The bussing issue brought scores of residents to this week's meeting of the Plymouth Board of Education demanding that the board take a positive stand on this explosive topic. The board went only as far as to join with other school districts in retaining an attorney to keep informed on development.

A New Setting

It was not the usual setting that a number of defendants found waiting for them when Judge Dunbar Davis convened the 35th District Court Wednesday morning. The room was filled with ninth grade students, for the court itself was a converted classroom at Central Junior High School. How it all worked out is discussed in Bifocals.

Vox Populi

Pros and cons of the cross-district school bussing issue continue to spark many of the "letters to the editor," and today is no exception. The letter column also carries a touch of local politics.

Light Vote May Settle City Races

By FRED DeLANO

Four seats on the sevenmember Plymouth City Commission will be filled in the biennial municipal election Tuesday, but in the expectation of City Clerk Eugene S. Slider, fewer than onefourth of the 4,817 registered voters may participate in the decision.

Slider is director of elections and in predicting a light turnout of voters pointed out that in 1969 only 25.16 per cent of those registered went to the polls, and in 1967, it was 21.5

per cent. The public apathy toward the election was typified at the "candidate's night" forum sponsored Wednesday by the League of Women Voters and Jaycees in City Hall, when only about 30 residents - in-The strike of the United the United Steelworkers of their jobs in the plant on said a union spokesman, cluding the members of some declaring that improvement candidates' families - showed

IT WOULD BE the easiest thing in the world for any City of Plymouth citizens to go to the polls Tuesday and vote for a person in the commission election just because he's a friend. This doesn't require a bit of thinking, or the measuring of one candidate's expertise and philosophies against anoththis year from April to November, and had two filing deadlines for nominating petitions - December and June, consideration of choices has been prolonged beyond the norm. Despite the extension in time, there still have been no burning issues of debate that have electrified the citizens; in fact, the first spark of place. He can be stubborn, but there never is any interest is barely distinguishable.

Difficulty of choice also has been compounded by the fact that while only four are to be elected, more than four are worthy of a vote.

CONSIDER FIRST that the three carryover commissioners will be James McKeon, Donald Bidwell and Harold Guenther, each of whom brings something peculiarly individual to the benefit of municipal government. Now, let's find others best fitted to do the same.

Our judgment is that there are three candidates who deserve an unqualified endorsement:

MRS. BEVERLY McANINCH ROBERT SINCOCK

Mrs. McAninch, 45, stands out like a beaeon in the way she has given attention to detail in taking her first political plunge. Forthright and erudite, she does her home work well which, by itself, would make her unique among many commissioners circa 1970-71. in 1971 after being appointed to fill a vacancy a year earlier; Ernie Henry, 63, who has retired as assistant postmaster and who served on the commission two terms in the early '50s; and Peter Schweitzer, a commissioner in 1967-68 who has matured visibly in his more recent role as community relations director at the Plymouth State Home and Training School.

There is no other candidate with Schweitzer's grasp of sociological problems in the community. On the other hand, Henry is the "old shoe" type who instills confidence in the Plymouthites who want their government as it was 20 or 30 years ago, while Silvis is a nickel-rubber to whom there is very little in government more sacred than economy. Take your choice.

None of this is to say that the two other candidates are not of credit to their city and to the campaign.

A letter from Mr. Andrews expressing dissatisfaction with the Plymouth High School athletic field fence being topped by barbed wire was distributed. Mr. Blunk was asked to explain the reasons for installation - that it was primarily installed to force spectators to buy tickets for paid events. that many were going under and over the fence - perhaps as many as 100 per game. The University of Michigan field has eight feet of fence with six strands of barbed wire. It is not unusual to have this type of wire. although there are some circumstances where the wire would not be advisable. It was agreed that Mrs. Hulsing and Mr. Blunk would write to Mr. Andrews, indicating reasons for the barbed wire in this case.

A report from Vorgional Education Director Gaertner on the Wayne County Vocational Education Plan was received. After much discussion. the Secretary of the Board was directed to write to the Wayne County School District to go dn record as being in favor of the vocational education in principle, but having reservations as to whether the Area Vocational Center, with a cost of approximately $1,200 per pupil attending. could meet the needs of our District, and the feeling that we could develop a program here for the same amount of money.

President Hulsing directed that the copies of the Code of Conduct and Student Suspension as included in the Plymouth High School and middle school handbooks be corrected before further distribution is made. Her directive was the result of comments made during this meeting regarding the errors in the middle school handbook as well as comments regarding the high school handbook made during the meeting of September 7.

George Lawton said at the sion of Tuesday's eting that he objected to he inference that the board can collectively make a decision based on just one board member's feelings.

The article referred to was an analysis of the board's position on the retention of the district's superintendent despite dissatisfaction with him. Supt. James Rossman was kept at his former salary level of $28,000 rather than given an increase as other administrators received.

The analysis indicated that all but one board member (Lawton) were ready to fire Rossman or buy up the remaining two years of his contract. Lawton reportedly took the position that such action would hurt the district's coming spring millage campaign.

"I do not like the inference that the board can act on just one member's opinion,' Lawton said.

Lawton, Wilson Sick Jr. and John Graves later said that the majority of board members were in favor of continuing Rossman's contract.

This was an experiment in helping acquaint a new generation - this time all ninth graders - with the phase of the law that is inherent in our court system, and it worked well. So well, in fact, that the judgé, plus Central Principal Gustav Gorguze and Wayne Weimer, the civics instructor whose agile mind gave birth to the idea, have agreed to more sessions at the school, perhaps one a month.

Changing audiences as class hours ended caused interruptions and court recesses that one would not ordinarily encounter, but this is a detail that can be corrected by school authorities the next time around.

Interestingly, student jurors (who acted only in an advisory capacity) recommended stiffer penalties in almost all instances than their experienced patron actually levied. In fact, in some cases - particularly involving traffic violations - they suggested almost doubling the fines, leading to the suspicion in this commented from the improvised bench when he corner that young people have greater ability to police themselves than some of their elders believe.

EDITOR:

If reports of a number of Plymouth students are accurate, the Plymouth branch or whoever it might have been who attempted the school boycott on Monday, Oct. 25, has in effect admitted their cause is pretty weak.

When you have to resort to fabricated rumors (outright lies or just half-truths,) the validity and soundness of any program becomes doubtful

Maybe the kids didn't hear right, but they were sup-posedly told that if they rode the bus on Monday they would be bussed out of Plymouth in the future.

If a cause is valid, it only suffers from the use of false information, anonymous phone calls, and such cheap and cruel tactics as driving around ito bus stops and telling kids to go home.

EDITOR:

The Plymouth Civic Federation is here to stay. That should make clear to your correspondent, Bob Dwyer, that he can expect to see us in action in future Plymouth elections.

The federation organized in an effort to counteract increasing voter apathy, reflected in the recent school elections. It is a nonpartisan organization, created to give residents and voters in Plymouth an opportunity to participate in the city's nonpartisan election campaigns and to provide the voters of Plymouth with a citizens' point of view in the selection of candidates for election to public office.

Membership is open to any resident of Plymouth on the endorsement of a federation member and approval of the come Candidates a separates that they were swarp of the House, Oct. 5.

Plymouth Township nterviews they were organization is planned for the township.

Plymouth Civic Federation endorsement, unlike that of many similar groups, brings with it active support and participation in the campaign. This support includes the preparation of printed literature, house to house of the National Action Group distribution of the literature, a get-out-the-vote telephone campaign and any other support practicable.

> Dwyer, apparently, confuses election to a state-wide political organization, not by his neighbors, as he implies, but in a county political convention, as a qualification to involvement in local government. Membership in a political state central com-mittee gives him no credence, whatever, in Plymouth government. We have a nonpartisan government, which excludes partisan political affiliation.

> Participation in our campaigns would have to be by non-partisan groups. To campaign under a partisan banner would not only be presumptuous, but self defeating, since the ballot does not identify the candidates by party.

Car Care Supplement

Is Everyone's Business Condition

The condition your car is in is everybody's business.

Car Care is no longer just a personal whim for your zwn convenience but affects every other person in you'r community.

With every conscientious person in this country vitally concerned with the environment, the engine has undergone close scrutiny. It has become fashionable to criticize the automobile maker, casting complete blame for air pollution on his shoulders.

Yet, car makers have already reduced pollution 66% to 80% since 1960. And in the next few years harmful pollutants will be reduced to nearly zero, according to top automotive officials.

But without sonscientious maintenance on the pert of the owner, no system can function properly. Studies show that an untuned engine, for example, spews as much as four times the rate of harmful emissions as a tuned one.

The motoriet's responsibility to his fellow man extends even beyond this vital area.

Keeping safety components in good condition is a sign of responsibility to your fellow motoriets as well as yourself and your family. That includes tires, brakes, visibility items and a number

Maintaining your car so that there is a minimum risk of breakdown on a crowded expressway or street is another indication of concern. A sub-par engine that aputters to a stop on a crowded thoroughtere can cause inconvenience to thousands of other drivers.

By keaping all of your car's components in good condition, perticularly in the months of foul weather ahead, you make an important contribution to the health and selety of your you can easily live up to your responsibility by taking your car into your favorite service its expert assistance.

As the poet John Donne wrote, "No man is an islande unto himself." To make this "islande" more habitable, care for your car.

A Ten Count Guide To..

In boxing, a 10-count signifies a knockout. In driving your car is subject to a 10-count too. That is 10 basic flaws and any one of them could count your car out of action.

1. The brake pedal sinks to the floor under light foot pressure. This could mean worn brake finings or a leak of fluids in the

2. The car pulls constantly to one side when stopping. Possible causes include poor wheel alignment or brake lining worn on one side or oil sosked on one side, both due to wheel cylinder defects.

3. Excessive play in steering. Likely causes are a worn or faulty steering box, or worn or faulty ball joints, tie-rod ends, relay rods or idler arm.

4. Your car vibrates at 50 to 65 mph. Chances are defective tires, incorrect wheel balance or incorrect alignment is the cause.

ALIGNMENT

5. Steering column shimmies at high or low speeds. Check for looseness: in front end, defective shock absorbers or out of round tires with some flat surfaces.

6. Rear wheel locking upon light application of the brakes. The cause is probably a faulty or leaking oil seal.

7. Too much play in the steering while driving. Improper tire inflation or faulty front or rear suspension should be suspect-

On the question of mixing different types of tires on the same car, the association suggests that for best all-eround performance it's best to use the same type of tire on all four wheel positions.

8. Excessive noise from the exhaust system. Check exhaust-pipe, muffler or tail pipe for damage.

9. Unusual odors inside the car. This could have many sources but signals some engine defect.

10. Directional signal light not working. Check for burnt out bulb or defective flasher unit.

In the case of radial tires, mixing is defi-nitely ruled out. Due to differences in handling characteristics, they should be used only in sets of four.

RMA also notes that while the wider tread

"70 Series" tires can be mixed with conventional tires, they should only be used in pairs on the same axle.

First, never buy a smaller size than those which came with the car, says RMA. Tires should always be replaced with the same designation, or approved options, as recommended by the automobile manufacturer.

Also, if you're considering replacing conventional sized tires such as 7.75x14, etc. with a set of new radials, belted bias or the wider tread profiles ("70 Series," "78 Series"), be sure to check the automobile manufacturer's or tire dealer's recommendations.

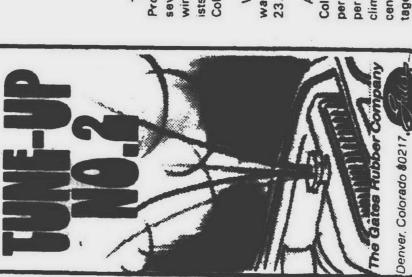

Why It's Recommended

Interchangeability of different types of tires is not always possible, due to differences in load rating, tire dimensions, wheel well clearances and rim sizes, particularly with older

When buying a pair of replacement tires in the same size and construction, the association suggests that they be put on the rear wheels for better traction, handling and extra protection against flats. When a single new tire is bought, it should be paired on the rear axle with the tire having the most tread depth of the other three. For Extra Protection

The tire industry also recommends a "break-in" period for all new or previously unused tires — the tires on a new car, the spare put on after a flat and all replacements. Limiting speed to 60 mph for the first 50 miles of driving enables the many complex elements in a tire to adjust gradually to each other and function as an integral unit.

by the law of supply and demand. In four weather, a sub-par engine demands more voltage to fire and the supply is generally lower. If you want to avoid those long waits for starting help on a cold or rainy day. Champion Spark Plug Company has some advice for you. And it's not move to a warm, dry climate.

The best way to make certain your car starts every time this winter is to put and keep your engine in shape.

For the experienced car buff or mechanic the answer is simple: change filter inhenever you change oil without question. Why? There are three reasons:

1. A filter holds a quart of oil that does not drain with the five quart crankcase. An oil change without a filter change is thus only an 80% change, and the new oil is immediately

2. Car manufacturers' recommendations are for ideal conditions that seldom exist -sustained turnpite driving in dust-free regions with temperate climate. Stop-and-go short hop neighborhood driving is tough on engines since they never get hot enough.
Stop-and-go motorists should not only change oil filter at every oil change, they should also change oil more frequently. Warranties spell this all out under 'exceptions' but the sverage motorist is not reading the fine print.

3. Dirty oil really beats up an engine. Don't get carefess because you can't see the wear over 15,000, miles, changing oil every 2,000 miles. One set of cars had oil filters, the other identical set had no oil filters.

Results: filtered cars had 87% less main bearing weer; 93% less connecting rod bearing

With winter approaching motorists should check their tires and make sure their cars are prepared for the season's snow and lcy conditions.

Snow tires on the rear wheels with plenty of tread or added studs give the best assurance of safety and improved car performance.

Maintaining air pressure as recommended in the owner's manual remains vitally important everywhere. Also, it is important to remember that balding tires of any type increase the chances of skidding and cause a lack of steering and braking effectiveness.

Typically, the $4.00 filter doubles the cost of his oil change. Is it worth it? Or should he, as some car manufacturers suggest, change oil filter with every other oil change?

Readers Digest, in a report to consumers, answered the question this way.

"To protect your engine and your warranty, changing the oil filter frequently is important. The filter removes the heavy grit and dust that your engine has sucked in; eventually it gets clogged and can take no more.

If you change oil after 4,000 to 6,000 miles, it certainly pays to install a new filter each time. If you change oil after 4,000 to 6,000 miles, it certainly pays to install a new filter each second oil change."
