OCC Has Extension Classes

Life, science, business, English and psychology will be among the extension courses offered in the evenings and on Saturdays by the Orchard Ridge campus of Oakland Community College this winter.

Registration for the courses will be held in various locations beginning on Wednesday, Jan. 5.

Besides offering the classes on the Farmington campus, some of the classes are offered in local high schools including Southfield High School, 24675 Lahser, and Southfield Lathrup High School, 2400 W. 12 Mile.

REGISTRATION will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. on Jan. 13 and 16 at Southfield High School; on Jan. 10 to 11 and Jan. 17 in Southfield Lathrup High School; and daily on Jan. 5, 6 and 7 on the Orchard Ridge campus, 2500 Orchard Lake Rd., Farmington.

An introduction to psychology course will be offered from 1 to 3 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays in Southfield High School, and Mondays and Wednesdays in Birmingham Seaholm High School.

Non-credit courses offered at Southfield High School include the fundamentals of communication, music appreciation, introduction to law enforcement, urban and state politics, and mass media and society.

Art appreciation, child development, the fundamentals of speech and the foundation of natural and life sciences are among the offerings at Southfield Lathrup High School.

The courses offered at Orchard Ridge will meet on Saturdays and include basic drawing, the principles of geography, data processing, shorthand and an analysis of modern society.

A complete list of the course offerings is available from the Community Services office at Orchard Ridge.

New Short Courses At OCC

Michigan history and The Bible As Literature are among the new short courses to be offered by Oakland Community College this winter.

Registration for the short courses which begin as early as Jan. 13 and as late as Feb. 7 can be made by calling OCC's Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington.

Orchard Ridge will offer a course on Investment Fundamentals beginning Jan. 13 and a management seminar on Jan. 20.

Other courses offered by the college will be held in local high schools. These include courses in witchcraft, "Bread and Roses - a Study of Women's Liberation," cinematography, English for the foreign born, all held in Birmingham Seaholm High School.

A COURSE in officiating baseball and another in baseball coaching and managing will be offered in Troy High School and a Kundalini Yoga course will be in Birmingham Westchester Elementary School.

The length of the courses varies from six to 10 weeks.

The six-week Bible as literature course will be offered by the college for the first time. Instructor Melvin Merzon will delve into the impact of the Bible on all phases of Judeo-Christian ethic.

The course will examine the Book of Genesis, focusing on the significant human experiences which have formed the foundations of our cultural and literary heritage.

Merzon is a layman with broad experience in biblical studies.

Details and registration for all the courses can be obtained from Prentice Ryan, director of Community Services, at the Orchard Ridge campus.

Plymouth Through Bifocals

By FRED DELANO

JUST A WORD about the Rose Bowl, and then we'll turn again to James Henry Rossman. It makes a more sensible parlay than you may think, because every time the phone rang at my house Sunday it was to discuss one or the other, including word of Monday's special school board meeting.

Many friends who understand my pro-Michigan prejudice like to jibe at it good naturedly. After the Wolverines were upended by Stanford at Pasadena, I tried to answer their calls with points such as these:

Yes, Michigan did prove unquestionably that it is not the No. 1 football team in the country. Further, Stanford University, by defeating both Ohio State and Michigan within 366 days, demonstrated for all to see that the Big 10 is just another league and not the awesome power of yore.

As was said in the Mail & Observer of Oct. 13, "Michigan's pass defense is something less than perfect" and "Michigan (is) vulnerable through the air." Stanford also proved that Bo Schembechler is mortal, after all, but one way or another I assume that the university opened its classrooms, lecture halls and laboratories to students Monday morning. The learning process even may have been enhanced by Saturday's defeat.

NOW, ABOUT ROSSMAN. It will be some forum other than this that decides the rights and wrongs of the school board's charges against the man who until Dec. 13 was the highest salaried official in local government, but one aspect of this man's status here bugs me.

Every reference to Rossman which I hear concerns only the period which started when he took over as superintendent at the age of 51 in 1967. I don't think I've ever heard a word about the Rossman who bought the house at 837 General Drive, Plymouth, and lived there from age 20 through 32 (1936-47) while he spent 11 years in the Livonia school system as teacher, elementary school principal and then junior high principal.

Yet, he and wife Pauline, a former classmate at Lapeer County Normal, must have had neighbors, must have had local friends. They shopped in town, and borrowed money from Floyd Kehrl at the old Plymouth bank. Both sons were born while living here (one attending Starkweather), and the odds of probability tell me that some of his pupils from Livonia's Center, Stark and Newburgh schools of those days must now be adults living in Plymouth.

Paid $990 a year by Livonia when he started and $3,140 when he moved onward and upward in the world of education, Rossman padded his income by selling insurance locally and cars for a Ford dealership in Northville. It mystifies me that I never hear opinions whether he was a good guy or bad guy back then.

THERE'S ANOTHER THING that intrigues me in the Rossman background, although it's more a matter of curiosity than mystery. I find it interesting that although he has worked in six school systems (starting with Northville), and has studied at five universities since leaving Lapeer, Rossman never has lived outside Michigan. In the parlance of the race track, he has been bred, foaled and raced entirely in this one state.

Plymouthites like to think we live in a small town. In a comparative sense, we do, yet last June the graduating class at PHS had a roster of more than 600. When Jim Rossman graduated from Metamora High School in 1934, he was valedictorian in a class of nine!

He grew up as a farm boy, walked several miles to school in the traditional American fashion, married a girl from the same environment, went to Wayne, Eastern, Western, U. of M. and MSU after county normal, and one day was elected president of the Michigan Association of School Administrators.

This is not a brief for Jim Rossman, who becomes as displeased with some of the things I write as often as you do. Or, may I add, as often as those you elected to the Board of Education. Most simply stated, it's only a review of a couple matters I don't understand.

If I had been born in Metamora 57 days before Rossman, instead of in Dowagiac as I was on that date, I would be wondering where the local boy who made good missed his signals, and why.

Doubt Schultz Death Hit-Run

By EDWARD WENDOVER

A State Police Crime Laboratory investigation of the death of 15-year-old Craig Schultz has failed to produce any evidence that would tend to show the youth's mishap was a hit-and-run accident.

The youth was found lying in the intersection of Blunk and Blanche streets Dec. 23. Exactly how he received his fatal head injuries or how he came to be lying in the intersection that night has not been determined, according to police.

SUSPICION that the Central Junior High School student was the victim of a hit-and-run accident was ended by the State Police Crime Lab investigation, which found no alien substance (such as car paint) on the boy's bicycle or clothing.

Although the death certificate classified the death as "bicyclist struck by auto," the Plymouth police, State Police and the Wayne County Medical Examiner's office have been unable to find any clue that would verify that.

Dr. Taisja Tworek, interim chief county medical examiner, told Plymouth police the death was "possibly caused by a fall."

PLYMOUTH POLICE Chief Timothy Ford said police have been investigating the mishap as a hit-and-run accident and asked for anyone witnessing it to come forward. Thus far, no one has responded to that plea.

The youth was found lying in the intersection about 10 p.m. by a woman who was driving by, police reports indicate. She stopped and ran up to a nearby house to summon police while the resident of the house ran outside with a blanket to help the boy.

While first reports indicated that the boy's bike was found on top of his legs, new information shows the bike was between his legs, Ford said. Ford said the investigation of the mishap is continuing.

Luncheon Set By Newcomers At Church Site

The first meeting of the Plymouth Newcomers Club of 1972 will be a noon luncheon Thursday, Jan. 13 in the First United Methodist Church, 680 Church.

Reservations must be made by noon of Jan. 11, and cost of the luncheon will be $1.50. Handling reservations are Mrs. Salvatore Cavallaro (names A through K) and Mrs. Ronald Charles (L-Z). Baby-sitting service will be available at the church and may be arranged by calling Mrs. Donald MacIsaac.

WARMWATER FISH REGULATIONS STATEWIDE

The Natural Resources Commission, under Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended, rescinds the order of September 5, 1968, and orders that for a period of five years beginning October 15, 1969, it shall be unlawful to catch or attempt to take in any manner the following named species except during the open seasons prescribed and within the maximum daily limits designated:

Statewide open seasons on all waters not otherwise closed to fishing shall be from May 30th through December 31st on largemouth and smallmouth bass; May 15th through all of February on walleye, sauger, northern pike, and muskellunge (including tiger muskellunge). The size limit on sauger will be 13 inches. The daily possession limit shall be five singly or in combination for largemouth and smallmouth bass, walleye, sauger and northern pike; one for muskellunge (including tiger muskellunge), and ten for white bass.

The above regulations apply except that walleye, muskellunge and northern pike may be taken in that upper portion of Lake Huron known as Whitney Bay, Pike Bay, Island Harbor, Les Cheneaux Channels, Potagannissing Bay, and certain waters on the south side of Drummond Island from May 1st through March 31st of each year; that bass may not be taken on Lake St. Clair, St. Clair and Detroit rivers before the last Saturday in June of each year; and that muskellunge in Lake St. Clair, St. Clair and Detroit rivers may be taken only from the first Saturday in June through December 15th of each year.

Approved September 19, 1969.

GREAT LAKES AND CONNECTING WATERS TROUT AND SALMON REGULATIONS

The Natural Resources Commission at its meeting on September 4, 1970, under authority of Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended, and Act 165, P.A. 1929, as amended, orders that for a period of three years beginning January 1, 1971, no person shall catch or attempt to take any species of trout or salmon from any waters of the Great Lakes or connecting waters except with hook and line within the minimum size limits and maximum daily limits prescribed below or as may be otherwise provided by law.

All species of trout and salmon may be taken at any time. The size limit will be ten inches with a daily limit of five singly or in combination.

Approved September 4, 1970.

Publish: January 5, 1972.

Plymouth Brevities

GLENVIEW SUBDIVISION residents had their own home decorating contest during the holidays and the winners were Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Hill of 12910 Drury Lane. The judges were two Plymouth Township officials, Treasurer Elizabeth Holmes and Clerk Helen Richardson.

Honorable mention went to the Hyatts of 12975 LeBlanc, the Taches of 13031 McClumpha and the Sincooks of 46777 Betty Hill. The winner received a Christmas gift basket from Johnny's Penman Market. The contest was sponsored by the Glenview Homeowners Association.

TRI - COUNTY citizens for Intervention in Federal School Action No. 35257 will have a progress meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in Walled Lake Western High School.

Atty. Robert Lord of Warren will speak on the topic, "Are the suburbs entitled to a fair school desegregation trial?" The organization is still engaged in a membership drive throughout Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties.

NORMAN GAFFNEY, who will observe his first anniversary as Plymouth's city manager Thursday, has received a number of complimentary letters from officials of other governments praising the annual report booklet which was sent to all households.

City Manager Frank Ollendorff of Northville said, "It is one of the best such reports I have seen." Asst. School Supt. for Business Melvin Blunk commented,

"Not only is the report well organized but it is most gratifying to know that the City of Plymouth is well organized."

MORORISTS who are frequent users of Sheldon Rd. at the north city limits were given a Christmas present of sorts by the C&O Railroad.

The divisional manager of the C&O has seen to it that the rail crossing at Sheldon, which was about the bumpiest in town, has been smoothed enough so that it no longer is a threat to axles.

AMONG THE 1,124 Ferris State College students who were honored for scholastic excellence during the fall quarter were two from Plymouth.

They were Robert K. Grubb of 636 Jener, who is majoring in education, and Edward T. Scott of 416 Evergreen, a business major.

Majer's Basic Training Ends

PLYMOUTH Pvt. Manfred S. Majer, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Majer, 235 Garling Drive, Plymouth, recently completed eight weeks of basic training at the U.S. Army Training Center, Armor, Ft. Knox, Ky. He received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, combat tactics, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Majer was graduated from Plymouth High School in 1970 and was employed by Borman Inc., in Detroit, before entering the Army.

$4.2 Million Given In Crime Grants

Detroit, Livonia and Wayne County are in line for a total of $4.2 million in federal omnibus crime control funds under the latest approvals by the Michigan Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

Fourteen separate grants for agencies within Wayne County were approved at the December meeting of the state commission.

Wayne County agencies will receive seven grants totaling nearly $2.5 million and Detroit agencies will get three grants amounting to $1.48 million.

In addition, Highland Park will receive $100,900 through three grants, and Livonia is in line for one grant of $100,640 for a community service of officers program.

THE LARGEST grants were $750,000 for construction of a reception and medical diagnostic center at the Wayne County Jail, $1.2 million for a heroin addicts rehabilitation program and $1,280,200 for a Detroit police emergency communications system.

The heroin addicts program will be operated by the Detroit-Wayne County Community Mental Health Services Board. The board also got $132,109 to finance the drug addicts recovery program of Project SHAR.

Other grants to Wayne County agencies were: $174,750 to the prosecutor's office for emergency prosecutors; $125,300 to Wayne County Intermediate School District for drug abuse education; $60,000 for continuation of Recorder's Court pre-trial release program; and $37,500 to the University of Detroit Law Clinic.

Detroit grants included a $188,700 grant for minority police recruitment and a $12,600 outlay for a Police Department legal adviser intern program.

The Highland Park police were granted $25,000 for a crime prevention unit and $28,200 for in-service training. In addition, Highland Park will cooperate with Wayne State University in a teacher-student criminal justice education program under a $47,700 grant.

THE $4.2 MILLION-worth of grants to agencies in Wayne County was the largest amount of omnibus crime funds ever awarded at one time in Michigan. It brings the total awarded for programs in the county to $13,089,091 since the start of the Federal Omnibus Crime Control program in 1968.

"Agencies in Wayne County have received 45 per cent of the funds granted since the start of the program in Michigan," noted County Commissioner Eugene A. Sikora, of Detroit, executive chairman of the Detroit-Wayne County Criminal Justice Coordinating Council. He added: "This shows a gratifying recognition at the state and federal levels of the immense problems faced by the urban areas in law enforcement, criminal justice and drug abuse."

DR. PASQUALE BUONICONTO (left front), medical superintendent of Wayne County Child Development Center on Sheldon Rd., accepts a $900 gift certificate from the employees of the materials control department of Chevrolet. The money will be used to purchase arts and crafts materials for the 300 children in residence at the center. This is the second successive year in which the materials control department has made such a donation, a fact which has drawn special praise from Dr. Buoniconito.

Cut Law School Time To 3 Years, Panel Says

Law schools should re-evaluate their curricula and consider reducing the time requirement for a professional law degree from three years to two, a report by a group of legal educators suggests.

They also suggest changes that would break down traditional "authoritarian" roles of law professors and enhance student creativity and initiative.

The 250-page report, financed through a grant from the Ford Foundation, was compiled by the curriculum study project committee of the Association of American Law Schools (AALS).

PAUL D. CARRINGTON, a University of Michigan law professor who headed the study, observes that many of the committee's suggestions will be viewed as "radical."

A major feature of the report is a recommendation that law schools "should free themselves of received dogmas, such as the conception that all graduates must be trained for omniscience, or that the first degree in law can be awarded only after three years of law study."

Specifically, the report suggests:

- That law schools offer a "standard curriculum" under which students would be admitted after three years of undergraduate training and could qualify for a professional law degree after two years of study. Currently, law schools require four years of undergraduate work and three years at law school for a professional law degree. The new proposal would thus reduce the total time requirement for the law degree from seven years to five.
- That an "advanced curriculum" be offered for specialized study beyond the initial law degree for students seeking extraordinary competence in particular fields and for students pursuing careers in teaching and research.
- That an "open curriculum" be made available to students who simply wish to learn more about the law or who seek training that would qualify them for the allied legal professions of advocacy and counseling. After one year of study, an M.A. degree would be awarded.
- That a system be established allowing students to finance their legal education through deferred payments, with tuition fees being charged against future professional income.

ON STUDENT-FACULTY relations, the report recommends team teaching, increased use of students as teachers and other approaches that would enhance student initiative and break down the traditional "authoritarian" role of law professors.

"The teacher would be less of an authority and more a resource, while the student would become more a captain of his own fate," the report states.

"One need not accept some of the more acerbic comments on the alleged tyranny of law professors in order to recognize the possibility that the traditional relation between law students and teachers is one which has tended to reinforce such aggressive, authoritarian and dependent traits as may be present in those choosing careers in law."

"It has long been somewhat paradoxical that law teachers have proclaimed democratic values from autocratic roles."

THE REPORT'S suggestion for a two-year law program, if approved, would reverse a practice that has been followed by law schools since the late 1800s. The three-year program was formally endorsed by the American Bar Association in 1921.

The report stresses that all the professions—including the law—"need to be led away from what has become an 'academic credentials race' that is increasingly costly to the public."

"Somehow, the impulse to collect academic funeral beads for whole professional groups must be contained. A trend which sends prospective plumbers into the intricacies of hydraulic engineering in order to qualify to perform a change of washers has to be corrected."

Crime Board Secrecy Hit

Wayne County Commissioner Paul Silver has strongly criticized the decision of the Detroit-Wayne County Criminal Justice System Coordinating Council to bar the press and public from its meetings.

He charged that the council lacks authority to hold closed meetings and declared that "if the Coordinating Council does not hold its meetings in public, the Board of Commissioners should give serious consideration to pulling out of the council."

The city-county body was established by concurrent resolutions of the County Board of Commissioners and the Detroit Common Council last March to process applications for Federal Omnibus Crime Control funds for consideration by the two local legislative bodies.

Lansing Wins Schoolcraft Tourney

By TOM DONOGHUE
Observer Sports Editor

Lansing Community College captured the second annual Schoolcraft Invitational Christmas basketball tournament with a 99-95 win over Kalamazoo Valley.

Lansing defeated Washtenaw in the first round, 132-74, and Schoolcraft fell to Kalamazoo Valley, 116-103. Schoolcraft bounced back in the consolation round to topple Washtenaw, 81-70, with Desmond Denham popping in 34 points.

In the championship clash, Lansing fought to a 48-41 halftime lead and hung on in the closing seconds to edge Kalamazoo Valley, 99-95.

LANSING had four players in double figures with LaMont Crawley Pacing the attack with 30 points. He had 24 the night before in the first round match with Washtenaw.

Rounding out the scoring was Bob Rehmann with 26, Dan DeMartin with 20 and Jerry Pecora with 15.

Eddie Wadsworth and Chris Knapp led Kalamazoo with 21 and 20 points respectively.

Lansing barreled over Washtenaw in the first round, 132-74, with DeMartin hitting on 14 field goals and nine from the line for 37 points.

Schoolcraft, winners of the 1970 Christmas Tournament, lost its opening match against Kalamazoo, 116-103. Kalamazoo jumped to a 20 point halftime lead, 64-44, and forced Schoolcraft into playing catch-up basketball.

SCHOOLCRAFT came on strong in the second half, outscoring Kalamazoo, 59-52, but the first half deficit proved too much for the Ocelots.

Four players hit the double figure scoring mark for Schoolcraft with Denham hitting 25 and John Jetchick 24. Roy Young and K.C. Jones each contributed 16 points to the Ocelot cause.

Kalamazoo Valley was paced by Chris Knapp who pumped in 34 points.

SCHOOLCRAFT spurred to a 39-33 halftime lead and went on to defeat Washtenaw, 81-70, in the consolation contest.

Denham paced the Ocelot scoring attack with 34 points followed by Wally Suchara with 14, Jones with 13 and Jetchick with 11. Jeff Jonson and Wes Gall led Washtenaw scorers with 24 and 17 points respectively.

Schoolcraft stands at 5-5 overall and 2-0 in the Eastern Division of the NJCAC. The two wins include a 113-106 victory over Albion Hills and a 89-78 win over Highland Lakes.

There are 10 more league games on tap for Tom Roncoli's squad including a Highland Park clash tonight (Wednesday) at Highland Park.

Denham is pacing the squad with a 22.6 scoring average, hitting a 50.6 per cent from the floor and 66.6 per cent from the line.

JONES is second in scoring with a 14.7 average followed by Jetchick with a 14.5 mark. Denham also leads the Ocelots in rebounding with a 68 total in 10 games.

Bentley Meets Plymouth

Area Cagers Return To Action

The prep basketball season gets back into full swing Friday with Observerland cagers taking part in 16 clashes. League battles highlight the action with area teams playing in three Northwest Suburban games and three Inter-Lakes contests.

John Glenn travels to North Farmington with a 2-0 league record while the Raiders sit at the bottom of the conference with 0-2.

Franklin, 1-1, goes to Oak Park and the Redskins are coming off a 57-56 upset by Groves Franklin was toppled over the holidays by Garden City East, 57-54.

Birmingham Groves and Thurston each hold a 1-1 record and will clash on the Thurston court in another Northwest Suburban battle. Each has managed only one win this season... Groves stands at 1-3 with a 57-56 win over Oak Park and Thurston at 1-5 with an upset win over Franklin, 75-60.

INTER-LAKES play pits unbeaten Walled Lake Central against Farmington. Each team stands 2-0 in league play and the Falcons will have their work cut out for them on the Central court. Central captured the Northwest Holiday basketball crown in a 63-55 win over Bentley.

Farmington dropped Redford in the holiday clash but lost to Bentley and Walled Lake Western.

Stevenson travels to Waterford in another Inter-Lakes contest and the up-and-down Spartans stand at 1-1 in league play and 3-3 overall after dropping the holiday tournament to Plymouth, 50-46.

Southfield Lathrup hosts Pontiac Northern and the Chargers' 1-4 record shows a lone win over Kimball, 71-52.

SUBURBAN EIGHT action pits Bentley against rival Plymouth and the Rocks are on a three-game winning streak after dropping their first three. Plymouth captured its holiday tourney over Stevenson while Bentley lost its holiday crown to Walled Lake Central.

Bentley stands 5-2 overall and 1-1 in league play. Plymouth has lost only four league games in four years... three of the losses have been to Bentley.

Redford Union hosts Dearborn in a Suburban Eight clash. The Panthers sit 1-1 in conference play, and were 2-1 in the holiday tourney with the loss being to Walled Lake Central.

WESTERN SIX play pits Churchill at Waterford Mott and Harrison at Walled Lake Western. Churchill is 5-1 overall and Harrison is on a two game winning streak after dropping its first three clashes.

Birmingham Seaholm travels to Southfield in an JEM conference battle and the Blue Jays are even in league play with a win over Ferndale and a loss to Kimball. Garden City West plays at Southgate in a Tri-River dual and the Tigers stand 2-1 in league play with wins over Crestwood and Schafer and a loss to Melvindale.

CLARENCEVILLE cagers play at Kettering and the Trojans sit at 4-0, after a 3-1 record last year.

Catholic League action shows St. Agatha (4-2) at Our Lady of Lourdes, Bishop Borgess (2-3) at Cabrini, and U-D at Brother Rice (4-0).

The number one team in Observerland ratings, Garden City East, (5-0) does not play Friday but returns to the court Tuesday to host Dearborn Annapolis.

RU Hosting Annual Wrestling Tourney

Area high school grapplers will be in the limelight Saturday as Redford Union hosts its fourth annual wrestling invitational.

Eight schools will be competing in the Jan. 8 matchup with preliminaries set for noon and finals scheduled for 7 p.m.

Farmington, John Glenn, Redford Union and Thurston stack up as the favorites with Harrison, North Farmington, Northville, and Southfield also in the running.

Glenn captured last year's invitational and is undefeated in dual meets this season in addition to a first place in the Wayne Memorial Invitational. Thurston and Redford Union are also undefeated in dual meets with RU crowned champion in the Walled Lake Take-Down tournament.

North Farmington took first place in the 1970 invitational and RU won the kickoff in 1968.

Farmington placed ninth of 32 schools in the Oakland County Christmas tournament after upsetting Kimball in dual meet action.

Medals will be awarded to the first three places in each weight class with the first place team receiving a trophy.

Total sound is the full impact... distortion-free sound. You can play this Speaker System at full volume and you will consistently enjoy the pleasure of complete musical definition of instruments, natural presence and perfect musical balance.

Begin with the strength and fidelity of the bass notes... they're reproduced by the powerful woofer incorporating a rolled free-edge cone. Here is the efficient long cone excursion necessary for faithful reproduction of the low frequencies.

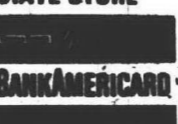

Brilliance and purity of sound are the hallmark of this system's powerful high frequency driver and wide dispersion reproducer.

A completely airtight enclosure provides an "air cushion" which damps out the speaker's natural tendency to continue vibrating once it is set in motion. Compliance of the air permits the speaker cone to move forward and backward, but returns the cone to its natural position once the cycle is completed. Since the air has little mass, it has no audible effect on the sound, its purpose is to eliminate inertial vibration, harmonics and distortion which otherwise would alter the sound from the original. This system offers theoretically perfect acoustic dimensioning and a completely airtight seal. Front and back baffles are permanently sealed with a special epoxy and the speakers are gasketed to insure an efficient and airtight acoustic suspension.

Churchill Places 2nd Prep Schedule

The Churchill wrestling squad, which hasn't won in dual meet competition this season, captured second in the Dearborn Annapolis Invitational with a total score of 43.

Annapolis took first place honors in the four-team tournament with 84 points. Melvindale placed behind Churchill with a 37½ point output while Lutheran West trailed with 34.

The Chargers wrestled to three second places and nine third place finishes.

Junior John Hesse placed third in the 98 lb. class with a 13-1 win over Tom Chabot of Melvindale. Churchill's Pat Mullin earned third by way of a bye after being pinned by Brent Gillum of Lutheran West, in the 105 lb. class.

Gary Autten of Melvindale pinned Bill Mills in overtime of the first match, but Mills came back to outscore Les Toth, 2-0, in the 112 lb. category.

Annapolis' Dan Tomczyk pinned Churchill's Nick Stroyan in the 119 lb. class with Stroyan placing third via bye. Charger Bob Rose took third in the 126 lb. match after a pin by Annapolis' Mike Jentz.

JUNIOR RICK BOEHMS defeated Scott Graton of Annapolis in the 132 lb. bracket, 12-0. Boehms was defeated by Melvindale's Mike Moore, in the second round 6-0.

Paul Drouillard of Annapolis pinned Dave Stobbe of Churchill in the opening round and Stobbe came back to outscore Milt Kennedy of Lutheran West, 4-1, in the 138 lb. class.

Churchill's Rick Stowers downed Melvindale's Bob Bell, 7-2, in the 145 lb. class but lost in the finals to Keith Andrews of Annapolis.

Bruce Tromi of Lutheran West pinned Charger Mike Martz in the 155 lb. category and Martz defeated Melvindale's Mark Morris in the second round to capture a third.

IN THE 167 LB. CLASS, Terry Driscoll pinned Lutheran West's Russ Gazdag but was pinned himself in the second round by Chuck Morse of Annapolis. Sophomore Mike Zakerski of Churchill was pinned by Ray Howell of Melvindale in the 185 lb. class but wrestled back to pin Doug Blair of Lutheran West for a third place finish.

Churchill's heavy weight, Chuck Stabbe, was pinned in the first matchup by Annapolis' Richard Welroch and managed a third in a 18-2 score over Marc Cederwall of Lutheran West.

Churchill travels to Northville for a meet Thursday.

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

Michigan's first around the calendar harness racing campaign opened Saturday (New Year's Day) at Northville Downs as Jackson Raceway opened a 25 - night session . . . and it was a successful opener.

During the two weeks that Windsor Raceway had the only game in operation, the nightly handle climbed as much as $200,000 and the turnstile count mounted by as many as 2,000 more. But that appears to have ended with the Jackson - Northville meet underway.

For instance on Saturday, Jackson - Northville was well over the $300,000 mark but trailed Windsor by something like $18,000.

That alone wasn't too bad but President and General Manager Leon Slavin feels the handle would have been higher than Windsor if had more mutual clerks available.

Apparently many decided to skip the opening night and sit in front of the TV sets to watch the Rose and Orange Bowl contests. As it was Slavin reports he had to close down half of one mutual line for lack of clerks.

"We probably would have had one of our biggest nights," he said, "But we decided to go along with our normal program for scheduling races rather than lengthen the times between events. We owe our public that much and even if it was costly we followed our normal pattern and took the licking. It won't happen again. . . we'll have plenty of help for the remainder of the 25 nights."

THE NEW RACING surface at Northville is doing everything that Executive Manager John Carlo predicted. Although it will take some time before the slag surface is pounded into top shape; the track is much faster, much firmer and the horses are clocking much better times.

Most certainly it is much better than the heavy muddy going in early December when the times were between 2:24 and 2:30. Most races, since the start of the winter meeting, are between 2:08 and 2:12 and Carlo figures that the slowest time will be 2:10 before many more nights.

"This newly designed slag surface will be better than limestone once the track is pounded down," he said, "It is a comparatively new concept but it appears to be the answer. We may have to place down additional slag and sand but right now I'd have to say that most of our problems about the track have been resolved."

Ski Heil

By BILL CAMERON

How does one fall in love with a ski area in less than 24 hours. Simple. If you love skiing and are looking for a mountain that has everything - beginner, intermediate and expert runs - ballroom skiing, trails, bowls, breathtaking runs, moguls - head for Vail, Colorado.

Or maybe you just like the atmosphere of a neat, compact, ski village with lovely shops, great restaurants and friendly people. Head for Vail.

I'M A VETERAN European skier - Zermatt, Davos, Kitzbuhl, St. Antoine, Val d'Isere, Courcheval - all the well known ski areas.

My favorite among all of them for skiing, scenery, etc. has been Zermatt, and I finally found the one area that reminded me of that picturesque mountain town. All that was missing was the Matterhorn.

One thing that Zermatt is noted for is the absence of automobiles. It can only be reached by train. Of course you can drive to Vail but the layout of the village is such that the location of many of the shops and restaurants is around several streets blocked off to traffic.

This, plus the presence of several hotels and restaurants operated and staffed by Europeans give Vail a European atmosphere.

You can be fooled by the runs visible from the town but they only represent 1-10th of the skiable area. You have to take one of the gondolas or chairlifts up the mountain and at the top you're treated to a panorama that matches any ski area in the world.

Not only is it a great winter resort, but I'm told it's more beautiful in the summer and developing into an outstanding summer vacation area. I'm looking forward to returning as soon as possible.

The snow conditions at Mt. Brighton are very good according to Gene Hill, so I am looking forward to Ladies Ski Day tomorrow. We'll leave from the "Y" at 9:15 a.m. or meet you there at 10 a.m. Dress warmly and bring your sense of humor.

And don't forget the Livonia Ski Skule Thursday and Friday nights. Call the Livonia Parks and Recreation Department for further information.

THE SPORTY LOOK AND FEEL of a new Moto-Ski Cadet can now be yours at this reduced low price of only $595 plus freight and tax

This is the newest Moto-Ski. Beautifully styled, exactly engineered. It's lighter than the full size machines. So it turns easier, handles easier. Like a sportscar. But just because it's compact doesn't mean it's not equipped. The Cadet comes with a BSE 247 cc. engine and an optional electric starter. It has lights front and rear, reflectors on the side and rear, a safety strap, an emergency shut-off switch and front and rear bumpers. The Cadet is a Moto-Ski all the way. With a track of rubberized steel cleats. A handy primer for easier starts. And all the features that make Moto-Ski outstanding. On top of that it costs less. A lot less.

Philodendron Is Durable House Plant

Philodendrons grow better than most other house plants under the adverse conditions in modern houses, according to a Michigan State University horticulturist.

The plants generally thrive in filtered light. Philodendrons require a relatively warm location (65-70 degrees). The soil mixture should be well drained and uniformly moist. A relatively high humidity is recommended, Carlson said.

Philodendrons thrive in pots and tubs that are well drained and not too large for the size of the plant.

Amateur Remodelers Get Helpful Advice

An amateur home remodeler can add to the living space of a house without making structural changes in it.

For example, the basement, attic and garage are easy to convert. Often little more is necessary than installing a good floor, finishing the walls and ceiling and adding proper lighting fixtures.

But the Better Floors Council cautions novice remodelers to be careful of two things: First, be sure the products you buy are suitable for do-it-yourself installation. The council believes that the easiest flooring for non-professional installers to handle is adhesive-backed vinyl asbestos tile. The installation procedure is so simple women and teenagers do it with no trouble. One other point in its favor: since vinyl asbestos tile in homes generally lasts 20 to 25 years, it adds considerably to the value - current and resale - of the house. Some manufacturers even provide guarantees on the life of the tile.

Second, before you buy any materials for the project, check the local building code to see if permits are needed. Codes vary from community to community but generally a building permit is needed wherever structural work is involved or where storage space is converted to living space. If you are remodeling the garage and adding a carport, be sure the latter is the right distance from the street, sidewalk and sides of your property, or you may have to tear it down because it violates zoning regulations.

Keep Holiday Plants Moist

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

House plant care: Those plants you receive for the holidays will give you a lot more mileage, especially if you see that they get a uniform supply of moisture.

Let's start with the poinsettia. This plant likes plenty of light, a day temperature of around 72 degrees F. and not less than 60 degrees at night. Drooping of leaves is a common complaint now, and is caused by poor light, high temperature, too much water, not enough water or drafts. Cold draft is the plant's worst enemy.

Some of the newer varieties are vigorous growers and have to be watered two or three times a day in the home. Avoid any practice that injures the roots such as overwatering, heavy feeding, or breaking roots when transplanting. Don't be surprised if your plant lasts all summer.

THE FLORIST'S or greenhouse azalea makes a good show around the holidays and after. Azaleas like an acid soil, so if you happen to live in a hard water area, keep in mind that hard water rapidly lessens the acidity each time you water your azaleas. To overcome this, you can use rain water, or water that has been boiled for a few minutes and allowed to cool.

If this is not possible, apply a pinch of alum or 1/4 teaspoon of dusting sulfur to the surface of the soil every three weeks. Vinegar is good for azaleas, one teaspoon to a quart of water, applied two or three times a month.

Azaleas need lots of moisture and a bright window, even after they have flowered. After blooming, keep plant moist (never dried out), then in May put in a sunny window.

When shirt-sleeve weather comes, put the plant, pot and all, in a shady spot in the garden. Prune back any leggy shoots until July, so you'll have a nice bushy plant. As for the soil use pure peat moss or a mixture of sand and peat. Florists use 100 per cent peat.

VARIEGATED Euonymus: We're all familiar with so-called evergreen bittersweet (which is actually Euonymus radicans vegetus - to me far prettier than the real bitter sweet), but did you know there's a variegated type, with green and white leaves?

GREEN THUMB BONUS: Still dreaming about landscaping your home? Better send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for my illustrated booklet, "Tips on Landscaping." This booklet was made by nurserymen for home gardeners, and you should have a copy for your Green Thumb Library. Be sure to enclose a No. 10 envelope for your copy.

Suburbs See Liquor As Tax Base Tool

An Observer Roundup

Suburbia's population growth brought a powerful new money-raising tool to local government because of the 1970 census.

The cities and townships of Observerland are eligible for one new "tabletop" liquor license for every 1,500 new persons in town.

A team of Observer Newspapers reporters surveyed local government policies and generally found:

Local officials are in no rush to issue all the licenses they have been authorized. They will get no more until the 1980 census, and they want to issue the new ones gradually.

Most units will insist that the applicant make a substantial investment — in one case the policy is at least $400,000 — before a license will be issued. A fine dining establishment, perhaps connected with a hotel, stands a good chance. This produces more tax revenues.

Most officials say they have enough of the neighborhood bars and watering spots where industrial workers can stop for a shot and beer after the shift, though the officials rarely define what "enough" is.

LIQUOR LICENSES are issued by the state Liquor Control Commission with the approval of the local city council or township board.

Although a local unit is eligible for an additional license for every 1,500 persons, the governing body is under no obligation to issue them all — ever. Indeed, the City of Plymouth, under pressure from churchmen and "drys," has set an arbitrary limit at less than its legal maximum.

"Tabletop" licenses come in three general categories: (A) Hotel, which allows room service; (B) tavern, for beer and wine by the glass; and (C) liquor-by-the-glass.

By local option, a city or township may do without liquor-by-the-glass, though in practice none in Observerland do so. The City of Plymouth, the last dry area, voted in favor of LBG in the mid-1960s.

Here is a rundown on the local governments whose liquor licenses were most affected by the new census:

LIVONIA — With a population of 110,000, this city, now one of the state's 10 largest, saw its authorization increase from the 1960 level of 44 to 73 today; however as of today only 30 licenses have been issued.

With no downtown in the traditional sense, the sprawling Livonia has nothing that could be called an entertainment strip. Its character may change, however, with the arrival of freeways in the Haggerty Road and Schoolcraft corridors in mid-decade.

Each town gets one new liquor license for every 1,500 gained in the census. But city councils and township boards are taking their time about issuing them.

The city has built up a list of more than 150 applicants over the years, according to Clerk Addison Bacon, but many will be eliminated for failing to pursue their requests.

There is no formal policy of requiring a substantial investment, but councilmen do consider this factor.

WESTLAND — This fast-growing area saw its population rise from 57,700 to nearly 87,000 and its tabletop authorizations from 37 to 58.

Only 35 have been issued, leaving a whopping 23 available.

In recent years, the city council has issued licenses only to well-established restaurants, such as J.L. Hudson's and Beauchamps in the Westland Shopping Center, or to established businessmen with going concerns, such as the Over 21 Club atop the Quo Vadis theater complex.

SOUTHFIELD — With a population officially just below the 70,000 mark, Southfield isn't really a suburb any more. Regional planners point out that the population center of the entire six-county southeastern Michigan region is on the south end of Southfield, and its great numbers of corporate and professional offices would fool any newcomer into thinking that it's a "central city."

The city has issued 20 licenses, and the new census has made it eligible for 26 more, for a total of 46. Fifty applicants are waiting.

But Clerk Patrick Flannery says frankly the city is opposed to shot-and-beer operations: "You might say the council uses liquor licenses as a 'club' to force developers into putting plenty of money into their hotel or restaurant." Places who want to feature "go-go" dancers are wasting their time with the Southfield council, he adds.

Getting serious consideration are a Landmark Hotel at Telegraph and I-696 and a new 17-story hotel near Northland.

REDFORD TOWNSHIP — With a population of nearly 72,000 the largest community in America still using the township form of government saw its population increase less than 1,000 since the last census and can expect nothing new in the way of authorizations.

Redford has 26 licensed establishments (and four private clubs, which aren't figured into that total), and Clerk Ruth Sullivan was uncertain what the township's eligibility actually is. (The Observer calculates it at about 47, giving it 21 to go).

There is little activity on this front. Most requests have been for transfers in the past year or so. The only new licenses in recent years were granted to a Howard Johnson motel on Grand River and Anchor Inn in the W. Chicago-Telegraph shopping center.

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — This high income area saw its population nearly double — from just over 25,000 to nearly 47,000. Consequently, its authorized liquor licenses increased from 16 to 31.

Three new ones were issued between April and June of 1971 alone, and 11 remain.

Township policy is that the applicant must either own his site already or have a definite option to purchase. His investment must be at least $400,000. Most applicants come in with a higher amount — some as much as $1 million.

Supervisor Earl Teeple says there are enough bars to meet the needs of blue collar workers.

CITY OF FARMINGTON — This older city of 10,000 — plus gained only one license as a result of the 1970 census for a total of seven.

It has been allocated for a motel-restaurant to be built in the vicinity of Grand River and Halstead. There is no formal policy, but the general agreement is that there are enough neighborhood bars, and there should be a substantial investment.

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP — Percentage-wise, this township had one of the fastest growth rates in the entire region, its population more than doubling — from 8,400 to nearly 17,500.

Seven licenses have been issued, and 11 are permissible. With a great industrial growth potential and with profound changes coming due to the M-14 freeway extension and the new I-96, the township board is playing it cool.

Top-notch places have the best chance of getting the four remaining. Thunderbird Inn already has one, but there are plans to add a Hilton Hotel there. If that hotel wants to have a bar, it would be a likely first choice.

There has been talk for some years about a Holiday Inn in the Haggerty corridor freeway and Ann Arbor Road. The manager of Hilltop Golf Course would like a license, but the ownership is in an estate plan.

CITY OF PLYMOUTH — This older city's population grew from 8,800 to 11,750 during the 1960s, but the state's legal authorization mean little because of intense local emotions.

Before voters approved liquor-by-the-glass in 1966, the city commission promised it wouldn't allow more than three licenses, although five were allowable at the time. Those three were the Box Bar, the Mayflower Hotel and the Meeting House, all within a stone's throw of each other.

The new census raised the city's allowance to seven, and the fourth license went to Harb's restaurant behind the post office. No new applications are pending, and it would take a major new hotel or restaurant to tempt the city into issuing No. 5.

Development of the University of Michigan-Dearborn as a major state university campus has broad educational and cultural benefits to western Wayne County residents, says UM-Dearborn's new chancellor, Leonard E. Goodall.

Speaking at the Inkster Rotary Club, the UM-Dearborn chancellor noted that the western and downriver areas of Wayne County are well represented in UM-D's first freshman class, and should continue to provide large numbers of students to the expanding campus.

"One thing that impresses a person entering higher education in metropolitan Detroit," said Goodall, "is the under-colleged nature of the area."

"I doubt there is another metropolitan area in the country with so few campuses. What the area does have are outstanding, but the need for expansion is obvious," he added.

"THE NEED for expanded capacity is particularly apparent in the western tier of Wayne County. There is an enormous gap between the major campuses within the city limits of Detroit and the educational complexes at Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti."

"It is within this broad and rapidly growing geographical corner of the state that UM-Dearborn can provide educational opportunities to university-bound students," said Goodall.

The 12-year-old campus, situated near the Rouge River between Ford Road and Michigan Avenue, is undergoing a transformation from a relatively small, two-year upperclass institution, to a full, four-year campus with diversified undergraduate and graduate programs.

"Many parents today are concerned about their children's college education. Not the least of these concerns is financial. Development of urban campuses such as UM-Dearborn is one means in which a major university is attempting to provide greater service and benefits to taxpayers," said the UM-D chancellor.

GOODALL NOTED that approximately 50 per cent of UM-D's freshman group are graduates of western Wayne county high schools.

Addition of first-year students pushed UM-Dearborn's enrollment to 1,369, a 50 per cent increase over the previous semester. This increase comes at a time when many campuses are experiencing enrollment decreases, Goodall added.

"The trend of state universities toward multi-campus systems, with emphasis in urban areas, is a significant development in higher education today. States such as California, Illinois and Wisconsin have found this approach to provide a maximum return to both the student and the taxpayer," Goodall added. "As we move toward a projected student body of 10,000 students in 1980, one of the major thrusts will be toward developing a truly urban campus, providing educational opportunities to a diverse student population that includes students from middleclass backgrounds, minority group students (blacks, Chicanos and American Indians), and students from blue-collar backgrounds.

"Those from the latter two categories are often first-generation college students, who see a college degree as a valuable asset in their professional development."

"THIS DIVERSITY of the student body, or heterogeneity," Goodall maintained, "is the very heart of today's urban campus. The urban campus should reflect that characteristic," he added.

In addition to day-time or full-time students, Goodall indicated the need of an urban campus to provide significant offerings for the evening and part-time student.

Prying Dems Leftward 4th Party Gets On Ballot To Speak At SC

By TIM RICHARD
The fledgling Human Rights Party has won itself a spot on the 1972 ballot, and the Observerland suburbs may figure strongly in the very liberal group's plans.
HRP needed 14,239 petition signatures to get on the state ballot. Last October it submitted more than 21,000, saw some invalidated by the State Board of Canvassers, but still managed to get 14,757 authenticated last week.
In one hilarious argument, the canvassers wanted to toss out signatures where the signer has used a zip code instead of the name of his city or township. Zip codes were finally accepted.

BUT JEANEANE Havstad, who has the sexless title of "chairperson" of the anti-war group, declined to be specific about HRP's political plans.
Mrs. Havstad is a 30-year-old Livonia housewife and mother of four whose chief hobbies seem to be working at the Y's "Awareness House" and sitting through lengthy meetings of the school board and the Schoolcraft College board.

One reason for her vagueness is that the fluid, unstructured party is jealous of authority figures.
For example: Mrs. Havstad's term is only six months long. For another example: At a national convention of state fourth parties last year, the participants were so wary of any one person getting too much publicity that they elected different representatives each day to hold press conferences.
The other reason is that the party itself is vague about its political plans.

ITS BASIC purpose is to act as leverage to pry the Democratic Party leftward. If, for example, Democrats nominate a candidate who is unacceptable to HRP, the

"If Livonia winds up in the 2nd Congressional District, we'll have the best shot there of anywhere in the state."
--Human Rights Party leader

fourth party will run a candidate against him, hoping either to cut into his vote or force him to take a more liberal position.
Philosophically, the party embraces the causes of the poor, the young and the black, though Mrs. Havstad had to confess that only "a couple" blacks were among the 75 persons at a recent state meeting in Ann Arbor.
Said the chairperson: "We'll decide in August whether to put up candidates." August, of course, is when Michigan holds a primary to nominate candidates for Congress and the Legislature.

IF THE DEMOCRATIC national convention next summer again picks the likes of Sen. Hubert Humphrey to run for president, it's a good bet that HRP and other state fourth parties will nominate a rival candidate. HRP people generally were supporters of Eugene McCarthy, the late Robert Kennedy and George McGovern in 1968.

As for the Senate race in Michigan, Mrs. Havstad says: "If the race is between (Republican Robert) Griffin and (Democrat Frank) Kelley, I will fight to make sure we have a Senate candidate."
But because HRP doesn't like the idea of chairpersons speaking for it, she quickly adds: "This is up to the party, however."
Mrs. Havstad dodged questions about possible State Supreme Court candidates (who are nominated by political parties but elected on a non-partisan slate) and the speculation that HRP attorney Zoltan Ferency might be interested in that post.

WHERE THE HRP could be a local factor is in congressional races. HRP's strongest support comes from such white, affluent suburban cities as Birmingham, Mt. Clemens and Livonia, and from such college towns as Ann Arbor and East Lansing.
"If Livonia winds up in the 2nd Congressional District," said Mrs. Havstad, "we'll have the best shot there of anywhere in the state. Ann Arbor has our strongest chapter."

Democrats in the Legislature are maneuvering to place Livonia in Republican Marvin Esch's 2nd District, now safely Republican, with the idea of turning into at least a marginal Democratic district.
Thus, an HRP challenge in the new 2nd could undercut seriously any Democrat's chance of upsetting Esch. And there may just be such a challenge.
The reason: Leading Democratic contender to take on Esch is State Rep. Marvin Stempien (D-Livonia), whom Mrs. Havstad calls "unacceptable."

IT'S STEWORTHY, too, that Stempien was one of the few Democrats who failed to get an endorsement from the New Democratic Coalition, the liberal group within the Democratic Party from which HRP picked up many of its members - including Mrs. Havstad.

The Livonia NDC's current chairman is Peter Havstad, and if the surname sounds familiar, it's because he's the HRP chairman's husband.
Jeaneane promises, however, not to use any underhanded methods to persuade Pete & Co. to split with the Democratic Party and join HRP. In fact, she says, "I won't even attend NDC's meeting."

People change, but not all that much.

Karl Hess is a notable exception. A former speech writer for Sen. Barry Goldwater, he now supports the Black Panther Party. He'll tell why as the first speaker of the new year at Schoolcraft College on Jan. 13 at 8 p.m. in Waterman Campus Center.
His Schoolcraft appearance is being sponsored by the public and cultural affairs committee. Admission is $1 for students and $2 for the general public.

Hess is described as a former clean-cut, gray flannel-suited aide to Senator Goldwater in his 1964 presidential campaign.
Today Hess sports a beard and blue workshirt, lives on a houseboat and, at age 46, is a staunch supporter and master of ceremonies for the Black Panther Party.

HESS' TRANSITION from Old Goldwaterism to New Leftism adds another wild chapter to his already unpredictable life. A Washington high school dropout at 15, he went to work for a radio station, and by 19 was editor on a metropolitan newspaper.
He worked for several newspapers in and around Washington, and was fired as a reporter for the Daily News in 1945 when he phoned the city desk to say that he didn't think FDR's death "was worth getting up for."

In 1963, he joined the Goldwater staff, contributing many phrases such as "a choice not an echo" used in the 1964 campaign. He left Goldwater in 1967, but returned a year later to help him through a successful senatorial campaign.

Since then, however, he says that he has found that the real tide of interest in and fighting for liberty in the country has flowed away from the political parties and into the movement activism of the "New Left."

PREVIOUSLY, other active political roles have included assignment as chief writer for the 1960 Republican platform and the 1962 "Republican Statement of Principle," as well as co-editorship of the 1964 Republican platform.

Hess has worked as an editor, writer, and reporter for the Mutual Broadcasting System, daily newspapers in Washington, D.C., the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company, and Newsweek, where he was an editor for five years.

He was Washington correspondent for the Taft Broadcasting Co., and was associated with the founding of the journal of conservative opinion, "National Review."

State Aid Cut To Schoolcraft

The two per cent cut in state spending ordered last week by Gov. William Milliken will cost Schoolcraft College approximately $48,000.

The reduction will not affect budgeted funds for the college because it is part of a three per cent contingency fund that the state had warned the college to include in its budget in the event state spending would have to be reduced.

"It is my understanding that we have been notified that two-thirds of the contingency fund set up through the appropriations act will be withheld," Schoolcraft president C. Nelson Grote said.

Dr. Grote said that the college had been told in a letter from the state that it may yet be necessary to withhold the additional one per cent at a later date.

The college receives nearly 40 per cent of its $6.1 million budget from state appropriations. Originally, the college anticipated approximately $2.4 million from the state.

The evidence and list of witnesses supporting these charges will, however, remain in the hands of our attorney. We thus hope that all future developments between this board and Mr. Rossman may be litigated in a court of law or some other proper forum.

"In the final analysis, the board's action in discharging Mr. Rossman on Dec. 13, 1971 was deemed to be in the best interest of the school district, its teaching staff, its administrators and students. It was a difficult decision, but one which this board felt compelled to make. Mr. Rossman's subsequent actions have only served to confirm the correctness of the board's decision."

State Slash Effect Still Is Unknown

PLYMOUTH Plymouth schools could lose between $141,300 and $354,000 as a result of Gov. William Milliken's order last week to cut back state spending by two percent.

The confusion created when the cutback was announced left local school officials uncertain how Plymouth's $9.8 million budget would be affected by the reduction.

Acting Supt. John Hoben said the district had not been notified on just how the funds were to be cut from the budget.

Plymouth schools receive approximately $1.7 million in state aid, but had been warned along with all Michigan schools, to hold three per cent of their state aid in a contingency fund in the event that cutbacks would be necessitated.

Should the two per cent reduction come from the $227,000 contingency fund, the district would lose $141,300 in anticipated state aid. Since this amount was not figured into the total budget, the district would not feel the loss as much as if a two per cent reduction in the total $1.7 million in state aid is ordered.

In that case, the district could expect to lose as much as $354,000 which would necessitate cuts from the operating budget.

INLAND TROUT AND SALMON REGULATIONS

The Conservation Commission, under authority of Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended, and Act 155, P.A. 1929, as amended, orders that for a period of five years beginning January 1, 1969, no person shall catch or attempt to take any species of trout or salmon from any of the inland waters of this state except by hook and line during the open seasons prescribed, and within the minimum size limits and maximum possession limits indicated below.

State-wide open seasons on all streams and designated trout lakes shall be from the last Saturday in April through the last day in September on brook trout and all other trout and salmon. State-wide open seasons on inland lakes shall be any time for brook trout and all other trout and salmon. Size limits for brook trout shall be 7 inches; all other trout and salmon shall be ten inches. The daily limit for brook trout and all other trout and salmon shall be five fish singly or in combination.

The above regulations apply except that five brook trout may be taken from streams in addition to the combination limit of five fish.

Approved September 5, 1968.

Congress Needs Info On Science, Says Esch

Speaking at the American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting in Philadelphia, U.S. Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Arm Arbor) said Congress needs to be better informed "as to the potential benefits and impacts of this nation's scientific research."

"Better information will not only insure that those programs which are necessary or desirable to provide for the common good receive the support they deserve, but it will also minimize the wasteful funding of programs which are limited in their public benefits," declared Esch, whose 2nd

District includes Plymouth. Esch was a participant in a day-long symposium on science and the federal government bringing together leading spokesmen in the field of national science policy.

"THE NEEDS of the executive branch of our government for ample scientific counsel are met in the form of the special assistant to the president for science and technology, the Office of Science and Technology, the president's Scientific Advisory Council, and the Federal Council for Science and Technology among others.

"But the executive and legislative branches of our government, through our constitutional system of checks and balances, are two distinct entities, and I believe that each branch should have access to its own group of scientific and technological experts — experts objective in their technical analyses but loyal to the role and vested governmental interests of whichever branch they serve. "I feel that Congress, due to this lack of sufficient scientific support, has in too many instances been unable to respond effectively to scientific issues; and it has fallen to the executive branch to evaluate the impact of a particular new technology and find a solution to any resulting problems.

"This pattern has recurred too many times over the years affecting the ability of Congress to exercise an effective leadership role in terms of anticipating the problems and opportunities raised by scientific and technological developments.

"WHAT IS REQUIRED is a staff organization whose sole purpose is to provide the legislative branch with competent, unbiased information concerning the physical, economic, social, and political effects of the applications of specific technological issues," declared Esch.

Esch earlier this year sponsored a bill in the House of Representatives to establish an "office of technology assessment" in the legislative branch. The basic responsibilities and duties of this office would be to provide an early warning of the probable impacts, positive and negative, of the applications of technology and to develop the coordinate information which may assist the Congress in determining the relative priorities of programs before it.

In carrying out these informational functions the office would (1) identify existing or probable impacts of technology; (2) where possible, establish cause and effect relationships; (3) determine alternative technological methods of implementing specific programs; (4) determine alternative programs for achieving requisite goals; (5) make estimates and comparisons of the impacts of alternative methods and programs; (6) present findings of completed analyses to appropriate legislative authorities; (7) identify areas where additional research or data collection is required, and (8) undertake such additional associated tasks as the appropriate authorities may direct.

LOUISE GROESBECK, secretary of the Macomb College Board of Trustees, presents Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) with a resolution commending him for his service in higher education and especially to Michigan's community colleges.

College Lauds Sen. Pursell

State Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) was recently honored by the Macomb County Community College Board of Trustees for his service to higher education and in particular to the state's community colleges.

The college's board passed a resolution honoring Pursell and citing his efforts in defeating a legislative proposal that would have reduced state appropriations to community colleges with enrollments in excess of 4,000 students.

Pursell was presented a framed copy of the resolution. The proposed reductions would have affected programs at Schoolcraft College in Livonia and Oakland Community College including the Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington as well as Macomb College, which is the largest community college in Michigan.

Though Pursell's 14th District doesn't include any portion of Macomb County, the resolution states that "Sen. Pursell stands straight and tall as a friend and advocate of the services community colleges provide in the field of higher education."

Schoolcraft and OCC are in Pursell's district.

Ski, Snowmobile Season Swinging

January '72 is riding in Michigan on skis and snowmobiles, according to the Michigan Tourist Council.

The Traverse City Winter Carnival, highlighted by the TC-250 snowmobile race, is scheduled for Jan. 21 through 23. A 250-mile race open to the fastest qualifying snowmobiles, it has a $15,000 purse, with $5,000 going to the first place winner.

Ice fishing contests, hockey and ski events, plus many, many other activities are scheduled.

FOR THOSE interested in America's past and the men who helped to carve her from the wilderness, an inspiring new exhibit will open Jan. 24 at the Henry Ford Museum at Greenfield Village in Dearborn.

The exhibit will feature objects from the personal lives of famous Americans from all walks of life. It will include manuscripts, vehicles, furniture, paintings and other memorabilia. Outstanding figures from the past as well as most of our country's presidents will be represented.

Kalkaska will be the location for some great fun and spirited competition on Jan. 29 and 30 at the midwest international dog sled races. First, second and third place cups and prizes will go to the top sledgers in A, B, C, junior and children's classes.

If you're planning ahead for warmer weather fun and activity, there's the Michigan national boat, sports and vacation show at Cobo Hall Civic Center Jan. 29 through Feb. 6.

Population Estimates Revised Downward

A slowdown in the birth rate nationally has forced a downward revision of population growth estimates for Southeast Michigan through 1990.

James L. Trainor, deputy director for the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), said new forecasts drop total population growth estimates in the 20-year period 1970-90 from 2.2 million to 1.3 million.

Total population in the seven counties of southeast Michigan (Livingston, Macomb, Monroe, Oakland, St. Clair, Washtenaw and Wayne) is now expected to be 6.06 million instead of 6.9 million as estimated in 1967 by the Detroit Regional Transportation and Land Use Study (TALUS), Trainor said.

THE REVISIONS in population estimate for SEMCOG were made in consultation with Battelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, Ohio, the same research group that has served both State of Michigan agencies and TALUS.

In a report to the SEMCOG Executive Committee, Trainor cited a variety of factors in the population growth estimate cutback. Included were:

• Latest U.S. Census Bureau indexes showing the fertility rate (average number of children per woman during childbearing years) has dropped steadily from 3.8 in 1957 to 2.2 in recent months.

• An increasing number of unmarried men and women below 35.

• A national fertility study report that women in their 20s who are married expect to have 2.53 children compared with 3.03 children when this same age group was surveyed in 1965.

• A steep decline in the total number of births in the nation during last summer—averaging out for the first eight months of 1971 to three per cent fewer births than in the first eight months of 1970 even though there were three per cent more women of child-bearing age.

"WHILE THERE are a number of influences and a number of factors that could reverse these trends and produce an upsurge in the birth rates, SEMCOG must deal with the reality that exists right now," Trainor said.

"This reality is that, for whatever the reasons, women of child-bearing age are not having as many children now as five or ten years ago. We must plan for development of southeast Michigan on a scale that coincides with this reality."

Among the highlights of the new SEMCOG forecast:

The total number of whites in southeast Michigan will increase from 3.9 million in 1970 to 4.6 million in 1990 (18 per cent) and the total number of non-whites will increase from 801,000 to 1.4 million (75 per cent).

Females will continue to outnumber males by a small margin (2.4 million to 2.3 million in 1970 and 3.0 million to 2.9 million in 1990).

There will be a reduction in the number of 5-15-year-old children until 1990 when there will be an upsurge. (In 1970 there were 997,000 in this category; in 1980, the forecast is 856,000; in 1985, it is 937,000 but in 1990, it increases to 1.25 million).

In the 15-25 brackets, increases are forecast from 783,000 in 1970 to 965,000 in 1980, 896,000 in 1985 and 866,000 in 1990.

TOTAL JOBS available will increase from 1,770,000 in 1970 to 2,381,000 in 1990; most substantial increases will occur in professional and clerical occupational categories.

Incomes will mount steadily with the number of households with incomes of less than $3,000 decreasing from 156,000 in 1970 to 125,000 in 1990 and the number with incomes in excess of $15,000 increasing from 206,000 in 1970 to 945,000 in 1990. By that time, about half of the households in the region will have incomes of $15,000 or more in terms of constant 1965 purchasing power, the SEMCOG forecast predicts.

The number of households in the region will increase from 1.4 million in 1970 to 1.9 million by 1990 with 172,000 of these new households without children. Persons per household in new households formed in the 20-year-period will change from 3.3 in 1970 to a low of 3.02 in 1985 and will rise to 3.08 in 1990. The 1960 census showed 3.4 persons per household.

Of the 1.3 million added population in 1990, 700,000 will be in the 20-45 age group (an increase from 1.5 million in 1970 to 2.2 million in 1990).

Policeman Cal Brown Dead

Services for a Livonia policeman, who had formerly been with the Plymouth Police Department, were held in Schrader Funeral Home recently.

Calvin C. Brown, 46, of 9117 Louise, Livonia died Dec. 29 in University Hospital in Ann Arbor. He was a dispatcher for the Livonia police since 1967 and worked with Plymouth police prior to that time.

Rev. Henry J. Walch officiated at the services, and burial followed in Berkeley.

Brown, who had been ill for some time, was a member of the Plymouth Oddfellows 100F number 32.

Surviving are: his wife, Ruth Brown; three daughters, Mrs. Keven Kelly of Livonia, Miss Sandra Brown of Livonia and Mrs. Jim Holtzclaw of Flint; a brother, Randall Brown of St. Clair Shores; and two grandchildren.

How To Prove Insurance Loss

What must you provide to an insurance company to prove your loss of personal property?

Here is the answer, according to the Insurance Information Institute: Reasonable proof of ownership, value and condition of the property. This applies whether your loss was caused by burglary, hold-up, fire or any other insured cause.

A SUGGESTION for helping the insurance company (and yourself) in this matter is to have pictures of your valuable property and possessions. Photos can supplement the written inventory, which definitely should be kept.

This record includes date, place and amount of purchase and should be supported by a paid receipt or, sometimes, an appraisal. Serial numbers and other identifying features also should be entered in the record.

Whether you live in a home, apartment or elsewhere, you are likely to have valuable personal property. This might include sterling, paintings and other works of art, china, crystal, collections and other possessions which can be substantiated by a photographic inventory.

The Insurance Information Institute points out that most people can easily take flash or "available light" photos with either black and white or color film using their family cameras. Several pictures taken from different angles will give a better idea of what the property looked like on all sides. The photos should bear the date taken.

IF YOU suffer a loss due to robbery or break-in, such photographs are helpful to police in their recovery attempts. In addition, property lost or damaged by fire or in some other way is more readily evaluated by claims adjusters when they are assisted by visual support.

The institute suggests that such photos, along with the negatives, if any, and the written inventory, be kept away from your home. This might be a safe deposit box, or the file might be given to the family's insurance broker or agent for safekeeping.

A "register-on-film" is not a substitute for a conscientiously gathered inventory, but only supplements it. Hopefully you will never need either one.

Red Cross Bloodmobile Due Jan. 6

So that you can easily donate the unit of blood for "family plan" membership, a Red Cross bloodmobile will be located at the Elks Club, 31117 Plymouth, Livonia, on Thursday, Jan. 6, from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m.

"By donating at least one unit of blood per year," Bill Bucinski, Red Cross blood program field representative, northwest region said, "your family will be covered for 12 months by the Red Cross family plan."

"Under the Family Plan, blood coverage will be provided for you, your spouse, children under 18, children over 18 who cannot donate, parents and parents-in-law, grandparents and grand-parents-in-law and the brothers and sisters of an unmarried donor."

"People tend to neglect providing for blood coverage, until someone in their family suddenly needs blood for surgery," he said. For the single unit of blood each year, you can put an end to your blood need worries."

Care On Ice

Elderly people, especially, should be extremely careful when walking on ice or snow, advises an insurance company. A misstep on a slippery piece of ice could have a very painful ending.

Soul Food Good For The Heart

By ELLY

One of the most heart-warming acts of giving during the recent holiday season was the gift of thousands of cans of food to Mother Waddles by area students.

The Rev. Charleszetta Waddles is an expert at stretching a dollar when it comes to preparing meals. In her Perpetual Mission kitchen in Detroit, 70,000 meals are served yearly at 35 cents each, or free for those who have no money.

In her "Soul Food" cookbook, recipes are interspersed with "reflections" and this is what Mother Waddles has to say about neck bones:

"Lord, you know we have had neck bones most every day.

"But it's the cheapest meat I can find.

"So I'll just have to fix them another way.

"Today is Sunday and my family likes a change too 'thank you Father'

AND THE THINGS the lady does with neck bones are quite remarkable.

She says, always wash neck bones and soak in cold water for 20 minutes. Pour this water off. Put them in a pot with water to cover about two inches above meat. After they come to a boil, turn down flame and cover; let them cook slowly, the taste differs a little according to what ingredients you may use. Neck bones are sold by the pound, so buy according to family size.

NECK BONES AND RICE

Neck bones
1 or 2 large onions
3 stalks celery (optional)
1/2 c. flour (for thickening)
1 green pepper
1 c. rice (1 lb. if family is large)
Seasoning salt
Pepper

After the neck bones have been cooking about an hour add onion, celery and green pepper which have been chopped. Continue to cook until done, about another half hour. Mix together flour, seasoning and cold water in a bowl and make sure all the lumps are out. Add this to the neck bones and let simmer until you have a nice thick gravy for your rice. Follow directions on rice, or fix it in your own usual manner and you will have a soul dish that's out of sight. Most important, this meal costs less than a dollar.

NECK BONE STEW

3 lb. neck bones cut small
1 large onion
3 stalks celery
1/2 green pepper
2 lb. white potatoes
1 bunch carrots
Salt and pepper

Soak neckbones 20 minutes in cold water. Pour off water and wash. Put on flame in boiler large enough to hold vegetables. Let cook one hour. While neck bones are cooking, prepare vegetables. Peel potatoes, carrots and onion. Cut up potatoes and carrots to desired size. Chop celery, onion and green pepper. Add vegetables and let cook another 45 minutes. Be sure there is enough water. Add salt and pepper.

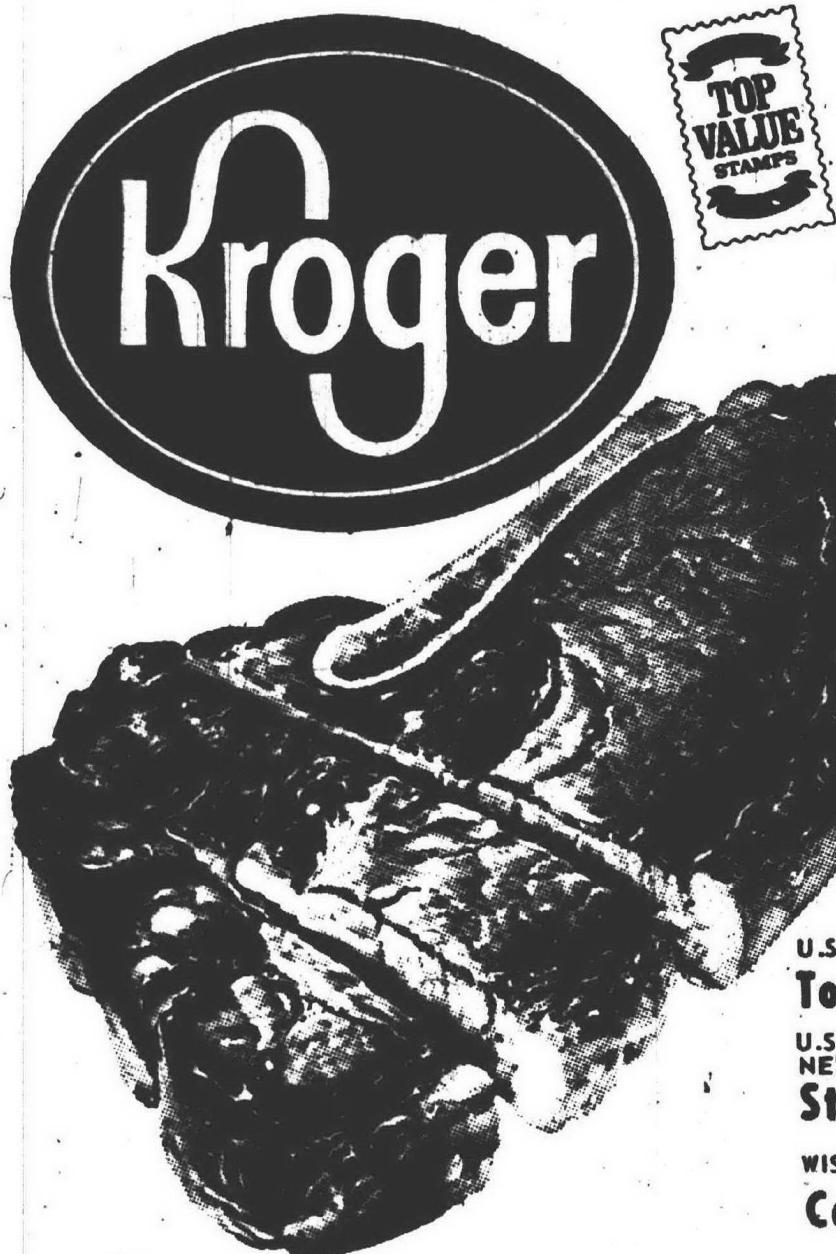

BARBECUED NECK BONES
Neck bones
3/4 c. vinegar
Red pepper
Barbecue sauce

Wash neck bones; soak 20 minutes; pour off water. Place neck bones in a roaster or casserole with lid. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, add two cups of water to the vinegar and pour into pan. Cover and let cook in oven for about 1 1/2 hours, until fork tender. Remove from oven and pour on the barbecue sauce. Return to oven uncovered. Cook about half an hour. Be sure to watch them so the sauce does not burn. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

NB. SAUERKRAUT, POTATOES

2 lb. neck bones, cut small
4 medium sized potatoes
Small can sauerkraut
Salt and pepper

Soak neck bones 20 minutes. Pour off water and wash. Open kraut and pour off excess juice. Put neck bones in boiler with enough water to cover them. Add sauerkraut. Put on stove. When it gets to boiling point turn down heat to low. Let cook about 30 to 40 minutes. Peel potatoes and cut into quarters. Put on top of neck bones and sauerkraut. Add some water if needed. Season. Let cook another 20 or 30 minutes. Serve with hot corn bread.

DEARBORN
Auditions for "Most Happy Fella" will be held Jan. 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14, at 7:30 p.m., in the Osborn Recreation Center, Lois and Osborn.

Bill Premin will direct the musical for the Dearborn Civic Theatre. It will be staged in April. The theater is sponsored by the Dearborn Recreation Department.

Charles S. Heard, director of music of Wayne-Westland community schools, will be the musical director.

Horse Clinic To Be Jan. 12

DETROIT
A two-hour clinic on special horse selection and judging will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 12, at the State Fairgrounds. Price of admission is $3.

Ted Dodge, senior riding instructor at the State Fair Riding Academy, will discuss

"How to Select a Horse for Yourself," "Judging and Placing for Individuals" and "Comparative Reasons and Discussion of Class."

The academy is open to the public Monday through Thursday from 2:30 to 9 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 12 noon to 6 p.m.

Jazz Ensemble To Be Featured At Clarenceville

The Brookside Jazz Ensemble, a popular attraction at Brookside School, Cranbrook, will present a concert at 8 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 16, in Clarenceville High School's Louis E. Schmidt Auditorium, 20155 Middle Belt, Livonia.

Ursula Walker will be guest vocalist with the 21 piece ensemble. Dick Purton will act as master of ceremonies.

TICKETS, at $2 each, are available at the auditorium box office between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays. Phone reservations are also being accepted at the box office and by Mrs. Henry Ellis, 20457 Maplewood, Livonia.

Miss Walker has appeared in the Detroit area with Ron Depalma at Clem's Pour House, Jack Brokenshaw at the Pontchartrain, Matt Michaels at the Playboy Club, and most recently at the London Chop House with Alex Kallao. She is also heard on radio.

THE ENSEMBLE is composed of musicians from the Detroit area who rehearse weekly at Cranbrook. They hold a concert there cabaret style approximately every three months.

Using the instrumentation of the "big bands" and the sounds of today's music, the ensemble has managed to appeal to all age groups.

Curt Newmann is responsible for organization and management of the ensemble. Craig Strain is the musical director.

VETERAN PLAYERS (from left) Ellie Jorgensen, Hope Nahstoll, Zackie Lee and Diane Brown appear in a tense scene from the Farmington Players production of "The Chalk Garden." Performances are scheduled for three weekends starting Jan. 14 in the Players Barn on 12 Mile, between Orchard Lake and Farmington Roads. A limited number of tickets are still available from Dale or Eleanor Johnson, 24125 Locust Drive, Farmington. (Evert photo)

On Thursdays Stage Band Will Travel

By BETTY MASSON

Richard Saunders is evidently not a man to let disappointment slow him down.

As he sees it, a community college should serve the community and so if anyone is looking for a stage band, Saunders has one available. He also has a brass ensemble and a group of madrigal singers.

Saunders is Schoolcraft College's director of fine arts, a job he has held since he replaced Wayne Dunlap there in September. Dunlap left to take a similar position at Grand Valley State College.

The first thing he had to face in his new job was the disappointment of having Schoolcraft's millage increase turned down by the voters.

That means there's no $2.7 million arts center in the college's plans for 1974. And no one will hazard a guess as to when it will become a reality. "I don't know who was more despondent, the instructors or the students," says Saunders, who has found himself in the unenviable position of heading a growing program with no room in which to grow.

IN SPITE OF this, the fine arts department is making notable strides. The stage band, begun by Saunders early in 1971, is now available for performances on Thursday evenings between 7:30 and 10. A 22-piece jazz band, it plays musical styles all the way from Glenn Miller to the most current modern groups such as Chicago.

For public service projects, there is no charge for this group composed not only of students, but also of adults from the community and some high school students.

The five-member brass ensemble is composed of students and made its debut at another first for Saunders, an early December concert by the new Schoolcraft Symphony. The madrigal group is composed of 12 singers under the direction of Bradley Bloom.

Arrangements to hear any or all, may be made by contacting Saunders at the college.

Other activities at the

RICHARD SAUNDERS (left) new head of the fine arts department of Schoolcraft College, discusses plans for the future with Dr. Lawrence Rudick, an instructor in the drama department. Saunders hopes to make the department an asset to the community as well as to the college, but lack of space is going to be a problem. (Observer photo) college in the fall included a piano teaching seminar. Fifty-three area piano teachers took advantage of this opportunity, and conductor of the course, Donald Morelock, is currently working on plans for more seminars. A certification program for piano teachers is also being considered.

THIS MONTH, Schoolcraft's composer-in-residence, Robert W. Jones, is beginning a jazz theory course, which will run 12 weeks one evening per week. Students will be able to test their compositions out with the stage band.

Jones is also working on a piece for the stage band, in between composing for area churches and for the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra. He spends a month every summer at the University of Redlands in Redlands, Calif., working on arrangements with Stan Kenton and his orchestra.

Saunders contemplates no changes in the summer music school next summer. "I want to evaluate the program and will make any recommendations in the second year."

In the drama department, many plans and projects are being contemplated, according to Saunders' associates, Dr. Lawrence Rudick and Ralph Kelly.

They've been getting lots of experience during a busy fall, which saw Schoolcraft's Masque Players stage "Charlie Brown" and "A Doll's House" as well as putting on a movie party for children. One of the movies, based on an original script by Kelly, was filmed by the students and featured area children and their pets. The other, also filmed by students, featured puppets. The six showings in December were well attended.

Dr. Rudick, fresh from obtaining his doctorate at Stanford University, is looking into the possibilities of readers' theatre, theatre-in-the-round in the Waterman Campus Center and other experiments to get around the difficulties of lack of space.

STUDENT DRAMATIC productions are now staged in a theatre which is really a lecture hall.

This is only one of the difficulties the fine arts department has to face. In the music department there are only three practice rooms for music students...yet Schoolcraft's summer music school had a registration last year of 100 students. It will be the same next year...and the year after, not because of lack of interest, but because of lack of room.

It also means that the school will be limited to presenting concerts during the summer months. With a new fine arts center, the school might have been expanded into something which could use the talents of actors and dancers as well, summer musicals, for instance.

Area artists' clubs might also have taken advantage of an arts center, as well as local musicians.

Right now, students who want to take art have to be turned away because there isn't enough classroom space for more than 18.

But Saunders is happy with his new job in spite of the disappointment because he sees a growth of interest in the fine arts.

'Superstar' Set For Livonia

Livonia Jaycees are sponsoring two performances of the musical "Jesus Christ - Superstar" in Bentley High School, 15100 Hubbard, Livonia.

THE HIT Broadway musical will be performed at 4:30 and 8:30 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 9, by a professional company, the New York Touring Ensemble. Tickets are $5.50 for adults. Student tickets are $3.50 before Jan. 9 and $4.50 at the door.

Bob Carver, head of the project for the Jaycees, said actors will provide their own props, costumes, music and lights.

"This is a good opportunity to see a production like this in the local area," Carver said.

THE GROUP performed in Wayne a few weeks ago, Carver said, and one critic said the show surpassed the Broadway production.

Tickets are available from the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, 15401 Farmington Road, and from Jaycee members. Group rates are available.

As we swing into the new year of 1972, three big issues directly affecting the interests of the suburbs must be resolved:

• EDUCATION FINANCING REFORM — Every suburban resident who owns a home or pays property tax knows full well that this is the single most pressing issue on the suburban agenda.

For three years now it has been quite clear that the property tax is an unfair and inequitable way of supporting local education. For at least as long, it has been equally clear that the best way of financing education is through a graduated statewide income tax that accurately taxes people according to their ability to pay.

The legislature has ducked this one time and time again. Its shilly-shallying has resulted directly in the refusal of most suburban taxpayers to vote any more millage to support local schools and indirectly in the bussing crisis which has caused a spasm of anxiety throughout the suburbs.

I don't see how any legislator can face the voters in this election year without having faced up to education financing reform.

• MASS TRANSIT — Anyone who lives in the suburbs and works in downtown Detroit knows the importance of the need for a mass transit system in this area. So does anyone who has any concern at all about making jobs in suburban business and industry available to workers from the entire metropolitan area.

The governor proposed last year a two-cent per gallon increase in the gas tax, with 1.4 cents going to build streets, freeways and roads, and 0.6 cents for urban mass transit. The legislature failed to act on the proposal.

Frankly, I can't agree with the governor's emphasis on yet more freeways and roads; the ones we have already have clearly not solved the problem of how to get around the area, especially during rush hour, and the suspicion mounts that even more freeways simply are not the answer.

But paying off the road building lobby may be the price for getting started on a comprehensive program of mass transit in this area — the only one of similar size in the country with no mass transit system.

• RE-APPORTIONMENT OF DISTRICTS — The 1970 census proved what everybody had known all along: The suburbs were growing faster than any other segment of the state.

Now the state legislature is facing up to the requirements of the U.S. Supreme Court's one-man one-vote ruling by redrawing the lines of congressional and legislative districts so they are equal in population.

In theory, such remapping will give added strength to suburban representation in Washington and Lansing, regardless of which party winds up being the net winner in seats gained this November. If, however, the legislature cannot agree on a plan, the issue will be thrown into the courts; once it's there, anything could happen, including a ruling that all congressmen and legislators have to run at large, statewide.

The legislature should, insofar as possible, set partisan bickering aside, and get down to the guts of promptly reapportioning suburban districts in such a way as to fairly reflect the recent growth of the suburbs.

THESE THREE issues seem simple to settle; in fact, they are not.

However, they have been on the agenda for far too long already. Delay in settling them has hurt both the suburbs and the state.

Moreover, this year is an election year, and it's the year when our representatives will be coming around asking us for our vote.

Before we promise it to any politician, let's ask him just what he did to help settle the big three issues facing us. We've got a great chance to put the politicians and not the average taxpayers on the hot seat this year.

Tim Richard writes

A Fix That Can Be Easily Remedied

Michigan Democrats are in a fix — but only because they think they are.

Their 1968 national convention ruled that delegates to the 1972 convention must be persons elected this year. By Michigan law, precinct delegates are elected two years ahead of time — 1970 — and will elect a fresh crop of state convention delegates next May. These state delegates will select the national convention delegates.

Democrats, therefore, are pushing a bill to hold a new election of precinct delegates in April. Their reasoning is that the nation now has the 18-year-old vote and these youngsters didn't have a chance to take part in the 1970 precinct elections.

As State Sen. Dan Cooper (D-Oak Park) put it:

"The exclusion of these new voters is without justification and is unfair to them. Without the April primary bill, they will not be able to become precinct delegates and will be excluded from the selection of presidential candidates."

Sen. Cooper is full of wrath at Lt. Gov. Jim Brickley and the 19 Republican senators who voted to adjourn in mid-December without taking up the Democrats' pet bill for an April election of precinct delegates.

THE SENATOR FLUNKS homework this week.

Take Southfield, which makes up a large part of Cooper's 15th

District. The city and township had 52 precincts, as of the August 1970 delegate election. In 17 precincts, no one ran for delegate, and 17 elected delegates failed to attend the convention in late August.

Thus, 34 of the 52 delegate seats were vacant for that convention. Those vacancies can be filled by other interested Democrats who show up. There's nothing to stop persons in the 18-20 age bracket from being appointed to the vacancies that occur.

Moreover, the mere fact that no persons under 21 will be elected precinct delegates doesn't mean the young adults can't become state convention delegates.

Like many areas throughout the state, the 18th Congressional District followed the "open" rule of picking state convention delegates. As a Southfield Democratic leader put it: "We decided to permit all precinct delegates, and all party members who have expressed a desire, to go to the state convention."

A party membership costs $5. Thus, anyone in the 18-20 age bracket can get into the mainstream of political activism by buying a membership and going to the state convention.

IN POINT OF fact, the Southfield Democrats in 1970 did pick an 18-year-old delegate — Bonnie Moss, by name.

And so there is no reason to hold a special $750,000 state primary election in April to pick new precinct delegates in order to give representation to the 18-20 age group.

Any young person who will work for the party will be greeted with open arms and will have no

'Property Values' Have New Meaning

By DAN McCOSH

In America's search for euphemisms to cover up the unpleasant facts of life with a good word, probably the only industry more florid than morticians is the real estate business.

The man who coined the phrase "property value" is probably lying under a valuable hunk of real estate right now, clutching an honorary dictionary given by grateful salesmen in the profession who have given his deceptive phrase their own version of immortality.

THEY DON'T mean "property values" at all, what they mean is the price of property. The effect of this slight of tongue on the average homeowner's state of mind has been incredible.

When GM, US Steel and the DSR announce their annual round of price increases, the homeowners knuckles whiten on the edge of his morning paper, the President moans and the Congress bellows.

But when the price of the roof over his head goes up, it brings peace of mind, and quiet smiles as he contemplates selling the old homestead at three times the price he paid for it. It's a great hedge against inflation, they say.

The fault to this logic would be apparent if someone said a three-year-old Ford was going to be worth more than its purchase price. "It's worn out," you say, and mutter about the declining dollar.

The reality doesn't sink in until you cash in on that "hedge against inflation," deduct closing, commission and points, and try to use that money to buy another home — or did you expect to live in the street?

That retirement cottage costs a lot too, because "property values" are skyrocketing all over, and you have to pay the "value."

PROPERTY VALUES go up for other reasons, too, like when you build a cement plant on a main street and the owner wants to buy enough land to park his trucks next to that nice subdivision.

They go up for the guy who sells the land, and who fights for the rezoning, who then puts his "value" in his pocket and leaves, because he doesn't want to live anywhere near that "valuable" land.

Or "That land is too valuable to build dinky residential houses," the developer cries, which means he thinks he can get a higher "value" if he sells to an apartment builder.

A SECOND EUPHEMISM is "low income housing," a tag which is usually attached to what we used to call "cheap" housing.

"Low income" has connotations of racial strife, neighborhood decay and welfare mothers. Let's ignore for the moment that it also includes students, young families and your grandmother.

This has been expressed in the suburbs as a wild fear of putting a low rent or price tag on anything. Apartments, mobile homes, townhouses and condominiums go up like mushrooms, at a minimal cost per square foot, and logic says they should be "cheap housing," but they are not.

"Cheap housing" would be attractive to those newlyweds, students, and grandmothers as well as the evil poor. Even some well-established folks who might feel there is nothing immoral about spending less than a quarter of their incomes on a roof over their heads — people of simple tastes.

"Cheap housing" they want, but as long as it's called "low income," it will probably remain at the end of the long arm of the zoning board.

But then maybe it's not a good idea. Cheap housing would compete with the expensive stuff, and it might slow the steady rise of property values.

R.T. Thompson writes

How Callous Are We?

Years ago we visited the home of a friend, and the first things that caught our attention were three tiny statues of monkeys all in a group. One had hands over the eyes, a second had hands over both ears and the third had hands over the mouth.

Seems strange that we should recall this visit of 30 years ago as we enter into a new year with high hopes of bigger and better things, especially after a year which has been marked with unemployment, a decided dip in the economic situation and general unrest in most sections — unrest in this area principally over forced bussing between school districts to relieve segregation and give all students equal education opportunities.

We are now several days into a new year that has had a happy beginning for most of us. We already are looking forward to a continuance of the happy days and for a prosperous year during which we can forget the unhappiness of 1971.

ALL OF WHICH brings us back to the three monkeys and how they fit into two of the saddest happenings of the past year . . . two incidents that took the lives of two youngsters in Livonia and made 1971 a tragic year for their parents, brothers, sisters, grandparents, aunts and uncles.

Chris Beattie, a senior at Livonia Bentley High, was run down and killed by a hit-run driver last May just one month before she would have had the biggest and happiest time of her still young life . . . high school graduation.

The incident happened in late afternoon on a bright, sunny day, but now six months later and in a new year, police officers haven't been able to find a single clue leading to the identity of the killer-driver.

Craig Schultz, a student in the Plymouth School district who was a promising young baseball player, was found dead at a street intersection in a quiet residential area two nights before Christmas. Craig was riding his bicycle when something happened and he was found lying on the sidewalk with the bike atop his body.

How long Craig lay on the cold sidewalk no one knows. Plymouth police have asked any witnesses to step forward and tell their story . . . to date none has.

Livonia police have made numerous appeals to residents of the area in which Chris was killed to come forward with any information. No one has.

ARE WE TO TAKE this to mean that we now live at a time that makes living creatures of the three monkeys. Are we in a period when we see no evil, hear no evil and speak no evil?

In these instances it appears that nothing but good can come from speaking out and helping provide answers that will relieve the minds of bereaved parents and kin.

It's the saddest of all commentaries when resident of two communities prefer to follow the advice of three monkeys and close their eyes, ears and mouths to evil rather than open their mouths, ears and eyes to a good cause.

Gift To Indians 'Lifts Spirits'

EDITOR:

Could you, in your papers, please put in the following thank you to your area?

Two Christmas parties were planned by Indian Enterprises, Inc. this year. The first one was held Dec. 4 for the Muskegon-Oceana County area Indian children, and the second one was held Dec. 12 in Custer for the Mason-Manistee County area Indian children.

Nearly 1,000 children received toys donated by the local merchants in and around Livonia and handled by Mr. and Mrs. Hank Chruschal. Mr. and Mrs. Chruschal collect the toys, fix the ones that need repair and ship them to the various Indian communities throughout Michigan.

The program is sponsored by the Western Wayne County Conservation Assn.

They have also sent some 1,800 cans of food and many boxes of clothing, bedding, etc. throughout the past year to help our people.

We would like everyone to know that we appreciate their help and would like to thank everyone involved in the packaging, planning, shipping, etc. of these articles. The majority of the people we work with make only up to $4,000 a year, and to receive help such as this is a great lift to their spirits.

'Christmas A Long Time'

EDITOR:

Again I must try to find adequate words to thank all of you (the paper for its publicity and the people who cooperated and worked so hard) for the big shipment of all kinds of things for our school.

Hank Chruschal delivered the truckload and it will be Christmas for us for a long time, thanks to him and all of you.

Thomas L. Harris has been a funeral director since 1947. But the Harris tradition of fine service at moderate cost started in 1910 under his father and grandfather. Tom's education at Wheaton College and Wayne University provided his professional qualifications.

However, he considers his intensive apprenticeship in the family-operated business more important. "Our professional responsibility," Tom Harris says, "is knowing what must be done and doing it with finesse."

We try to carry out our duties with real concern for the family's needs."

Schoolcraft Faculty Contract Upheld

By KATHY MORAN

Schoolcraft College's Faculty Forum, an affiliate of the Michigan Education Association, won its day in court last week when Wayne County Circuit Judge Horace Gilmore ordered the college to abide by the terms of the faculty contract rather than the state appropriations act. A preliminary injunction ordered by Judge Gilmore on

Dec. 29, prohibits the college's administration from implementing faculty schedules according to terms specified in Public Act 121, the appropriations act for Michigan's 28 community colleges. Most of the college's 140 faculty members are affiliated with the Forum, their bargaining agent.

A STATE OF confusion was created last fall when the Legislature passed an appropriations act which conflicted with the Schoolcraft faculty master agreement that had been bargained.

Schoolcraft students will encounter minor schedule changes as a result of the injunction, but most of the changes will just involve changes in the instructors for courses in literature and laboratory classes.

The preliminary injunction orders Schoolcraft to abide by the terms of the master contract. It also makes it possible to abide by the contract without jeopardizing state appropriations.

The conflict arose over workloads of faculty members. The Schoolcraft contract specified a lighter workload than that specified by the appropriations act for nearly half of the faculty members.

Students will find that some of the offerings for the winter term will be affected by the court ruling.

PRESIDENT C. Nelson Grote said some of the schedule changes will be picked up by faculty willing to take overload schedules (for which they will be paid) and by using some part-time faculty to supplement the staffs.

"The total impact of the injunction is hard to measure, but the cost to the college will be approximately $55,000 more for faculty salaries than it would have been," Dr. Grote said.

Dr. Grote said the sequence of events up to the issuing of the preliminary injunction were "prudent and reasonable" because it finally allowed the college to honor the master contract without jeopardizing state appropriations.

"The decision was completely based on legality," Dr. Grote said, explaining that it had nothing to do with his personal opinion or personal preference on the case.

He had been criticized for refusing to abide by the terms of the contract after the Ingham County Circuit Court enjoined state officials, prohibiting them from withholding appropriations to colleges who honored the master contracts rather than the state law.

STUART BLOOM, vice president of the Forum, said that Schoolcraft's administration "chose to enforce the appropriations act despite the fact that the state could not have penalized the college for abiding by the contract."

Forum President Richard Arlen said, "The college just isn't willing to honor the contract. Where's the credibility?"

"The school had ample time to correct the situation. Dr. Grote stalled and stalled until we took it to court."

Dr. Grote said that the college was required to follow the state law and was not named as a defendant in the Ingham County Suit.

"I was not willing to jeopardize our appropriations either for 1971-72 or, most importantly, to jeopardize our relationships with the appropriations committees and the State Legislature and risk our 1972-73 appropriations."

He said the state appropriations comprise nearly 40 per cent of the Schoolcraft budget.

"It would be unwise for the chief administrator to jeopardize 40 per cent of the operating budget," Dr. Grote said.

He said that the college does not plan to appeal the injunction. The winter term is the only one affected by the injunction since all faculty members teaching during the spring semester are carried on supplementary contracts.

S'craft Accepts Late Registrations

Registration for the winter term at Schoolcraft College was held this past Monday and Tuesday, but late registrations will be accepted without penalty until Jan. 11.

Registrar Norman Dunn said that late registrations may be completed from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily and from 6-8 p.m. evenings through the 11th. Former students should check with their counselors and students new to the college should make the admissions office their first stop.

Dunn said openings are still generally available in most classes and programs, but advised students to check their specific needs and to complete registration as early as possible.

Tuition for in-district students at Schoolcraft remains at $10 a credit hour. It is $20 for out-of-district students.

Robberies Mar Holidays

Robberies marred the holidays for two Southfield businessmen.

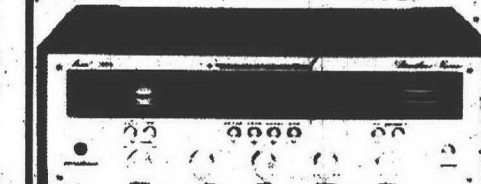

A "customer" who walked into the Korvette Carpet Center in the Southfield Plaza, Southfield Rd. north of 12 Mile Rd., Sunday afternoon walked out with $78 from the cash register after a package he carried into the store turned out to be a gun wrapped in paper, according to police reports.

The gunman escaped on foot in the general direction of the Southfield Downs trailer park, a clerk told the police.

Three men robbed Ruhlman's Total Station at 10 Mile and Southfield Rd. last Thursday of $169, including money from the attendants' wallets.

Marriage Needs Communication, Not Insight

By MARGARET MILLER
Women's Editor

Communication is the greatest of marital problems, and it often becomes an acute one when couples are "shifting gears" into a new stage of family living.

That's the assessment of Don Haller, chief marital counselor of the Washtenaw County Circuit Court, who talked recently to the Birmingham Temple Women's Group Town Hall in Farmington.

But in bringing expertise to the series dealing with women in their varying relationships, Haller made it plain he considered advice and insight of very little value in solving marital problems.

"We're dealing with a relationship," he said. "Marriage must be treated as a discussion. I get one crack at a couple in my job. I have to get them face to face, and I have to get them to talk to each other and listen to each other."

Communication breaks down, he added, when husbands and wives "fail to listen with the whole mind to what the other is saying and fail to consider its validity."

Marriages go through eight general stages, Haller said. First there are the beginning families, defined as married couples without children, and the child-bearing families, or those in which the oldest child is 30 months or less, and families with pre-school children, in which the oldest child is 30 months to six years.

Later come the families with school children, families with teenagers and families as launching centers, in which the first child is gone and the others are moving toward leaving home.

Finally, he said, come the families in the middle years, defined as "empty next to retirement," and the aging families, a stage that runs from retirement to the death of both spouses.

"The time of vulnerability varies," Haller said, "but we find that couples getting a divorce often are at the stage of shifting."

"The important thing is how couples handle stresses at various stages. People under stress tend to regress to former ways of doing things."

"Some individuals have a need to withdraw at times of stress, and their partners may have trouble realizing this is not an attack on the marriage."

Marriage counseling, said this counselor, has had general acceptance only about 10 years and has undergone rather significant changes during that decade.

"In all counseling," he explained, "we used to think of the individual as the unit of treatment. Then we moved to a unit of two -- mother and child, husband and wife."

"Now the unit is larger. We treat the family, father, mother and children, and sometimes the larger family, including relatives and all the people who have close contact. We think of the family as a living, moving and changing organism."

In his own role, Haller said, he tries to see couples who have filed for divorce and who might have to wait months for help from a social agency.

A frequent visitor to his office, he said, is the husband who takes the "pompous ass" line in dealing with his wife.

"He's the one who's so smooth and knowing," Haller said. "Often I can't save a marriage like that, but I can help the woman to be more comfortable

"The essential elements of love are commitment, acceptance, caring and sharing."

should be reasonably compatible."

"The essential elements of love are commitment, acceptance, caring and sharing," he added. "Signs of trouble in marriage are deliberate public humiliation on the part of one spouse and making an impression on the outside world at the expense of the family. That's a cop-out."

Marital partners, he added, should be able to "talk openly about their needs, to blame each other occasionally but not regularly and to follow up saying what they believed by doing what they say."

"They must also realize that people and marriages change," he concluded. "Being consistent does not mean not changing -- it means clarifying change."

Haller also distributed excerpts from Don Jackson's book, "The Miracle of Marriage," as a summation of meaningful marriage agreement.

The statement read:

"We have voluntarily agreed to form a marital partnership for our mutual benefit. We are human beings, and will grow and change with age and circumstances. Neither of us is perfect. We are not afraid of being fallible, and therefore will be honest and open with each other, and reveal ourselves and our changes."

"We will disclose the hidden things when they unexpectedly emerge from the unconscious or from the forgotten past. If what happens is joyful, as we have faith it will be most of the time, we will treasure this good fortune. But if events are painful, or harm-

Year Of Study

Spain Gets Sisters' Approval

Students in Franco's Spain don't talk politics and young men there have a few wrong ideas about American girls.

The people of Spain are the friendliest.

Homes are a bit short on heat and conveniences, and classroom Spanish isn't much preparation for speaking the real thing.

These are a few of the impressions garnered by Redford Township sisters Jenny and Cyndy Harless, flying back to Spain today to complete a year of study there.

THE GIRLS, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Harless, 9608 Mercedes, were home for a month-long Christmas break in their study at the University of Navarra in Pamplona, Spain.

Jenny, who began studying Spanish in the fourth grade, was a sophomore at Adrian College last year when she heard about the Academic Year in Spain program that is directed by two American professors who teach at the University of Seville.

She studied the program and decided to go. By that time her sister Cyndy, then a senior at Thurston High and also a student of Spanish, was interested in making the trip too.

THEY BEGAN their European stay last June, first spending the summer taking an orientation class in Malaga, on the Mediterranean Sea. They lived with a Spanish family there.

In the fall they headed for the University of Navarra, in northern Spain near the French border.

There Cyndy is learning basic Spanish and Jenny is taking 10 hours of study in history and literature.

It was rather hard going at first in spite of long study of the Spanish language, Jenny admitted.

"But after about a month I could understand the professor most of the time," she said. "I'm going back now to take exams, and we'll see how much I understood."

BOTH GIRLS are living with families in Pamplona, and they agreed that life in a household where no English is spoken is fine language training.

Social life is quite different in a community of most serious students, the girls agreed. Jenny said her family is very strict about her being out in the evening, and Cyndy reported that dating could be fun "after I set my dates straight right from the start in the wrong impressions they had about American girls."

Student activism is practically nil, the girls said. "When the government says stop, that's it," Jenny explained.

"And one time in a restaurant we asked what would happen when Franco dies," she added. "Everyone was so shocked we didn't ask that again."

Jenny also noted that her history course includes only the time up to the Spanish Civil War.

BOTH GIRLS commented on the lack of conveniences in their adopted homes--no dish-washers, small refrigerator, few washing machines.

"What I've missed most is American food, heat and hot water," Cyndy said.

They're looking forward to when they return to getting in some skiing from their town at the foot of the Pyrenees.

The courses of study will end in June. Jenny plans to return to Adrian next year to complete work on an elementary education degree and she definitely hopes to work toward including more language instruction in elementary curriculums.

Cyndy's college plans are indefinite, but she thinks she'll be majoring in language.

m. m. memos

There's a certain summer when I was a girl camper that I'll always remember from a fashion standpoint. It was the year that blue jeans had their beginnings as feminine attire.

A few of the sharper campers started wearing them, and suddenly they were the "in" thing for everyone.

Since then, to address those jeans in the women's lib vernacular, "you've come a long way, baby."

To the point where many of the high school crowd, preparing for New Year's Eve dates, spent an hour applying make-up to perfection and then pulled on a pair of jeans.

Now, I don't knock this comfortable attire, and I am certainly not one to deplore seeing the girls head for class on cold mornings in jeans instead of short skirts.

But in trying to keep four jean-wearers of wildly assorted sizes properly dressed, I have a major fitting problem.

They have to be reasonably tight -- right? So you can't buy them too big or they get baggy, and even this mother fairly well skilled with a needle and sewing machine can't take in bulky jean seams.

But buy them to fit, and they promptly shrink them so they don't.

And if somehow you luck out and get a satisfactory pair, they're worn so constantly that soon they wear through in strategic spots.

And then there's no point in hunting for a replacement. Either the brand and size is out of stock, or the wearer has changed proportions, or both.

I don't see any real solution. Guess I'll just have to go on singing the blue jean blues.

Scholarship Deadline Is Jan. 17

Women who wish to continue their education may still apply for the 1972-73 Merit Scholarships given by the Center for Continuing Education of Women.

Applications are available at the center, 330 Thompson, Ann Arbor. Completed applications are due at the center by Jan. 17.

The merit scholarships are for women of all ages who are admitted to an undergraduate or graduate degree program on any U-M of campus.

Up to 20 scholarships will be awarded for use in the 1972-73 academic year. Grants of $500 to $2,000 will be made on the basis of the need of each winner.

One of Oakland Community College's most charming faculty members might be seen as a shining example to younger sisters everywhere. She's Dr. Christine Gram of Farmington, head of the economics department at the Orchard Ridge Campus.

Dr. Gram is sister of two well-known ladies - Federal Judge Cornelia Kennedy and Mrs. Margaret Schaeffer, attorney and member of the Farmington Township Board. "And I've always been 'the other sister,'" Christine Gram says.

SHE HAS GREAT admiration for her sisters, she went on, and they've always been very close. But she couldn't help feeling mighty pleased when one of her colleagues read the "other sister" description and told her:

"Chris, you don't have to be identified that way. You can stand on your own."

He was absolutely right. For Christine Gram, mother of six, has in the last eight years earned both a master's degree and a doctorate from the University of Michigan, has served on the Oakland Community College faculty from the earliest days of OCC and has been elected by the seven-member Orchard Ridge economics faculty to be its chairman.

She also was married a year and a half ago to Henry Gram, chairman of the business department faculty at OCC's Auburn Hills campus. They met through teaching activities. Her children, by her former marriage, are Mrs. Jeanne Rayer of Plymouth; Robert Harris, who is married and lives in Westland; John, 22; Jim, 21; David, 15, and Gregory, 13.

DR. GRAM and her sisters are daughters of Elmer Groesbeck, a well-known Detroit attorney.

"I guess I grew up thinking

Women on the Go Dr. Gram Shines In 'Other Sister' Role everybody got all A's," said this youngest member of the family. She began her college education at Wayne University "partly because it was close to home and partly because I didn't want to follow two smart sisters at the University of Michigan as I had at Redford High."

Married after a year at Wayne, she transferred to U-M and was in the third year of a pre-medical course "when I got pregnant and that made pre-med absolutely impossible."

It was at that point she switched to economics because it was a field she had enjoyed.

HER DECISION to go after a master's degree came in 1963 "when my baby started kindergarten." It took two years because she was also employed by the Michigan Osteopathic Association in Farmington.

The doctorate, conferred last summer, was earned in the University Center for Higher Education, and her special field was a study of collective bargaining in schools in Michigan.

"I went all over the state collecting information," Dr. Gram said, "and I really enjoyed the study - all but putting the data into the computer. I got pretty mad at that computer at times."

AS A MEMBER of the OCC faculty, Christine Gram has come to feel the community college has an important role to play in the wider education picture.

"I didn't start out that way," she said. "I used to think college was only for the talented."

"But a college like OCC has so many facets. For the good student, it's a place to begin close to home. For the average student, it's a chance to put in some time in college, and then there's the wide choice of vocational study for those wanting technical training."

She also feels the community college is a great boon to women whose educations were interrupted by marriage and a family.

"Most of them would not otherwise be able to go back to school," she added. "Community college brings college where the people are."

THE "OPEN DOOR" policy of schools like OCC is often misunderstood, she said.

"The fact that we accept all students doesn't mean we have low standards," she said. "Our students have to do college work in order to pass courses, and now that we are accredited most of our college-level courses are transferable to four-year colleges."

She finds the OCC student body an interesting one to work with and commented that the country's new selective service policy means

"we lost the kids who were in college to avoid the draft, and that's just as well."

Dr. Gram said she likes the system of faculty election of department chairmen, one result of collective bargaining for college faculty, she pointed out.

As it works at OCC, she spends half her time teaching and half in administrative work.

"This way," she said, "you are relating more closely to others in the department and to the students. When you get to administrative you lose sight of teaching students, which is the main aim of the school."

5 Youth Groups To Have Share In $250,000 Gift

WASHINGTON A quarter-million-dollar "Help Young America" program has been announced today by the Colgate-Palmolive Co. as a major 1972 campaign to help five of America's leading youth groups reach their current goals.

The Boy Scouts of America, Girl Scouts of the USA, Boys' Clubs of America, Girls' Clubs of America and the Camp Fire Girls will share in the $250,000 contribution following a national vote to be conducted by Colgate-Palmolive Co. in early 1972.

David R. Foster, president of Colgate-Palmolive Co., in announcing the "Help Young America" program at inaugural ceremonies here (at the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel), pointed out that the program marks the first time that these five leading youth groups have united in a single youth promotion effort.

THE COLGATE PALMOLIVE CO. is pleased to initiate this cooperative program between American business and American youth," the executive stated.

"Our aims are common - to help our young people help themselves - to a better America. Too often today, the progress potential of our ambitious youth is lost sight of amid the concern for the problems of this generation."

We at Colgate hope that this program will help lead these young people to achieve a better tomorrow. We want, also, to focus national interest on their needs and to suggest new avenues for others to follow in supporting the goals of young America."

FOSTER DISTRIBUTED the first $100,000, in fund checks of $20,000 each, to the presidents of the five groups. The national voting, which will determine the distribution of the remaining $150,000 in the quarter-million-dollar program, will begin in January through announcements and ballots in national magazines.

MRS. TIMOTHY L. HUTSELL
(Elaine Winger)

Elaine L. Winger Weds Pfc. Hutsell

At a ceremony in Garden City Presbyterian Church in early December, Elaine L. Winger became the bride of Pfc. Timothy L. Hutsell. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Winger of Barton Street, Garden City, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Rita Dyer of Fort Knox, Ky.

The Rev. R.R. Rives officiated at the ceremony.

The bride wore a floor-length fitted gown with daisy embroidered sleeves and bodice. She carried a white daisy bouquet.

Lynne Riordan of Plymouth was her sister's matron of honor, and Sherry Petty of Garden City was the bridesmaid. They wore blue and white dotted swiss floor length dresses with picture hats. They carried wicker baskets of blue and white daisies.

The couple will make their home in Germany, where the bridegroom is stationed with the U.S. Army.

DIANE SAVAGE
Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Savage Jr. of Raleigh Road, Farmington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Diane, to Robert L. Svoboda Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robmington Road, Farmington. The bride-elect attended Michigan State University and is employed by Sinai Hospital in Detroit. Her fiancé is a graduate of North Carolina State University, where he majored in aeronautical engineering, and is an ensign in the U.S. Navy, stationed in Mississippi. They plan to be married in June.

CECELIA SALAMONE
Mr. and Mrs. Michael Salamone of Yale Avenue, Livonia, announce the engagement of their daughter, Cecelia, to Richard Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Jones of Sunset Avenue, Livonia. The bride-elect is a 1968 graduate of Stevenson High School and a University of Michigan senior. Her fiancé graduated from Bentley in 1966 and from Central Michigan University in 1970 and is employed by General Motors Corp. A spring wedding is planned.

CAROL MAHONEY
Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mahoney of Green Lane, Livonia, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol Sue, to Gary Rex Twigg, son of Robert Twigg of Dearborn and Mrs. Richard McCrimmon of Taylor. The bride-elect is a 1971 graduate of Bentley High School and employed in the D-C store in Livonia. Her fiancé is a petty officer in the U.S. Navy. No date has been set for the wedding.

BETTY CURRY
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Curry of Garden City announce the engagement of their daughter, Betty, to Louis Kline, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kline, also of Garden City. The bride-elect is a graduate of Garden City West High School and employed as a secretary at D. H. Overmyer Co. in Taylor. Her fiancé, a Garden City East High School graduate, is employed by Dependable Auto Parts, Dearborn. A May wedding is planned.

PATRICIA DAHLGREN
Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. Dahlgren of Orchard Lake Road, Farmington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Kay, to Brent G. Celinske, son of Mrs. Norman A. Celinske of Westhill Drive, Farmington. The bride-elect is a 1971 graduate of North Farmington High School and her fiancé graduated from North Farmington in 1969. The wedding will take place May 20 in Salem United Church of Christ, Farmington.

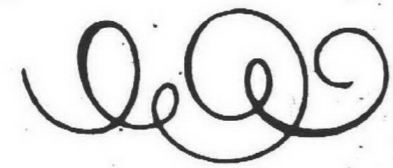

CHRISTINE MEYERS
Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Meyers of West Bloomfield Township announce the engagement of their daughter, Christine Laine, to Kenneth Adamski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Adamski of Capac, Mich. The bride-to-be is a graduate of North Farmington High School and the University of Michigan, where she was affiliated with Alpha Phi sorority. She is employed as a promotion manager by the J. L. Hudson Co. Her fiancé graduated from Western Michigan University, where he was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, and is a sales representative with Burroughs Corp. A Feb. 12 wedding is planned.

Junior DAR Members Star

Junior members of the Daughters of the American Revolution John Sackett chapter will present the program for the chapter's luncheon meeting at 12 noon Saturday, Jan. 8, in the Northwest YWCA, 25940 Grand River, Redford Township. Historical birthdays and anniversaries during January and February will be the theme. The chapter has seven junior members, young women between the ages of 18 and 35. They become full members of the DAR at 35. During a business meeting to be conducted by Mrs. Urbin R. Sutfin, regent, the chapter will name delegates to the annual state conference and Continental Congress.

DIANE FOREST

Mr. and Mrs. William Forest of Livonia announce the engagement of their daughter, Diane, to Jerald L. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick A. Smith of Birmingham. The bride-elect is a 1971 graduate of Franklin High School and employed as a dental assistant. Her fiancé graduated from Birmingham, Groves High School in 1968 and is employed by the engineering department of the Oakland County Road Commission. An early fall wedding is planned.

Artrain Topic

Mrs. William G. Milliken will talk about Michigan's Artrain for the meeting of the Salvation Army auxiliary at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 11, in the Salvation Army Auditorium, 601 Bagley, Detroit.

Pictures for wedding and engagement announcements must be mailed or brought to the office of The Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, 48150. Forms to supply the necessary information also may be obtained there. Pictures should be black and white and clear, and wedding pictures must be of the bride alone.

Our picture-printing charge is $2.50 for engagement and one-column wedding pictures; and $5 for two-column wedding pictures. Checks should be made out to The Observer Newspapers.

Pictures can be mailed back only if an addressed and stamped envelope is supplied. They also may be picked up at the office at 36251 Schoolcraft after publication.

There is no charge for a wedding or engagement announcement with no picture.

It is not possible to inform you exactly when the announcement will be printed. Extra copies of the paper in which it appears must be ordered after publication through our Circulation Department.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jernigan of Hix Road, Westland, announce the engagement of their daughter, Deborah Ann, to Charles Anthony Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Young also of Hix Road, Westland. The bride-elect is a student at John Glenn High School in 1971 and is serving in the U.S. Navy. No wedding date has been set.

PLYMOUTH RD.Livonia's First Lamaze Classes To Begin Jan. 13

The first series of childbirth preparation classes to be offered in Livonia will begin at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 13, in Holmes Junior High School, 16200 Newburgh.

The Lamaze Childbirth Education Association in Plymouth, now separating from the Ann Arbor group with which it has been affiliated, has announced it will offer the instruction in both Plymouth and Livonia from now on.

Classes will begin every three weeks, alternating between the Holmes school location and the Plymouth Credit Union, where courses have been offered for about three years.

EXPECTANT PARENTS interested are invited to call Mrs. Earl Harrington, 170 Blunk, Plymouth.

The group recommends that the classes be taken during the mother's last two months of pregnancy. Both parents are asked to participate, though the mother will be accepted if the father is unable to attend.

Instruction in the psychoprophylactic, or Lamaze, method of childbirth began in Plymouth in November of 1968. It was organized by a group of patients of the late Dr. Paul Benson, who was killed in an auto accident last summer.

These mothers felt there was a need for local instruction in the Lamaze method, named for a French physician who formulated the technique, and they joined with the Ann Arbor group that offered the instruction.

THE PURPOSE of Lamaze

Sewing Classes Begin Jan. 10.

A wide variety of sewir classes are scheduled in J.L. Hudson Westland and Northland stores beginning the week of Jan. 10.

Women interested in courses from fashion sewing I through III, tailoring, pants perfection and men's tailoring may register in the pattern departments. A special class for men also is being offered.

instruction is to provide both parents with an aware, intelligent approach to childbirth so that pregnancy and birth become a memorable and shared experience.

Since the first classes three years ago, more than 450 couples from the Plymouth area have participated in the childbirth preparation classes.

The instruction by registered nurses, which will remain the same as it has been while the group had its Ann Arbor affiliation, focuses on labor, birth, neuromuscular control and effective breathing techniques.

It involves education and conditioning, both mental and physical, to enable the mother to be confidently awake, aware and participating in the birth of her child.

A SPOKESMAN for the Plymouth association said the classes are valuable in replacing fears and misgivings with positive and supportive knowledge and also provide training in which the father may play a significant role.

"The amazing Dr. Benson," the spokesman added, "was a firm believer in educated childbirth."

"Since his loss, we have a void in physicians in the area who encourage and practice this method. Hopefully, more doctors will become aware of the benefits of having prepared parents to work with."

MR. AND MRS. FRANK P. WILSON

Wilsons Celebrate 60th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Wilson of Longacre Street, Farmington, began the new year by celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary. They were honored at a family dinner in the Gandy Dancer, Ann Arbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson have lived in Oakland County all their lives. Both were born in Auburn Heights where they owned an automobile agency until 1956. They have been residents of Farmington for the past five years.

Before becoming an automobile dealer in 1919, Wilson was an engineer with the Grand Trunk Railway.

He is a life member of Pontiac Lodge, F&M 21, and Mrs. Wilson is a life member of Eastern Star Lodge 228. They are long-time members of First Presbyterian Church of Birmingham.

The Wilsons have one daughter, Mrs. J.A. (Evelyn)

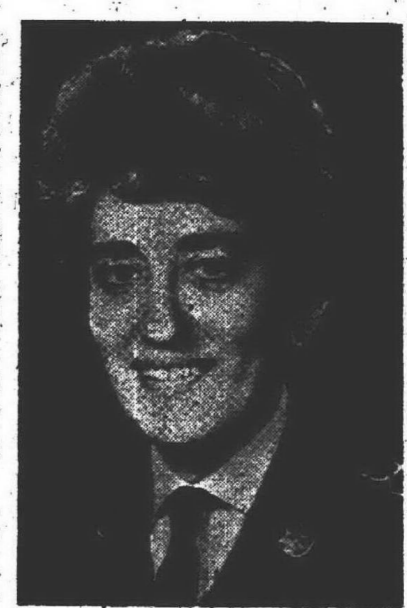

Kronmeyer of Farmington, and a son, Earl C. Wilson, of Union City, N.J. They have four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Israeli Colonel Will Speak To Pioneer Women

Mrs. Adele Mondry, secretary of the Israel Histadrut Campaign of Metropolitan Detroit and council chairman of Histadrut's Pioneer Women Division, has announced the program for the annual Pioneer Women event on behalf of Histadrut. It will take place Thursday, Jan. 13, 12:30 p.m. in the Laikin Auditorium of the Labor Zionist Institute, 28555 Middle Belt Road, Farmington.

Colonel Stella Levy, who served as the commanding officer of the Women's Army of Israel, will be the guest of honor. She was recently appointed by Israel's Foreign Office as Attaché for Women's Organizations at the Israeli Embassy in Washington, D.C. Colonel Levy is a member of the Headquarters General Staff and has the highest record of service among the women of Israel's armed forces.

She is one of the most important Israelis to have addressed the members of the Pioneer Women in recent years and Histadrut takes pride in having arranged her forthcoming visit to Detroit, enabling her to greet and meet what is considered by many to be the most active councils of the Pioneer Women.

At a recent executive board meeting of the council, final preparations for the dessert luncheon were formulated and approved by a committee headed by Mrs. Sam Fishman, vice-president of funds.

Invitations to attend the dessert luncheon have gone out to all Pioneer Women members. There will be no admission charge and those wishing to attend are encouraged to bring friends. The afternoon will end with the presentation of a musical program.

Miss Cotter Is Guest Stylist In New York

A Farmington resident, Louise Cotter, is one of 30 nationally-known guest hairstylists participating in the special press week beauty brunch Wednesday, Jan. 5, in the New York Hilton.

The press event is sponsored by the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, Inc., and leading firms connected with the beauty industry.

A feature of the brunch will be a fashion show focusing on spring wedding and trousseau designs. Miss Cotter will be assigned a model wearing a special trousseau outfit and will create a hairstyle for her.

Miss Cotter is director of styling for Virginia Farrell Beauty Schools of Detroit and owns a beauty salon in Northwest Detroit.

Family Y Schedules Macrame

Two courses in macrame, the art of creative knot-tying, are being offered in the new series of classes at the Livonia Family Y, 14255 Stark.

The knot-tying will be taught Wednesdays from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., a class designed especially for teens, and Thursdays from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Both will begin the week of Jan. 16.

Other courses to be offered are in sewing, cooking, yoga, knitting and crocheting, oil painting and guitar. Babysitting will be offered during daytime classes.

Registration for non-members of the Family Y will be held Thursday and Friday, Jan. 6 and 7.

McCartney Clarifies Action On Expense

Wayne County Commissioner James McCartney, whose district includes Garden City and most of Westland, issued a clarification of his views on the recently approved expense accounts for county commissioners.

The board of commissioners last month adopted a policy of allowing a maximum of $100 per month for each commissioner for justified expenses incurred on county business.

In a prepared statement, McCartney, Westland Democrat, said:

"I WOULD not support a pay increase of any kind for commissioners in the same term they were elected and therefore I voted against the expense account.

"There was much confusion about the specific expense account as it appeared on the agenda in its original form it would allow a flat $100 per month without any justifying for how it was spent.

"It was my feeling there were already enough votes to pass this original motion; therefore I joined a group of commissioners to amend it to an expense account that had to be accounted for before money would be reimbursed in amounts up to $100 and this amendment passed."

"THIS DID not mean I was in favor of the expense account but that if it did pass, all items spent had to be accounted for before it was repaid to the individual commissioners. This is much better than a flat $100 per month which is simply another way to increase a salary."

salary, thus I couldn't support it.

"THERE ARE many commissioners who take their jobs at the county very seriously and spend more than full time to make sure they represent the people effectively.

"We need more of these dedicated people who have the education and experience to give good direction to the third largest county in this country with a $234 Million budget.

"The county needs to pay a wage that will attract that kind of person with a sound background and the people given the right to elect someone they feel is qualified to represent them at that salary."

Father And Daughter Die 3 Days Apart

Services for a 79-year-old Livonia man and his 58-year-old daughter from Westland, who died within three days of each other, were held at the Harry J. Will Funeral Home recently.

James A. O'Leary, of 36705 Angeline Circle, Livonia, a retired tool and die maker, died suddenly Dec. 19 in St. Mary Hospital, and his daughter, Mariah Griffin of 37595 Scotsdale Circle, Westland died suddenly at St. Mary on Dec. 16.

Services for Mrs. Griffin were held Dec. 20 at the Will Funeral Home and St. Theodore Catholic Church, of which she was a member. Services for Mr. O'Leary were held at the funeral home Dec. 22. Rev. Dominic Albino officiated at services for both, and the father and daughter were both buried in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

Surviving Mr. O'Leary are: his three sons, Frank McEntee of Southfield, Harold McEntee of Utica and Winslow McEntee of Detroit; nine grandchildren; and 15 great-grandchildren.

Surviving Mrs. Griffin are: her husband, C. Howard Griffin; two daughters, Mrs. Kenneth Gentz of Livonia and Ann Griffin of Boston, Mass.; a son, Gordon Dorris of Mt. Clemens; her three brothers; and eight grandchildren.

Board's Charges Against Rossman Detailed

staff subordinates and, on occasions, teachers, as well as contractors and professional personnel serving the school district; all of which events occurred during the existence of the present contract.

"The Superintendent had these matters called to his attention on more than one occasion by various members of the Board, but persisted in the conduct described herein.

"III. Failed to carry out specific Board directives. As Policy No. 2110 and a new procedural policy, effective July 28, 1971 (No. 1502.1) clearly indicate, the Superintendent was to, both by contract and by stated policy, carry out the directives of the Board. This contract and these policies were breached in numerous instances, some of which are listed herewith:

"Subsequent to the execution of the Superintendent's contract and contrary to specific instructions given to him by members of the Board, he did knowingly refuse to give information to the Board about monies in the Fall of 1969, which failure on the part of the Superintendent to give such information, caused grave consequences both to the reputation of the School District and the relationship between the teachers and the Board of Education. In addition, the Superintendent, on other occasions, did:

"A. Contrary to Board Directive of July 27, 1971, write Mr. Al Durkee of O'Dell, Hewlett, and Luckenbach, Inc., on September 9, 1971, interfering with Mr. Blunk's area of responsibility.

"B. Fail to follow Board Motion relative to notification of parents on busing of students.

"C. Release to the press without proper Board authority and contrary to good judgment, forty-eight (48) items needing correction in the new Plymouth High School, without giving the architectural firm an opportunity to have contractors and tradesmen repair same.

"D. Consistently fail to follow Board directives relative to the minutes of the Board, in that the Superintendent failed to have included in various minutes language requested by the Board; failed to hire a Board Secretary as directed by the Board and attempted to change the minutes of the Board meetings, contrary to Board directives.

"E. Contrary to express direction of the Board, hold up work at the Central, Starkweather and athletic fields by interfering with staff personnel.

"F. Countermand the directions of Mr. Goble, who was acting under Board policy at the Miller site.

"G. Subsequent to specific direction given him by the Board, continued to interfere with the operations of the business office.

"H. Contrary to Board direction, continue to submit expenditures for the Canton Center Road Barn, certain tractor purchases and attachments, by verbally giving orders, again contrary to Board policy, ultimately investing in (what is tantamount to an eyecore in front of a six million dollar complex) the sum of approximately $10,000.00 for improvements to a storage barn and acquisition of a farm tractor.

"The specific charges as enumerated above are by no means exclusive. The evidence substantiating these charges consist of numerous exhibits, purchase orders, Board Resolutions and the like, in the hands of our attorneys, Draugelis and Ashton, along with a list of witnesses in excess of thirty

(30), who will be called upon to testify should the need arise. Finally, you should be reminded that the actions of this Board in judging your conduct are in no way political, for you were advised by the prior Board in November of 1970 of your deficiencies and lack of educational leadership. In February of 1971 the prior Board concluded that you had not only failed to provide the educational leadership and human relations ability acceptable to the District, but that you must correct them or seek other employment. You indicated at that time that you would attempt to correct the areas of deficiency, but failed totally to do so. Again, in March of 1971 the Board concluded that the best interest of the District demanded a change and to be fair to you asked that you seek a position elsewhere, offering then to make up the difference between the salary provided you by your new employment and your present salary, but not taking formal action which may have damaged your career.

"Again, in May of 1971 the former Board met with you in an effort to alleviate the worsening situation within the School District, at which time you agreed to reassignment within the District, and, in fact, worked out new duties which were tantamount of an admission on your part that you could not provide the educational and morale leadership the District required. On June 14, 1971 it became clear to the Board that you were not sincere in your efforts to either relocate or work out a new agreement serving the best interests of the District. It became clear to the new Board that your interests did not lie in the welfare of the District, but rather in substantiating your contractual position and, in spite of new duties which you agreed to, you continued to interfere with business and personnel affairs of this District to the extent that the morale of the District has deteriorated to the point where this Board saw fit to discharge you for cause on December 13, 1971.

"It is the position of this Board that it has bent over backwards in its continuing efforts to be fair to you. But that your sole response has been a continuation of the conduct complained of with a total disregard of not only the welfare of the District as opposed to your own self interests, but the very fundamental principles upon which this District is governed; that is, by the people through their elected representatives.

"In statements you have made to the press, totally self-serving, we note that you have been quick to take credit for the accomplishments of this District. We have also noted that you have been quick to claim certain 'rights' under the terms of your contract. We have declined to, so far, attempt to debate this matter in the press, since it seems to us the best interest of this School District would be better served by the resolution of these matters in a Court of law or some other proper forum. However, it should be noted that in taking credit for the accomplishments of this District which you serve, you do a disservice to those able administrators and, more importantly, the outstanding teaching staff who, for long years, have so ably served this District. We also note that while you hasten to claim your rights, you make no mention of your 'duties' and, as this Board notes, in failing to properly discharge your duties, severe consequences to this District have resulted. The breakdown in morale under your tenor has been most serious. The teachers' strike, the problems with the construction trades and architectural firm, charged with the construction of the new educational complex, perhaps could not have been remedied or totally avoided by you, but certainly as chief executive officer, you share a high degree of responsibility for these failures.

"The list of witnesses and their addresses, along with all documentation in support of the charges as herein specified, may be obtained by you from our counsel for this case, Mr. Edward Draugelis. All further communications in this matter should be directed through his offices.

FRESH NEW CAR TRADES WITH
LaRICHE "OK" USED CAR WARRANTY

100%

30 DAYS.
Buy on OK used car with confidence. Drive it that way, too. You get 100% repair or replacement cost coverage on engine, transmission, rear axle, brake system and electrical system for 30 days or 2000 miles, whichever comes first.

15%

24 MONTHS.
Our new OK used car warranty keeps coming on strong. You get 15% discount on parts and labor for any necessary repairs or parts replacement for a full 24 months. And our new OK used car warranty shows its strength in every state. That's because the 15% discount is good at any participating Chevrolet dealership in the U.S.A.
