Boom Goes On

Canton Township officials have been given an insight into the population boom the area is experiencing through detailed census statistics dealing with far more than just a head count. Living patterns and a breakdown of age groups are among the revelations.

The board also approved holding three orientation days for the high school students on Sept. 1 to 3 with shuttlebus service to be provided from a school. The shuttlebus schedule will be announced at a later date.

The high school will also switch to a four grading period schedule instead of the six periods used in the past as a result of board action.

Asst. Supt. John Hoben said the four grading periods would make the high school consistent with elementary and middle schools.

Questions should be sent to the Community Commission on Drug Abuse, P.O. Box Drugs, Livonia, Mich. 48151. Q. Wasn't the death of the rock musician, Jim Morrison, caused by drugs?

R.R., Plymouth
A. Not in the sense that you probably mean. Cause of death of the lead singer of "The Doors" was officially listed in Paris as a heart attack. Jim Morrison had been a user of "hard" drugs in the past, but his friends state quite definitely that this had not been the case for some time.

When Jim "bought the farm" (died) as they say, alcohol made a pretty heavy down payment. But alcohol was only one way in which he abused his body: he had been known to jump or fall out of windows in playful horsing around.

around.

This would seem to be an example of someone with a pretty strong bent for self-destruction whose almost complete disregard for his health finally caught up with him at a much too early age. Drugs were just one part of the problem, and probably not the underlying cause.

Q. What is angel dust?

V.L., Westland
A. "Angel dust" is a term for a drug we discussed; PCP, also known as "hog" and phencyclidine. This drug, as we reported, is used as an animal tranquillizer, is not safe for human use and can be

One way in which it is used is to spray it on mint leaves, which then are dried, rolled into a cigarette and smoked. Both the mind altering and lethal effects can be produced by inhalation.

"Angel dust" is obviously not an appropriate term for this one.

Q. Wasn't marijuana used in the past in this country for medicinal purposes? If so, was it really any good? Is there any chance that it might be used for some good medical effect now or in the future?

D.S., Livonia

A. In answer to your first; question, marijuana (cannabis sativa) was an official drug in the United States Pharmacopia up until the time of its being classed as a narcotic. By that time, its use had fallen off for several. reasons: unpredictability of effects (due mostly to the difficulty of producing a product of standard, reliable potentency) and the advent of. newer drugs that were more: predictable in their actions and more effective.

The drug was used to relieve pain, to encourage sleep and to soothe restlessness. Its most interesting use – and one that was pretty well documented, at least by the criteria of those times – was treatment of migraine headache. Migraine, a fiercely painful and blindingly strong headache, is still very difficult to treat even today.

Whether the beneficial effects for cannabis claimed in the past for migraine would hold up under today's more critical methods of evaluating drugs is an unanswered question, but one that might deserve looking into.

Obviously, self-medication: with this drug is not recommended nor desirable in treatment of a serious condition such as migraine. Without proper medical supervision the use of this or any other drug in self-medication may worsen the course of the disease.

Unfortunately, today so much time and expertise has to be devoted to the problems arising from abuse of the drug that research into legitimate medical usage has been pushed into the background.

I TOOK Heaven by the hand Sunday in a way which only those who are grandparents for the first time can understand, and if that petite 25-month-old girl's maternal family doesn't spoil her upon her first return to Michigan in more than a year, my wife and I will.

This isn't a column which will interest the young folk. In fact, it's a personal experience that may not be of consequence to anyone outside our own family

But, you see, there are moments of sentimentality in this crusty hide of mine when I can't hide the tears of that child's father's fate any more than I can blink back my joy in seeing the heiress he left to his wonderful wife, Sharon.

An heiress to a financial fortune she is not. But just as you very likely count upon bonds of family unity, and the love among you, to transcend quarrels of the moment, so do we find that this little tyke has brought together two families from orbits which might otherwise never have interlocked.

AS FAR AS I KNOW, there is no word in the merican (or English) language which all by itself a escribes the relationship between the parents of the bride and the parents of the groom.

If I confuse you, all I'm asking you mothers and fathers is the question of how you refer to the mother and father of the kid who married your kid -academically that is, and not after the old man has had a few hoots too many.

If I'm not mistaken, the Russians have such a word - and because I pronounce it better than I spell it, I will present it as "SWAH-hah." In other words, OLGC Plans Olga and I can refer to that glorious couple in Romeo known as Marie and Ace Cadillo by that term and Rides At Fete know we're talking about the family merger.

ACE CADILLO, as it happens, is an old-time Detroit-area football star who enjoys a tankard now and then, and if the right guy and gal every were to get married to bring "swah" together with "hah," it was those two children of ours.

By this time. I'm sure we've lost all readers its parking lot which is borexcept grandparents, so those of you who remain are asked to think of the first time your foursome gathered to bill and coo over that which your progeny had reproduced.

Well, that's what we did Sunday, except those doggone Cadillos had a running start because it's their daughter who is visiting and she had been there residents of the neighborhood several days.

Given equal time, I'll get even in Plymouth when they visit here and have recruits coming from my closest friends, the Fred Buesser family, in Birmingham, with whom we have crossed godparents too many times to keep track. Yes, we've all taken Heaven by the hand and we find it warm for one reason: Love.

Canton Zoning Plan Seen As Business Boon

CANTON TOWNSHIP The proposed "highway oriented" business district zoning to be known officially as C-3 appears to be a certainty for Canton Township.

All that remains until the zoning amendment is put on the books is formal approval of the Wayne County Planning Commission.

A public hearing on six parcels of land that have been tagged C-3 brought no objections from the sizable audience in attendance at the planning commission meeting.

The new zoning is aimed at promoting proper development of some parts of Ford Rd. and Michigan that have extremely deep lots. Hopefully, the new designation will attract developers who can use the deep lots to better advantage.

Lots in a C-3 zone must be at least three acres, have a front footage of 150 feet and a depth of 900 feet. Ingress and egress plans will be carefully con-

Bishop Sheen's lecture is described as a talk for all faiths, and will follow the format of the television series he headed from 1951 to 1957.

The Town Hall's second speaker, Irene Kampen. is author of the humorous book "Due to Lack of Interest, Tomorrow has Been Canceled," in which she describes her experiences going back to college after raising a family.

Dr. Clay Lafferty, a clinical psychologist, will describe his venture called synergistics, which involved human relations in business. Singer Patricia Munsel, winding up the series, will explore the world of music "From Grand Opera to Baroque Rock."

Season tickets may be ordered by writing Post Office Box 93, Northville.

event taking place in the cultural center of Detroit. This year's activities will take place Aug. 21 through 26.

The art fair will be held Aug. 21 and 22 from 12 noon to 8 p.m., on the Wayne State University Mall, behind the Prentis Building on Cass Ave., between Kirby and Putnam.

Work will be accepted Saturday morning without jurying, but is subject to review by an acceptance committee. There will be some easels, but artists will be expected to provide their own equipment for their exhibitions.

No commission will be charged, but there is a $5 entry fee. Acceptable work includes paintings, sculpture, photography, metal, ceramics, weaving, jewelry, enamels and glass. Entry blanks may be obtained from Detroit Adventure, 100 W. Kirby, Detroit, 48202.

Detroit Adventure, the arts council for metropolitan Detroit, the City of Detroit Parks and Recreation Department and United Community Services, sponsor Detroit Discovery. It will include events for children and adults.

Twirling Events Set

Young baton twirlers and strutters will compete for trophies and medals Aug. 28 through Aug. 31 at the Michigan State Fair.

Competitions will begin each day at 8:30 a.m. in the International Grove on the Fairgrounds.

The juvenile division will compete on Saturday; junior, Church. Sunday; primary, Monday; and senior, Tuesday. The boys' divisions will compete on Tuesday.

The only exception are perennial pest grasses such as nimblewill, timothy or quackgrass; special pains should be taken to see that even if you seed your own dant in young turf, mostly these are not brought into the lawn because it will be difficult to eliminate them later.

> A common misconception is that sodding a lawn need not be as painstaking as sowing of seed would need be. Actually, the soilbed should be equally well prepared for either kind of planting, and neither seed nor sod will thrive on a rockhard base into which it cannot

> THE SOIL cultivated, mixing in fertilizer (and lime if needed). Level, and then sow seed or lay sod. Some authorities feel that a seedling rooted directly into endemic soil has some acvantage over a transplanted grass started elsewhere.

But this should not be a significant factor if sod is properly laid on a prepared soilbed .- rolled firm, and kept watered for the several weeks needed until it is firmly rooted.

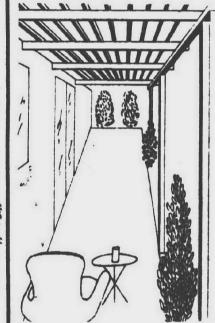

Lawngrasses regenerate about half of their roots each year, and so long as there is not a barrier (like layer of humus) at the base of sod the grass should root well.

The old roots of transplanted sod cease to function, and new rootlets penetrate the soilbed.

The chief concern is not whether you choose seed or sod, but the quality of the grasses you select.

There are many excellent new varieties of Kentucky bluegrasses, fine fescues, bentgrasses and perennial ryegrasses from which to choose, all of them finetextured and a credit to the lawn.

Except in certain difficult climates where the better grasses do not thrive, it is well to avoid either seed or sod that contains coarse - kind components (which are so listed on the seedbox label).

One of the main impressions an American suburban newspaperman takes away with him after a visit to Europe is the new suburbanization of that very old society. France, Italy, Germany, England - all are showing many of the familiar characteristics of the American suburban scene. Population growth in single family homes outside big cities; widespread ownership of automobiles; development of expressways and traffic jams; even shopping centers.

The style and details may be different, but the process overall is very familiar to us living in the suburbs.

DRIVE TO THE EDGE of a big European city, Tours, in France, for example.

You fight the traffic through the city, and then you come upon a big sign: "Phoenix-Tours, A Planned Community, Model Homes On View."

There are the single-family homes, recently built and in the process of being sold. There are the French families going wideeyed through the model home. There are the freshly turned piles of dirt, bulldozers, and workmen finishing houses.

The architecture is dull. uniform, and unpleasant. It's much more unpleasant than that in American suburbs, which ought to give European critics of America some pause.

But the people moving out to the suburbs are similar to those in America. They are mostly the white collar workers, almost always with kids, who have decided they want their own piece of land and their own home.

In Europe, where ownership of land is much less a widespread tradition than in America and where that suggests much more in terms of class and status than it does here, this is a remarkable development.

OR AUTOMOBILES.

To a degree stunning to my experience in Europe eight years ago, a lot of people have them or are in the process of saving money to buy one on time.

They may not be big or expensive – the most popular car in England, for example, is called the Mini, and is about one third the size of an average Ford or Chevy -- but there are a lot of

If a man can't afford even a small car, he is saving his money for a little two-wheeled motor scooter.

The sharp jump in numbers of people owning cars has led to two other familiar aspects of the

Editorial

OBSERVATION PONT

Old Europe Now Sporting American-Style Suburbs

American suburban scene: Traffic jams in the cities and expressways.

Driving in Paris -- always a sporty proposition -- has now become so crowded that there is very little point in taking a car downtown, even if you can find a place to park. In the older, smaller cities, with narrow streets designed to handle horse-drawn wagons, the traffic situation becomes literally impossible.

WITH AUTOMOBILES come two other institutions familiar to Americans in the suburbs: expressways and shopping centers.

expressways, European particularly in Germany, are well designed, well built, and very scary to drive on. This is because many of them have no speed limit at all.

We drove on the Stuttgart-Karlsruhe autobahn (expressway) at 110 miles per hour, thinking that was just as fast as we wanted

Then there was a terrific "whoosh!" on the right hand-side of the car. I looked over just in time to see the tail end of a Mercedes disappearing around the bend, traveling at what must have been 135.

Placed near the expressways are shopping centers - still rare, but becoming increasingly

They do not much feature the food supermarkets so familiar to American shopping centers -most European housewives still shop every day at little stores near their homes -- but the department stores are there and so are the furniture emporiums.

Clearly, increased prosperity is enabling European families to do without that old, uncomfortable chair that had been in the family for 80 years and to replace it with a new, modern version.

IF THE SUBURBAN scene in Europe is strikingly familiar to the American traveler, so are the causes behind the suburban explosion.

People have more money to spend -- much more than they ever had. They can afford a car and gain the mobility it provides.

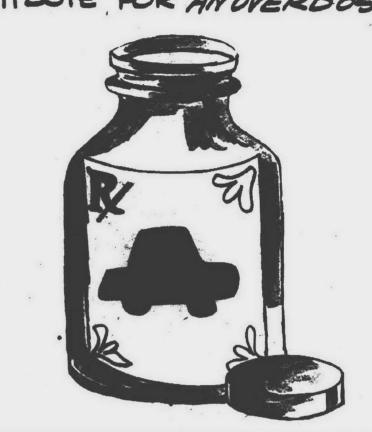

With a car, they can live away from the city and the apartment they have been chained to for so many years. And with the car, they can get to the shopping centers to spend their increased income on goods they never before could afford.

The odd thing about the suburbanizing process now going on in Europe is that the politicians and the governments do not seem now much aware that this process is going on.

Like the suburbs in America. European suburbs seem so far to be stepchildren of the main political centers of power. This means that European politics in some years will start going through the same kind of suburb-induced change that is now happening in America.

EUROPE HAS JUST DISCOVEREDIT ... AMERICA IS LOOKING FOR THE ANTIDOTE FOR AN OVERDOSE!

Over this coming weekend more than 3,000 volunteers are expected to take part in the annual "Rescue The Rouge" program along the main branch.

When the sun sinks Sunday evening they will have taken tons of debris out of the main branch from Eight-Mile Road to Telegraph Road -- with token help from the county in the way of providing heavy equipment.

A month later the Jaycees will wage their annual war on pollution by attempting to clean the middle branch from Northville to Dearborn. The Jaycees, no doubt, will do a good job. They always do.

But, without taking one iota of credit away from them, the time has come when the powers that be in city, state, county and even federal government no longer should depend upon volunteers to do a job that so badly needs to be done. There is no doubt that the Rouge -- and its branches -- is a dirty river. From its very source at Walled Lake until it reaches the Detroit River is a sorry sight -- and a health hazard.

THOSE IN THE KNOW claim that the only remedy for the lakes is to dredge them to add about six feet to their depth. These same sources claim that job would entail an expenditure of one half million dollars.

Is this a job for exclusive use of volunteer help?

But at a time when the ecology movement is sweeping the country and we are being urged to improve our environment the job should be given to professionals on a full time basis.

they send out one of their survey questionnaires, I'm not going to answer. A guy can get "used" that way.

It's not a matter of political party. Republican and Democratic congressmen alike play games with the results they get from their annual questionnaires.

The name of the game is to word the question in such a way as to get answers that support the congressman's point of view.

The results, he hopes, will be useful in convincing other politicians that this is grass-roots sentiment and convincing the voters that he's in tune with them.

TAKE THE QUESTION of the Vietnam war.

Ford, a 15th District Democrat, asked: "A proposal has been made in Congress to require the U.S. government to bring home all U.S. troops from southeast Asia before the end of the year. Do you favor this proposal?"

The "yes" response was favored by 61 per cent. Ford offered them a choice on only a single option. It's natural he would get that kind of response.

Broomfield and McDonald, Republicans from the 18th and 19th Districts, respectively, were fairer on the Vietnam question.

They didn't box their constituents into a "yes" or "no" position on one question. Rather, they offered the choice of four options: (a) military victory, (b) continued "Vietnamization" of the war with withdrawal of U.S. troops when South Vietnam is capable of defending itself, (c) a set troop withdrawal deadline and (d) immediate withdrawal.

BEFORE IT appears that McDonald is a paragon of fairness, let us turn to his question No. 8: "In reference to welfare reform, should the Congress (a) continue the present system (b) reform the system, emphasizing work incentives."

Who in his right mind is going to say he favors the present system? Hardly anyone, from the most conservative Bircher to the picketing ADC mom. So what kind of answers did McDonald get? Between 97 and 99 per cent favored the vague "reform" option, whereupon McDonald says:

"I am supporting H.R. 1, the Welfare Reform Bill which offers job training and work incentives. and discourages the splitting of families in order to qualify for aid

Mobile Homes Answer?

By Marie McGee

Image-conscious Americans are going to have to take another look at trailer parks and the type of people who live in them.

The view from Mortgage Row can be very enlightening.

In fact, better look again. That could be your snow-haired Mom and your retiree Dad in that salesroom right now making a deal for a mobile home.

More and more are doing it everyday. And why not? In most cases, it works out rather well for all concerned.

WE'VE GOT TO face up to the fact that besides being one of the fastest growing (and profitable) businesses in the country today, the mobile home, for many, is the answer to the lowcost housing problem.

It's the only real moderately priced housing available to most people and particularly the old-

Many townhouses and condominiums are still too big an investment for the average pensioner. And most apartments have priced themselves right out of the market for seniors living on a fixed income.

Why shouldn't budget conscious Americans--young and old-- take a good look at these mobile homes? They're not only convenient, they're beautiful.

From the retirees' point of view, they offer'a life of dignity as well as peace and quiet at a price they can afford.

That's an important item if you've owned your own home all your married days and dread the paper-thin walls most apartments seem to have.

A MOBILE HOME development can also be a boon to a community's tax base-as Canton Township is learning.

One of the nicest "residential" areas is Royal Holiday Park in the northeast corner of the township. Besides being extremely well-kept up by its residents (many are senior citizens), the development paid approximately $27,000 in taxes to the Plymouth School District last year while adding only something like seven children to the school rolls.

In comparison, nearby Holiday Park subdivision added well over 1,000 youngsters to the school system.

Properly run, a mobile park can be a valuable asset to a community. We also realize there's still a lot to be done in the way of laws to protect the trailer owners from unscrupulous park owners. The legislature is just beginning to wake up to this fact. As for upkeep: Well, we all know of residential subdivisions that have become run down and

The time has come for all of us to take an updated "view" of mobile home developments. It might even change the "point" of our argument.

R.T. Thompson writes

Can Happen Here -- And Did

The old belief that it can't happen here has been proven false again and the details are sad . . . it cost the life of a Livonia youth who apparently just didn't care to follow warnings signs.

Newburgh Lake, which isn't exactly the best spot in the area to swim in, has signs posted in numerous places warning that no swimming is permitted. The signs should be enough and should keep all swimmers out of the POLICE DEPARTMENTS of the communities in which the lake is located and the Wayne even diving in places where it is County Sheriff's patrol have routed away many swimmers during the summer, especially on hot, humid days.

Unfortunately, the police officers and deputies can only order the swimmers out of the water . . . there isn't any violation of a law as grounds for an arrest.

So, the result is that swimmers have been using the lake: they have been taking chances on running into underwater obstructions, trees covered by water, and known there is danger. One asks: Does it have to cost a life before persons will stop diving into and swimming in a condemned lake?

We haven't seen any swimmers or divers since the fatal accident, but that doesn't mean that it isn't so.

THE ONLY ANSWER is that lawmakers should put some bite in laws that will give the police officers more authority . . . the sooner the better.

We realize that little can be done this year, but there will be other years, and there will be other drownings, simply because that's the way people are. .

However, if violators could be arrested, fined and warned by the courts that additional viola tions will meet with stiffer action, then there may be a halt in the illegal activities.

Perhaps in the not too distant future, the state and county will get together and make the area lakes excellent swimming spots in addition to fishing. It can't come too soon.

Joe Hudson of J. L. Hudson Real Estate Company announced the immediate inauguration of plans for a new growth program, to take place over the next five years, calculated to retain their leadership in the Real Estate field in the western Detroit metropolitan area and the southeastern Michigan area. This area is in the immediate growth path of the anticipated Megalopolis between Detroit and Chicago which is supposed to materialize by the year 2000. Growth in such outlying districts as Westland, Garden City, Northville & Plymouth has been steady and accelerating. Mass movements from the city to the suburbs and the desire of families to enjoy a cleaner environment have thrust surrounding rural areas into a high demand category and resulted in an increased competition among Real Estate firms to corner the emerging market. J. L. Hudson Real Estate Company has been active in this area since 1937 and is firmly entrenched as a leader in residential home sales and sales of vacant property. The many years of activity handling vacant listings has resulted in sort of a blessing in disguise for J. L. Hudson Real Estate Co. since most people planning to move from the city and looking for a place to build a new home invariably end up dealing with J. L. Hudson Real Estate Co. because of their overwhelming prominance in listings of vacant lands. These same people have a home to sell so the association usually results, ultimately, in a double transaction for J. L. Hudson Real Estate Co. To meet the challenge of the coming population increase and demand for housing in the geographical area that J. L. Hudson Real Estate Co. operates in, the company is assessing the old way of doing things in the Real Estate business and comparing them with the way other industries are handling similar problems. Sometimes the similarity of problems is alarming and for the most part it is obvious that the Real Estate field has not kept pace with the advance in professional management techniques. Corporations in industry have been influenced by and grown with the sociological developments of time. The Real Estate field has not kept pace on the same scale. Some of the many innovations to be employed by the J. L. Hudson Real Estate Co. to overcome some of these problems include the establishment of more stringent requirements for sales personnel, the employment of electronic marvels such as video tape presentation of property to eliminate the time consuming review of many unwanted parcels of property to hopefully find a desirable one, facilities which assure the customer privacy when discussing personal affairs relative to credit and finance. Also included will be more emphasis on providing a true service to the customer. Purchasers will find that locating the home of their choice will not only be easier but more pleasant because the systems and procedures of operation will be designed around the customer's need rather than the broker's convenience as is customary. J. L. Hudson Real Estate Co., which has always been a Plymouth-based company, has plans to construct a new corporate headquarters building in downtown Plymouth sometime in 1972. In addition, previous franchise operations will be converted to branch offices to give better control over company operations and provide the ultimate in customer service for those faced with the transition from urban to rural relocation. Summarizing, J. L. Hudson Real Estate Co. will be upgrading and establishing a professional sales staff, improving facilities to service customers, employing modern management techniques and utilizing the latest in electronic video tape equipment techniques to present to potential buyers a variety of homes to choose from without the usual inconvenience of looking at undesirable homes in order to locate a desirable one. Such an all encompassing program has to be a real boon to the consumer and J. L. Hudson Real Estate Co. is sure it will pay off for them.

Joseph L. Hudson

Who says Want Ads aren't for people under 21?

And, if you want to buy some of these things and your bank account is a disaster area, (Observer) Want Ads bring you cash. Here's how: Just go through your things and make a list of good, usable items you've lost interest in. Then dial 522-0900 for a friendly Ad Writer, who helps you word your ad for fastest results. Soon you're in touch with cash buyers for things you didn't want anyway.

If you're over 12 and under 21, Observer Want Ads help you do your own thing. Whether it's finding a bike for a grade student, part-time emvloyment for a high school student, an apartment for a college upperclassman, Want Ads do the job for you! Read the Want Ads, too, for good buys in electric guitars, custom cars, surfboards, motorcycles, hairpieces, stereo equipment and much more.

Fight apathy! Get going after your extra cash today.

The importance of non- reduceable chemical com- being done in some cities.

An illustration of this practice, in part, is the recent local program of using steel sewage treatment plants. In view of the public expense involved in waste removal and treatment, Wayne county and the local units within the county might find justification for requiring sorting procedures on the part of all those who generate trash. This is

B.F.Goodrich

Furthermore, economic inducements could be established to encourage industries to reclaim the chemical elements contained in their wastes.

COMMUNITIES which must bear the monetary and non-monetary costs of pollution caused by industrial processes have a real stake in the "pollution quotient" of types of industries. Job production and tax base are positive economic factors stemming from industry.

A negative factor may be the waste and pollution costs. Thus, a community's industrial development program might be selective in the types of industries it sought out and recruited.

No significant lead time would be required to implement these suggestions. Accurate technical data. however, would be very important.
