Busing Decision

The U.S. Supreme Court handed down a 4-4 one-sentence opinion Monday upholding a lower court decision that halted cross-district busing in the Richmond, Va. area. One justice abstained from the vote which is the first statement from the high court on the issue. The decision upheld by the court, which foretells much about the future of cross-district busing in Detroit, is analyzed on page

DEDICATION OF THE DUNNING MEMORIAL BUILDING, which will be the home of the Plymouth Historical Society Museum, brought reenactment of the ground breaking of just a year ago. Participating before a crowd of more than 1,000 guests were Clarence Moore, coordinator of the project; Miss Margaret Dunning, donor of the building, and George Burr, president of the society. At the right is the museum's first exhibit, an Alter car manufactured in Plymouth many years ago. (Observer photos)

Antique Car Is Museum Gem

By W. W. EDGAR

The surprising unveiling Sunday afternoon of one of the most coveted antique cars in America furnished the highlight of the dedication of the Dunning Memorial Building that will house the Plymouth Historical Society museum.

It was an Alter car, last of fleet that was manufactured in Plymouth shortly after the turn of the century and considered a "prize" as the first exhibit in the new building.

Before the unveiling, Margaret Dunning, with a choked voice, dedicated the building to the memory of her parents, Charles and Bessie Dunning, and then presented the key to George Burr, president of the Historical Society.

Surrounded by approximately 500 of her friends and neighbors, Miss Dunning presented a long list of public officials that included State Sen. Carl Pursell, Mayor James McKeon, Township Supervisor J.D. McLaren, School Supt. John Hoben, Clerk John Flodin, of Canton Township, and Robert Bowen, president of the Michigan Association of Museums.

It was with considerable pride that she told the story of the dream to do something for the community and pay respects to her parents at the same time.

"About four years ago," she said, "I learned that the Historical Society was in dire need of space. It was then that I decided on this building.

"It was a great deal of work," she confided, "but this day finally arrived and I am proud to make this presentation."

Rated one of the finest museums for its size in the country by Solon Weekes, curator of the Detroit Historical Museum, the building is unique in that its main floor is a replica of a small town Main Street with the dainty little shops and the other attractions of a by-gone day.

One of these shops houses the exhibit of the Daisy Air Rifle Co., one of the pioneer industries in Plymouth. It contains all shapes and sizes of the rifles that once carried the name of Plymouth around the world.

And Cass Hough, one of the officials of the company, now located in Arkansas, was on hand to see it presented to the Museum. The company is now a subsidiary of the Victory Corp.

It was the Alter car, however, that caught the eye of the visitors to the dedication.

The unveiling was a surprise arranged by Clarence Moore, who had been trying for months to obtain the car – and for a few moments he felt a bit disappointed.

"The car didn't get here until Friday night," he said, "and it wasn't until Saturday night that we got it in place. But we have it and in time for the big dedication. That's the main thing."

Built at a cost well into six figures, the new museum is a jewel in the downtown area. Constructed along Colonial lines, it fits into the scheme of things with the City Hall and the Dunning-Hough Library.

As one of the speakers said Sunday – "It is just brick and mortar today. It will be up to the citizens of the Plymouth Community to breathe life into it and make it the 'historical capital' not only of Wayne County, but the entire state of Michigan."

This fond hope got encouragement when Sen. Pursell informed the group that he had arranged for the State Historical Commission to place it on its list for possible financial aid.

In the meantime, the coveted Alter car that has been sought for years, finally is in place as the pride of the new museum -- and the Plymouth Historical Society.

This dedication ceremony will identify Plymouth's 1973 observance of Michigan Week as one of the most significant in the 20 years since this statewide salute was originated.

Monday (Government Day) saw Plymouth exchange mayors with Adrian and at a dinner that evening in the Round Table Club, Adrian Mayor John Giles commented:

"You have made this day a memorable one and it has been a very valuable experience. As mayor, I am going home with some ideas that will help us in the city of Adrian and I hope your mayor does the same.

"I am particularly impressed by your ice rink and intend to talk up such a project in Adrian."

Mayor Giles paid particular tribute to one of Adrian's city commissioners who accompanied him here, Sister Ann Joachim. He said of the 71-year-old nun:

"The only things she hasn't done yet is drive a semi. She was our top vote-getter and could have been mayor if she had wanted to be."

He pointed out that Sister Ann is a college professor, holds six collegiate degrees, is an attorney and also holds a pilot's license. Noted for her fight to keep the train called the Wabash Cannonball in operation, she advised Plymouthites that only three tools are needed to fight rail crossing delays:

"A policeman, a summons and a stopwatch are all it takes. Don't forget, it's against the law for a train to block a crossing for more than five minutes."

One of the most significant events of Michigan Week was

Canton Lands $12 Million Project

By FRED DeLANO

The largest single construction project in Canton Township history is scheduled tentatively to be announced before the end of the week. It includes:

- Purchase of 50 acres for $600,000 in cash – that being the rate of $12,000 per acre.
- The proposed construction of a one million square foot warehouse at a cost estimated at no less than $12 million.

At the state prescribed ratio of 50 per cent valuation, this would add $6 million or more to the township's 1973 state equalized assessed valuation of $114 million.

Purchaser of the property will be the S.S. Kresge Co., whose international headquarters are in Troy. A news conference to tell of the project has been scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Friday, and until then none of the information will be official.

However, local development circles have made an ill-guarded secret of the sale and construction project since it first surfaced in Plymouth-Canton political discussions shortly after the first of the year.

The site of 50 acres is located just south of Joy Road, quartered at its northeast corner by the C&O Railroad which will run a spur directly into the building. Haggerty Road will provide the rest of the eastern boundary.

Sources within area government circles, almost beside themselves in their elation over this choice plum, point out that the Plymouth Community School District will be the principal tax beneficiary.

Informants say that the Kresge Co., which also owns and operates the Kmart centers, has picked the site as a regional distribution center that will serve all of the company's outlets in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Kentuckey.

It will be Kresge's largest warehouse operation of its kind in the nation, and supposedly will be in full operation by early 1974.

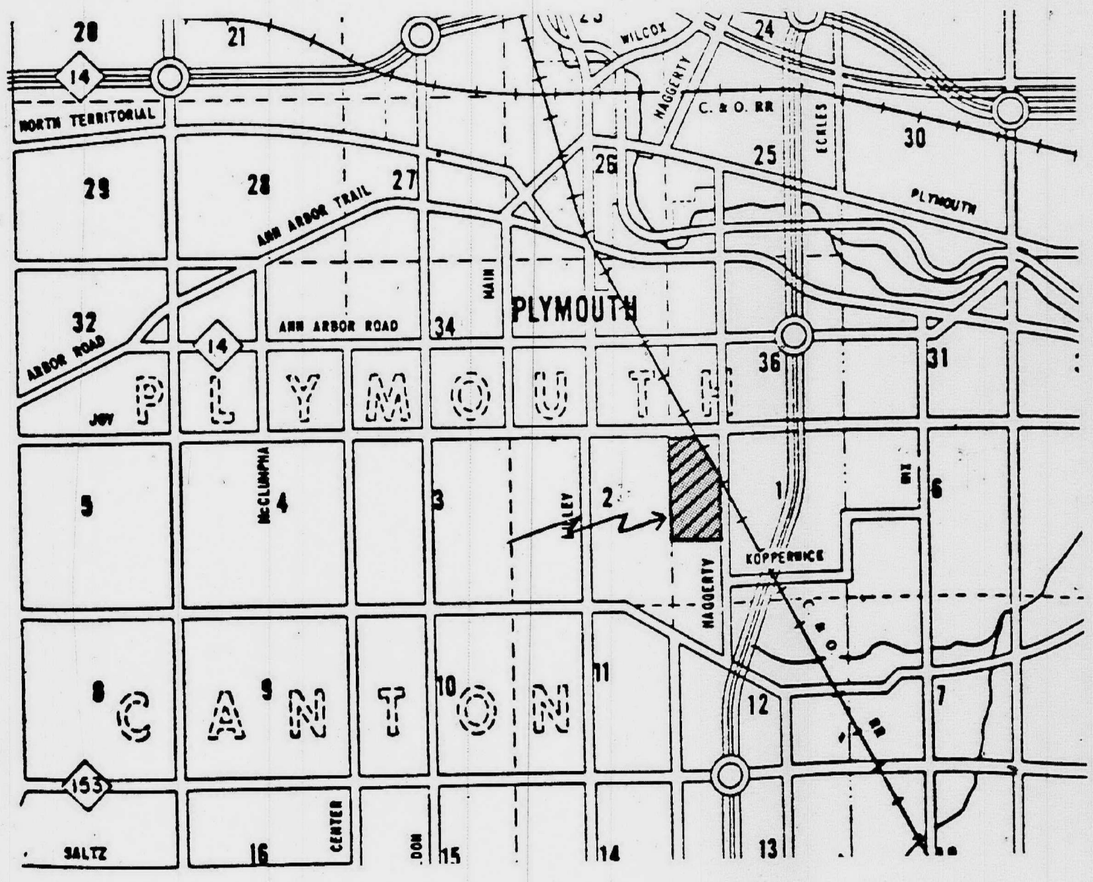

No rezoning action was needed by Canton's planning commission or trustees. Because of this, it has taken Kresge authorities less than six months to solidify the transaction once desirability of the site was determined.

The parcel already has assurance of service by Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. and all other utilities, and a work force of about 300 persons is anticipated.

Although the deal for the land involves only private holdings, the Plymouth Area Economic Expansion Commission also has been among the motivating forces to bring about consummation of the transaction.

The site will provide easy access to both the north-south I-275 and east-west I-96 and M-14 freeways, availability of air service through Metteral, Metropolitan and Willow Run Airports, and the aforementioned accessability of rail service.

These reportedly are to have been among the prime factors considered by Kresge officials in selecting this location. It is understood that an adjoining parcel also is under consideration by Kresge in case of expansion.

THE 50-ACRE SITE purchased by the S.S. Kresge Co. as a location for a four-state warehousing headquarters is indicated by the darkened area on this map. The land sold for $600,000, reportedly, and cost of the project will be in the neighborhood of $12 million. The land is in Canton Township, on the south side of Joy Road at the C&O crossing.

All-Year Schools Get State Boost

The bill received support from Sen. William Faust (D-Westland), David Plawecki (D-Dearborn Heights) and Daniel Cooper (D-Oak Park).

The bill allows school districts which adopt year-around schedules to receive their full allotment of state aid. Currently schools receive state aid based on the number of students present on the fourth Friday in September.

This bill allows aid payments for students who are enrolled at that time, even though they are on vacation.

"I am delighted with the overwhelming support this bill received because it indicates the Senate wants to modernize our approach to education by saving capital costs through full building utilization, and by recognizing that today's families live on a much different and more varied schedule than in earlier years," Pursell said.

"We estimate that the year-around concept would save districts up to 20 per cent of building and site costs and this kind of saving should be welcomed by overburdened taxpayers," he added.

Pursell noted that Northville's pilot program has been successful and is an example of what can be done in this area.

Michigan Day Is June 9 At Cedar Point

A special "Michigan Day" has been reserved for Saturday, June 9, at Cedar Point amusement park in Sandusky, Ohio, sponsored by the Michigan Recreation and Parks Assn.

Michigan residents will be admitted at a reduced price that day and will be entertained by a park parade of 16 Michigan bands.

Tickets for the reduced price are available at the parks and recreation offices of Garden City, Livonia, Southfield and Westland.

It entitles Michigan residents to an entry price of $5.60 for adults instead of $6.18 and $4.60 for juniors instead of $5.15. The tickets will be honored all season.

Workshop Set On No-Fault

No-fault insurance will be the subject of the 1973 insurance clinic which will be held Wednesday, May 23, in the Raleigh House in Southfield.

The all-industry clinic is sponsored by the Greater Detroit, Mid-Michigan and southwestern chapters of the Society of Chartered Property and Casualty Underwriters.

The workshop will be an authoritative analysis and open panel discussion about Michigan's new no-fault automobile insurance law.

New City Rec Director Welcomes Fresh Ideas

PLYMOUTH

A broadening of the municipal recreation program is one of the prime goals of Plymouth's new recreation director, William Zirblis. Another is to make the Cultural Center as financially self - sustaining as possible.

Zirblis, a 46-year-old native of Marlboro, Ohio, stepped into his role with the Plymouth city government last week. He previously had served 12 years as Livonia's assistant parks and recreation director and before that was in the Detroit parks and recreation department 11 years.

"The door is always open to people who have ideas and suggestions of activities," said the new director. "We're here to serve them and we want to know what they want."

Zirblis will run the municipal recreation program from an office in the Cultural Center. However, while that structure is the showcase of his department, the full municipal program is not confined to its facilities.

Five playgrounds scattered through the city, and the downtown "tot lot" all will have supervised summer programs operating under his direction.

He also has ideas for other recreational innovations which can be undertaken "at low cost to the city." Specifically, Zirblis mentioned such activities as a tennis club and tournaments, a physical fitness program, youth hostels, table tennis, hiking and bicycling.

"There's more to running a good recreation program than just offering softball and ice skating," he added "We want a program for all ages so that all people can make the most of their leisure time. Our job is to provide that opportunity and the facilities for it."

City Manager Fred Yockey joined Zirblis in emphasizing the city's willingness to cooperate with other governmental units in mapping a unified approach to recreation.

"I'm a strong believer in recreation," said Yockey, saying that to break even financially in the operation of the Cultural Center and yet provide full community service is his target.

The building opened last fall and despite heavy use of the ice rink is operating in the red. A deficit of $52,000 is projected for the center in the city's 1973-74 budget.

"We will put forth our best effort to make it self - sustaining and are now reviewing the entire fee situation," said the city manager.

Assisting Zirblis in handling Cultural Center activities will be Walter Adams, who was administrative assistant under former city manager Norman Gaffney. Adams will have the title of arena manager.

Replacing him as administrative assistant at City Hall is Ray Quada, who also was Yockey's aide when the latter was city manager of Midland. Quada, too, began his Plymouth duties last week.

4 Bands To Salute Michigan

PLYMOUTH

The musical climax of Plymouth's observation of Michigan Week will come Friday night in the form of a free concert performed by all four high school bands.

Included will be the symphony, concert, varsity and stage bands, all under the baton of James R. Griffith.

The concert will open at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School.

Michigan Week also had a musical send-off last Saturday when several groups from the schools entertained in Kellogg Park throughout the afternoon.

These included the stage band from West Middle School, the chorus from Isbister Elementary School, the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps and the high school stage band.

In praise of the ability displayed by the students, Mayor James McKeon commented in his accompanying remarks to open Michigan Week, "If this is what the new generation is doing, then a lot of us should step out right away."

Locksmith Provides Advice To Help Prevent Break-Ins

By MAURIE WALKER

PLYMOUTH

Hundreds of dollars are spent on television sets, jewelry, and other personal belongings, but when it comes to spending a few dollars on a good door or window lock, many persons look for the least expensive way out.

Yet more than one-half of all major crimes in many states are burglaries, with thefts hitting millions of dollars each year.

This is a warning offered by Wally F. Cash, a Plymouth locksmith whose years of experience have taught him that many persons don't become aware of the value of a good lock until their house has been broken into.

"Experience has shown that many persons would rather suffer the loss of an expensive television set than spend a little money on new or improved locks on doors of their homes," Cash said.

"There are any number of good, strong locks on the market today, and yet people have a tendency to purchase and install a cheap and untrustworthy lock. And in many cases, they do the installation themselves, without the knowledge of proper procedure. They thereby defeat the purpose of the lock."

Cash pointed out that the main purpose of a lock is to keep out intruders, the "amateur" burglar, and to deter the professional thief.

"Breaking and entering reports are continuously pouring into police stations, with the number increasing steadily," Cash said.

"Many persons don't realize that when they move into a new house or apartment, the safest measure is to have the locks changed. Or if the locks are satisfactory, to have the combinations changed or reset.

"There is no way of knowing just how many keys are out for these locks or who may have them. To have the locks changed is a relatively simple procedure and can be done in a short time by any qualified locksmith."

Cash said that if a lock is to be considered good, it must be virtually pick-proof, jimmy-proof, installed properly and strong enough to withstand forcible entry.

"Any person who has designs on burglary will not want to create any excessive noise, nor will he want to waste a lot of time trying to gain entry."

Cash said a strong dead lock with a long bolt, usually reinforced, is considered one of the best deterrents in this field.

"Most professional thieves know the names of these locks and will pass them by rather than try to open them and waste time.

"Window locks are an added precaution, providing they are of a key type. With glass doors, a double-faced cylinder lock is the practical one to install. This needs a key on either side to open or lock."

He added that usually, with the key-in-the-knob locks, an additional auxiliary dead-bolt lock is an added measure that is invaluable.

"On sliding glass doors, patio or dorwal, there are two fool-proof remedies. One is the plug lock that interlocks the door with the stationary panel. The other is a bar that is fitted and installed within the channel, thereby preventing movement in any direction."

Cash said door guard plates and cylinder guard plates are also a worthwhile investment since these prevent a number of possible illegal entries.

"For persons interested in alarm systems, there are a few on the market that can be installed easily and at a fairly reasonable price.

"However, to be thoroughly effective, they should also be connected to the windows, otherwise security is lessened. And the entire wiring system must be located and installed within the premises to avoid disturbance of electrical service.

"There are other precautions which are generally well known, yet many persons have a tendency to ignore them, thus making their homes a 'ripe plum' ready to be picked. These should be taken during vacation time.

"Simple measures such as stopping all deliveries of mail, newspapers and milk, when you are going to be away from home for an extended period of time are worthwhile."

Cash said that for added security while at home, he recommended an auxiliary lock or chains or bolts which come with a key-lock attachment.

"These can be placed into position from the outside, locked and give just that extra little peace of mind."

He added that the best way to prevent a home from being broken into is not only a few good locks, properly installed, but some simple common sense.

"I recall an installation of a system of locks which cost approximately $95, and yet, when the residents were out of the house, the doors were locked. However, the windows were left wide open and unlocked, thereby inviting a burglar into the house."

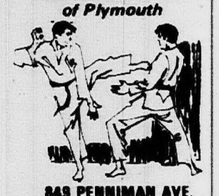

Turning to automobiles, Cash said a reformed car thief once said that "any unlocked car belongs to the thief, keys or no keys."

Cash added that locking car doors and taking the keys with you, even when parking in your own driveway, is the best security measure a person can take.

'Empty Nesters' In Market

They're Top Prospects For Condominiums

By JACKIE KLEIN

SOUTHFIELD — "Empty nesters," couples whose children have grown and moved away, are the nation's great untapped condominium market, according to nationally - known real estate consultant Robert L. Siegel.

Siegel spoke to 125 builders, developers, architects, realtors and attorneys recently for Citizens Mortgage Corp's Executive forum in Southfield.

Robert L. Siegel and Associates have recently completed a study of metropolitan housing markets in the United States.

"Condominiums are being aimed at less profitable markets such as families, young couples and single persons," he said. "Empty nesters comprise 4.3 million metropolitan households, are typically 45 to 64 in age, and form one of the wealthiest groups in the country."

Siegel advised developers to tap the vast market that settles for rental units and used housing because they don't consider condominiums when they're looking for a home.

"The housing industry may have reached its peak in 1972. The factors that accumulated to create a boom in the '70s may not occur for another 20 years."

Declining marriage and birth rates have caused the housing market to decline, said Siegel. Rising land costs have forced a higher priced housing market many young couples are unable to afford.

"The answer for many builders was increased density. When single - family subdivisions proved to be a mistake, townhouses were considered a means of capturing the young couple market that was lost. But the builder failed to attract young families who turned their backs on condominiums and townhouses."

The under 25 group is the smallest splinter in the metropolitan housing market, Siegel said. There are five times more empty-nest couples, and that's why builders seeking a young market often end up attracting older buyers.

Of the 70,000 families who move every year, only 10,000 buy new homes, said Siegel. The greatest demand is for rented, single - family houses.

"New housing doesn't sell, so condominium townhouses should be the answer for persons who want a residential atmosphere and a feeling of permanence without the encumbrance of single-family ownership.

Another major market, according to Siegel, are widowed, separated, divorced and elderly persons. There are only 1.1 million couples in the 25-34 year old market and so few married couples in the 35-44 age range "it makes little sense to beam a condominium program at them," he said.

Siegel's tips for developers planning to convert apartment rental units to condominiums are:

• Don't convert unless your vacancy rate is less than five per cent. Bad rental projects won't make good condominiums.

• Avoid conversion if your turnover is more than 33 per cent a year. If your turnover is great, you don't have many empty - nesters.

• Avoid projects where more than 25 per cent of the units are one - bedroom. One - bedroom units are the least saleable in the condominium market.

• Your project should have at least 50 units. It costs as much to convert a small project as a large one.

• Avoid converting projects that lie in the path of deterioration.

• If you want to buy a development to convert, it should be at least six years old.

• You should sell your units for 10 times the rental price. The purchase price should be no more than 65 per cent of the total cost of conversion, and you should realize a gross profit of 35 per cent.

Security Precautions Taken At Maybury

Safety security projects are under way at the new Maybury State Park near Northville to set the stage for development of public recreational facilities at the former sanatorium site on Seven Mile Road west of Northville.

This June, the Department of Natural Resources plans to complete fencing the entire 865-acre park to keep people out of the area until it is safe and developed for initial public use. DNR is having the six-foot-high chain-link fence put up to control access and protect adjoining landowners from trespass problems by recreationists after the park is opened to limited public use--hopefully by the fall of 1974.

DNR has also contracted for demolition this summer of sanatorium buildings which generally are in a state of disrepair. Some of those brick, multi-story units house laboratories with potentially dangerous debris from chemicals and equipment.

In general, the former sanatorium complex is interlaced with many other pitfalls to public safety--underground steam passageways and water supply tanks, ash deposit holes, boiler rooms, power house systems.

"By necessity," explains Parks Chief O.J. Scherschligt, "our first order of priorities has been to keep Maybury closed to the public until we could remove or seal off these hazards. After that, of course, we want to get on with the job of developing the area for public recreation."

Since the DNR acquired the Maybury site from the City of Detroit for $3 million in 1972, it has provided a custodial staff there to enforce its closed-to-the-public order. State Police and local enforcement agencies have assisted the DNR in this safety security measure.

A number of persons have been arrested at the site and charged with trespassing. A trespassing conviction can bring up to a $100 fine and 90 days in jail.

Prior to the DNR's acquisition, the sanatorium site was patrolled by private police crews under a similar off-limits rule.

DNR will push ahead with the development of parking areas, access roads, picnic site, and toilet facilities within the 865-acre area. If the present timetable holds, the gates at Maybury will swing open to the public for limited recreation in the fall of 1974.

At that time, recreationists there may also find trails throughout the tract for hiking and nature interpretation.

Also on the DNR's drawing boards for this early stage of development is a living farm complex where children will be able to "touch and see" cows, pigs, lambs, and other such animals in a down-on-the-farm setting.

Beyond a year from this fall, the DNR hopes to carry through on its $7 million master plan of development for Maybury State Park to provide such improvements as a children's day camp, playfields, winter sports areas, fishing ponds, and an indoor recreational activity center.

Generally, the DNR's sweep of planned facilities for the area will be programmed and operated for people of all ages plus Detroit area residents who are handicapped or economically disadvantaged. In the picture, too, as these developments take shape, are horseback riding trails and other facilities for high intensity use.

CURRIE R. WEED, 12570 Beacon Hill, Plymouth Township, has been named a service development manager in the public relations department of Ford Motor Co. Joining Ford in 1956 as a service training specialist, he has served as a Lincoln -Mercury district service instructor, service representative, and warranty and policy representative. Prior to being named to his new position, he was supervisor of Ford Customer Service Division's service merchandising section.

Wayne County Seeks Regional Parks Deal

An offer to discuss "mutual concerns" has brought a temporary suspension of a decision by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners to withhold millage payments to the Huron Clinton Metropolitan Authority (HCMA).

Commissioners decided last week to hold in abeyance their May 3 decision to withhold the funds and to take legal action against the regional park authority.

They acted after receiving a letter from Eugene J. Ellison, chairman of the HCMA board, stating that he and other board members "would be glad to meet ... to discuss your position, our situation and our mutual concerns."

The Wayne County board directed its public work committee to meet with the HCMA representatives. Public Works Chairman Thomas P. O'Rourke scheduled a meeting May 30 in the City-County Building.

Commissioners had directed the County Board of Auditors to withhold the balance of this year's millage payments to HCMA. Some $2.4 million is involved.

They also directed the county corporation counsel to file suit challenging the structure of the authority board as violating the "one-man, one-vote" principle enunciated by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The seven-member HCMA board consists of one member from each of the five counties covered by the park authorities, plus two members appointed by the governor.

The high court's one-man, one-vote decisions established the principle of representation based on population. Wayne is the most populous county of the five.

The May 3 actions regarding the funding and structure of the HCMA automatically will come before the commissioners at their next board meeting June 7. They indicated their decisions at that time will depend on the outcome of the May 30 meeting with the HCMA board.

Reps. Vote For Cap On Welfare

An Observer Roundup

Three local Democratic state representatives supported a Republican-backed amendment which would put a ceiling on expenditures by the Dept. of Social Services. The amendment failed by one vote but is expected to pass the House on a reconsideration vote next week.

The total vote was 55 to 45 with 11 representatives absent or not voting. Republicans provided major support for the bill. Fifty-six votes are needed for passage.

The Democrats were Reps. Joseph Forbes of Oak Park, William Keith of Garden City and Thomas Brown of Westland. Republicans supporting the bill were Reps. Robert Geake of Northville and Raymond Smit of Ann Arbor.

Voting against the ceiling were Reps. John Bennett (D-Redford Township) and John Markes (D-Westland). Rep. Raymond Baker (R-Farmington) didn't vote.

The ceiling was included in last year's welfare appropriation. It provides that the department must return to the Legislature if it needs more funds than were appropriated. Last year's ceiling was based on a caseload of 174,000 and this year's would be 195,000.

Geake said the ceiling worked "like a charm" last year by pressuring the department to stay within a specified caseload.

"I believe it is essential to have a ceiling on the welfare bill at the beginning of the fiscal year so the state can plan," Geake said.

"If the number of people needing welfare does exceed the appropriation, the Dept. of Social Service would have to come back to the Legislature for more funds rather than overspending their budget as they are in the habit of doing."

Why High Court Ruling Cheers Busing Foes

By Observer Staff

Suburban opponents of cross-district busing were encouraged by Monday's U.S. Supreme Court decision that in effect stopped busing in the tri-county Richmond, Va. area.

The high court upheld the conservative Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, which overturned District Judge Robert Merhige's integration order.

The appeals court ruled that "state action" wasn't to blame for confining black residents to Richmond rather than the bordering, mostly-white Henrico and Chesterfield counties.

Opponents of cross-district busing in the metropolitan Detroit area noted two signs in their favor:

• The Supreme Court split was 4-4, and its one-sentence ruling thus upholds the next lower court's decision. That upholds the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals.

• Justice Lewis Powell, a Nixon appointee and conservative, abstained because he had been a member of the Richmond Board of Education. In future cases, however, Powell is expected to vote and to oppose cross-district busing.

By affirming the appeals court, the Supreme Court failed to set a precedent that could be followed in the Detroit metropolitan case before Federal Judge Stephen Roth.

So it's a good bet the Detroit case, too, will go to the highest court in the land.

Currently, the Detroit case is pending before the entire U.S. Court of Appeals. That 12-member court is reviewing a decision by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati which, for the most part, upheld Roth's integration order.

A key issue in both the Richmond and Detroit cases is whether the state is at fault for segregated housing and school patterns. In fact, the chief defendant in the Detroit case is Michigan's Gov. William G. Milliken.

In the Richmond case, the Appeals Court on June 5, 1972 was emphatic that the state and the suburban counties were not to blame for segregation:

"Neither the record nor the opinion of the district court even suggests that there was ever joint interaction between any two of the units involved (or by higher state officers) for the purpose of keeping one unit relatively white by confining blacks to another," the decision states.

It points out that, although the number of white students declined in Richmond, the number of whites also declined in the neighboring counties.

"If we assume state action to keep blacks confined to Richmond, and none appears, it is evident that such action has failed to achieve its assumed invidious purpose.

"Richmond schools may be getting blacker, but so also are the schools of Henrico, and the trend may soon reach Chesterfield."

The appeals court said many "economic, political and social" reasons – rather than "invidious" state action - were responsible for Richmond's concentration of blacks. Then in a sentence that could be significant here, it added:

"Indeed, this record warrants no other conclusion than that the forces influencing demographic patterns in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, Atlanta and other metropolitan areas have operated the same way in the Richmond metropolitan area to produce the same result."

The court agreed that "there has been some inaction (e.g. non-participation in construction of low income housing) by the counties which may have restricted the access of blacks to residences in these counties.

"If we assume invidious purpose, and none is established, it is possible to draw an inference of cause and effect if one ignores the possibility that in a heavily white county much of such housing would likely be occupied by low income whites.

"School construction site selection would seem to have little relevance to city-county movement by blacks, since, until recently, blacks who moved to the county would still have had to go to segregated schools.

"Thus the choice of whether to move or not would not have been influenced by the location of schools in the counties or the city.

The judges agreed that "whatever the basic causes, it has not been school assignments, and school assignments cannot reverse the trend."

Poster Makers Win Praise

Winners have been named in the annual high school poster contest held last week at the Livonia Mall, under the sponsorship of the merchants association.

Area students were invited to submit posters on the theme of "a declaration of independence." Such ideas as Americans' dependence on each other, the environment and history were to be illustrated by implication in each posters. Judges were two Observer Newspapers Inc. staff members.

Best of show award went to John Kaloustian, Livonia Stevenson 10th grader. Kaloustian won a $50 prize.

The first, second and third place winners respectively for originality were Patricia Tappan, Livonia Ladywood senior; Ann Borowski, ninth grader from Ladywood; and Randy Steele, 10th grader from Thurston High in South Redford.

Awards for artistic achievement went to Jeff McClain, Stevenson 10th grader, first; Karen Gorski, ninth grader from Ladywood, second; and Mary Ballini, Farmington High, 11th grader, third.

Prizes for best use of the theme went to Mike Stiles, 11th grader from Stevenson first; Ryan Nixon, 10th grader from Thurston, second; and Jim Day, 11th grader from Stevenson, third.

Pitchers Dominate Les Anders Action

By TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

Prep pitchers took control of the Les Anders baseball quarterfinal tournament action with the victors winning by a total of six runs.

The 17-school field has been narrowed to four.

Highly-favored Redford Union came from behind to tip Bishop Borgess, 6-4; Southfield Lathrup squeezed past North Farmington, 1-0; Thurston pushed across a run in the last of the ninth to upend Churchill, 2-1; and Westland John Glenn tipped Livonia Stevenson in the ninth, 2-0.

The semifinal action is slated for Monday, May 28 at Ford Field.

Redford Union goes against Southfield Lathrup at 6 p.m. with Thurston against John Glenn at 8:30 p.m.

The two survivors will clash Wednesday, May 30, at Ford in the 7:30 p.m. finale.

RU Upends Borgess

Bishop Borgess and Coach Jim Brisky were after the Les Anders trophy but knew they had a good team in RU in the way to the semifinals.

Borgess jumped to a 4-0 lead in the second. Brisky was confident he had a winner in his ace hurler Reese Dobrick.

The Spartans started in the first when Dan Kelly singled, stole second and moved to third on Winfield's out. With two out, Kelly outsmarted RU hurler Tom Nippa and stole home.

Borgess made it 4-0 in the second. After Nippa had struck out the first two batters, Dominic Manzi unleashed a four-bagger.

RU woke up in the third to come within one. With one out, Nippa doubled, Mike Kalil walked and Gary Fulks was hit by a Dobrick pitch to fill the sacks. Mark Yourchock singled in one run and Glenn Richmond doubled and it was Borgess 4, RU 3.

Gary Percha replaced Dobrick on the Borgess mound and RU tallied in the fifth. After two outs, Ron Campbell singled, Lupe Bravo walked and Forma singled in Campbell.

Lathrup Nips North

Southfield Lathrup moved into the semifinals, squeezing across a run in the seventh to nip North Farmington, 1-0.

Lathrup hurler Ron Silverstein recorded his second win of the tourney, holding North to just one hit, walking three and striking out 10.

North's second batsman Mike Combes was the only thing between the Lathrup pitcher and a no-hitter. A double off the bat of Combes in the first inning was all North could muster.

North hurler Kim Parker had a two-hitter going into the seventh.

Jeff Watkins opened the stanza with a single and Lathrup second baseman Barry Brodsky singled to put runners on first and second.

Churchill Falls, 2-1

A two out single by John Roy with runners on first and third in the ninth spelled the difference in a 2-1 victory for Thurston over Livonia Churchill.

Thurston had tallied once in the fifth and Churchill managed to tie it up in the seventh to force it into extra innings.

Churchill Coach Roger Frayer started ace Ken Wood and the Eagle batsmen touched him for one in the fifth.

With one out, Gary D'Ascenzo singled and Tom Dowdy walked. D'Ascenzo went to third on a wild pitch and Dowdy stole second. A sacrifice fly by Roy made it 1-0 Thurston.

The Chargers did manage to load the bases in the fourth with one out. Ivey got Brian Kelly to strike out and Phil Skender to pop out to second and the rally was halted.

With two gone in the seventh and two strikes on Mike Gottshall, the Chargers came to life.

Gottshall singled, stole second and dashed in to tie in up on a single by Bobby Blaies.

Churchill then went down 1-2-3 in both the eighth and ninth innings.

Thurston was facing Charger reliever Dale Panzoff in the ninth. With one out, Mike Robinson singled, stole second and D'Ascenzo was safe on an error.

Dowdy tapped a roller to Skender at second, who tagged out D'Ascenzo. The relay to first was a second too late, putting runners on first and third with two out.

Roy laced a single between short and third and it was all over.

Rockets Win In 9th

It took John Glenn nine innings, but it managed to push across two runs in the top of the ninth to oust Livonia Stevenson, 2-0.

It was a pitcher's battle all the way with Glenn's Jeff Hodgkins giving up three hits in the nine innings, walking none and striking out 13.

Glenn's biggest scoring threat came in the first when it had two runners on and one out. Centers bore down and struck out the next two Rockets to stop that threat.

Stevenson also had two baserunners on in the first with Hodgkins striking out Don Finn to end that rally.

It came down to the top of the ninth.

Hodgkins went down swinging for out No. 1 but Centers lost his mark and walked Jeff Brittain. Craig Linton singled and Ken Sampson drew a walk to fill the sacks.

Farmington Takes 2nd In Inter-Lakes Race

The writing was on the wall for Farmington High.

It was down to the final game in the Inter-Lakes Conference baseball race. The Falcons had to win and hope Stevenson could knock off front-runner Walled Lake Central for a share of the league crown.

Farmington did its part in holding on in the final stanza to tip Pontiac Northern, 3-2. But Stevenson didn't follow through with the Falcon plans.

Central upended Stevenson, 4-2, and captured the Inter-Lakes with a 7-2 mark, one step ahead of Farmington at 6-3.

Rick Pauline was on the mound for Farmington against Northern. He came through with a three-hitter, walking one and striking out six in recording his second win against no defeats.

Farmington scored once in the first when Jeff Herman was safe on an error and scampered in on a hit by Mitch Thomas.

The Falcons made it 2-0 in the fifth. Jim Eathorne and Bob Holton drew base on balls with Eathorne scoring on a hit by Pauline.

The sixth saw Farmington add an insurance tally that wound up being the deciding run. Mitch Thomas drew a walk and Steve Koinis forced him at second. Larry Cavins followed with a single and Mark Love squeezed in Koinis.

Northern bounced back in the seventh. Jeff Humphrey led off with a walk and Stylas Kryiakides was safe on an error. With no outs, Gary Kirby tripled to score the two.

Pauline struck out the next Northern batsman. With one out, the tying run on third, Northern attempted a squeeze bunt after Mark Carve had been hit by a pitch but Kirby was cut down at the plate.

Pauline got the next batter on a pop out and the Falcons had survived the scare.

Farmington knocked out Farmington Harrison in a non-leaguer, 3-1, to push its overall record to 9-5.

Dennis Hagen went all the way on the mound for a two-hitter, walking three and striking out four in chalking up his second win in five decisions.

Farmington opened with one in the fourth. Pauline singled, moved to second on a ground out and scored on a hit by Thomas.

Paul Dobes started the Falcon fifth and was safe on an error. He was sacrificed to second by Rob Holton and dashed in to make it 2-0 on a two-bagger by Herman.

Ridge Golfers On '73 Target

The '73 edition of the Orchard Ridge golf season got under way in sunny Florida with the Oakland Community College golfers continuing their fine play that saw them finish the '72 season with a perfect 30-0 mark.

Out of 70 colleges and universities competing on the fairways of the Biltmore Country Club in Florida, the Raider golfers finished the highest of the northern junior colleges, and were only surpassed among 37 northern universities by Princeton and the University of Michigan.

The Raiders shot 1244, with rounds of 314, 319, 305 and 306, besting their previous three year record by 22 shots.

Bortolotti, Vershure, Blemly and Daiek each cut seven to 10 strokes off their previous scores in the '72 Miami Invitational.

They continue on their spring trip with three invitational 36 - hole tournaments, the conference and regional tourneys, 25 dual, trio and quadrangular match opponents and the U.S. Junior College Nationals in New Mexico June 5-9.

Orchard Ridge Golfers Romp

Rick Vershure and Mark Bortolotti carded one-over-par 72's at the Black River Country Club to lead unbeaten Orchard Ridge to victory in the Michigan Community College Central Conference championship golf tournament.

Ridge finished with a 299, followed by Genessee (312), Lansing (320), Macomb (326), St. Clair (348), Delta (391) and Alpena (391).

The victory -- scored on a dual basis and giving Orchard Ridge six wins -- gives the Raiders a 16-0 mark for the season and hikes its winning streak to 50, a string stretching to May, 1971.

Churchill Senior Scores 2nd Ace

Hofmann, who netted a hole-in-one at the age of 15 on the No. 3 hole at Burroughs Farms Golf Course, did it again.

He aced another hole on the Brighton course, this time No. 14 with a wedge on the 138 yarder.

Farmington's Mike McGuire Wins State

FARMINGTON'S MIKE McGUIRE
Clocks In At 9:12.0 For State Record

By TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

Farmington High junior Mike McGuire showed the state of Michigan that it doesn't take all sorts of muscles and pounds to win a championship.

The 5-9, 118 pounder, won the two-mile crown at East Lansing in record setting fashion.

McGuire clocked in at 9:12.0, bettering the mark set last year by Cooley's Nick Ellis at 9:14.8.

The victory for Mike had to be a double one. Besides winning the championship, McGuire beat his top foe Pat Davey of Brother Rice. Davey was favored in the two mile, having won in 9:08.1 in the Spartan Relays in March.

But the small, skinny McGuire, who also won All-State acclaim in cross country proved the best of the 30 man field in the state finals.

"We were pretty sure this was going to be a two-man race," said Farmington Coach Jerry Young, "Mike just wasn't sure of himself after Davey turned in that 9:08.1 time."

Davey is also a junior to add some excitement to what's in store for '74.

Farmington and Detroit Northern now hold six of the state's 15 state track records, each school boasting three.

To complement McGuire's 9:12.0 two mile time is Rex Cawley's :19.0 low hurdle time in '59 and Nat Durham's 15 feet in the pole vault in '72.

Detroit Northern's three state marks are held by Marshall Dill in the 100 and 220 yard dashes and the 880 relay.

Mike ran in eight dual meets this season, entering the two mile event only twice. McGuire took first in a meet with Walled Lake Central at 9:46.0 and first against Waterford Mott in 9:52.0.

In a triangular with Redford Union, and Brennan of Windsor, Mike captured first with a clocking of 9:22.7.

That 9:22.7 run in the triangular over the Easter break was his fastest time going into the state meet.

In six of Farmington's dual meets, Mike ran the mile and won five.

The first event of '73 saw Mike run a leg in the distance medley in the Huron Relays in 4:38.7. In the Spartan Relays, where Davey tore up the turf, McGuire ran only ¾ of a mile.

"I drank just lemon juice before the race and it just wouldn't stay down," said Mike.

Then came the Mansfield Relays where Davey placed second with 9:16.7 behind Rick Garner of Dayton, O. at 9:15.9. Mike was third at 9:27.0.

McGuire won the Farmington regional with a time of 9:32.3. Davey was in the Sterling Heights regional, winning with a time of 9:17.5.

"I was too excited in the regional," explained Mike. "I wanted to break a regional mark but got too nervous, I relaxed more before the state meet.

"I got fired up for the state in my own way," he added.

"I knew I had to stay with Davey all the way, he was the favorite and I knew I would have to go out after him," said the Farmington junior.

Mike had 12 hours of sleep before the state meet, got up and had two eggs and orange juice for breakfast, a doughnut and glass of grape juice before leaving home.

A total of 30 high school runners lined up for the race. Mike had the fourth fastest time of date and was positioned next to his rival, Davey.

"We both got boxed in on the first lap but after the first half mile, everyone was scattered," McGuire said. "At the ¾ mark, it was a race between Davey and myself.

"My plan was to stay one step behind Pat all the way, we were stride for stride. He knew I was behind him. He would pick up the pace and there I would stay.

"Davey came right back and with 200 yards remaining had the lead again.

"Turning into the stretch, I put my head down and gave it all I had and passed him I guess with about 20 yards left."

Westland John Glenn's Jim Lockwood was the first to congratulate Mike but the proudest person in the stands had to be his father.

"I just couldn't believe it when it was all over," added Mike. "Coach Young came running up to me and was yelling, 'we got 'em, we got 'em'."

"Coach Young told me all along that I could do it, it's really great when you have other people believing in you. You can never lose."

It's Franklin vs Thurston In NW Baseball Showdown

The survival of the fittest in the Northwest Suburban baseball race has narrowed to a two-man duel.

Livonia Franklin and Thurston have squeaked out of the Northwest tangle, each sporting 9-4 records in a share of first place.

The untangle will come this afternoon (Wednesday), with Thurston and Franklin meeting at 4 p.m.

Westland John Glenn slipped out of contention with an 8-6 mark. Garden City East hit a tailspin at 6-6, followed by Oak Park 3-9 and North Farmington 3-9.

Franklin's survival had its ups and downs. Ron Hellier's crew blew North Farmington off the diamond, 12-2, but just did get by Oak Park with two runs in the last of the seventh to win, 2-1.

It was the third time this season Franklin had dumped the fifth and sixth place clubs.

Dave Watkins was the Patriot hurler against North, allowing just six hits, striking out eight and walking one. It was Watkins' third win in six decisions.

Franklin tallied three times in the first. Jeff Waterstone singled, stole second, and advanced to third when Jim Baigrie was safe at first on a strikeout with North catcher Tom Hamilton picking up an error.

Watkins then drew a base on balls, Tim Livesay singled and it was 3-0.

The Patriots exploded for six runs in the second to jump ahead, 9-0.

Bob Fallow singled, Dave Hollandsworth walked, Tony Dattilio, Waterstone and Dan Longeway singled, Watkins tripled and Wayne Darragh was safe on an error.

The top of the third saw Franklin make it 10-0 when Dattilio was safe on an error and scampered around on a passed ball and another error.

North came back to score twice in the last of the third.

John Creighton walked, moved to second on a balk and dashed in on a hit by Mike Bancroft. Mike Combes was safe on an error and Watkins was again called for a balk. Coach Hellier protested and was escorted from the field.

Hellier was back against Oak Park and went with Rich Gaber.

Junior righthander Gaber came through with a three hitter, struck out six and walked three for his sixth win against three setbacks.

Gary Baker went the distance for Oak Park, allowing seven hits, striking out five and walking only two.

Ron Montgomery drew a walk off Gaber. With one out, Elliot Goldstick tripled in Montgomery. Goldstick was cut down in a rundown with third baseman Darragh making the tag.

It remained 1-0 until the last of the seventh.

Dattilio singled to score Adams and tie things up, stole second and advanced to third on an overthrow.

Oak Park brought in all infielders. Hellier again went to his bench in sophomore Joe Pollard who promptly delivered a single and Franklin found itself in a tie for first.

Brighton Hosts State Roller Skating Meet

Brighton's Rollerama Roller-Skating Rink will be the site of a statewide meet on May 26-27 with all roller skaters invited to participate.

Competition is open to all amateurs, age three and up.

Skating begins Saturday, May 26 at 6 a.m. and comes to a close on Sunday at 5 p.m. To compete you must be a member of the U.S. Amateur Roller Skating Assn.

Thurston Slam Crushes GC East

Thurston High remained in the thick of the Northwest Suburban baseball race with a come from behind victory over Garden City East, 8-6. It featured a grand slam homer by John Stein in the top of the seventh.

The Eagles led after the first, 2-0. Then trailed, 4-2, 5-2, 5-3, and 6-3 going into the final stanza.

It was the Eagles' second triumph over East against one setback and their ninth in the Northwest against four defeats, identical to Livonia Franklin.

The Northwest title will be on the line this afternoon, (Wednesday) with Thurston going to Franklin in the league finale.

Mark Falvo got the call against East in a 'must game.' The Eagles lost the title last season in the finale with Birmingham Groves.

Falvo gave up 10 hits, walked four and struck out seven to record his seventh win in nine decisions.

East Coach John Kulazenka went with Marty Hackman the full seven innings. He gave up nine hits, six of the eight runs earned, walked four and struck out seven.

Thurston jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first. Falvo was safe on an error by shortstop Steve Orr and John Roy on an error by first baseman Keith Anleitner.

With one out, Ray Ivey singled in Falvo and Chappel followed with a hit to score Roy.

East bounced back in the last of the inning.

George Karr drew a base on balls and Orr sacrificed him to second. Mike Whaley unleashed a two-run homer to tie it up. Hackman and Reed singled with a two-bagger by Jim Wisniewski pushing it to 4-2 in favor of East.

East made it 5-2 in the second on consecutive hits by Orr, Anleitner and Whaley.

Thurston sliced it to 5-3 in the third on a walk to Chappell and double by Stein. East added another run in its half of the inning when Wisniewski walked, stole second and scampered in on a hit by Paul Caldaron.

With one out in the seventh and trailing 6-3, with hopes of a Northwest title looking dim, the Eagles went to work.

Falvo, Roy and Ivey singled to lead the sacks. Chappell delivered a hit to score Falvo and make it 6-4.

Stein then cleared the bases with a homerun and Thurston was on top 8-6.

Falvo struck out the side in the last of the inning.

The Eagles go against Edsel Ford on Saturday, May 26, in the first round of the state baseball tourney at Thurston at 1 p.m.

MSU FENCER - Jim Bierwirth, graduate of Farmington Harrison High School, has seen regular action with the epee Michigan State University fencing squad which carried an 11-5 record.

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

A gamble three years ago plus some smart promotions have resulted in the most phenomenal business and attendance growth of any harness racing track in North America.

That's the story of Wolverine Raceway which uses the facilities of the Detroit Race Course and currently is breaking records for wagering and crowds just as fast as they are written.

It was three years ago that Wolverine President Frederick Van Lennep told Racing Secretary and then General Manager Richard Wilson that he planned to change from a half-mile racing strip to a big mile track . . . he asked what they thought of the change.

Both thought it would be a great move although neither had any idea how it would be accepted by the betting public. It only took the first season for both to realize that this was a move that could take harness racing to heights it had never reached before

Business started to boom in 1971, reached new heights in 1972 and now in 1973, with 26 nights remaining of the season, has soared to levels never thought possible for a harness racing operation in Michigan.

Wolverine attained its highest levels Saturday when an all-time high audience of 14,111 gave it a third straight million dollar night . . . this time with a record total wagering of $1,114,564.

But, and better take a good grip on the armchair, Saturday's crowd was 521 more than attended the day racing program in the afternoon at Hazel Park. Sounds unbelievable, but it is true, the pacers and trotters finally beat the runners on a Saturday. Not even the most ardent harness racing follower believed it would ever happen.

Records fell like leaves in the late fall as Wolverine hiked its nightly average handle to an all-time high of $641,345, an increase of 8.5 per cent over the $590,985 for 56 nights a year ago.

Attendance is up 3.4 per cent over 1972 with an average of 7,254. Also kind of out of this world since the St. Patrick's Day crowd, a Saturday when the blizzard hit, saw only 1,700 fans in the park and wagering at an all-time low of less than $108,000. It's rather hard to believe Wolverine overcame that and is ahead of last year's figures.

Here's what happened Saturday: the $1,114,564, highest handle ever for a harness racing track in the state; 14,111, largest Saturday crowd in 24 years; $92,744 nightly double pool, another high; $104,106 trifecta pool, best ever; $78,244 most on a superfecta; $121,573, most on a single race, coming in the seventh event; $78,244 most to win, in the seventh race; $4,409,659, most for six nights in a week; and $1,953,635, most for a weekend.

Just to add a bit more icing on the sweetest week of the year, the nightly average for the week was $734,943, highest in 24 years.

The next 26 nights could be the best of the entire season since Wolverine is moving into the high points of the year . . . the $40,000 Motor City pace this Friday; the eight stake Grand Circuit programs in the final two weeks; Good Ol' Times night on June 15, a Friday night that also headlines the $40,000 Matron three-year-old pace and the $40,000 Matron four-year-old pace.

Then there will be three nights, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, of the last full week when admission will be free. Those are nights when the track will award one automobile each evening to the winners of a season long contest.

Referring back to Saturday's program, the value of the big mile track was clearly demonstrated when the slowest race of the evening went in 2:03.1 . . . the fastest was 2:00.1 in the $8,000 preferred. That's why Wolverine's programs are so popular, fans know they're going to see fast miles and tight finishes.

Pacers familiar to local fans finished among the top five in the $100,000 Messenger for three-year-old pacers Saturday at Roosevelt Raceway in New York.

The winner was Valiant Bret, owned by Percy Gray of the New England area who was a former director of Wolverine, in 2:00.3.

A close second was Bret Over Again, owned by the late Ray Forsyth, of Birmingham, and his son Earl. Third was J. R. Skipper, from the J. Russell Miller stable of Dutton, Ontario, who made his 1973 debut at Wolverine earlier.

Fourth place went to Gay Skipper, owned by Jack Ackerman of Lexington, Ky., who was one of the top drivers in the area for years before shifting the scene of his activities to the Chicago area.

Bobby Williams, son of the late Jack Williams Sr., of Comstock Park, checked into Wolverine during the past week with a large public stable from Los Alamitos Raceway near Los Angeles, Calif.

Bobby not only has a string of fast pacers and trotters but he also came here with the honor of being the winningest driver at LA. He had won 46 races to lead second place Jack Bailey by 10.

Oldtimers recall that it was at Wolverine during a race that Jack Williams Sr. suffered the stroke that ended his driving career. He died several years later.

Trip Given

More than 200 friends of Michigan's retiring hockey coach, Al Renfrew, attended his testimonial dinner and presented him and his wife, Marge, with a two-week trip to Hawaii. Renfrew coached 'M' hockey for the last 16 seasons.

Jaguars No-Hit Plymouth, 9-0

Plymouth High fell back to .500 in the Suburban Eight Conference with a loss to Allen Park, 9-0, behind the no-hit pitching performance of Jeff Hrdlicka.

It was Plymouth's fifth defeat in 10 league games and 13th overall in 19 outings.

"Next to a whipping against Redford Union," said Rock Coach Wayne Sparkman, "This has to be the worst beating I have suffered in four years."

Steve Robb and Tom Willette, the Rock pitching twosome of '73, worked on the Plymouth mound with starter Robb taking the loss. It was his fourth in the league against five wins.

The closest Plymouth came to breaking the no-hit gem was in the fourth when Robb laced a shot at Allen Park third baseman Dan Burke who came up with the ball and nipped the Rock hurler at first.

Meanwhile, Allen Park scored twice in the second and five times in the fifth with Jim Perry booming out a four-bagger.

Motorcycle Races At DRC, June 3

The 12th annual motorcycle races, sponsored by the Livonia Metropolitan Club and the Detroit area Associated Motorcycle Clubs, will be held Sunday, June 3, at the Detroit Race Course.

Top event will be a regional championship race sanctioned by the American Motorcycle Association.

Three national races have been held in Livonia in the past two years at the race course located at Schoolcraft and Middle Belt. The remaining nine races, held at the same location, were also sanctioned by the AMA but were of the novice class.

Net proceeds from the race are used by both clubs in charity work around Livonia and the Detroit area.

Last race, held in Livonia was in 1971, brought out the largest crowd of the series with 13,070 attending. Money raised for charity that year amounted to $12,000.

Glen Toy, president of the Livonia Metropolitan Club, said tickets, at $4 each, are on sale at all Livonia fire stations and at Livonia police headquarters on Farmington Rd. Tickets at the gate the day of the race will sell for $5.

Toy said some of the top dirt track riders in the country are expected to compete.

Synthetic Shoes, High Costs Driving Out The Cobblers

By W. W. EDGAR

Much like the old village blacksmith who now is only a memory, the neighborhood shoe repairman is fast moving off the American scene.

The introduction of synthetic materials as a replacement for leather, the high cost of equipment and the minimum wage scales in our country have combined to help sound the death knell of these colorful neighborhood characters.

According to the few who still defy the tide of progress, there has been a drop in the number of "cobblers" from 3,000 in Wayne County two decades ago to a mere 1,500.

"Ten years from now there won't be any," said Pete Mucci, who has had a one-man shop in Plymouth for the past 13 years.

With a shrug of the shoulders, he sighed: "I still make a living, but my son wants no part of the business. So I'll work a bit longer, then quit."

Pete's story was repeated throughout Observerland by such veterans as George Saferian in Redford and Arpad Szalma in the Livonia Mall, who are able to remain in the business only because they invested in costly equipment to keep up the pace.

They agreed that the "shoemaker" of the future will be found only in the large shopping centers. They base their opinion on the success of Kamel Azzouz and his two sons, Said and Sam, who are doing a thriving business in Tel-Twelve Mall.

This shift has come about because the latest equipment permits service (even half-soles and heels) while you wait – or you can shop while the work is being done.

The lone champion of the old neighborhood shop is Andrew Konjarevich, who has been doing business at the corner of Farmington Road and Grand River for more than 13 years.

"Sure, we're getting fewer," he said, "but shoe repairing provides a great opportunity for a young fellow if he wants to work. So few of the young fellows today want to do that – so we're getting like the small grocery store. We can fold up and quit or spruce up our business and succeed."

Andrew grew up in the shoe repair atmosphere. His father conducted a shop in Detroit and Andrew started at the trade when he was only eight years old.

"There's a great chance if you're ambitious and know how to merchandise. You must have a clean shop with a nice office-like front and then stock everything connected with the shoe repair business – shoestrings, polish, etc., and do business with a smile."

He figures the young fellows today aren't ambitious enough to invest the sums needed for equipment and the get-up-and-go necessary to buck the tide.

"Most shoemakers today come from families in mid-Europe where they learned to do things with their hands. Their sons still are craftsmen, but the present generation wants none of that – they want high paying jobs with little work," he said.

"Most of the shoe repairmen who are moaning today run one-man shops. You can't do that any more. This business is like anything else. You must have a heavy turnover, and one man can't do enough. He's got to have help.

"I couldn't afford to hire help when I started," he explained, "but I wanted the turnover in business and gambled on volume. I now have three fulltime men and a couple on part time."

Then with a broad smile, he said, "And I have six kids in the family and we take a vacation every year."

Said, the older of the two boys helping their dad, offered the family's thinking when he said:

"Our younger brother is planning to be a doctor because now he has somebody to spend money on him."

Like many of the present day repairmen, George Saferian in Redford grew up in the business. Born in the Upper Peninsula, he worked in the shoe repair shop as a youth.

Coming to Detroit 27 years ago he took to the shoemaker's last and had a shop at Six Mile and Hamilton before moving to Redford.

"There is no denying we are fighting a losing battle," he said. "With the introduction of many plastics that can't be repaired, we are facing doom. And even now, a fellow has to invest a lot of money in equipment just to stay alive."

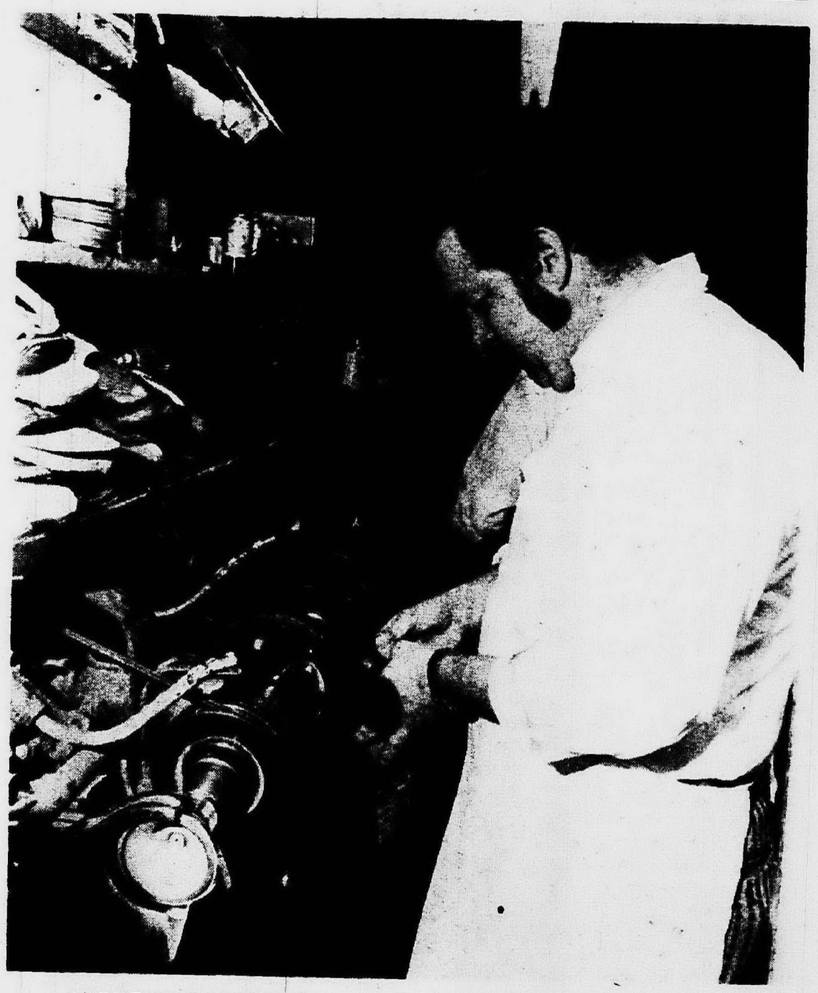

As he demonstrated a new machine that fastens rubber heels in seconds, George further explained that "because of the heavy expense in equipment and the fact that shoe repairing is a lonely life, no young fellows want to come into it."

And in his little hideaway shop in Plymouth little Pete Mucci offered these facts:

"A shop like this used to be fine. But today you should be bigger, and even my own son won't join me. More than that, a fellow can't afford to pay the minimum wage to his help and give him all the fringe benefits, like Blue Cross and insurance, social security and unemployment insurance.

"No," he concluded, "the one-man shoe repair shop is going fast. Ten years from now there won't be any."

So, with today's economy and the rapid pace of competition the old neighborhood shoe repairman is doomed to follow the village blacksmith into the wings and become only a memory.

Seminar Theme Is Seniors' Fitness

"Fitness Is Ageless" will be the theme of a day-long seminar June 2 on physical activity for older adults at Schoolcraft College.

Sponsored jointly by Schoolcraft's physical education department and senior adult affairs office, the seminar has been designed for supervisors and administrators who are responsible for programs for senior citizens.

These include people who direct community recreation, YMCA and YWCA programs, adult education, nursing home programs, college physical education, recreation and community services programs and retirement housing programs.

The program opens at 8:30 a.m. in Schoolcraft's Physical Education Building. Following a continental breakfast, President C. Nelson Grote will welcome participants and Community Services Director Ron Griffith will introduce the program. A President's Council on Physical Fitness film, "Run Dick, Run Jane" will be shown just before the keynote address by Dr. Donald Albert.

Dr. Albert will discuss "What Is Old?" He is a Wayne State University cardiologist and associate professor. A second physician on the morning's program is Dr. Fred Gurol of Providence Hospital. He will discuss "Exercise: What Does It Mean To You?"

Three major presentations have been scheduled following lunch.

George Andrews, a registered physical therapist with Don Graham Associates, will present "Geri-Fitness," program ongoing at the Middlebelt Nursing Center in Livonia. Residents from the center will participate in a live demonstration.

Gertrude Cross, senior center coordinator at Pierce Center in Flint, will present slides of their community program for senior citizens. Schoolcraft's physical education director, Dr. Marvin Gans, will discuss the development of a fitness assessment program.

"Program Quickies," a time for group sharing of what's new and happening in activities for senior adults will precede the final event, an open workshop session during which participants will be permitted to use the exercise equipment on display by several exhibitors.

The seminar fee is $5 which includes breakfast and lunch. Reservations should be mailed or telephoned in to Mrs. Betty Andrews at Schoolcraft College, Livonia, 48151.

2 Coeds Win Music Grants

Kathy Ceton, a flutist who attends Franklin High School, and Julia Broxholm, a soprano from Ladywood High School are the first recipients of an award established by Schoolcraft for freshman music students within the college district in instrumental and vocal music.

Miss Ceton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ceton of 9250 Merriman. She is a member of the Franklin High band and orchestra, has studied the flute with Nancy Waring, and has played for seven years.

Miss Broxholm's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Broxholm of 36559 Marler. She has been a member of Ladywood's choir for four years and has sung the lead in "Brigadoon" and "Oklahoma," musicals presented at the school the past two years. She studies voice with Edward Kingins and is also an outstanding violinist.

Both girls will attend Schoolcraft's Summer Music School in July and will begin their full time studies at the college in August.

I-75 Segment Under Repair

Michigan motorists are being advised by Automobile Club of Michigan to avoid I-75 around Flint weekdays only because of a 21-mile construction project which closes at least one freeway lane during working hours. The construction project is not in effect during weekday rush hours and weekends (see map legend for exact times).

To help travelers avoid possible traffic congestion through the Flint area construction zone during weekday working hours, Auto Club has developed these three alternate weekday routes:

(1) Take I-96 to I-496 in Lansing, connecting with US-27 north and rejoining the freeway at Clare. This adds 11 miles and approximately 20 minutes to the normal I-75 route between Detroit and Clare.

(2) Exit I-75 at M-15 north of Pontiac and rejoin the freeway by using either westbound M-46 to Saginaw or M-25 to Bay City. This adds 2½ miles and about 20 minutes over I-75 between Detroit and Saginaw.

(3) Exit I-75 at Grand Blanc and take M-54 into Flint. This is two miles shorter but adds about 10 minutes over the normal I-75 route from Detroit to Flint.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

We've had many letters asking us what causes leaves of house plants to turn brown around the edges and drop. Let's answer this by mentioning a word called humidity – the amount of moisture in the air.

Most house plants do their best when the humidity is about 50 per cent. The proper humidity in the home is from 35 to 40 per cent, although the air indoors often goes as low as 12, which is about eight to 11 per cent lower than the average humidity in the Sahara Desert.

Humidity in a greenhouse is around 60 per cent -- which is why plants do so well in the greenhouse. This explains why plants start to turn brown around the edges soon after being moved from a moist greenhouse to a home.

You can increase the humidity by placing plants on a tray of gravel kept constantly moist. Plants grouped together fare better than those left standing alone in a dry room.

A kitchen or bathroom usually has more humid air than other rooms in the house. Did you know that every time you mop the kitchen floor (one that's 8 by 10 feet) you release about 2½ pounds of water (or 2½ pints) vapor into the air.

House plants constantly give off moisture, good for themselves and for your nose too.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "We have a shady spot where not many flowers can grow. Is there a good plant we can use?"

Answer: Try impatiens. They can tolerate a poor soil and shade. In fact, too rich a soil will cause plants to grow tall and discourage blooming. There's a dwarf "Elfin" impatiens, growing about 10 inches tall, which are free flowering throughout the entire season.

Start seed in daylight (it is sensitive to darkness) and grow in temperature of 72 degrees or higher, never lower. After seed is up, transplant and grow at 60 to 65 degrees.

Custom Floor Designed With Felt Pens

When you think about resilient floor tile you automatically think "square." But why limit your design plans to this one shape?

Cut a tile diagonally and you have two triangles; a row of tile makes a stripe; four will make a diamond, six a rectangle.

With this in mind, get out some graph paper and felt-tipped pens and create your own "custom design" floor. Having a floor quite unlike any other does something to a woman's self-esteem and the satisfaction is even greater when the creation is your very own.

To get you started, Better Floors Council designers suggest the following for a dining room: The highlight will be a border in a strong color, a color chosen from some accessory such as a favorite piece of china.

This border should be a few rows in from the wall for full effectiveness but not so far in that it is hidden by the table. The council suggests vinyl asbestos tile (it is greaseproof) in a neutral or pastel for the field tile.

Good Mulching Job Ends Weed Worries

If you do a good job of mulching, you can enjoy your vacation without worrying about weeds taking over your vegetable garden, advises a Michigan State University horticulturist.

"Mulch provides other benefits as well," says J. Lee Taylor. It conserves soil moisture, prevents soil puddling, keeps fruit clean, helps maintain uniform soil temperatures, and organic mulches gradually release plant nutrients as they decompose.

Black plastic is used mainly with plants grown in hills or spaced apart such as melons, squash, pumpkins, cucumbers, tomatoes and strawberries.

It should not be used with cool season crops such as broccoli, cauliflower, cabbage, or peas unless it is covered with sawdust or other material to reflect light, points out Taylor.

If your garden soil needs improving, organic materials might be better than plastic for mulching. But try to avoid organic materials that contain a lot of weed seeds, warns the horticulturist.

Apply hay and stray mulches three to four inches deep for best results, recommends Taylor. Two inches of ground corncobs, sawdust or shavings provide adequate mulching, too.

Mulching materials such as straw, chopped corncobs and sawdust are often low in nitrogen and may cause nitrogen deficiencies in the soil.

THIS OUTDOOR DECK can be used minutes after a rain and thus extends your outdoor season. Two talented do - it - yourselfers could build it on a weekend.

Carefree® Geraniums
Something really different...

Home gardeners have discovered that there is something really different for their garden, F1 Hybrid Carefree Geraniums. These geraniums aren't like any other you've grown. They bloom midseason and last right up through late hard frost. Carefrees come from F1 Hybrid seed, so they are more disease free. Anybody who has grown regular geraniums late in the season knows how disease can wither regular geraniums.

Carefrees are the most floriferous geraniums ever. Planted in full sun (where they should be) they will grow eight or more blooms at one time. And since Carefrees are base-branching, they require no pinching to get more branches. Really Carefree!
For the most in a really lovely garden this summer, stop in for Carefrees. They're really different!

Petunias!

Our special F1 Hybrid petunias will give you a mass of color all summer long. From the Magics (for beds, borders and backgrounds) to Cascades (for hanging baskets, boxes and tubs) to the novelties (like red El Toro, yellow Sunburst, and purple Sugar Daddy), whatever color you need, we have. Right now we've got thousands of plants. Stop in!

Plant Your Garden Anywhere

Being an apartment dweller or not having any yard space shouldn't keep you from growing flowers, vegetables and even some fruit. You can be a container gardener.

According to Michigan State University horticulturist J. Lee Taylor, container gardening includes portables or movable planters, window boxes, containers on patios and balconies or even rooftops and indoors.

The container can be anything that will hold soil and suits the size of the plant that you'll grow in it. For example, make use of clay pots from your holiday house plants.

The growing medium is the most important item in container gardening. And it isn't all soil. While field soil is fine for plants growing in the ground, it isn't suitable for containers, because the depth and drainage are changed.

Taylor recommends using one-third field soil, one-third aggregate -- sand, perlite or vermiculite -- and one-third organic matter -- peat moss or homemade compost. This creates a very porous and well - drained medium. Excess water will run off easily.

With that in mind, Taylor also recommends a container that allows drainage -- one with a hole in the bottom. The old - fashioned clay flowerpot is a good example.

If a container doesn't have a drainage hole, you can still use it by allowing for drainage in other ways. Taylor suggests gravel or charcoal in the bottom of the container to hold the excess water.

Container gardens do need to be watered, he stresses. Soil in containers dries out quicker than regular garden soil, and has no deep moisture reserve. That means you must water thoroughly -- until you get some runoff.

Your watering schedule will depend on the size of the plant and its growth rate and the container. Sun, wind and rainfall will also affect your watering of outdoor containers.

Fertilizing is also important for container gardens. Taylor recommends liquid fertilizer that you can apply as you water the plants. The amount of fertilizer depends on the type of plant and its growth rate.

Where you locate the plant depends on your own taste, and certainly on the location of your home. Some plants have limitations according to their need for sun or shade. One of the main advantages of container gardening is plant rotation.

You can bring potted plants indoors for a special effect, or move them to different locations in your yard. You can move indoor plants from room to room, and to some extent from sunny parts of the room to darker corners temporarily.

Since vegetables aren't necessarily for show, the container may be anything from an old wheelbarrow to a plain plastic bucket or garbage can.

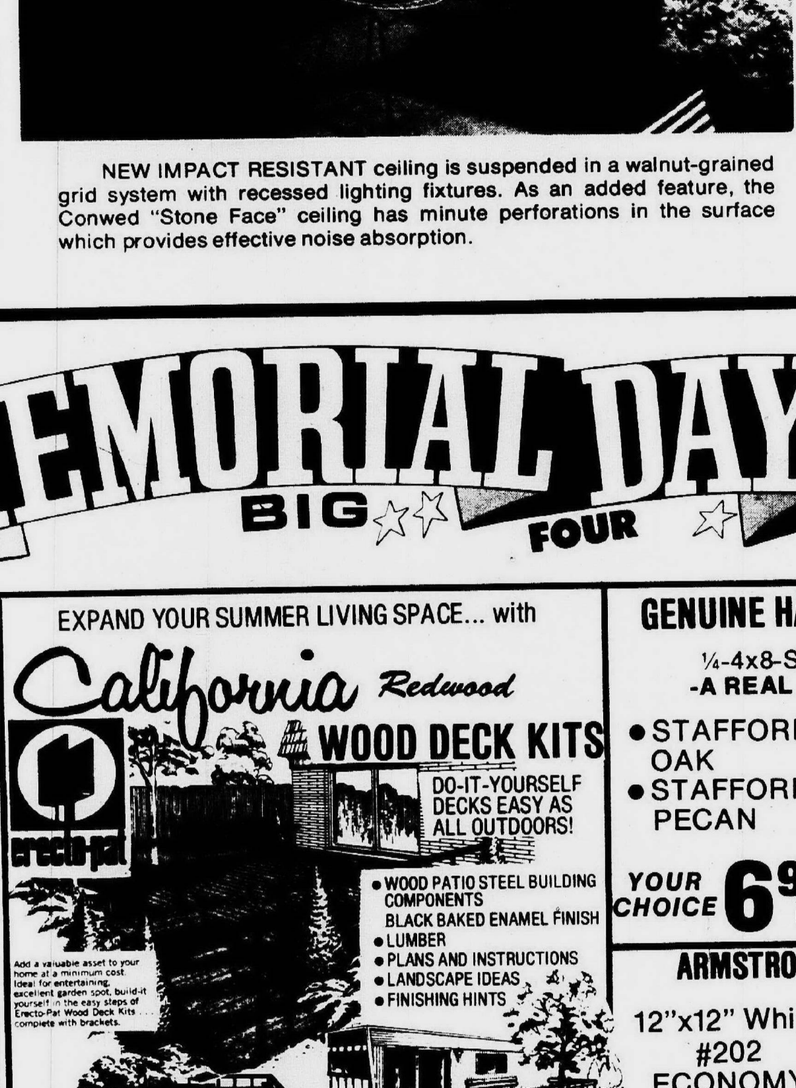

Vegetables grown in containers by MSU horticulture students include string beans, beets, zucchini, swiss chard, cucumbers (trained to grow up a pole, onions, carrots, peppers, tomatoes and herbs and spices.

Added Storage In Knee-Wall

Short studs of 2x3 or 2x4-inch western pine or fir are nailed to floor plate and rafters to form the back of the built-in, and wallboard is applied.

Shelves of one or two boards, depending on depth, are installed and sliding or folding wood doors are attached.

NEW IMPACT RESISTANT ceiling is suspended in a walnut-grained grid system with recessed lighting fixtures. As an added feature, the Conwed "Stone Face" ceiling has minute perforations in the surface which provides effective noise absorption.

How To Avoid 'Gardener's Back'

Gardening and yard work can be rough on the ol' back, but Michigan State University garden experts know a few tricks to help avoid this problem.

NO WAXING is required for this sheet flooring material. Solarian, from the Armstrong Cork Co., features a permanent, abrasion-resistant finish. Rubber heelmarks can be removed instantly with a slightly dampened cloth or paper towel.

Use wheels whenever you can. Wheelbarrows, wagons, carts and dollies can handle heavy or bulky loads a lot better than you can. And if a cart or wheelbarrow starts to fall over, let it! Wrestling with it can twist your back badly.

Lifting can be bad news for backs. If you need to pick up a bag of peat moss, a container plant or some other heavy object, keep your back straight. Don't stoop over.

Long reaches from ladders are another way of asking for trouble. Don't reach – move the ladder.

Need to move heavy rocks for a rock garden or wall? Let a pulley suspended from a tripod do the work for you.

Use boards as inclined planes for unloading heavy garden equipment and supplies from pickups or station wagons.

A shovel can provide a smooth surface for sliding objects across a grassy or bumpy surface. A series of wooden dowels or a board can also help make the going easier.

Store your garden tools and supplies where they're easy to reach. Eliminate all the bending and stooping you can.

Labor-saving devices can also help save your back -- and your time. Some of the tools to consider are: electric hand saws, chain saws, rototillers, motorized cement mixers and garden tractors and their attachments. Some of these items can be rented.

Take care of your back, and you'll feel fit enough to take care of your lawn and garden.

Index-Cut Tile Is Revolutionary

This design coup has opened up new opportunities for using resilient tile in home furnishings. It has made vinyl asbestos tile a haute couture product.

In layman's terms indexed tile is tile with "disappearing seams." The Better Floors Council explains that the pattern on each piece of tile connects with the adjoining piece. When installed, you have a wall-to-wall or one-piece floor covering.

The eye is fooled and the viewer is not aware of the many individual tiles -- you see one big, beautiful floor covering.

The manufacturer members of the Better Floors Council (Amtico, Azrock, Flintkote, GAF and Kentile) are producing index tile in many designs--from Mediterranean to Early American to contemporary--and in just about any color or combination of colors you can name.

Sewing Center Easy To Add

Because sewing centers are compact, one can be added wherever it's handiest for the user, in a family room, utility area or bedroom.

A wide closet can be converted, or a corner of the room or end of a hallway can be framed in to hold sewing table and storage.

Dark Opal Basil Ornamental Herb

In 1949 a plant-finding expedition to Turkey -- sponsored by the United States Department of Agriculture -- returned with specimens of an unusual new variety of basil.

The University of Connecticut observed an unusual purple foliage characteristic in some of the plants, and after several generations of selection they developed a true breeding line called "Dark Opal."

Although the variety showed it was edible as an herb – just like normal basil, the scientists decided it had value as an ornamental plant in the flower garden, and in 1960 entered it in All-America Selections.

It promptly carried off a bronze medal, and has since proved invaluable for garden decoration, especially as a border or background to low growing plants such as dwarf marigolds.

Compost Pile Is Key To Organic Gardening

Compost is the key to organic gardening, but it can help any gardener get better results, says J. Lee Taylor, Michigan State University horticulturist.

Compost includes fermented or decayed materials such as grass clippings, leaves, sod, straw, vegetable refuse, manure, corn stalks, asparagus stems and weeds, notes Taylor.

It is used as a source of organic matter for soils (especially sandy soils), for making potting soils and generally improving the soil structure. Compost also makes an excellent mulch for flower beds, trees and shrubs.

"The compost pile site should be easy to get to but not conspicuous," says Taylor. "A side or corner of the back yard often meets these requirements.

"You can build a partial fence or structure to hold and conceal the pile. Walls of concrete blocks (not cemented together) on two or three sides, about four feet high, work fine. So do sections of fence. If the fence rails are far apart, you may have to line the inside with chicken wire or other fine mesh fencing."

To prepare compost:

1. Spread materials in a layer six to eight inches thick.
2. Over this material sprinkle a small amount of complete commercial fertilizer such as 5-20-20, 6-12-12, 10-10-10, or mix in some animal manure.
3. Wet the layer, but not enough to wash away the fertilizer.
4. Add additional layers at any time.
5. Adding a small amount of fertile soil to each layer hastens bacterial action and decomposition.
6. Keep the pile moist.

You can speed decomposition by stirring the pile every two weeks, says Taylor. The time of decomposing varies from six weeks to six months or more.

Easily decomposable materials kept moderately moist will decompose in about six weeks during warm weather, he explains. Compost piles made in the fall may not be decomposed until late spring.

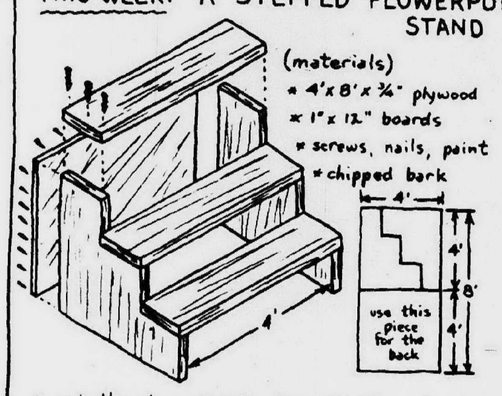

Adding one to three pounds of ground dolomitic limestone to each 100 pounds of compost material counteracts excessive acidity, resulting in conditions more favorable for decomposition.

"Don't use large amounts of garbage in composts because it may attract mice and rats," warns Taylor. "And do not use materials infected with diseases or insects."

Mignonette Was Emperor's Choice

Mignonette, a sweet-scented annual flower, has a romantic history few other flowers can match.

The famous French emperor, Napoleon, saw the plant growing along the banks of the Nile during his attempted conquest of Egypt.

He was fascinated by its delicious fragrance, and collected some seeds to send to his empress, Josephine. She was an avid gardener and grew the new plant under her bedroom window in a window box.

She loved its unusually strong fragrance so much that she made it fashionable throughout France to grow the new plant, and soon it was made popular throughout the world.

Mignonette is not a display flower, but its distinctive fragrance is good enough reason to grow it. Plants grow 12 to 18 inches high, and although it prefers full sun, it will tolerate a little shade.

Sow seeds directly into the garden after danger of frost, and plant in patches among non-fragrant annuals, in a windowbox, or near a doorway.

Bring the fragrance into the house by cutting bunches and arranging in a bowl. They last about a week and mix well with more colorful annuals such as marigolds and zinnias.

Electro-Ion's Top Product Comes From Old Process

By RICHARD McCULLEN

An old process for "painting" with powder which has been in use in Europe for at least a decade has won a Michigan Week regional "product of the year" award for a Farmington firm.

Electro-Ion, Inc., Farmington Freeway Industrial Park, is now in line with other regional winners in the non-consumer category for the statewide award to be announced this week.

The award-winning product is a system which replaces conventional liquid spray painting methods with a sprayed-and baked-on powder. It is cheaper and more durable than liquid paint, and is virtually pollution free in application.

The system sprays tiny particles of whatever coating is desired through a nozzle which gives each particle an electrostatic charge, causing it to stick to the surface where it is then fused by baking at temperatures of around 400 degrees farenheit.

Two related features of the powder method make it especially attractive to manufacturers in an environmentally-conscious age, according to company President Fred Jensen.

First, because there are no solvents to evaporate in the baking process as with liquid coatings, powder-sprayed products may be finished with none of the hydrocarbon pollution which provides headaches for manufacturers seeking to meet federal anti-pollution standards.

And because there is no need for exhaust systems which blow away pollutants and eliminate expensively-produced heat in the process, the powder method uses up to 40 per cent less natural gas in operation.

It was the energy savings which prompted Jensen, Inc., parent company of Electro-Ion, to invest in the powder method, according to its president. Jensen's main product prior to 1971 was industrial furnace equipment, some of which it sold in Europe.

It was there that Jensen encountered Electro-Ion, a Danish company. When Consumers Power announced in 1970 that its gas supplies to manufacturers would be strictly limited, Jensen began plans to buy Electro-Ion.

Jensen was among the first companies to occupy the industrial park at 10 Mile and Grand River about six years ago. It currently employs some 35 plant, sales and administrative personnel, a number which is expected to grow as business expands.

In its first year, Electro-Ion produced less than $100,000 in sales, Jensen reports. In 1972, that income doubled, and this year's revenues are expected to approach $500,000.

Jensen says he is bracing for real growth now that industry is beginning to discover pollution-saving products like Electro-Ion which have existed for some time.

"It's a lot like the Wankel engine," he remarked. "It was 'invented' years ago but was pushed aside in a corner. Now we're beginning to see the possibilities."

Electro-Ion is the only company in the state which sells powder coating equipment, and only one of about six in the nation. Only one other U.S. company is able to offer an entire system including ovens.

The electrostatic powder process was first used for coating furniture. Jensen foresees among its future customers nearly every industry which produces a finished product, from the auto industry, which is already testing the process for car bodies, to manufacturers of shopping baskets who are replacing metal with vinyl coating which is easier to clean and repels bacteria.

The small company's market area is world-wide, and to facilitate trips to its widespread customers, Jensen owns its own six-passenger plane.

There are three pilots in the organization -- the president, chief pilot Joe Frank, and chief engineer Wayne Jewell. The three log as many passenger miles a year as most commercial airlines in pushing its "product of the year," according to Jensen.

THE COMPLETE powder spray system produced at Electro-Ion of Farmington is demonstrated by Kathy Ferguson. The system consists of a power unit; the spray gun, which contains apparatus to charge the particles of coating material; and a specially-designed booth capable of recovering and returning to the unit up to 97 per cent of excess powder.

FRED JENSEN is president of Jensen, Inc. and Electro-Ion of Farmington, winners of the regional Michigan Week product of the year award. (Evert photo)

Adult Education Catalog Available

U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) joined with a bipartisan group of congressman to introduce a bill to improve opportunities for the 64 million adult Americans who haven't completed their high school education.

Esch said that Congress will emphasize coordination between adult education and manpower training programs in order to have a "coordinated educational system which provides for continuing and updating skills."

"This legislation expresses a new national commitment to provide a second chance for the illiterate, the poorly educated and the adult with yesterday's training for today's jobs," he said.

"Nearly one-third of the adults in this nation have less than a high school education. We must expand the availability of education for this large segment of our population. There is a great demand for more adult education and this legislation will assure that funds and programs are available on a nationwide basis."

Wellman Gets Aid From University

Greg Wellman, 14-year-old genius from Plymouth, has been given both a grant and a loan from the University of Michigan.

Wellman, a freshman at U-M with an IQ above 160, will apparently receive an $800 grant and $1,000 from the university.

Wellman's inability to obtain a scholarship despite his high intelligence was exposed in newspaper reports and apparently prompted university officials to make the grant and loan available.

Greg's mother is a senior at U-M and they commute to school daily. He may live on campus during the 1974-75 school year after his mother graduates.

Wellman is in the college's honor program but was unable to get a scholarship because most are based on need. After the newspaper reports were published, he received offers from other universities including Wayne State in Detroit and Oberlin College in Oberlin, Ohio.

He attended Schoolcraft College before transferring to U-M to take non-credit classes in the fall of 1972. Wellman was admitted as a regular student at U-M in January.

WESTLAND SPRING FESTIVAL

Memorial Day weekend

FINALIZING PLANS for the third annual Westland spring festival are committee chairmen and operating committee members who are looking forward to a successful festival during the Memorial Day weekend. On the committee are (seated, from left) Eileen Von Essen midway chairman; Noreen Gardner, beauty pageant chairman; Mervin Simpkins, general chairman; Ina Martin, recording secretary; and Gail McKnight, entertainment chairman; (standing) Manuel Lentine, city coordinator; Fred Flanagan, finance chairman; Robie Rushton, procurement chairman; and Stan Hanson, food services chairman.

Parade, Music, Beards All Part Of Festival

WESTLAND

What does a parade, entertainment and long beards and sideburns have in common?

The answer is that all will be part of the third annual Westland spring festival to be held during the Memorial Day weekend, May 25-28.

The beards and sideburns will be part of a "brothers of the brush" contest to be held in four categories.

The entertainment will be on hand to provide music and singing for the thousands of festival goers.

Parade officials invited 17 schools to provide marching bands for the event, to start at 10 a.m., Monday, May 28, from the Wayne-Cherry Hill corner. It will proceed north on Wayne Rd. to Ford and then west to the city hall.

For persons interested in the "brothers of the brush" contest, entry forms are available from the Westland Chamber of Commerce, 33250 W. Warren at Farmington, in the District Court office building.

The four categories are sideburns, mustache, Van Dyke and full beard. Entrants will be judged on shape, appearance and fullness.

Trophies will be given to winners in each division. Men may enter more than one category.

The judging will be Monday, May 28, in Jaycee Park, center of all festival events.

Entertainment chairman Mrs. Richard McKnight is still seeking singers, bands and musical acts for the festival.

They may contact her after 7 p.m.

The parade has already attracted commitments from marching bands at John Glenn and Wayne Memorial High Schools and Stevenson, Marshall, Franklin and Adams Junior Highs.

Also invited are marching units from veterans' groups, civic organizations, scout troops and the Army and Navy service branches.

The parade, sponsored by the Western Wayne County Allied Veterans Council, will pay special tribute to two presidents, Harry Truman and Lyndon Johnson, who died earlier this year within a few weeks of each other.

Groups interested in taking part in the parade may contact Joe Fisher, parade master of ceremonies, or Milton Kolarov, parade marshal.

Skyjumpers Returning To Spring Festival

WESTLAND

If parachute jumping is a favorite sport of yours, then there is a big thrill in store for you at the Westland spring festival.

Six members of the Detroit Division of the 82nd Airborne will participate in a spectacular exhibition of free fall parachute jumping on Monday, May 28. The exhibition will start at 3 p.m.

This same team jumped at last year's festival, and they have been the winners of several military and nonmilitary jumping contests throughout the United States.

According to a festival official, "the skill and daring displayed by these veteran jumpers borders on the unbelievable. This is a must event for all citizens."

Firemen Plan Water Battle

WESTLAND

Two units of the Westland Fire Department square off in a battle of fire hoses on Saturday, May 26, during the annual Westland spring festival.

The yearly event draws high attendance from those young and not so young citizens who enjoy watching the firefighters attempt to out - battle each other in an attempt fo move a large ball along a cable which is stretched 15 feet off the ground and is 100-feet long.

Flea Market Planned For City Festival

WESTLAND

Turn your trash into treasure!

Westland's spring festival still has openings for flea market booths to be set up during this weekend at Jaycee Park.

All booths will be situated in a large canvas tent.

Mrs. Jo Johnson of Westland, who is assisting in the flea market planning, advises clubs, church groups and interested dealers to display their wares. Arts and crafts items, household goods and an assortment of miscellaneous odds and ends would all be appropriate. No food or balloons can be sold.

For more information on how to enter your booth at the spring festival flea market, contact Mrs. Johnson or the mayor's office at Westland city hall.

A Hairy Time Planned For City Festival

WESTLAND

If you are tired of shaving each morning, why not take a break from this chore and let your beard or mustache grow and enter the annual "Brothers of the Brush" contest at the Westland Spring Festival.

Potential applicants must complete an entry form. The form is available at the Westland Chamber of Commerce office in the District Court Building at 33250 West Warren in Westland. For any additional information, call either Mrs. Weed or Judy Burnaska at the chamber office.

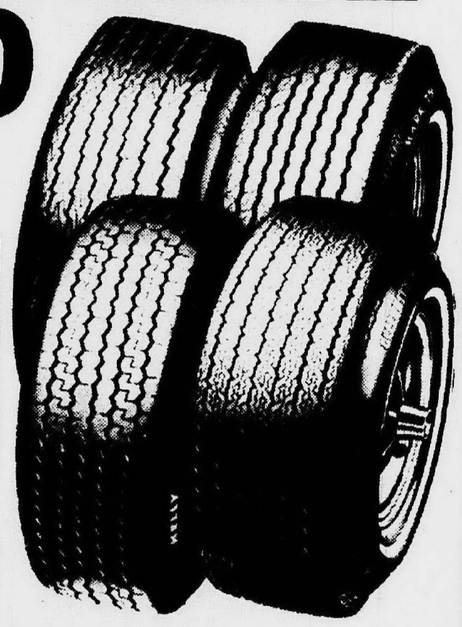

The judging will start at 4 p.m. on Monday, May 28. Trophies will be awarded in all four categories.

A new 128-page color booklet describing in detail a whole host of things to see and do in the eight county southeast Michigan region is available free from the Southeast Michigan Travel and Tourist Association.

"The guidebook we are offering depicts a complete range of exciting festivals and fairs, indoor and outdoor events and fine dining and accommodations places," said Sidney L. Baker, association president, "and represents months of preparation."

The new guide covers Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, St. Clair, Sanilac, Montor, Washtenaw and Lenawee counties and is available by writing the Travel and Tourist Association in care of the Executive Plaza, 1200 Sixth Avenue, Detroit, 48226.

Listed are such things as plant tours, major travel attractions, hotels, motels, theaters, museums, cultural and art facilities, camping and travel trailer accommodations, historical sites, swimming, boating and fishing locations and golfing and sightseeing attractions, Baker said.

"Times, dates and places are described in detail," Baker said, "and also listed are agencies to contact for further information. In all, more than 100 different listings are carried."

Esch Would Take Tax Off Lottery Gains

U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) has introduced a bill to make Michigan state lottery winnings tax free.

"This bill would stop lottery winnings from being severely taxed by the federal government and would provide greater incentives to the citizens of our state to become involved in their lottery by direct participation," Esch said.

"At present, the holder of a $1 million ticket in Michigan would have to give one-third of his winnings to the federal government."

Esch said an additional benefit of his bill would be that a tax-free lottery would cut into the illegal numbers game and would increase ticket sales.

Andrews Ends Army Course

LIVONIA

Army Pvt. Victor T. Andrews, son of Mrs. Shirley V. Andrews, 15507 Brookfield, Livonia, has completed a 10-week medical corpsman course at the U.S. Army Medical Training Center, Ft. Sam Houston, Texas.

PUPPIES AND KITTENS galore are hoping that you will be the lucky person who will give them a good home. They have had their first shots and are waiting at the Michigan Humane Society Kindness Center, 37255 Marquette Rd., just east of Newburgh, in Westland.

Local Units Asked Recreation Needs

Observerland cities, counties and townships have received from the Detroit of Natural Resources a questionnaire soliciting local governmental input to help DNR officials prepare the 1974 "Michigan recreation plan."

Specifically, DNR is seeking information regarding the status of ongoing or planned-for recreation programs in the various local governmental jurisdictions. Such information will be essential for preparation of the recreation plan, which will be an attempt to determine future state recreational needs as well as to document required funding.

Documentation of funding needs is expected to become increasingly crucial for two reasons:

First, money from Michigan's $100-million recreation bond program are practically exhausted. Second, there is a strong indication that the federal land and water conservation fund budget will be significantly slashed next year.

Both sources have helped state and local governments provide recreational opportunities, and DNR officials say special efforts must be made soon to compensate for this if Michigan's recreation future is to be a bright one.

DNR officials urge local governmental units to use the information provided by this survey to help them plan their own programs.

State planning and development regions are being asked to cooperate in this effort by helping local units respond to the questionnaire. DNR officials note that survey data, when compiled, also will be made available to regional planning agencies for use in their planning programs.

It will be several months before definite conclusions can be drawn from the survey, officials predict.

City Approves Summer Plan

LIVONIA

The city council recently appropriated $500 to train five persons for a summer program designed to prevent confrontations between police and youths in city parks.

The city has applied for a $14,000 Law Enforcement Administration Agency grant to pay for the summer-long program. "Park directors" will be stationed in five parks around the city in hopes of channeling youth activities into legal areas.

The city had several minor confrontations last summer when large numbers of youths gathered at Botsford and other parks. Botsford Park was ordered closed by the mayor for a time because of gathering youths.

New Child Care Setup Is Approved

A new plan for improved care of retarded and emotionally-troubled children has been approved by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Commissioners last week voted 21-2 to approve "in principle" the report of a joint county-state task force and adopted three resolutions aimed at implementing the task force recommendations.

As a result, a central agency will be established to refer such children to appropriate facilities for treatment and training.

Children requiring residential care will be placed in small-group residential facilities within the community.

The Wayne County Child Development Center, a large residential institution located near Northville, will be closed after all children have been properly placed in other facilities.

No date was set for closing the center, which has approximately 240 students at present.

"The close of the Child Development Center shall not take place until each child has an appropriate and proper community placement," the board declared in one resolution.

Three teams consisting of representatives of the Plymouth State Home, the Child Development Center, the Detroit-Wayne County Community Mental Health Services Board, and four State departments will be established to place the children.

The resolution notes that the Child Development Center was a leader in the field of mental health for children when it opened in 1925, but states that "an institutional environment is contrary to modern treatment" by present standards.

The Wayne County program will be similar to that of the Golden Gate Regional Center in San Francisco, a setup which has been praised by experts nationally.

A committee representing the task force and the Board of Commissioners will be established "to expedite the implementation of services and project the need for additional resources within Wayne County," the resolution states.

Admissions to the Child Development Center will continue until the central referral agency has been created and appropriate and proper placements have been developed, it adds.

The new structure will provide central coordination of referrals and services. At present there are 31 city, county, state and private referral agencies in Wayne County.

One resolution declares the board's intention to provide training and job preferences in both county and state employment for the 275 employees of the Child Development Center. Many are expected to qualify for equivalent jobs elsewhere without additional training.

The resolution also states that employees taking state jobs will have the option of applying for a return to county employment "within a reasonable time."

Computer Art Is 'Unnerving'

By CORINNE ABATT

amusements

A huge circle of clear plexiglass suspended from the ceiling creates unusual light patterns on the walls. Spooky computer music evokes another-world, another-planet feelings.

A computer in the foyer clicks out endless rolls of words on paper, reading like an over-ambitious, under-educated art critic.

Looking like a 20th century version of a bronze god, an electrically controlled sculpture dominates one gallery area.

The gallery walls are hung with drawings and serigraphs all done with the aid of a computer.

Once the initial impact of this new art is at least partly absorbed, the scene can still prove unnerving.

The show -- which will travel to various parts of the country including New York City after it leaves the BAA Sunday, May 27, is a statement on today. While in the gallery, there is no escaping from the dominant role which the computer plays in 1973 life.

Most people are aware of the computer as a tool to speed up tabulations in the fields of banking, merchandising and industry. Not as many are aware of its potential in art, music and literature. It must be understood that the term is "computer assisted" and not "computer created."

It took Leslie Masters, BAA volunteer exhibition liaison, over a year to get this show together. Gary William Smith, Cranbrook Art School master's candidate, scoured the entire country for artists using the computer as a tool.

This and the symposiums supporting the show in the first week were done in conjunction with Cranbrook Academy of Art, the Computer Arts Society, Eastern Michigan University, the Michigan Council for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Sculptor Smith has used a computer as a tool. His work, "The Critic," the computer-generated art criticism, is on display, he comments on the computer-assisted art:

"I hate it! But I completely believe in what's going to be a part of our life."

With the assistance of several programmers, he fed his computer words that might be found in an art review. The computer is told what parts of speech to use to build sentences and selects the words.

The constant spew of comments is somehow frightening. For instance, "A cognative essence of an analysis which was troublingly aesthetic is too specific. . ."

It's a masterpiece of gobbledygook which its creator calls "humorous but a very serious statement with very serious implications."

Young Rick Herrington, of Ann Arbor, whose reactive video image synthesizer is the two TV screens with color patterns, describes his work as a miniature computer hooked to a miniature color TV transmitter. By tapping the buttons at random, it is possible to come up with 30 million different patterns and store 250 of them.

For those who visit the BAA show, at 1516 S. Cranbrook, Birmingham, only one warning -- keep telling yourself as you amble through: "The computer is a tool, not a competitor . . . not a competitor . . . ."

Musicans To Study Objectives

Preparation of state performance objectives for music students were discussed at a conference this month of the Michigan Music Educators Association, held in Lansing.

Among those attending were Connie Langille of Livonia, Elizabeth White of Farmington and Dave Jorlette of Southfield.

Dr. John W. Porter, in a message to the association, said the proposed music performance objectives will play a major role in improving music instruction throughout the state. Dr. Porter is state superintendent of public instruction.

"The State Board of Education has approved performance objectives for reading and mathematics and will be reviewing performance objectives for a number of other subjects, including music, in the months ahead," he said.

The association is also planning to conduct a series of workshops throughout the state to help train music teachers to write performance objectives.

Redford Pianist Wins

Seventeen-year-old Laura Kargul of Woodbine, Redford Township, has won first place in the annual piano competition sponsored by the Detroit-Windsor Piano Technicians Guild.

Miss Kargul, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kargul, is a junior at Redford Union High School, and is pianist for the Redford Civic Symphony Orchestra. Last fall she won the senior high division in a competition staged by the Michigan Music Teachers Association.

It was her performance of the Grieg A minor Concerto which won the current contest. She was accompanied on a second piano by her teacher, Rebecca Frohman. There were five finalists chosen from entries drawn from a 75-mile radius of Detroit.

Tapes were submitted and screened by the judges. The live audition finals were held before a large audience in the Detroit Community Music School.

The judges were Dr. Paul Freeman, conductor-in-residence of the Detroit Symphony; William Koerper, music director for the Detroit Public Schools; Anna Husband, director of the Detroit Community Music School; and Albert Fillmore, associate director.

OBSERVATION POINT

Michigan, My Michigan: Creating The Good Life In The Suburbs

This week we celebrate Michigan Week throughout the state and here in Observerland.

It's a time when the snow and slush of winter are rapidly fading from memory, when the spring rains and mud are over, and when the lilacs are in bloom and the grass springs up in emerald splendor.

Here in the suburbs, the charcoal grills are coming out of storage and the golf swing is coming out of hibernation.

In the evenings, the orange twilight slants long over the lawns, and in a few more weeks the tinkle of ice cubes in the backyard gin and tonic will be heard throughout the land.

All in all, it's a place to lead the good life.

SOME EVENING, just as the sky is turning a luminous blue-green as the sun goes in, take a drive down the expressway past the twinkling gas lights at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus and into Southfield, past the magnificent prowed ark of Shaarey Zedek rearing up out of the ground, and on to what has got to be the grandest concentration of fine architecture in this area.

The great buildings rise up to meet you, one by one, some spare and lean and others full with curves and crenelations, products of Michigan industry's commitment to good design.

And then, a little farther on just before Eight Mile Road -- wonderful surprise! -- the gold ribbed cupola of St. John's Armenian Church, blazing now in the light, an eternal antique punctuation mark to beauty before you slip down into the ditch at the Detroit line.

Or go to Redford Township at shift break as the men are streaming off the line at the Detroit Diesel plant. Big men, small men, fat and thin, sour and proud, happy and sad, weak and strong -- but all of them working men, men who built the automobile industry and who put this area on the economic map of the world.

Go into the bars and taverns, while they have a drink after that long, hellish day in the plant. Look carefully. They don't hold a glass between their thumb and fingers in that mincing way I associate with overweight accountants; instead, they grab the thing with their whole mitt, pressing it back against the palm and wrapping thumb and fingers all the way around the glass, as though they could crush it to shivers if they wished.

FOR A SENSE of the past, go to Farmington, and proceed up the old plank road that later became Grand River Avenue. As you go by the slim, long, refined lines of the Botsford Inn, you see in your mind's eye the tired stage coach travelers arriving, full of anticipation for a good drink, a good dinner, and a good bed.

Continue past the wonderous, baroque 19th century brickwork of the Masonic Temple, and up to the sheer, full, white elegance of the Warner House on your left. Then, remembering that much of Farmington's past is as a farming community, go by the old, white, spare house at Power Road and 11 Mile, a monument to a certainly simpler, probably more solid era.

For the new, try Westland, a city only seven years old, created out of a township, named for a shopping center and thereby symbolic of the changes that such institutions have wrought in the suburbs. Complete with a new orchestra, a new police department, and a spring festival only three years old, Westland's dynamic growth is among the highest in the area.

Garden City, just to the east, was one of the first suburbs in the area, perhaps in the country. Developed in the 1930s with rows of neat houses with matured trees and sun porches, the city has that sense of community and stability symbolized by the backyard vegetable gardens that gave it its name.

EARLY SOME morning, before going off to work, go over to Kellogg Park in the center of Plymouth, to gain the reassurance that the New England village green which we associate with our image of a classical downtown still works in the suburbs in the 1970s.

The piece of Plymouth Rock, the Garden Club's newly planted trees and brick paths, fresh with dew, the human scaled proportion of the square, the shopkeepers gathering for a cup of coffee at the Round Table before going off to open up the store -- all these give a sense of security and stability and, yes, peace, in our harassed world.

In the evening, try the race track in Livonia. As you drive there, take a detour to see the new schools which the track helped pay for, and watch the kids coming and going in the activity program put forth by the state's third largest school system and still one of the best.

Then, once inside the big lot, with the banners waving in the spotlights, the crowd roaring and horses thundering down the stretch, reflect for a moment:

This is Michigan, my Michigan.

R. T. Thompson writes

Keep Deaths Down By Safe Driving

Planning a long trip over the long Memorial Day weekend?

Then there's no time like right now to start thinking of safety on the road. It's time to think of the traditional warning of police and highway officials prior to the kickoff holiday for the summer vacation season.

When Congress passed legislation changing several holidays from the usual date to Monday to give all an extra day for fun and frolicking, it apparently didn't take into consideration the dangers on the highways.

A year ago, 20 persons died in auto accidents in Michigan, and strangely enough, 17 of the 23 drivers involved were less than 25 miles from home.

All of which proves a point brought out by those in charge of road safety programs from the Automboile Club of Michigan. The point is that many motorists get a false sense of security when out on the highway, especially when they are not driving far from home.

A year ago there were 2,258 fatalities, on state roads, an increase of 4.9 per cent from the year before. The number of miles traveled also increased, so last year Michigan posted a 3.9 death rate per hundred million vehicle miles traveled, the same as in 1971.

Highway statisticians believe Michigan motorists, driving more than three million vehicles, will log something like 795 million miles during the upcoming weekend. That's nearly five per cent greater than for the Memorial Day holiday of last year.

Then there's another reason for a plea for safety in driving. This is the time of the year when many high schools have senior activities miles from the home town. Without exception each year come graduation time there are accidents involving high school seniors, many of which end in several deaths.

Perhaps a warning now, prior to the start of the long holiday and prior to the start of the senior high junkets will have some effect...We hope so. Nothing is more tragic than to get news of an accident or accidents which have taken the lives of youngsters just entering the age of majority.

During the period from Friday at 6 p.m. to midnight Monday, about six of every 10 motorists on the road will experience some delay due to the heavy volume of traffic.

It is these delays that cause many drivers to get nervous and in a hurry to move along. The result is that they throw caution to the winds and take chances, trying to make up time. That's when accidents occur.

Travelers are urged to minimize traffic delays by scheduling their trips either before or after rush periods.

The peak travel times are: Friday, 7 to 10 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.; and Monday, 2 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The biggest traffic problems are expected on Monday when travelers are returning home. Sunny and warm weather will worsen the situation since many will extend their stays and then crowd the highways later in the day.

State Police experts believe the worst freeway traffic problems in the state will develop on I-75 around Flint due to a 21-mile road widening project between the merging point of I-75 and US-23 and Birch Run.

Work will be suspended during the holiday weekend, but traffic at peak times around Flint will probably slow considerably due to the close proximity of construction ditches, equipment and barrel markers.

The traffic bottleneck at I-94 near the Michigan-Indiana state line has been eliminated. Motorists can drive non-stop from Detroit to Chicago in less than five hours over a toll-free, four lane highway.

We realize there will undoubtedly be fatal accidents, but motorists could reduce the number by taking the following precautions:

- Since alcohol is a factor in six of 10 fatal accidents, you are urged to avoid drinking alcoholic beverages. Statistics show that two ounces of alcohol consumed in an hour double a driver's chances of having a fatal traffic accident.
- Drivers and passengers should wear seat belts every mile they travel to protect themselves against other drivers' mistakes. Seat belts are often the difference between suffering serious injury or death and walking away from an accident unharmed.
- Headlights should be kept on during daylight hours when driving on two-lane roads to help all drivers see oncoming traffic more clearly and to better determine safe passing distances.

The Citizens Band Radio and other civic groups will again offer free coffee at various rest stops along the state's Interstate routes.

State Police will have additional men on all major highways to stress safety and to do everything possible to get the dangerous driver off the roads.

The Auto Club will have its "bring them back alive" holiday news service in operation from 3 p.m. Friday through Memorial Day evening. It will provide motorists with hourly bulletins on traffic conditions and holiday recreational activities daily between 8 a.m. and 11 p.m.

If all of these groups are trying to make the roads safe, then drivers should heed the warnings and use a bit of common sense themselves. Who knows? The life you save may be your own.

At-Large System Best For Schoolcraft?

Back in the mid-1960s, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that legislatures must be apportioned on a "one-man, one-vote" basis. It's 1973 now, and the fallout is still raining down.

At issue today are the Schoolcraft College board and the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, two agencies which have more in common than meets the eye.

Applying the "one-man" etc. guideline to Schoolcraft two years ago, Circuit Judge Roland Olzark said the old system -- one trustee elected from each of the five participating K-12 school districts -- violated the constitution.

No one today is arguing that. The argument is over what should replace it: (1) a new system of relatively equal population districts or (2) an at-large system?

In the 11 years since Schoolcraft was organized, the Livonia School District, with half or more of the population, has never had proportionate representation -- until the last two years, when the board was elected at large and had a few vacancies to replace by appointment. Even now, Livonia has only five of the eight trustees which isn't mathematically outlandish.

Yet this board has been dubbed "Livonia - dominated." Unfair! And doubly so when you consider that Garden City had a representative on the board until two years ago (under the old apportionment system), but it was the current "Livonia - dominated" board that voted to establish a satellite campus in Garden City.

The board itself, however, has asked the Legislature to set up a sub-district system guaranteeing each school district -- even Northville and Clarenceville, with five to six per cent of the population -- a board seat. It's a bad idea, and probably impossible to implement.

It's a bad idea because the community college operates essentially at one campus at 18600 Haggerty, and the current "Livonia-dominated" board has shown itself sensitive to the needs of the smaller communities. Successful board campaigns have been run for a few hundred dollars, so the notion that Schoolcraft is too big a campaign area is simply false.

It's probably impossible to implement a sub-district plan, and on this point I call as chief witness one R. Robert Geake, now a state representative and formerly chairman of the board at Schoolcraft. Dr. Geake says "nay" to sub-districting because:

"In the first place, the population is growing rapidly in the western part of the college district and remaining the same in the eastern part, so any (sub-)districts created on the basis of the 1970 census would no longer be equal in population.

"In the second place, each district would be electing a trustee only once every six years, with redistricting every 10 years (after each census) which seems rather silly.

"In the third place, it would cause an administrative nightmare to try to hold an election with districts weaving in and out of portions of five cities, five townships and three counties following school district boundaries."

No one has ever convinced me that the interests of Plymouth are any different from Clarenceville's, and I see no reason for abandoning the at-large system of electing trustees. Quite the contrary: The at-large system promotes a Schoolcraft consciousness and weakens the cobwebs of provincialism, and goodness knows we have too much provincialism around here.

The Huron-Clinton board, operating nine metropolitan parks in five counties, is a different creature. That seven-member board has one representative from each county and two appointed at large by the governor.

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners is raising a fuss because Wayne, with 56 per cent or more of the population, has only two board members, or less than 29 per cent of the power.

Huron-Clinton's parks are far-flung: Metropolitan Beach on Lake St. Clair on the east, three small ones around Dexter on the west, Stony Creek on the north and Lower Huron below Belleville on the south. Clearly, when all the tax money is going into one pot, it's important how the money is split up geographically. Should that board develop a Mill Creek park around Chelsea? Or should it aim at Belle Isle in the Detroit River?

Reapportionment is obviously desirable, and here's hoping the Wayne County board wins its case. But Huron-Clinton is also the kind of agency where geography is important, and so it's necessary to give both populous Wayne and Oakland counties and little Livingston County some proportionate voice.

Schoolcraft College and the HCMA park system have similar mathematical problems, but the similarity stops there. The college can live with an at-large board, but local interests need better representation at HCMA.

EDITOR:

The Plymouth Mail and Observer is to be complimented for giving voters and taxpayers of the City of Plymouth and the Plymouth Community School District information in regard to budgets, tax rates, and millage proposals.

You report that in 1972-73 the tax in the City will be $14.70 per $1,000 of state equalized assessed valuation, that the city will have further income from fees, federal and state funds and other sources, that police costs will rise from $390,000 to $475,000, also that the new Cultural Center is expected to operate at a loss of about $52,000 for the year ahead. It has been also stated that the city has entered into an agreement with a planning consultant to pay up to $30,000 for so-called "planning."

The Observer advises that the school district managers are requesting at the next school election, a school levy of 1.5 mills ($1.50 per $1,000 in equalized assessed valuation) for operating purposes for five years. Next, they seek an additional five - year tax levy of 1.55 mills ($1.55 per $1,000) also for operations.

Further they seek a new levy for just one year of .40 mills (40 cents per $1,000), to be used strictly for safety purposes. Lastly they ask for the approval of the issuance of $14.150 million for construction of new school facilities. The original $21 million bond proposal was defeated by the voters a few months ago. Remember that while millions in bonds is asked for new schools the Plymouth High School on Main St. stands practically unused.

The state equalized assessed valuation has been boosted throughout Michigan. In the City of Plymouth protests by taxpayers over large increases in their valuations were summarily overruled by the board of review.

Of course the city or school district could appeal to the county against these increases, but this is not to be expected by those who profit from increased taxes. Many taxpayers in said city and throughout the state are bitter over the situation. The valuation of modest homes occupied by widows, old or retired people have just now been hiked $3,000 or $4,000.

By reason of increasing assessed valuations, particularly the most recent one, both the school district and the city will receive large increases in tax income without increasing rates or voting of millage and further bond issues.

Lansing advertises a tax cut for next year, but by increasing throughout the state the equalized valuation on property any so-called tax cuts have been nullified. Voters should not be compelled to defeat tax proposals every few months with the cost of special elections.

It is regretted that this letter is deemed necessary. But as an old editor, with years of experience in state and city government, said recently in his newspaper "Something must be done and soon."

Kinsolving Questioned

EDITOR:

In regard to your May 12 column, "Religious Update" by the Rev. Lester Kinsolving, I would like to say that much of the information he has written about the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day-Saints is in error. I have been a lifetime member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day-Saints.

If I am not mistaken, Rev. Kinsolving writes regularly for your newspaper. If the articles that he writes about other demoninations are as inaccurate as the article he wrote on the Mormon church, then perhaps you'd better ask him to double check his sources of information.

Stories Earn Praise

EDITOR:

Thank you very much for the excellent coverage of my conference on New Careers For Women, May 2 through 5. Your extensive articles in the May 9 edition of your paper surely reached a lot more women than I was able to in the conference itself.

I felt the information offered in the conference was quite valuable for women in keeping with the needs of the community. While I was disappointed with the response to the conference, I was certainly pleased with the fine distribution of its message through the Observer Newspapers. Thanks, too, to the reporters responsible for the articles.

Youthful Viewpoint

EDITOR:

I am writing to you about two important problems. They are welfare and pollution.

I have an idea that could help solve a part of these problems. I thought that if there was a committee of people that the people on welfare could go to for a job it would help them earn their welfare checks. Now, I know what you're thinking -- what if they can't or don't? Well, the committee that I spoke of earlier could have jobs for the ones who could pretty well walk and do things. They could pick up the streets and pick up bottles and stuff.

The ones who could not do those sorts of jobs could be working in a building where they could be accepting the bottles, papers and so on.

Then, for the ones who wouldn't do it, there's not much you can do about that. But it's an idea that came to mind and it just seemed like a good one because it would help solve the two important problems of welfare and pollution.

Hope Lost In Westland

In 1969 I became a resident and property owner in the City of Westland, where the motto is "progress-hope-promise." If you are considering becoming a property owner here -- beware!

First drive by my home at 8653 Lanewood (one block east of Middle Belt and south of Joy Road) and view some "progress" attempted by Lakemaster Jet Boar Boat Co. a few months after I moved into my lovely little home on a private road.

Where once stood an empty lot next to my property, there now stands a concrete misfit, perched atop tons of earth towering above my roof top like an ugly gargoyle atop a mountain, spurting gallons of water in an attempt to drown me each time it rains. Perish the thought of lawns, shrubs and flowers--they don't survive under water. If this is "progress" it's a step in the wrong direction. Needless to say, I am bitter. Here is a good example of where city codes and city ordinances are not enforced.

"Hope" is what you must not give up, even after a three-year plea to city hall officials to investigate and remedy a water problem that I feared from the very beginning and tried to have avoided.

I was assured wholeheartedly by council members at city hall meetings that what has happened would not be allowed to happen. Now while someone reaps the rewards, I suffer with the heartache and mental anguish of a frustrating predicament I am the victim of.

And "promise" is what they give you at city hall. But what good is it when broken? Messages are unanswered, telephone calls are unreturned, investigations forgotten.

Will they wait until the water uproots my home before they help me? It seems I am fighting a losing battle in a hopeless situation...but I'm not giving up yet.

Merger Talks Halted

Plans for the merger of Hydromation Filter Co. of Livonia into a subsidiary of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. have been postponed indefinitely, according to company President Gene Hirs.

The postponement was by mutual consent of the two companies, because of "unsettled market conditions," Hirs said. The merger proposal, previously announced, will not be submitted either to the board of directors or the stockholders of Hydromation at the present time.

Veterans Fair Is Thursday At Madonna

Veteran rights and benefits will be discussed during a "Veterans Opportunity Fair" at Madonna College Thursday, May 24, from 2 to 9 p.m. The fair will be in the dining hall of the Residence Building on the campus at 36600 Schoolcraft, Livonia.

Representatives from 11 veteran service agencies will be available to answer questions along with business and industry representatives.

Educational benefits can amount to $8,000. A veteran enrolled at Madonna could receive $220 monthly if he is single and a maximum of $339 monthly for a veteran with two dependents.

JOHN BONNEL, 35701 Congress, Farmington Township, has been named executive assistant to the field operations manager of the Ford Motor Co., public relations division. Joining Ford in 1954 as an administrative assistant, he has served as a merchandising manager and a district sales manager.

Cox Seeks SC Trustee Seat

Dr. Gerald Cox of Garden City has announced his candidacy for a six - year term on the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees.

Cox, 46, is a teacher at Kettering High School in Detroit. He resides at 32761 Maplewood.

He is one of eight candidates for three six - year terms on the board. (Two candidates are running for a one - year term.)

He holds a bachelor of arts degree in business administration from Michigan State College. He was an assistant professor of business at Wayne State University and has headed business departments in Detroit public schools and Cass Technical High School.

Cox said he joined the college race to encourage residents of the southern area of the college district to utilize the new college information service center in Garden City and to encourage membership in the Schoolcraft College Foundation.

"The need for representation on the board for concerns of citizens living in the southeastern part of the college district" was another reason given by Cox for seeking election.

"Public service requires every citizen's participation, and I see this June 11 election as an appropriate time to go to the voters of the college district for support," he said.

"Schoolcraft College enjoys a fine national reputation for excellence in community service, and I'd like to work for the people in the five districts to maintain this excellence."

Cox said his background in education would be helpful to the college in solving problems related to students, faculty, secretarial staff and administration.

Urban Taxi Gets Local 'Charge'

DEARBORN

Two local instructors and one student have been involved in production of an "urban taxi" designed to solve some of the urban transportation problems in congested cities.

Les Goings and Howard Freeman, both Livonia residents who are automotive instructors at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn, supervised wiring the cab. Bill Bable of Westland worked with three other Henry Ford students on the project for three weeks.

The yellow cab is about the same length as a Volkswagen and was designed by students at the Art School of the Society of Arts and Crafts in Detroit.

Suburbs Are Arab Melting Pot

By W.W. EDGAR

This may come as a surprise, but Observerland now is rated one of America's strongholds for the Arabic speaking people whose roots are deeply imbedded in the Holy Land.

With the City of Livonia as the hub of activities, more than 800 persons are now helping to carry on the traditions -- -- religious and social -- of the old world where they have been part of life for centuries.

Most of them now are Quakers and follow those principles because they, too, are what Dr. Roger Ajluni, a Livonia doctor and one of their talented spokesmen, calls "poor fighters but great peace-loving people."

The doctor is one of six children who was born and raised in Ramallah, a small town 10 miles from Jerusalem.

"Since 1948 more than 5,000 people from Ramallah have migrated to America. The close affinity was brought about because of the religious setup and the presence of the Quakers who are so active in education."

Unlike the Amish, who settle as a group in one community, the Arabic speaking people have spread their activities throughout the area -- but they stick together.

"We have one big convention each year," Dr. Ajluni explained, "and it is there that our sons and daughters meet and many times marry within our own ranks.

We look forward to this convention, too," he continued, "as a sort of reunion. It is at these conventions that we meet many of our former school chums from back home and the older folks visit again with old friends they haven't seen in years."

The convention is taking on more importance since it will be held in Detroit in 1974 and already extensive plans have been made.

"My father is a graduate of the American University and later a teacher. He meets many of his former students at these gatherings, and he's looking forward to the big one coming up."

Explaining some of the traditions, Dr. Ajluni recalled that there were only three Christian cities – Bethlehem, Nazareth and Ramallah – in the Holy Land.

The Quakers came to Ramallah in 1860, he said, not to attempt to convert anyone, but to live a simple life in peace.

"It was this trait that fascinated our people," the doctor said, "and we became Quakers."

"We believe that every man can be two men. That is, he can be an American and enjoy living here. But he also can be another man by learning our Arabic language and carrying on the traditions of the home land."

Among these traditions are to:

- Develop the culture.
- Support hospitals back in the Holy Land.
- Sponsor youth activities to the utmost and help in their development.
- Help all young people to get an education.
- Help preserve their identity.
- Learn the Arabic language and follow the culture of mother and dad.

These Arabic speaking-people have no clubs, club rooms or so-called fraternity meeting houses. They gather in each other's homes to plan and carry on their activities.

Now only 37, he'll tell you he came to America when he was 17 and immediately started to absorb an American education.

He attended Alfred University, a branch of Columbia University in New York City, and later specialized in internal medicine at New York Medical Center.

Following his graduation he was advised to continue his medical career at Detroit Receiving Hospital and that brought him to the area.

"I liked Livonia when I saw it," he said, "because it was wide open – just like home. And the people were friendly."

While he has reached several of his goals, set when a young man, he now has one more burning desire -- he would like to see a plan whereby old folks could live out their years gracefully, without fear -- and with activities that would enable them to enjoy the waning days of their lives.

He has no objection to the current senior citizens homes, which provide a living space, for the elderly. But he claims they don't go far enough.

They don't provide the many activities that help them enjoy their days and many of them are still living in fear of an interruption of the program.

"I hope to see the day," he said, "when old age can be lived more gracefully."

He didn't say so, but he hinted that such a program could be in the planning stages by the Arabic speaking people who now are located in Observerland, one of the seven such groups in America. The others are located in the larger cities, like San Francisco, New York, Philadelphia and the like.

"It would be a grand thing, wouldn't it?" he asked, not expecting an answer.

AN ARCHAEOLOGICAL DIG means painstaking work for Latin students at Our Lady of Mercy High School. Mercy Students Stage Archaeological Dig

By MARGARET MILLER

Civilizations whose fragmented remains lay buried on the grounds of Farmington's Mercy Center are getting some close scrutiny from two teams of dedicated archaeologists.

True, the relics spent only a few hours in the ground before being unearthed, and the researchers who manned the shovels are working on a high school class project.

But the enthusiasm engendered by the dig could rival that of professionals in the exacting field of archaeology.

"It has been even more valuable than I had anticipated in the matter of disciplined observation," said Sister Marjorie Allen, Our Lady of Mercy High School classical studies teacher who has guided the unusual project.

The archaeological dig involved students from both Our Lady of Mercy and Marian High School in Birmingham.

Then both buried their clues to the civilizations in large pits dug back on the grounds of the Mercy Center.

That took place the morning of May 11. The two teams met for lunch, picnic style, and then each school's representation went to the pit the other one had prepared.

They now are near the end of a study to reconstruct the two civilizations, and when they finish they will send each other written reports to see how well they have understood.

For those who love puzzles--and all archaeologists must--the project has been a giant fun jigsaw. But it's also excellent training in archaeological method and discipline said Sister Marjorie.

"We've kept to proper procedures -- used stakes and plumb lines and brushed off our finds carefully," she said. "We also made museum-type record cards of each thing we buried, and made similar ones for the things we found.

"People think archaeology is just finding something. It's also keeping records and interpreting. The finding part is fun--the interpreting can be fun too but it's also hard work."

The dig had its beginnings last summer when Sister Marjorie and several of her students--all members of the Junior Classical League at Mercy--went to a league convention in Virginia and heard a similar project described.

"The girls definitely wanted to try it, and we decided Latin classes would be the best ones to participate," the instructor said.

After Marian High accepted the challenge, the students and teacher at Mercy began preparations. Two advanced Latin classes decided to meet together once a week for a mini-course in archaeology.

Barbara Gamache was named crew chief and committees were set up to decide the cultural background, themes, economics, food, clothing and shelter, family organization, political and governmental organization, religion, arts, esthetic values, and recreation of the civilization being created.

"Each group worked out its ideas. When we put it together, it was a hodgepodge," Sister Marjorie recalled. "We had to hash it out together.

"What was interesting to me was that these 11th and 12th graders were actually creating their own ideal society, and that gave some insights into what they were thinking about.

"We had one funny occasion when a visiting Latin

ERA Called Cop-Out By Angry Opponents

By JAN WILLIAMS

A lot of angry women don't like Michigan's ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment and want to see it rescinded.

Their feelings range from disapproval to outrage, and they made them known loudly in a turbulent meeting last week in the UAW Local 163 Hall in northwest Detroit.

The proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution has been ratified by 30 state legislatures, including Michigan's, with 38 needed to make it the law of the land.

"Cop-out," "a rotten piece of legislation" and "an opener of a one-john door" were a few of the descriptions that came out of the session.

"I don't want to be forced to work to support my family and I don't want to be drafted and wind up in a foxhole somewhere.

"But I do like the door opened for me and my cigaret lighted."

The crowd heatedly disputed former State Sen. Lorraine Beebe when she called Michigan's ratification a "dead issue" and shouted down Linda Stults, state coordinator of the National Organization of Women (NOW) when she attempted to defend ERA.

When it was all over, a rather shaken State Rep. John Markes (D-Westland) who chaired the hearing for the House's state affairs committee, managed to describe it as "a healthy exchange of opinions."

"You know I'm only a freshman legislator, and I think I was asked to chair this because I didn't know enough to keep away from it."

And with a rueful grin he added:

Hearing the testimony with Markes were Rep. Josephine Hunsinger (D-Detroit), and State Sen. Michael O'Brien.

Rep. Hunsinger said she scheduled the public hearing in an effort to revoke Michigan's ratification of the amendment at the "request of a majority of concerned persons."

The ERA would become the 27th amendment to the U.S. Constitution if eight more states ratify. Opponents in Nebraska and Idaho have launched efforts to rescind their ratification.

The amendment was ratified in Michigan last June by a roll call vote in the House and a voice vote in the Senate.

The majority of speakers at the hearing were housewives from Detroit and surrounding suburbs who had difficulty complying with the five minute time limit set by Markes.

Arguments included serious, intellectual provocations, complete with appropriate quotes from the Yale Law Review, along with some explicit examples of what some believe the ERA holds in store for women.

"This amendment constitutes a threat, rather than an opportunity," said Nicolina Johnson, a divorcee with two children. "A woman could be sued for alimony, as well as having to provide support payment."

"You can't give someone something they already have. And the 1963 Federal Wage Act guarantees women equal employment opportunities."

Calling the ERA a "cop-out," Miss Pitschke said the constitution isn't to be blamed, but rather the persons interpreting it.

"When you hear the complaint that women aren't included in the U.S. Constitution, you should also be aware of the fact that no where in it is the word 'man' mentioned.

"The word used is 'person.' It's all a matter of interpretation."

A representative of UAW Local 163 spoke in favor of the ERA, saying union support was in line with support at the bargaining table for women's rights.

"The Legislature acted responsibly in enacting the ERA and we (Local 163) will oppose any action to rescind it," she said.

One of the few men at the hearing spoke in favor of rescinding the ERA, saying the amendment would disrupt the family system.

Women on the Go

Nun, Attorney, Teacher -- And Battler Of Railroads

One visitor to Observerland this Michigan Week is a lady who counts a railroad among the many foes she has battled in the courts.

Sister Ann Joachim, O.P., was in Plymouth Monday with the Government Day mayor's exchange party because she's now a member of the Adrian City Commission.

She has been an attorney for 50 years, a nun in the Dominican order for 45, a member of the Siena Heights College faculty for 44.

Just now, preparing to stand among the golden jubilarians when the Michigan Bar Association has its annual meeting in Detroit in September, she's winding up her legal practice and her courses in business law at Siena Heights.

But that's mainly so she can give more time to her duties as city commissioner. Elected to the post in 1971, she says she may run again when her four-year term expires "if my health is as good as it is now."

"I don't intend to retire, ever," she said. "There's still a lot to be done."

A woman who gained professional distinction long before anyone heard of liberation, Sister Ann Joachim is probably best known beyond Adrian for her long legal battle to keep the old Wabash Cannonball train running through her city.

That train was needed, she contended in court, by students and especially the sisters who staffed the school complex the Dominicans operate.

"I worked four years on that case, and we won, too," she recalled. "Then the government came in, took the train and gave it to Amtrack.

"People miss that train. I had a card just the other day from a woman who said she hadn't seen her grandchildren for several years because she just didn't have transportation. The lack of public transportation is breaking up families.

"But you notice they still run freight trains through there. I waited for one a few days ago and counted 112 cars -- every one with six autos on it."

As mementos of her battle with the railroad, she has on her desk three silver - plated railroad spikes-- "I use them as paperweights"-- and a plaque presented by the railroad workers' union.

Sister Ann Joachim figures that battle was like many she has faced and still faces as a commission member.

"You keep running up against a hard brick wall," she said, "and you're not sure whether to kick it down or go around."

She's done quite a bit of both, she added.

The Adrian delegation's visit to Plymouth coincided, the nun reminisced, with the 46th anniversary of Charles Lindberg's trans-Atlantic flight.

"I was a pilot, you know, before I was a nun, and I was on the committee making arrangements for his welcome when he came to Detroit," she said.

How did she decide to join a religious order after such accomplishments?

"Well, I wrote a book about that," she said. "It's hard to say just when the seed was planted, but I knew I wanted to do for others instead of always thinking of myself. I worked for an attorney in Detroit up to the day I entered the convent."

Sister Ann Joachim grew up in Detroit and got her high school education in evening school while working in the daytime.

She attended classes in two different high schools -- using two different names -- in order to get to law school more quickly.

"You weren't supposed to do that," she said. "but they decided to ignore it because my marks were high and they knew how much I wanted to get to law school."

Sister Ann Joachim earned the first of her six degrees from the Detroit College of Law in 1923, when she was 21. The next year she earned a master's in law from the University of Detroit.

Then came a BA from St. Joseph Academy in Adrian in 1930 and an MA in economics and history from Loyola University in 1931.

When Siena Heights faculty, which she had joined after taking her final vows in 1928, needed an instructor in business law, Sister Ann Joachim was sent to the International Catholic University in Switzerland.

"They wanted me to do it as fast as I could," she remembers. "I finished in 20 months, but that was working about 20 hours a day."

Her final degree came in 1959 when she returned to her first alma mater, the Detroit College of Law, to receive the honorary degree of doctor of jurisprudence.

On that occasion, she remembers proudly, she gave the commencement address, the first Catholic and the first in religious habit to do so.

Sister Ann Joachim also was the first nun in habit to travel in Russia after the 1917 revolution. She has visited the Soviet twice and lectures on Russia with an extensive collection of slides.

A seasoned traveler, she has crossed the ocean 11 times and visited many countries -- "21 at the last count." Within the next year she's planning a return visit to Germany with her 78-year-old sister.

Her legal practice over the years has been mainly for members of the Dominican order and employes of the schools at Adrian, but she also takes her turn as court - appointed representative.

Right now she's in the process of winding up her cases so that another nun, Sister Loretta, can take over as attorney for the order.

Still finding plenty of excitement in city commission work, she feels she would like to see more women in politics, especially on a local level.

"There's so much to be done, and city government is close at hand," she said. "Women should not be so selfish with their time -- they could be more involved without neglecting their families."

MSU Chapel Setting For Rites

Katherine Kourtjian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Kourtjian of Fiddlers Green Avenue, Farmington, became the bride of Roger Anthony Gilroy in a May 19 ceremony in the Michigan State University alumni chapel.

MRS. ROGER GILROY (Katherine Kourtjian)

The bride's sisters, Kristine and Dawn Kourtjian, attended her as maid of honor and bridesmaid. Thomas Jeffery and Richard Parmalee were the bridegroom's attendants.

The bride is a recent graduate of Michigan State and is continuing studies there. Her husband also is a student at MSU. Both are working in the Lansing area.

After a short honeymoon in northern Michigan, they will make their home in Okemos.

Birthday Money Aids Pediatrics Playroom

The program was called "Project 50--Wa-No-Su Cares," and the girls participating all earned money to contribute.

A check for $325 was presented to Dr. Ruth Strang, chief of pediatrics at the hospital, by representatives of several groups. The girls also took along some starter toys and books for the playroom.

Dr. Strang said she would use the funds to buy a playhouse, books, games, dolls, a record player and records.

The Camp Fire Girls will continue their project by maintaining two depots for used toys and books to keep the young patients entertained.

Mrs. Harold Horen, a longtime Camp Fire member, headed the project.

Town Hall Asks Donation Requests

Organizations in the Observer area that need financial support for charitable projects are invited to request funds from the Northville Town Hall.

Each year the lecture series' advisory board allocates profits from its program for varied programs being conducted by local groups.

Requests should be made by June 2 and addressed to Mrs. Roy Mattison of the Northville Town Hall advisory board. The address is Box 93, Northville, 48164.

Organization officers who have questions about the allocation of funds may call Mrs. Harry Wagenschutz, 675 Randolph, Northville.

Volunteers Seek Items

Businesses are being asked to donate new or like-new items to an auction being planned for the benefit of the Metropolitan Society of Crippled Children and Adults.

It is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m., June 23. Unlike last year, used items are not being requested for the auction.

Volunteers will contact various businesses to ask for contributions. Anyone wishing to make a contribution may call the Metropolitan Society, 17330 Schaefer, Detroit. Donations are tax deductible.

Mrs. Bertram Shapero of Orchard Lake is chairman of the auction. Assisting her will be the Ford Motor Girls Club.

First Child

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy D. Lazarz of Redford Township announce the birth of their first child, Kimberly Ann, on March 28. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krawec of Westland and Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Lazarz of Detroit.

YWCA To Explore Nursery

Is there a need for a pre-kindergarten play day in the communities of Wayne-Westland?

Interested persons in Wayne, Westland, Garden City and Livonia are asked to contact Aileen Grey, program director, YWCA of Western Wayne County.

Miss Grey also is interested in hearing from volunteers who, if the plan succeeds, would help set up the program, find a suitable place for it and help select a qualified supervisor.

The nursery would be a place for children to learn to play together and it would allow mothers a couple of hours to shop, read or relax.

Dig

teacher came to our class on an archaeology day and found the kids discussing--heatedly and for 40 minutes--the method for disposing of sewage in our society. She looked from them to me and back again and I know she wondered who was craziest."

When their civilization was mapped, the girls at Mercy had a detailed description of its activities. A language committee, including Karen Knapp of Westland and Mary Morris of Detroit, worked out a language in symbols, complete with grammar.

Each burial had to include some sort of bi-lingual text, like the Rosetta Stone, so that it was possible for the other team to translate the language used on documents, pots, and coins.

"Our language committee broke their inscriptions in about five minutes," Sister Marjorie reported.

They also found a tape recording that they have determined was played backwards "so breaking it is going to be largely a mechanical matter."

"There were some objects we thought at first were coins," Sister Marjorie said, "but we know now they are some sort of commemorative medals."

Observer area girls who have participated in the project include Donna Solce of Redford Township and Eileen Hand, Wanita Whiting, Sheree Simpson and Jodi Yambor of Farmington.

When the dig is over and the final museum reports are in, Sister Marjorie will start preparing to go to Athens this summer for a six-week dig being sponsored by the American School of Classical Studies.

Archeology was her second minor when she earned a doctorate in classical studies at St. Louis University, and her enthusiasm for the subject has rubbed off on her students.

Last year, when she and five Mercy students attended the Junior Classical League visit to Rome, they made the opportunity to visit the city's Monte Testaccio.

"It's the original town dump," she said, "and we had a great time poking around. We found several stamped pots--I guess that's the Rome equivalent of no-return bottles, and we've had them on display in the school.

Equal Rights

"I've got 13 kids and I'm strongly in favor of families." He got a standing ovation from the audience.

A Grosse Pointe Farms housewife and mother, however, said the ERA would serve to strengthen the family.

"It wouldn't necessarily push women out into the work world, but it would open doors for them."

"Yes, it would open doors for them," commented an opponent of the ERA. "One john door, that is." She contended the ERA would, among other things, allow segregation of public facilities.

"There are already restrooms in restaurants marked 'Yours.'"

A speaker against ERA, describing herself as a professional wife and mother with a degree in common sense, said there's nothing wrong with some things being for men only.

"I don't want to be forced to work to support my family, and I don't want to be drafted and wind up in a foxhole somewhere.

"But I do like the door opened for me and my cigaret lighted."

Also speaking against ERA, Angela James of Waterford described the amendment as "the most rotten piece of legislation to come on the scene in a long time."

Mrs. Beebe said the ERA is favored by Gov. William Milliken, Attorney General Frank Kelley, U.S. Rep. Martha Griffiths (D-Detroit) and Marvin Stempien, former state representative.

"I'm not sure why this meeting is being held tonight," Mrs. Beebe said. "It's a dead issue, and to try to rescind it is a futile gesture."

Mrs. Beebe said the fears of opponents are based on misinformation and misunderstandings, along with misquotations from law reviews.

"Women don't have equal work and equal pay in this state or in any other state.

"I'm appalled at the flippancy demonstrated here tonight," Mrs. Beebe continued. "It's time women became concerned about other women and not just themselves."

Rep. Hunsinger retorted that the issue isn't dead and that nowhere did the court rule the ERA couldn't be rescinded.

Mrs. Stults attempt to speak brought boos from the audience, harsh verbiage from both sides and a red-faced chairman with a broken gavel.

Following that episode, Harriet Sawyer, representing the American Association of University Women, cautiously spoke in favor of the ERA, saying women are being kept out of higher paying jobs and promotions.

"It should be based on degree, not sex."

Other proponents of the ERA present were representatives of the Michigan League of Women Voters, the Michigan Democratic Party Women's Caucus and a male member of a Catholic lay group

A speaker in favor of rescinding said the ERA was a weapon to stir up discontent.

"Someday, Mom's going to find herself legislated right out of the kitchen," she said. "But I won't accept the ERA until the good Lord lets the men have the babies."

ERA opponents contend the amendment would cause a breakdown of family structure, subject women to the draft, subject women to dangerous and undesirable employment, segregate public facilities and constitute an invasion of privacy.

ERA proponents contend it will strengthen the family, give women equal work and pay, allow them veterans' benefits, raise the status of women and offer a step toward true equality.

Following the hearing, when asked whether she still supported rescission of the ERA, Rep. Hunsinger replied, "I'm for equal pay for equal rights."

Super Salad, Burgers Make Memorial Day Memorable

By ELLY

The true outdoorsmen have been cooking out almost year round, but for the traditionalist it's time now for the first picnic.

Although the fine art of barbecuing has achieved the gourmet stage, it seems that to most of us, an honest-to-goodness picnic means hotdogs, hamburgers, potato salad and baked beans.

Potato salad can be a mushy, tasteless disaster. This can be the result of overcooking the potatoes. Do let them chill before dicing. Add green onions, chopping leaves and all. Be generous with the hard cooked eggs. I like to separate the yolks and whites. Chop the whites with the potatoes and add the mayonnaise to the mashed yolks.

TOMATO TOPPING

BUBBLY BLUE TOPPING

CORNY TOPPING

PRETZEL CRUSTED BURGERS

1 small onion, chopped
1 t. salt
¼ t. garlic powder
1 can tomato sauce
2 c. finely crushed pretzels

Combine meat, eggs, onion, pepper, salt, garlic powder, tomato sauce and one cup pretzel crumbs. Mix well and shape into patties about ¾-inch thick. Roll patties in remaining crumbs. Grill six inches above grey coals until brown and crusted on both sides. Serve on toasted hamburger buns with desired condiments.

PATIO SALAD

1 c. boiling water
1½ t. grated lemon rind
2 T. lemon juice
Dash of salt
2 c. applesauce
1 c. diced celery
¼ c. diced pimiento
4 c. cottage cheese

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; stir in lemon rind, lemon juice and salt. Add applesauce, celery and pimiento; mix well. Pour into five-cup ring mold which has been rinsed with cold water. Chill until set. Unmold just before serving and fill center with cottage cheese.

PRETZEL CRUSTED BURGERS have a crisp crust which helps keep the juices inside the patty.

Girl Scout Council Elects 2 Livonians

Edward V. McNally and Mrs. Ernest L. Price, both of Livonia, were elected to key volunteer positions by the Girl Scouts of Metropolitan Detroit at their annual meeting.

PEARL 'PAT' McCARTHY, a real estate saleswoman for Hickory Hill Realty in Livonia, has been named "sales associate of the year" for 1972 by the Michigan Real Estate Association. She has been in real estate for nearly 20 years, and since she lost her husband, has had to be breadwinner as well as mother to nine children. She has 11 grandchildren. She has also been active in the St. Mary's of Redford Catholic parish Altar Society and in "as many PTA groups as she could get to."

Mrs. Price was elected to the nomination committee. She is Wayne County community director for the National Foundation - March of Dimes.

Both will serve three - year terms.

Thanks badges were presented to six adult volunteers and special recognition was given to more than 235 cadette scouts who earned their first class awards. This is the highest honor the girls can receive in scouting.

Approximately 800 scouts, their families and friends attended the meeting in the Rackham Building. Charles A. Smith, associate professor of English at Western Michigan University, was the speaker.

GOLD SEAL WINE

from the Champagne Grape

Gold Seal Catawba Wine--Pink, White and Red--is a natural, mellow, versatile American Premium Table Wine that is made with genuine Catawba Grapes. Serve it anytime --chilled or at room temperature. The Catawba Grape is one of the mainstays used for making champagne and is therefore often referred to as "the champagne" grape. Catawba Grapes have been known since about 1823 when they were found growing along the banks of the Catawba River in North Carolina. Catawba is a true American grape variety that is not grown in Europe. They produce a fragrant, soft and elegant wine which made the champagnes of New York famous. You will enjoy these three natural, refreshing and light-boiled wines --Catawba Pink, Catawba White and Catawba Red--before, with and after your meals.

The Stroller

By W. W. EDGAR

"You fellows must have a great time. You meet such interesting people."

These words, sometimes spoken with a trace of friendly envy, often have greeted the Stroller while being exposed to a group for the first time.

"You get to mingle with the greats and near - greats and you fellows must have an enjoyable time taking in all the big events – the theater, sporting extravaganzas, the big political rallies and the big banquets. What a life."

True. But wait a minute. There is another side to the life of the fellows who stroll along the journalistic trail. And it isn't all peaches and cream.

The Stroller had a chance to dwell on this phase of his daily journeys in quest of the journalistic nuggets, when one of his new - found friends asked:

"In all this glamour, do you ever meet people you don't like -- or have no special reason to like?"

This seemed to stun the young listener until The Stroller revealed some of his experiences of a half century of meeting these "interesting" people.

After walking with the kings and queens of the sports world, sweating it out in the smelly gyms where fighters were training and in the dressing rooms after big athletic events and mingling with business, civic and industrial leaders, he formed a dislike for two groups.

First, there's the group that always slides up to you like gum shoe detectives and whispers a "hot tip" and then cautions, "Remember, this is all off the record."

Then there's the group that talks with reckless abandon at every opportunity, especially at public meetings, and then protests, "I was misquoted," when they see their remarks in print.

Some years ago when one of Detroit's major golf clubs was making a bid for national recognition, it set out in great secrecy to obtain the services of a nationally known professional.

Through the various grapevines, The Stroller learned the identity of the pro and confronted the club officers with the name.

Then they added, "Why not hold the story until Sunday and then all you fellows will have it."

The Stroller agreed. Meanwhile, he prepared a major story with pictures for the Sunday editions. Then it happened.

After several days went by, the golf officials called early in the morning to say, "Our pro just arrived and the other papers won't hold. We're sorry."

That afternoon when he reported for work, his publisher – Mr. John S. Knight, the well respected editor, sent for him.

When told what happened – that The Stroller had entered into a gentlemen's agreement only to have it backfire, Knight leaned back in his chair and smiled.

"Well," he said, "I'm happy to know that you didn't break a confidence. But I guess you learned a lesson. Never talk 'off the record.' When persons speak to you, it is for publication."

The Stroller has followed that advice ever since -- and never has been caught again.

When he was manager of the Detroit Tigers, the late Mickey Cochrane was the chief claimant of being mistreated. So he always was placed on the list of those personalities with whom you had to be careful.

On the other hand, you occasionally meet fellows who stand by their word -- come hell or high water.

The Stroller recalls an incident years ago when Bucky Harris, a Tiger manager than whom there was none finer, called one of his rival managers an SOB.

When asked the next day if he had been misquoted, Bucky answered, "No. I called him an SOB yesterday and I still think he's one today."

Faculty Parents See Their Sons Graduate

The Schoolcraft College commencement had an unexpected and touching program addition when William A. Ryan, who has taught at the college since its beginning, stepped up to present a diploma to his son.

James H. Ryan, 21, who shares with his dad the nickname "Rocky," completed a double major, in music and earth science. The latter is his father's field as well.

Allen L. Covert, son of Mrs. Christine Covert who instructs in secretarial science, was awarded a degree in political science.

The elder Ryan, who heads the combined geography, geology and physics department at Schoolcraft, asked to be allowed to make the presentation to his son and the administration agreed.

The Ryans make their home at 14226 Blue Skies.

Covert, of 14233 Cranston, plans to continue his political science study at the University of Michigan and eventually go into government service.

He already is gaining practical experience by serving as Democratic precinct delegate and as campaign manager for Mark McQuesten in his race for the Wayne County Commission.

Ryan will continue his music and earth science studies at Western Michigan University. He was drummer for the all star jazz band at Stevenson High School which came in second in state competition and was picked for the all-star state band.

He has been teaching at Hamill Music Co. two nights a week for the past two years and plays in combo bands on weekends.

He hopes to play with professional bands for a time, then go into teaching, first at the high school level and then college or university.

Earth science is a long time hobby which he decided to study seriously in order to have "something to fall back on" if need should arise.

Covert spent one year at the University of Tulsa after graduation from Bentley High and before entering Schoolcraft. He went there on a four-year football scholarship but decided sports took too much time away from his studies.

"It was a maturing experience," his mother said. "It gave him an opportunity to know where he wanted to set his sights."

TO THE GAS CUSTOMERS OF CONSUMERS POWER COMPANY

NOTICE OF GAS RATE HEARING AND NOTICE OF HEARING ON MOTION FOR PARTIAL AND IMMEDIATE RATE RELIEF

On April 18, 1973, Consumers Power Company filed an application with the Michigan Public Service Commission with supporting testimony and exhibits in Case No. U-4331, which requests authority to amend its gas rates so as to increase its gas revenues by approximately $50,400,000 on an annual basis and, at the same time Consumers Power Company filed a Motion for Partial and Immediate Rate Relief which seeks authority, on an interim basis to amend its gas rates so as to increase its gas revenues by approximately $33,729,000 on an annual basis. On April 18, 1973, Consumers Power Company also filed an application in Case No. U-4332 with the Commission for authority to increase its rates for the sale of electric energy. At the hearing hereinafter noticed, the application to increase electric rates, Case No. U-4332, will be heard concurrently with the application to increase gas rates, Case No. U-4331. In its application, Consumers Power Company has stated that significant increases in the cost of capital, gas, taxes, wages, equipment, materials and supplies have had a serious adverse impact upon the earnings level of its gas business and that it has not been able to attain the level of earnings in its gas business found to be reasonable in the prior gas rate order of the Michigan Public Service Commission.

The Michigan Public Service Commission has scheduled hearings on the applications filed in Case Nos. U-4331 and U-4332 and on the Motion for Partial and Immediate Rate Relief in Case No. U-4331 and has ordered that notice be given that:

A. A prehearing conference be held at 9:30 a.m. on June 6, 1973, in the offices of the Commission, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan 48913, for the purpose of exploring and, if possible, agreeing upon matters which will expedite the proceedings in Cases No. U-4331 and U-4332, including the following:

1. Determining the parties to the proceeding, the nature of their appearance and the positions they are taking in the proceeding.
2. Simplifying and defining the issues.
3. Obtaining admissions as to, and stipulations of, the facts not remaining in dispute, the authenticity of documents, and matters of public record.
4. Determining the number and identity of witnesses.
5. Specifying the schedule for the exchange of proposed exhibits and written testimony, and the reduction of oral testimony to written form.
6. Establishing procedures for the hearing.
8. Expediting any other matters that may aid in the orderly conduct of the hearing and the disposition of the proceedings.

B. A public hearing will be held at 9:00 a.m. on July 2, 1973, in the Auditorium of the Law Building, 525 W. Ottawa, Lansing, Michigan for the purpose of taking statements from ratepayers and representatives of consumer groups. Hearings will commence at 9:00 a.m. on July 3, 1973 and continue July 5 and 6, the week of July 16 and the week of July 23, 1973, in the offices of the Commission, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan 48913 for the purpose of offering in evidence the direct cases of Consumers Power Company in Case Nos. U-4331 and U-4332, and cross-examining such direct cases of Consumers Power Company.

C. A public hearing will be held on Consumers Power Company's Motion for Partial and Immediate Rate Relief at an appropriate time during these rate proceedings following the conclusion of the cross-examination of the direct case of Consumers Power Company and the receiving of the report of the Staff of the Commission. Notice of the precise date, time and place of said public hearing will be mailed to all participants of record in the July 2, 1973 public hearing and in the hearings commencing on July 3, 1973 in Case No. U-4331.

D. The Commission, on its own motion during the course of these proceedings, Case Nos. U-4331 and U-4332, will carry on an investigation and hearing into the existing rates, charges, revenue deficiencies or excesses, services, practices, procedures and operations of Consumers Power Company, and this investigation and hearing will not necessarily be confined to matters contained in Consumers Power Company's applications but will include all matters pertaining to the reasonableness and justness of its rates, charges, operations and practices as may be necessary to enable the Commission to determine whether the existing or proposed rates and charges are unreasonable and excessive and should be reduced or altered.

E. Any party seeking to intervene in this proceeding, in accordance with Rule 11 of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, shall file with the Commission, at least five (5) days prior to June 6, 1973, an original and eleven copies of the petition to intervene together with proof of service upon Consumers Power Company.

F. Consumers Power Company, on or before June 6, 1973, shall serve upon each intervening party a copy of the written direct testimony of its proposed witnesses and proposed exhibits as filed with the Commission, and proof of service shall be filed with the Commission on or before June 6, 1973.

G. Public hearings shall be held, in addition to the dates aforementioned, at such times and adjourned dates as shall be determined by the presiding officer until the matter has been fully heard.

H. The rate increases described in this notice have been requested by Consumers Power Company. The Michigan Public Service Commission may either grant or deny the requested increases or may grant lesser or greater increases than those requested.

Jurisdiction of the Commission in this matter is pursuant to § 4 of Act 419, P.A. 1919, as amended (M.C.L.A. § 460.54); Sections 4, 6 and 6a of Act 3, P.A. 1939, as amended (M.C.L.A. §§ 460.4, 460.6, 460.6a); and the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, 1954 Administrative Code, as amended, No. 54, R 460.11 et seq.

TYPICAL ELEMENTS OF A REAL ESTATE TRANSACTION COMPARING TWO METHODS

J. L. HUDSON Real Estate Approach

Invariably, the professional approach results in a prompt sales transaction because it is designed to accomplish that specific goal. All proper emphasis is concentrated in the correct direction.

Do It Yourself Approach

The primary obstacle to overcome, when attempting to sell your own home, is a timely and difficult task the buyer encounters when attempting to locate financing sources. This is especially true when the buyer must dispose of a present home first. The seller, of course, is subject to this buyer's problem.

There's a bank in your neighborhood that will approve your mortgage promptly, then set up the closing in less than two weeks.

It's your neighborhood NBD office.

You'll get word promptly on the approval of your mortgage. Then, in as little as two weeks after that, we'll set up your closing for you at an NBD office convenient to you.

What it adds up to is, when you get a mortgage from NBD, you're not kept waiting. You're not kept waiting weeks on end to hear whether or not you've got your mortgage. You're not kept waiting to close on your new home.

5 Back 'Open Government' Reforms

An Observer Roundup

Five Observerland state legislators indicated strong support for "open government" reforms in their answers to a survey drawn up by Common Cause of Michigan, a non-profit citizens lobby.

Common Cause surveyed all Michigan lawmakers on four topics: Secrecy, campaign finances, lobbying disclosures and conflicts of interest.

Purpose was to determine how much support exists in the Legislature for reform measures. Four bills pertaining to these areas have been introduced by members of the special Senate committee on ethics.

Six local legislators responded to the questionnaire.

Indicating support for many of Common Cause's proposals were Sen. William Faust (D-Westland) and Reps. Raymond Smit (R-Ann Arbor), Joseph Forbes (D-Oak Park), John Bennett (D-Redford Township) and John Markes (D-Westland).

Six local lawmakers didn't answer the survey. Sen. David Plawecki (D-Dearborn Heights) returned the questionnaire unanswered. Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) didn't reply, and Sen. Daniel Cooper (D-Oak Park) refused to answer it.

Rep. R. Robert Geake (R-Northville) refused to answer it and Reps. William Keith (D-Garden City) and Thomas Brown (D-Westland) didn't reply. (See story on this page.)

Bennett agreed with 10 questions but didn't answer two.

The questions were:

1. Will you vote to require all state legislative committees to vote and meet in open? Faust, Bennett, Markes, Forbes and Smit said "yes" and Baker didn't answer.

2. Would you vote to open all party caucuses? Smit, Baker and Forbes said "no." Bennett and Markes didn't answer and Faust agreed.

3. Do you favor requiring the filing of expenditure and contribution statements before as well as after all elections? Agreeing were Faust, Bennett, Smit and Forbes. Baker disagreed and Markes didn't answer.

4. Do you favor a limit on individual campaign contributions? Affirmative answers were from Faust, Bennett, Markes, Smit and Baker. Forbes said "no."

5. Do you favor public financing of any election costs? Replying "no" were Faust, Smit, Baker and Forbes. Bennett said "yes" and Markes didn't answer.

6. Do you favor full public disclosure of all activities and expenditures by lobbyists seeking to influence legislative or executive officials? Replying "yes" were Faust, Bennett, Markes, Forbes, Smit and Baker.

7. Would you require such reports to be filed regularly throughout the legislative session? Replying "yes" were Faust, Bennett, Markes, Forbes, Smit and Baker.

8. Do you favor requiring employers of lobbyists to register? Replying "yes" were Faust, Markes, Forbes and Smit. Baker and Bennett didn't answer.

9. Do you favor a law requiring annual public disclosure of incomes, financial holdings and interests by members of the Legislature and their staffs and by high officials of the executive branch? Replying "yes" were Faust, Bennett, Markes and Forbes. Baker said "no" and Smit didn't answer.

10. Will you voluntarily publicly disclose your financial status and sources of income? Answering "yes" were Faust, Forbes and Bennett. Baker said "no" and Smit and Markes didn't answer.

11. Will you support establishment of an independent commission charged with enforcing ethics and lobbying legislation? Replying "yes" were Faust, Forbes, Bennett, Smit and Baker. Markes didn't answer.

12. Would you like to develop and cosponsor legislation in one or more of these areas? Replying "yes" were Faust, Forbes, Markes and Bennett. Baker said "no" and Smit didn't reply.

Cooper, Geake Say Survey Badly Worded

By STEVE BARNABY

LANSING

Two Observerland lawmakers were among eight state legislators who refused, in writing, to answer a 12-question survey sent by Common Cause of Michigan dealing with reporting procedures of activities and finances of the Legislature and lobbying groups.

Taking exception to the questionnaire were State Sen. Daniel Cooper (D-Oak Park), whose district includes part of Southfield, and Rep. Robert Geake (R-Northville), whose district includes much of Livonia.

Common Cause Michigan is the state contingent of Common Cause, a non-partisan citizens' lobby with more than 250,000 members nationally and 6,000 statewide.

"The Common Cause questionnaire was particularly troublesome because the questions were worded in such a way that if you didn't answer 'yes' to every one of them, it would make you look like you were out to hide something from the public," said Geake.

He said that no legislator could honestly answer yes to all the questions and follow up with a positive response on the floor until seeing the actual wording of the bill or resolution.

He pointed to the move to have the complete minutes of the House of Representative's 33 standing committees printed in the House journal.

"I oppose the measure because the cost to the taxpayers would be ridiculously high, and the committee minutes are already open to the public anyway. Yet a vote against the printing of all that trivia could be interpreted by some as a vote to conceal something from the public," says Geake.

He said it cost taxpayers more than $87,000 to have last year's 3,400 page journal printed.

Cooper joined Geake in the complaint that the questionnaire was vague in its "yes" and "no" form.

"I probably agreed with the intent of 80 per cent of the questions, but saying 'no' doesn't mean a person means 'no' to certain aspects of the question. I can't accept a 'yes' and 'no' format," says Cooper.

He said that he had been around too long to fall into something that could inevitably be used against him.

"I called and wrote to Common Cause, agreeing to grant an interview to anyone from the organization as long as I could explain my answers," said Cooper.

Colleges To Get More State Aid

An Observer Roundup

Local senators have supported a bill to increase community college appropriations from $57.3 million in 1972-73 to $65.7 million in 1973-74.

The appropriations bill is based on student increases of 3.3 per cent for Oakland Community College, four per cent for Schoolcraft College and 18.5 per cent for Wayne County Community College.

Pursell chaired the appropriations subcommittee which reported out the bill, which is $2.6 million more than Gov. Milliken's recommendation.

Wayne County Community college will receive $5.1 million because of an anticipated student increase to 9,300 from last year's enrollment of 7,000.

The student enrollment figures are "full time equated students." These are arrived at by dividing the total number of students by 15 credit hours, which are considered a full class load.

Pursell said that community college enrollments are expected to increase because of increases in university tuitions and increases in part time students.

Abortion Bill Is Approved By Senators

The bill was adopted in a 29-5 vote last week and sent to the House for approval.

Voting for it were Sens. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), Daniel Cooper (D-Oak Park), David Plawecki (D-Dearborn Heights) and William Faust (D-Westland).

The bill also requires that all abortions be performed by licensed physicians or osteopaths and that abortions in the fourth through sixth month of pregnancy be performed in a hospital rather than a clinic or other medical facility.

It would be a felony to perform a non-therapeutic abortion in the last three months of pregnancy.

Reprinted from The Detroit News April 12, 1973

By LOU MLECZKO
News Consumer Writer

Consumers who have been unhappy with rising utility rates have received some good news from Philco-Ford, Inc.

Refrigerator-freezers built by Philco are now featuring a new one-piece inner wall, which company officials say will reduce consumption of electricity from 33 to 54 percent compared to other units with the same storage capacity.

Robert W. Klein, district distributor manager for Philco, said the new units use less electricity because they have smaller compressors and operate less frequently.

You are the consumer

Philco said the new units hold cold air 50 percent longer than all other models.

'Be It Ever So Humble...'
'Most Everyone Wants A Home

A Prayer For A Little Home

GOD SEND us a little home,
To come back to, when we roam.

Low walls and fluted tiles,
Wide windows, a view for miles

Small white beds upstairs--

Great talk in little nooks

One picture on each wall,
Not many things at all.

God send us a little ground,
Tall trees stand round.

Homely flowers in brown sod,
Overhead, thy stars, O God.

God bless thee, when winds blow,
Our home, and all we know.

FLORENCE BONE

Home Sweet Home

'MID PLEASURES and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home;
A charm from the sky seems to hallow us there,
Home, home, sweet, sweet home!

Oh, give me my lowly thatched cottage again!
The birds singing gayly, that came at my call --
Give me them --and the peace of mind, dearer than all!
Home, home, sweet, sweet home!

I gaze on the moon as I tread the drear wild,
And feel that my mother now thinks of her child,
As she looks on that moon from our own cottage door
Home, home, sweet, sweet home!

And the caress of a mother to soothe and beguile!
Let others delight 'mid new pleasure to roam,
But give me, oh, give me, the pleasures of home,
Home, home, sweet, sweet home!
To thee I'll return, overburdened with care;
The heart's dearest solace will smile on me there;
No more from that cottage again will I roam;
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home.
Home, home, sweet, sweet home!

JOHN HOWARD PAYNE

IF HOME IS WHERE THE HEART IS, then whether you own a colonial or ranch, tri-level or bi-level doesn't make a whole lot of difference. What is important is the feeling of happiness and contentment emanating from wherever you live --bungalow or mansion, so the poets say.

Home

IT TAKES a heap o' livin' in a house t' make it home,

Afore it's home there's got t' be a heap o' livin' in it'
Within the walls there's got t' be some babies born, and then
And gradjerly, as time goes on, ye find ye wouldn't part
With anything they ever used --they've grown into yer heart:
An' in the stillness o' the night t' see Death's angel come,
For these are scenes that grip the heart, an' when yer tears are dried,
An' tuggin' at ye always are the pleasant memories

Even the roses round the porch must blossom year by year
Afore they 'come a part o' ye, suggestin' someone dear
Who used t' love 'em long ago, and trained 'em just t' run

"GOOD INVESTMENT"

Trouble Saving Money? Why Not Buy Real Estate?

If a family has trouble saving money, the United Northwestern Realty Association and The Western Wayne County Board of Realtors advises they make their biggest lifetime expenditure and buy real estate.

The realtors point out that buying a home is one of the best investments a family can make. "It's a built-in savings account when savings are hardest to put aside," notes Realtor® President William W. Bowman, president of the UNRA/WWOCB.

Realtors® cite from their experience that house payments are one "sure source of savings" which are most systematically maintained than any other form of payment. "There are always new shoes to buy, dentist bills to pay, and tires needed on the car," said Bowman. "But in the minds of most families, these expenses come after the house payment."

Realtors, licensed brokers who adhere to a stringent code of ethics as members of state and local boards of the National Association of Realtors, are quick to point out that the practical reason for buying a home is only partly the high rate of return when a home is sold on money funneled into mortgage payments. "The increase in value of the average home coupled with income tax deductions provide a compelling reason for families to invest their money in home ownership," Bowman said.

TO FURTHER ILLUSTRATE the sound economics of owning a home, the realtors provide the following example of owning a "typical" home --a $25,000 house financed under a 30-year Federal Housing Administration loan at a 7½% interest rate --and the money saved in one year.

Assuming FHA appraises the house as worth every cent, a family may receive maximum financing of $23,050, which amounts to a $1,950 down payment plus closing costs. The FHA monthly payment, including mortgage insurance, would come to $178.09. To that would be added taxes and insurance of roughly $50. Total payments, according to the board/association's example, would amount to $228.09 a month.

Of that total payment, $20.26 will actually go toward paying off the loan. While it does not sound like much, the amount going into equity increases by 11 cents each month. By the year's end, it totals $244.54.

Realtors point out that increases in property values during the past several years have averaged from 3 to 5% annually, sometimes more. Based on a conservative 3% increase in value, the home has appreciated by $750 in one year.

"Add that to the $244.54, and the cash value of the investment has risen $944.54," explains Bowman. "And there's more. Taxes and interest are deductible from income tax."

According to the realtors an arbitrary but reasonable figure for taxes can be set at $500. Interest per month is $144.06, reducing each month by 11 cents as the balance goes down. That comes to $1,727.40. Assuming a family is in the 20% tax bracket, which is average, the refund from that income tax deduction would be 20% of $1,727.40, or $345.48.

THE ACTUAL SAVINGS, note area realtors, is $111.67 per month. Deducted from a monthly payment of $228.09, and it's actually costing $116.42 per month to live in a $25,000 house.

"If the same money went into an investment for a 5% return, it would earn only $120 in a year, taxed as income," said President Bowman. "Each month and year, the built-in savings account mounts, with an unbeatable 'interest rate' of increases in property values coupled with income tax deductions."

Real Estate Board Predicts Banner Year For Home Buying

With a record volume of available properties, a higher proportion of qualified buyers, and more readily available supply of mortgage money, 1973 should be a banner year for real estate.

These are the conclusions drawn in a recently published research paper generated by the National Association of Real Estate Boards' Department of Research. The paper explores many facets of the real estate industry and copies of it will be available to any interested members.

Consumers Will Find Wide Choice In Housing Markets

Innovation in the structure of housing markets, particularly mortgage financing, is providing opportunity for an increasing number of young families to put into effect plans for moving up the housing scale. Factors of both supply and demand point to a vigorous year for new as well as existing home sales. At the same time the inventory of units available for rent in most areas has been rising and, in the months ahead, families preferring to rent will have a variety of choices open to them.

Existing Home Sales Lead Market

Sales of existing homes will approach 3.5 million units this year, more than two and one-half times the rate of new home sales. The remarkable strength of this market can be attributed to many favorable factors which will continue throughout 1973.

Growth in income and employment has enhanced opportunities for economic and geographic mobility. For example, indicators of labor force mobility are higher and the Census Index of Consumer Intentions to buy a home was up sharply. The October Index stood at 123.5 compared to 110.1 in July. The Index also shows consumers are more confident in their ability to maintain and improve their incomes and more willing to enter into the long-term commitment associated with buying a home.

Of particular importance to a vigorous real estate market is the young buyer. Approximately one-half the expected home purchases will be by buyers under 35 years of age. Having formed families and established careers, they are in a position to assume the responsibility and advantages of home ownership. Most will satisfy their housing needs by acquiring an existing home.

The availability of mortgage credit and the growth of low down payment conventional financing will enhance all sectors of the housing market. They will prove particularly advantageous to the young buyers who can avoid the delay of accumulating a substantial equity.

Housing Inventory Will Be Well Maintained

Currently, the housing inventory totals approximately 72 million units. Diverse and adaptable, the vast reservoir of housing in most communities capable of meeting a variety of needs as changes take place in the economy.

In mid-1972 expenditures for maintenance, repairs, and improvements, were at a record annual rate of $17 billion. Such expenditures will grow an additional 10 per cent in 1973 as property owners continue to upgrade and preserve the liveability of existing homes.

Mortgage Market Will Be Favorable

The flow of funds between savers and borrowers will be more orderly than at any time in the recent past and, with mortgage credit more readily accessible, interest rates should remain at current levels.

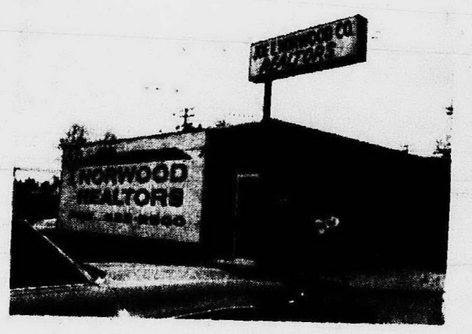

Home buyers seeking conventional loans will continue to find a broad range of terms available and a greater opportunity to match long-term mortgage commitments more closely to their financial position.

In some areas financing for income property may be more difficult. Though funds are available, higher rental vacancies are making lenders more cautious. In these areas lenders will be more selective and more prone to confine lending activity to very well-situated buildings.

Competitive demand for long-term funds portends well for the mortgage market. While personal savings have declined from a year ago, thrift institutions have been receiving a greater share of the savings dollar.

Record cash flows in the business sector will minimize their need to borrow in the capital markets. Greater reliance on internal sources of funds is already evident. Corporate borrowing of long-term funds during the first three quarters of 1972 was well below the level for the same period a year ago, while corporate holdings of financial assets reached a new peak, nearly $7 billion higher than last year.

State and local government bond issues have declined about four per cent during the first 10 months of this year. These governments are experiencing less budgetary strain because of increased tax revenues, declines in school construction needs, and benefits from the new Federal revenue-sharing program. If the Federal government is successful in holding its budget deficit to this year's level, we can expect an adequate supply of long-term credit at least through 1973.

Our building doesn't talk, but if you want to talk Real Estate and find out the Do's and Dont's, this is the place to come. Our people are what makes the difference.

Realtor McCarthy Given Honor

Pat was chosen for her participation in many local, state, and national activities including an enormous amount of work with the Women's Council and in educational affairs.

Part of the selection was also made on the basis of her success in the real estate business in the face of many potential setbacks, any one of which could have ended her career.

Widowhood, a large young family to raise, serious illness including a heart ailment and a bout with cancer, and financial uncertainty all plagued Pat. But, through dedication and faith, she prevailed.

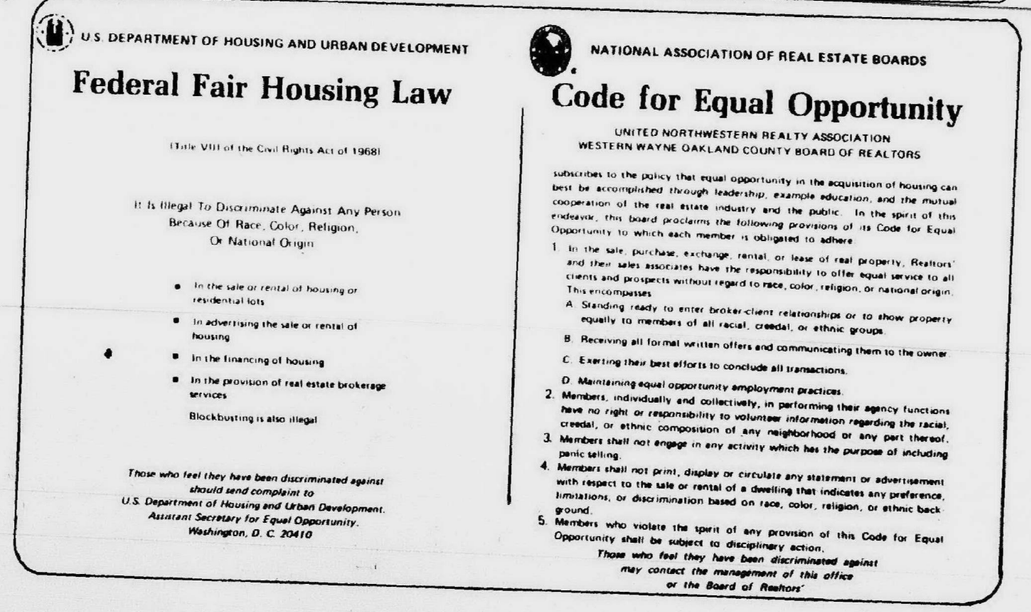

It is more than fitting that this remarkable woman should be chosen to be the first recipient of this, the highest honor that can be given to a real estate sales person in the State of Michigan.

Code for Equal Opportunity

UNITED NORTHWESTERN REALTY ASSOCIATION
WESTERN WAYNE OAKLAND COUNTY BOARD OF REALTORS

subscribes to the policy that equal opportunity in the acquisition of housing can best be accomplished through leadership, example education, and the mutual cooperation of the real estate industry and the public. In the spirit of this endeavor, this board proclaims the following provisions of its Code for Equal Opportunity to which each member is obligated to adhere.

1. In the sale, purchase, exchange, rental, or lease of real property, Realtors and their sales associates have the responsibility to offer equal service to all clients and prospects without regard to race, color, religion, or national origin. This encompasses:
   A. Standing ready to enter broker-client relationships or to show property equally to members of all racial, creedal, or ethnic groups.
   B. Receiving all formal written offers and communicating them to the owner.
   C. Exerting their best efforts to conclude all transactions.
   D. Maintaining equal opportunity employment practices.
2. Members, individually and collectively, in performing their agency functions have no right or responsibility to volunteer information regarding the racial, creedal, or ethnic composition of any neighborhood or any part thereof.
3. Members shall not engage in any activity which has the purpose of inducing panic selling.
4. Members shall not print, display or circulate any statement or advertisement with respect to the sale or rental of a dwelling that indicates any preference, limitations, or discrimination based on race, color, religion, or ethnic background.
5. Members who violate the spirit of any provision of this Code for Equal Opportunity shall be subject to disciplinary action.

Those who feel they have been discriminated against may contact the management of this office or the Board of Realtors

The following policy on equal opportunity was adopted at the National Association of Real Estate Board (NAREB) Convention in November, 1972.

We subscribe to the policy that equal opportunity in the acquisition of housing can best be achieved through leadership, observance of law, education, and the mutual cooperation of the real estate industry and the public and through a free and open housing market. We, therefore, have formulated a Code for Equal Opportunity for adoption by local boards of Realtors whose members pledge to offer equal service to all clients or prospective clients without regard to race, color, religion, or national origin, and to refrain from any activity which has the purpose of inducing panic selling.

We note that under the pretext of discouraging blockbusting or panic selling certain anti-solicitation and anti-sign ordinances have been adopted which have as their true purpose the inhibition of a free and open housing market. We, therefore, oppose such statutes, ordinances, regulations, or rules which would have the effect of denying any person the right to sell, purchase, manage, or rent, or any real estate licensee the right to solicit the sale, purchase, management, or rental of real property.

The Michigan Real Estate Association has also adopted this code and urges all local Boards of Realtors to make it part of their provisions with the same full force and effect as the Code of Ethics, By-Laws, and Rules and Regulations.

Failure to comply can lead to appropriate disciplinary action including fine, suspension, or expulsion. The new code is additional to the previous statement on equal opportunity in housing adopted May 28, 1969 and given wide distribution since that time.

The Chamberlain Way Is.....

A Philosophy

The Chamberlain Philosophy began 25 years ago when Bud Chamberlain opened his first office in Royal Oak. From the very beginning he was committed to building a reputation throughout the community of honesty and professionalism. In addition, a major business goal has been to offer the BEST real estate counsel possible anywhere in the communities we serve. This philosophy, and the endless list of satisfied clients it has helped produce, has built 23 offices now serving over 50 communities. What does the growth of Chamberlain mean to YOU?

We hope it exemplifies our stability and our ability to serve YOU best. We sincerely hope it will chart your path to our door and that we may merit your confidence when next you need the BEST real estate counsel possible.

Basic Philosophy? Of course! And the everyday practice of this basic philosophy benefits YOU first, and thereby us as well.

Surveys Show:

'Little Woman' Prime Mover In House Buying Decision

Surveys show that the wife is the prime mover in the decision to buy a new home.

The husband's motivation can be very different (he may even be strongly opposed to buying), and unless these differences can be resolved, the result will probably be no sale.

Three stages identify the basic housing markets: Newly-wed, First House and the Upgrade stage. Here are summaries of the findings regarding the husband and wife's state of mind at each stage:

NEWLY-WED STAGE:

Respond favorably to the idea of "being your own boss," and to the opportunity to furnish and/or decorate a home to their own tastes.

Primary Concerns: Privacy has a very strong appeal, expressed in isolation from other people. Maintenance chores and the responsibilities of house ownership are repugnant to newlyweds; this is why 70% of these families are renters. Pleasing each other is one of the strongest goals. Both respond to the idea that the other "deserves nothing but the best". A place to have fun together is very appealing to this group.

FIRST HOUSE STAGE:

Primary Concerns: Children are the focal point. The house is first and foremost a place to bring up children. Image of the neighborhood as a "safe place to raise children", proximity to good schools, playgrounds, traffic safety, are important. Areas like recreation rooms should be stressed because of their use by children, not adults.

Privacy now means a way for members of the family to get away from one another; wife sees the master bedroom for the husband-wife relationship at night, and for sewing, ironing, etc. during the day. Husband sees the master bedroom as one room the children will never enter.

Pride of Ownership is very strong. Men like the challenge of improving and adding to the house; women now consider the home the center of their existence.

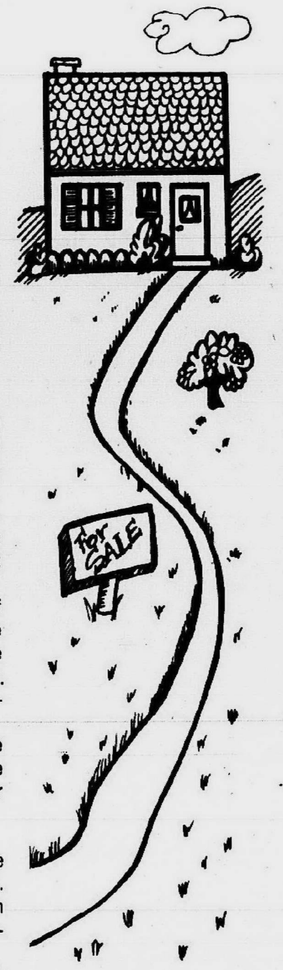

UP-GRADE STAGE:

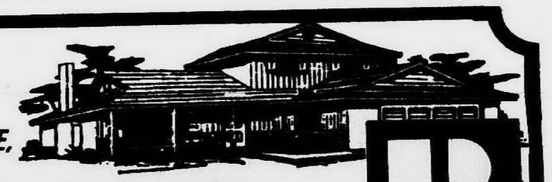

Husband doesn't want to move at all, but wife thinks he should buy her a bigger, better house. The decision to buy rests in large part now on how discontented the wife is with the inconveniences of her present house.

Primary Concerns: Newness is a virtue; both like the idea of less work to keep it up. Community is now of more concern than the house itself; as children become teenagers, anxiety about the neighborhood increases. Privacy now ranked much higher by the husband than the wife.

"But wouldn't the local zoning laws have prevented him from building a house of straw in the first place?"

"HOW'S THE REAL ESTATE BUSINESS?"

Realtors Cooperate By Long Distance

In a recent case, both buyer and seller were served well, three real estate companies made sizable commissions and a number of people in two states -- Florida and Michigan -- were impressed with the way realtors conduct themselves.

Realtor Dick Baker paced his Astro Realty office in Clearwater, Florida as he and his client waited impatiently for his telephone to ring. The client owned a group of commercial store buildings in Plymouth, Michigan and had listed them through Baker's Astro Realty.

Baker had subsequently enlisted the help of Ken Fisher with Earl Keim of Plymouth to assist him in the sale of the property. Fisher put the listing on the UNRA Multi-List where Realtor Ray Pope, owner of Hickory Hill Realty in Livonia first saw the listing.

IT HAPPENED THAT Realtor Pope had a prospective buyer who had been looking for a commercial complex such as this. A preliminary call to Realtor Baker in Florida disclosed that two previous telephone offers on the property had been rejected.

Not wanting an opportunity like this to slip away, Pope called Baker at his office in Clearwater and asked that Baker and his client wait at Baker's office for a four o'clock call from Pope -- the idea being to be able to negotiate an agreement with the seller present.

Now it was nearly four o'clock and every time the telephone rang, Realtor Baker and his client expected it to be the call from Pope. The call never came --instead, to the shock of both men, Realtor Pope, at precisely four o'clock, walked into the Astro office with the offer in his hand.

He had checked the airline schedules and had found that a quick plane trip and a short bus ride could put him in a position to negotiate the purchase agreement personally.

But negotiation was not necessary --the seller, either through shock or satisfaction with the offer, signed immediately. Would he have signed if Pope had simply phoned the offer in as two others before him had done? We may never know. But Realtor Pope was taking no chances -- some imagination, a $150 plane ticket, and a little time made it a sure thing.

Home Hunting

When you've got a choice, make a good one. Especially when you're choosing an all-important item like a new home.

Whether you're newlyweds or an established family, you'll be smart to make a checklist and take it along when you go househunting.

It will lead you past the sales puffery that promises a wonderful workfree world of country living just a hop-skip-and-jump from your downtown office.

What you need are the facts about construction, community and cost.

Is it a sturdy, well-designed house that will need minimal maintenance and provide comfortable living in a neighborhood that suits your family? And can you afford it?

After your first look at obvious things, check the layout of the house and its basic construction points --the roof, insulation, wiring, foundation, plumbing and heating and major appliances.

BE SURE to check the builder's reputation by talking with other families who live in his homes.

A checklist and more detailed information about what to look for when you're buying a house is available in a booklet, "How to Spot a Better Home." For a free copy, write Ponderosa Pine Woodwork, Dept. P., 39 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill. 60603.

...ON REAL ESTATE

HOME BLUE CHIP INVESTMENT

Despite all the talk these days about protecting your dollar, sound investments and hedges against inflation, the purchase of a home is seldom mentioned. Yet, a well-built home in a good neighborhood is one of the best hedges against inflation your money can buy.

In the recent years of inflation, for example, home and land values have more than kept abreast of the general rise in prices. This means your home investment puts you considerably ahead of the game financially. Not to mention the pride and pleasure that home ownership can bring you.

There is no reason to believe that this situation will change in the near future. During the 1960s, American household formations increased about one million per year. During the 1970s, households will probably increase at an even greater rate; some estimates are as high as 40% greater.

Look for the best house your money can buy and enjoy your inflation hedge. In fact, since World War II, a blind man could have let his seeing eye dog select a home for him and probably have wound up with a pretty sound investment. Real Estate investments have been that good, especially if it were well located. If you have any questions concerning marketing or buying real estate, call one of the professionals at
