Elementary School Boundaries Set

By STEVE BARNABY

The Plymouth Board of Education has unanimously supported a plan to change the elementary school districts south of Joy Road.

District changes wouldn't affect the feeder system into the high schools.

The largest change will be in the Gallimore and Isbister districts.

Gallimore will be reduced in size by making the southern boundary just north of Ford Road, but not to include Ford north to Joy from Canton Center Road to Napier Road.

The Isbister district will be enlarged to include the portion previously within the Gallimore district beginning at Ford and extending south, and to include an area bounded by, but not including the properties facing, Cherry Hill and Lilley roads adjacent to the newly transferred area.

Other boundary changes approved are for the Deer Creek complex site to be transferred to the Allen attendance area and the Stoneybrooke complex site to be transferred to the Smith attendance area. The Holiday Park subdivision will remain as a part of the Fiegel School area.

The moves at Deer Creek and Stoneybrooke mean Fiegel will become a kindergarten through fifth grade elementary school.

Also given tentative approval was the reduction of the Miller School area to include the section in which the school is located and the half - section immediately east and west, but not to include any children who live on Canton Center, Warren or Haggerty roads, and only those children who live on the north side of Ford between Haggerty and Canton Center.

Combined with this is the tentative plan to make the remaining southeast sections of the school district be designated as the Central - Truesdell Schools area with the specific subdivisions being designated to schools north of Joy where spaces are available. This would not change the high school designation because students would be feeding into that portion north of Joy which feeds into the Plymouth - Salem High School.

Ancient Bones Stir Interest

Class Hopes To Dig For Artifacts

By W. W. EDGAR

Enthused by the preliminary study of the ancient bones uncovered by a plumber in the rear of the Presbyterian Church in Plymouth, Robert Thams, anthropologist at Plymouth - Canton High School, is eager to undertake an official search as part of the school program.

"The study we have conducted on the old bones thus far," he stated, "is rewarding under the circumstances. But the area in which they were found has been scraped, scooped and re-scopped until study becomes rather difficult.

"There is an area up there in the northwest corner of the parking lot between two pines that looks satisfactory for an official search. The ground has the appearance of not being disturbed for years and years."

The anthropology teacher is eager to have his proposed search made in conjunction with interested members of the Plymouth Historical Society and later -- if more bones are uncovered -- have his class take on the project of preparing a permanent exhibit for the new historical museum.

"All I know about the study thus far," he said, "is that the bones that were uncovered a few weeks ago showed signs of being from two adults and two children. We couldn't tell if they were from white or Indian bodies."

In conducting his own class search, Thams stated that it might be easier to determine the race.

"When we dig deeper into the ground," he continued, "we might find such tell-tale signs as belt buckles, buttons or some sort of medals. Such things would denote a white person. If we came across beads or a head dress with beads of fancy belts, we could be almost assured that the bones were those of an Indian."

The enthused teacher revealed that the present study came about quite by accident:

"I was telling the class about the time the original church burned in 1936 and that 30 or 40 skeletons were found.

"One of the boys -- Duane Hafley -- mentioned that there was some digging going on at the point at the moment. He was given permission to visit the spot, and sure enough, the workmen found the bones.

"They were taken to City Hall, and there Duane, who has been the leader, signed a receipt for the find. This gave us the opportunity to study."

Thams also recalled that the original church was built about the year 1833, according to the records, and that by the time the church was opened in 1935, quite a few Indian artifacts had been found.

"Don't forget," he said, "the Indians are quite cagey, and it is claimed that Chief Round Head was buried there."

All of these things now have built up a strong desire on the part of the teacher and his class to undertake an official study as a class project in cooperation with the historical society.

Informed of the class plan, John M. Hoben, superintendent of schools, was quick to join in the enthusiasm of the project.

"It sure would be a nice project for our school," he said, "and more so if one of our classes carry it through to the point where there will be a permanent exhibit of the project in the new historical museum."

Survey Set On Excess Building Alternatives Study

(See Page 10C For Report)

By W. EDWARD WENDOVER

Each household in the Plymouth School District will soon be getting a post card questionnaire on alternatives to building schools in excess of need.

The questionnaires, which are being prepared by the Committee on Maximum Utilization of Buildings, will be mailed out before June.

They are based on six reports compiled by the study committee on alternatives to "over-building" schools. Those alternatives are:

- Renting buildings inside the school district.
- Renting buildings outside the district.
- Extending the school day for the high school.
- Holding split sessions at elementary schools.
- Extending the school year to a year around program.
- Using "satellite" schools.

The rough drafts of the six reports were presented to 25 selected residents of the district whose comments on advantages and disadvantages of each alternative were added to the report.

The study committee then presented their reports and the citizens' comments to a panel of 100 residents.

In the next two weeks, the committee, which is co-chaired by Dr. E. J. McClendon and Dr. Wendell M. Hough, will then send a detailed survey to 1,000 school district residents.

Following the return and compilation of that survey, the district-wide survey will be mailed out.

The every-house survey will list the alternatives by name only, said Hough and McClendon, who urged district residents to keep the reports for future use.

(The reports, with the comments by the citizen panel, are printed in their entirety here as a public service of The Plymouth Mail & Observer.)

The reports study the options available to avoid building more classrooms than the district will need when it is fully populated, the committee report said.

"The committee feels that the community should provide input on the relative merits of the various alternatives," the report said.

'Hike Interest To Savers'

By TIM RICHARD

Banks should be free to compete with savings and loan institutions by hiking the interest rates they pay to small savers, the president of Michigan's largest multi-bank holding company says.

Stanford C. Stoddard, president of Michigan National Corp., attacked the Federal Reserve Board's "regulation Q," which limits to 4.5 per cent the interest banks may pay on passbook savings.

Michigan National Bank -- West Metro and MNB -- Oakland (the former Livonia National Bank and Oakland Bank, respectively) pay the full allowable 4.5 per cent, although the holding company's mid-state affiliates in Lansing pay 4.0.

While praising the 18 per cent growth in stockholder equity between March 31, 1972 and the same date this year, Stoddard deplored the "flow of regular savings to the savings and loan industry."

The 42-year - old banker, conducting the first annual meeting Tuesday of the holding company in a Bloomfield Hills hotel, noted the "Fed" has suspended the interest ceilings on certificates of deposit of more than $100,000 for 30-89 day maturities. The same should be done for the small saver, he argued.

At a time when most indicators of the banking corporation's success were in the 20 per cent range, time deposits of the firm and its subsidiaries grew 6.95 per cent -- from $1.555 billion on March 31, 1972 to $1.663 billion on the same date this year.

In an interview following the meeting, Elvin D. Dougherty, president of the West Metro (Livonia) bank, said banks would actually be able to get deposits more cheaply by paying individual savers more.

For example, he said, it would be cheaper to pay a saver 5.5 per cent on his deposits than the seven per cent or more that banks pay in soliciting corporate and municipal deposits. Dougherty and other bank officials also recalled the "money crunch" days of 1969 when American banks had to pay 12 per cent or more to lure in "Eurodollars."

While it's uncertain what effect abolishing regulation Q would have on the interest borrowers pay, Dougherty suggested that those rates could be reduced slightly.

Michigan National Corp. was formed late in 1972. Its affiliates include Michigan National Bank outstate, MNB of Detroit, MNB -- West Metro, MNB -- Oakland and MNB -- North Metro. The Oakland operation is in Southfield and the North Metro in Troy.

Stoddard announced the formation of Michigan National Leasing Corp., which will be headquartered on Eight Mile near Berg Rd. in northwest Detroit.

Kadish To Seek Full SC Term

After completing 18 months on the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees, Paul Kadish says he will seek a second term to help continue improvements in several areas of the college.

Kadish, a member of the college's two standing committees on audits and reviews and by-laws and policy, will seek a six-year term. Three six-year and one two-year terms are available in the June 11 election.

Kadish, of 18687 Purlingbrook, Livonia, is the only elected incumbent in the race.

"I think we have had an opportunity to make some good starts toward changes at the college. I have been in the forefront of many of them and would like to have an opportunity to complete these changes.

"In my opinion, the most important thing in improving the whole educational process at the college is to see to it the relationship between the faculty and administration and students becomes one of understanding. I think that's very important.

"I think I've been helpful with negotiations with various labor groups at the college. Since the new board was seated there have been no strikes. There is a better understanding of labor relations by the new members of the board."

PAUL KADISH

Kadish is on the Michigan Community College Assn.'s board of directors and the special legislative committee which keeps track of state legislation affecting colleges.

He is president of Associated Group Underwriters Inc., and Midwest Homeowners Assn. and was appointed to the Public Officials Compensation Board in Livonia.

An unsuccessful candidate for state senator in 1970, Kadish is also a member of the Democratic State Central Committee. He holds an undergraduate degree in personnel management and industrial relations from Wayne State University.

Organic Gardening Theme Of Series

Ann Hanchett, education coordinator from the ecology center in Ann Arbor, will talk on organic gardening April 17 and 24 in Schoolcraft Newman Center, 17300 Haggerty, Livonia. Her talk will begin at 8 p.m.

Interested people can bring cottage cheese or milk cartons and start their own seedlings.

Her first talk will be on the advantages and disadvantages of organic gardening and the second will be on natural fertilizers and bug control.

Eventually, plots of land either on the Schoolcraft College campus or nearby are expected to be made available to residents from the district.

With Malice Toward None

By W. Edward Wendover

Ben Franklin said only death and taxes are sure things.

But occasionally we hear of some chap who escaped death in a bizarre accident. Death isn't so sure.

Charles Dickens said nothing is as true as turnips and taxes.

Not only was there last week's meat boycott that left everyone eating unusual vegetarian treats, but the last three months have brought as many bad omens as far as taxes go.

First there was the citywide reassessment, which meant an average 5.4 per cent increase in valuation for homeowners and an average 46.7 per cent valuation increase for businesses.

Second came the .45 mill tax rate hike contemplated in the proposed 1973-74 city budget.

Third, there's the decision by the Plymouth school board to seek an additional 1.55 operating mills and .40 mills to use for safety projects.

Of course, the city commission hasn't yet approved the contemplated tax rate increase, and school district voters will have to decide on the operating increase and safety millage issues, but the future looks dark for city taxpayers.

If the commission were to approve the rate hike and school district voters approved both millage issues, it would mean an increase of 2.40 mills in one year to taxpayers, who probably have to pay more anyway because of the reassessment.

It would mean that on a $40,000 home -- with a state equalized valuation of $20,000 -- taxes would go up $48 a year.

Oh well, it's only money.

At one point -- before the review board pared some of the reassessment -- it was thought the city would realize an additional $140,000 simply by the reassessment and without any tax rate change.

"I would certainly hope we might be able to peel a little off the tax rate," Mayor James McKeon said then.

Now -- a month and a half later -- the city budget contemplates a .45 mill tax rate increase.

Of course the review board's action sliced back the anticipated tax revenues somewhat, but the city would still realize some gain through the reassessment.

Taxpayers might ask, so why the increase?

Well actually there probably won't be one.

The .45 mill proposed increase would just equal the amount the city is paying for its new planning program -- something the city commission is expected to fund with federal shared revenue.

Thus, the commission's expected to trim back that contemplated tax rate hike.

But then there are the school millage requests.

Based simply on the current trend of school district voters everywhere to vote down tax increases, chances of the operating increase and safety millage issues passing in Plymouth district are -- at best -- questionable.

Only the June 11 ballots will say for sure.

Either way, and whether or not the Plymouth City Commission approves a tax rate increase for next year, the recent events are a sure reminder to the city's taxpayers that you can't beat taxes -- they're as sure as turnips.

Schools Seeking SEV Reduction

By KATHY MORAN

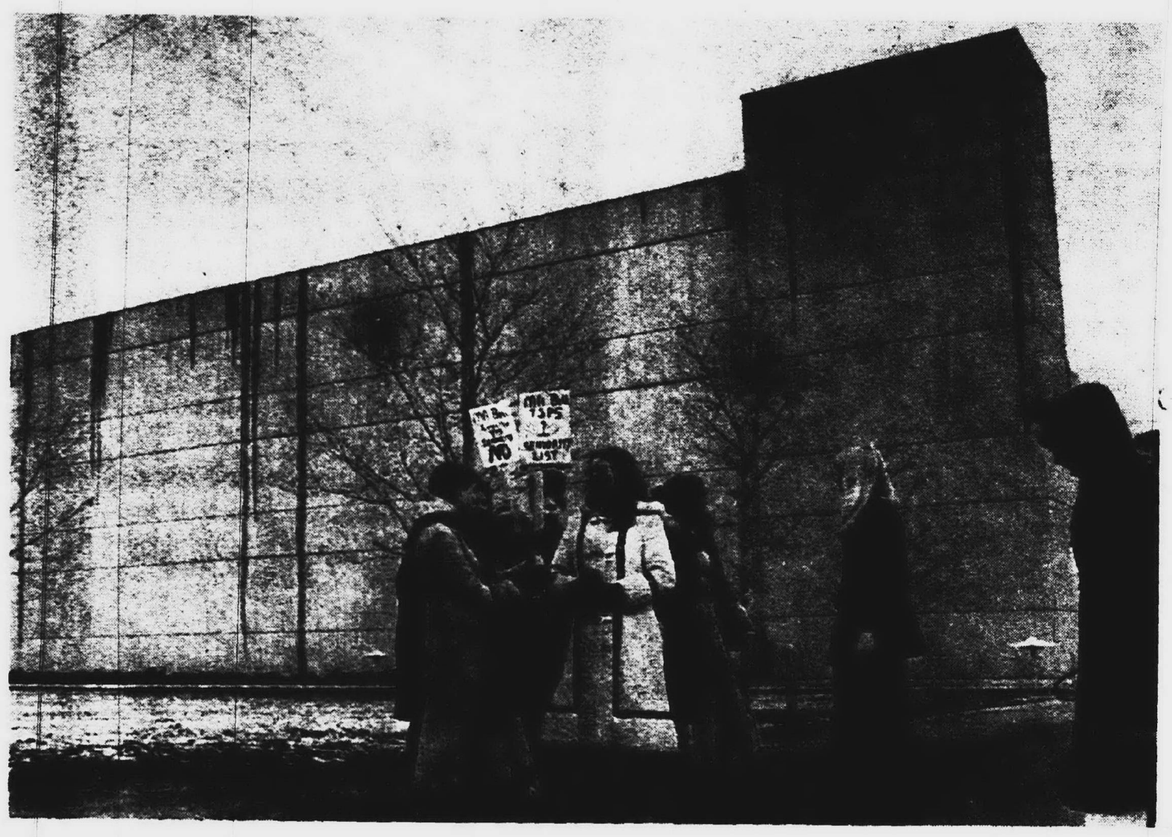
The Plymouth School District won't be hit quite so hard by the numerous tax refunds if it can get the state equalized valuation (SEV) reduced and state aid increased.

Supt. John Hoben said he and Asst. Supt. of Business Melvin Blunk met with Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), Edward Kane, state director of the tax commission, and Robert Hornberger of the State Dept. of Education, to get the district's SEV reduced.

Although Kane wasn't able to help, Hoben said Hornberger will attempt to get the SEV reduced if the district documents all the tax refunds it has been ordered to make to citizens.

The school district has paid $38,000 in refunds to local residents who appealed and won reductions in their assessments from the State Tax Commission. A total of 78 reductions have been granted including $5,400 to eight residents approved by the board of education March 12.

A reduction in SEV increases state aid but also decreases the amount of local revenue, Blunk added.



MICHIGAN BELL employes of the Plymouth switching facility on Ann Arbor Road picketed the building Tuesday morning in a protest over work scheduling. A Bell spokesman said the union and the company were discussing the dispute and would probably resolve it "shortly." He said 13 of 33 persons on the shift did not report for work and that service was not affected although dialing the operator Tuesday brought a recorded message about the "unauthorized picket lines" delaying calls. Woman Dies In Canton Car, Train Crash

By MAURIE WALKER

CANTON

A woman was killed and a man seriously injured when their car was struck by a Penn-Central freight train early Tuesday morning on Haggerty south of Michigan Avenue in Canton Township.

Detective Sgt. Harry Cummings of the Wayne County Sheriff Dept. said Justine Floyd, 34, of Lincoln Park was apparently killed instantly. Cleo Longhway, 30, of Lincoln Park was reported in critical condition in Wayne County General Hospital.

The sergeant said the car was apparently southbound on Haggerty and crossed in front of the train. Both passengers were thrown from their car.

Astro Tuneup Makes House Calls For Cars

PLYMOUTH

You say your car's broken down and you can't get it to the service station?

There's a new service in town that will come to your car for under-the-hood repairs of all types or for simply a tuneup.

It's called Astro Mobile Auto Service, and it has begun in the area with two mobile repair shops that can be dispatched to the car at your home, office or where it's disabled.

Dennis Rorabacher, a lifelong resident of the Westland and Plymouth area, is president of the new company. He says his company can serve all makes and models of cars and can even handle fleet work.

"We can do anything under the hood," Rorabacher said.

Rorabacher, who with his partners Ken LaMotte and Richard J. LaPointe invested $50,000 to start the operation rolling, said their service will employ eight persons on a round-the-clock basis seven days a week.

The company also offers a $100 reward to any customer who finds that Astro Tuneup performed unnecessary work on a car, Rorabacher said.

Automatic Transmission Damaged

Never rev up a car with automatic transmission in "N" and then slip into "Drive" for a fast getaway, warn auto experts. This form of "dragging" with an automatic transmission can cause internal damage.

NO ONE WAS INJURED when the last five cars of a freight train were derailed as the train was crossing the bridge over Northville Road about 1 p.m. Sunday, although two railroad employes were in the caboose, which also tipped over. Although a derailment at the same bridge spilled a railroad car onto the roadway below several years ago, C&O officials said there was no danger of the cars derailed Sunday falling off the bridge. Hundreds of motorists drove under the bridge while the derailed cars sat just off the enbankment above until a crane was able to right them late Sunday night. Cause of the derailment has not yet been determined. (Observer photos by W. Edward Wendover and Bob Woodring)

Peanut Butter Led To Marriage, Charity

Story: W. W. EDGAR Pictures: BOB WOODRING

"My children will have a smaller estate when I die. But they will be all the richer for it."
--Paul Zuckerman

Leaning back in his executive chair, Paul Zuckerman, board chairman of the Velvet Food Products Co. in Livonia, repeated the question: "How did I get into the peanut butter business?"

As a broad smile wreathed the sun-tanned face of this self-made millionaire he answered: "Because they wouldn't let me marry the girl."

Still chuckling he continued, "I was driving a truck at the time and her father was opposed to me because he said I wasn't 'established.' I just had to accept that challenge."

In the years that followed, he not only won the hand of the girl and the plaudits of her father, but he became a millionaire and through his work with various Jewish charities gained a world-wide reputation.

The manner in which he answered the challenge is another bright chapter in the history of Americana that was highlighted recently when he and his wife, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Max Fisher, well known Detroit financier, were guests at the White House when President Nixon hosted a state dinner to Golda Meir, prime minister of Israel.

Stung by the charge that he wasn't "established," Zuckerman didn't remain a truck driver very long. He stepped down from the cab of the truck to work on the floor in a food warehouse and then moved on to the role of a purchaser for the company.

It was while working in the latter role that he was stuck with the idea of going into the peanut butter business.

"The butter I was purchasing at the time seemed to be a rather inferior brand, at least according to my taste, and I decided I could manufacture a better product myself.

"So I got hold of some used equipment and went to work on my own product. I started in a little shop on 12th Street in Detroit at the river."

As the memory of that start came rolling back he interrupted to say, "Oh, it wasn't that easy. I went broke in two years and had to go back to work in the food warehouse."

It is a matter of record now that he started in business again--this time to reach the heights.

After making four moves to obtain more space for his growing business, he finally settled on Schoolcraft Road in Livonia in 1956.

"We manufacture about 15 million pounds of peanut butter each year," he explained, "and I am pleased to state that our Velvet brand is the only regional product that outsells the national varieties."

Fifteen million pounds seemed like a lot of peanut butter. How many peanuts did it require?

"I can't tell you the number of peanuts," he answered, "but it was 700 carloads we had shipped in from Georgia and Alabama. It may be more, now, as our business still is growing.

Still ambitious despite this success, he acquired the O'Donnell Wine Import Co. several years ago and now has added the choicest wines from Europe to the line of peanut butter, with Bill O'Conner, of Livonia, in charge of the imports.

Along the way as a young business tycoon, he became interested in charity work, and his success there is just as fantastic as the rise in the peanut butter business.

His work, in the National Foundation, where he is a member of the board, focused attention on him until today he is general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, and raising money for Israel has become almost a passion with him.

Never was this more poignantly demonstrated than in 1967, when, foreseeing an emergency at hand, he invited the wealthiest Jews in Detroit to his home just three days before the Six Day War and got them to pledge $4 million to help the people of Israel through the crisis.

"I'm giving away Norbert's money," he solemnly told the guests as his son stood by his side. "My children will have a smaller estate when I die. But they will be all the richer for it."

Born in Constantinople of a Turkish mother and a Rumanian father, Zuckerman was brought to the United States when he was 2½ years old. His parents settled in Detroit, and as he looks back he quickly states:

"I guess I was just lucky."

He'll proudly tell you that he attended the University of Detroit, but dropped out after two years. Both his son and daughter have college degrees.

He'll also proudly tell you that he is a member of three synagogues and helped to found Maryglade, a Catholic College in Mt. Clemens.

Then, aside, he'll tell you he also owns a bakery in Mt. Clemens.

Besides all of this, he is a member of the executive committee at Sinai Hospital and several years ago was paid high tribute by the City of Detroit for his charity work and was given the key to the city.

Zuckerman has a unique way about him as he goes about raising funds.

His preference is to rely on a handshake instead of a contract and, as luck would have it, he has been disappointed very seldom. He always has given honesty, trust and loyalty and usually received them in return.

So involved has he become in charity work that he seldom has time to spend in his office. Instead, the seat of most of his operations is frequently the white leather chair in the family room in his spacious home on the eighth hole at Franklin Hills Country Club.

"I only played one round of golf there last year," he tells you.

The United Jewish Appeal keeps him on the go. It is a source of great pride to him that under his leadership the 1972 national campaign, bolstered by an unprecedented total of 17 separate gifts of $1 million or more, ran millions of dollars ahead of its record clip of 1971 when $267 million was raised by American Jews for their co-religionists overseas.

Through the years, he has continued to be identified with his birthplace by the nickname "The Turk" that has stuck with him.

However, his loyalty to Israel is absolute and unswerving. They tell a story of a time when one of his friends was to embark on his first trip to Israel. Zuckerman said, "Now you'll really be a Jew."

And all of this fame and fortune came about in answer to the challenge of the man who was to be his father-in-law that he wasn't "established."

GOLDA MEIR AND FRIEND

'Energies And Wisdom'

The high esteem in which Paul Zuckerman is held for his work as head of the United Jewish Appeal is best exemplified in this greeting he received from Golda Meir, prime minister of Israel, recently on the occasion of his 60th birthday:

"The age of 60 is not only the half way mark to 120, but indeed, the prime of life, where the wisdom of the past and the energies of the present create the perfect balance.

"We know that you will need to command all your wisdom and energy in the enormous task that you are so ably performing in the marshaling Jewish solidarity and resources for the noblest causes of Jewish survival. Knowing of your unlimited dedication and devotion, I wish you many more years of health and activity with your family on behalf of our common goals."

CARICATURIST Chuck Vorshanian was on Schoolcraft College's campus last week to sketch students. He did a thriving business (the students weren't charged) during the activities week. Dimitra Pastras of Detroit laughed when she saw her sketch and, although she said she liked it, she hoped it didn't look like her.

'Fun Week' Became Hectic At S'craft

Despite a dreary rain and deflated hopes for balloon trips, Schoolcraft College's students enjoyed a hectic "fun" week of activities.

Declared "spring activities week" by the student activities board, the schedule ranged from fencing demonstrations and a daily coffee house to a kite flying contest and a political debate.

Before the week ended, students had been given 2,000 helium filled balloons, 250 frisbees and 150 kites.

"There were a lot of balloons and frisbees floating around here," Roger Gibson, sophomore from Livonia said. "It was a fun-type week. I think everyone enjoyed it."

The week started out badly for Gibson and other students who spearheaded the plans. Balloon trips on an aerialist balloon had to be canceled after a dispute over insurance.

And then the rain continued most of the week, keeping the coffeehouse and other activities indoors. Few people showed up for "organic garden" day where they had been offered the chance to plant their own gardens because the rain had turned to cold.

But the "old tyme" movies featuring such greats as Charlie Chaplin and W.C. Fields drew crowds as did the coffee house called "The Last Drop."

Caracaturist Chuck Vorshanian drew numerous models, and a kite flying contest was judged a success.

This was the second activities week held this year to bolster student spirit and both have been credited with getting students involved.

LANSING

A formula providing for state aid to local public libraries may be improved for the first time since 1938 if a bill introduced by two Westland legislators is approved.

State Sen. William Faust and State Rep. John Markes propose increasing state aid allowance to certain local libraries from five to 50 cents per capita.

"Legislative consideration of public libraries has been deplorably antiquated," says Faust. "A society which prizes learning and educational achievement certainly deserves much better public libraries than can be supported through a nickel per person in state aid. You can't even buy a package of gum today for a nickel."

Can 250 Go To 'Small Groups'

Kids In Center Of Child Home Debate

By KATHY MORAN

The 250 children at Wayne County Child Development Center in Northville Township may become unlucky pawns in a stalemated game between county and state agencies.

That's the fear of many teachers and staff members there in light of a recent report which recommends closing the 750 acre campus.

And it's a feeling shared by other professionals who contend there aren't enough places to house the children in Detroit. Wayne County commissioners will determine the center's fate.

The first step to displacing the seven to 18-year-olds came with the issuance of a state task force report which recommended that the 750-acre campus be closed and the children shifted into small group residences.

Because the residents are either mentally retarded or disturbed with IQs less than 90, many have already been shifted from agency to agency in an effort to find programs compatible to their needs.

Although the task force report admits this fact, it still recommends that the children be phased out into appropriate facilities or foster homes, emptying the center by July of 1974.

But would the children be able to function in foster or small group homes?

Many of the children who are at the center are there because they needed concentrated attention, he said.

"It's going to be very difficult to find appropriate small group homes for them," he said. "I'm not saying that some of the children can't be placed in the community. But to plan to place all of them, I would say, is wishful thinking.

Th Wayne County Juvenile Court is responsible for more than 50 per cent of the referrals to the center and the Detroit public schools refer about 20 per cent.

> --A Psychologist

The task force report indicated 57 per cent of the referrals were for social immaturity, 46 per cent for lack of academic achievement in special education classes, 33 per cent for truancy from home and school, 41 per cent for incorrigibility at home, 33 per cent for physical aggression against peers and 11 per cent against adults, 20 per cent for lack of achievement in regular classes and less than 10 per cent for criminal or sexually deviant acts or drug abuse.

Ninety-seven per cent of the children had multiple reasons for referral.

"Some need time away from their environment to find themselves," Dr. Rabinovitch said. "After they have had help they should be prepared to return to the community.

"The notion of taking 250 children from any facility and finding places for them is, I think, impossible," said Samuel Davis, executive director of the Michigan Assn. for Emotionally Disturbed Children. "There are no places that can accommodate that many kids."

When voicing his protest to the human resources committee composed of county commissioners, Davis said that small group homes aren't practical for the center's type of population.

"Small group homes care for mildly disturbed chidren is fine, but most of Wayne County's mildly disturbed children are being served.

"The children who are being referred to the child development center--and to other hospital programs are severely disturbed. They need something more than small group homes or special education in our public schools."

"These are real rock bottom type kids," he said. "Foster homes are not the answer for the severely emotionally disturbed child."

The report itself has been attacked by center employes who question conclusions made by a committee which hardly saw the campus.

The committee held its first meeting in August on the center's campus -- and even then it didn't observe the programs and living conditions, according to Michael J. O'Hair, director of in-service training.

"Our buildings are also adaptable to small group living facilities," O'Hair said.

"The center's environment is clean: the air is fresh; the buildings are widely spaced, well ventilated, structurally sound and flexible for remodeling, if desired.

"The environment is generally less stressful than that in the home of many of these youngsters," he said during a public meeting.

Although the committee used six previous studies as references for its investigation, it apparently ignored the findings in the earlier studies, O'Hair said. Earlier reports suggested ways of strengthening the programs and none recommending closing it.

The 1968 Citizens' Review Committee report states: "Our recommendation is to appoint a new superintendent and make the advice and services of the present superintendent available to him if he wishes.

"Regardless of the merit or lack of merit of his (Supt. Pasquale Buoniconto) activity, there are to may negative factors operating for the current superintendent to devel an effective program."

Although a weak administration was blamed for weaknesses in the center's program in previous reports, county commissioners failed to follow any recommendations as far as changing the administration, O'Hair noted.

"They've decided it's easier to close the center than to overhaul it," he said. "It's just because they are gutless.

"We just don't understand where they got their statistics at all," he continued, noting that the report states it would take a minimum of $2 to $5 million to renovate the buildings.

Most of the 51 buildings were constructed in 1926 when the center first opened and are structurally sound, says Stanley Belanger, general trades foreman at the center.

Belanger directs the 16 member maintenance and building crew which consists of carpenters, painters, a bricklayer, electricians, plumbers etc.

"I'm on record as saying that nobody from that task force ever approached me or talked to me about it." Belanger said.

He said the buildings passed their accreditation "with flying colors" and comply completely with the Detroit fire code, one of the toughest in Michigan. He admits repairs are needed, but says his staff can handle them.

A recent fire, which had been set by one of the residents, reached a high intensity and "tons of water" were poured on it, he said. But the fire didn't damage other rooms, and the water didn't even leak to the room below.

"I want you to show me any modern-type structure that would withstand these pressures," he said.

The report recommends closing the campus but doesn't mention what would become of the buildings and land.

"At the same time as they are talking of closing this facility, the community mental health board in Detroit has recognized the need for more beds," Dr. Rabinovitch said. "On one hand, they are recommending closing of this facility, and on the other hand they are asking for more beds."

Belanger said that he prepared plans a year ago for dividing the dormitories into small group rooms to comply with modern concepts in mental health. For an unknown reason, the plans never got past the drawing boards, he said.

They call for dividers in each dormitory room which house 10 to 15 children each. Lockers would be at each end of the rooms, and indoor-outdoor carpeting would be installed to make the rooms more homey.

"In 1926, when the center was constructed, Detroit was the center of society and affluence in the state. As was the fashion of the time, the 'misfits' from this society were placed as far away as possible from the city in institutions. Several of those are located in the Northville area.

"Today, with Northville and Plymouth representing one of the most affluent areas in the state, we are seeing the trend reverse itself.

"Today with over half of the children and many of the center's staff black, some of the local county commissioners and other politicians are applying pressure to remove the children and staff from their midst, supposedly for the good of the children."

Borgess Runs Dual Win Streak To 29

It was snowing.
It was sleeting.
It was raining.

But like the newsboy who must brave anything in getting his job done, the Bishop Borgess trackmen braved the four elements to get their job done.

The task before them was to extend their unbeaten dual streak to 29, a streak that started when Borgess began its varsity track competition in 1969.

Yes, Bishop Borgess has never lost a dual meet.

And like a mailman who braves a snow storm to get you your bills, Borgess braved the elements to hand U-D High a 71-43 defeat and chalk up victory No. 29, the first for '73.

"The times might not have been the best around," said Borgess track Coach Steve Strauch. "But the kids gave it all they had. We wanted to get this first one under the belt."

The final 71-43 score was without the pole vault event which was virtually impossible to go through with because of the sleet, snow, rain and high winds.

The Borgess cindermen opened with an 880 relay win behind the 1:35.2 foursome of Neil Falls, Shawn McCarthy, Sam Caruana and Dennis Bouie.

Borgess "dropped away" the 440 relay.

"We were up by something like 15 yards going into the last exchange, and it was dropped, the baton fell to the ground and U-D won it," added Strauch.

U-D's senior Kevin Curley put on some kind of shot put show in the meet staged at Garden City East High.

His toss hit the fence at East, 55-6 away, bounced back for a distance of 55-4, for an easy victory.

"I couldn't believe that shot," said Strauch. "That toss was still sailing when it hit the fence, but we had to measure where it did eventually hit the ground."

Borgess had won the Catholic A West all four years it was in compeition.

This year Borgess was pushed up to the Catholic Double A.

"Our toughest meet of the season will be a non-leaguer over the Easter break," added the Borgess coach. "We go up against Stevenson on April 25, that should be one heck of a meet."

Glenn Lifters Win 4 Medals

Placing first in the 114 pound class and taking a gold medal was Jim Lowe with lifts of 115 pound snatch and a clean and jerk of 165 pounds.

Also in the 123 pound berth was Charlie Sakakini, winning a silver medal with a snatch of 125 pounds and a clean and jerk of 155 pounds.

Placing in the Junior State has enabled these four Glenn athletes to compete in the Senior State meet on April 15 at the Highland Park YMCA.

AA Pioneer Hands Plymouth 2nd Loss

The Rocks were dumped again.

Wayne Sparkman's Plymouth baseballers dropped No. 2 of the young baseball season to Ann Arbor Pioneer, 3-2. Thurston tumbled Plymouth in the opener, 1-0.

The loss to Pioneer came in the form of five errors, with two of Ann Arbor's three runs unearned.

Ann Arbor collected its three runs on five hits and committed two errors of its own.

Plymouth wound up with two runs, two hits and the five errors.

With one out, Mark Caswell laced almost a sure double play ball to Don Bidwell at short.

Pete Palmer followed with a pop foul to Szilagyi, but the ball dribbled out of the Plymouth third sacker's glove and Palmer had life.

Jim Spears singled, stole second and Bob Anderson doubled him home. Tom Willette bore down and struck out the next two batsmen but Pioneer had itself a 3-0 lead.

Plymouth came to life in the last of the sixth to score twice without the benefit of a hit.

With one out, Tony Rossi walked and Scott Sommerville was safe on a fielder's choice with Rossi safe at second on an error. Steve Robb walked to load the bases and Rob Willette hit into a fielder's choice, Rossi scoring and Willette out at second.

With two outs and runners on first and third, Sparkman called for the double steal and that's just what happened almost.

Rob Willette broke for second. Sommerville scored but Willette was tagged out before reaching second. The run counted to make it a 3-2 game going into the final stanza.

A double play ended any hopes Plymouth had in the seventh and Sparkman chalked up his second loss in as many outings.

Plymouth is hoping for a turnabout with the return of two lettermen in Ron Egloff and Jeff Waller who are nursing injuries.

The Rocks host Trenton Friday, April 13 and travel to Allen Park, April 17 and Edsel Ford, April 19.

Churchill Crushes Franklin, 79-44

"The third time is a charm!" bellowed Churchill track Coach Fred Price after his Chargers soundly ripped arch-rival Franklin in a dual meet, 79-44.

And to add another gloat to the growing accomplishments of "the year of the Charger," it was the first track victory ever for Churchill over Franklin.

"We had lost to Franklin two years in a row," added Price. "The runners just weren't going to let it happen again."

The '73 campaign just hasn't started off bright for Franklin and Coach Bob Holmes, who are out to defend their Northwest Suburban League championship.

Franklin saw its 15 dual meet winning streak go down the drain in the opening match with Bentley and then came Churchill, the Chargers winning 11 of 15 events.

An extra bright note for Price had to be the performance of two sophomores.

Bill Reardon and Mark Priebe claimed firsts, Reardon with a shot put toss of 48-1 and Priebe with a 2:01.7 in the 880 yard run.

One of the meet's biggest surprises was in the 440 yard dash where Churchill's Rick Kahn outlasted Franklin's Joe Jinnett ('72 All-Area performer) with a clocking of :51.6, ahead of Jinnett at :51.8.

Churchill won only one of three relays.

The Charger foursome of Don Fillipps (:54.4), Craig Gully (:55.1), Ken Landini (:54.4) and Mark Priebe (:51.9) beat Franklin with a total showing of 3:35.8 ahead of the Patriot crew at 3:40.2.

Livonia Prep Athletics In A Tailspin?

By TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

Two years ago the four Livonia High Schools -- Bentley, Churchill, Franklin and Stevenson suffered a setback.

Each school lost assistant coaches in football, wrestling, swimming, track and baseball in addition to one varsity sport which was golf in three of the schools and tennis at Stevenson High.

But at the same time girls' varsity competition was brought into the scene along with hockey, a new varsity sport for boys.

At the same time, the junior high schools suffered the loss of baseball programs but added eighth grade basketball along with girls' volleyball.

Out went 34 coaches. The impact was not felt hard last year.

The assistants for the most part remained without pay but this year it has turned out to be a tune of a different and dis-heartening song.

The Livonia Coaches Association, 116 members strong, has been formed and wants answers to a lot of questions.

Why was this committee formed?

"We, meaning the coaches and athletic programs in Livonia, lost so much without any consultation at the start of the 1971-72 school year, that something has to be done.

"Our goal is to re-instate the sports program, playing the role of a bargaining unit.

The organization has met about eight times and sees itself working with the Livonia Education Association.

"We are out to get our coaches back," added Lovich. "Our No. 1 aim is to get our system back in a functioning matter with the No. 2 goal a revamping of the salary schedule.

"We haven't received a raise in three years. Our coaching salary comes out to something like 79 cents an hour. We are hoping to aid the LEA in what they should be bargaining for us.

"We are in no way a reactionary group -- just a group of coaches who want the system restored to a functioning way."

Lovich added that by dropping the assistant baseball coach, there are no junior varsity programs now in Livonia.

"The loss of a track assistant has to be a real blow.

"There is no way one man can handle something like 60 to 70 kids in 15 different events. He can manage but not even come close to teaching.

"The wrestling programs have really dropped. Here at Franklin we barely had enough to fill one team. These adverse effects are really going to hit us next year.

"I can't really see how anyone is going to expect the Livonia schools to remain on the same level of competition with systems that have excellent junior varsity programs. There is no way we can compete against them."

Churchill track coach Fred Price has a total participation of 72.

"The school system is asking the impossible from coaches," explained Price. "How can I really expect myself to coach 72 kids in 14 events, nine of a completely different nature.

"I don't see how anyone who knows anything about sports can let something like this happen.

"No. 1 was that baseball is effected tremendously by the weather and we have only a short time to fit in the games.

"No. 2 was that we have only two exceptional ball diamonds for junior high use in Livonia. We just don't have any good diamonds, nobody maintains them.

"No. 3 the price of umpires has sky-rocketed.

"No. 4 was the sport could be bettered and followed up in the summer recreation program.

"So we made a two for one switch; adding eighth grade basketball and girls' volleyball. It was a bad situation but we had to do something at the time.

"Our philosophy is not to act as a feeder system for the high schools. We have to operate on the basis of what is best for us at this time and the hope of the program being re-instated and this is about the sole reason why I will be able to field a good team this year. I would hate to think about next year or the year after.

"With ninth grade track swaying all the prospective ballplayers I had only 18 sophomores out this year compared to 40 last season.

"The word gets around on the ins and outs of earning a varsity letter and in which sport a kid will get a chance.

"Sometimes I can't really figure out the thinking of the Board. We don't have any home baseball games because we play all our home games at Haggerty Field.

"Thus we are given a sum of $9 per game for another adult to be in attendance for supervision purposes and that comes to about $180 for the season, 1/3 of the assistant coach's salary and the game is when we need the least supervision.

"It has all boiled down to where the kids have to be more dedicated as there just isn't any time to goof off. Sure the sophomores feel they are being slighted and I don't blame them.

"I guess the short cutback was all wishful thinking," concluded Frayer.

Robert Crumpton, executive director of the LEA, is the middle man between the Livonia Coaches Association and the school board.

"We are in the middle of a two year contract now which expires in August and we just can't negotiate now. This athletic problem is only a share of a piece of a larger piece," explained Crumpton. "We will consider this problem with all the others.

"The Coaches Association is only one of about 42 that are confronting me now and I am clearly not going to take sides -- pro or con.

"Sure it is obvious that we are in dire need of getting these assistants back but the board hasn't recognized the problem, instead they are bringing in girls' sports."

The man and the place where it all boils down to is the Livonia Board of Education and Supervisor Ron Upton.

"All-right, first of all about girls' sports," said Upton. "At this time the Michigan State Athletic Association has an injunction against it to allow girls to go out for sports and we can't go against an injunction so we give in to the girls all the way.

"Now to the real heart of the problem.

"The City of Livonia has had no additional millage in the last seven years. The people in Livonia for some unknown reason think they are the highest taxed city around, they really believe this but everyone arounds us pays more.

"The Livonia teachers at the maximum salary level are below Wayne County's medium salary level. All of a sudden the people in Livonia decided they didn't want to pay anymore people.

"I am an old coach, I know what is going on and I don't like it but I have to fight for everyone including sports.

"How can I justify one coach handling 70 kids, the same way I justify the cutting of 32 of my administrators, 100 teachers and countless other people, along with no sixth hour in the high schools.

"We are just beginning to tear apart this school system through a 'Chinese torture method.'

"I just can't figure this out, an addition of one mill would cost a family an average of $1 more per month and we would still be nine mills below the Wayne system but it would be a start.

"People in Livonia were at one time supporting everything, every year there was an increase in taxes. Now the people have said they have had enough.

"The hockey program is something I really pushed for. I have seen it growing and the community here is hockey crazy, there was no stopping that program.

"The only way we will get these coaches their jobs back will be for the Livonia parent to say he is going to pay a little more.

"Some people say that we are just not spending the money we have properly. I couldn't disagree with them more, we are doing the best we can with what we got and the sports cut back is just a portion of the pie that has been sliced out."

analysis

"If nothing else, from the safety standpoint. Instruction is almost impossible. I am losing kids because they feel I am not giving myself to them so why should they give it back.

"I won't coach next year under these circumstances."

The turnout for high school track in Livonia has increased tremendously since the junior high baseball program has been dropped.

Track is the lone sport for the seventh, eighth and ninth graders to go out for in the spring. In their sophomore and junior years their minds have to turn back to track instead of baseball, especially since there is no junior varsity baseball at the high school level.

"Now is the time when something has to be done," added Price. "I have two teachers donating their time to aid me but they won't be back, time donating can only go so far.

"Some kids are losing interest. I heard some saying that it just isn't fun anymore - the coach is never over to help us out.

"That one extra coach means so much in track as in the other sports cut."

Ralph Springfield, athletic director for all 10 junior high schools in Livonia, has an explanation for some of the questions asked by the Livonia Coaches Association.

"When the cuts were being made, we had the choice of knocking out baseball or parts of the football program. We had to look at this exposure at all levels and the decision was made by a combination of several people from the junior high level to the board.

"There were four points that made us decide to cut junior high baseball.

I know there are a lot of people who will disagree with this.

"The push for girls, well, we were told to install it in our programs and that was that.

"Junior high athletics have always been the whipping boy.

"One thing we need so badly at the junior high level is wrestling. Our high schools are getting crucified. The kids are getting the pants taken right off them. We need to have something before the high school level."

You don't have to tell Churchill baseball Coach Roger Frayer that he doesn't have a junior varsity program.

"Unless a kid is supergreat, he just isn't going to get a shot at making the team until the 11th grade," said Frayer. "Unless the junior varsity program is re-instated, we won't be able to compete at the same level with schools we go up against now.

"There is just no way that Little Leagues and summer baseball will get the kids ready for high school competition.

"Last year I had 84 kids out, I kept 23 on the varsity level and my then cut coach Jim Neuman continued to work with 24 sophomores. The others had to be dropped.

"Only 55 came out this year, but Neuman wasn't going to work again for no pay, and I can't blame him. He has house payments to make just like you and me.

"He did it last year with

'Those Russians Are Smart People' -- Howe

By W. W. EDGAR

Unless the United States and Canada provide more incentive for the young athletes to take up the game, there is great danger that they will lose their dominance of hockey to the Soviet Union.

This grave warning was given to the members of the Livonia Rotary Club on Monday by none other than Gordie Howe, one of the greatest Red Wings of all time.

"Our young lads over here are being allowed to drift away a bit," he said, "And there is a great tendency to avoid bodily contact.

"Meanwhile, the Russians have more than eight million youths in their program and provide all sorts of incentives.

"They have a sort of merit system whereby they are awarded stars, crosses and medals as they progress – with the goal being ruled eligible to wear the big red cross of the Soviets.

"One of the things they have learned," the great Red Wing pointed out, "is the art of hitting an opponent – the body contact our lads seem to be losing.

"Don't fool yourselves, those Russians are smart people. They came over here some years ago, saw our best players in action, then returned with a lot of equipment our lads use and thousands of feet of film of the star players in action.

"From what I have learned they showed these films in slow motion and all the young lads were taught to copy the stars. Immediately, there was a rise in the ability of the Russian players. So much so, that they outscored our fellows in the Olympic games, even though we won the series."

Howe lightened the picture of the future by telling the Rotarians that Canada now is implementing a new program that should provide incentive for the young lads – so maybe not all will be lost.

The lack of "hitting," he charged, cost the current Red Wings a place in the playoffs.

"Too often our fellows let the opposition ride in on the goalie and he didn't have much chance. When you can read the number on the back of the opponent, your team is in trouble. And that's what happened to us."

Gordie confided that his own son, Mark, didn't really become a "hitter" until after he went out for football in high school.

"Once he started to get bumped around he started bumping back. Then he carried this over to hockey."

Then, with a smile, Gordie added, "And a funny thing happened. His studies improved and he got better marks in school. I suppose he got so tired he didn't want to do anything else in the evening but read and study."

GORDIE HOWE

The greatest Wing of them all is hopeful that Johnny Wilson, the present coach, will be retained – as he knows hockey. "He just has to develop a few 'hitters' and the Wings will be right up there in the thick of the race."

Regarding the Wings failure to reach the playoffs this year Gordie offered several plausible reasons.

First, he said, the team placed too much emphasis on scoring and not enough on defense.

"It's nice to have a couple of high scoring players on your side," he said, "but you also have to have a way of stopping the other fellows. We didn't do enough of that."

He also explained that the final trip to the coast was dreadful.

"Playing hockey in California is different," he said. "The ice is heavier. The humidity is heavier. And there are too many other attractions.

"Naturally, the young fellows wanted to see Sunset Strip and loll a bit on the beaches. They wanted to visit the famous corner of Hollywood and Vine. Now that they've seen these things, the trips next year may be better."

He also explained that the present day draft system hinders a team because many of the players you have had your eye on will be drafted before your turn comes.

Howe is certain that the Wings will come up with the "hitters" they need. "If we can get them from our farm system things will be a lot different..."

He was loud in his praise of young Marcel Dione, who scored 52 goals this year "but he needs the help of a stronger defense."

Thurston Grid Coach Announces Resignation

After one year as head football coach at Thurston High, Emil Majeski has decided to call it quits.

The varsity baseball coach and former gridiron backfield coach made the jump to the head football ranks last season when Thurston's Bill McDonald hung up the main whistle and went on his sabbatical.

Majeski had worked under McDonald for eight years as backfield coach and was one of 75 who applied for the job opening last fall.

The assignment went to Majeski but at the same time there was a feeling that he would have to give up his baseball duty this spring.

Thurston dropped its opener to Churchill, 7-6, and fell to Romulus, 14-6. Next came two straight shutouts at the hands of North Farmington, 21-0, and Franklin, 3-0.

Next came lashings at the hands of Garden City East, 28-12, and Oak Park, 26-6.

Thurston bounced back to upend Stevenson, 14-13, but finished on a sour note against Redford Union, 13-0.

His Eagle troopers finished 2-7 and scored 61 points while their opponents tallied for 125.

"I decided that baseball and football were too much to handle," said Majeski. "They overlap too much and I knew I would have to give one up.

"I had to give up my Connie Mack team last year to start a summer football program. I didn't want to give it up this summer.

"There was no pressure from the administration about me coaching two varsity sports and I just decided to stick with baseball.

"I didn't want to spread myself too thin. I couldn't see giving it a 75 per cent effort in each.

"Football has become a year around assignment and I think kids should be wrapped up in as many sports as possible at the high school level.

"The kids shouldn't be so specialized at the high school age but the football program has to be almost a year around plan to keep up with everyone else."

Majeski played three years at defensive halfback for Eastern Michigan University. He never did play baseball but is now in his eighth season as varsity baseball coach at Thurston.

Lane Qualifies For NCAA Finals

The Livonia Bentley product ticked off a 1:52.9 half-mile to qualify for the June 1-2 NCAA college division championships at Wabash College, Ind.

Lane and several teammates pooled their resources and travelled by car to the meet which was not on the Tartar spring schedule. Lane was the lone Tartar to place in an event and helped make up for the disappointment of missing the NCAA indoor championships at Cobo Hall last month by just two-tenths of a second.

Lane is a three-time Tartar letter winner in both track and cross country. As a freshman, he was voted the school's outstanding freshman in track.

Gordie Howe Picks 'Best'

In the 20 years he skated up and down the hockey arenas of America, Gordie Howe, rated the greatest Red Wing of all time, played with, and against, hundreds and hundreds of National Hockey League stars.

Who were the best?
Who deserved all-time rating?

Gordie broke his long silence on selecting all-star teams this week when he named the following players as the best "I have seen."

Goalie – Terry Sawchuck, Red Wings
Defense – Bobby Orr, Boston Bruins
Defense – Doug Harvey, Montreal
Center – Milt Schmidt, Boston Bruins
Right Wing – Maurice Richard, Montreal Canadiens

"There may have been greater players in the National Hockey League," he said, "but the fellows I have named are the best that I saw in my years of playing.

"It's too bad that I have to leave out fellows like Ted Lindsay and Sid Abel, of the Red Wings. But, while they were good, I still think Milt Schmidt, of the Bruins, was the best center, and there's no denying that Richard and Bobby Hull were the best.

"And when he was with us, Terry was the best goal tender I have ever seen."

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

With business continuing its brisk climb during the week, Wolverine Raceway is running well ahead of 1972 figures for the first 21 nights of its 82 night meeting.

Matter of fact the track handled $791,516 Friday and then saw the season's largest crowd of 11,134 pour $887,189 through the mutuel machines Saturday .... both figures were well ahead of the same two nights a year ago.

When one considers the track had a Saturday night a few weeks back when a raging blizzard cut attendance to less than 1,700 and the handle to $108,000, then the recovery in two weeks has to be one of the most remarkable in history.

Wagering for the third full week of the meeting totaled $3,952,978, the fourth biggest week in Wolverine's 24-year history. That averages out to $658,829 for each of the six nights.

Statistics for the 21 nights show the track averaging $554,314 which is five per cent better than 1972 for a similar period. Average nightly attendance for the 21 nights is 6,525, a dip of 2.5 per cent from the 6,682 last year.

The state of Michigan must be happy to learn Wolverine has handled $11,640,601 thus far contrasted to $11,020,012 in 1972.

The season's largest crowd saw The Jet turn in the fastest mile of the meeting Saturday in winning the $5,200 Springtime pace.

The aged pacer was a bit short in his debut a week ago when he just missed catching Tricky Dale at the wire. He had plenty of kick this time and hit the wire with space to spare.

Driver Gordon Norris didn't waste any time in showing he was out for a victory. He took The Jet to the front at the halfway point and dared anyone to catch him.

Bedford Jet had two lengths on his five challengers turning into the long stretch of the big mile track and was more than a length in front at the wire eased up.

It was the seventh win in 12 starts this year for the big bay gelding who was purchased as a two-year-old for $500 at the Delaware, O. sale. Mighty Fire was second and Tricky Dale third.

Just to prove his popularity with fans, the race brought the track's highest win pool for a single race with a total of $68,015. The previous high was $56,305 on Sept. 18, 1970.

Jim Curran, the youthful Jackson, Mich. driver, continues to lead in dash winners according to statistics compiled by the U.S. Trotting Association.

Curran, who does most of the driving for the powerful Bob Farrington stable in Chicago, has 84 victories through the month of March to lead Lucien Fontaine by two.

Coming up fast is Herve Filion, the world's record holder with his total of 608 wins in 1972, who trails by five with a total of 79. Curran and Fontaine each picked up 12 firsts since the initial tabulation three weeks ago and Filion added 21 to move up from eighth place.

Gerry Banfield, the lean veteran from Farmington, faded back to fifth after trailing Curran by two in the earlier rankings.

Joe Marsh Jr., of Findlay, O., who led reinsmen in the area for several years until shifting activities to Chicago, ranks seventh with 72 wins.

Buddy Gilmour, who does all of his racing in the New York City section, is leading in money earned with $367,548. Marsh shows $211,275 and Curran, $181,091.

Ricci Reenie Time and Colonial Charm, each of whom is staked in Grand Circuit events at Wolverine Raceway in mid-June, have been ranked as potentially the best three-year-olds in North American harness racing for 1973 in the ninth annual Experimental Championship ratings issued by the U.S. Trotting Association.

The ratings, based on statistics, observations and evaluations of colts and fillies that raced last season, are projections of racing speed potential for one mile on a mile track under ideal conditions.

They measure the horses rated against former world titleholders, past champions and others on the experimental list.

Colonial Charm, from Castleton Farm, was a Grand Circuit winner a year ago at Wolverine. She had a mile in 2:00.2 last year for the fastest in 1972 for a two-year-old trotter of either sex. She has been rated at 1:57.4, a fifth of a second faster than Arnie Almahurst, top ranked colt.

Spartan Trackmen Dump Edsel Ford

It was the opening dual meet for Paul Holmberg's Spartans of the Inter-Lakes and Stevenson finished on the top end of a 69-54 score.

"Edsel Ford is tough and I must admit that I am a little surprised that we won this first one," admitted Holmberg whose cross country crew finished second in the state in the fall.

The meet featured opening day jitters as Stevenson was disqualified in the 880 relay for dropping the baton and Edsel Ford was disqualified in the 440 relay for also dropping the magic wand.

The mile relay was a flawless one for Stevenson as the Spartan foursome of Ken Brown, Bill Walker, Dave Mathia and Steve Walker clocked in at 3:32.0.

Stevenson captured five individual firsts along with shutouts in the 880 yard run, the long jump, and the pole vault.

St. Agatha captured first in three of the four field events and three firsts in the running events.

Co-captain Jim Huculak paced the Aggies with firsts in the low and high hurdles and a third in the long jump. Senior Pat Brown remained undefeated in the shot put after four meets with his toss of 43'9¾" winning the Foley meet.

Westlander Wins State Arm Wrestling Title

Westland's 29-year-old Ed Bond is out to win a world championship -- a title he can capture on a table 41 inches high.

Bond is by trade a toolmaker, by muscle he is the state champion in arm wrestling.

When all the grunting and groaning and sweating was over, Bond was again acclaimed the No. 1 arm wrestler in the state.

The meet was sanctioned by the World Wristwrestling Association with the winner going to the May 19 world finals in Petaluma, Calif.

Anyone was eligible to compete in the state competition with challengers competing in three weight classes -- light, middle and heavy.

Bond, as last year, won the middleweight title and defended the other two champions to lay claim to the overall state championship and the right to move on to Petaluma.

The Westland state champion says he works out two or three times a week and has been arm wrestling since eighth grade.

Ed had more than 50 friends cheering him on to the state title along with his wife, Carol, and seven-year-old son, Jeffrey.

"You know, I get challenged all the time to arm wrestling matches," said Bond. "Everyone wants a shot to beat me, something like the fastest gun in the west bit."

Immediately following his state victory, Bond was approached by a serious contender.

"I really enjoy arm wrestling and do it for the fun," said Ed. "So here I just win the state title, and this guy comes up to me with a $1,000 worth of 20 dollar bills and challenges me to a match. Well, I didn't have the cash to back me up but maybe I'll run into him again sometime.

"I wrestle anybody, in any bar in town -- if the bet's high enough," said Bond. "I have never lost a match when it's been for money. When I do, that's it. I'll quit when I am ahead."

Bond attributes his wristpower to his fast snap when the ref lets go of both of the hands.

The 5-11, 198 pound Bond defeated 265 pound George Moore in the state final. After the ref release, he had Moore down to a 45 degree angle.

Moore hung on for 15 seconds but went down and Bond was state champ.

"Once that ref lets go, I don't think of anything but snapping that wrist down and driving the opponent to the table," added Bond.

Bond has benched pressed 440 pounds which is an unofficial state record.

"I am really looking forward to the world finals," added the Westland resident. "Officials have sold over $60,000 worth of tickets already for the two day event."

And for those who aren't up on their 12 official rules and regulations for the World Wristwrestling Championship, here they are:

A. Official Wristwrestling shall be performed on a table 41 inches high, anchored at the base, and with a top measuring 25½ x 36½ inches. In addition, it must have adjustable elbow padding to compensate for varying lengths from contestants' elbows to fingertips.

B. The registered contestants face each other, grasping the base of each other's thumb and with wrists perpendicular.

C. The opposite hands shall be imbedded in a padded grip immediately below the upright forearms in a finger curl contact.

D. The referee will place the wrists in such a position as to be equidistant from contestant's shoulders and the wrists must be in a straight position.

E. The signal to start will be initiated by the official referee while he holds the contestants' hands and wrists in a fair and equal starting position and counts "Ready" -- "Go." Simultaneous with the "Go" count he will release his grip.

F. The elbow must at all times remain in elbow containers shaped in the form of a square (6"x6") with the side furthest from each contestant being open. The squares will be built up from table level, 1½ inches.

G. Defaults consist of failure to keep elbow contact with cup, loss of grasp of thumb or release of left hand.

H. No contestant may wear any brace or spring type device which could affect the outcome of the contest.

I. One infringement of official rules and regulations constitutes a default.

J. One fall or referee's decision on a time basis determines a winner.

K. Time limits on each individual contest may be set and winner declared at referee's discretion.

L. A winner is declared when one contestant forces his opponent's wrist, hand or forearm against his own opposite wrist, hand or forearm.

Those are the rules of the battle of the bulging biceps, a battle Ed Bond of Westland has never lost.

GC West Nips Wayne

Garden City West came up with two runs in the last of the seventh to tip Wayne Memorial, 3-2, for its first win of the young baseball campaign.

Bob Dropp's West Tigers now stand 1-1 after dropping their '73 opener to Westland John Glenn, 1-0.

Senior Paul Tatro started for West, allotted two hits and struck out four in the four innings worked. Junior hurler Terry Dobbs came on in relief for the final three innings, gave up three hits and struck out four and chalked up the win.

Wayne opened the scoring in the top of the second.

Brian Hopton singled, was wild pitched to second and moved to third on a wild pickoff attempt. Hopton then scored on a sacrifice by Emmett Hannon.

West came back to notch it at one-all in the last of the second.

Cliff McLellan was safe on a two base error, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a ground out by Doug Neracher.

With two outs, Al Slammer singled and Reid followed with a deep shot to right field. Tiger right fielder Bob Knuth lost it in the sun and Reid scampered in with a three-bagger and Wayne was up, 2-1.

It remained that way until the last of the seventh.

Neracher started it off for West with a double and Knuth walked. Mike Jaska bunted his way on to fill the bases.

Jerry Herbst then grounded one to the third baseman who tossed home for a force out. Wayne catcher Slamer dropped the ball and it was a tie game at two-all.

Reid got Oliver for the first out but Jim Stawara proceeded to rip a single between first and second to score Knuth with the deciding run and West was in the victory column.

THE GRASS CATCHER IS NEVER IN YOUR WAY!

It's not just luck that one of the largest grass catchers you can buy has our mower attached to it. When we designed the Snapper, we weren't trying to build a better mower, we were trying to build the best mower, and we did, right down to the grass catcher. The Snapper Comet has a big 6 bushel grass catcher attachment that unloads in seconds. The V-18 and V-21 have a large 3 bushel bag. Whichever one you choose they all pick up grass, leaves and twigs. Work less and enjoy it.

How Madonna Helps Train Firefighters

Story and Pictures
By MAURIE WALKER

Firefighting today, like most other professions, has become a highly skilled job.

The days of the bucket brigade are no more. Today's firefighter must be a professional. He must keep up with the constant technical changes.

In light of this, the fireman is continually attending schools and seminars to update his knowledge.

Realizing this need for highly trained men, the federal government, through grants, fire fighter associations, hospitals and colleges have promoted training sessions.

An example is the recent one - week instructors' institute for Observerland fire service personnel held at Madonna College in Livonia, in conjunction with the Michigan Fire Fighters Training Council. A $70 per student tuition fee was donated by the college.

Purpose of the institute was to prepare firemen as instructors for technical specialty courses, such as fire tactics and fire inspection techniques.

Sister Mary Lauriana, academic dean and one of the coordinators of the institute, said the course will serve as a model or source of ideas for other career - oriented programs because it included innovative methods of teaching, utilization of multi - media and the employment of economic and effective approaches.

"Using a video tape recorder, the student is able to record and play back his teaching episode. Each fire service personnel student practiced a seven - minute concept lesson to team members and was evaluated by a staff member through use of the tape."

Sr. Lauriana said "it is anticipated the institute will provide better prepared personnel for instructors in basic training for fire fighters.

"It will also assist in the development of course outlines, lesson plans, instructional aids and evaluative techniques for teaching technical courses in fire science."

She added that the institute design provides an opportunity for prospective instructors of technical girl science courses to learn in real-life classroom supervision with effective teaching methods.

"Each student, within a period of seven minutes, taught a single concept or idea in fire technology and was evaluated whether or not it had been learned." Sr. Lauriana said.

The course, which ran from April 2 through April 6, included principles of teaching, selection and use of audio - visual aids for technical specialty courses, overall strategy to enhance teaching, lesson planning and understanding group dynamics in adult education.

Sr. Lauriana said 30 men, one from each department in neighboring communities, had attended the course, the "only one of its kind in Michigan."

Among participants were James Gignac of Plymouth Township, Carl Ward of Livonia, Theodore Scott of Westland, Michael Guilmett of Farmington and Christopher Helgert of Farmington Township.

Upon completion of the course, each man received a certificate of achievement presented by the college through Phillip K. Alber, executive secretary of the Michigan Fire Fighters Training Council of Lansing.

The college is planning additional courses next fall which could lead to associate degrees and bachelor degrees, Sr. Lauriana said.

4 Senators Back Bursley Aid Bill

LANSING

The Michigan State Senate has passed and sent to the House the Bursley bill, which would revise the state's system of school aid. The vote was 22-15.

Observerland senators unanimously supported the bill, which would provide $1.264 billion on elementary and secondary education in the 1973-74 school year.

The plan, if implemented, would give each school district the same funds per student for the same local property tax. At present, funding is based on local property values, and districts with the same millage rate have different amounts of money to spend.

1973-74, $38 per pupil for each mill levied up to 22 mills;
1974-75, $39 for each mill levied up to 25 mills; and 1975-76, $40 per pupil regardless of the amount of millage levied.

New Director

Robert Luby, former Wayne State University two-sport performer, is the director of health and physical education for the Detroit public schools.

Indian Food Drive Nears 5,000 Cans

Michigan Indians will receive at least 4,000 -- and perhaps as many as 5,000 -- cans of food from Observerland residents this weekend.

Hand Chruscial, 19345 Brentwood, Livonia, will load a donated truck with volunteer help and make the trip this weekend. He is chairman of the Indian affairs committee of the Western Wayne County Conservation Assn.

Bryant Junior High School in Livonia alone donated more than 1,400 cans of food to the cause.

Popular Zinnias Come In All Sizes, Colors

Just 50 years ago you would have been hard pressed to find a zinnia listed in a seed catalog or featured in a seed display.

Today they are the most popular flowers grown in home gardens.

Zinnias are a shining example of how modern breeding techniques and careful hybridizing by man has transformed a lanky, wild-looking desert flower into a desirable garden plant with spectacular giant-size blooms.

Most popular of all zinnias is the giant cactus flowered class, producing blooms that measure up to six inches across. The quilled, ruffled petals give them the name.

Next in popularity among the giants is the dahlia-flowered class, with wide, flat petals forming a rounded flower head up to five inches across.

Almost as popular as the giants are the little dwarf zinnias. Among these are Thumbelina, a gold medal all-American winner, which grows no taller than eight inches and puts out its first blooms when only three inches high.

Perhaps the most amazing breeding achievement among zinnias is the Peter Pan class. Growing just 12 inches high, they have large dahlia-type flowers measuring up to three inches across on bushy compact plants.

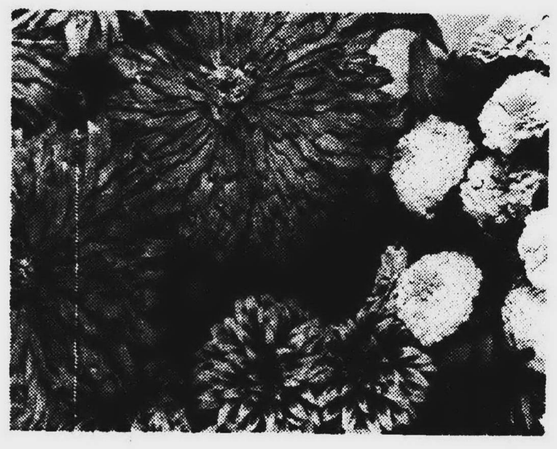
The taller kinds like to be cut, and make magnificent indoor arrangements in a lovely range of colors from gleaming white through yellow and orange to red and purple.



ZINNIAS ARE HERE to stay. Top left is Firecracker, a cactus-flowered hybrid zinnia. Bottom is Old Mexico which has petals of deep red, edged with bright gold. Right is Thumbelina, which grows dwarf, mound-shaped plants covered with miniature blooms.

A popular thing today is container gardening -- growing plants in any kind of container available -- tubs, boxes, tanks, half barrels, or whatever is available.

These are ideal for folks who have no backyard or a postage-stampsize space. We've used gutter pipes, the modern square types being ideal. Solder the ends together or seal with a good caulking compound.

Be sure to drill a couple holes in the bottom for drainage. Fill with good soil and grow radishes, lettuce, peppers or onions in them.

Wooden barrels are useful for growing all kinds of plants. Cut them in two and drill a few holes in the bottom for drainage. If the barrel is metal, have your garageman cut it in two with his torch, and have him burn a couple holes in the bottom for drainage.

Wooden boxes are ideal for growing herbs, lettuce, onions and other vegetables. Make your own out of scrap wood, or buy some redwood and build them to last a life time.

Cement blocks laid end to end so the holes stickup, and filled with good soil, make ideal containers for raising herbs such as parsley, rosemary, basil, plus dozens of others.

Use your own imagination, and grow flowers, herbs or vegetables of your choice. The only care these need is regular watering, and periodic grooming of each plant.

If you want a real eye stopper this summer, grow the celosia or cockscomb, coming in two unique forms - the plume and the crested types.

The tall-growing plume celosia comes in red and golden colors, while the dwarf form grows a foot high. Do not sow these too early outdoors since cold temperatures can check the growth of the plants, and they will remain dwarf all through the summer. We've seen some of them only three inches high and in blossom -- stunted by cold weather.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "Please tell me why we cannot grow melon plants from seed. We start the seed indoors in the basement, and very few come up. Why?"

Melon seeds need plenty of heat for germination 80 degrees or so. If less, the seed rots inside the seed coat. In our greenhouse, we start melon seeds in peat pots, resting on a heating cable.

Home Sounds Hazardous

Workers who protect themselves from excessive on-the-job noise levels through the use of ear plugs or protective earmuffs, frequently do not realize they can encounter equally hazardous sound levels within their own homes, warn hearing experts.

They point out that kitchen appliances can generate as much sound as a milling machine and that a power lawn mower can match the noise output of a printing press.

NEW SEWING and decorating ideas with sheets and towels will be demonstrated with slides and sample room settings at Hudson's. Flower Show Opens Sunday At Belle Isle

The City of Detroit's annual Easter flower show will open at 9 a.m. Saturday, April 14, according to John M. May, general superintendent, Detroit Department of Parks and Recreation.

Displayed in the Belle Isle Conservatory April 14 to 30 will be masses of white Easter lilies, cineraria and genista.

"This is one of the most beautiful Easter displays that parks and recreation has presented," May said. "I recommend that people see it on weekdays, if possible, as there are sure to be long lines on Saturdays and Sundays."

Admission to the conservatory is free 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week.

A SAMPLE VERIFICATION form for a Plymouth High School student shows which items are listed on the registration check list each student will receive this week. It also shows whether a student is programmed for modular or traditional scheduling in the right-hand "course title" box where it will say "traditional 500" if the student is on traditional programming.

PLYMOUTH

Students at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park have received a verification slip which serves as a check list for the courses they have chosen for the coming school year, according to Kent A. Buikema, Plymouth - Canton High School principal.

This verifies the student's course requests, but doesn't guarantee the student will be scheduled to all of the classes he has requested.

Otherwise a modular schedule has been programmed.

The area titled "Educ. Class" should have either a one (1) or a five (5) in it. One is for Salem students and five is for Canton students.

All course numbers for Salem students should be 499 or below (except for the 500 traditional indication) while all Canton course numbers are 501 and above.

Many Canton students mistakenly requested a Salem course number for physical education. This will be corrected by their area coordinator.

The indication "Invalid" followed by a series of numbers indicates the student has registered for a course that does not exist. This can be corrected by your child's counselor or coordinator.

Students and parents can check the credits which have been signed for by referring to the course of studies guidebook.

If you have questions about the verification slip, call your child's coordinator or counselor. It is essential that corrections be made as soon as possible. A second verification slip will be mailed home with year-end grade reports.

Schools Weigh Excess Building Alternatives

Renting Other Buildings Inside District

Renting or leasing available churches, public buildings and clubs is one possible alternative to some building construction.

The Plymouth community has approximately 30 such buildings which are presently being surveyed for the possibility of renting space for use as classrooms, offices or storage. The survey has indicated that a limited number of classrooms, storage and/or recreation spaces are available.

Among the factors which must be considered in renting such space are: (1) rental rates, (2) fire and health regulations, (3) adequate facilities for a learning environment, (4) teacher assignments and responsibilities and, (5) problems of administrative management and leadership.

Comments by community representatives:

ADVANTAGES

- A possible interim solution to an emergency space need.

Rent Buildings Out Of District

Renting classroom space outside of the school district is an alternative to building. Michigan school code permits a school district to rent or lease space from another district.

- Would be more effective at elementary level than later.
- Would provide the opportunity to use the community as a learning laboratory.
- Would provide an opportunity for self - contained type curriculum.

DISADVANTAGES

- Not as feasible for use as high school due to needs for extracurricular activities and specialized facilities.
- Rental builds no school district equity.
- Selection would have to be made on availability.
- Students probably would not have library, gym, cafeteria or adequate recreational facilities.
- Teaching staff would be isolated from colleagues.
- Lack of aides such as audio - visual, secretarial, etc.

Several surrounding school districts indicate some available space. The reasons for such space abundance are declining student population, overprojection and classrooms which were built to house 25 students which are now housing as many as 35 students. By increasing the teacher - pupil ratio, a school district could save money by using fewer teachers and fewer classrooms.

In Plymouth, the possible cost savings could come from not constructing as many new buildings, since "surplus students" would be bused to available classroom space.

It is important to note that maintaining the same educational program would be more difficult, course selection would be limited and teacher - student attitude might deteriorate.

Comments by community representatives:

ADVANTAGES

- Could be acceptable if an entire building were available.
- Could be workable on a tuition basis for high school students.

DISADVANTAGES

- Transportation cost would be much higher.
- Available buildings might not meet the standards to which our students are accustomed or which our other students enjoy.
- The lengthy travel time could be especially hard on primary students.
- Very expensive on long term basis.
- Children might receive lesser quality education.
- Higher insurance rate would be required on bused children.
- Would cause additional costs for travel time and expense for special teachers (art, music, physical education).

Extended Day At High School

Extending the school day for the high school students is a means of housing more students in a building and, therefore, would reduce the need for constructing additional space.

The cost savings which could be made would accrue when new buildings were not built. Operational costs would generally remain the same as if the additional building space was provided.

There are at least four options in extending the school day.

The first would be to house two separate student bodies in one building. This would require elimination of study halls and reduction of unscheduled time for students so they could complete their day in less time in order that a second group could use the building. The modular scheduling program would probably have to be replaced by a more traditional schedule under this option.

The second option would have students arriving and leaving the high school site at different times. This reduces the total number of students in the school at any one time as well as giving most students a complete schedule. It would not be as difficult to run this program on a traditional schedule as it would be to operate the present modular program. It does not increase the capacity as much as the first option.

The third option would be to extend the school day into the evening and perhaps, Saturday. This would give more students an opportunity to work; therefore, leaving space for additional students during the day.

The fourth option would be to extend the present co-operative program to allow more students to spend as much as a half-day in community service, jobs, travel, assistance at home, etc. This would increase enrollment capacity of the building.

Research has not shown that students do less well academically in a shortened school day; although, modular scheduling, choice of courses and extra - curricular activities would probably be affected.

Comments from community representatives:

ADVANTAGES

- Save construction cost.
- Increase potential for use of teacher aides in some roles in the school.
- Gives community best possible education per tax dollar spent for building.
- Would provide more time for students to work in "real" world.

DISADVANTAGES

- Reduces option of modular scheduling.
- Student activities suffer or are eliminated.
- Staff meetings difficult to hold.
- Complex transportation problems arise.
- Control problems with non - students become more acute.
- Teacher - pupil contacts may be reduced and special help time is lost.
- Some students may develop a negative attitude, feeling they are being given a part - time education.
- Unemployed youth create community problems.

Elementary Split Sessions

Split sessions for elementary students is an alternative to building additional elementary buildings.

The cost savings would be new facilities which would not be constructed since twice as many students could be housed in one building. There are different options available here.

The state requires a minimum of 180 days with a total of 900 clock hours, excluding lunch time but Michigan has no specific requirements for the hours of a school day. For example, you could offer two, five - hour sessions over a 180 day period or you could extend the school year and limit sessions to two, four - hour periods per day.

Split sessions might be used to reduce class size and thus to reduce discipline problems as well as to provide additional space. There seems to be no definitive research to indicate that pupils achieve less in academic skills when scheduled on split sessions, however, data on other kinds of learning is not available.

Some parents dislike split sessions because children spend more time at home and, therefore, need further supervision. In addition, an afternoon or morning session may be the opposite of what the parent or student may prefer.

Comments by community representatives:

ADVANTAGES

- It would work well in middle school with extended year.
- It would eliminate lunch hour discipline problems.
- Provides time to help remedial students when they are out of class.
- Prompts citizens to reconsider their thinking as to length of a school day.
- Provides time for in-service if double faculties are employed.
- Allows for individual differences in students who cannot tolerate a long school day.
- High school girls could babysit if they also were on split schedule.
- Eliminates need for food service.
- Gives better opportunity for use of community resources.
- Smaller class size is possible if teachers teach two sessions.

DISADVANTAGES

- Working parents object: unattended children at home.
- Extra-curricular activities may suffer with such heavy building use.
- Recreational activities would have to be rescheduled and expanded.
- Out of school children may get into trouble.
- Multiple bus schedules are required.
- Increases transportation costs.
- Discriminates against children coming in the afternoon because they would be tired and not as fresh for study as morning students.
- Families with more than one child may have their children going and coming at different times.

YEAR AROUND SCHOOL is one alternative to building schools in excess of need that is being studied by the Plymouth School District. Northville, which has implemented a year around program, reports that its efforts have been fairly successful and resulted in reduced costs.

Extended School Year

The extended school year (ESY) is an alternative to some building. Student enrollment could be increased as much as one-third. The cost savings would result from up to one-third reduction in the need for building space.

There are many different ESY programs from which to choose. They include: trimester, split trimester, staggered or continuous trimester, quarter, consecutive quarter, voluntary attendance quarter, quinmester, continuous school year, multiple trails, flexible all year and the "45-15."

Although there are many ESY plans, there is very little factual data on year round schools. This is due, partly, to the fact that most districts using it adopted ESY in a crisis situation and upon overcoming the crisis returned to the traditional school year.

Where there is evidence, it does not seem to prove conclusively what the failings or the merits are of year round operation; this is especially true in the area of costs. For example, Plymouth, Wis. Joint School District No. 8 could find no savings while Northville Public Schools, projects at least 5.1 per cent overall cost benefit savings.

ESY programs operated purely for reasons of monetary savings are not immediately successful and thus are not likely to be established on a permanent basis. This is often true because curriculum revision is a necessary part of a successful ESY program and the essential curriculum revision takes time, inservice training and money.

Of the many ESY plans, the most popular seems to be the "45-15" which is presently being pilot tested in Northville. The federal government has given Northville approximately $150,000 to develop its "45-15" plan in order that it might be considered by other school districts.

Many of the initial costs which Northville has faced might not have to be duplicated by other districts such as Plymouth.

Comments by community representatives:

ADVANTAGES

Each pupil is guaranteed as much instruction time as traditionally given.

Up to one-third more pupils are educated by same staff and school facilities.

Full time employment for teachers is possible.

Gives all students some time off in summer.

Forces schools to review curriculum.

Would shorten our too long summer vacations.

More individualization is provided.

DISADVANTAGES

- Potential problem of students in elementary or students having special problems getting a complete changeover of teachers every 45 days.
- Student - teacher relationship could become impersonal.
- Vacations are not the same as traditional school holidays.
- Poor attendance before and after traditional holiday periods.
- General opposition to change.
- No real research or statistics to show advantages to 45-15 approach.
- No real evidence or data to show savings.
- Problem of transfer to or from other districts who are not on same schedule.
- General misunderstanding of the concept and related opposition.
- Students might have different graduation dates.
- Present recreational programs based on traditional school year.
- Extra-curricular activities might be affected or eliminated.
- Start up costs and stopping costs would be continuous.
- Wear and tear on buildings would be much greater.
- Summer maintenance would have to be done evenings therefore at higher rate of pay.
- A student may not be placed on desired tract.
- Everyone in neighborhood is on different tracts -- friendships are broken.
- Disrupts working mothers' schedules.
- Teachers might have to move materials constantly.
- Entire system must adopt it to work effectively.
- Have to install and maintain air - conditioning in all buildings.
- Some teachers really need time to rest and recover.

Satellite Schools

Satellite schools are an alternative for housing students, not an alternative to building, since they must be built and paid for.

The term "satellite" as it is used in the Plymouth Community School District, refers to purchased houses and/or lots in the area of existing or planned schools.

The houses while under construction are modified to meet educational needs and legal requirements for school buildings. In the future, when the school district has enough classroom space within buildings, these homes can be used as offices, school district storage or reconverted and sold.

Although the term "satellite" is new in education, the concept is not unique to Plymouth. Denver, Colorado operates these units and refers to them as "cottage schools." For the past 22 years, Flint Public Schools with Mott Foundation support has operated such schools and called these 144 neighborhood classrooms "primary units."

The satellite classrooms are usually located within walking distance of an elementary building in order that students may use other school facilities. Each unit usually blends in with the rest of the neighborhood and has a blacktopped and fenced area for recreation in the rear.

Comments by community representatives:

ADVANTAGES

- Resale of buildings when not needed.
- Strong possibilities for constructive curriculum change.
- Good facility for team teaching.
- Give a home - like educational environment.
- Promotes strong teacher - pupil relationship in each unit.
- Puts school closer to homes (neighborhood school).
- No bus rides.
- Could be combined with other building alternatives.

DISADVANTAGES

- Lack of administrative supervision in units.
- Political question as to location.
- Initial buying costs may be excessive.
- Costs of converting "buildings" back to use as houses.
- Meeting building regulations, i.e., fire marshal, health department.
- There might be a duplication of services.
- Time would be lost when special area teachers had to travel.
- Limited number of social contacts for students and teachers.
- Might overwork the facilities at the elementary building it was attached to.
- Too isolated from curriculum work in a building.
- Schools do not reconvert these to homes.

Note: The committee recognizes that the satellite school concept is not an alternative to building; but it is an alternate form of housing some elementary students.

Since the board of education has already made a decision to seek community support to set up some of these units the committee felt it should study satellites as a possible part of a long term solution to the school building problem.

The primary concern has been to advise the board of education on ways to avoid building school classrooms in excess of eventual community needs. The level of community acceptance of satellites as an option in this area is an important part of the committee's responsibility.

Safety Projects Need Help, Committee Says

A list of safety needs for the Plymouth School District that would need approval by the Wayne County Road Commission has been drafted by the district's Safety Committee.

According to Flossie Tonda, co-chairwoman of the committee, the following safety projects were felt to be needed in order of priority:

FIEGEL ELEMENTARY

"Skywalk or Overpass - desperately needed. Joy Road is being widened now to five lanes directly in front of this elementary school. There is no traffic light within two miles in either direction of the school and over 500 children cross here twice daily."

BIRD ELEMENTARY AND WEST MIDDLE

"These two schools and the Red Bell Nursery School are located at two high accident rate intersections: namely, Ann Arbor Trail-Sheldon Road and North Territorial (Penniman) and Sheldon Road.

"A green arrow delayed turn signal at the intersection of Penniman (N. Territorial) and Sheldon Road would facilitate east and westbound turns while at the same time holding north and southbound outer lanes in position.

"West Middle School is not visible to eastbound Ann Arbor Trail traffic until after you complete the curve. This traffic's speed is reduced 45 per cent on the east side of the Ann Arbor Trail-Sheldon Road intersection. Conversely, westbound traffic increases their speed 80 per cent as it passes the three schools.

"These conditions require flashing school speed control signs:

- "Sheldon Road and Governor Bradford.
- "Sheldon Road and Nantucket.
- "Ann Arbor Trail west of the schools with a warning sign posted prior to the curve for the eastbound traffic alerting them that they are entering a school zone - prepare to reduce speed."

EAST MIDDLE

"Walk-wait light (signal) at the corner of Ann Arbor Road and Lilley Road (Mill Street); painted crosswalk areas both north-south, east-west; change the timing of the light to enable pedestrians to safely cross the intersection (Ann Arbor Road and Lilley Road).

GALLIMORE ELEMENTARY

"Completion of the proposed curve that would link Sheldon and Canton Center Roads as one continuous thoroughfare."

MILLER ELEMENTARY

"Change red-yellow blinker at Ford Road (M-153) and Sheldon Road to a full phased light; change red-yellow blinker at Lilley Road and Ford Road (M-153) to a full phased light; no standing, stopping or parking sign needed in front of school; stop sign at Lee Anne Lane and Hanford Road; street light at Sheldon Road and Hanford Road; posted speed limit sign at the entrance of Olde Plymouth subdivision."

FARRAND ELEMENTARY

ALLEN ELEMENTARY

"Change red-yellow blinker at Ann Arbor Trail and Haggerty Road to a full phased light."

TANGER ELEMENTARY

ISBISTER ELEMENTARY

"Grading of Canton Center Road."

Mrs. Tonda said the Wayne County Road Commission could "hopefully" share in the projects' cost.

CHOPPED LIVER
DOC KEETH

Time was when most of us put central air conditioning in the same category as chopped liver ... something one can do quite nicely without, thank you.

Fortunately for air conditioning, that attitude has changed. However, I understand the chopped liver crowd still has a problem.

As we have enjoyed air conditioning (often Lennox) in shops, offices and restaurants we have decided that it would be nice in our homes.

And it is.

So you lucky readers with good circulated air heating already have half an air conditioning system!

Our Lennox systems do much more than just cool you -- You'll discover new quietness, cleanliness, better dispositions and appetites ... a wonderful world of air conditioned living.

As your Lennox dealer, I'm at your beck and call for more details. So give me a beck or a call.

County Group Plugs For Health Plans

Spearheaded by Wayne County, the National Association of Counties (NACO) has come out against the Nixon Administration's plan to kill four major health programs this year.

A platform opposing the effort to kill the four programs was adopted at the annual NACO legislative conference last week in Washington.

Wayne County delegates to the conference also introduced a resolution calling for state funding of courts nationally to eliminate judicial interference with the budgeting process at the county level. The resolution will be considered at a NACO board of directors meeting in May.

Opposition to the health cutbacks sought by the president was among the key positions taken at the conference, which is held yearly to draft the NACO legislative program.

The president has proposed to let the authorizing legislation for four major health programs expire on June 30. These are: Hill - Burton medical facilities construction and modernization; regional medical programs; community mental health centers; and support for health manpower and schools of public health.

Robert E. FitzPatrick, chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, served on the health steering committee which drafted the NACO position.

Twelve Wayne County commissioners -- either committee chairmen, vice - chairmen or alternates -- attended the conference. They were, in addition to FitzPatrick:

NACO called for continuation of the Hill-Burton program with priority funding given to modernization projects and highest priority given to construction of public health centers and modernization of long-term care facilities.

A one-year extension of the Community Mental Health Centers Act was called for "to allow time for development of a national mental health policy that encourages community treatment and construction of local mental health centers."

The platform drafted by the committee calls for emphasis on rehabilitation, treatment and education in federal funding of drug abuse programs. It also declared that "incentives should be offered to local governments to promote coordination of alcohol and drug abuse programs."

Explaining NACO's opposition to the cutbacks sought by the Administration, FitzPatrick noted that 70 per cent of Wayne County's budget is expended on health care and welfare programs.

"When you begin to reduce those programs at the federal level under the guise of reducing the budget, ultimately the local taxpayers are going to have to pick up that cost," he stated.

"We are strongly opposed to that because public needs in urban areas far outstrip the financial resources of local and state government."

FitzPatrick also charged that the special revenue sharing programs proposed by President Nixon would fail to make up for the programs he is trying to kill.

"We will have to look at special revenue sharing with a very jaundiced eye," Fitz Patrick stated.

Redford Hosts Reichman

David Reichman will make his American debut as violin soloist with the Redford Civic Symphony this Sunday. He will be heard at a 4 p.m. concert April 15 in Thurston High School, Schoolcraft, west of Beech, Redford Township.

Reichman is the brother of Rita Reichman, the famed 15-year-old pianist and composer.

When the Reichmans moved to the U.S. from Australia in 1967, both Reichman and his sister attended Interlochen Arts Academy. He served as concertmaster of the repertory orchestra.

In 1969, he was awarded a performance grant for four years to Indiana Central College. He has been an honors student and is a candidate for graduation magna cum laude.

Presently he is teaching both violin and viola and is first violinist with the newly-formed Quartetta da Camera. Every Sunday, he conducts a radio show, "Music of the Masters," on a local station.

Sunday's concert is sponsored by the Redford Township Music Society, and will feature John Gajec on the podium. He will be assisted by Robert Zimmerman, associate conductor, and Winston Hudson, narrator.

Gajec will play the English horn solo in Copland's "Quiet City," and Dr. Robert Adams will be trumpet soloist. The concert will open with Tschaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet" Overture, and will close with Masquerade Suite.

Admission will be $1.50. Anyone wishing to purchase memberships for the 1973-74 season may do so at this concert. Those with new memberships will be admitted free.

DAVID REICHMAN will be guest soloist with the Redford Civic Symphony at a concert Sunday, April 15, in Thurston High School.

Maekelberghe Gives Recital In Plymouth

Maekelberghe is organist and music director of St. John Episcopal Church, Detroit. He is also conductor of the Madrigal Club of Detroit, one of the oldest singing groups for women in the area.

He is founder and director of St. John Music Festival, which has been in existence for 24 years.

Beethoven, Brokensha Featured

Tickets are necessary and must be obtained in advance at the dean of students' offices of most colleges and universities in the metropolitan area and from the public relations office at Mercy.

In the first half of the program, Carl Karapetian, president of DAPA, will explain the structure of the symphony. The orchestra will then play Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

In the second half, the quartet will play a jazz concert in the Student Center. The only charge will be for refreshments.

Wayne-Westland Show Set For Friday Opening

Girl-chasing is the main theme of the Wayne-Westland Civic Theater's spring production, "Play It Again, Sam."

That the hunting is good is evidenced by the fact that the cast has nine girls and only three men.

Friday, April 13, will be opening night for the Westland presentation. There will be a repeat performance Saturday evening, in John Glenn High School, 36105 Marquette, Wayne.

Tickets, at $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students and senior citizens, may be obtained at the door or from Mrs. Anne Button, 35042 Hees, Livonia.

Curtain time is 8:30 both evenings.

Originally scheduled for Easter weekend, the theater group decided that the play's zany theme of a perennial loser in search of a perfect mate would not fit in with the religious holiday and so it was moved up two weeks.

Bill Barish, formerly of the Lafayette Park Players, will be seen in the role author Woody Allen himself performed on Broadway, that of a neurotic young man with Walter Mitty type dreams about his sexual prowess.

Russ McQuaid will play Humphrey Bogart, while Al LaCroix and Nancy Carter will play the young man's best friends.

Rita Urbanik will be seen as his ex-wife. Paula Daniels, Jeanne Dunham, Lynn Smith, Joanne Lalinsky, Micki Wencel and Lynda Shutt are the girls pursued by the befuddled hero.

BUD SHACKELFORD

DETROIT

Two workshop - seminars in the art of decorating Ukrainian Easter eggs (Pysanky) will be given in the International Institute, 111 E. Kirby on April 10 and 17. Reservations must be made with Mrs. Judith Brown at the institute.

Voice Students Plan Program

ROCHESTER

An all-Bach program, performed by voice students and an instrumental ensemble of Oakland University, will be presented at 8 p.m., Thursday, April 12, in Varner Recital Hall.

GARY GRIMES, Oliver Conant and Jerry Houser, the Terrible Trio of "Summer of '42," are up to new nostalgic adventures in Warner Brothers' "Class of '44." It opens today at the Quo Vadis Theater, Wayne and Warren Roads, Westland. Deborah Winters also stars.

California Artist To Speak

Bud Shackelford, nationally-known painter, will demonstrate "Fun With Watercolor" as guest artist for the Farmington Artists Club's April meeting.

He will demonstrate painting on the new Strathmore "Aquarius" paper, which does not warp or buckle when wet.

The program will be held at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 11, in the Sarah Fisher Children's Home, 27400 W. 12 Mile.

Shackelford has won more than 100 awards in major competitions and is represented in more than 200 private collections in the U.S. He is a resident of El Cajon, Calif., and is a member of the American Watercolor Society, the National Society of Art Directors, the California National Watercolor Society and the San Diego Watercolor Society.

MEDALLION

Seldom have three new roses received more favorable comment than the trio of tea roses which swept the All-America Rose Selection awards this year.

Medallion (Plant Patent 2997) has by far the largest individual blooms of the three, reaching in some areas the diameter of seven to eight inches. The very broad, heavy, 35 petals making up the bloom are a distinct, soft apricot pink, varying in intensity with the weather.

As many as 45 roses actually have been counted at one time on one of the four to six-foot plants.

The blooms have a light spicy fragrance, over 36 petals, and are usually borne one bloom to a stem.

Gypsy's father is Comanche and the mother a mixed breed of Happiness, Chrysler Imperial and El Capitan.

Electron (plant patent applied for) entered the trials already having won a long string of victories on the European continent.

It has large, bright, rose-pink blooms that on a dull day seem to have a neon glow of their own. The bushes are vigorous, bushy and broad.

Pot Of Herbs Hangs Outside Kitchen Door

EAST LANSING

Now, even apartment dwellers and gardeners with limited space can bring the fun of growing herbs into their homes, according to Michigan State University Extension Horticulturist Douglas Jones.

Herbs are easy to grow and can be used for cooking or as a fragrant addition to any room. Long, wooden boxes are attractive for herbs. For plants of varying growth habits or watering needs, divide boxes into sections or plant individually in pots.

ANISE (Pimpinella anisum) is an annual that prefers a fertile, well - drained soil. It is easily grown in the home garden as well as indoors. Stalks should be cut as soon as the seed head starts to ripen, but before they begin to shatter. Dry thoroughly and rub seeds out of clusters. Separate seeds and store in a cloth bag where air can circulate about them.

BASIL is an annual grown primarily for seasoning soups, stews, meats and salads. It is also used in vinegar and as a houseplant for fine edging, according to Jones. Basil prefers a fertile, well - drained, sunny site but also does well in most good garden soils. Bush basil is considered the best variety for cooking. Purple bush basil is best for vinegars.

Sweet basil is used for seasoning tomatoes, salads, stews, soups, and in medicinal teas. Outdoor plants can be potted and grown indoors for winter use.

A biennial that favors dry, sunny weather is CARAWAY. Well - drained soil that is not too rich is recommended. Seeds should be sown in early spring. In the first year, a low - growing plant is produced. The seed stalks developed in the second year should be handled similiar to the seed heads of anise.

The plants and fresh seed of CORIANDER have an unpleasant scent, but ripe seed is very fragrant. The seed is used for flavring bread and other food, Jones states. Sow coriander in early spring. As seeds begin to ripen, dry and store them in much the same as anise.

One of the easiest herbs to grow is DILL, used primarily in making dill pickles. Seed should be sown in early spring on a well - prepared soil. Dill sometimes produces seed in its first year, but more often seed forms early in the spring of the second year. The seed heads, along with a small stem portion, are cut when the seed umbels begin to develop.

SWEET MARJORAM (Marjorana hortensis) is a tender perennial grown for its aromatic leaves which are used for seasoning soups, egg dishes, salads and meats. It is sometimes used as an ornamental in rock gardens. Marjoram is propagated by seeds, cuttings and by root division. Sow seed in nonacid soil in prepared flats early in spring.

Jones recommends rows spaced 1½ to two feet apart with plants spaced 10 to 12 inches apart in a row. The plant is grown largely as an annual in gardens, greenhouses, window boxes or in pots during the winter.

Two species of MINT are commonly grown -- peppermint (Mentha piperita) and spearmint (Mentha spicata). Both can be propagated by seeds, cuttings and division. Mint prefers a deep, rich, open, well - drained humus soil and will grow in full or partial shade. The oil of peppermint is used in flavoring chewing gum, candy, liqueurs, salads, cold drinks, cough medicine and toothpaste.

ROSEMARY is a tender perennial shrub that grows to six feet in height and is used as a houseplant and for seasoning roast, chicken, pork and biscuits. Jones advises potting rosemary in a well - drained soil to which a sprinkling of lime has been added.

Place the plant outdoors in a sunny, sheltered location during the summer and carry over the winter in a cool, light room. New plants can be started from cuttings which root readily in moist sand.

SAGE prefers a fertile, well - drained soil and full sun, according to Jones. It is used in seasoning stuffing, cheese, sausage and other meats. Sow seeds very early in the spring or early fall. Be careful not to overwater. Cut back established plants in spring to induce new growth.

Harvest sage late in the summer by stripping the leaves or cutting the shoots before they bloom. Tie shoots in bunches and hang to dry, out of direct sunlight.

Many species of THYME are grown for seasoning and as ornamentals. The French and English types are most common and are used for seasoning fish, stews, pork and for cooking. It prefers full sun and a light, well - drained soil.

ONE MOMENT it's a crow's nest of a ship, the next it's a fortress lookout. Patterns for the climbing pole and a sandbox can be obtained by sending a check or money order for $1 to PO Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. 10510. Ask for climbing pole pattern No. 154 and sandbox pattern No. 20.

Prune Bush Roses Now

EAST LANSING

Annual pruning can help you produce better - looking roses, and now is the time to do it, according to Michigan State University horticulturists.

They claim that rose pruning isn't a difficu't job, especially if you use sharp tools. Cut dead canes or branches with a fine - toothed saw, and use pruning shears for the rest of the job.

Remove all the dead wood first. Make all your cuts to a cane, to the spot where the branch originated, or to a strong bud. Cut about an inch or two below dark - colored areas. Remove any branches that have no live buds.

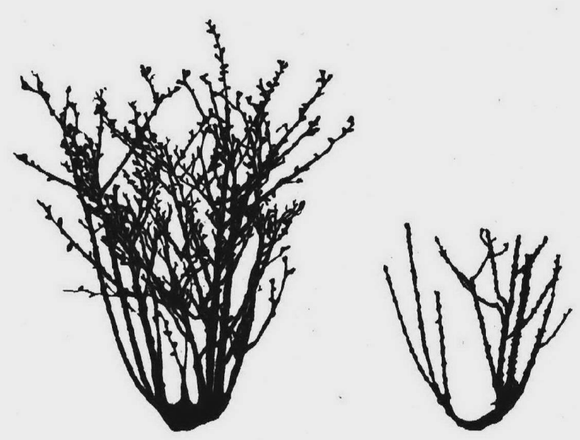
If you have tree roses, prune them heavily, removing all dead wood. Trim the live canes to a height of eight to 12 inches.

Wait to prune shrub roses until after they bloom. These plants don't need shaping, so just thin them out and remove dead or unsightly wood.



RULE OF THUMB in pruning rose bushes is remove all dead wood and weak growth, then cut back all remaining canes to a uniform height of about two feet.

Begonias, Impatiens Prefer Shady Spots

Most annual flowers grown from seed do prefer full sun, but there is a small group which will tolerate light shade, and a smaller group which even prefers shade.

By far the best two kinds for shaded areas are the small - flowered fibrous - rooted begonias and impatiens.

Should you choose the first of these two -- the begonia -- it is best to grow the hybrids. These have larger flowers, sturdier plants, and a greater tolerance for shady conditions.

Before frost hits them, they can be transferred to a pot to continue blooming indoors during winter months. There are both single - flowered and double - flowered forms.

Impatiens have been improved tremendously by hybridizers in recent years. Modern varieties are now much more free - flowering, and more compact in their growth habit, especially the hybrids.

Best of the hybrids are the dwarf Elfin series, and the semi - dwarf Imp series. Both make excellent bedding plants, and come in a good range of colors including white, pink and red.

Seed is best started indoors early in the spring so that good size plants are ready for transplanting to the garden after danger of frost. They will bloom all summer right into fall.

Like begonias, Impatiens make excellent pot plants. Before they are filled off by frost, root them in a jar of water, and transfer them to a pot for blooms indoors all through the winter.

Lawns Bolstered By New Cultivars

It's excitement bred of spring enthusiasm combining with as comely an array of new lawngrass cultivars as has ever come to market. Incidentally, "cultivar" is the horticulturist's word for an improved variety or unusual strain of plants.

There are the bluegrasses such as Adelphi, Baron, Bonnieblue, Fylking, Nuggett, Merion, Pennstar, Sodco and Windsor; fescues the likes of Dawson, Highlight, Jamestown, Pennlawn and Ruby;

By whatever designation, the cultivars will spark more attractive lawns than ever throughout America.

Naturally, one can't remember more than a handful of names in so lengthy a listing. But a handful of new cultivars is all that is needed to start a fine lawn along the road to success.

In addition to these dandies being offered individually, seed houses mix appropriate combinations of them to provide the turf blends that are so widely recommended for lawns that must receive less than expert attention.

You'll find Arboretum, Arista, Prato and Sydsport bluegrasses and Illahee fescue among varieties doing a bang up job in supporting roles or for special circumstances.

As a rule, one or two bluegrasses blended with a slightly lesser quantity of fine fescue (and perhaps a touch of perennial ryegrass) make an excellent "all - purpose" mixture both for new lawns and bolster seeding.

For unusually shady locations, cultivars tolerant of shade should predominate. Several of the new bluegrasses work out well in moderate shade, but most of the time the burden falls mainly upon fine fescues.

Fescues are noteworthy for enduring well on dry, improverished soils such as frequently occur under trees. For humid climates with rainy seasons and abundant drizzles, bentgrasses have no peer.

Bentgrasses typically require a bit more attention than do bluegrasses, fescues and perennial ryegrasses, but they stand closer mowing (a ¾ inch mowing height is usual.)

The ryegrasses are great for quick cover, such as when seeding slopes, or where repeated scuffing may occur as with an athletic turf.

Don't be misled, however, into believing that a sodded lawn can get by with any less soilbed preparation than is needed for seeding. Unless the soil is well loosened, fertilized, leveled, and watering is made ready, neither a seeding nor a sodding is likely to be assuredly successful.

Tax Service Units Are Set

The units will be at the Tel-Twelve Mall, 12 Mile and Telegraph in Southfield, and the Westland Mall, Wayne near Warren, through April 16. They are open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Wood Deck Plus Trees: Cool Patio

Air and moisture needed for healthy roots are not cut off by spaced boards so chief concern is to fit trunks closely without chafing.

VERSATILE HUNT TABLE by A. Brandt Company has convenient drawers that accent its use as a library, dining or hall table. Here the table, along with the lamp and chair, provide an area for reading, studying or writing. Solid oak construction, combined with a warm, handrubbed oak finish and simplistic styling, will blend with contemporary, casual or colonial designs.

"IF MEN PLAYED Cards Like Women Do," they'd take time out to try on each other's hats. In this scene from the Masque Players' version of the George Kaufman comedy, Tom Boaks (right) doesn't seem to think his hat does much for his friend, Christopher Keyes. The players are presenting this and two other one-acts at 8 p.m., April 12; 2 p.m., April 13; 8 p.m., April 14; and 7 p.m., April 15, in the Liberal Arts Theater, Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty.

'Get Well' Cards Flooding DalBo

Time -- the great equalizer -- has wrought its own special kind of magic for the Clarenceville School District and in particular for one of its teachers, Leo DalBo.

Not so long ago, Dalbo, a high school math teacher and president of the faculty union, was the center of controversy over his involvement with student rights and high school political action groups.

Today, Dalbo is in University Hospital in Ann Arbor recovering from a serious auto accident that left him with multiple injuries that include a fractured pelvis and a punctured lung. His car was struck broadside during the mid-March snow storm.

Major surgery was required, and he came through amazingly well, his doctors report.

From his bedside, DalBo admits the turning point in his sagging morale came when he began getting cards and letters of encouragement from the Clarenceville community.

The very first card he got was from Dr. Samuel Prisk, board president.

Since the accident, the entire school community has opened its heart to the once-controversial teacher. Get-well cards cover the walls of his room and kids by the carload visit him frequently.

A mellowed DalBo and a concerned community have finally reconciled.

WSU Plans 5 Summer Travel Tours

Three travel study tours, one with five options, have been scheduled with Wayne State University faculty members through the Division of Urban Extension for summer 1973.

Repeating her popular foreign study in studio art, Prof. Mary Jane Bigler will take a group of 25 students to Italy. The course may be taken for graduate or undergraduate credit.

Students will combine museum and gallery visits with attendance at concerts and visits to artists' studios with their own studio work. The trip of special benefit to painting and drawing students will run from June 25-Aug. 24.

Tour A features Europe, Eastern Mediterranean and Black Sea; Tour B Europe, eastern Mediterranean and Holy Land; Tour C Europe, Eastern Mediterranean, Black Sea and East Africa, Tour D Scandinavia, North Cape, Land of the Midnight Sun; Tour E Central and South America.

Up to six hours of graduate or undergraduate credit in educational sociology can be earned by qualified students.

The Photo-Geographic Society study tour from Aug. 8-30 under the auspices of Dr. Robert Goodman features extensive travel in the USSR and Poland and six days in London. Geography credit may be earned in conjunction with the tour.

For complete information on any of the tours, contact Thomas F. Hagerty, Division of Urban Extension, Wayne State University, Detroit 48202.

OBSERVATION POINT

Meat Boycott Successful Locally; 'What Next?' Remains Big Question

Last week was the week that a lot of families in Observerland discovered the delights of the eggplant. Or soybeans. Or macaroni and cheese. Or tuna fish.

Best local evidence shows that the national meat boycott had a pretty big impact in this area. Area supermarkets and smaller grocery stores reported meat sales off from 15 to 50 per cent, and chicken, cheese and vegetables somewhat over normal.

In this area, Families United Against Inflation (the acronym of which is FUAI, pronounced "phooey") in Farmington was particularly active, staging a march on a local supermarket as the boycott started. FUAI, which began with a group of Mrs. Lenore Mendelson's neighbors on Glenmoor Avenue in Farmington, was but one particularly visible group in what has got to be regarded as a mass protest movement which sprung from genuine popular grass roots and overnight grew to a scale surpassing even the protests against the war in Vietnam.

Everywhere you went over the past week people were talking about the boycott and the high prices. The women in the supermarkets, the cashiers at local department stores in the shopping centers, the men bellied up to the bars after work. Topic A-1 in public awareness was the boycott; it even drowned out busing.

THE MAJOR QUESTION, of course, is what happens now?

Locally, the boycott did not have much effect on meat prices, although a few local supermarket chains cut back on meat prices before the boycott started, and other price reductions may be forthcoming as increased meat supplies start coming through the pipeline.

Most economists take the view that a one-week meat boycott, no matter now effective, will not have much effect on prices, which are in the last analysis determined heavily by supply (ie. how much meat is available) and demand (ie. how much meat people are willing to buy). A local member of FUAI made the same point: "I'm beginning to take a broader view than just a housewife on this thing. Just a one-shot protest won't in itself do much good. W've got to get more meat available, which may mean importing more foreign beef, and maybe we've got to re-think our own buying patterns."

Leaders of the national boycott are meeting today in Washington to consider their next step. Many local people think they ought to recommend that families pass up meat one or two days each week to reduce overall demand, rather than keep up a complete meat boycott. In the long run, such a plan ought to reduce the demand for meat, and thus in time bring prices down.

THE OTHER BASIC question left by the boycott has to do with President Nixon's anti-inflation program.

Reportedly, the President was once prepared to roll back all food prices to January levels, but was talked out of it at the last moment by Treasury Secretary George Schultz.

The President is reportedly still against a price roll back, but he is up against some very powerful political and economic realities:

1) The nation's housewives are plenty sore at rising prices, and the astounding overall success of the boycott indicates their anger is no small factor for a politician as astute as the President;

2) The wholesale price index went up 1.2 per cent in March, a much larger jump than expected, and this indicated that inflationary pressures are by no means confined to meat;

3) Organized labor is beginning to rumble about the obvious unfairness of rapidly rising prices and a 5.5 per cent wage increase ceiling, further jeopardizing the President's Phase 3 inflation program;

4) Democrats and Republicans in Congress are beginning to get the message that the natives are surly, and bills to roll back prices and impose more strict controls are piling into congressional hoppers.

My guess is that the President's entire anti-inflation political game plan is in jeopardy, and that the President knows it. I suspect that he'll re-impose strict price controls over the economy, and I hope he'll roll back food prices to January levels.

Otherwise he'll have a lot of angry housewives on his back, and as everyone knows, "Hell hath no fury like. . ."

Difficult To Boycott Middleman

The birth of little piggies are timed to orient with a later time when piglet will be full-grown and marketable.

Piglet is cared for and fed until reaching a sufficient physical condition to be sold, butchered, and packaged for marketing to consumers.

Often, the trip to the meat-packer is delayed a couple weeks to fill piggies with cornmeal to make them fatter. But, if fattened for more than a two to three-week period, piglet gets too plump with fatty tissues too abundant to get a good price for farmer.

Farmer may fatten piglet, or delay his trip to the market, depending upon the price of pork that particular week.

But, if the farmer is stuck with a number of marketable pigs and a new crop of piggies are born, he is placed in an economical situation which quickly turns profit into loss.

The intricacies of porkonomics dictates that farmer maintain and feed a batch of pigs for a limited period of time. He can delay selling, but eventually piggies must go to market.

Initially, when piglet is born, farmer has already computed the cost of feed and new equipment based on current prices or prices that can be reasonably anticipated. He definitely doesn't buy new equipment, increase number of sows for greater litters thereby ordering more feed, on the assumption that pork prices will be 30 per cent higher by the time piglet is marketable.

With this in mind, the farmer's "boycott" of withholding hogs and cattle from the market is pure hogwash. He can do it for two, maybe three, weeks. But, eventually he must unload. Being a good businessman, farmer will sell when prices are high and before a possible dip downwards.

The economics of marketing beef are the same as selling pork, with some differences in methods and details. But, the economic principles are the same.

If the consumers' meat boycott is a one or two-week protest, it will have almost no effect on meat prices. It could, indeed, result in higher prices.

But, if the consumer is hearty enough to engage in a boycott of two or three month's duration, meat prices will drop drastically.

The farmer, meat-packer, and supermarkets will reach the point of diminishing return and meat will be dumped unto the market because, to do otherwise, there will be loss instead of profit.

Farmers, packers, and markets are anticipating the consumer will end the boycott after a couple weeks and rush for the meat - counters -- creating an unusual high demand sufficient to support even higher prices.

But when the point is reached that the possibility of profit will be negated, meat will flood into the market at whatever price it takes to entice consumers to buy.

The farmer may not be the villain. Few are claiming he is. But, it is tough to boycott the middleman. Thus, the alternatives are to accept rising prices or boycott the product.

If consumers can endure, little piggie will go to market (with few staying home) at 90 cents instead of $1.40 a pound.

Old Suburban Scrap Gets New Attention

Detroit newspapers recently are busy finding out about an issue which suburban editors and their readers have known about for decades.

In fact, the opposition to new developments and any change at all dates back to Adam and Eve who objected to be moved out of the Garden of Eden.

Observers at city council and/or township board public hearings on rezonings know full well that suburbanites are opposed to virtually anything that changes the peaceful surroundings they picked years ago to raise their children and run the dogs.

The political impacts have been effective in most communities.

Organized opposition to new developments have forced city councils and township boards to stiffen their backbones on new shopping centers, apartment complexes, or other brick - and - mortar construction.

Livonia city council, with the help of the voters, has an ordinance on lawbooks which restricts apartment buildings to at least 1,000 feet of adjacent residential homes.

Westland, with more than 6,000 apartments built in the last decade, approved a one-year moratorium on new apartment rezonings for 1973 and everyone in sight applauded the decision.

Canton Township's Board of Trustees recently considered a similar moratorium but refused to approve it as yet although a newly-organized homeowners' group was formed to fight apartments and a proposed major shopping center.

But more than 200 persons stormed the public hearing two years ago to protest the program, which was eventually killed by the government refusing to approve funds. The refusal was based on the lengthy court suit initiated by urban renewal opponents and President Nixon's impoundment of congressionally - approved funds for such projects.

It all boils down to suburban residents opposing any change in their surroundings and city hall and/or the township hall concerned about broadening the tax base to raise funds to pay for governmental services.

So far, the residents have won the most recent battles -- but the war over suburban development isn't over yet.

It's The Parent Who Gets Gypped When His Children Skip Classes

Say you're a high school principal who has been driven to hair-tearing frustration by so many students deliberately skipping classes?

Say you're a parent who can't control the kids any longer, so leave it up to them whether they actually attend school once they leave home in the morning?

We suggest that those who are concerned about student absenteeism in our increasingly permissive society change tactics. Instead of expressing alarm because a youngster declines to expose himself to an education, why not attack it from the tax angle? Perhaps a letter to parents along such lines as these would help:

"This is to inform you that because of seven unexcused absences this month, your child has socked it to you for $38.85.

"No, you are not being dunned for that amount. Lord knows, we all pay enough in taxes already, but that's just the point.

"School budgets run into the millions and are pretty hard to understand. However, it's also true that the whole thing is based on having the schools open for 180 teaching days each year.

"If you were to divide our total operating budget by the enrollment, you would find that about $1,000 is spent on each student. In turn, when that is divided by 180, the amount invested in each youngster is just about $5.55 per day -- and it comes from the pockets of all our citizens.

"Deliberate non-attendance at scheduled classes cheats the taxpayer from his blind side, for he has no recourse. It's all the worse when one realizes it's his own child who has given him the shaft."

It's dangerous to make assumptions, but we'll jump at one just the same. Namely, it could be that a lenient father who won't blink an eye when a youngster filches $5 from Mom's cookie jar might bat the kid's ears off for cheating Dad of his tax dollars.

In the process, of course, there ideally would come the conviction that regularly sitting in on book learning sessions ain't all that bad.

Sense And Nonsense

Remember two years ago when the board refused to allow Stymelski any more than transportation costs to attend a national convention in San Francisco?

The majority quartet left for the same coast city last week to attend that same national meeting and all expenses are being paid by the board.

That's what one would call giving all to the majority and little to the minority . . . and we might add, that doesn't appear to be the best way for a board elected by the public to operate.

Harmony Speaks Forth

EDITOR:

As a parent of a bandsman at Plymouth - Salem High School and a member of the elementary music staff of the Plymouth Community School District, I resent your statements about the selfish Salem band parents in your editorial of March 28.

If you knew the facts and what it takes to build a music performing group (not for exploitation), you would not have made such accusations.

The bands of Salem High School would not be hurt by the development of Canton bands. You do not seem to realize the concern was over timing, instrumentation and facilities available to the two schools. The concern was for the Canton students who would have to be in unbalanced groups " NOT the Salem students and Mr. (James) Griffith's "Dynasty."

My son was one of eight bandsmen who had special meetings with all the school board members (with the exception of the president who refused an audience with them). All these young men are students at Salem -- showing their concern for their friends of Canton.

The band parents, bandsmen, Mr. Griffith, and the music staff are not against an eventual development of new bands for the additional high schools. They are against premature actions. Before you express your opinion on such problems again, please get all the facts.

Mini Bike Fan Wants Action

EDITOR:

My friends and I have been working on mini bike engines and go-cart engines and learned a lot. Mini bike riding is something to do. At least I won't be smoking "pot" or bugging the neighbors.

For years, behind Shelden Center they were supposed to have a mini bike track and go-cart track, and so far nothing has been done. They have a trail for mini bikes behind Ford Field, but still you have to have a permit.

In Plymouth, there is a recreation area where kids with nothing to do come and shoot pool, play ping pong, etc. In Livonia, kids have nothing to do so they go in Whitman Park and smoke marijuana, and cause trouble. We have no recreation facilities in Livonia. Let's at least have a mini bike track.

'Crucible' Cast Draws Praise

EDITOR:

I am writing to give a hearty congratulations where it is deserved. I am speaking of the group of students and their advisor, Mrs. Gloria Logan, who worked very hard on the recent Plymouth High School production of "The Crucible."

I had the honor of attending the play all three nights it was shown and not once did I tire of it. The acting was fantastic and the organization of it was great.

These students worked hard and it was proven by their magnificent showing. I would like to publicly thank them for sharing their great acting abilities with all who attended.

Death Penalty, House Tactics Split Reps, 5-3

An Observer Roundup

Reinstatement of capital punishment wasn't the only issue at stake when the State House rejected an attempt to bring the issue to the floor for a vote last week, according to one local legislator.

State Rep. Joseph Forbes (D-Oak Park) said it also was a question of setting a precedent which "could have stymied forever the legislative process."

The question arose last week when state representatives voted against forcing the capital punishment measure out of the Constitution Revision and Women's Rights committee.

Five local representatives voted against the discharge move, including Forbes, John Markes (D-Westland), William Keith (D-Garden City), Raymond Baker (R-Farmington) and Raymond Smit (R-Ann Arbor).

Voting to discharge the measure were Reps. Robert Geake (R-Northville), John Bennett (D-Redford Township) and Thomas Brown (D-Westland).

Rep. Joyce Symons (D-Allen Park) is the chief sponsor of the death penalty proposal, which would amend the state constitution after a two-thirds approval by the Legislature and a vote by the public.

The measure calls for imposition of the death penalty for murder of an on-duty policeman or fireman, killing of an elected public official as well as killings resulting from sniper's gunfire, kidnapping or criminal use of explosives.

Although Forbes said he opposes reinstating the death penalty, he said that the vote last week was an attempt to override the committee which had previously voted against releasing the measure of House debate.

The committee held several hearings on the measure including one which Forbes attended.

"Joyce Symons argued the fact that she wasn't given a fair hearing. This couldn't be further from the truth.

"Normally when you discharge a bill from committee, it's because of inactivity by the committee on it. Then it deserves the discharge. But there were four or five hearings on this, and the committee voted against putting it on the floor.

"If we discharged it from a committee that was doing its job, we would have set a precedent that could have stymied forever the legislative process. If it was discharged we would be forever hearing these things and never get our work done.

"It's not the system that wasn't satisfied, it was Joyce Symons that wasn't satisfied," he said.

Aside from the legislative problems, Forbes said he doesn't think capital punishment is the answer to weaknesses in the judicial system.

"I don't believe in capital punishment," he said. "I know it doesn't deter crime. In the major states that have capital punishment, the crime rate is up the same percentage as in Michigan or even higher.

"Murder is a psychopathic crime. The murderer doesn't think what state he's in before he commits it."

The fear of executing an innocent person is another factor, he said.

"Just one or two of those cases is a greater crime, I think," he said. "The answer is in strengthening our judicial system."

Dr. Geake, formerly a psychologist at Plymouth State Home and Training school, voted for the discharge.

"As a psychologist, I know the two factors which have the greatest effect on the success of punishment as a deterrent to anti-social behavior are, first, the certainty of punishment and, second, the proximity in time of the punishment.

"In other words, if justice is swift and certain, it need not be severe in order to deter future criminal behavior.

"Thus , plans which would move cases through the courts more quickly and secure a greater number of convictions when the defendant appears to be guilty, would have a greater chance to reducing crime than extreme measures such as the death penalty, which would only be applied in a few cases.

Dr. Geake, a co-sponsor of the bill, said he voted for discharge "because I felt the full House should debate it."

"I believe it desirable to have a law on the books because of the possible deterrent factor, especially to persons being arrested for lesser offenses who might be deterred from risking the death penalty for slaying a police officer.

"Research has shown no fewer murders in states with the death penalty on books. However, the point almost always overlooked is that the death penalty hasn't been enforced in any states in recent years, so statistics are meangingless.

"Even if having it on the books saved the life of one policeman or fireman, it's worth having."

Bennett said he voted for the discharge to "let the House vote and let the people vote on it."

"I'm really concerned about our judicial system," he said. "I don't think they are doing a good job.

"I'm not sure capital punishment is the answer, but I don't have anything else. I think something has to be done."

observing life

"FIRST THING everyone is going to do this spring is jump into a dress," the commentator told guests at a fund-raiser for St. Mary Hospital. The model wore a classic shirt dress in silk with a single strand of beads.

Fashion For A Hospital

Fashions for spring and draperies for the new wing of St. Mary Hospital go together beautifully for the women who belong to Friends of St. Mary.

In a Raleigh House luncheon-fashion show, they saw a wide assortment of spring styles -- and in the process moved about $3,000 closer to their $30,000 project of providing window coverings for the new wing.

Nearly 700 women attended the gala affair, with colorful spring finery mingling with the white habits of the Felician nuns who staff the Livonia hospital.

Guests learned that the season's new colors are the pale neutrals -- beige, taupe, ivory -- that clutch bags are back and that there's a return to simple jewelry. Polka dots and stripes and the "Great Gatsby" look are coming to the fore.

The fashions and professional models were from Saks Fifth Avenue. Small daughters of several St. Mary staff physicians added a charming touch to the festivities.

SISTER MARY CALASANTIA, St. Mary Administrator, is all smiles. Could it be the funds raised or the wiglet she won as a prize?

Still Meatless?

Boycotters Get Some Tips

Observerland and the nation boycotted meat last week, and for many the meatless time goes on.

Though prices have not dropped noticeably, though the larger picture of the high price problem begins to be seen more clearly, still grocery shoppers are using the only weapon at their disposal and keeping meat counter purchases low or non-existent.

That a new way of eating may come out of all this is the prediction of many, including Jan Wittenbach of Farmington. Mrs. Wittenbach has undertaken to plan meatless menus for those joining in Families United Against Inflation, one of the groups continuing the boycotting.

For many families, meatless eating is not new at all.

Others who have heard a little about non-meat products are seeking to learn more.

The non-meat eaters, whose recipes probably are better balanced nutritionally than the meat-and-potatoes family, have some advice to share with boycotters.

When cutting down on meat consumption, they suggest, make sure other elements are in the diet. Use wheat germ in a casserole dish, or sprinkle a little in the children's applesauce for added nutrition.

Especially, they say, be aware of amino acids and their relation to vegetable protein.

They also recommend the soybean, a food rich in protein, vitamins and minerals but costing but a fraction of other foods when considered in terms of nutrition per serving.

There are soybean imitations for almost every meat product; they have the texture of meat and are high in protein and low in fat.

According to owners of local health food stores, the soya product equal to one pound of ground chuck costs 84 cents. There are steakettes and choplets, both canned and frozen.

Dan Morgan, whose store is at 31705 Grand River in Farmington, says the soybean products "don't taste exactly like meat, but the similarity is there, texture, flavor and coloring."

Next Monday and Tuesday he will have dietitians in the store to advise and answer questions about vegetable nutrition because "so many people don't know about the complete variety of vegetable protein available."

Zerbo's Health Foods, 34164 Plymouth Rd. in Livonia has been affected by the meat boycott.

"More people of all ages are coming in," Harry Zerbo said. Besides the interest in soybean products they have had a run on sunflower seeds.

Information on tickets for both lecture and luncheon is available by calling the Farmington Community Center.

Mrs. Dixon, a resident of Washington, is one of the most-read columnists in the country and has been placed on the list of America's most-admired women.

m. m. memos

A couple of weeks back I mentioned in this space my daughter's classmate who was unable to go camping with his sixth grade class because of the unfortunate timing of a case of mumps.

Now there was a time when the mention of mumps would have sent me scurrying to my Dr. Spock book to check incubation times and symptoms.

But that time is long past, and the information just made an interesting sidelight for my report on the snowstorm-delayed camping trip.

I still didn't tumble when our youngest developed a sore throat last week. Then the next day came the slight swelling and the how-could-I-have-been-so-stupid flash.

And THEN came the thoughts of incubation times -- what with spring vacations and family vacations and our high schooler's first plane trip on her own coming up in the next few weeks.

Our mumpsie, at this point, is suffering more from boredom than pain. So her mother, after all these years, remembers another case of mumps back in the dark ages.

She was absolutely desolate, and absolutely unbelieving when I pointed out the future held more concerts.

But there were more, of course. So many that I've lost count, but I'm hoping to be on hand for my umpteenth this weekend at the university she's now attending.

If I don't get the mumps.

Play Night Fun For All

By MARGARET MILLER

And when you're a parent with responsibility for a teenaged retardate, life can get pretty programmed. Few breaks for the separateness that make togetherness more rewarding.

So a recently organized weekly play night at the Livonia Family Y has been a boon to both retarded teens and their parents.

It also has meant a new understanding for a group of high school and college volunteers who participate regularly.

Thomas Novak, a member of the executive board for the Northwest Communities Association for Retarded Children, worked with Robert Brooks to set up the Friday night program. Both are Livonia residents.

"I could see the need for some sort of activity these teens could look forward to," Novak said. He has a retarded child still too young for this program.

"But we'd hear from parents that these teens didn't have any regular associations -- no peer group," he said.

"So in planning the gym nights, we wanted to work with volunteers -- young ones. With these kids, the retarded teens can have a meeting of minds, something to talk about."

The age range for the Friday nights at the Family Y is 12 to over 20. The kids mostly play active games. "We don't try to play by rules -- we just have fun," Novak said.

Some of the kids have good motor skills but for some just batting a volleyball is a major accomplishment. That doesn't matter when it comes to enjoying the game.

"They have some wild card games with the volunteers," Nowak said.

The volunteers have become far more understanding as well as having a good time.

"People should know more about the retarded," Nowak said. "This kind of program gets them into the community, and its good for all."

By design, few parents attend the play nights.

Plymouth AAUW Is Seeking Used Books

Is it spring cleaning time at your house? Moving to a new home? Or are you an avid reader running out of shelf space?

If you fit into any of these categories, you are urged to get in touch with members of the Plymouth branch of the American Association of University Women.

They are searching the Observerland area this month for good used books for their 19th annual book sale to be held May 3 to 5 at Westland Center.

The sale chairman, Holly Hanert, said books, paperbacks, magazines, sheet music and records in good condition are still needed.

Collection boxes have been placed in the following stores: Great Scott, A&P and the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth; and Farmer Jack's at Five Mile and Levan in Livonia.

To have books picked up in your home, contact Sue Silletti, 39250 Dover, Livonia; Mrs. Hanert, 40739 Firwood, Plymouth; or Sheila Norgren, 861 Allen Drive, Northville.

AAUW members have been collecting, sorting and marking books since early last fall and now have nearly 12,000 good quality used books for their three-day sale.

Proceeds will be donated by the Plymouth branch to the National AAUW Fellowship Fund, which awards stipends, scholarships and fellowship grants to outstanding American and foreign women for doctoral study and research.

In addition to a national contribution, the group sponsors two full - tuition scholarships for area women at Schoolcraft College and one scholarship at the University of Michigan's Center for Continuing Education for a mature woman in graduate studies.

Former Plymouth Home Residents Get New Life

Participants in a pilot project to put retarded children into a situation closer to normal home life, these youngsters have been living for about a year at the Evangelical Children's Home in Detroit.

Instead of the institutionalized life they had known, they make their homes in cottages with a housemother in charge.

They have their own possessions, and are expected to perform their own tasks to keep the cottage running smoothly.

They enjoy a visit to their parents' homes, and, even more important, they enjoy returning to the cottage.

The changes were described by Mrs. Betty Clucas, program director for the Evangelical Home when, she visited a Redford Suburban League meeting.

The league, which for years has worked to help retarded children, sent back with Mrs. Clucas a supply of jack-in-the-boxes for her charges. The toys had been table decorations for the luncheon meeting she addressed.

In their "completely different living arrangement," she said, the youngsters are housed in four cottages -- one for girls, two for boys and one for both.

All are in the trainable range, she said, so they go to classes at the Engel School.

"We had been told they might be quite destructive and unable to take care of their belongings," Mrs. Clucas said. "We had a hard time deciding whether to put damagable items out of reach.

"In the end, we moved nothing, and we've had no more problem than in any home. We did label some clothing, but it wasn't necessary. These children never had anything that was all theirs. Now that they do, they take good care of their possessions."

The staff at first had to work to get the children to look at themselves in a mirror, she reported. "I guess they hadn't seen mirrors before. Now we have the vainest bunch of children you could imagine."

For many speech had been a real problem, Mrs. Clucas said, and speech therapy is still much a part of the program. "But most can communicate much better now," she added.

Trips to such spots as the donut shop or a bus depot or Canada are part of the children's home life. "They are made by private car," Mrs. Clucas said. "We try not to go anywhere by bus except to school -- small groups are less regimented."

The children are picking up social graces and are good about helping around the cottages, she said.

"The harshest punishment we can give," she added, "is to take away a child's chore. These children love to do the things they can do well -- it's a satisfaction to them..."

Relationships with parents have changed greatly, she told the league.

"At the time many of these children were placed in the Plymouth home, the advice their parents received was to put the child in an institution and go on about their own lives.

"Thus, visiting often was uncomfortable, and there would be problems when the child was taken home for a visit.

"But we've contacted all the parents of the children in this project and let them know we'd like their support. The response has been beautiful."

Parents have visited regularly, she reported, and some children have gone home for visits.

Mrs. Clucas thanked the Redford Suburban League members for the check presented -- to be used to purchase acrylic blankets for the children -- and for past support.

"Our needs have been great," she said, "and you've helped us fill them."

Meditation Talk Set For Livonia

Dave Gannon of Westland will give an open lecture on transcendental meditation at 8 p.m. Wednesday, April 18, in Stevenson High School, Livonia.

Gannon, a teacher of transcendental meditation, said a second lecture would be scheduled for those who attend the first, and then a four-session training course in the relaxation will follow.

The course will cost $35 for high school students, $45 for college students and $75 for working adults. The introductory lectures are free.

Gannon said he also is making appearances in the Livonia high schools to interest students in transcendental meditation.

The lecturer, who holds degrees from the University of Michigan in engineering and business administration, was employed as consultant for a manufacturing firm before leaving the post to become a teacher of transcendental meditation.

He said meditation induces a deep rest that is more beneficial to the body than sleep and has been proven of great value in reducing cardiac activity.

"Meditation is done for 15 or 20 minutes morning and evening," he said, "and the value is that the rest of the day you operated so much more refreshed."

CUPID HAS VISITED the Camelot Nursing Home in Livonia, and Helen Draper, a cook at the home, now is the wife of James Little, a resident nearly two years. They're shown here at a reception given by the home and attended by some 150 residents a few days before the wedding. Married March 24, Mr. and Mrs. Little will make their home in Romulus. LIVONIA JAYCETTES Carole Goodfellow (left) and Lois Gorton show copies of "Poems by Women In Prison," work of the Dehocoettes in the Detroit House of Correction. (Observer photo by Bob Woodring)

Women In Prison Publish Book

Feelings of women in prison in poetry and prose are expressed in a new book now being sold by the Livonia Jaycettes.

Writers whose works appear in the 40-page book, "Poems by Women in Prison," are members of the Dehocoettes, a new Jaycette group in the Detroit House of Correction.

The group was formed several months ago to work with the new Jaycee unit in Southern Michigan Prison.

Its members undertake such projects as making tray favors for Northville State Hospital. They also meet once a month with Jaycette groups from District 30, including Livonia, Canton, Wayne, Westland, Garden City, Belleville, Plymouth and Northville.

The new book was published by the Seekers' Club of Metropolitan Community Christian Church.

Proceeds from its sale will be used to give a financial start to women leaving Dehoco.

The Livonia Jaycettes have purchased three copies of the book and donated them to three libraries in Livonia -- the Vest Pocket, Carl Sandburg and Alfred Nobel.

Mrs. Tom Gorton, 14176 Ellen Drive, is accepting other orders. The book sells for $3.

"These books provide a way for the prisoner to relate what it is like to be separated from friends and family," said Mrs. Carole Goodfellow, president of the Livonia auxiliary.

"The inmates hope it will be read by other women who might wind up in prison."

Education Alumni Honor 1923 Grads

Five Observerland residents will be honored at the golden anniversary tea of the Wayne State University College of Education Alumni Association.

The tea will be held from 4 to 6 p.m., Thursday, April 12, in Alumni House, 441 W. Ferry. Members of the Detroit Normal College's class of 1922-23 will be honored and will receive a golden anniversary certificate from the association president, Thomas Lowichik.

They include Marowerite Burke and Alice Stover Cecil of Westland; Kate Kunin Henock and Jennie Seeman Miller of Southfield; and Katherine N. O'Connor of Farmington.

A book is being compiled which will contain facts about each honoree, including information about his/her teaching history and interesting memories about Detroit Normal College, the predecessor of WSU's College of Education.

'If You Want Health-- Don't Eat White Bread'

By BETTY MASSON

Mother always told you to drink lots of milk, and Adelle Davis, whose four books on nutrition have sold more than seven million copies, agrees.

But she doesn't agree with the baker who tells you his "enriched" bread will build strong bodies.

"If you sincerely want good health, stop eating white bread," she told her audience of more than 1,300 persons at Schoolcraft College Tuesday night. Miss Davis is a sturdy foe of all refined foods, including soft drinks, dry cereals and white sugar.

"You, as parents, produce good health or ill health in your children – it's your choice," said the woman who has been called America's "high priestess of nutrition."

"The place to start, she said, is to get some good 100 per cent whole wheat bread.

Miss Davis also disagrees with doctors who tell you eggs are bad for you because of their high cholesteral content. She advocates liberal use of eggs, milk and cheese as sources of protein.

"Americans today eat 175 pounds of sugar a year and seven pounds of cheese," she said. "Turn those figures around and you'll be much healthier."

"If you're serious about wanting good health, it's very simple," she told her audience. Her prescription is to drink a quart of milk a day (preferably raw miilk, if it's clean), one or two eggs a day (especially fertile ones), meat if you want it, fruits and vegetables and whole grain breads and cereals.

She believes that the fruits and vegetables should be home-grown. On her own small lot in California, she has 12 fruit trees, and she has this year turned her front yard into a garden. She commended Schoolcraft students for a garden project they are planning.

"If my neighbors stayed home and gardened instead of going to Jack LaLanne's, they'd be a lot better off," she quipped.

Although animal protein is superior, Miss Davis says there is nothing wrong with vegetarianism as long as the diets contain a variety of protein foods in the same meal. Beans, split peas, nuts, legumes and brewer's yeast she called good sources of protein.

Miss Davis outlined some of the essential elements in a well-balanced diet, including 15 to 20 vitamins and 30-40 minerals, and explained some of the symptoms their lack can cause.

"Lack of any one of these ingredients has produced every disease known to man in laboratory experiments," she said. Experiments in nutrition have been carried on for the past 50 years, she said, and some 7,000 reports are issued every year.

For those who found it difficult to hear Miss Davis's talk, because even with a new $7,000 speaker system Schoolcraft's gymnasium has bad acoustics, all four of her books were on sale...and going well.

County Is Losing Its Crown Of Maize

By W.W. EDGAR

Once known as the richest and most productive sweet corn area in America, that section of Western Wayne County embracing Canton and Plymouth Townships, extending as far as Salem and South Lyon, is fast losing the identity.

The population explosion in Canton and the rush of developers to meet the housing demand has taken one farm after another from the landscape.

A recent survey shows that more than 3,500 acres are being removed from what was termed "sweet corn" land for the past several decades.

"We just can't afford farming anymore," Bunyea explained. "With taxes going up, along with government controls and all the other things that require payment, the farmers are now getting rid of their land.

"Along with the taxes, we have such things to pay as social security for the help, workmen's compensation and even unemployment insurance. Add that up and you'll see why the farmers are turning their back to the soil."

"I've just about quit sweet corn. Instead I am raising about 300 acres of field corn as food for the steers and the market.

"I've taken another 140 acres and put it into wheat. Now, I find that the field corn is getting to be a drag on the market and some of last year's crop isn't even harvested."

Denver Cockrum, who used to grow about 800 acres of sweet corn at 10-Mile and Napier Roads, is cutting back to 50. He dealt mostly with chain stores and no longer can keep up with fluctuating prices.

The Warren Palmer farm at West Warrn and Beck Roads that used to produce 200 acres of sweet corn has quit entirely.

Another is Elmer Schultz at Beck and Proctor Roads. He has about 300 acres, and now sweet corn will be just a memory.

The same goes for Ray Schultz on Lilley Road, just south of Ann Arbor Road. He has cut back to the point where he raises just enough to meet the requirements for his roadside fruit and vegetable stand.

"And don't forget Bud Cowin," Bunyea cautioned. "He was one of the biggest producers with his farm at North Territorial and Gotfredson Roads. I understand he's just about ready to quit entirely.

"Then there's the Wilkie farm on Cherry Hill Road. That's another 200 acres that will be taken from the so-called sweet corn land."

Along with these there's the Korte farm and the old Campbell Dairy Farm on Canton Center Road near the school house where corn raised a year ago has not been picked.

"When a fellow's taxes jump up to $25 and $30 an acre all because of the state equalized valuation, this is drawing the line too fine.

"We either sell the land and give way to the developers or cut way down and raise melons and vegetables for the market."

Then, shaking his head, he sighed, "We're no longer the sweet corn country -- let Iowa, where they boast their tall corn, have the honor."

Esch Bill Aid Handicapped

U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) has introduced a bill to upgrade and continue current vocational rehabilitation programs for the handicapped at a reduced cost.

The bill, which is co-sponsored by Rep. John Erlenborn (R-Ill.), includes many provisions of the act vetoed by President Nixon such as provisions for expanded and improved vocational rehabilitation services, research and training.

It will also help unemployed handicapped persons who are presently excluded from vocational rehabilitation services.

"It is essential that legislation be designed which allows the president to effectively run the program," he said. "My bill emphasizes my strong commitment to the handicapped and to vocational rehabilitation programs across the nation. It does not discriminate among groups -- in fact, the strength of my proposal lies in its flexibility."

Metro Airport Gets Grant

The Federal Aviation Agency has approved a grant for more than $1.4 million for improvements at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, Romulus.

The money will be used to widen the airport entrance road; construct and light the new international terminal, with roadway and service road; reconstruct, mark, and light the taxiway; install safety fencing, and purchase a lightweight crash-fire rescue vehicle.

PETER EICHINGER, of 25755 Kilreigh Ct., Farmington, has been named manager of the Farmington office of Metropolitan Savings Association. He joined the company in 1972 as a management trainee.

Bill Introduced On Juvenile Delinquency

Esch said the bill provides a three - pronged attack on juvenile crime. It would provide training for local and state officials who work with juvenile crime problems and serve as a clearing house for new information about the treatment of juvenile offenders and about successful reforms in justice systems across the country.

The institute would also conduct in-depth research into juvenile problems and make appropriate recommendations for changes in both federal and state juvenile justice programs.

"Juvenile crime has increased by 167 per cent over the last 10 years," Esch said. "It is tragically clear that our present programs are not doing an adequate job of stopping juvenile crime."

What's Wrong?

Read other apartment ads carefully. You'll find they offer many of the things we offer: Swimming pool. Club house. Spacious fully-carpeted, air-conditioned interiors. Balconies. Appliances (although few offer dishwashers, as we do).

But what's wrong is they don't offer any tax benefits. But since we're a cooperative (or will be when we're almost completely rented), you'll be able to deduct a major part of your rental fee from your income tax each year.
