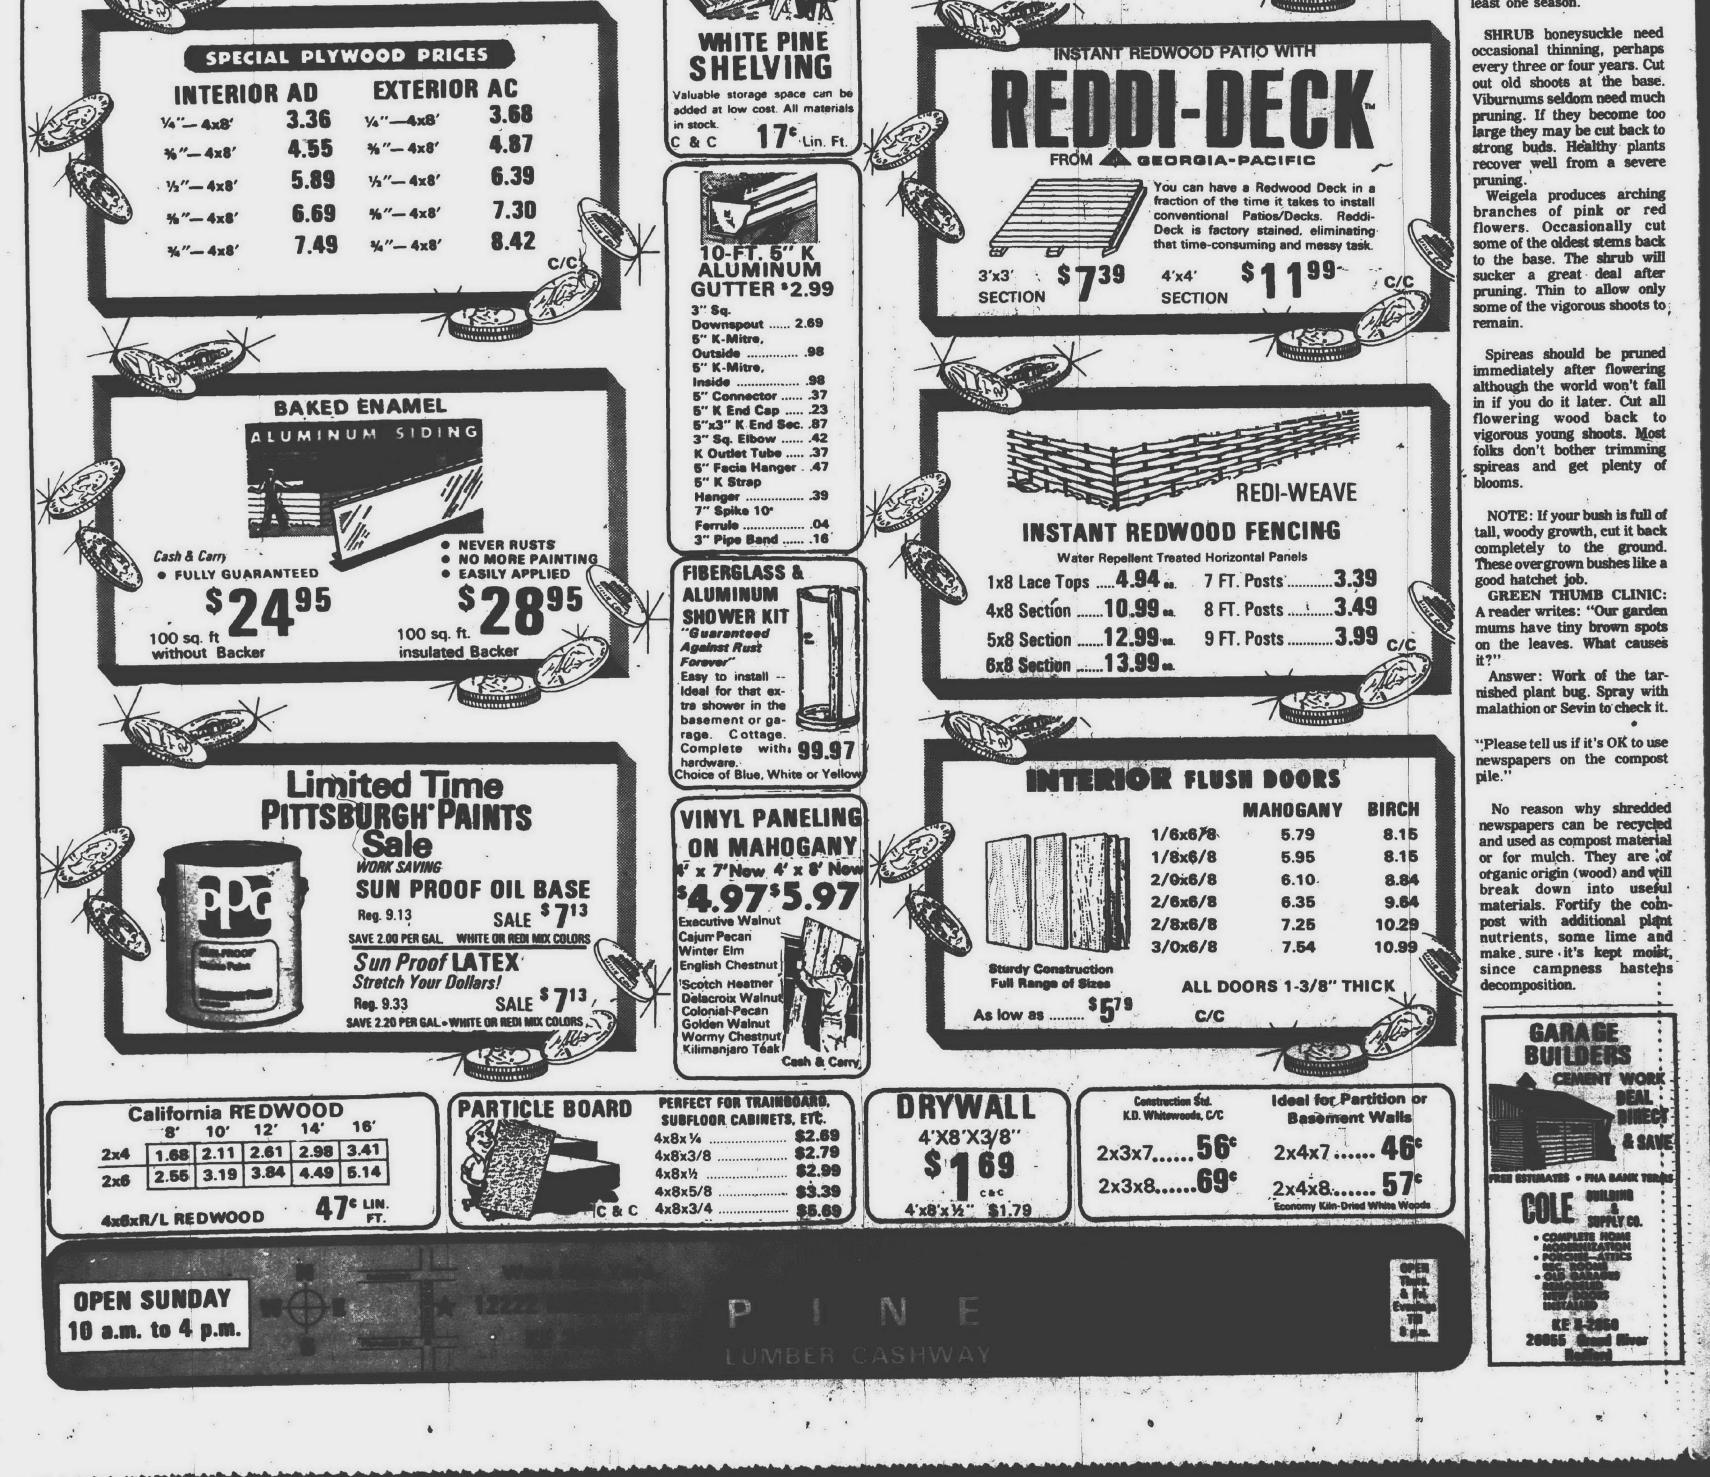

Deutzia has clusters of double white, drooping flowers. Cut out a few of the oldest branches at ground level. Strong side shoots can be headed back.

Beauty bush (Kolkwitzia) has masses of small pink flowers. Usually pruning is not needed. This plant seems to flower best on older stems. Any heaving pruning usually means loss of flowers for at

The Iceland poppies are also perennials but are so shortlived that they are best treated as annuals and planted each year. They have bright green foliage. The colorful flowers are borne on graceful, wiry stems 12 to 18 inches tall. The sating textured flowers are excellent for cutting. For best results they should be cut early in the morning and before they are fully opened.

The corn poppies are common wild flowers in Europe where they brighten fields and roadsides. They have "gone wild" in this country, too, but to a lesser extent. They are annuals with hairy bright green finely cut foliage. Heights range from one to three feet.

Among the more common pests Wallner lists borers and aphids. Borers are difficult to control because they spend most of their lives inside the plant. The best control is to cut off the infected part of the plant and burn it. Rose borers live in the old canes. They bore through cut ends.

For the past four years, I have been referred to in this column by various names, the latest being Miss 15, sophomore and Daughter No. 2. And my opinion has been placed in this column many times without my consent (always a bit distorted, of course.)

And many people ask me questions, such as "How was the rummage sale?" or "How's that cat of yours that I read about in the paper?"

Well, contrary to popular belief, I have a name. Barb.

And I have opinions never put in this column, such as an opinion of my Mom, who writes this regularly. And now I'm going to let all the people ask her their questions about the column. My, but revenge is sweet!

My mom's pretty average as far as statistics go. I guess. She gets in her quota of explosions every week.

She's home when you don't want her and gone when you need her, so that's about average too, I

A Puppy Is Waiting

The puppy is being put up for adoption by the Michigan Humane Society through its newly-opened animal shelter at 37255 Marquette, just east of Newburgh, in Westland

RONALD F. BLAUET, animal shelter manager, told The Observer that these puppies and others available for adoption at the society's "kindness center" have had their first shots.

He will interview prospective foster families between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, in the society's new air-conditioned shelter, its first outside of Detroit.

Blauet also reminded pet owners in the community that the shelter staff provides many services for animals, including the housing of lost dogs for Westland and Dearborn Heights, which financially support the shelter.

LOST DOGS may be viewed from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Other services performed by the humane society at the Westland shelter are investigating animal cruelty complaints, accepting unwanted animals and placing them in new homes, and teaching children kindness towards animals through school visits and the Kindness Club.

Jobless Survey Planned

The Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment and unemployment in this area during the week of July 19, Robert G. McWilliam, director of the bureau's regional office in Detroit has announced.

This survey is conducted monthly by the bureau for the Department of Labor in a scientifically designed sample of households throughout the entire United States. The employment and unemployment statistics which are based on the results of this survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation. For example, in May the survey indicated that there were 84.1 million men and women in the civilian labor force; 6.2 percent were out of work as compared with 6.1 percent of the 83.8 million persons in the April labor force. The figures are adjusted for seasonal changes. Facts supplied by individuals participating in the survey are kept strictly confidential by law, and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Snowmobiles: An Example Of Noise Pollution

By Philip H. Power Publishe

The controversy now going on about mini-bikes reminded me the other day of a similar but more cooling problem.

: A reader who called about the mini-bike matter mentioned that her family had, in addition to two mini-bikes, two snowmobiles. After we talked about mini-bikes, I asked her how she liked the snowmobiles.

She said she and her husband liked them a lot, particularly the feeling of freedom they gave when zipping over the snow in the northern part of the state in winter.

"But there is one problem," she added. "The darn things are so noisy that I think I'm losing my hearing from being around them so much."

She may be more correct than she thinks.

SOME TIME ago, Dr. Fred H. Bess, who is director of audiology at Central Michigan University, reported that tests made last winter on 21 snowmobile race drivers at the Michigan Snowmobile 500 at Sault Ste. Marie showed that all had "marked permanent hearing loss."

-Recordings made at the race showed that even spectators may have experienced temporary hearing damage.

unexpected sound of snowmobiles.

There is some evidence that other animals are affected by the sound, too, and it is clear that wildlife simply clears out from areas constantly used by snowmobilers.

Dr. Bess urged that the government establish and monitor "safe maximum sound pressure levels for snowmobile engines." 1 < 1

Howard Larson, vice president for environmental affairs of ths Outboard Marine Corp., which makes snowmobiles, was reported to have said the industry was working to lower the machine's noise level between now and 1980.

IF BY 1980, why not now?

One of the things that makes me sore is the callous assumption entirely free to produce sound pollution in virtually any degree they wish, ignoring the wishes of the guy who simply wants to stand around and feel the quiet.

Snowmobilers, for example, have as much right as anyone else to be in the woods. But do they have the right to ruin the silence for miles around? Do the snowmobile manufacturing companies by both industry and owners of have the uncontrolled right to vehicles of all types that they are make machines with minimum noise suppression systems?

I submit the answer to these questions is "No."

I also suggest that one reason the snowmobile makers don't much want to make their machines quiet is that a big, loud noise on a machine makes the buyer feel he is getting a racy. sexy job, and that in turn sells more snowmobiles.

The same points apply to: sports cars; motorcycles; power lawnmowers; railroad trains; buses; mini-bikes; chain saws; outboard motors.

We all need to recognize the rights of each of us to live in an environment as free as possible from noise pollution. And the way to make sure that happens is to put controls on manufacturers to make sure their products do not pollute our environment any more than absolutely necessary.

UNLESS SOMETHING'S DONE WE'LL PAY DEARLY ... Good PR Must For Schools It's common to hear school board candidates, especially those of a conservative political stripe, argue that schools should use more "businesslike" methods.

So who's first in line to criticize when a school district adopts a business method? Right.

In the case at hand, it was John Stymelski who dissented when the Livonia Board of Education voted to rehife Morgan O'Leary as the district's public relations man.

PUBLIC RELATIONS is one of the essential functions of veyor of subliminal evil, the PR person accumulates a lot of routine matter, comes up with good feature stories about what's going on in the classroom, and answers a lot of fact questions for busy reporters because he's got the time to look 'em up.

TRUSTEE STYMELSKI'S opposition seems based not so much on the idea of the PR function as on political considerations. He worries about the man swing-" ing people into doing things they don't want, or selling the administration point of view rather than the board's. Well, if the administration is out of tune with the board, then the board ought to get a new superintendent. The Livonia board not having fired Supt. R. H. Upton, it may be presumed he is generally in tune with the board majority. As for the contention that the PR man will turn people's thinking around, perhaps trustee Stymelski hasn't been reading these columns of late.

This observer personally chewed apart Supt. Upton for a statement (probably written by PR man O'Leary) that was too extreme an attack on the governor's budget cuts. The Upton-O'Leary powers of political seduction are, at best, rather limited.

IT IS IRONIC, if not irrational, that Stymelski of all people should object to the schools' hiring of a PR man. Stymelski himself had the services during his campaign of a very competent professional, Dale Welling by name, although I assume it was on a volunteer basis. And at a recent board meeting, Stymelski read from a letter over his signature in which he objected to one school program or another. It was quite a polished piece of prose. Nevertheless, those who have ever heard Stymelski speak know he didn't write that letter all by himself.

Dr. Bess also cautioned that tests run on 17 snowmobile drivers and riders who used the machines just for cross country riding showed that they had temporary hearing damage. "With repeated exposure," he added, "that could be cumulative and be permanent damage."

BESS ADDED that snowmobiles produce more noise for the driver than a racing car because, unlike a car, the exhaust system is in front of the driver and passengers.

The noise experienced by the driver of a standard snowmobile is about the same as if a person stood next to the engine of a jet plane at the airport, Dr. Bess explained.

He called for snowmobile drivers to wear protective ear coverings to prevent hearing loss, and noted that a person should not drive a snowmobile for more than 30 minutes without some kind of ear protection.

AS ANYONE who has been out in the woods and heard a snowmobile snarl by knows full well, the problem is not confined to the drivers and passengers of snowmobiles only.

Upper Michigan residents, who often seem to care more fiercely about the deer herd than anything else, claim heatedly that the breeding cycle of the deer is seriously affected by the loud and modern business. Every firm above the hole-in-the-wall size either hires a man to handle PR or gets itself an agency which handles several accounts.

Being against a PR man is like being against the double-entry accounting system or installing telephones.

Most school districts around here have such a person on the payroll. Far from being a pur-

There's Nothing Wrong With Our Kids

By MAURIE WALKER

There's nothing wrong with the kids today.

The same zeal, temptations, ambitions and disappointments the "establishment" experienced "centuries ago" are being realized by today's young people.

In the good "old days", youth had places to congregate, the .corner drug store, the malt shop, the little independent grocery store, all were gathering places.

It wasn't a mob gathering, the areas were too small. It was just a group of the old gang who would meet at these places and talk teentalk.

Today these meeting places have disappeared. Even many of the chain drug stores have discarded their soda fountains. the one last stronghold for youthful discussions.

ONE OF THE SAD facts of today's world is that there are really few places young people can gather. So where do they head for? The parks.

Here a small group sometimes becomes a mob. Should there be a few trouble makers, perhaps even a few dope pushers or what we "old folk" called wild kids, trouble is in the making.

Kids never change, really, from one generation to the other. They like to be with groups their own age. They don't dig the language of the older folk anymore than the older folk understand teen language.

In many instances, youthful trouble is the fault of parents. Sure, they will drive the kids to a mall or park, in fact almost anywhere so long as the youth isn't underfoot to bother them.

But to have a gang of their. children's friends hanging around the backyard or in the recreation room is, for many parents, just too much trouble.

Young people, by nature, like excitement. Without thinking, they will join in anything that at the moment looks like fun.

Police have stated that the majority of young people who gather in parks and at rock festivals are there strictly for the enjoyment of some harmless fun. It's the few trouble makers who give all a bad name.

Again, the blame, in many cases, stems back to the parents. The finger of shame is pointed at those adults who "just know my child won't do anything wrong" but do nothing to insure this belief.

Left alone and unsupervised, left feeling not wanted at home and with no place to turn, the potential for serious trouble is there.

Police records show that many a parent doesn't become concerned about a child until something happens.

As an example, in one park incident, a mother was outraged at the police because they wouldn't let her go into the park to look for her daughter while there was a threat of trouble. It was 11 p.m. and she had dropped the young girl off at the park at 7 p.m.

This mother was not concerned about her daughter until she saw police cars surrounding the park, four hours after she had bid her daughter goodbye.

As one of the police officers so aptly put it, "This woman wasn't worried about her daughter mingling in the park with strangers. It was the sight of the police that frightened her."

Youth Bureau records show that many a young person runs away from home because they feel they are not wanted. The socalled "generation gap" is as much the fault of parents as of the youth.

Money and worldly goods aren't all a child needs or really wants. Even though they would probably deny it, a young person needs to feel wanted, needs to know parents care where they are and what they are doing. They secretly want supervision.

True, many parents allow the "gang" to hang out in their home. But the percentage is much too small as juvenile records sadly show.

Being a parent isn't an easy job nor a part-time job. It is a 24 hour a day, seven-day a week job. It's frustrating at times but by the same token, if done well, rewarding

There is nothing wrong with the kids today. The majority are doing a great job in a tough period of growing up.

Who Does Have Answers?

By CORINNE ABATT

Out of the hundreds of words I read and type every week, a five word quote keeps running through my mind. "I don't have any answers.", It came in an interview with Greg Miller, of Southfield, Groves High School valedictorian.

It stayed in my mind. I HAVING suppose, because it's incredibly hard to find an 18-year-old who doesn't have all the answers to what's wrong with the world, what's wrong with the establishprerogative." ment, parents, the governmentyou name it, they have the answers before you pose the supply of often over sermonized questions. moral tinged answers, we can find At first, I read Greg's satisfaction in platitudinous comment as a kind of pleasing rationales such as "experience is and refreshing display of humilithe best teacher, if I knew then ty. As we dole out our endless

Now, I realize what a see-saw mess the world would be in if all we had was questions, but I'm talking about the big stuff, things that concern man and his future, education, welfare, happiness, satisfaction.

It's so easy to come up with simple answers--far harder and less comfortable to say "I don't know"-to stand apart and say, "I have no answers." It's a lonely road--the one that takes you searching, asking, probing, questioning.

There's no sign to tell you when you've passed "go" and there's no winning the game. It becomes a life long quest to seek better ways, instead of finalities with momentary satisfactions rather than complete ones. But, let me ask this, "Is there really any hope for a better future with our present answers? "Isn't it, after all, up to the people with the questions to lead us out of the abyss?"
