Cannon Davies Dies At 72

The Rev. Cannon David T. Davies, 72, who has served as rector of St. Johns Episcopal Church since 1951 until his retirement in 1969, died at home in Ann Arbor Tuesday afternoon of cancer.

The lovable Welshman came to the United States in 1928 and after his acceptance of a post in Plymouth led the effort that resulted in the construction of St. Johns on Sheldon Rd., of which he has been rector emeritus since succeeded by Rev. Robert Shank.

Bishop Coleman McGehee and Rev. Shank will officiate at 11 a.m. funeral services Friday at St. John. Rev. Davies is survived by his wife Alva, and two sons John and Allen.

Chance To Swim

It's not necessary to search for the old swimming hole to take a summer dip—at least not in Plymouth. There's a wide variety of open swimming hours at the Central pool, and a new series of instructional classes will start Monday at the PHS pool. Details are in Plymouth Brevities.

New Bd. Of Ed. Starts Work

George F. Lawton was elected Monday to succeed Mrs. Esther Hulsing as president of Plymouth's Board of Education.

Lawton's election was anticipated because he is the senior member of the seven-member board. He was unopposed.

Also elected as officers of the board were Mrs. Marda Benson, vice president; Gary Mirto, secretary; and Dr.

John Ohno, treasurer. Unanimous ballots were cast for all offices.

Both Mrs. Benson and Mirto were elected on their first night attending the meeting as board members. They were elected to the board seats in June to fill vacancies left by Mrs. Hulsing, who had served on the board 18 years, and Wilson Sick Jr., who had been appointed to the board and declined to run for a full term.

Board member John Graves was nominated for the secretary's position but "respectfully" declined.

THE BOARD has experienced an almost complete changeover in the last year. Graves, Dr. Ohno and Fred Penar were elected to the board a year ago. Carl Berry was appointed to fill the vacancy left with the resignation of John Hanskat after he placed third in the June election. Lawton had been elected in 1970.

Lawton, 48101 Joy Rd., Canton Township, currently serves on the Canton Township Planning Commission and is a former Plymouth city commissioner. He is chief administrative officer of the Plymouth Community Federal Credit Union.

The 46-year-old Lawton was Plymouth's "man of the year" 10 years ago and has served as president of the Chamber of Commerce and held offices in the YMCA, Symphony Society, Kiwanis Club and other service organizations.

THE NEWLY-ELECTED Mrs. Benson, of 1073 Penniman, is experienced as a teacher and currently is one of the supervisors of student teachers at Eastern Michigan University. A Plymouth resident for eight years, Mrs. Benson has taught three years in Plymouth elementary schools.

Mirto, 39487 Winesap, is a 1961 graduate of Plymouth High School. He is working on his doctorate and law degrees and is an administrative assistant to the Detroit Central Board of Education. Dr. Ohno's experience in finances will aid him as board treasurer. He is currently employed in research and development at General Electric and has an educational background in engineering.

FOLLOWING PAST procedures, the board reaffirmed several past policies during the organizational meeting.

It voted to continue holding its meetings on the second Monday and fourth Tuesday of each month in the board office on S. Mill Street. This resolution will be revised when the board moves its offices to its new building on Harvey Street in Plymouth where the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. currently houses its offices.

Signatories were approved for school district business as in the past.

The board voted to maintain the district's banking procedures until the August meeting when a change might be suggested by Asst. Supt. of Business Melvin Blunk.

The district has done all its depositing with the National Bank of Detroit but recently received a request by the Detroit Bank and Trust to move some of its banking to that establishment.

BLUNK PRAISED NBD for its service to the district, including buying tax anticipation notes from the district in times "when money was scarce" and purchasing the last bond issue of $11 million. Blunk also stated that having two banks handle the district's finances could increase competition for district business.

The board asked Blunk to report in August on the feasibility of transferring some accounts to DBT. The district accounts include operating debt retirement, building and site, activity and cafeteria funds.

Four banks handle the districts' investments, depending on their interest rates. The banks are NBD, DBT, Michigan Bank and Bank of the Commonwealth. The auditing firm of Sutherland and Robson which has handled the district's accounts for more than 16 years was approved for another year's service.

General legal counsel will continue to be handled by William Sempliner and financial counsel by the firm of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone. The district will continue to employ specific legal counsel for some cases.

Deer-Union Link Will Bisect Park

By FRED DeLANO

Start of the city's $260,000 summer street paving program this week means that within a few days a strip of Kellogg Park will be ripped up for construction of the link between Deer and Union Streets.

Paveway Inc., a Sterling Heights firm which is the city's 1972 paving contractor, already has a crew at work on Junction, which will be paved its full length from Sheldon to Karmada.

Simultaneously, work will begin on six other streets including portions of Carol, Caster, Simpson, Harding and Karmada plus the Deer St. extension through the park.

City Engineer Thomas Waffan, who has resigned effective Aug. 4 to take a better paying job in Oakland County, expects all to be completed before he leaves.

Another extensive paving program has been mapped for 1973 and will include portions of Pacific, Hartsough, Farmer, Dewey, Roosevelt, Harding, Beech, Kellogg and Deer.

After public hearings Monday night, the City Commission unanimously endorsed the necessity of the Pacific and Hartsough projects, and the full program is expected to be launched in the spring.

THE IDEA of connecting Deer and Union by paving a connecting link that would cut off the east end of Kellogg Park first was proposed several years ago as part of a traffic loop that would surround the central business district. Deer, Union, Church, Harvey and Wing would be included in the circuit.

This is the first time, however, that funds ever have been included in the municipal budget for this specific purpose, $29,000 being earmarked for the park cutoff.

Waffan told a commission committee of the whole session Monday that the park strip will be 34 feet wide, including gutters, and will have an aesthetic design of inlaid brick pavers.

This will lead to the closing of Penniman Ave. between Ann Arbor Trail and Union and ultimately that portion of Penniman east of Union will be sodded and joined with the eastern portion of the park that contains Plymouth Rock. The Rotary fountain will remain in the western portion of the park.

FIVE TREES will have to be removed to make way for the park paving, and two gas lights will have to be moved. There also will be some sidewalk reconstruction.

All members of the commission except Ernie Henry have expressed enthusiasm for the park strip, but despite his opposition he said Monday that he will not take any legal steps to block the project.

The only proposal that was defeated Monday was a plan to pave another portion of Union, running from Mill to S. Holbrook, but it will be back on the agenda in the first meeting of August.

Band Parents, Board OK Rose Parade Trip

The Plymouth High School Marching Band's trip to Pasadena for the 1973 Tournament of Roses Parade was given the green light Monday by the board of education.

Supt. John Hoben reported to the board that responses from parents were running 96 per cent in favor of the trip, with the most recent tally at 121 to 6.

Board policy requires that 90 per cent of the parents approve such a trip.

Original estimates for the five to six day trip were revised downward with per pupil cost now set at less than $200 rather than $250.

Hoben said air fare will reportedly be $120 and students can stay in UCLA dormitories for $10 per night with two to a room, meals included.

Transportation to the parade, plus sightseeing, are expected to cost about $5 per day. Any projects to raise money for the trip have to be cleared by the board. Each student is responsible for his or her own expenses.

BANDMASTER James Griffith received the invitation from the Tournament of Roses Association only a month ago and, now that the board has granted trip permission, a committee of parents already is at work in cooperation with students on funding projects.

The band will be at its greatest membership strength in history next fall, now that ninth graders have moved into the high school and the adjacent Canton building is about to open. The marching membership is expected to be at least 150.

The Rose parade will be staged on Monday, Jan. 1 in Pasadena down the traditional five-mile route along Orange Grove and Colorado Blvds., and will be televised nationally.

PLYMOUTH'S symphony band won wide acclaim in 1969 for its concert performance in the Midwest Music Clinic at Chicago, when trumpeter Doc Serverson of Johnny Carson's "Tonight" show appeared with the Rocks as soloist.

Last winter, the band made another triumphant appearance at the Southern Conductors' Conference at the University of Mississippi, and for three years in a row it has won the highest attainable rating in Michigan high school competition.

Unless trip financing falls through, the band and its chaperons probably will fly west either Wednesday or Thursday, Dec. 27 or 28, and then returning to Plymouth on Tuesday, Jan. 2. Under this plan, students would miss only one day of classes.

THERE'S FUN TO BE HAD these summer days at five city playgrounds where the parks and recreation department provides supervision. Monday through Friday. For instance, a real swinger is five-year-old Steven Potzak, who is being given a push by his sister Jennifer, 7. The Auburn, Sutherland-Forest, Elm, Hamilton and Vest Pocket playgrounds are now open, all offering organized activities and equipped with playground apparatus. (Observer photo by Harry Mauthe)

Band Features Drifmeyer

PLYMOUTH
Jeffrey Drifmeyer, who in September will begin his third year as instrumental music director at West Middle School, will be in charge of the Plymouth Community Band Thursday evening for the third Kellogg Park concert of the summer.

He also will appear in the featured role with a trumpet trio whose special performance will highlight the 90-minute program which will open at 8 p.m.

The trio will present its interpretation of "Dover Coach" and, besides Drifmeyer, will include Dr. Carlyle Hume, also of the West musical faculty, and Clayton Leroue, president of the Community Band membership. Bandsman Keith Burton will be on the podium to direct the band accompaniment.

FEATURED numbers by the full band Thursday will include selections from "Jesus Christ, Superstar," "Oliver" and "Fiddler On The Roof," interspersed with a variety of marches.

Drifmeyer has built a strong Plymouth reputation in two years for his accomplishments with the West sixth, seventh and eighth grade bands, and will take the baton for the one evening as a pinch hitter for bandmaster James Griffith, who will be out of the city.

A native of Quincy, Mass., Drifmeyer earned his bachelor's degree in musical education at Boston University and his master's at the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y. He then served as an instructor of music for six years at Spencer Port, N.Y.

During these college and teaching years he also played the trumpet professionally in New York City for Broadway shows and other musical attractions.

The Stroller... Needs New Old Stories

By W. W. EDGAR

Several times during the past few weeks, the morning mails have brought nicely embossed invitations to The Stroller asking him to return to the banquet circuit as an after dinner speaker.

These well meaning invitations have come from luncheon clubs, fraternal organizations, sponsors of testimonial dinners and what not.

Traveling in the "lettuce league" always has been one of The Stroller's most enjoyable extra curricular activities, and nothing would please him more than to get on the fried chicken and green peas circuit.

Unfortunately, the invitations have come at a time when he is shy of material, especially old stories. No speaker is worth his salt unless he tries to place some new angle on an old story -- but he is now shy of oldies.

That's why he is asking for help. If you have any old timers that you think would aid a speaker in trouble, The Stroller would be most appreciative.

"WHAT KIND of old stories?" you might ask.

Well, when he was a regular on the banquet circuit, one of The Stroller's favorites concerned the experience of a visiting society matron on one of the old time double decker buses in downtown Detroit.

It so happened when she got on the bus, there was only one seat vacant. It was on the aisle about midway on the lower level and next to a man who seemed to have imbibed too freely of the amber fluid, and he was the worse for wear.

Adjusting her lorgnette and with a sort of sneer, she settled back in her seat as the tour began.

As the bus moved out Jefferson, the tour guide called attention to the U.S. Rubber works and the giant stove that used to guard the entrance to Belle Isle bridge. Once on the east side, he started to identify houses.

"In the next block to the right," he called, "is the Dodge home."

"Horace Dodge?" the matron asked with a smile and the tour guide answered, "No, John."

A bit later he called out, "In the next block is the Ford home."

Again the matron, with a stiff hold on her lorgnette, asked, "Henry?"

And the tour guide glanced at her and answered, "No, Edsel."

Disappointed, the matron sat back, silent. Finally the bus reached Grosse Pointe and the conductor called out --

"In the next block is Christ church."

The matron sat quiet. But the inebriate at her side spoke up--

"Try again lady -- you can't be wrong all the time."

THEN THERE was the old time yarn of the preacher down south, so disturbed by the alleged carrying - on of his parishioners that he devoted an entire sermon to the sins being committed in his area.

At the height of his emotion he called out -- "If there is anyone here without sin, please stand."

At that, a stylishly attired lady about town, with a baby in her arms, stood up in the rear of the church.

"Oh, no, not you, Mandy," the preacher called out.

To which the stylishly dressed lady shouted back, "You didn't expect this baby to stand alone, did you?"

THESE ARE JUST a few samples of the type of oldies that would come in handy again as The Stroller contemplates a return to the knife and fork galas.

In return, he's happy to pass along his latest after dinner yarn.

It seems President Nixon was experiencing several sleepless nights, tossing and rolling in bed with thoughts of the war, the economic situation and the myriad other problems.

Finally, he arose, dressed, and started walking around the White House lawn, and finally down the street. When he arrived at the Lincoln Memorial in the wee hours, he stopped, looked up at "Honest Abe" and thought to himself, "How peaceful."

Climbing the steps, he finally got on Lincoln's lap.

"Please, Mr. Lincoln," he asked, "would you be kind enough to give me a solution to my problems?"

To which Lincoln softly whispered -- "Have you given any thought to going to the theater?"

That's it. Let's hear from you with some of the "oldies."

Bathtubs are really worth considering when you are in the market for a new home. A prime example of a badly placed bathtub may be one that is placed next to a window which may be cold during winter. You must also consider what the tub is made of. Standard bathtubs are made of cast iron, but cheaper ones are made of steel. Five feet long, 30" wide, and 14 or 15 inches deep is the best size for that all-important tub.

HARTFORD REALTY INC., 975 S. Main St., 453-7600 is aware of the many details to consider in assessing the merits of a new home and can help you make a wise selection. Our staff, specialists in the various areas around Plymouth, work side by side with developers. We have our own mortgage department and do all the processing for the mortgage. Open: 9-9, Mon.-Fri.; 9-5, Sat., Sun.

HELPFUL HINT: Always turn the water on in your prospective dream house and listen for noisy plumbing.

Terminations, Leaves OK'd

Two resignations and four terminations were approved by the Plymouth Board of Education this week along with two extensions of leaves of absence.

Susan McEwen, remedial reading teacher at Plymouth High School, and Ellen F. Wilson, math teacher at Central, resigned from the district effective in June.

The leaves of Janet Cummings, Elizabeth Gribble, Susan Kokko and Martha Schryer led to terminations based on a contract provision that if no notification is received by the district prior to conclusion of the leave, the teacher is terminated.

Extensions of leaves were approved for Mary Hammond, third grade teacher at Bird, and Mary E. Uhl, second grade teacher at Bird.

THROUGH BIFOCALS

By FRED DeLANO / Editor Mail & Observer

ONCE AGAIN it has become evident that there just is no way to stand in the way of progress, or at least what a changing world considers progress.

Only a few months ago, Plymouth saw the end to a century of service by passenger trains, and July has brought another development which shows how emphasis in the realm of communication has changed.

Maybe you hadn't noticed, but if you will look at the window of the Western Union office at Wing and Harvey, you will see an announcement that it has been closed.

A semblance of service still is being offered through the Chamber of Commerce facilities in the Mayflower Hotel, but Western Union, as we used to know it, is fading from the scene as assuredly as the steam locomotive.

UNLESS RESTRAINED by a federal court order in a proceeding which was started this week, Western Union's closing of this and other Michigan offices will become permanent.

The directors of our local chamber agreed to handle the traffic of incoming and outgoing messages at its Mayflower office at a flat fee per message, but this coupling of duties for the staff is a stop-gap measure at best.

The main reliance will be on the telephone. After a 30-day trial period, the chamber and Western Union will compare notes to see whether a continuation of even this token service is feasible.

As microwave and computerized communication systems have developed, it would seem that the old fashioned Western Union service has become a burden to the telegraph company, and now it wants out from under. Such are the times in which we live.

THE LEGAL dispute over the closing of this and other Michigan offices is basically jurisdictional, and it is one which finds the Federal Communications Commission at least temporarily at odds with the Michigan Public Service Commission.

Some time ago, the FCC gave Western Union permission to close its offices, and the company argues that the FCC jurisdiction is exclusive.

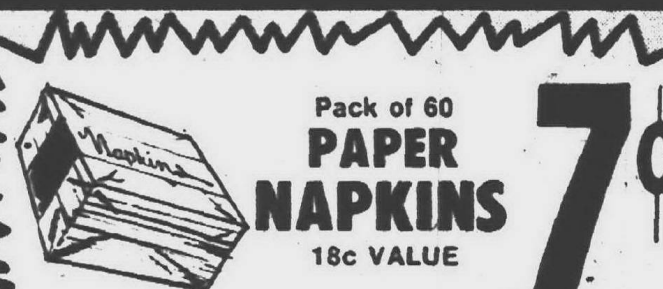

On the other hand, after hearings in Lansing, the state said such closings would be "contrary to public convenience and necessity" and issued an order to keep offices open. Western Union went ahead with its plans, and the Plymouth facility was just one of those that fell by the wayside.

One would assume that our chamber staff will do its best to serve two masters under the new arrangement, but one or the other is likely to suffer. Perhaps the girls can find greater romance in their assignment if they are shown that old movie portraying the building of the first transcontinental telegraph line in 1861.

SUMMER CLEARANCE

Bear Ruins Camp Serenity

Senior Girl Scout Troop 501 of Plymouth set out last month for a quiet two weeks of primitive camping in Ontario's Algonquin Provincial Park, but its peace was shattered when rangers shot a "garbage can" black bear on their group camp site.

A ranger explained that when the bears which get in the habit of snooping around campsites for food become a nuisance they must be destroyed. He told the scouts that beautiful bears will not be killed because of people invading their territory," said troop advisor Mrs. Lorraine Hurtik.

"This will be the rule for this scout troop from now on so that beautiful bears will not be killed because of people invading their territory," said troop advisor Mrs. Lorraine Hurtik. She said the girls swapped patches with a group of Canadian boy scouts.

The girls earn money for the trip during the year by selling calendars, cookies and candy.

Scouts who went on the trip were: Beverly Cholpan, Nancy Hay, Lynne Hughes, Patti Hurtik, Patty Reece, Pat Riley, Judy Rosbalt, Kathy Snyder and Shirley Roebuck. Transportation was provided by Sarah Snyder and Mrs. Hurtik.

Gym Floor Repairs Under Way

PLYMOUTH Plymouth-Salem High School's gym floor may be ready for use in September despite pessimism in the school district.

The bubbles in the tartan floor have caused innumerable headaches and much horn-locking, but it's finally being torn up and will be resurfaced by the contractor.

Ralph Gobel, supervisor of new construction, told the school board Monday that the bubbles were caused from a chemical reaction between the latex filament, the tartan surface and the concrete floor. The reaction caused a powder to form and push toward the center, causing bubbles in the surface.

Renewed concern over the floor was stirred by PSHS principal Bill Brown, who recently stated in a memo that the floor would be needed by Sept. 7 when classes begin.

The gymnasium is scheduled for 90 per cent usage. "If it is not operable our physical education program will suffer greatly," Brown said.

The school district still holds a $50,000 bond from J. A. Ferguson Construction Co. to force such repairs before the floor is finally accepted. Once the board accepts the floor, it is guaranteed for one year.

Rock Concert Goes 'Boogie' Route Friday

PLYMOUTH The second in a summer series of rock concerts to be presented Friday night in Plymouth Township park will carry a special appeal for adults.

Featured in the program which will run from 6 to 9:45 p.m. will be the "boogie beat" familiar to older generations, as well as the progressive rock music of the present era.

The concert will be presented by Youth Inc. in the park area at Ann Arbor Trail and McClumpha.

The Chip Stevens group, Walpurgis and Stretch Thomas, formerly known in the metropolitan area as Assemblage, will provide the entertainment. The first concert two weeks ago drew about 300 young persons and was conducted without incident.

Friday's tickets are available in advance for $1 at the Youth Center, 271 S. Main. They will be $1.50 at the gate.

Livonians Make Move, Crush Westland

By TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

Livonia's Griffin Sport could be the team to beat in the second round of Adray baseball play.

Ron Helliher's squad completed the first half in a tie for third with Westland Burger King at 7-3 but if the first two games of the second half are any indication... things should be different.

First half champion Redford lost its first game to Mario Sinicola, second place Dearborn dropped two games, and Burger King suffered its quick defeats.

"Things are just reversed now," said Coach Helliher whose baseballers dropped the first game of the first round to Burger King.

GRIFFIN is now coming into its own with Helliher boasting an overall batting mark of .324 and his pitchers showing a 0.539 earned run average.

Livonia blanked Burger King, 6-0, behind the one hit pitching of Tony Kaseta. The hard throwing righthander struck out eight with Karney Derderian collecting the lone hit with a single to center in the fourth inning.

Art Mach and Dave Conlin worked for Westland with Livonia booming out 11 hits with starter Mach taking the loss.

LIVONIA SCORED one in the second when Pat Perino drew a walk, and Gar Frantz and John Sichta singled. Steve Chilenko walked to open the third, Jeff Waterstone singled and Frantz doubled in Chilenko to push the lead to 2-0.

Four runs in the fifth concluded the scoring with Livonia connecting for four singles. Howard Schryer singled and Perino walked. Frantz, Sichta and Kaseta delivered three straight hits to finish the Livonia assault.

Dave Rice went after his third win against Northville and finished with a two hit 4-0 victory, striking out three and walking two.

Livonia scored once in the second after two outs. Chilenko singled and scampered in on a three bagger by Sichta. A Rice three bagger and a single by Perino made it 2-0 in the third.

With two outs in the fifth, Livonia scored two to tuck away its second half win.

Rice and Turkington singled, Henriksson walked and Perino singled to score Rice and Turkington.

ONE ITEM Coach Helliher has had to marvel at in the last two games is the hitting by his pitchers. Kaseta and Rice each went three for three in their last outings.

Mario Sinicola pulled the surprise upset with a 3-2 win over powerful Redford... the first loss suffered by Pat Sheridan's squad.

"We gave them the game," said Coach Sheridan. "We outthit them and they got only one hit, but we committed five errors, but that's baseball."

Sinicola was the lone blemish in Redford's first round with a 2-2 tie.

The contest went nine innings with Denny Blazok pitted against Laciona Graham.

BLAZOK was released by Redford Coach Sheridan before the season and Sinicola mentor Harry DeBash picked up the righthander and for Blazok the win had to be sweet.

Besides beating the team that released him... it was the last game for him before entering the Army. The day after beating Redford, Blazok was to go into the Armed Forces.

Blazok went the distance, allowing nine hits, striking out three and walking four.

GRAHAM and Steve Kreager worked for Redford with the duet hurling a one hitter and striking out 15.

Redford opened with a run in the first as Bill Herbert blasted a four bagger over Sinicola's Ray Ponke. A walk to Gordie Eszes, a ground out and two bagger by Dan O'Brien scored the second run in the third stanza.

South Farmington's Sinicola unit came up with two runs in the top of the fourth without the benefit of a hit. Tony Wenson was safe on an error and with two strikes, Blazok bunted back to Graham, the Redford hurler couldn't make up his mind where to throw and finally uncorked a wild toss to first with runners now at first and second and no outs.

Terry Smith then bunted with Graham picking up the ball and throwing over the third baseman's head and Wenson and Blazok both scored to notch it at two all.

SINACOLA SQUEAKED across another run in the top of the ninth with its lone hit. With one out, Bruce Ecomamau walked and Greg Hool singled. Paul Kuper-schmidt then hit a grounder to third.

The third baseman rifled a throw to second for the force but the attempt for a double play went astray at first and Ecomamau scampered in with the third unearned run.

Sinicola remained undefeated in the second half with an 8-0 victory over Plymouth on Joe Koterba's four hitter.

KOTERBA struck out eight and walked two and Plymouth's Tom Cook gave up eight hits, struck out one, walked two and hit two.

Sinicola scored two in the first when Ray Ponke was hit by a pitch, John Pantaloie singled, Terry Smith and Ecomamau walked and Hool was hit by a pitch.

Harry DeBash's squad came up with two more in the third inning. Rick Pauline and Smith were safe on errors, Ecomamau walked and Hool was safe on an error with two scoring.

Four runs climaxed the scoring in the fourth stanza on six hits. Ponke doubled, Pantaloie singled, Wenson tripled, Ecomamau and Hool singled and Steve King doubled.

Northville Toppled By Redford

Redford opened second half Adray baseball action with a shutout victory over Northville Reef, 3-0.

Steve Kreager and Dan O'Brien worked the Redford mound and combined for a two hitter, striking out eight and walking five with starter Kreager taking the win.

Jeff Moon went the route in the losing cause, allowing five hits, striking out five and walking two.

Redford scored all three runs on solo round trippers.

DAN MALONE blasted his first home run in the third to give Redford a 1-0 lead and Jeff Washington followed with homers in the fourth and sixth for his third and fourth of the season and Redford had chalked up win No. 10.

Hit .442 Junior Year

Franklin's Gar Frantz All-State First Baseman

The first All-State baseball team was selected with Observerland boasting the first base position in Franklin High's Gar Frantz.

The senior-to-be hit .442 his junior year with 27 hits in 61 at bats and was selected by a 10 coach panel acting on reports by coaches throughout the state.

Frantz bats lefthanded and was an unanimous All-Observer. All-Northwest Suburban Conference and received honorable mention in the All-Metro lineup.

Besides the 27 hits in 61 at bats, the All-Stater scored 15 runs, hit seven doubles, three triples, three home runs and collected 21 runs batted in.

FRANKLIN HIGH Coach Ron Helliher backed the first sacker all the way and knows he has the nucleus for a solid team with Frantz coming back next year.

"There isn't enough you can say about Frantz," said Helliher. "He's out there to play baseball and just attacks the ball with his bat."

Lake Orion swept state honors in the pitcher-catcher position with Glen Thorpe the No. 1 hurler with a 13-0 record with a 0.98 earned run average.

Catcher Kirk Erickson hit .452 for Lake Orion to receive the No. 1 spot behind the plate in the state.

The other pitcher to receive All-State acclaim was Mort Weber, of Swartz Creek, who compiled a prep record of 29-9 with 21 strikeouts recorded in one game along with a no-hitter.

Rounding out the infield with Frantz is: Dave Embree of Harper Woods Gallagher with a .357 batting average; Jeff Ewers of Coldwater at .396; and Jesse Gallegos of Lansing Waverly with a .368 batting mark.

The All-State outfield has: Al Weston of Hazel Park with 49 hits the past season including 11 home runs; Flint Northern's Demris Lee with a .434 average; and Lynn VanDer-steen of Grand Ledge hitting at a .424 clip.

Oddly enough, state champion Royal Oak Kimball didn't sport one player on the Class A All-State baseball squad.

Rowing On

Wayne State University won the varsity eight, varsity four and junior varsity four races while dropping the jayvee eight race in 1972's sixth annual Grand Valley invitational rowing championships.

GAR FRANTZ

NOT ALL PITCHERS cared to pitch to Franklin High's All-Stater Gar Frantz. Some went to the tactic of jamming the lefthander who hit .442, and Frantz learned to accept the close pitches with the best. (Observer photo)

Plymouth Goes Wild...30 Runs

Plymouth baseball Coach Wayne Sparkman might have had a tired arm after Saturday's Connie Mack sweep over Lambert & Sons but it was a feeling that he long enjoyed. Coach Sparkman waved in a total of 30 runs as his Elks crushed Lambert, 18-4, in the first game and came back with a 12-0 triumph.

Plymouth collected 14 hits in the opener and only six in the second contest with Lambert hurlers giving up a total of 23 bases on balls to aid the Elks cause.

Lambert & Sons and Plymouth now sport opposite records with Plymouth showing a 6-1 mark and Lambert a 1-6 record.

STEVE ROBB and Keith McDonald worked the Plymouth mound in the 18-4 win allowing only three hits, striking out six and walking nine. Robb picked up the win as the starter.

Mike Godfrey and Frank Grabeck worked for Lambert with Godfrey taking the loss.

Four home runs sparked the Plymouth attack in the first game with Jeff Waller, Larry Graves, Ron Egloff and Steve Crowther all clearing the fences.

Waller was three for five with five runs batted in with Dave Hees hitting two for three with two runs batted in.

PLYMOUTH mustered only six hits in the nightcap but made use of 11 walks to score an easy victory.

The combination of Graves and Rob Willett gave up only four hits, struck out 14 and walked three on the Plymouth mound with starter Graves chalking up the win.

Boyd Harris and Grabeck worked for Lambert and Coach Tony Lambert had to be wondering if his pitchers knew where home plate was. Harris took the loss.

Plymouth opened with four runs in the first inning. Dave Hees walked and stole second. Robb and Egloff followed with walks with both scoring on two wild pitches. Jim Grimmer followed with a single and Dan Hees "double suicided" home the runners to make it a four run advantage.

The Elks added two in the second on five consecutive walks to Jeff Stringham, Dave Hees, Robb, Egloff and Grimmer pushing the score to 6-0.

Plymouth concluded its assault with six tallies in the sixth stanza. Robb started the bats moving with a solo round tripper over the left field fence.

GRAVES was safe on an error and moved to second on a wild pitch. Don McDonald walked and Don Bidwell was safe on an error. Waller singled in McDonald after a run-down play at the plate with McDonald sliding in safe.

Mike Lindman and Stringham followed with singles and Lindman crossed the plate with run No. 30 for Plymouth in a sweep for the National League bid in Connie Mack action.

The Court Jester

by BILL CAMERON

Several years ago I asked a well-known international tennis player, (male, of course) his opinion of mixed doubles matches. Since that time our society has learned to accept x-rated movies, four-letter words, and topless dancers, but that players' response, today, is still unprintable.

For those of you who don't understand exactly what mixed doubles is, let me attempt to enlighten you. It is a game of doubles engaged in by two members of the opposite sex on a team, usually thrown together by some stroke of fate, generally marriage.

It is an entertaining diversion usually occurring on weekends, and suggested by the least capable player. After all, what husband or wife could refuse the request of their mate for a few sets of tennis? (Usually those married for less than five years!!!)

Don't husbands make the best coaches for their wives? "The family that plays together, stays together." Truly now, what spouse doesn't get a real thrill from playing tennis with their mate? Stand up and be counted - one, two.....

UNDER THE RIGHT circumstances you can enjoy the game, if you stick to the "Cameron method" you can't go wrong. Rule number one - through 10 choose your partner wisely. This takes guts. Never play with your wife/husband, if you can avoid it. Fellows, if you can't find a good player, choose a good looking player, preferably voluptuous, in hopes that she'll distract the guy on the other side of the net.

Gals, wear the most feminine tennis clothes you can find. It may inspire your partner, after all he has to look at you from the rear. And the guy on the other side of the net may take pity on you and not hit the ball so hard.

Gals, don't learn to volley, lob or hit an overhead. After all, those are strokes that your partner will take care of. Besides, you wouldn't want anyone to think you were aggressive would you? Fellows, only hit the ball hard at your male opponent. You wouldn't want that frail creature to learn how to handle a hard hit ball. She may get good.

FORTUNATELY we have some good female players around. (This part is called getting off the hook!) I really enjoy playing with and against Ellie, Mary, Nancy, Linda, Barb, Peg, Carol, Jeannine, Kathy, Janice, honest I do. The potential for greatness is there, if you'd just be a little more aggressive!

Now if I could only get up the nerve to ask that cute, little redhead to play!

Livonia Optimist Captures 2 Wins For Price Of One

Livonia Optimist baseball Coach Dick DeVries would like to have more doubleheaders like that against North Farmington in Connie Mack American League action.

It was two wins for the price of one.

North Farmington could only come up with seven players in the morning contest and Livonia had a forfeit win.

The afternoon game saw North Farmington field a team but it didn't make much difference to Livonia. The Optimists scored an 11-2 win behind the five hit pitching of Gary Grills, and now boast a 3-6 record.

Marty Raymond was the first of three to work on the North Farmington mound and suffered the loss.

A SINGLE by Steve Houghton, two passed balls and a ground out opened the scoring for Livonia in the first.

The Optimists rallied for five in the second to make it 6-0. Grills drew a walk and Chuck Herst and Bruce Boudnek singled to fill the bases. Bill Klopp was safe on an error to score one and Houghton smacked a three-run triple. An error allowed Houghton to score and Livonia was well on its way.

North Farmington woke up in the top of the sixth to score twice on two walks and an error but the Livonia bats proved too overwhelming with five more runs in the bottom of the inning.

KLOPP was hit by a pitch and Houghton delivered his third hit. Steve Marlow walked to fill the sacks with two out.

Next came enough for any manager to swallow and North Farmington mentor Lew Doot did his share of swallowing.

Paul Roshirt was hit by a pitch to force in one run, and Mark Newell, Grills, Herst and Boudnek followed with consecutive walks to force in four more runs.

Livonia Women Reach Halfway Golfing Mark

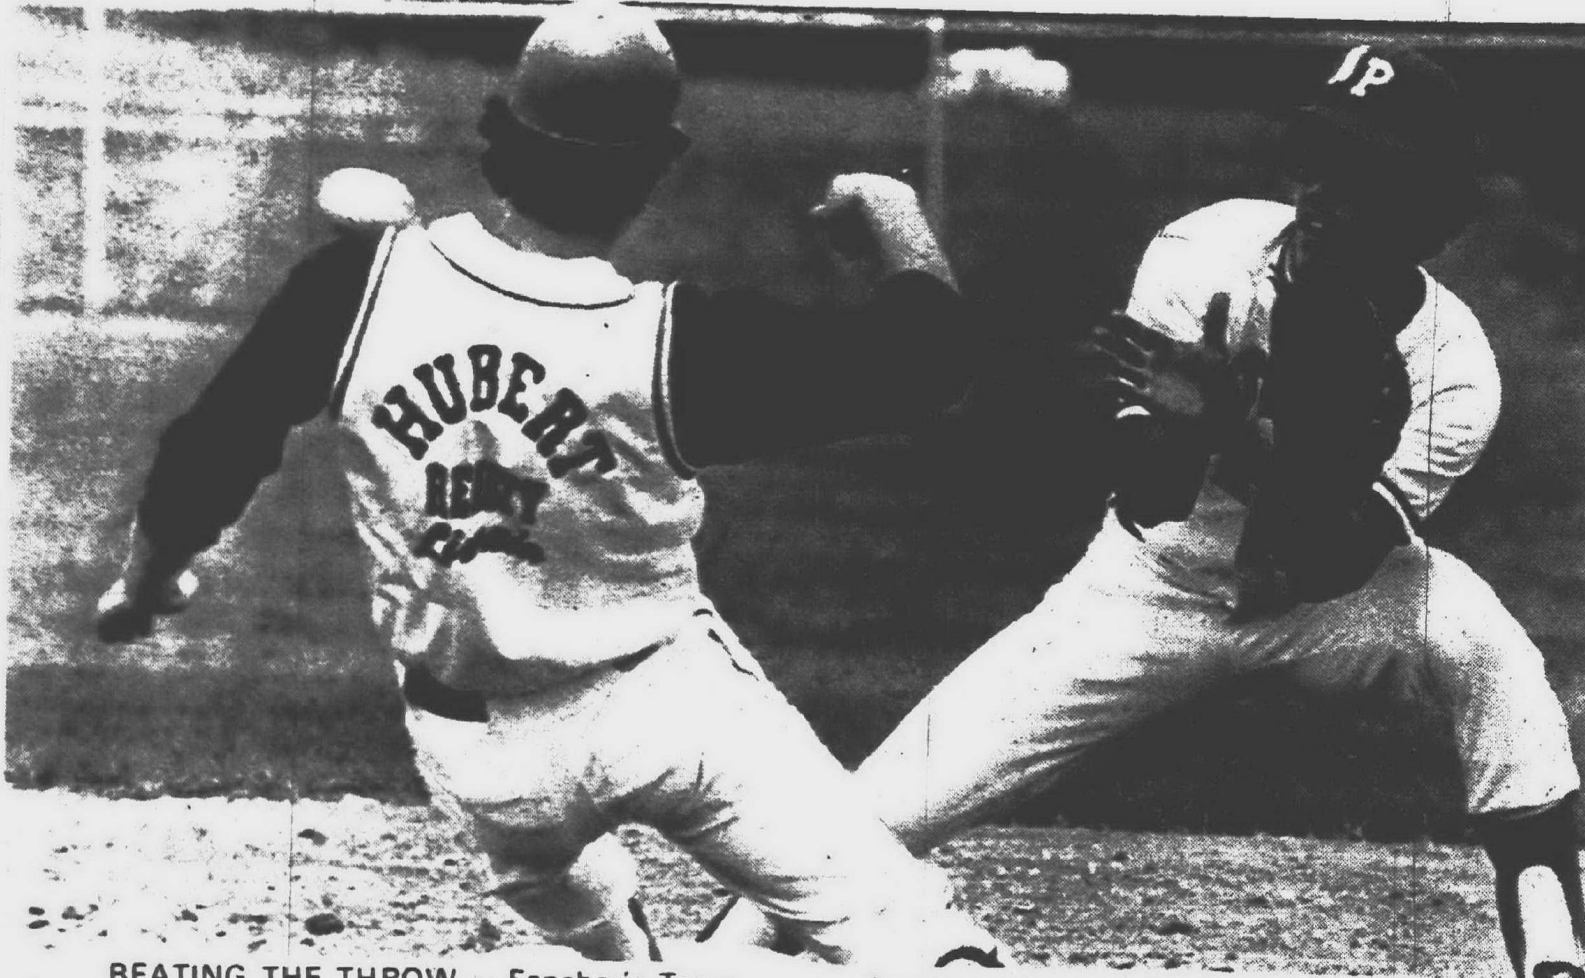

The halfway mark—and reflighting time—has been reached by the Livonia Women's Golf League and the changes had little effect on the good scores the girls have been having.

The latest round at Whispering Willows saw Jackie Archer take low gross honors for A flight with a 46. In B flight it was a three-way tie between Emily Durham, Irma Bolling and Alice Pickhardt, all with 52.

Mary Gilbertson continues to set the C flight pace with a 53 and Marge Kiley copped D flight honors with a 55.

In E flight it was a two-way tie between Janet Rich and Jo Gienthke, both with 64 while Pat Pilgram in F flight also had 64.

Just three strikes behind—with a 67—was G flight's low gross winner Joan Gatt.

Last Place Team Making Turnabout With 2 Victories

Garden City finished last in the first round of Adray baseball competition with a 1-9 record but things are going to be different in the second round for Coach Cass Simpson and his crew from Garden City.

North Farmington's Koebel and Westland Burger King both fell victim to Garden City in the opening two games of the second half.

Mike Volas hurled a three hitter in a 5-1 win over Koebel and Greg Puishes chucked a four hitter in a 4-3 triumph over Burger King.

It was Volas against Mike Dreyer in the opening game with Volas holding the upper hand, and chalking up the win. Garden City jumped to a one run lead in the first when Terry Dobbs singled, stole second and scored on Rich McCain's single.

GARDEN CITY made it 3-0 in the third when Paul Pierson singled, stole second and scored on Steve Orr's hit. Dobbs followed with a run producing double.

A two bagger by Steve Orr and a single by Ken Gugel pushed the margin to four in the fifth stanza. Walks to Pierson and Steve Orr started the sixth with both advancing on a double steal.

With two out, Volas singled to score Pierson with the fifth and final run.

Koebel came up with its lone tally in the top of the seventh. Dreyer doubled and pinch-hitter Rick Garnau singled him in.

BURGER KING scored three times in the first inning and it looked like a Westland rout but Puishes settled down and Garden City woke up with four of its own in the bottom of the sixth to score a 4-3 win.

Phil McMillan drew a walk to start Westland off in the first. Karney Derderian singled and Bob McSpadden doubled in McMillan. Art Mach then blasted a two run triple and Burger King was up, 3-0.

The three run margin held to the last of the sixth.

Junior Captain

Redford's Warholak Tires took a giant step towards the American League Connie Mack baseball title with a 9-2 win over North Farmington and a 7-3 victory over Fancher's.

Bob Atkins' crew now boasts an overall mark of 8-1 with Churchill's National Pride the closest contender at 6-1. Fancher's and Phillippi slipped to identical 5-3 records.

Tom Miller hurled a four-hitter in the North Farmington contests, walking one and striking out eight with Lou Doot suffering the defeat.

Redford opened with four runs in the first.

R.J. LEROUX walked, stole second and scored on an error with Steve Friedman safe at second. Friedman moved around to third on a wild pitch and scored on a sacrifice fly by Kurt Fritz. Mark Yourchick, Glenn Richmond and Lupe Bravo followed with hits to push across two more runs.

The bottom of the inning saw North Farmington produce its two runs. Chuck Wolfe tripled in a North runner who had got on via an error and Tom Hamilton singled in Wolfe, and it stood 4-2.

Warholak added four in the fourth to all but tuck the game away. Bravo walked, stole second and moved to third on a hit by Kalil. Miller singled in Bravo and LeRoux was safe on a fielder's choice with Miller out at second. Mike Johnston singled to score Kalil and Miller scored on a throwing error.

FRIEDMAN followed with another hit and Johnston put on the speed and made it 8-2 for Redford.

LeRoux finished the scoring in the sixth when he was safe on an error, moved to second on an infield out, stole third and scampered in on a sacrifice by Friedman.

Lefthander Tom Nippa went after Stevenson's varsity squad (Fancher's) and captured his fifth win with no defeats, 5-0.

THE REDFORD HURLER chalked up a three-hitter, struck out 11 and walked six. Terry Laird, Tom Centers and Zaliagris worked for Fancher's with starter Laird suffering the loss.

A five run explosion in the first gave Warholak all the margin it needed for victory. LeRoux drew a walk and stole second. Friedman singled to score LeRoux. Johnston delivered a single to score Friedman, moved to second on an error and scored on a passed ball.

Richmond singled, Bravo walked and Kalil grounded out to complete the opening stanza.

FANCHER'S came back with three tallies in the second without the benefit of a hit.

Mark Tressler drew a walk and Terry Laird grounded into what appeared to be the "first of two" double plays. Nippa picked up the grounder but threw into center field. Mark Keifer followed with a grounder to shortstop that was again tossed into right field with one scoring.

Terry McElroy then sacrificed in Laird and Tom Centers grounded out for the third run.

WARHOLAK added two insurance scores in the last of the fifth when Richmond tripled, Bravo tripled and Kalil singled.

Rink Nears Completion

WESTLAND Despite the warm, summer weather, Westland hockey and ice skating fans are looking forward to trading in their baseball gloves for ice skates next month.

By that time, the skating fans and hockey league players will have the $1 million enclosed ice rink available for their use.

THE FACILITY, called "Sportsland," is a privately-owned building on the north side of Cherry Hill Rd., just west of Newburgh, which is scheduled to open its doors and ice rink by Aug. 1.

Rink Manager Leon Rousseau said a variety of hockey and skating schools will be offered next month in preparation to the formation of hockey leagues.

The rink owned by Westland Arena, Inc., has an 85 by 200-foot ice surface and seating capacity for 1,000 with future plans calling for 1,800 capacity.

MEL BAILEY, Westland's parks and recreation director, was on hand last week to tour the new facility along with Mayor Eugene McKinney and City Engineer Kenneth West.

who is an active hockey league enthusiast.

The city administration is planning to build a similar facility at Jaycee Park where the city now owns an open ice rink. State funds are expected to be approved soon to allow the enclosure of the Jaycee Park rink.

Bailey said that the recreation department last winter 48,000 persons used its two ice rinks with an estimated 6,000 using the rinks during the week between Christmas and New Year's Day.

McKINNEY said that the new privately-owned rink would complement the proposed Jaycee Park rink program. The city administration, he said, is now studying in detail the Jaycee Park enclosure and is impressed with the Westland Arena's facility.

McKinney said that the city is faced with a lot of work to be done with architects and he hoped that he will have a recommendation and report to the city council in the next few weeks.

ROUSSEAU said that a power skating school will be held the first two weeks of August primarily for youngsters just learning to skate.

A hockey school will start Aug. 14 for those eight years and younger.

The one-week hockey school will be given by the Dixie Hockey School of Toronto.

A week later, there will be a hockey school for those eight years and older by Detroit Red Wing center Red Berenson and the Dixie school.

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

Although the county fair season just opened a week ago, with the annual Lake Odessa Fair, the top contenders for the state's two and three year old pacing and trotting championships will perform at Northville Downs this week.

In keeping with the agreement with the Michigan Harness Horsemen's Association, the 'Downs will present eight of the colts stakes, each with a value of $5,000.

The said part of the situation is that most of the colts and fillies have raced enough to get a clear line on their abilities. Thus all that is accomplished at Northville, and the same thing happened at the recent Wolverine meeting, is that owners of the winners will share in the $5,000 purses but very little will be learned about the entrants.

Matter of fact, few if any will have any kind of a record and lines for past performances will come from the events held prior to the racing programs.

The said fairs start, the colts and fillies will meet every week and in some instances twice in a week. The only rub is the season-long series, which continues through September, doesn't begin until the Lake Odessa fair.

TRADITIONALLY, the interest of the horsemen is focused on the two and three year old pacing events... the ones for the colts and geldings and those for the fillies.

As of this moment, none has a clear idea as to who will come out on top at the end of the season.

Racing Secretary Harry Peterson is having problems arranging the races and knew Monday that he would have only five entries in one of the two year old trots and only six in the other division.

Graylin Peg, a three year old (Uncle Alex) racing filly from the Doug Ackerman stable, could be one of the contenders for this year's championship after compiling an unusual record a year ago.

Peg shows two wins, one second and two thirds in eight starts this year... last season she was second 14 times with one victory and three thirds in 20 outings.

THOSE WHO follow the standardbreds at Wolverine Raceway and Northville Downs have a strong belief that Norm Mealey's Spring's Pride, a four year old son of Bret Hanover, may become the top aged pacer in the area if he isn't already.

Twice a winner at Wolverine in less than 2:00, Spring's Pride has won the invitational pace on each of the past two Saturdays against the best competition on the grounds.

A week ago, Spring's Pride streaked to a length victory in 2:02.2, fastest mile of the meeting, and then came back last Saturday to hold off the fast closing Local Time, a four year old Good Time speedster, in 2:02.1.

As it turned out that clocking was the second best since Winter Dean, the under-rated star of the Saunders stable, won earlier in the evening in 2:02.

GAVILAND, the eight year old (Bye Bye Byrd) from the Sid Lockhart stable of Pontiac who has had operations on each of the four legs and who should have retired to the rocking chair some time ago because of injuries, appears better than ever.

The aged pacer last won on May 27 when he clicked off a 2:01.1 victory in a preferred event at Wolverine but he was far from being crippled Saturday at Northville Downs when he took the lead from the start and stayed in front all the way to win the $4,500 preferred event.

His story has to be one of the most amazing in Michigan history. Four operations on his legs, once retired for an entire year to recover and now as an eight year old showing earnings of more than $23,000 with barely half of the season gone.

Despite his ailments, Gaviland has total winnings of almost $200,000 which makes one wonder just how much he would have banked had he been sound all the time.

IT NOW has become apparent that Northville is winning the head-on battle with Windsor Raceway for the greater share of the betters' dollars.

The 'Downs handled $423,407 against $352,447 Friday despite a rainstorm that started after two races and continued for the remainder of the night and then came back with $492,679 Saturday to $381,610 across the river.

But winning the battle isn't everything. A year ago Northville had more than 8,000 in the stands and wagered $572,000 on the third Saturday and a week earlier the handle was an all-time high of $608,000.

So it appears as if the 'Downs is doing better than the competition but may still fall short of the records established in 1971.

There is one thing certain, never in history did Northville

Westlander Wins At Flat Rock

Fran Harden of Westland finally broke the win streak of Joy Fair at Flat Rock Speedway in the ARCA late model stock feature. It was the first feature win of 1972 for Harden, who has been plagued with misfortune including the loss of two weeks for an injury sustained in a racing accident.

The 30 lap feature event had the 4000 fans on their feet from start to finish as Ron DeWitt of Toledo took the lead from the start and led the first 21 laps.

The eight drivers included Harden, John Anderson of Detroit, Ray Barnard of Ann Arbor, Bud Pingston of Plymouth, Ed Hage of Ypsilanti, Joy Fair of Pontiac and Harold Cook of Sylvania, Ohio.

This group ran tight together until lap 20 when Hage developed mechanical trouble forcing him to drop out. On the 21st lap Harden charged to the front as Anderson took over second and Fair third.

Harden managed to hold off a late charge by Barnard to finish a half car length ahead of the veteran Ann Arbor driver, while Anderson settled for third, DeWitt fourth and Pingston fifth.

It's Back To Old Ways For Farmington Legion

Just when things were starting to look good, the old menace of a doubleheader flop turned back the winning tables.

Farmington's American Legion squad tipped Berkley, 3-3, for its fifth win in six games and stood at the .500 mark with an 8-8 record.

But the baseball has been known to bounce in many directions and an afternoon twin bill with Berkley again went by the wayside and the Legionnaires dropped their third doubleheader.

Berkley came back with an 8-1 win and a two-hitter 2-0 victory to drop the Farmington squad to a fifth place 8-10 mark.

"Anything can still happen," remarked Farmington Coach Wally Christenson with 10 games remaining before playoff competition.

FARMINGTON'S Jeff Herman evened his pitching mark at 2-2 in the 5-3 single game win. The righthander allowed five hits, struck out eight and walked three.

Brian Zott and Jammi Flynn hurled for Berkley with reliever Flynn suffering the loss.

Farmington spurred up by two in the third when Herman walked and stole second. Mike Flynn drove in Herman with a single and scored on a ground rule double by Rich Stringer.

Berkley rebounded with three in the fifth off Herman. Jamie Flynn blasted a two run homer and Steve Gombar singled in another after a walk and error.

FARMINGTON RALLIED for three in the top of the seventh to capture a two run margin. Rob Holton opened with a three-bagger and scampered in on a wild relay toss. Mike Flynn singled and Rich Stringer delivered his fourth home run over the left center fence some 350 feet from home plate.

Farmington outthit Berkley in the opening game of the twin bill but fell victim to its own mistakes, 8-1.

Jim Harte took the blunt end of the win-loss column, giving up five hits, striking out six and walking seven and allowing no earned runs.

Dan Weldon hurled for the winners, giving up eight hits and striking out 10.

ROB HOLTON gave Farmington a run lead in the first on a solo four-bagger but the lead was soon to vanish.

Berkley scored three times in the third on singles by Walton and Flynn and two errors, after two outs. Two walks, an error and a home run by Mike Perkowski pushed the Berkley lead to 6-1 in the fifth.

A Farmington rally fell two shy in the sixth when Mitch Thomas and Randy Stringer singled, Mike Flynn walked and Bill Platko doubled.

HOLTON SINGLED but Platko was thrown out at the plate to halt the threat.

Berkley scored two insurance runs in the top of the seventh on two walks, a wild pitch and an error.

Steve Gombar was the story in the second game on the Berkley mound. The Brother Rice hurler threw a two-hitter with Rob Holton and Dennis Dorsch the lone Farmington batsmen to click in the hit column.

Hagen went the route for Farmington and gave up only four hits, struck out five and walked one.

BERKLEY scored both runs in the second stanza on a solo round tripper by Gombar and a single by Bob Stanton after a walk and stolen base.

National Pride Remains In Race

Churchill's National Pride remained in American League Connie Mack baseball competition with a 5-1 decision over Fancher's of Stevenson High.

Ken Wood went the distance for National Pride in scoring his second win against one defeat and allowed only three hits, struck out 10 and walked three.

Churchill's Pride now stands with a 6-1 record, second only to Redford's Warholak at 8-1.

Nelson Cady worked for Fancher's and suffered the loss, allowing nine hits and striking out five.

NATIONAL PRIDE jumped to a two run lead in the top of the fifth inning. Bruce VanWagoner drew a base on balls and Ken Wood attempted to bunt VanWagoner on to second.

The throw to first went into right field and VanWagoner scampered around and scored. Phil Skender then singled off the first baseman's glove. Brian Kelly drew a walk and Rick Dreher singled in Wood.

Pride added three in the top of the seventh on two walks and three singles. Skender drew a walk, Bob Blaies singled and Brian Kelly walked to fill the bases.

DREHER came through with his second run scoring single and Rob Hawraney delivered a single over the bag at third with Blaies and Kelly scoring.

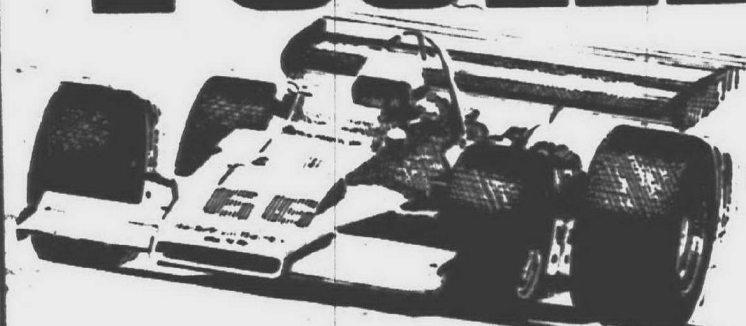

Fancher's broke into the scoring column in the last of the seventh. Donn Finn and Dan Price walked and, with two out, Mark Temby singled to score Finn.

Price attempted to reach third on the hit but was thrown out by Pride's centerfielder Dreher to end the contest.

Co-Winners

Senior All-American back-stroker Dale Baggett and junior diver Steve Reeves have been named co-winners of the 1972 Wayne State University coach's award in swimming. Baggett also won the award in 1971.

While Publisher Philip H. Power is on vacation, guest columnists are commenting on long-range issues and problems facing suburbia. Today's guest is City Planner Donald J. Gross of the City of Southfield.

By DONALD GROSS
Southfield City Planner

Southfield is sometimes referred to as "the city that freeways built." For the most part, major transportation arteries, an abundance of vacant land, and the city's proximity to Detroit were the primary factors in the burst of growth experienced by Southfield during the 1960's. During that decade, the city's population more than doubled, jumping from 31,000 to about 70,000 and making it the No. 1 growth city in the state.

Southfield is diagonally bisected from the southeast to the northwest by Northwestern highway (now U.S. 10). It is crossed by two major north-south roads, Telegraph and Southfield. Interstate 696 enters the City from the west, terminating at Northwestern highway but will eventually run east to I-94.

This transportation system makes Southfield a crossroads for southeastern Michigan, providing easy access to Detroit business, several airports, and the entire state.

SOUTHFIELD'S PROXIMITY to Detroit gives it all the advantages of a major city -- banks and financial institutions; entertainment; roads; the news media and other communications networks; and utilities without the disadvantages -- large, sometimes inefficient government; power politics; crime; potential for civil disorders; blighted areas; traffic congestion; lack of parking spaces.

Historically, Southfield was mainly farmland and remained that way until the late 1950's when Northland Shopping Center, still one of the world's largest, was constructed. Thousands of acres of relatively inexpensive land remained vacant into the early 1960's at a comparatively low tax rate.

For these reasons, many low and high rise apartment and office buildings have been constructed and a number of major corporations are headquartered in Southfield. Included among them are Shopping Centers, Inc. (Northland Center), Federal Mogul, Bendix, Eaton Corporation, Standard Oil, Reynolds-Metals, and IBM.

Sixty-eight per cent of the office space built in the Detroit

Metropolitan area during the decade of the 1960's was constructed in the City of Southfield and it is projected that an additional five million gross square feet will be constructed during the 1970's, with a total potential of approximately 21.7 million square feet. The future construction of I-696 eastward along Eleven Mile in the city will open another corridor of ideally located land for office development, similar to Northwestern Highway.

A recent office study prepared by Vilcan-Leman & Associates, Inc., Planning Consultants for the City of Southfield, indicates that there are 6.8 million square feet of office space in the city of which 1.1 million square feet is corporate office space.

ANYONE TRAVELING through the city can see the trend toward larger, higher and more attractive buildings. There are several reasons for this trend. High land costs and increased construction costs require the density of a project to be increased for highest cost efficiency. High rise buildings provide increased tenant security and provide the related facilities and services that are desired by tenants.

Larger buildings and larger office projects provide for adequate free parking -- a major concern of employers and employees. Well landscaped developments are more aesthetically pleasing and have a competitive edge among prospective lessees looking for an attractive location.

In recognizing this trend toward larger office buildings, the city has recently created a medium rise office district. Previously there was a two-story zone and an unlimited height zone. Realizing there are many areas which warrant more than two-story development but where a 10 or 12-story building would be adverse to existing neighborhoods, a six-story maximum height district was created. This district will help provide many of the advantages of a high rise district without an overpowering structure in the area.

Another innovative approach the city has taken is that of the regional center district. This district permits a combination of office and multiple family uses with a limited amount of business to service the primary users of the project.

Theoretically, this enables a person to live, work, and shop in the same project and reduces his dependence on external facilities and his automobile. Revisions and improvements to this ordinance are presently being considered by the City Council.

Office development has many advantages for a city like Southfield. Office buildings are a clean and less ecologically destructive use of land than say, manufacturing; in addition, offices provide employment opportunities for residents. Offices are basically an 8 A.M. to 5 P.M. use of land which reduces traffic congestion after the peak hours and on weekends.

They require only a few city services part time and yet provide a tax base which has allowed Southfield to operate on a charter limited 7 mill tax rate. As a result, Southfield homeowners are taxed at a very low rate compared to other cities.

Simply being in an advantageous location is one thing but using this advantage to its fullest is another.

SOUTHFIELD HAS BEEN fortunate in having forward looking and progressive thinking city officials. They saw that Southfield was going to become a regional office and business center and began conscientiously planning for the construction boom.

Although a master plan was never formally adopted, a plan was devised in 1968 and has been used as a guideline for the city's development ever since.

To date, the city has developed, generally speaking, according to the plan, making Southfield an attractive, livable city that maintains a favorable balance of commercial and residential development and open space.

Roth Opinion Splits Thinking Of Area's Democratic Liberals

I'm still so amazed that I don't know whether to gloat or moan over the fierce split among Democratic liberals since Federal Judge Stephen Roth unloosed his ill-reasoned opinion that school kids need to be bused all over the metropolitan map for purposes of racial balance.

Take two Democratic liberals whom I know and like personally -- Congressman William D. Ford, fighting a tough reelection battle in the 15th District, and James Schaefer, a clergyman recently defeated for reelection as a precinct delegate in Livonia.

FORD, A UAW-TYPE liberal in a district that includes Garden

City, Westland and Canton Township and western Wayne County, is being viciously attacked because he hesitated before signing a discharge petition to pry an anti-busing constitutional amendment out of a House committee.

Ford, to my knowledge, has never said a kind word about busing, but he's in the process of having his entire voting record picked apart by a strange coalition of people -- not just NAG -- who want to portray him as the devil's own.

"Busing is the catalyst," Ford told me the other day. "We're going to hear the entire litany of the John Birch Society -- gun control, sex education, prayer in the schools."

He's not calling all his enemies Birchers. What he's saying is that a lot of people with Louis XIV ideas are going to fan busing as a "front" issue to get his hide.

Ford blames Judge Roth for "dragging out" the Detroit school desegregation case so long that the political atmosphere in the suburbs has begun to "degenerate."

"The anger is growing deeper," says Ford. "People discussing busing used to say, 'I don't hate black people, but...' Today that preface is missing."

REV. SCHAEFER is a

McGovern-type in an affluent section of town. His knee-jerk brand of liberalism seems to assume ("Dissent," July 6) that anyone who questions Roth's wisdom is defending segregation. He is, I fear, letting his humanitarian motives get in the way of his reading of the court case.

Among other things, he finds a connecting line from the landmark 1954 "Brown" case and the current case before Roth. Rubbish. The 1954 case dealt with Topeka's dual system of black and white schools within the district's borders.

Today we're talking about unitary school systems. Roth is ordering an administratively insane tri-county school district and threatening to expand even that if he catches white folks moving out.

At the same time, Schaefer calls the Detroit case "dissimilar" to the Richmond case, where one heavily black district was ordered integrated with two white suburban districts. Rubbish again. In truth, Roth cited the lower court decision in the Richmond case in justifying his Detroit decision.

If Schaefer thinks the cases are dissimilar, he ought to tell that one to Judge Roth.

Where Judge Roth shows his bias is in ignoring the 6th Court of Appeals ruling overturning the Richmond case.

Schaefer notes that that appeals court was reversed in a 1971 case by the U.S. Supreme Court, and his unspoken innuendo is that it will be reversed again. He's saying that because Johnny misspelled "house," he will also misspell "home."

PERSONALLY, I share Bill Ford's conviction that the Roth ruling is too far-out to survive in the higher courts. I pray we are right, because if our faith in the higher courts is misplaced, a lot of frenzied people in the suburbs are going to tear apart the Constitution and make life miserable for all of us, regardless of race, creed or color.

Turn Signals Are Valuable...If Used

On today's automobile there is an often forgotten little lever on the steering wheel that was really put there by the manufacturer to serve an important purpose.

This little lever, very easy to use, operates turn signal lights on the front and back of the car. Pull the lever down and it signals for a left turn. Push it up, means right.

For the hundreds of ordinary law-abiding, courteous drivers, who apparently don't know what this lever is for, it lets others drivers in on the fact that a turn is to be made.

ESP may be a fact, but it rarely works when a driver decides to turn. Some sort of signal is necessary.

HOW MANY TIMES have you been stopped at a light, thinking the car ahead of you was going to go straight across? The light turns green and he sits there, waiting to make his left hand turn. How come you didn't know he was going to turn? He knew it very well.

Even if his turn signal wasn't working, it's really not too big a job to stick an arm out the window. It would be appreciated if he would just stick his head out the window and yell, "Hey, I'm going to turn."

Not only is the use of the turn signal a courteous move, it is also a safety factor.

STATISTICS SHOW that one of the main causes of accidents is failure of one car to yield. How often can this happen if one car is going to turn but doesn't let other drivers know what he is doing?

Of course, to remember to use the turn signal requires concentration on the part of the driver. This is apparently a difficult job for many motorists on the road today.

Then there is the driver who has no consideration for others. "That's his problem," is his creed.

There is also the "after thought" driver, the one who puts on the turn signal as he is making his turn.

This type driver makes driving a real joy, too.

MAYBE THE PROBLEM is the turn signal is too much of a convenience. There was a time when cars weren't equipped with this device.

On a cold winter day, when a driver was going to turn, he had to roll down the window and signal with his hand or arm. To do this took thought, but usually he did it.

Now that the flick of a finger will signal a turn, it takes no thought and is too often forgotten.

Driving at its best is no pleasure these days. But one little movement, a flick of the turn signal, by ALL drivers, could help ease the situation.

It is hoped that those drivers who didn't know what that little lever on the steering wheel is for, or those drivers who have no consideration for fellow motorists, will try to get into the habit of using the turn signal.

It comes with the price of the car. It costs nothing to use the turn signal, it could prove costly not to.

Soil Survey Now In Canton

By W.W. EDGAR

The Wayne County cooperative soil survey, designed to inventory and interpret the characteristics of soil resources in 200,000 acres of the western section, has moved into Canton Township.

The survey will be concentrated on the northern section of Canton and the Plymouth area for most of the summer, according to Daniel Kesselring, district conservationist.

"We are moving acre by acre in the under-developed and partially developed portions," he explained. "When it is completed, we'll have a better idea on what uses to make of the land."

STARTED IN 1970, the survey is to be concluded by Dec. 30, 1973, and the cost is being shared by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station.

The county's share has been placed at $64,000, and the Department of Agriculture will provide $54,200 with the remaining $9,600 coming from the experiment station.

According to Kesselring, the soil scientists test the soil to a depth of five feet. It is then classified, based on its structure, texture, natural drainage, color and lime content.

"If the scientists find any property of the soil that will affect its use for agricultural, urban, recreational or other purposes," Kesselring added, "it is noted and recorded. More than that the acre-by-acre inventory is recorded on aerial photographs."

The continuing penetration of the exploding population into the suburbs is placing a premium on land, and the survey will serve as a guide to builders and planners to avoid misuse of the area.

"THE CAPABILITIES of the soil are of intimate concern to anyone planning to build a highway, school, pipeline, a housing development or parks," Kesselring pointed out.

According to the plan, when the survey is completed the soil maps will show areas that have slight, moderate or severe limitations for septic tanks and filter fields and the information can be of great help to the County Road Commission in locating soil for fill purposes.

While developers and planners will be aided greatly, farmers, too, will be helped. They can use the soil data in planning the kind of management that will protect their soils and will provide greater yields.

"This is something we have needed for a long time," Wilfrid Bunyea, well known

Plymouth farmer who is chairman of the County Conservation Board, remarked. "It sure will be a big help to all of us."

The complete results of the survey are to be published in 1975. In the meantime, information on the work that has been completed, is available at the Soil Conservation Office, 2006 S. Wayne Road, P.O. Box 642, Westland.

Patrolmen Complete OCC Class

Five local men recently graduated from the Oakland Police Academy at Oakland Community College. The basic course trains officers in the fundamentals of effective law enforcement techniques and procedures.

Hilton Hyde, 9964 Inkster, Redford Township, and Marvin Snider, 37640 Scottdale, Westland, are both patrolmen in the Farmington Police Dept.

John Koenig, 17658 Beech Daly, Redford Township, and Vincent Mocer, 27580 Echo Valley, Farmington, are patrolmen in the Livonia Police Dept.

Philip Presnell, 9160 Lilley, Plymouth, is a patrolman in the Northville Township Police Dept.

Life Policy Reevaluated

Schoolcraft President C. Nelson Grote's life insurance policy was expanded in action taken by the college's board of trustees recently.

Previously, a $7,000 life insurance policy was one of the fringe benefits offered the president. Trustees felt the policy was inadequate and raised it to a total of $52,000 at a yearly cost to the college estimated at $753.

The change was the beginning of a reevaluation of life insurance coverage offered all Schoolcraft employees.

How CERV Serves Veterans At College

There is an 11-man CERV unit operating out of Schoolcraft College, and if you are a veteran, or if you know a veteran, knowing this can be mighty helpful to you.

CERV (pronounced serve) stands for "Center for the Education of Returning Veterans." The unit provides current and complete information to veterans about benefits due them.

This includes educational benefits, and the CERV recruiter might be instrumental in helping a veteran get in on Schoolcraft's advanced registration for the fall.

BUT THEIR HELP goes far beyond educational matters. They stand ready to assist veterans in any need they may have adjusting to civilian life.

Advance registration for the fall semester is scheduled for July 11 and 12 at Schoolcraft. Sophomores register the 11th and freshmen the following day. Students are processed by alphabetical arrangement. Evening students will register from 6-8:30 each night.

The unit was organized by John Webber, Schoolcraft's director of counseling, and is headed by Don Ringsred, senior veteran recruiter. It has been operating since early June, and all those working at Schoolcraft have completed the three credit hour Student Veteran Recruiter Workshop at Macomb Community College.

Two of the unit are employed full-time and the others work approximately 20 hours a week. They are paid through funds provided by the Emergency Employment Act.

CERV recruiters are furnished the names of returning servicemen by the Veterans Administration. Approximately 3,500 return every month to Michigan.

The recruiter usually initiates a contact by telephone, and often follows this up with a personal visit to the veteran's home. If the recruiter doesn't have the specific information needed by the veteran, he knows

THE SCHOOLCRAFT unit is composed entirely of veterans who are enrolled at the college this summer, or were enrolled the past year. The recruiters are Don Black, Roy Chappel, Dennis W. Mosley, Dan Moritz, Ted Nagel, Thomas M. O'Rourke, Albert J. Pulvirenti, Chuck Varkoly and Ron Zack.

Perhaps the single largest benefit open to a veteran is education funds of up to $6,000. Depending on length of service, single veterans receive up to $175 monthly, while a married veteran with one child receives $230. There is also a little-known benefit to provide up to $50 a month for tutoring services.

CERV recruiters are on duty daily in the Counseling Offices in the Student Affairs Building.

According to Ringsred, any veteran who has difficulty arranging a contact during normal business hours will be accommodated whenever and wherever it is convenient.

COTTON -- THE PATTERN CHANGER -- Mix-match prints in durable press cotton blends with a stain-resistant finish can change the pattern of a room -- as well as your pattern of living. A trio of Riverdale's compatible floral prints goes around the room on laminated window shades in a melange of marigold colors. The shades add decorative light control at the windows and act as pull-down doors over storage. Wall-hugging sofa beds are covered in a color-coordinated cotton plaid.

Some Points To Consider Before Buying Mobile Home

By ESTHER K. SHAPIRO
Consumer Specialist

Imagine buying a home that was not covered by protective regulations. You could be living in a dwelling built without regard to safety standards, subject to no building codes on insulation or wiring, no health regulations to prevent a stove exhaust from venting within the home.

Your house could cost you anywhere from $5,500 to $20,000. What safeguard against defects do you get for this investment? A 90 day warranty. Your mortgage rate could be as high as 18 per cent. And even if you own your home, free and clear, you have no ownership in the land under it.

Sound ludicrous? Over 20,000 Michigan residents are living under these conditions, and a lot of them like it. Two out of every five new home purchasers will make the same choice in the next few years. They are the purchasers of mobile homes, and they account for the sale of more than 20,000 new units per year in Michigan alone.

Mobile home living has for some time appealed to the two ends of the age spectrum: young couples just starting in their first home, and retirees who no longer want to be burdened with the maintenance of large houses. They were attractive to workers who had to follow jobs around the country.

Today's owners represent every age and professional group.

THE COST of standard housing is out of sight, and apartment rentals are appalling. In economy and convenience, the mobile home provides a solution to housing problems for every kind of family, and the industry has mushroomed in response to the need.

But the rapid growth has brought problems. Before you put down payment on the 60-foot model with the picture window and the expandable living room, look into the following factors.

Cost: As we've already indicated, you get more housing for less money in a mobile home. Besides, it comes equipped with major household appliances and much of the furniture, which constitutes a major savings. And your down payment will be lower, as will other settlement costs.

But that's where the savings end. Your interest rates, depending on the manner of financing, can be a great deal higher than a conventional mortgage. In Michigan, Gov. Milliken has just signed a law, effective Jan. 1, 1973, placing the sale of mobile homes under the Retail Installment Sales Act.

This means interest can legally go as high as 18 per cent. Nationally, the average has been 10.8 per cent! And while in Michigan the average rate has floated at about 13 per cent you should be aware that the legal maximum is much higher. So shop carefully for the best rate available.

Purchase price of the unit should include the cost of towing and installation in the park (make sure this is included in your contract). It does not, however, include entry stairs, anchoring or gutter systems, which will run you an additional $600 to $900. And you must include park rental in your monthly cost.

Buying your home does not only provide shelter; it should be looked upon as an addition to your long-term assets. This will not happen if you choose a mobile home. Where a conventional house, thanks to inflation, usually grows in value with the years, a mobile unit depreciates rather quickly. By the time it is fully paid, its resale value may be close to zero.

CONSTRUCTION: The picture at times is less than good. Dianne McKaig, former executive director of the Michigan Consumer Council, told the Task Force on Mobile Homes: "The most prevalent problem is that of inferior and substandard design, construction, and installation."

There are complaints of collapsing roofs, doors that won't close, windows that won't open.

Your protection from all this is usually a ninety-day warranty.

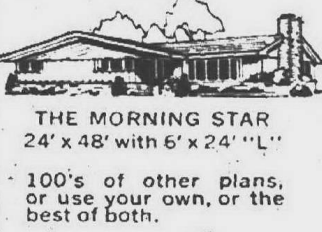

After all this, do you think you can live comfortably in a mobile home? Of course you can; many people do, in snug homes resting in well-run parks. But these contented residents have obeyed the oldest consumer rule: they shopped around, investigated all the factors, and made sure they knew exactly what they were getting into.

NOW YOU CAN BUILD EXACTLY WHAT YOU WANT. WHERE YOU WANT IT!

Moss Indicates Unhealthy Lawn

The presence of moss indicates an unhealthy lawn, drained it may be necessary to says Gerald E. Draheim, Wayne County extension horticultural agent.

"Low soil fertility, poor drainage, high soil acidity, too much shade, improper watering, or a combination of these factors can cause moss in a lawn," says Draheim.

To prevent moss from taking over your lawn, he suggests following good management practices that will produce a dense vigorous turf.

Poor soil fertility, the most common cause of moss in the lawn, can be improved by using a regular, balanced fertilizer.

If the subsoil is poorly drained it may be necessary to install tile drains. However, do not attempt to install them without professional guidance, advises Draheim.

A SOIL TEST is recommended to determine the acidity of the soil. If found to be too acid, lime can be added.

Your local cooperative extension service office can provide you with information on how to take a soil sample.

Captivating Lilies Enthrall Gardeners

Special Writer

Danger! Beware of the lilies!

No sign proclaiming the dangers of lilies will be posted at the show being held by the North American Lily Society on July 14, 15, and 16 at Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College. However, as show chairman, Ruth Hough, can attest, there should be such a sign. Lilies are dangerous. They can capture your fancy and steal your heart away completely.

Until about eight years ago Mrs. Hough had grown a clump or two of regal and madonna lilies in her Southfield garden, but they were just a few of the many flowers she grew and loved.

Then she went to a lily show and was enthralled by the beauties on display - huge lilies and tiny ones; lilies with upturned cup - like flowers, lilies with huge, flaring trumpets, with dangling bells, with rolled back recurved petals; lilies with flowers of white, cream, yellow, gold, orange, peach, pink, rose, red, maroon, and every shade in between. Some were pale and delicate. Others were vivid and intense. Some had stripes, spots, or a blending of another hue. In addition to their grace and beauty they all had a delightful, heady fragrance.

Then there were the regal lilies, the first bulbs she planted were "Enchantment" and "Byam's Ruby." Now she has 75 kinds of lilies in her garden - and hundreds of plants. When asked how many, she laughed at the question but eventually estimated about 400 plants.

"Enchantment," which has flaming red-orange upturned flowers, is regarded by Mrs. Hough as the easiest lily to grow. It is of a type known as Mid-Century hybrid. Not only is it dependable in the garden, the flowers are good for bouquets. They last well when cut and are easy to arrange attractively.

"Ruby" is still Mrs. Hough's favorite lily. It was hybridized in Canada and has been used extensively in other crosses because of its intense deep red color.

She also is especially fond of the Martagon lilies because they bloom early and are small and dainty and make attractive corsages. They appear to her like spritely ballet dancers.

LILIES GROW from scaly bulbs. Although some lilies are difficult to grow, many are of easy culture and succeed in ordinary garden soil in a moderately sunny situation. Regal lilies and madonna lilies are the most popular of all. Others that are easily grown are the gold-band lily, the showy lily, the tiger lily, the coral lily, and the Martagon lily.

There are also numerous hybrid types. Of these, the mid-century hybrids are especially hardy. In this group are such beautiful favorites as "enchantment," "Cinnabar," and "Croesus."

Mrs. Hough's sister, Mrs. Eunice Brown, is also a lily fancier. She is currently the president of the Michigan Regional Lily Society. Mrs. Hough and Mrs. Brown are co-chairmen of the show being presented by the Michigan Regional Lily Society and the North American Lily Society.

It is the 25th annual international show to be held by the North American Lily Society and will have a silver anniversary theme.

Lily growers from many parts of the United States and Canada will be exhibiting their choicest blooms and visitors are expected from the Netherlands and other parts of Europe as well as from this area.

THE EXHIBIT will include Asiatic hybrids such as "Enchantment," "Ruby," and "Snow Bunting," Oriental hybrids such as "Empress of China" and "Black Beauty," American hybrids such as "Afterglow," and unnamed hybrids developed by the exhibitor.

There will be a group of artistic arrangements featuring lilies, and there will be a series of table settings and arrangements embellishing the show's silver anniversary theme.

The show, which is open to the public free of charge, is being held at Oakland Community College, 27055 Orchard Lake Rd., Building J, Farmington.

On Friday, July 14, the hours are 2:30 to 9 p.m. On Saturday, July 15, the hours are 9 to 6, and on Sunday, July 16, the hours are 9 to 5.

LILY INSPECTION -- Ruth Hough and Eunice Brown check blooms on the lilies in their Southfield garden to see which will be ready for the show July 14-16 at the Orchard Ridge campus of Oakland Community College. This garden's lilies are complemented by tall spikes of blue and white delphiniums, airy coral bells and dainty violas and other perennials. (Evert photo)

THE DAINTY martagon lily's flowers are pale lavender-pink with dark spots and come in multiple piles of three. This one is in the Leo Hough garden in Southfield. (Evert photo)

Planned Lighting Has Major Decorating Role

"Planned lighting" can be one of the most effective decorating tools the homemaker can use—and one of the least expensive.

New fixtures arranged according to a planned design will do as much as carpeting, wall colors, furnishings and accessories to create an attractive and welcoming atmosphere, explains the American Home Lighting Institute (AHLI).

Poor lighting causes colors, textures, and furniture settings to pale into drabness. Good lighting, on the other hand, dramatizes the visual beauties of any room.

In selecting fixtures, consider lighting for the desired effect in different rooms. Will the living room be used for convivial parties or quiet relaxing? Should the family room have well-lit and attractive study areas for school-age children? Is the dining room the gathering place for family friends, and much entertaining?

Guidance in meeting these needs for individual interiors is available from the consultants of AHLI "Light for Living Centers," recognized by the American Home Lighting Institute for quality lighting services.

LIGHTING FALLS into three categories—general, accent and task lighting.

General illumination must be potentially strong, but may use built-in dimmers for altering atmosphere. This is created by chandeliers or other ceiling-suspended fixtures, as well as recessed lighting.

Accent lighting is used to emphasize certain areas, such as a handsome fireplace setting or a wall of paintings. This is done with bullet or beam spotlights focused directly on the arrangement.

Task lighting is for work areas, such as kitchen stoves, counter tops, and study areas.

This concentrated illumination is provided from wall-mounted or recessed fixtures.

As displayed in AHLI "Light for Living Centers," lighting designs are widely varied. Whether you choose classic simplicity, the elegance of crystal or the smart contemporary look of smoked acrylic, there are fixtures to suit your home and your budget.

TYPICAL of available choices, a provincial entry hall may be enhanced by gleaming brass wall lanterns, or a colonial "gaslit" fixture. Or an elegantly serene dining room may be dramatized by the flash of shimmering Strass crystals. Or a contemporary living room, bold with color and pattern, will further brighten with the airy lightness of a sculptured "bare-bulb" chandelier.

Apartment dwellers and home-owners with small rooms will find popular designs in scaled-down models which provide as much light as a standard five-light chandelier. Many styles range from one-to-three light wall lanterns or sconces to five-, 10-, 15- or 35-light chandeliers.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Is there anything you can do to hasten fruiting or bearing of a fruit tree? Yes, and tying the branches is one of them. Many commercial growers tie down the branches of young apple trees to hasten fruiting and to produce a much better-shaped tree, easier to spray and pick.

Here's how they do it: Drive a stake into the ground, put a slipknot on a piece of rope and tie it to the end of an upright branch. Then pull the branch down until it is more or less horizontal and tie this to a stake in the ground. Spreading the branches downward will induce earlier fruiting, and cause more abundant flower production.

In amateur gardens in England and on the European continent, the tying down of branches of apple trees is practiced quite extensively. It is used to shape the tree into small space as well as to cause early bearing.

Here's the theory behind bending the branches: It acts just as knife ringing does, restricting movement of carbohydrates from the outer portion of the limb toward the roots. The resulting accumulation of carbohydrates in the limb and slowing down of growth behind the bend is favorable to flower bud formation.

NOTE: Although bending of branches may cause earlier bearing, it also may stunt the growth of a tree, a good thing for home gardeners since most of them want dwarf trees anyway.

It's too late to effectively bend your branches now. Better wait until after growth starts next spring (or do it any time during the dormant season).

The important thing is that it should be done before the end of May so that a chance is given for the carbohydrates to accumulate prior to the time of fruit-bud formation at the end of June.

I mention the bending process now because many wait until summer to do the job and find it has no effect on hastening fruiting or slowing down the growth of the tree.

ROOT YOUR OWN SHRUBS? No reason why you cannot slip or start your own favorite shrubs such as roses, blueberries, oleander, weigela, dogwood, forsythia, privet, viburnum, deutzia, willow, holly, barberry, lilac, azalea, to name a few.

Many oldtimers use a box of moist sand in a cold frame. Take cuttings four to six inches long and insert them about two inches deep.

Make a cut with a sharp knife, close to a node or joint. Strip off leaves on lower half of cutting before inserting it. You can use a rooting hormone available in garden stores.

Just dip the base into the powder and then stick the cutting into the sand. Water well after insertion and cover with a plastic sheet to maintain humidity. Keep cuttings out of direct sun or they will cook before they'll root.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "Is it true that if you rub the juice of plantain (lawn weed) on a bee sting it will relieve the pain?"

Answer: Yes, many bee men rub the leaf of narrow or broad-leaved plantain on bee stings and it helps. Remove stinger first! Don't pull it out! Scrape it out.

FIX-IT TIP

Locks require powdered graphite rather than oil. Ordinary oil will gum up locks. Graphite generally comes in a container which, when squeezed, will puff out a small amount of the dust.

Rose Chafer Munches Away

The rose chafer is especially fond of rose buds and leaves, but it can also do serious damages to grapes, cherries and a number of other plants.

This insect is about 1/2 inch long and has a reddish-brown head and body with a black underbelly. Its whole body is covered with short yellow hairs that give the beetle a fawn colored appearance.

For control, apply two sprays of Malathion or Sevin, seven to 10 days apart, starting when the insects appear—usually in early June. Thoroughly cover the whole plant.

For more information on controlling insect pests that attack Michigan trees and shrubs contact your local county Cooperative Extension Office and ask for Extension Bulletin 534, Controlling Pests of Trees and Shrubs: A Guide for Home Gardeners. This bulletin may also be obtained by writing to: Michigan State University, Bulletin Office, Box 231, East Lansing, Mich. 48823. Single copies are available free to Michigan residents.

Fir Favorite

Douglas fir forests are the nation's most valuable, providing lumber for house framing and finishing, outdoor structures and decks. Firs are also popular as Christmas trees.

Trust, Then Anger, Then Awareness

First, you learn to deal with other women — like them and trust them.

Then you become angry — not satisfied with the position of women in the world.

And then you're surprised to learn just how much prejudice and unliberated thinking there is in your own makeup.

This progression was described by a young Observerland woman who has participated for about 18 months in a woman's consciousness-raising group.

JOAN NEFF, Farmington mother of two whose husband, Rick, is minister of the Unitarian Church of Farmington, related her experiences last week to women attending the Northwest YWCA Ladies Day Camp.

"I was invited to join a group like this a few years ago when I was living in California," Mrs. Neff said. "I declined then, because I felt I already was a liberated woman and didn't need it, because I considered women's conversation rather trivial and was complimented when told I talked and thought like a man, and because my husband was home the night the group met and I thought I should be spending the time with him."

She gradually came to the conclusion that she was wrong, and worked to establish a group when she and her husband came to Farmington.

IDEALLY, Mrs. Neff said, a consciousness-raising group has eight to 10 members who don't miss a session if they possibly can help it.

"Too big a group gets unwieldy," she explained, "and you lose the closeness. We formed a second one when that happened. And off-and-on attendance breaks the continuity. I also think it's best not to add new members after the first few weeks."

Some groups of this type have a leader, Mrs. Neff said, but hers does not. "I think women need to get out of their unassertive and passive type of thinking," she added, "and they're more likely to do this without a leader."

large our marriages have improved," she added.

Answering a question, she said some husbands had found the group objectionable and a men's group was started.

"But it wasn't as successful," she said. "I think men find it harder to express their fears and frustrations."

In her own case, Mrs. Neff said, "my husband hates to have me miss a meeting — he realizes it's where I get rid of anger."

"But women need to get credit for it. Their husbands can't be their total ego-satisfiers, and neither should their children. It has to come from a whole new acceptance."

m. m. memos

Our neighbors were preparing for a vacation trip with three small children.

"Each of the kids had a whole suitcase of toys," reported our daughter who is their No. 1 baby sitter.

I could offer sympathy and understanding. I well remember the stacks of toys, coloring books, crayons and comic books that accompanied our long rides of very few years ago. To say nothing of the wrangles when boredom set in and the clamor for souvenirs and treats.

But recently I heard about an amazing vacation system dreamed up by a most unusual mother. (She must be unusual, because otherwise why didn't I think of it?)

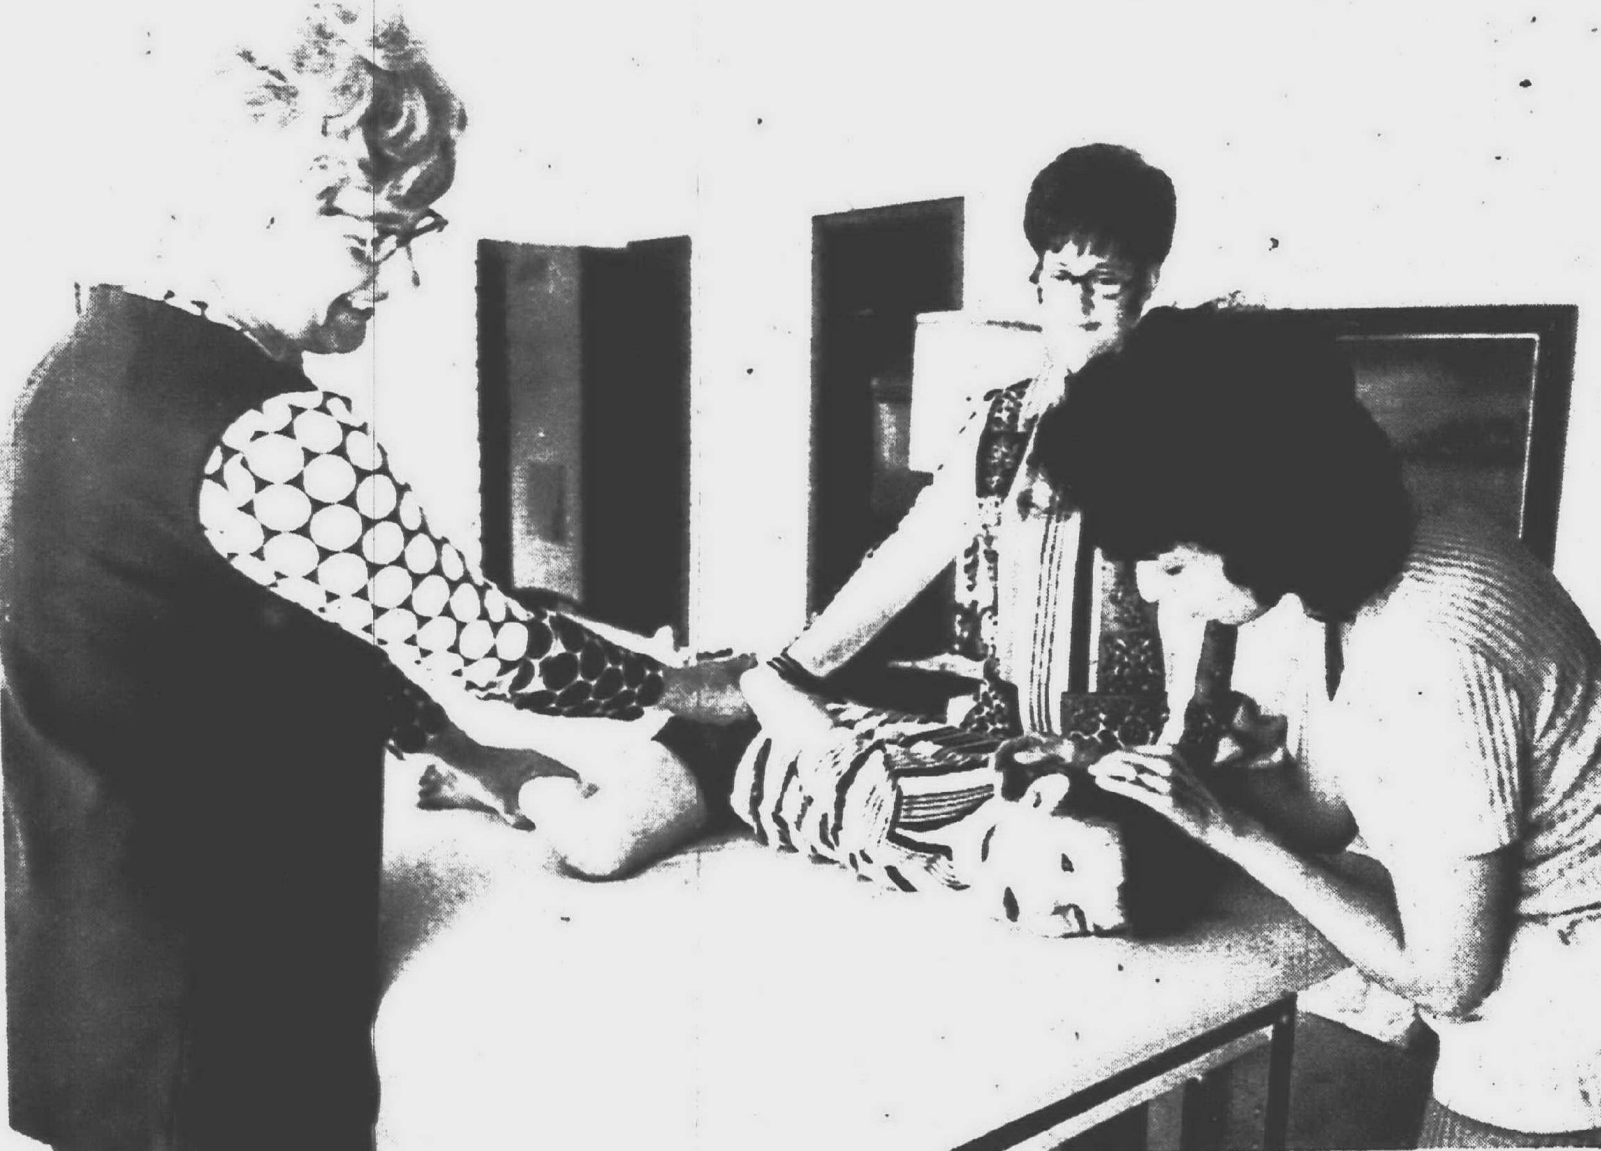

It's too late for us to make much use of the idea, but I can't resist passing it on.

This remarkably practical woman gave each of her children a sum of money at the beginning of each vacation trip. This was souvenir money, to be used in any way the child saw fit — no questions asked, no advice given and no more available when it ran out.

Then she decreed that anyone starting an argument or participating in one or whining or complaining would have to pay a fine out of that sum.

It really worked very well, she reported. That I believe, and I wish I'd met her 10 years ago.

300 Special Friends Pattern Mark's Life

By MARGARET MILLER
Women's Editor

Small Mark McCaffrey of Livonia has about 300 special friends in his young life.

At least 126 of them come to see him every week, and he recognizes many and calls them by name. Others come more on a substitute basis.

All are needed vitally in an exacting program that's designed to help Mark make the most of his potential.

And all share—to some extent at least—in the long wait on the part of Phyllis and John McCaffrey to see how much this mighty community effort will affect the future of their small son.

MARK, NOW THREE, has been slow in many phases of his development, and the problem is diagnosed as neurological disorganization.

He's one of thousands of children from all over the country being "patterned" on the Doman-Delacatto program of neurological organization, centered in Philadelphia.

"It's a program of hope and hard work and no guarantees," states Phyllis McCaffrey.

It's also a program that needs many people recognition. And many more things mainly under the supervision of Mrs. McCaffrey.

And he also, every day, is put through six "patterns"—the movement of his arms and legs in specific routines. These require three helpers for each pattern, and volunteers take over here.

He creeps and crawls. ("There's a difference," his mother points out. "Creeping is on the hands and knees and crawling on the stomach.")

He also breathes through a mask to expand his lungs 18 times a day. He has tactile exercises and he picks up pennies. He has stories read to him and he practices word

THE VOLUNTEERS come from all over this area, and they learned about Mark in a variety of ways.

Organizing them have been Mrs. Joan Pachota, Mrs. Dolores Forge and Mrs. Shirley Erickson, who from the beginning took over as coordinators.

When Mrs. McCaffrey made plans to take Mark to Philadelphia, they started visiting churches and recruiting in the neighborhood. Many expressed willingness to help, and there was no delay in getting the program under way.

"Phyllis called us Sunday night to say she was coming home with Mark," Mrs. Pachota remembers. "She arrived on Tuesday, and we started the patterning the next day."

"It's developed into a daily routine that keeps Phyllis one of the busiest mothers around and also one of the most grateful. 'It just wouldn't be possible without all the help I get,' she said, 'and I wish I could find a way to thank everyone enough.'"

SUCH ORGANIZATIONS as the Livonia Jayettes and FISH in Livonia have sent patterns. Many come from the immediate neighborhood and also help Phyllis with her shopping and ironing and take care of her other son and Steven, six.

There are volunteers who have worked on patterning of other children and understand the routine. One whole group had been working with a little girl who left the area.

Teens Aid PHS Kids

"It's a big chance to do more for the kids than we can as volunteers," said Patti Covert of Westland, teen volunteer at the Plymouth State Home for more than two years.

She was speaking of the newly-organized Youth-PARC, teen branch of the Plymouth Association for Retarded Children, which will sponsor a garage and bake sale Friday through Sunday, July 14 to 16, as its first major activity.

The aim is to get some funds to be used for parties and short trips for the youngsters the Youth-PARC members have come to know through volunteer work.

PATTI, president of the new organization, said the group began meeting a couple of months ago and now has about 20 members as well as a constitution.

"Most of the members are volunteers at the state home, but that's not required," she said. "We'd like to have anyone interested in bettering the lives of the kids there."

The sale will be held at the home of Youth-PARC board member Julie Vornhagen, 36395 Avon Court, Westland. "Turn south off Ann Arbor Trail on Donna between Middle Belt and Merriman, and Avon Court is the second street on the right," Julie directed.

The hours will be 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 12 noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

All kinds of baked goods will be available for the sale, the girls said, and the teens also are collecting household items and clothing. Those with contributions may call the homes of Julie or Patti, 29059 Brady, Westland.

Candi Cosper of Dearborn is youth sponsor for the new organization, formed under the guidance of the Plymouth Association for Retarded Children headed by Bill Eaton.

 Women's Editor

Lillian B. Bates, a Livonian who is the first woman to be named a department manager by the Ford Motor Co., comes home every night to enjoy being Mrs. Thomas R. Bates, wife and mother.

It's a dual role that she figures makes her one of the world's luckier women.

Mrs. Bates' appointment as manager of the personnel and administrative services department in the customer service division was announced by Ford this spring. She had made the move from secretary to executive in eight years, after returning to a business career she interrupted to rear two sons to young manhood.

SHE FINDS her part in Ford's high priority customer service division an exciting and challenging one.

"Right now," she cited an instance, "we're putting into effect a hot line to implement a no-unhappy-owner program."

She also sees important improvement ahead for women in business and industry.

"We're recruiting women now," she said. "They're entering the job market on a far different basis, and they're going as far as ability and inclination takes them. I'm sure my sons wouldn't want it any other way."

But she also thinks women should be sure of the role they want in business.

"I've helped a lot of women move up in the company," she said, "but some very capable women have turned down promotions because they didn't want the extra responsibility. And that should be their prerogative."

FOR LILLIAN BATES, at this juncture of her life, the challenge of executive responsibility works out well, though being in charge of a large budget and the company's dealings with several hundred employees requires long hours.

She and her husband, a salesman for a heating and ventilating firm, share home responsibilities. Their sons, Tom and Brian, are in college.

Tom, recently married, was top engineering student in his University of Michigan graduate class last year, and he now is working on his doctorate. Brian expects to graduate from U-M Law School in December.

"I'm wife first, mother second and career woman

Women on the Go

Executive Is Wife And Mother First

third," Mrs. Bates said, "and my husband knows this."

The career part took time out when the boys were preschoolers, Mrs. Bates said. She had started as a secretary for a small manufacturing company when the family moved from the east side of Detroit to Livonia.

"Considering the long commuting and the fact that I'm inclined to put in a long day, it seemed best to stop working," she said.

FOR SEVERAL years, while the boys grew to high school age, she did statistical work for Ford and General Motors Corp., on a part-time basis, fitting job assignments between PTA meetings, Sunday School teaching, Little League and going to AAU meets with her swimming champ sons.

Then, when she decided to return to full-time work eight years ago, she was a bit surprised to find that the main question asked was: "How's your typing and shorthand?" "I brushed up on the shorthand and went to work as a secretary for the marketing staff, Mrs. Bates said.

Later she was named administrative coordinator for organization and personnel planning, and in 1969 she became an industrial relations analyst. A year later, she was named marketing staff personnel and administrative services manager.

Joining the Ford customer service division in 1971, her first big assignment was to locate facilities for 39 offices. Under her direction, the division took over four floors of the six-floor Garrison Place East building in Dearborn.

"We'll be moving again next year, but it should be easier then," she said.

HER PRESENT responsibilities require a bit of travel. "But part of the time this year Tom traveled more or less the same route so it worked out well," she said. When I was gone for 10 days, the telephone bills were pretty high. I wouldn't do that again—I'd schedule things differently."

All things considered, Lillian Bates numbers herself among the fortunate both on home and business fronts. "I have a good marriage and two fine children," she said, "and I've never had a job I didn't enjoy or a boss who didn't let me be myself."

Katzman Is New Head Of MACLD

Albert Katzman of Southfield was installed as new president of the Michigan Association for Children With Learning Disabilities at an assembly of delegates held in First Presbyterian Church, Farmington.

Mrs. Betty MacIntyre of Livonia was installed as vice president in charge of publicity, and Mrs. Norma Ringquist of Farmington was named coordinator for the 1973 International Conference. This will be held in Cobo Hall on March 15-17, 1973.

Other new officers are Mrs. Dorothy Jens of Grosse Pointe Park, vice president, education; Mrs. Diane Dingeman of East Detroit, vice president, legislation; Mrs. Elaine Niver of Dearborn, vice president, membership; Mrs. Bea Bury of Bloomfield Hills, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Kathleen Eubank of Detroit, recording secretary; and David Martin of Sterling Heights, treasurer.

MACLD is a group of dedicated parents and professionals who work together at state and local levels to insure appropriate public school education for children with learning disabilities. The group currently has 26 chapters in the state with a membership of 1,000.

The group works to help children who have 'hidden handicaps,' who exhibit disorders in thinking, talking, listening, reading, spelling or arithmetic. They may be hyperactive, poorly coordinated, impulsive, distractible, withdrawn, immature or uncooperative. These children may have behavior problems, but they are not primarily emotionally disturbed, mentally retarded or physically crippled.

come on a weekly basis to help in the patterning.

"There are some people," Mrs. McCaffrey said, "who have children with disabilities, and others who have told me they're so thankful for all the good things life has given them that they want to take this way to show their gratitude."

"Some even thank me, as if I'm doing them a favor," MARK, IN general, takes the strenuous routine quite cheerfully, his mother says. "He recognizes a lot of the patterns and knows their names," she adds.

He and his mother return to the institute every two months.

State Inspired Literary Giants

Michigan has been the home of many of the nation's literary greats over the years. Some lived here all their lives, while others, such as Carl Sandburg and Ernest Hemingway, spent only a few years in the state, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

A panel of university English professors has selected about a dozen authors and poets, both past and contemporary, who were native Michiganders or did a good portion of their writing here.

Others, although not as well known, have won widespread recognition. In some cases, visual reminders for the visitor were factors in compiling this list.

HURON CITY was the summer home for almost 40 years of William Lyon Phelps, professor of English literature at Yale University from 1903-37 and one of the giants of American letters.

Five buildings in this Lake Huron community have been restored as a memorial to Phelps and are open to the public. The buildings are a museum, the "Carolyn H" Inn, a general store, an authentic log cabin dating back to 1825 and an early Coast Guard station. In addition, there is the twin-belfried Hubbard-Phelps Memorial Chapel where Prof. Phelps once served as guest preacher.

Owosso was the home of James Oliver Curwood, author of popular and exciting tales of the Canadian North Country. His home, Curwood Castle, is a replica of a Norman castle resembling the much-publicized castle in Disneyland. The Curwood home formerly housed the administrative offices of the Owosso Public Schools but is now vacant and there are plans to make it into a museum.

Curwood produced about 20 full-length novels in just short of two decades before his death in 1927 at the age of 49. His adventure stories earned a fortune for the Owosso-born writer.

SOME 30 AUTHORS live or have lived in the Grand Rapids area. Unquestionably the most prolific was Stewart Edward White who wrote about 50 books, most of them with the lumber camps of northern Michigan as background.

The Grand Rapids house where White was born in 1873 was torn down years ago, but a later family home at 427 E. Fulton is still standing. White's father was a lumber pioneer.

Other Grand Rapids writers include Constance Mayfield Rourke, American biographer who used America's past as her themes. Reared in Grand Rapids, she lived there until her death in 1941. She wrote numerous articles on American folklore, literature and art for magazines.

Niles was the birthplace of Ringgold Wilmer Lardner, who as Ring Lardner became one of America's greatest humorists. He was born on March 6, 1885, which he said was "have a baby week." He was columnist for the Chicago Tribune between 1913-19. His stories are racy and witty and considered an excellent source for the study of the slang of the time. "You Know Me, Al" was one of them.

The Lardner family home at 519 Bond is now divided into apartments. Lardner died in 1933, in East Hampton, N.Y.

Two miles east of Hudson is the farm home of Will Carleton, once poet laureate of the state, who wrote "Over the Hill to the Poorhouse."

It won him national fame. In 1919 the State Legislature decreed that memorial services be held on the poet's birthday, a custom that was soon forgotten. He died in New York in 1912.

AT GREENFIELD Village, in Dearborn is a two-story home, the Ann Arbor House. Until moved to its present location by the late Henry Ford, it stood at 1223 Pontiac Street and was occupied by Robert Frost during 1925-26 when he was one of the University of Michigan staff as a "resident poet."

The dean of American poets,

Frost won four Pulitzer prizes before his death in 1963.

Edgar Albert Guest, Michigan's beloved poet and better known as Eddie Guest, came to Detroit in 1891 when he was 10 years old and in 1914 began working for the Detroit Free Press, where he won national acclaim. All of his poetry related to simple, everyday subjects, most of it about home and family.

Karl William Detzer of Leland, who will observe his 81st birthday anniversary in September, is still active as a roving editor of Reader's Digest after a lifetime on newspapers and magazines. The latter included the American Boy, once published in Detroit. He has been on the staff of Reader's Digest for 31 years.

JOHN D. VOELKER retired from the Michigan Supreme Court in 1960 to write and won fame for this novel, "Anatomy of a Murder," later made into a motion picture. He used a pseudonym, Robert Traver. A native of Ishpeming, where he still lives, he also is author of several other books.

Theodore Roethke, of Saginaw, a poet, taught at several colleges and universities after attending the University of Michigan and Harvard. His published poems and contributions to nearly a score of monthly magazines won him more than 12 awards and prizes. He died in 1963.

Carl Sandburg, the poet, worked in an attic study high on the lake dunes at Harbert to write the tome on Abraham Lincoln that won him a place high in the ranks of American biographers. Sandburg lived in Michigan from 1929, when he began his voluminous history of Lincoln, until 1945, when he moved to Hendersonville, N.C.

Bruce Catton, famed Civil War historian who has won the Pulitzer prize for his histories, divides his time between New York and his home overlooking Traverse Bay.

Ernest Hemingway spent summers in the Walloon Lakes area of northern Michigan as a young man and used some of this background in his later novels.

Income Average $11,350

In 1969, the average family income in Wayne County was $11,350 according to figures released by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Dept. of Commerce.

This figure compares to the $11,030 average in the State of Michigan. Per capita income for Wayne County amounted to $3,500 in 1969.

The census figures show that of the 2.6 million county residents, seven per cent were foreign born, and 17 per cent were native born with one or both of the parents foreign born.

Of those residents over the age 16, 77 per cent of the men were in the labor force and 41 per cent of the women. Thirteen per cent of the workers held government jobs while 44 per cent held white collar jobs.

Thirty-six per cent of the married women with a husband at home held jobs and 26 per cent of these women had children under six.

Mirrors are important in any home and not just for the sake of a looking glass! Wherever you put them, mirrors add a new dimension to the size and shape of the room. In a bathroom the mirrors can make a small space look much larger. Over a mantle piece a mirror can reflect an opposite window to give you two views of the outside. On the inside of bedroom doors, full length mirrors are essential for showing the real you. Mirrors are inexpensive, but they add so much!

A new piece of furniture adds so much to a room. For a wide selection of all styles visit SCHRADER'S HOME FURNISHINGS, INC., 111 N. County Millage Renewal Sought Wayne County officials have launched a public information campaign on behalf of County Proposition B, the county millage renewal that will be on the Aug. 8 primary election ballot.

"This millage is absolutely essential to avoid a public services disaster in Wayne County," Robert E. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, told a meeting of county officials and union leaders last week. He added:

"We are short $13 million already. Loss of this millage could put us $26 million in the hole in 1974. That would force cutbacks of a magnitude that would jeopardize the health and safety of every citizen in Wayne County."

THE COUNTY is seeking renewal of a five-year, one mill ($1 per $1,000 of equalized valuation) levy that was first voted in 1964 and was renewed for another five years by an overwhelming vote in 1968 by a vote of 172,000 to 79,000.

The one-mill levy costs the average homeowner about 75 cents a month, but produces nearly $13 million annually to help finance general county services in the fields of hospital care, public health, juvenile delinquency, public safety and courts, child care, mental health, education, libraries and parks.

"We believe the voters will be willing to renew this modest levy in view of the fact that it does not increase taxes and is necessary to maintain present services," Fitzpatrick said.

The county officials and union leaders agreed to invite county employees and officials to contribute voluntarily to a fund to finance the public information campaign.

A similar solicitation in 1968 raised about $25,000 to pay for printed materials, advertising and postage.

THE BOARD OF Commissioners also issued a fact sheet, describing the likely consequences of failure to renew the millage. It pointed out that some 650 county jobs are already vacant due to the present financial crisis and that, in addition:

- Sections of Wayne County General Hospital might have to be closed, as occurred in 1964 when a 60-bed ward was shut down. The hospital serves more than 100,000 patients annually.

- A consultants' report recommending expansion of the present juvenile court and youth home and construction of another juvenile court facility in Westland would have to be shelved, with further reductions likely in juvenile delinquency programs.

- The Detroit - Wayne County Metropolitan Squad, one of the most effective anti-crime programs established in recent history, might face curtailment.

- The prosecuting attorney, who already has threatened "selective" prosecutions because of staff shortages, would have little hope of relief.

- New difficulties would be faced in efforts to reduce the present three-year time it takes the average jury case to come to trial in Wayne County Circuit Court.

- It might be necessary to close the Wayne County Child Development Center, depriving many retarded children of the chance to become self-supporting citizens.

- The County Health Department, which now has one public health nurse per 75,000 residents instead of the recommended one per 5,000, would face tighter budgets.

- Wayne County's 4,400 acres of parks could become unpatrolled, overgrown trash dumps where no one could go in safety if already short funds for maintenance and park patrols were cut.

OTHER SERVICES that would face possible cutbacks, according to the fact sheet, are the foster home program for neglected and orphaned children, library programs for the blind and hospital patients.

At the July 6 meeting, Robert Johnson, president of Council 23 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, was named chairman of a steering committee for the informational campaign.

County officials said the committee would include representatives of all segments of the citizenry.

Hospital To Show How It Operates

Residents in Observerland will have an opportunity Sunday afternoon, July 16, to tour and ask questions about a new hospital shortly before it opens.

Families, including children, will be welcome at the open house and tour scheduled by Metropolitan Hospital West, 28303 Joy Road, Westland.

The open house and tour will begin at 1:30 p.m. and run to 5 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

"Everyone is invited," said Clarence Johnson, vice chairman of the board of directors of Metropolitan Hospital.

JOHNSON SAID the mystery of a hospital, which rarely can be thoroughly examined after it is in operation, will unfold for those who attend.

"This is unusual," Johnson said, "but there is a growing trend for hospitals to view themselves in a public service role...eager to help everyone understand the function of a community hospital."

The hospital will be staffed Sunday by nurses, technicians, lab experts and administrators, who will answer any questions posed.

A short opening ceremony at 1:30 p.m., with Mayor Edward McNamara, of Livonia, and Mayor Eugene McKinney of Westland, will precede the opening of the hospital doors. Officials from health care organizations throughout Michigan also will be present.

Michigan Cherries In Season

By ELLY

For many a settler heading west to Michigan territory, a handful of cherry pits in his saddlebags saw a prized possession. With the state's crop reaching its peak this week it would be beyond belief to those early pioneers that this northern state is now the top cherry producer in the United States.

Americans consume over 140,000 tons of cherries each year; half the sweet cherries and 90 per cent of the sour cherries are frozen or canned.

The cherry is a native of Asia Minor. Its name comes from the Turkish town of Cerasus on the Black Sea. The Romans and the birds are credited with taking the fruit to Europe. The Greek "father of botany," Theophrastus, makes the earliest recorded mention of cherries in his writings in 300 BC.

To make the cherry season official, there's nothing like a fresh cherry pie or it takes just one pound of the luscious dark sweet cherries to make the elegant Cherries Jubilee.

CHERRY PIE

- 1-1/3 c. sugar
- 3 T. flour
- 1 T. cornstarch
- 1/2 t. salt
- 1 1/2 pounds (4 c.) pitted fresh sour cherries
- 1/4 t. almond extract

Pastry for 2-crust, 9-inch pie
1 1/2 T. butter
Combine sugar, flour, cornstarch and salt. Mix with cherries, adding extract. Roll out pastry. Use half to line a deep nine-inch pie pan. Pour in cherry mixture and dot with butter. Cut remaining pastry into 1/2-inch strips. Arrange pastry strips in lattice fashion over cherries. Seal edges with water. For a glazed finish, brush lattice with evaporated milk or egg white. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven for 10 minutes. Reduce temperature to 350 degrees and continue cooking for about 30 minutes longer, or until crust is well done.

SOUR CREAM CHERRY PIE

- 2 c. pitted black or red cherries
- Pastry for 2-crust, 9-inch pie
- 3 eggs
- 3/4 c. dairy sour cream
- 1/2 to 3/4 c. sugar
- 1/4 t. salt
- 1/4 t. almond extract

Pour cherries into an unbaked eight-inch pie shell. Beat eggs well, add sour cream and sugar and beat until thick. Add salt and almond extract. Stir and pour over cherries. Top with lattice strips and bake on low rack of 400-degree oven for 25 to 35 minutes.

CHERRIES JUBILEE

- 1/2 c. sugar
- Dash of salt
- 1 T. cornstarch
- 1 c. water
- 1 lb. pitted dark sweet cherries
- 2 to 4 T. brandy
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream

Combine sugar, salt, cornstarch and water. Add cherries. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Pour brandy over top. Ignite and spoon immediately over ice cream. Makes four servings.

SOUR CHERRY JAM

Shaker recipe

- 1/2 c. cracked cherry pits
- 4 quarts sour cherries, pitted
- 3 quarts white sugar

Add cracked pits tied in cheesecloth to the pitted cherries and sugar. Cook together for 1 1/2 hours, or until the jam thickens and takes on a dark color. Remove bag of pits and pour jam into sealed jars and seal. "A very rich and tasty confection."

SHORT PIE

- 1 c. biscuit mix
- 1/4 c. soft butter
- 3 T. boiling water
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream
- 1/2 to 3/4 lb. fresh sweet cherries, pitted and halved.

Place biscuit mix and butter in a nine-inch pie plate. Add boiling water. Stir with fork until dough forms a ball and cleans pan. Pat evenly in pan, with hands, bringing dough up to edges. Bake for eight to 10 minutes in hot oven, or until golden. Cool, fill with ice cream. Cover with a generous layer of halved cherries.

Eastman Brass Quintet Slated

The second concert of the Schoolcraft College summer music festival will feature a performance by the Eastman Brass Quintet on Thursday, July 13, at 8:30 p.m.

The concert will be given in the auditorium at Northville State Hospital on Seven Mile Rd. in Northville. General admission is $1.50.

Works to be performed include two suites of renaissance and baroque music and two contemporary works, the Reynolds quintet and a quintet by Alvin Eiler.

THE EASTMAN Brass Quintet is one of the smallest brass ensembles in North America. It was organized in 1961 and since then has toured throughout the country as well as abroad.

It made a highly successful tour of South America under the sponsorship of the U.S. State Department and will make an appearance at the Israel Festival in August.

Daniel Patrylak, first trumpet in the quintet, is assistant director of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y. Patrylak is also director of the summer session at Eastman as well as associate professor of trumpet and is himself a graduate of the school.

The only student in the group is second trumpet Allen Vizzutti, who also plays in the Rochester Philharmonic and the Eastman Wind Ensemble.

S'craft Students Plan 3 Concerts

Students of the sixth annual Schoolcraft College summer music school will perform three concerts during the next two weeks.

The summer school orchestra, under the baton of Director Richard Saunders, will perform on Friday, July 14, and Friday, July 28, in the auditorium at Northville State Hospital on Seven Mile in Northville.

The most outstanding student groups will perform Wednesday, July 26 in the liberal arts theater on campus. Admission is free, and all three performances begin at 8:30 p.m.

Emphasis of the summer school curriculum is on orchestral training and chamber music literature.

Chamber groups, which are coached by the individual members of the summer school faculty, receive daily training in chamber music.

They have in the past put in outstanding performances of works by Beethoven, Haydn, Mozart, Prokofiev and many other great composers.

Performing Arts Center Is More Than Just A Dream

Raising $4 million for creation of a new center for the performing arts looms large in the plans of a Bloomfield Township resident these days.

Celia Merrill Turner, director of the Will-O-Way Apprentice Theater, 775 W. Long Lake Road, unveiled plans for a proposed Will-O-Way Foundation for the Performing Arts to about 25 persons at a meeting this month.

The $4 million would be used to build a new facility, including a 500-seat auditorium on the present site of Will-O-Way. Mrs. Turner would like to lease the more than four-acre Will-O-Way site to the foundation for 99 years.

AMONG MEMBERS of a charter founder's committee are Pietro DiGiorgio, a Garden City teacher and Will-O-Way actor, and Vickie Zoyes of Southfield, a Will-O-Way actress.

Another group of supporters has been organized under the title Friends of Will-O-Way.

Persons interested in future discussions for the support of the center may contact Mrs. Weldon Yeager, 22 Hamilton, Birmingham.

Money for establishment of the center will be sought through donations (tax-deductible) from individuals, firms and corporations.

The new facility would house not only the apprentice theater, but also a music and dance school and a children's theater program.

For Mrs. Turner who has had a long career in music and the theater, the arts center is badly needed to serve not only Bloomfield Township, but all the surrounding suburbs. Among the 9,000 acting students who have studied at Will-O-Way over the past 30 years have been many from Observerland.

Mrs. Turner has been interested in theater and music in the Detroit area practically from the day she was born. She and her brother, William Way Merrill, organized the Will-O-Way Playhouse in 1940 as a summer stock on land bought 75 years ago by their grandfather, George P. Way. Their mother was Treasa Way Merrill, who gave elocution lessons by correspondence as well as "in person," and their father was William O. Merrill, a well-known Detroit physician.

ONE OF THE early visitors to their farm was Jessie Bonstelle, after whom Wayne State University's Bonstelle Theater is named. Miss Bonstelle and her friends used to stage impromptu performances at the farm, with Mrs. Turner as an eager and appreciative watcher.

Mrs. Turner attended Michigan State University, where she studied music and speech, and the Juilliard Graduate School of Music.

Highlights of her career include serving with the WACs during World War II. She became a band director, and at one time was assistant to Meredith Willson. After the war, she continued her interest in music by helping to create the Pontiac Symphony Orchestra and acting as its associate conductor for 11 years. More recently, she helped set up the performing arts program at the Northwood Institute in Indiana.

In 1947, she was married to Kenneth E. Turner, who became business manager of Will-O-Way.

In 1948, the apprentice theater was formed and in 1949 it was licensed by the Michigan State board of education as a trade school in theater.

IT'S BEEN a busy place ever since. Vincent Price was one of the famed actors who conducted master classes there. George C. Scott, while never formally studying at Will-O-Way, certainly got some valuable training there. "He taught himself," says Mrs. Turner. "I played with him once and it was a frightening experience... he completely became the character he was playing."

Last summer Will-O-Way learned that "vaudeville really is dead." This year, they've been having a successful spring season with a variety of weekend plays, ranging from "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" to "Mame."

Meanwhile classes go on for children, teenagers and adults, and not only is the theater itself in use, but also in many rooms in the Turner home.

During the summer the school offers accelerated courses for under-18s in the mornings, teenagers in the afternoons and adults in the evenings. Some working scholarships are available. Weekends this summer, there will be satirical revues using local talent.

THE NEED for a performing arts center is very great, Mrs. Turner believes. "There is a new need for the exploring of self. There is a new identity crisis. People need to know who they are and where they can go and there is a need for the relieving of tensions in children, teens and adults.

"It is important to serve all age groups. The performing arts teach self-respect. What you can do is important, not who you are or who your parents are."

Acting is important, but people are more important to Mrs. Turner. "I will change casts in a play to give needed experience to someone," says Mrs. Turner, "so we often get imperfect plays."

In explaining her plans for the center, Mrs. Turner points out "Every other performing arts center here is tied up with a college. They are important, but what about the people who don't go to college?"

A good question. And with a new arts center, Mrs. Turner hopes to have a good answer.

'Orchard' Is Slated At Hilberry

DETROIT The opening of "The Cherry Orchard" on Wednesday, July 19, will be the first Chekhov performance at the Hilberry Theater since it opened in 1964.

The play will be performed at 8 p.m. in the theater located at Cass and Hancock on the campus of Wayne State University.

It will be repeated on Thursday and Saturday, July 20 and 22, and will begin alternating with "Play Strindberg" Wednesdays through Saturday evenings through Aug. 12.

"The Cherry Orchard," which Chekhov finished in 1903, was his last and most popular play outside Russia. It tells the story of a family forced to sell the old family estate, with its beloved cherry orchard, to make room for a new subdivision.

In a complex mood combining pathos and humor, Chekhov examines the various members of the household and their bumbling inability to contend with their difficulties during the crisis.

The Hilberry production is the English version by Tyrone Guthrie and Leonid Kipnis, made for the 1965 production at the Guthrie Theater in Minneapolis.

The cast is headed by Mary Benson as Lyubov Ranevskaya, owner of the cherry orchard; Dianne Hill as her daughter, Anya; Cheryl Giannini as her adopted daughter Varya; John H. Napierala as her brother Gaev; and James Newell as Lopahin, the merchant who buys the estate.

Tickets are on sale at J. L. Hudson.

TERRY BAKER plays The Prince and The Beast (into which he is transformed) in the Hilberry Theater production of "Beauty and the Beast." The dramatization of the famous fairy tale alternates with the black folk play, "Stagolee," at matinee performances of the Hilberry Theater during its summer festival which runs through Aug. 12. Schedules may be obtained by calling the Hilberry box office.

Busing, Abortion Split
6 Congress Hopefuls

By KATHY MORAN

The six Democratic candidates in the 2nd District talked on a wide range of subjects during a meeting last week of the Livonia Interested Democrats and showed obvious splits on the busing and abortion issues.

It was the first meeting when all six contenders were present. Questions ranged from busing and abortion to foreign policy.

Running for the seat now held by U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) are William Brown of Ann Arbor, Matthew Kehoe of Lambertville (outside Monroe), Frederick J. Schwall of Ypsilanti, Walter Shapiro of Ann Arbor, State Rep. Marvin Stempien of Livonia and Billy Turner of Ypsilanti.

The new 2nd District includes Livonia and Plymouth with areas stretching from Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti to Monroe. Since the district was reapportioned, it is generally considered a "swing" district, meaning it could go Democratic or Republican during the November election.

THE ISSUES which revealed the deepest split were busing and abortion. Each candidate qualified his views, but generally Brown, Schwall and Shapiro were in favor of busing as a short term solution to segregation while Kehoe, Stempien and Turner spoke against busing.

Abortion reform saw Kehoe and Schwall unilaterally opposed to reform while Brown, Shapiro, Stempien and Turner said they could accept some type of reform.

Stempien, who is currently House majority leader, was the first to speak on busing, saying he is opposed to forced busing to achieve racial integration. He criticized the State Legislature for passing a "gutless" open housing law "with no teeth" two years ago which has done nothing to promote integration and prohibit selective housing sales.

Open housing is where the solution to integration lies he said and his view was echoed by Shapiro. Shapiro, a graduate student at the University of Michigan, stipulated that open housing is a long-range solution, and in the meantime, busing is the only acceptable short term solution.

Schwall, a Washtenaw County commissioner, said that the time has come for the public to "have enough guts" to say "yes" to busing. He criticized the double standard in this northern state where the residents agreed before that the South had to integrate its schools by busing but now have changed their minds when they are directly affected.

"Is the medicine we gave to the south 10 to 15 years ago too bitter for us to take?" he asked.

Brown, a senior accountant at U-M maintained that a person can't say he's for integration and not for busing.

To bus his children to schools outside their neighborhood is infringing on an individual's guaranteed rights, Kehoe said, adding he's "ultimately opposed to involuntary cross-district busing." Kehoe is an attorney specializing in taxes.

The current segregation problem is due to economic differences, Turner said, arguing that it will never be solved by using children who are not in position to do anything about it. When the government helps eradicate economic problems, people will be able to live where they please and schools will automatically be integrated, the Ypsilanti trustee said.

ON ABORTION, Brown said that even though he is Catholic and has personal views on abortion, he doesn't believe "the state has any right to dictate my private morality on anyone else."

Shapiro and Stempien (who were often only a hairline apart in their views) agreed, saying that they would both support bills to make abortion expenses covered by health insurance.

Stempien, who voted against the abortion bill in the House last year, said he can accept abortion reform with certain limitations but would oppose the specific issue on the August ballot because it is too open.

"Abortion on demand is pure murder," Kehoe said, in stating his opposition.

Schwall agreed, saying: "No person or society has the right to terminate the life of another human being."

Turner said that some basic changes in the abortion law should be made, but the changes should incorporate provisions such as approval by the husband.

All the candidates took apart unemployment. Most agreed that federal grants in certain areas could provide jobs for some of the jobless, though they disagreed on which areas should get the money.

Pension Hike Mishandled, Says Esch

Congressman Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann Arbor) criticized Congress and especially the Senate for "the irresponsible manner in which it considers Social Security legislation."

Speaking to the Senior Citizens Guild of Ann Arbor on Sunday evening, 2nd District Congressman said, "The 20 per cent increase approved by the Congress last week will provide our nation's senior citizens with badly needed funds, and I supported it for that reason; but it illustrates the basic failure of the Congress to give Social Security legislation the serious long run consideration it deserves."

Esch said, "The debate on Social Security degraded into a football of political one-upmanship rather than a thoughtful and realistic discussion of the problems, needs and prospects for legislation affecting the nation's senior citizens."

Esch said the House had considered Social Security legislation last year and that the bill "has been languishing in the Senate for 18 months without any action. Then, with the election approaching, the Senate suddenly reawakened its interest in senior citizens and attached the increase to an irrelevant bill. The final product was rushed through the Congress only minutes before its recess for the 4th of July and received less than an hour's consideration and debate in the House."

"The senior citizens of the nation deserve more attention and more time than that," Esch said. "For instance, one of the greatest inequities in the Social Security system, the earnings limitation of only $1,689, was not even discussed." Congressman Esch has sponsored legislation to remove limitation.

Esch was also critical of the "politically cynical" financing arrangements made in the bill. "While the benefits are scheduled to begin immediately," he pointed out, "the additional taxes to fund those benefits will not start until after the election in November. The Social Security tax is a payroll tax which imposes the greatest pressure on lower and middle incomes. It is long past time that the Congress give a complete review of the Social Security system and its taxation to determine whether this financing is adequate and equitable."

Police Post Transfer OK'd

A bill to provide land in Northville for transfer of the State Police Post passed the House and is under consideration in the Senate.

Introduced by Rep. Marvin Stempien (D-Livonia), the bill authorizes transfer of property from the Dept. of Mental Health to the Dept. of State Police. The land is west of Northville State Hospital and south of Seven Mile.

Stempien said Livonia and adjacent communities will benefit from the location because "it will provide citizens with still better protection, primarily in state police road patrols in the suburban areas."

BUBBLES by DON KEETH

A mellow sentimentalist once said, "Home is where the heart is."

That's nice. But he ignored the fact that, too often, home also is where the dirt, heat, humidity, grime and noise are.

Don't mean to be cynical here, but we all want our home to be a delightful little bubble of climate isolated from summer's heat, dirt, stickiness and noise. Yet, too often, we build walls, roof, and floor and expect them to do the whole job.

They don't. To live and flourish in that delightful bubble of climate you need LENNOX YEAR AROUND AIR CONDITIONING. Do you have a circulated air heating system now? Then simply add Lennox central air conditioning to it. I can quote you some low prices unheard of a few months ago.

And as for quality, I've already said it's Lennox. Make your home a delightful bubble of perfect climate, isolated from the heat, grime and noise of summer. Call me. The secret password this week is "bubbles."

TOWN 'N' COUNTRY SEZ:

DESIGN YOUR OWN THING!

RAIN-BIRD makes it easy for you to install your own sprinkler system.

It's easier than you think. Rain Bird's "5 Steps to Installing A Sprinkler System" takes all the guesswork and expensive trial and error out of planning your system. Even helps you plan the total number of parts, pipe, fittings, and sprinklers you'll need. After you've made your plans, installation is easy. Save enough (by installing the system yourself) to take a vacation this year! That's easy, isn't it?

Do-it-Yourself. All you need is one weekend and a couple of tools (like a shovel and a hacksaw). Of course, you may need some questions answered, too. But that's why we're here.

Try out any of the cars people trade in for new VWs. We get all kinds but we don't sell them again just like that. We check them out first. Give them the 16-point inspection. Fix whatever needed fixing. Then guarantee the repair or replacement of every major working part* 100% for 30 days or 1,000 miles. Whichever comes first. Fighting, Drinking, Women How Democrats, GOP Behave

By TIM RICHARD

A typical suburban voter may tell you there's little difference between the political parties, and may believe it. And in the legislative halls of Lansing and Washington, our lawmakers split all over the place on important bills.

Yet in a day when the importance of political parties seems blurred, the behavioral differences between them are as big as ever. Republicans and Democrats differ in temperament, in occupations, in the ways they drink and cut their hair, in their attitudes toward women and the young.

This observer has 38 years of watching the parties at work. To those who guffaw and say, "You're not even 38 years old," he can reply: "True, but I've been watching BOTH parties, which is something the average politician can't claim, and if you wanted to throw in the Prohibitionists, the John Birch Society, the old Labor Youth League, the Socialist Workers and the shifting new liberal coalitions, I could claim 40 years of experience."

Does one get a bellyful after awhile? No, not yet. Politicians, while their ranks contain many self-seekers, bores and phonies, actually have fewer undesirables, percentage-wise, than the ordinary run of society. Give me a hard-working, committed party politician over an inactive, uninformed independent any day.

BUT ABOUT those differences between Democrats and Republicans:

Democrats like to boast that their district, county and state conventions are more interesting than Republicans' because they have more out-in-the-open fights. In a superficial sense that's true. But the gulf within the GOP is far deeper and more serious than anything on the Democratic side. There aren't five percentage points difference, on any voting scale, between Ed Muskie, George McGovern and La Chisholm, but there's a good 60 points difference between Republicans like Marv Esch, on the one hand, and Ed Hutchinson or Barry Goldwater on the other.

Republicans pushed Age of Majority legislation, but a young person can advance faster in the Democratic Party, a veteran political observer says.

The difference is fighting style. Democrats find that shouting at each other, with many speakers and for extended periods, is therapy. Republicans tend to mutter. If Republicans find they're split on an issue, each side will trot out its best lawyer with his statute books, and the battle will be brief but bitter. Each side's position will also be clearer. When one faction finds itself beaten on one or two votes and it sees it lacks the votes, it will cease arguing. The losing faction in a Democratic war screams and kicks and speechifies for hours, on every issue.

REPUBLICAN conventions tend to be shorter. A state convention is wrapped up in half a day, while the Democrats take two days, and even then don't always get their work done.

The result for Democrats is a form of delegate fatigue. It showed up, to the party's great embarrassment, in 1970 when Sen. Phil Hart and party leaders were forced to denounce and disassociate themselves from a resolution favoring amnesty for draft evaders. Some of the zealots slipped that resolution through on a Sunday morning when the leaders weren't looking.

Democrats make trouble for themselves, too, by having too many delegates. They are ideologically committed to a "broad-based" party, but it means they cram too many people for sensible debate into too small an arena. The result is gross inefficiency, to which your average Democrat will reply: "Who wants efficiency?"

DEMOCRATS LIKE to think of themselves as big drinkers. While it's true that this reporter has seen more public drunks at Democratic conventions, the gross alcohol intake per delegate is far greater in the ranks of the GOP.

At a GOP state convention, more delegations and more candidates will have hospitality suites with liquor than in any two Democratic conventions. (Democrats claim it's because Republicans are richer.) And after a local convention, you practically never hear a Republican say, "Let's go out for coffee," the way Democrats do.

BOTH PARTIES are making a pitch for the youth and the female votes, but their deeper attitudes toward those groups are vastly different.

This reporter, while selling the Age of Majority concept from 1966 on, got lip service in both parties but concrete action only from a couple of Republicans named Esch and Milliken.

Yet in a personal as distinguished from a legal sense, a young person can advance faster in the Democratic Party than in the GOP. Democratic legislators in Lansing tend to be younger, leaders tend to be younger, and (prior to 1971) a 21-year-old popping off at a Democratic convention found a politer audience than the same age person at a Republican gathering.

Institutionally, the Young Republicans have had more clubs, more members and more strength than the Young Democrats for years. The reason is that they've had to. Democrats let their young folks advance into the "senior" party far faster.

DEMOCRATS make a great to-do over giving representation to females, and you'll find far more Democratic women using the liberationist "Ms." designation. At Democratic state conventions, women have formed their own caucus.

They need to. In very subtle but real ways, Republicans have given women more work and responsibility. You see it not only at the state organization level—recall the work of Chairman Elly Peterson—but at the local level. The Republican ladies don't have to caucus and shout to be heard.

Why? The chief reason seems to be the greater blue collar orientation of the Democratic Party. You never hear a Republican CPA referring to his wife as "the little woman" the way an auto worker does.

One year in Washtenaw County—where they have more strange people than in the rest of the state put together—a woman nominated for convention secretary declined the job, labeling the nominator a male chauvinist pig. To placate her, the man later nominated her for sergeant-at-arms, but the angry "miz" turned it down again.

THE BIGGEST difference of all, however, is in "bloc" thinking. Republican delegates, a little more economically homogeneous, describe themselves as being from the 18th District or the upper peninsula or Kent County. A Democrat is a member of the labor bloc, the black caucus, the women's caucus, the black-labor caucus, the youth caucus.

It stems from the way Franklin D. Roosevelt put together a victorious coalition in the 1930s with the South, ethnic groups, labor, small farmers, social scientists and law professors who had been sneered at by businessmen.

For the last four years, however, that coalition has been under severe tension. The Democratic organization has a big chunk of white-collar, middle-class suburbanites that it doesn't quite know what to do with.

Take a look at the New Democratic Coalition, a liberal element within the party: A Ford engineer. An accountant. A chemist. A civics teacher. Suburban housewives with college educations who are as concerned with ghetto kids as their own Little Leaguers.

It is this group that is giving the Michigan Democratic Party fits right now, that insisted on a reform convention in 1969, that supports McGovern and Lindsay. With their educational levels and solid middle-class backgrounds, one would think them prime candidates for the GOP, but this new coalition, like traditional Democrats, insists on talking in bloc terms—"the old, the poor, the black."

IN ANOTHER WAY, however, this new coalition thinks like Republicans on the issue of leadership. While traditional Democrats tend to promote their presidential candidates for the first vacancy in the Holy Trinity, Republicans are quietly less awed by "leadership" (a favorite word, by the way, of John F. Kennedy and Sander Levin).

But about this new group in the Democratic Party: Their suspicion of strong leadership is almost Republican in its depth. They will be a fun group to watch.

FROM A REPORTER'S point of view, Republicans gripe more about the press, but what Vice President Agnew is hollering about really is the New York Times, Washington Post and some of the more arrogant TV guys. In Lansing and Observerland, a newsman has no trouble getting information from, and making fast friends in, both parties.

Roth Panel Revises Routes

An Observer Roundup
An increase from 15 to 16 "clusters" or groups recommended by Judge Stephen J. Roth's desegregation panel on busing will affect Observer area school districts by rearranging cluster members, and will reduce the percentage of black students and the population of each cluster. Judge Roth appointed his 11-member panel to advise him on the original metropolitan desegregation plan submitted by the NAACP.

The panel said the changes will improve the socioeconomic status (level of family income) within the clusters, and aid in scheduling buses.

THE 53 SCHOOLS districts involved will still be grouped so that at least one Detroit attendance area will be grouped with feeder schools from suburban areas.

Originally the plan called for Observerland districts to be grouped in seven clusters. However, area districts are now grouped into five clusters. On the basis of cluster membership, ease in busing would seem to be improved under the new plan.

Southfield School District, which was formerly in a cluster with Berkley, Ferndale and Detroit Central, now will be bused with Birmingham and Oak Park to Detroit Central.

Farmington and Clarenceville School districts, which were once in a cluster to be bused to Cooley and Redford in Detroit, are now grouped with West Bloomfield and Bloomfield Hills. Ford and Mumford are the Detroit attendance areas they will exchange with.

Although Livonia was in a cluster with South Redford (SR) and matched with Cody and Mackenzie attendance areas, Livonia under the new plan will be the only suburban district bused to Detroit in the Cooley and Redford areas.

SR STUDENTS will still be bused to Cody and Mackenzie areas; however, Redford Union (RU) and Garden City districts are now included in the cluster. Formerly, RU students were paired with Detroit's Ford and Mumford areas, while Garden City was linked with the Northwestern area.

Detroit Chadsey, one-fifth of Cooley and Cadillac Junior High were originally outlined as due for an exchange with the Wayne-Westland School District. Now Wayne-Westland's attendance area is limited to Chadsey for Wayne-Westland.

These changes are expected to bring a racial balance of 25 per cent black to 75 per cent white to the desegregation plan. In the NAACP plan, percentages of blacks in each cluster ranged from 22 per cent for Wayne-Westland to 30.8 per cent for Southfield.

Now the Wayne-Westland District will have 22 per cent blacks, the lowest in the Observer area and the highest percentage of blacks will be in the Garden City, SR and RU cluster with 27.8 per cent.

Racial percentages of blacks in other districts are: Southfield, 25.3, Farmington and Clarenceville, 26 and Livonia, 22.6.

TOTAL POPULATIONS for each cluster have also been reduced under the revised plan. Total populations, formerly ranged from more than 43,000 to more than 83,000 students. They would be reduced to a low of more than 38,000 in the Wayne-Westland cluster, and to a high of more than 81,000 in the Garden City, SR and RU clusters.

Total populations in other clusters will be: Southfield, more than 52,000; Farmington and Clarenceville, more than 57,000; and Livonia, nearly 73,000.

WONDERLAND CALENDAR OF COMING EVENTS...

JULY 14-15

-CLIP & SAVE-

SIDEWALK SALE
"Country Carnival Days" is the theme of this year's version of our popular Sidewalk Sale. Special attractions will include the carnival pitchman who will act as baker for your merchandise specials, clowns giving away Wonderland balloons, and calliope located near the Middlebelt and Plymouth Road entrances.

LATIN AMERICAN FESTIVAL
A first for Wonderland, we will present a colorful, spirited Latin American Festival in the Mall by ethnic groups displaying and selling nationality gifts, handmade crafts, and snack foods. Both evenings we will have a spirited Latin American band and semiprofessional dancers.

KIRSCH & BLUM FLEA MARKET
This will be held throughout the Mall. Merchandise will consist of used and antique wares and handicraft items. In the event of severe rain, it will be held the following day during regular Sunday store hours.

SQUARE DANCE

CALLING AND DANCING
Under the direction of Mr. Bev Tallman, will take place on the west end of the Mall between Allied Radio and Robinson's. As usual, there is no charge for participation.

USED MOTOR VEHICLE SALE

The public will be invited to sell their used motor vehicles in our Plymouth Road parking lot near gate No. 6. All transactions are private. Everyone is welcome.

SPECTACULAR SOUND EFFECTS SHOW

Greg Shideler, the Sound Effects King, will present his repertoire of stand-up and situation comedy skits producing every sound effect ranging from kittens purring to supersonic jets and explosions.

SQUARE DANCE

CALLING AND DANCING
A repeat headlined by Bev Tallman will be presented at the west end of the Mall. Everyone is welcome to participate or watch.

KIRSCH & BLUM FLEA MARKET

Our ever popular flea market Saturday will be held throughout the mall. Here you'll find used, handcrafted, and antique wares that will allow you to wander down memory lane or zero in on the latest mod accessory.

JOIN THE FUN—

Come on all "you Sherlock Holmes shoppers", Wonderland's big annual Country Carnival Sidewalk Sale will be coming July 14 and 15. You won't need deerstalker hats and magnifying glasses to find the bargains in this sale. They will be right there in front of you, all over the center. No matter what you need or want, you should be able to find it "at a price you can afford to pay." Special feature of the sale will be an old time "circus pitchman" pitching specials over the public address system. Don Williams, famous circus barker for many years, and master of ceremonies at the Michigan State Fair for the last 20 years, will be doing his famous "Old Time Days" routines throughout the Center in a checkered coat, straw hat and cane. The Merchants' Council will give away 5,000 Wonderland balloons during the sale. There will be two calliopes near mall entrances to add to the carnival atmosphere.

WHY SETTLE FOR ANYTHING LESS THAN COMPLETE SATISFACTION

When buying furniture, there is no substitute for quality, service or value. Unfortunately today, as ironic as it may seem, the trend is not toward more service... but less!

Quite frankly, to us at Robinson Furniture this attitude is both upsetting and appalling.

Because we've spent a lifetime building and staking our reputation not only on the selection and value of the furniture we sell but on the service that accompanies it.

At Robinson's we sincerely believe that we have selections second to none in the State.

From French Provincial to Italian Provincial. From Modern to Mediterranean. From English to Oriental. From Spanish to Traditional.

And all at prices (promptly delivered to your home) that can't be matched for quality and value.

We invite you to come visit any one of our five convenient store locations.

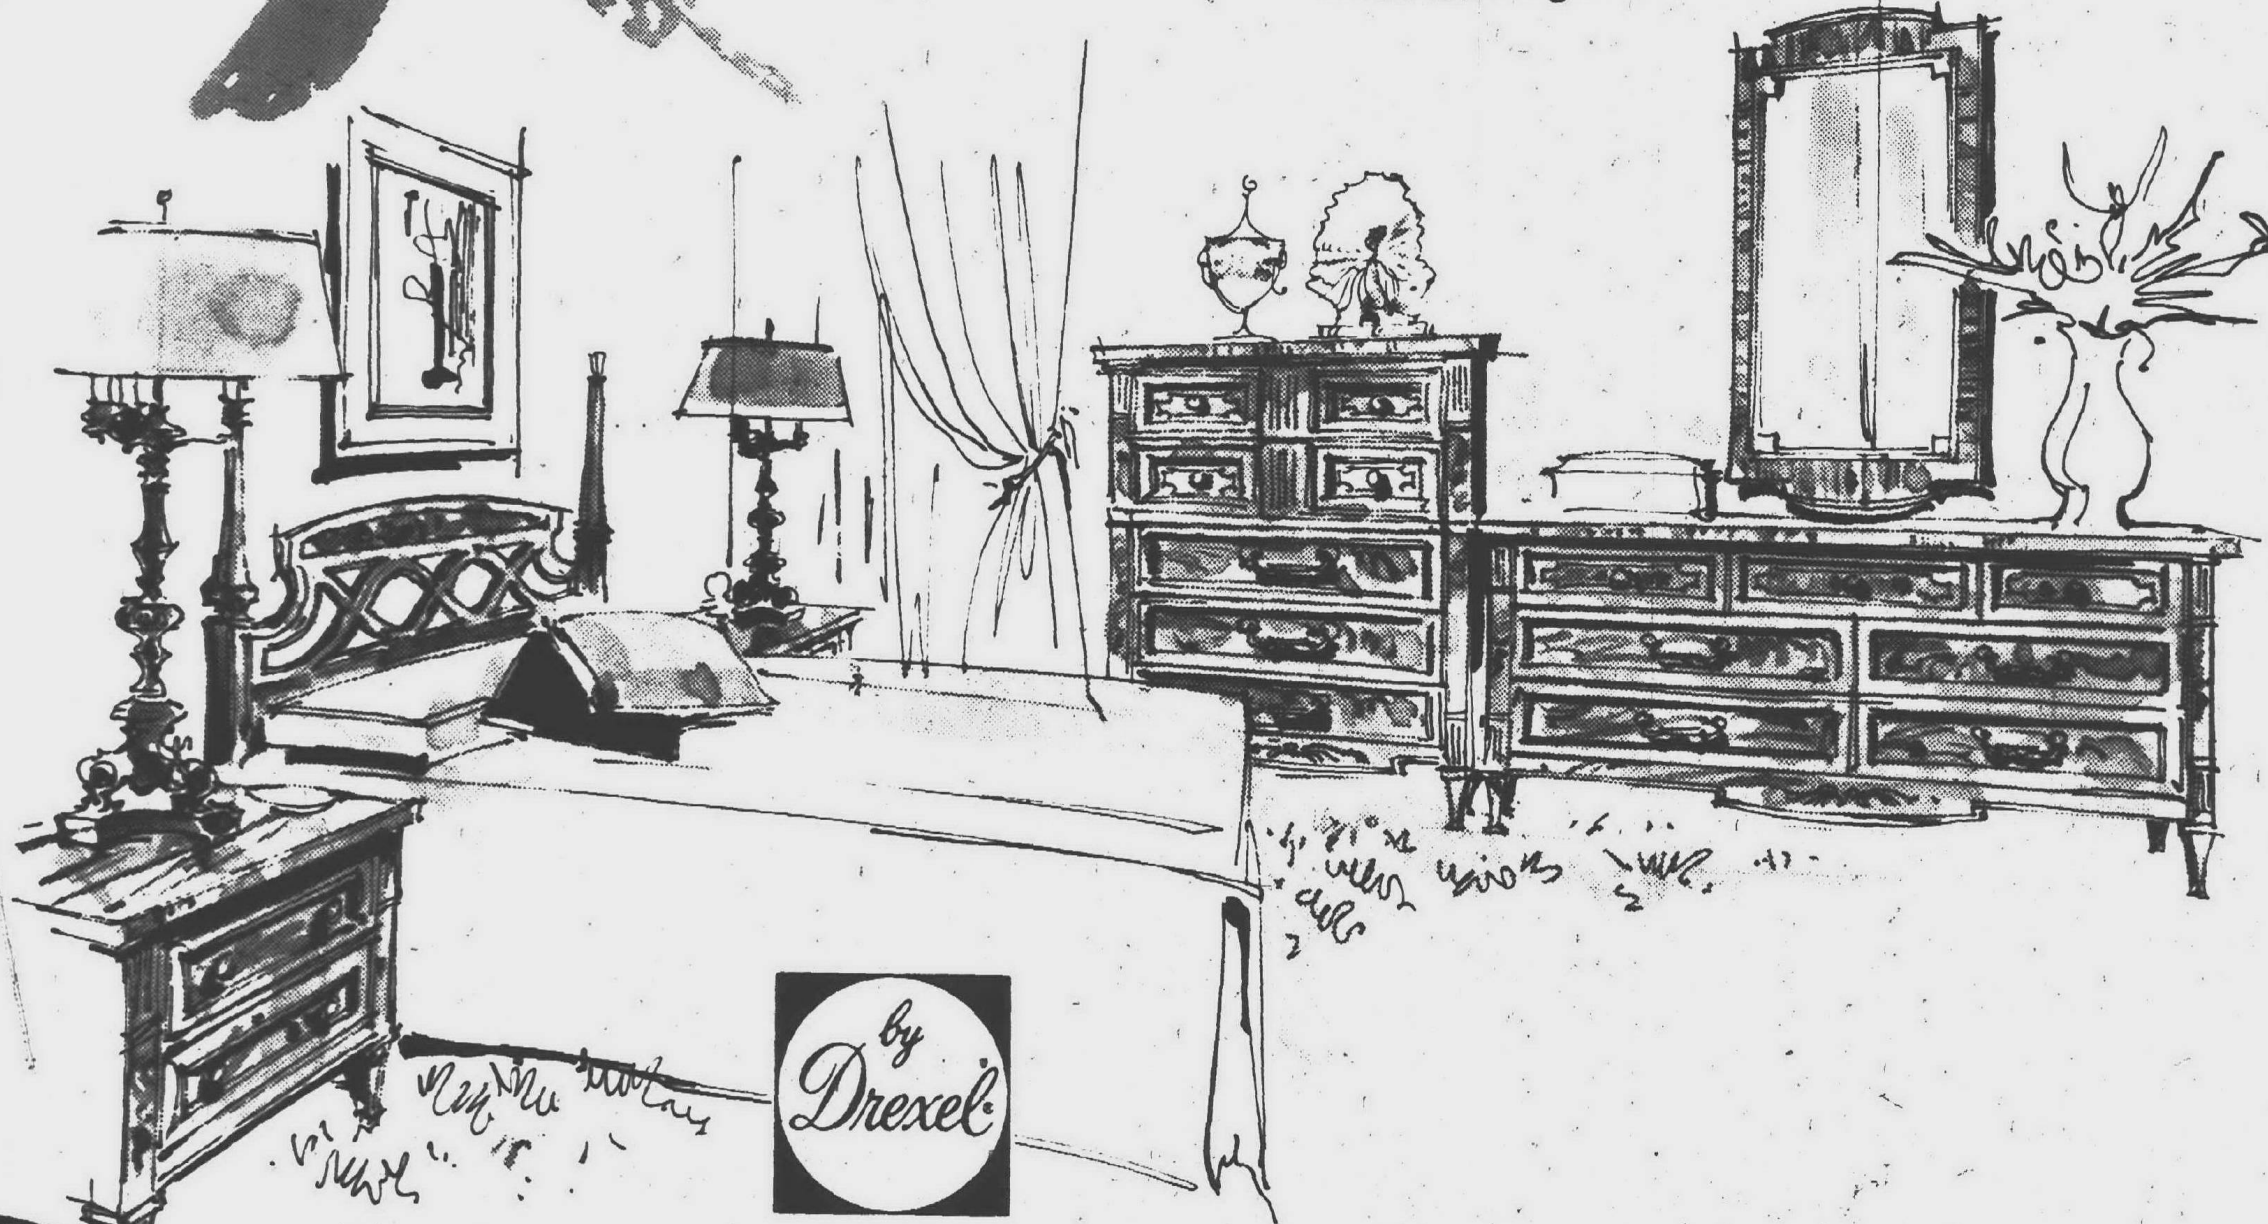

You'll find it an experience in complete shopping satisfaction.
