Open Housing

The city of Plymouth passed an open housing ordinance in 1967 and was one of the first communities to do so. What has it meant since then? Has it really changed anything? In a special report for the Plymouth Mail & Observer, Jim Pelfrey takes a look at the ordinance in retrospect.

Commission Race Lures 8, Guenther Won't Run Again

By EDWARD WENDOVER

Battermann was appointed to serve out Jim Jabara's unexpired term.

Eight men have filed for the Plymouth City Commission race, thus averting an August primary which must be held if nine or more candidates run for the four seats.

City Attorney Charles Lowe has said he will make a determination of Battermann's eligibility following his filing.

Only one incumbent will be running.

Schmitz is a member of the city's planning commission; Bida is Plymouth Township's public works director but has resigned that post effective June 30; Moehle is a former member of the Plymouth school board.

Two of the terms up for election are currently held by Mayor James McKeon and Commissioner William Silvis, both of whom are serving their second consecutive terms on the commission.

Muller and Green have run unsuccessfully for the city commission in the past.

The city charter bars commissioners from serving more than two consecutive terms.

The first three finishers in the race will be elected to four-year terms and the fourth place man will be elected for two years.

Commissioner Harold Guenther chose not to seek reelection for personal business reasons.

Guenther, who served as the city's mayor from 1957 to 1961, first became a city commissioner by appointment in August 1954. He was elected to a two-year term in 1955 and to a four-year term in 1957.

Those who have filed for the race are:

He was elected to his present four-year term in 1969.

• Norbert Battermann of 1449 Palmer Ave.

• Joseph J. Bida of 585 Hamilton St.

• John Charles Cummings of 766 S. Mill St., Apt. E-5.

• Mahlon D. Green of 236 E. Ann Arbor Trail, Box 211.

• John W. Moehle of 1279 W. Ann Arbor Trail.

• Paul W. Muller of 1480 Hartough.

• Bernard D. Schmitz of 1386 Beech.

• Donald B. Watkins of 660 Burroughs.

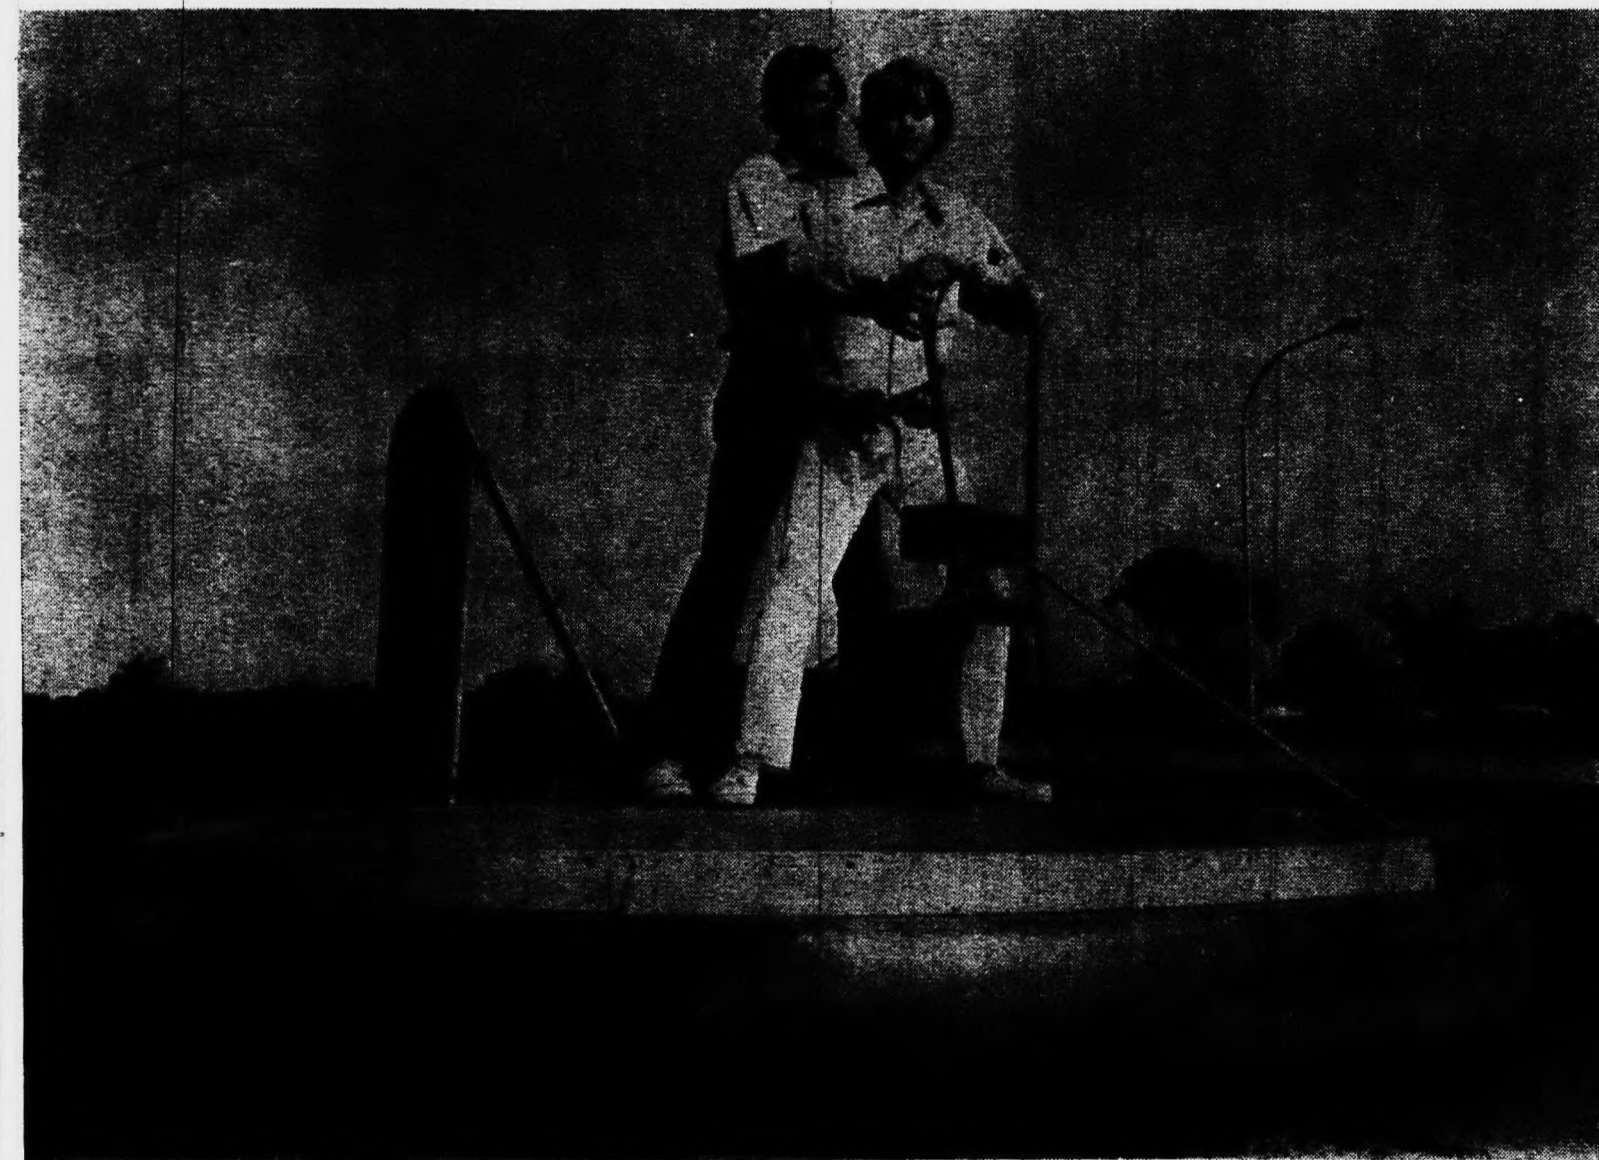

Their petitions have been accepted by the city clerk's office pending certification.

Battermann's eligibility for the race has been questioned in light of the city charter provision barring more than two consecutive terms.

He is currently serving out an appointment to a term left vacant by the resignation of Don Bidwell. Prior to that

TESTING THE HOVERCRAFT, on the grounds of Plymouth-Salem High School, are its two builders, Tim Plymale, 18, and Wayne Kelley, 17. The boys, along with their power mechanics teacher, Carlton Wyman, have been working on the project since last winter. The craft hovers approximately 10 inches off the ground. It cost $100 to build. (Observer photo by Maurie Walker)

High School Students Build 'Flying Saucer'

By MAURIE WALKER

A plan hatched last winter by a teacher and two seniors at Plymouth-Salem High School has taken flight.

Following months of hard work, scrounging for parts in fact, practically "eating and sleeping" the project, a hovercraft is now gliding around the shop area of the school.

Tim Plymale, 18, of 15390 Portis, Northville Township, along with his power mechanics teacher, Carlton Wyman, discussed the idea of a hovercraft and decided it would be fun to attempt building one.

Wayne Kelley, 17, of 39966 Hillary, Plymouth, a classmate, was also keen on the idea.

"We started working on it in class, the two boys doing most of the work," Wyman said.

"We worked on it after class and on weekends, the project became so fascinating," he said.

The donation by a garden shop in Plymouth of an old, worn-out tractor motor was worked over by the two seniors and soon became the working power plant.

"The eight-horsepower engine is as good as new since the boys worked on it," Wyman said.

It was Wyman who financed the project, picking up items from various stores, buying the necessary wood and fabric for the craft.

"We purchased the plans from an Arizona firm. The whole project cost us about $100."

The craft, which can carry two persons, can do 30 miles an hour hovering about 10 inches above the ground.

Saucer shaped, the craft is steered by body motion, traveling along on a cushion of air held by a plastic curtain which encircles the entire unit.

The boys say it will be great on water but as yet have not tried it.

To protect the "passengers," a heavy wire mesh covers the hole where the motor is attached to the propeller.

"Without this covering, there would be danger of objects being picked up and thrown upward, hitting the riders," Wyman said.

Piloting the craft has been limited to its builders, Plymale and Kelley, since, as Wyman explained, "Not knowing how to maintain balance could cause a person to be thrown off."

The hovercraft will be kept in the school during the summer.

"We will probably do more work on it as a class project next term. In fact, we may mount a propeller on the top of the craft to give it greater push."

Plymale is a real aviation buff. He has built numerous model airplanes and said his choice of the armed forces is the Air Force.

"I'm looking into it now," he said.

Kelley said he plans to work this summer, has a couple of prospects.

The hovercraft will be without its two young creators next school semester, but the boys have certainly left the school something to remember them by.

U.S. Eyes Rep. Smit For Next EPA Head

By STEVE BARNABY

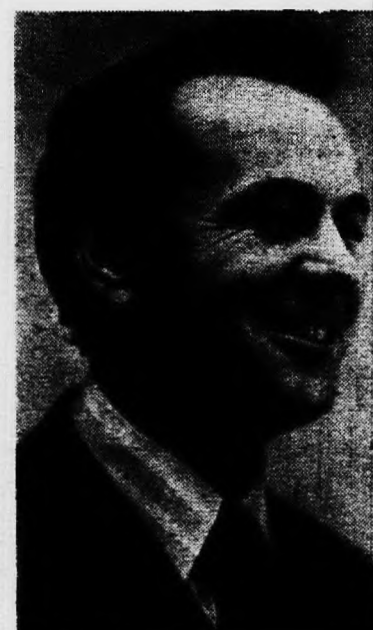

Water and air pollution, plus solid waste management, are the priority issues named by State Rep. Ray Smit (R-Ann Arbor) if he is selected as the director of the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Smit, whose district includes the City of Plymouth and most of Plymouth Township, recently was named to the list as a prospective director by the Nixon Administration to replace William Ruckelshaus.

A member of the House Conservation and Recreation Committee, the 44-year-old legislator is known for his sponsorship of Michigan's Water Pollution Bond Issue and the Truth in Pollution bills.

"The federal government has a potentially good environmental program, which has been impaired in the past year."

"I would only accept such a position with the understanding that I would be allowed the freedom to further strengthen the program," he said.

REP. RAY SMIT

Admitting he has had informal discussions with government officials about the appointment, he said it would be premature to discuss them at this time.

He said that water pollution control would be his first priority.

"We've got to get the water pollution legislation rolling again. It has been stalled for a year."

Gains in air pollution control, he said, are in danger of foundering because of confusion over experts' opinions.

"This issue of standards must be put to bed immediately. A big problem is the different opinions from experts on the harm of pollutants. The federal government has been negligent in getting the answers to set standards."

He said the answers were available through the implementation of the available advanced technology.

He labeled the 1970 Clean Air Act as one of the major problems, because neither pollution experts nor legislators could decide whether the standards in the legislation were reasonable or had gone beyond necessary standards.

Solid waste management seems to be the forgotten issue to many, says Smit. If he gains the appointment, he will initiate a program to handle the problem.

Twp. Joins In Overpass Financing

The first concrete step towards inter-governmental cooperation on safety in the Plymouth School District has been taken.

The Plymouth Township Board has agreed to participate with the school district and Canton Township in constructing a pedestrian overpass over Joy Road in front of Fiegel School.

The township board voted to spend $11,000 of the township's federally shared revenue portion to cover one third of the overpass cost — estimated to be a total of about $33,000.

Canton Township is considering using some of its federal revenue share to join in the project as well. That decision is expected at the June 26 township board meeting.

In addition to the $11,000 for the overpass, the Plymouth Township Board allocated the following amounts of future federally shared revenue:

- Public Safety — $304,000.
- Recreation — $240,000.
- Environmental protection — $70,000.
- Libraries — $25,000.

The board's resolution authorizing the township participation in the overpass stipulated that the upkeep and insurance coverage for the structure was the responsibility of the school district.

It also is predicated on Canton Township's equal participation.

Livonians In National Auto Finals

A trip to historic Boston and a chance to win college scholarships is on the schedule next week for two automobile mechanics students from Observerland and their instructor.

They will travel to the national finals of the Plymouth Trouble Shooting contest, which will be held on Boston Common on June 26. The students will be among 113 teams representing all 50 states who won the all-expense trips in a regional elimination contest this spring.

Participating from this area at Boston are Robert E. Froberg, 18, of 14225 Bainbridge, Livonia, and Steven J. Brown, 18, of 14419 Merriam, students at Bentley High School, Livonia, and their instructor Emil Nelson, of 7098 Arcola, Garden City.

Michigan also will be represented by Edmund Krol, 19, of Mt. Clemens, and William Ikeda, 24, of Warren, students of Macomb County Community College, and their instructor Gene Pezzotti of Centerline.

Their goal will be a national championship and a share in more than $90,000 worth of college scholarships and other prizes for the contestants and trophies, tools, and automobile components which will be used as training aids by their schools.

A total of $37,000 in scholarships tops the prize list. The first place team in each of two classes, high school and post-high school, wins $5,000 in scholarships.

Each team placing in the national finals wins for its school a new Plymouth engine and transmission, complete with accessories, for instructional use in the school's auto mechanics shop, and a large trophy for its school. Each participating team receives a complete set of tools for its school.

After being properly weighed, examination scores are combined with the finishing times in the mechanical competition to determine the overall winners of the contest.

The finalists are America's most talented auto mechanics students.

Advice To Be Free At WSU For HS Grads

Recent high school graduates can receive free employment counseling or college admission counseling at Wayne State University's College of Education counseling center.

The center, supervised by Dr. Bob Wurtz, will add a special emphasis to its regular counseling program from June 25 to July 30 to assist June graduates in deciding what kinds of jobs to look for, how to go about finding that job, or how to get into the junior college, college, or training program of their choice.

The counseling center staff consists of 12 graduate students in guidance and counseling. The Center is open Monday-Thursday, from 12:30-4:30 p.m.

Appointments for counseling may be made by calling the center on the WSU campus.

Canton OKs Mini-Bike Law

CANTON
Canton Township joined the growing list of communities adopting ordinances controlling the use of recreational vehicles, including mini-bikes.

Adoption of the ordinance came at the request of Plymouth school officials who needed a legal tool to keep cyclists off school grounds. The ordinance also covers snowmobiling, reported Township Clerk John Flodin.

Canton trustees also adopted an ordinance outlawing topless and bottomless dancing in the township. The ordinance will also prohibit the sale of pornographic books and the showing of pornographic movies.

They were: Robert Pier-son, 49678 North Drive; Timothy Sagar, 15315 Northville Forest; and Charles Surma, 15427 Northville Forest.

Burglars Hitting Township Homes

By MAURIE WALKER

PLYMOUTH Breaking and entering of suburban homes has shown a steady increase in the past year, with Plymouth and Canton Townships getting more than their share.

The Wayne County Sheriff's Department reports that since the first of the year, 131 homes have been breaking and entering victims.

Canton Township has been the hardest hit, with 84 homes falling victims to thieves while 47 Plymouth Township homes have been robbed.

March was the worst month for Plymouth Township when 14 breaking and entering cases were reported to the sheriff's department.

In Canton, January was the busiest month for thieves with 21 cases reported to the sheriff.

A sheriff's spokesman said 15 Canton homes were victims of breaking and entering last month while Plymouth Township reported 10.

Breaking down the report month by month, the sheriff's department said Plymouth Township residents reported five cases of breaking and entering in January, eight in February, 14 in March and 10 each in April and May.

One Plymouth Township home was broken into twice within three months - once on Christmas day.

In Canton, the figures read, 21 for January, 17 for February and March, 14 in April and 15 last month.

The sheriff's spokesman said some homes have been completely ransacked, with thieves taking furniture, appliances, stoves, refrigerators, and clothing.

The newer areas of Canton Township, where the more expensive homes have sprung up, are being hit frequently by thieves. One housewife said she had been robbed three times in three months.

Another Canton resident said he had been forced to change the locks on his doors.

The sheriff's spokesman admitted that the new, more affluent homes have been prime targets for thieves.

"They know that most of the items in the house are new and usually expensive. Consequently they strike these houses whenever possible."

Canton and Plymouth Townships rely on the sheriff's department for their police protection, which because of the wide-spread area, is spread thin.

The townships face an even greater threat after Aug. 31 when, unless some method of police protection is worked out, the sheriff's road patrol will be pulling out.

After the end of August the Wayne County Board of Commissioners has ruled that it will stop funding the road patrol.

Despite numerous meetings between the commission and the townships, nothing has as yet been worked out.

Undersheriff Loren Pittman said that the townships have three alternatives: to start their own police forces as Redford and Farmington Townships have done; establish a coordinated multi-township police force; or make contracts with the sheriff's department to continue the road patrol at the townships' expense.

Necessity of an established, well organized police force and its effect on crime is seen in the city of Plymouth.

While neighboring Canton and Plymouth Township homes have suffered heavily from breaking and entering, it has been several months since a crime of this sort has been reported to Plymouth's police department.

The sheriff's department said crime is growing with expansion of the suburbs and that if the townships fail to supply police protection, it will grow at an even greater pace.

The breaking and entering figures for Canton and Plymouth Townships bear this out.

Michigan county officials have voiced support for Sen. Carl Pursell's (R-Plymouth) bill to create an elected or appointed county executive to head county government.

Pursell and Rep. Philip Mastin (D-Hazel Park) conducted a public hearing Monday in the City-County Building where officials from across the state voiced support for the bill.

Mastin chairs the towns and counties committee in the House where the bill is being studied. Pursell's plan passed the Senate earlier this year.

The bill would permit county commissioners to determine if they want a county executive elected by the citizens or a county manager appointed by the commission. The method which they chose will be approved by the voters.

Indicating support for the plan were county officials from Wayne, Oakland, Jackson and Bay counties as well as the League of Women Voters and Oakland County Democratic Party.

A Macomb county representative argued against the plan. Opponents have said that it will add to the county bureaucracy and will move in the direction of regional government.

Pursell, who said he is optimistic of passage by the House, said his plan will make one official accountable for the county government.

He noted that Wayne County has approximately 40 boards and committees, many of which are appointed and hold "tremendous power." He cited the Wayne County Road Commission as an example, saying members are appointed to six-year terms and handle a budget which is larger than a county budget.

"All we are trying to do is modernize the counties from within," Pursell said, noting that it will create a "back-stops-here" position.

It will be similar to state government where the governor is the chief administrator and the legislature retains policy-making powers.

"Sounds business management demands an administrative head," Pursell stated.

"And I believe government exerts the same demands. In almost every organizational aspect of modern life we operate in this manner, not because it has become traditional but because it works better than anything else."

"I'm convinced that a single administrator with ultimate authority over county programs is the only truly efficient model to use."

He said that a "structure topped by a strong administrator provides the best climate for success by concerned and qualified officials."

Under the plan, county officials will determine whether they want an elected or appointed county executive.

If they decline to put either plan on the ballot for approval by the electorate, the citizens can petition to get it on the ballot. They would require signatures equalling 10 per cent of the last county vote for governor.

"Assuming voters chose one of the two county executive plans, they would also get a streamlined, reorganized county government. The current proliferation of boards, commissions and authorities would be limited and specified by law," he said.

Pursell said the county commissioners would continue to be elected, as well as the prosecuting attorney, clerk, register of deeds, treasurer, sheriff, drain commissioner and auditor.

The bill also specifies which departments would work under the county executive.

Bicycle, Motorcycle Safety Program Gets State Push

LANSING Michigan needs better education and training programs, new laws, and improved safety equipment for the benefit of fast-growing numbers of bicyclists and motorcycle operators.

These were among the recommendations of separate task forces after a two-month study on bicycle and motorcycle safety, announced by Secretary of State Richard H. Austin at the annual Michigan Safety Conference in Lansing.

The 60-members of the task forces, established in January at a cycle safety conference sponsored by the Michigan State Safety Commission, represent a wide spectrum of experts ranging from police safety officials to leaders of cyclist organizations.

The two groups laid the groundwork for new and expanded efforts to accommodate rapid growth in numbers and use of both types of cycles and to reduce the growth in accidents, injuries, and deaths.

According to their report, this is the situation in Michigan:

- More than three million of Michigan's nine million residents own bicycles. Forecasts indicate that within three years bicycles will outnumber the six million registered motor vehicles — cars, trucks and motorcycles.

- There are more motorcycles registered in Michigan

- ... about a quarter of a million... than in any state but California. Registrations increased 119 per cent between 1967 and 1971, and are expected to surpass 400,000 in 1975.

- Michigan recorded 7,594 motorcycle traffic injuries and 2,849 bicycle accident injuries in 1972, while there were 178 motorcycle fatalities as compared to 51 bicycle fatalities.

Garnet M. Griffin, general chairman of the Cycle Safety Conference and managing director of the Traffic Safety Assn. of Detroit, said the two task forces made 27 recommendations to the State Safety Commission to deal with the problem.

Noel C. Bufe, commission chairman and director of the State Office of Highway Safety Planning, said the commission would consider them all for possible implementation, including recommended action by the State Legislature.

"Of the 27 recommendations by the conference, 11 concern education," Austin said in his address.

"The Michigan Cycle Safety Conference has told us, by their recommendations, that there are millions of two-wheelers on our streets and highways and not enough of them know how to operate the cycles properly. Automobile operators do not know how to share the highway with them," he said.

According to Austin, the recommendations at the Bicycle Task Force include:

- Development by the Secretary of State's office of a state-wide registration system for bicycles, to be implemented by local units of government.

- Development by the State Department of Education of a curriculum guide for cycle safety education through teacher workshops, driver education classes and by other means.

- Development by the Office of Highway Safety Planning of a "model bicycle-traffic safety project" in one or more governmental jurisdictions. It would encompass all local governmental agencies, safety organizations and clubs and individuals involved in the problem of bicycle safety.

- Development of adult bicycle safety education programs, including publication of brochures and other materials containing bicycle rules of the roads, defensive driving techniques, equipment maintenance and other useful information.

- More training for police officers in cycle safety, laws and enforcement and more efforts to involve probate courts and prosecutor's offices in enforcement procedures.

- Stepped-up efforts to improve the visibility of bicycles and their riders.

- Creation of a state bicycle advisory board by the State Highway Commission, which administers state revenues to be spent for development of paths for bicycles and other non-motorized transportation. Local bicycle coordination councils also were recommended.

- Creation by the State Safety Commission of a Bicycle Law Study Committee which would draft legislation to modernize cycle safety laws. The Motorcycle Task Force recommended:

- Development by local cycle clubs and other groups of training programs for inexperienced drivers, who are involved in 70 per cent of all motorcycle accidents.

- Development of a state-wide public information program to educate the general driving public as well as motorcycle operators on their responsibilities in relation to each other in traffic.

What Gas Shortage?

Vacationers Told Not To Worry

Michiganians scheduling summer automobile vacation trips should proceed with their plans and not worry about possible gasoline shortages in this state or elsewhere, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"We are not advising motorists to cancel any automobile travel plans because of the grim warnings of impending summer fuel shortages," explains Joseph L. Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

"While the midwest is supposed to be one of the tightest gasoline-supply areas in the nation, we have yet to hear from the first motorist stranded because he could not purchase fuel," Ratke states.

"The most severe condition we have heard about is the self-imposed rationing system that some stations are using to stretch allocated gas."

Auto Club—which is cooperating in a nation-wide weekly AAA "fuel gauge" survey—points out there are spot shortages developing across the nation, but motorists still are able to buy all the gasoline necessary for travel.

AAA "fuel gauge" reports throughout the country tend to confirm a current broad availability of gasoline for motorists. The reports are being made available by AAA on a weekly basis to let motorists know those travel destinations where tight or short supplies of gasoline may develop.

The most recent AAA "fuel gauge" survey of 1,400 gas stations showed 75 per cent operating normally, 24 per cent limiting hours of operation and only one per cent closed because of tight fuel conditions.

Auto Club's survey recently noted the first spot shortages of gasoline at major brand dealers in some areas of Michigan—most noticeably the southeast, where 50 per cent of the stations checked are curtailing hours of operation somewhat in June.

"So far, the scare of a potential gasoline shortage has not kept motorists at home," says Ratke. "Requests for all auto routings at Auto Club travel counters are up five per cent, with a 12 per cent rise in Michigan routings."

Gasoline seems to be more plentiful in resort areas like Mackinaw City, Oscoda and Traverse City than in metropolitan areas like Detroit, according to Ratke.

Even the Upper Peninsula has adequate gasoline, and checks at Marquette, Ironwood, St. Ignace and Sault Ste. Marie show most major brand stations are remaining open with normal operations.

The Michigan gas survey shows four out of five major brand stations are continuing with normal operations, with the remainder taking minor steps to conserve fuel such as closing earlier than normal during the week and on Sunday.

Auto Club's survey does point out that many stations are now having the amount of gasoline they are able to sell allocated to them by distributors. Most of the stations on an allocation system are able to obtain the amount of gas delivered to them each month during the previous year.

"With travel up five per cent, new cars burning more fuel because of pollution control equipment and added accessories such as air conditioning, the demand for fuel across the state has risen seven per cent this year over last," states Ratke.

This means that stations which have supplies allocated are taking steps to make gas stretch. Some are cutting back the number of hours open each day, some are reducing the number of days open each week and a very few are limiting the number of gallons sold per customer.

Redford Rally Smothers Plymouth, 8-7

Defending Adray champion Redford is after another title. Bob Atkins' crew overcame a 7-4 last inning deficit to upend Plymouth Bidwell, 8-7, rattled Birmingham's Varsity Shop, 10-3, and fought to a 0-0 tie with Livonia Griffin.

Redford stands on top of the 10 team league with a 5-0-1 mark with Plymouth next best at 4-2.

Redford dominated action in its first five games, scoring 41 runs. It was a different story against a Livonia team that had been having its ups and downs.

"Our well ran dry against Livonia and we still didn't lose," commented Atkins. "We had been hitting so well, it was bound to happen but we still didn't get beat."

The come from behind win over Plymouth has to be a key in the championship drive.

Atkins went through five pitchers in attempting to stop the Bidwells. Scott Evans started for Redford and was relieved by Tom Miller. Tom Nippa, Jeff Moon and Mark Miller with Mark Miller chalking up the victory.

"We had Redford beaten, we had them down and got the breaks but we just couldn't hang on," commented the Plymouth coach who utilized Lary Graves and Terry Laird on the mound.

Graves worked the first three innings, gave up four runs on four hits, struck out one, walked two and hit three batsmen. Laird who suffered the extra inning defeat, worked 4½ innings, gave up four runs on four hits, struck out six, walked three and hit three.

Plymouth slipped ahead in the first when Dan Hees drew a walk off Evans. Graves singled and both moved up on a sacrifice by Mike Kolb. Grimmer was hit by a pitch to load the bases and Dave Hees drew a walk to force in brother Dan.

Redford came back in the bottom of the stanza to take a 2-1 lead. R.J. LeRoux led off with a two-bagger. Mark Durance sacrificed him to third, John Broder walked and Bill Fraser hit into a fielder's choice to score LeRoux with Broder out at second.

Mark Yourchock singled and Atkins called for the delayed double steal, Fraser scored and Yourchock was safe at second and Redford was up, 2-1.

Plymouth bounced back in the second. Jeff Waller walked and Bart Taylor doubled. With one out Dan Hees sacrificed in Waller and Grimmer was safe on an error to score Taylor and give Plymouth a 3-2 margin.

In what had the makings of a real slugfest, Redford came right back with two runs in the second to grab a 4-3 lead.

Steve Friedman drew a walk off Graves and John Roy hit a four-bagger between the outfielders.

Plymouth came back to take the lead in the sixth and all with two out. Lane singled, Dan Hees drew a walk, Graves singled in Lane and moved to second on the throw to the plate which got by Glenn Richmond allowing Hees to score. Bill Kovacs followed with a single, Graves scored and Bidwell was up, 6-4.

Bidwell increased it to 7-4 in the seventh on a leadoff single by Robb and two-bagger by Waller.

Laird had kept Redford in check and struck out Jim Foster to start the seventh. Bill Fraser singled and Mark Yourchock tripled to score Fraser. Richmond belted a game tying homerun and it was seven all. Laird got Friedman to strike out and Roy to pop out but it was a new game.

Plymouth's rally in the eighth was cut short when Graves walked and was picked off first by catcher Richmond.

The eighth saw Redford put the finishing touches on a comeback. After Laird struck out Mark Miller and got LaRoux to pop out, Mark Durance and Foster walked.

Sparkman replaced Laird with Graves and Fraser laced an opposite field hit down the third base line and Durance scored easily to end the game.

The Varsity Shop contest was a little easier. Atkins went with Scott Evans the full seven innings, and he responded with a six hitter, walked six and struck out eight in recording his second win against no defeats.

Rick Wolfe and Tim Fremuth hurled for Birmingham with Wolfe taking the loss and Redford collecting 12 hits.

Redford fell behind, 2-0, in the second when Pete Gaudino singled, Tim Kazanski singled and Bruce Neibyski tripled.

Redford exploded for six runs in the third to take a commanding lead.

John Knox was hit by a pitch, Yourchock tripled and Fraser singled. John Broder walked, Richmond was safe on an error, Durance hit into a fielder's choice with Broder safe at the plate. Friedman capped it all off with a two run homer and Redford was up, 8-2.

A single by Yourchock and homer by Fraser pushed it to 8-2 in the fourth. Singles by Roy and LeRoux and a sacrifice by Evans made it 9-2 in the fifth.

An error and singles by Broder and Evans increased the lead to 10-2 in the sixth with Birmingham tallying once in the seventh.

Then came the 11 inning scoreless duel with Livonia Griffin.

Redford's Mark Miller and Livonia's Dan Green locked in a pitcher's battle. Miller gave up only two hits in the 11 innings, a single to John Sochta in the second and another single to Howard Schryer in the ninth. The Redford righthander walked six and struck out seven.

Green allowed six hits, walked one and struck out eight.

Redford's top scoring effort came in the second. Richmond led off with a single and with one out, Durance doubled with Richmond stopping at third. Green bore down and struck out Friedman and Miller to halt that threat.

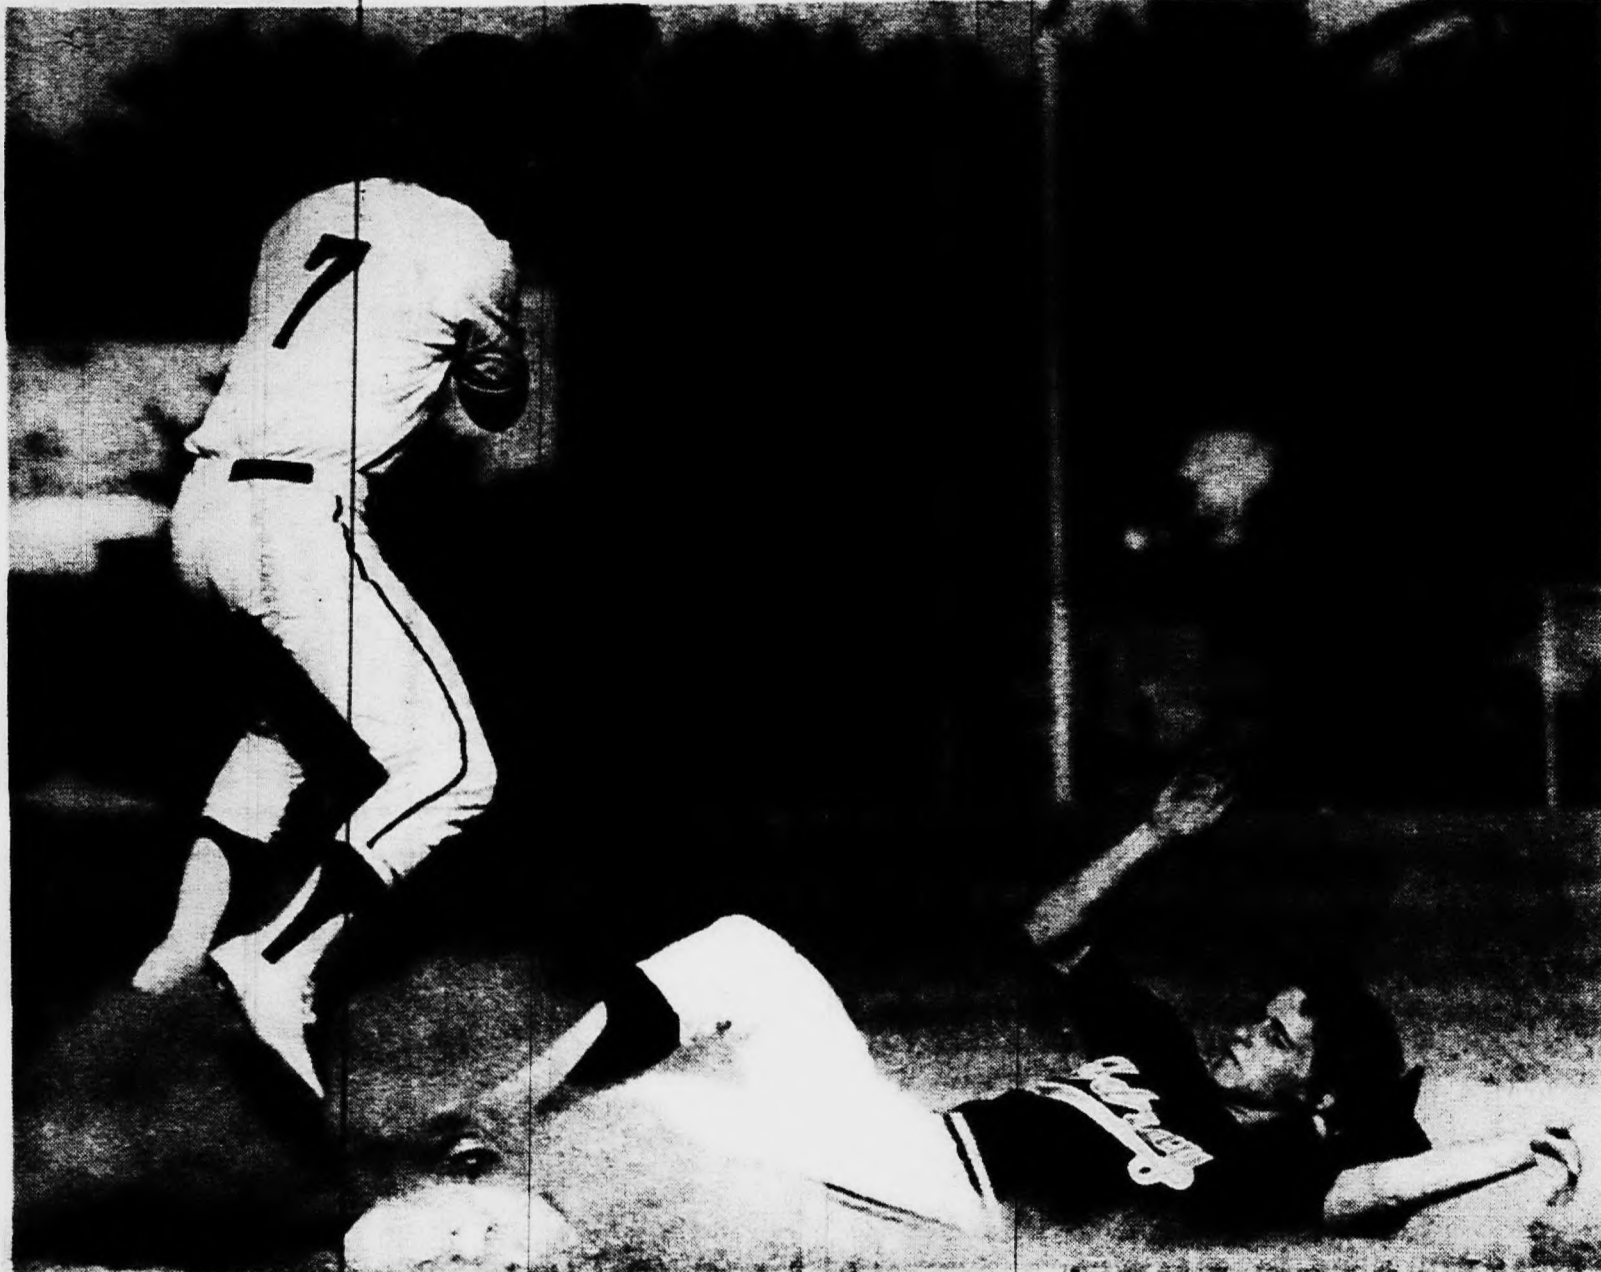

Livonia did everything but score in the second. Steve Crowe walked, Pat Perino forced Crowe at second, John Sichts singled, Mick Crom hit into a fielder's choice and Green grounded out to retire the side.

Livonia was checked as Miller allowed just one baserunner the next eight innings, a walk to Jeff Waterstone in the sixth. He was erased by a double play.

Redford collected hits by LeRoux and Fraser in the eighth but failed to score.

Livonia looked like it might break things open in the ninth when Roy Henriksson walked and Schryer singled.

Mark Durance robbed Gar Frantz of an extra base hit with a diving catch and Crowe grounded out to kill the rally.

'Managers Not Really Overjoyed'

Livonia Has Female Umpire

COME ON UMP -- Little Leaguer Ken Carrel (right) questions a call by Janine Klarr, the first girl umpire in Livonia. Miss Klarr's call held up and Ken took it all in stride. (Observer photo)

"All-right, the first guy who says a smart remark about a girl umpiring will be watching the rest of the game from the bench," announced a Livonia Little League baseball coach before having his team take the field.

In this age of the fairer sex trying on the suit of every color, Livonia has its first female umpire.

Janine Klarr, who will be senior class president next school year at Livonia Stevenson High School, is sporting the shin pads, mask and chest protector of the well known "blue" in baseball.

The 16 year-old Miss Klarr who stands 5-6 and weighs 130, is in her rookie season of umpiring and has taken on the challenge with all sorts of vigor and energy.

"I decided last summer that I would like to give umpiring a real shot," said the Stevenson High student. "My brothers Jack and Jerry encouraged me and it is a job for the summer."

"I sought out information concerning umpiring in Livonia at the Civil Service Office and they informed me that I would have to attend an umpire school."

"I really didn't expect to be the only girl there, but I was and here I am umpiring Little League baseball."

"I guess you could say that I like the authority but I don't consider myself a woman's libber, just a girl out having fun while working," added Janine. "I want to be an aeronautical engineer and I do believe in equal job opportunity."

Miss Klarr didn't know what to expect when it came to calling the balls and strikes in her first-outing.

"I sort of had my own cheering section that first game. My parents, brothers and friends all came out," she said.

"My dad was constantly trying to help by telling me to do this and that and to ignore the comments by some people."

"I was really nervous and expected people to have all kinds of comments directed toward me."

"I expected to make a few mistakes that first game, and did, but over-all it all came off all right."

"The kids were more shocked if anything. The boys came up asking if I was really going to be their umpire. The managers didn't over react but weren't exactly overjoyed either."

"This business of umpiring is a lot of fun but it does take something out of you," concluded the first female umpire in Livonia.

But this summer could be a very trying one for many of the nine through 11-year-olds in Livonia. How do you explain to your friends that a girl just called you out on strikes?

Farmington Legion Slips To 4-2 Mark

After scoring three consecutive wins, Farmington's American Legion team fell to Berkley, 7-5, and split a twin-bill with Rochester to sport a 4-2 mark in the 18th District standings.

Farmington won the first game of the doubleheader, 1-0, behind the two hit pitching of Rich Stringer who fell victim to a Rochester pitching gem.

Marty Smith turned the tables on Farmington in the second game with a no-hit performance, allowing just one man to reach base... a walk to Rich Stringer in the first.

Dennis Hagen and Don Hunt hurled against Berkley in the club's first loss with Hagen suffering the defeat.

Mike Perkowski and Jamie Flynn pitched for Berkley with Flynn taking the victory.

An unearned run in the fifth was all that separated Rochester and Farmington in the first of two.

Rich Stringer picked up the triumph for Farmington, giving up just two hits, walking five and striking out 10. Jim Tieters took the loss for Rochester, allowing four hits, walking none and striking out five.

The deciding run came in the fifth when Eric Hanson was safe on a two-base error, moved to third on a passed ball and scampered in on a wild pitch.

Mary Smith changed Farmington's tune in the second contest. Besides his pitching talent that kept Farmington in check, the Rochester hurler hit a four-bagger off Don Hunt in the fifth inning.

Hunt started on the Farmington mound, gave up nine runs with Randy Stringer working the final inning.

Farmington plays tonight (Wednesday) at Troy at 8:30 p.m.; Friday, June 22 at Walled Lake (6 p.m.) and another twin-bill at Waterford on Sunday (June 24) against Chief Pontiac starting at 2 p.m.

Penske Tackling MIS Problems

By STEVE BARNABY

SOUTHFIELD Discipline is the key ingredient in avoiding tragic racing accidents, according to Roger Penske, Southfield businessman and retired race driver.

Penske, 36, made his remarks concerning last month's accident-ridden Indianapolis 500 at the Raleigh House where he announced acquisition of the Michigan International Speedway in Irish Hills.

"The real problem is that there must be discipline among the drivers. If they lost two laps under penalty, they would think about staying in their lanes," said Penske.

He lauded the management at the two and a half mile Indy oval who have come under much criticism since the annual race which saw two men killed, two injured and a number of spectators also injured.

"Those running the track are well qualified. They are the backbone of motor racing."

He derided suggestions by other racing experts that speeds should be reduced in order to insure safer races. Some drivers came close to breaking the 200 mph barrier during qualifying for this year's race.

"Speed is only a number. Cutting the speed at Indianapolis would be like cutting the speed on I-94 to 35 mph because there are a lot of accidents."

With the $2.89 million purchase of the MIS, Penske hopes to see Michigan continue as a top auto racing state.

"We will hold the Motor State 400-mile grand national stock car race for NASCAR drivers June 24 as planned and the twin 200-mile races for the USAC Indy-car and stock cars July 15 as planned."

He also announced that a twin 150-mile race for Indy cars will be Sept. 15.

Although maintaining confidence in the present track management, he said a number of improvements were needed on the track grounds.

"We hope to have a great many improvements for the customers' comfort by the end of the year."

Among the improvements are plans to resurface and enlarge the garage area, painting and refurbishing existing facilities, increased spectator parking, landscaping of spectator areas, and resurfacing the two-mile banked track to improve racing conditions.

Penske also announced that motor car companies have expressed an interest in using the track.

"I do have commitments from American Motors and others for testing involving the track."

Penske smilingly ended the day by announcing his engagement to Kathryn Hultbert, 24, of Salt Lake City. They will be married Aug. 4.

Fanchers Downs Bentley JVs, 8-2

Stevenson High School's varsity baseball squad, Fancher's, crushed Livonia Optimists in Berry National League play, 8-2.

It was the second victory against one tie for Stevenson and only the first outing for the Bentley junior varsity Optimist.

Ray Warring went the distance for Fanchers, allowing 10 hits, walking none and striking out two. Dan Murphy and Writtanon hurled for the Optimist with Fanchers banging out eight hits and Murphy taking the loss.

The Optimists scored twice in the second on singles by DiFase and Murphy and a two-bagger by Bob Miller.

Fancher's explosion came in the fifth. Up to then Murphy had held Stevenson to just one hit.

Mike Ferarolis drew a walk, Mark Temby singled and Steve Brown walked. Bob Ganzak was safe on a two-base error, Don Finn singled and Scott Price was safe on an error. Tom Zilgaris singled, Mark Kiefer doubled and Temby singled.

Redford Wins 3rd In Berry Play, 10-1

Redford scored three times in the third, six in the fifth and once in the seventh to capsize Farmington Harrison in Berry National League competition, 10-1, and stand at 3-0 in the league.

Gary Fuls had an easy time as he coasted along with a three hitting, walking five and striking out nine.

Redford collected nine hits off Harrison's Hancock, Stephens, and Economou with Hancock taking the loss.

Ron Campbell got Redford going in the third with a two out double. Mark Yourcheck followed with a single, Glenn Richmond doubled, Steve Friedman walked and Lupe Bravo singled and Redford led, 3-0.

Harrison squeaked across its lone run in the third when Bill Vance walked, stole second and scored on a hit by Nowels.

Redford resumed its scoring ways in the fifth.

Yourcheck doubled, Richmond singled, Friedman sacrificed in Yourcheck, Bravo singled in Richmond and Bill Campbell walked Kurt Montey was hit by a pitch and Fuls drew a bases loaded walk to score Bravo. Mike Kalil grounded out to score another and Ron Campbell was safe on an error with two more scoring and Harrison was down, 9-1.

A two out walk to Kalil and a single by Dan Barron and an error pushed it to a nine run difference in the seventh.

Precautions On Curves

Expert drivers know that they have to slow down and brake before entering a curve. DO YOU?

According to the Michigan State University Highway Traffic Safety Center these precautions should be taken when approaching a curve:

Slow down before entering the curve;

When you are beyond the sharpest point of the curve, accelerate smoothly.

Remember, enter a curve too fast and your vehicle may go out of control.

Westland Topples Farmington, 4-0

It was a battle between two Central Michigan University hurlers with a Westlander getting the best of his counterpart from Farmington.

Westland Burger King shutout Farmington Sincola in Adray competition, 4-0.

Del Malloch, of Westland, and Jim Kearney, of Farmington, are teammates at Central.

Malloch got the best of Kearney, pitching a three-hitter and blasting a two-run homer as Westland upped its record to 3-2.

It was the second win for righthander Malloch who struck out four and walked none. Malloch has now allowed two earned runs in 23 innings, walking only three and striking out 19 to stand at 2-0.

For Kearney it was a four-hit setback, walking two and striking out one.

Westland opened the scoring in the third when Glen Ambrose led off with a single and Malloch cleared the left field fence at Ford Field to make it 2-0.

The seventh saw Westland add two more runs. Bob McSpadden walked, stole second and scored on a hit by Tony Dattilio, who moved to second on the throw to the plate. Tony stole third and walked in on a balk by Kearney.

Plymouth Tips Livonia, 3-1; Garden City, 5-1

With a couple of breaks, Wayne Sparkman knows that he could be on top of the Adray standings with a 6-0 record.

The Plymouth High varsity baseball coach misplayed those breaks and gave away a contest to front-running Redford. Plymouth is now second best at 4-2.

After winning their first two outings, Plymouth fell to Varsity Shop, 3-2, and then blew a 7-4 final inning lead to Redford in eight innings, 8-7.

The Bidwell squad humbled Livonia Griffin, 3-1, and Garden City, 5-1.

John Owens got the call against Livonia and with the help of Larry Graves in the seventh inning, chalked up the victory. He allowed four hits in six innings, walking four and striking out four.

Graves got credit for the save, putting out a Livonia threat in the seventh.

Livonia's mound chores were handled by Mike Keller, Gar Frantz and Zimmerman. Reliever Frantz taking the loss and Plymouth collecting just five hits.

Plymouth opened in the second when Jim Grimmer singled. Steve Robb bunted his way on with Keller tossing the ball over the first baseman's head putting runners on second and third. Jeff Waller followed with a sacrifice fly to score Grimmer and give Plymouth a 1-0 lead.

Livonia bounced back to tie things in the last of the inning. Bob Crowe walked. Steve Chilenko sacrificed him to second and Roy Henriksson singled Crowe home.

Plymouth jumped back in the lead to stay in the fourth. Bill Kovacs drew a base on balls off Frantz, Grimmer bunted his way on and Frantz balked the runners to second and third. Steve Robb missed a bunt with Kovacs nailed at the plate. Robb followed with a hit to right center and Grimmer scampered in to make it 2-1.

Bidwell added a run in the sixth when Kovacs singled. Grimmer sacrificed him to second and Robb singled in Kovacs.

Livonia woke up in the seventh and Coach Sparkman had to be thinking of the Redford contest again.

John Sichta drew a walk off Owens and Gar Frantz doubled. Sparkman had seen enough and in came his ace Graves.

Graves retired Mark Temby on strikes and blew a pitch past Steve Crowe with Frantz barreling down the third base line. Crowe missed the bunt and Frantz made it back to third but found Sichta sitting on the bag and was ruled out.

Crowe went down swinging and Graves accomplished his job.

Sparkman called on Robb in the Garden City match and his high school ace delivered a two hitter, walked three and struck out three in picking up the win.

Jerry Herbst suffered the defeat for Garden City, giving up seven hits, walking one and striking out seven.

Garden City drew first blood in the second. Keith Anleitner walked, Darren McHugh singled and Cliff McLeland singled to fill the sacks.

Terry Dobbs lined to Dave Hees in left field. Anleitner tagged and scored but Hees threw out McHugh attempting to move from second to third.

Plymouth tied things up in the fourth. Dave Hees singled but was forced at second with Greg Lane safe at first. Graves followed with a hit and Kovacs singled in Lane to make it a new game.

Plymouth tucked away victory in the sixth with four runs on two hits. Mike Kolb led off with a walk. Dave Hees beat out a sacrifice bunt with Herbst throwing the ball away and the runners moving up to second and third. Lane singled in both and moved to second on the throw to the plate.

Graves singled in Lane and moved around to second on the relay home. Graves advanced to third on a ground out and dashed in on a bunt by Grimmer.

W. Bloomfield Heading Berry Baseball Action

West Bloomfield pushed its Berry American League unbeaten string to three with an 8-1 assault over the Patriots and 1-0 over Michigan Bank.

Bob Jones worked the Bloomfield mound against the Franklin junior varsity Patriots, giving up five hits, walking five and striking out 10.

Bloomfield banged out 12 hits off Larry Casey, George Deloy and Chuck White with starter Casey taking the loss.

The Patriots opened the scoring in the first when Joe Pollard singled, stole second, moved to third on a ground out and scampered in on a passed ball.

That was it for the Patriots with West Bloomfield taking over.

Singles by Jones, Gary Mutick, and Bob Rowley and an error made it 3-1 in the second. Bloomfield added five more in the sixth.

Vince Vuichard opened the sixth with a single. Jeff Stocker singled and Van Rowley scored in both. Mark Salisbury singled in Rowley. Dave Gass doubled and Jones tripled to give Bloomfield a seven run lead.

Bloomfield continued its winning ways over the Clarenceville Bankers.

Rick Edelen hurled for Bloomfield, allowing just four hits, walking two and striking out two. Brian Luke suffered the defeat, giving up seven hits, walking none and striking out five.

The game's lone tally came in the first. Mark Salisbury singled, was forced at second with Gass safe at first. Jones singled Gass to third and Mutnick's single scored Gass.

Clarenceville threatened to break things open in the seventh. They had runners on second and third with only one out. A squeeze play ruled the runner nailed at the plate.

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

There isn't any question in the minds of those who have been following the harness races at Wolverine Raceway that they have seen the finest performers in the land during the 82-night meeting which ended Tuesday.

A typical example was last Saturday's program in which five of the 10 races went in 2:00 and better. The same thing happened a week earlier.

Then add the sub-2:00 miles during Grand Circuit week, especially on Thursday and Friday, and you have one of the big reasons for the tremendous success of the pacers and trotters at the big mile track this year.

When the final figures are recorded, they will show Wolverine shattered all attendance and wagering records. Especially the latter where the track figures to wind up with an average of $665,000 nightly, far ahead of the previous Michigan high of $642,000 at Hazel Park a few years back.

Saturday's crowd of 11,455 was some 200 more than attended the runners in the afternoon at Hazel Park and marked the third time of the week that the standardbreds outdrew the thoroughbreds.

A year ago, Wolverine brought Albatross, the world's fastest pacer and superhorse for three years, to the Detroit area and jammed the park in the process.

Saturday fans were treated to perhaps the only appearance of the year of Sir Dalrae, the most logical candidate for superhorse of 1973, and the four-year-old obliged with the fastest half-mile ever in the state of Michigan while rolling to its eighth victory in 11 starts.

Sir Dalrae, a California owned, was the talk of the west coast after a winter campaign that saw him better 2:00 in practically every start. He won 11 of 17 in 1972 and then had three of five in 1973 before moving east.

His eastern invasion opened at Hawthorne in Chicago where he won handily in 1:57.2. Then he moved to Philadelphia to win at Liberty Bell in 1:59.1. Roosevelt Raceway was next on his list and he wound up third in a mile in 2:00.2.

Two more starts at Roosevelt netted two victories in 2:00.3 and 2:00.2 and then Driver-Trainer Jim Dennis decided to start west again for some rich events there.

That's how Wolverine just happened to land the superhorse for a $12,500 invitational. He was enroute to Chicago but had a week lay-off and Dennis decided to stop over in Detroit and pick up another check.

Folks in Michigan are glad he did for it gave them a chance to see the harness world's newest star at his best. Sixth at the quarter and fourth on the outside at the half, Sir Dalrae flashed past the leading Jay Time and made shambles of his competition.

The speedy son of Porterhouse hit the three-quarter pole in :28.1 and then roared down the long stretch for another :28.1 quarter and a spectacular :56.2 for the last half. Never has a standardbred shown so much speed for a half-mile.

All of which leads one to wonder what would have happened if Driver Gene Riegle had sent Jay Time to his usual :58 for a half and then had Sir Dalrae zoom past with his :56.2.

There just isn't any way of describing the wonder horse once Dennis let him go. He moved past four horses so quickly one would have thought they had stopped. Once in front it was just a question of time . . . would he break the track record of 1:57.4? That he failed was due to the relatively slow pace of Jay Time who was ahead at the halfway point in 1:02.1.

It was Sir Dalrae's eighth win in 11 outings and boosted his season earnings to more than $105,000. Not bad at all for a converted trotter who didn't get to the races until last year and then was ailing half of the time.

Sir Dalrae was clocked in 1:58.3 in a race that saw six of the seven starters go in 2:00 and less. Jay Time and Windy Way were caught in 1:59.2. Hal Brunt was timed in 1:59.3. Blu Fireball and Mighty Fire in 2:00.

During the evening half of the card was paced in 2:00 and better. Sir Dalrae and American Skipper in 1:58.3. Keystone Ponder, 1:59; Banner Ranger, 1:59.1; and Jorobes R. J. in 2:00.

It will be some time before enthusiastic followers of the standardbreds stop talking about Friday's $57,105 Matron three-year-old pace which brought one of the biggest upsets of the spring when Don MacFarlane and Harold Duris' Keystone Smartie shocked all with a nose victory in the track equaling time of 1:57.4.

MacFarlane is president of Hazel Park Raceway and Duris is his longtime general manager.

Keystone Smartie, a fast but very moody Bye Bye Byrd colt, didn't look good to the bettors who let him go to the post as a 37-1 longshot. Matter of fact Billy Haughton, who trains the colt and is a part owner with the Hazel Park group, decided to drive Steel Byrd, the other part of his stable entry. That's where Billy made his biggest mistake . . . he already had four winners in the Circuit events and Keystone Smartie would have given him an all-time record of five championships in a single Roaring Grand meeting.

As it was, Keystone Smartie had Don Hall at the reins and paced second to Armbrø Nesbit, a Canadian owned Bye Bye Byrd colt, all the way to the final 50 yards.

Armbrø Nesbit was sizzling all the way with :28.4 at the quarter, :59 at the half and 1:29 for three quarters. Smartie was never more than a half length back.

But moving into the stretch, Hall took Smartie along the rail and it was a head and head duel to the closing yards where Smartie just did get his nose on the wire for the victory.

Rob Ron Ritzar, another Canadian owned, and Jack Ackerman's Gay Skipper closed fast in the drive to the wire and it took a while before the judges gave the nod to Smartie.

One gets some idea of the closeness of the race when the timers caught the first four finishers in the identical time of 1:57.4. That equaled the track record set by Kentucky two years ago.

In fact, the first eight all wound up under 2:00. Ricci Reenie Time, Gulliver and J. R. Skipper were timed in 1:58.3 and Bret Over Again in 1:59.4.

Oh yes, Steel Byrd, handled by Haughton, broke gait on the final turn and wound up 10th.

Earlier in the evening, as another feature of the annual Good Ol' Times celebration, Haughton guided Spartan Hanover to an easy victory in the non-betting $55,872 Matron four-year-old trot in 2:01.4.

With three nights of free admissions to the grandstand, Good Ol' Times night fell short of the 18,000 that attended a year earlier but 15,599 went through the gates, including several thousand kids who had a big time filling up on dime hot dogs.

Now the harness racing scene shifts to Northville Downs tonight with a 10-race program starting at 8:30 p.m. Many of the top stables moved over from Wolverine although most of the Canadian drivers shipped to Windsor Raceway for the meeting that runs concurrently with the 'Downs.

Major Problems Eliminated By A Few Nails

The rhyme "for want of a nail the kingdom was lost" could apply to you, if you're negligent about making minor repairs around your castle.

The Aluminum Association suggests a few places to check periodically where use of a few nails may eliminate major problems.

- Roof shingles. Make sure they are securely fastened. Loose shingles on the roof could lead to costly water damage after a rain. Use flat-headed, 1 1/2-inch aluminum nails with either plain or special grip shanks.

- Gutters. Refasten loose rain gutters before leaks occur. Your best bet are 7-inch aluminum gutter spikes.

- Fencing. Assure an attractive appearance by keeping those wooden planks together. When a board becomes loose, re-nail before you lose the plank. Several aluminum nail sizes and styles are good for fencing, with the "common" style the most widely used.

There are dozens of other do-it-yourself repairs that you can handle with a hammer and aluminum nails. But use the best nails.

Ordinary nails begin rusting almost immediately upon exposure to moisture, so learn the nail do's and don'ts:

- Do use aluminum nails on exterior jobs—and pick the right style and size for the task.

- Don't worry about painting aluminum nails; they form a coating which gives all-weather protection. And they come in a variety of colors to match your job.

gedly as you would any other nail.

For additional information, write for the free booklet "Why Use Aluminum Nails?", from The Aluminum Association, 750 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10017.

Child's Room Grows Up With Framed Built-Ins

As children grow up, their bedrooms become more than just a place to sleep and play in.

FRAMES OF 4x4-INCH western wood set off tack boards, shelves, windows, lending organized, custom look to teenagers' room. Trim built-in desk-storage units provide separate study areas in shared room. Board paneling finishes walls, helps subdue noise.

The room becomes their private part of the house, and the decor should allow them to express or expand personalities.

For a pre-schooler, a bed, small chair and toy chest are sufficient, but during the elementary grades a writing desk and well-lighted reading facilities become important.

Starting early, children collect things—rocks, shells, dolls, or stuffed animals—requiring wall-mounted shelves of western wood for proper display.

An organized solution to children's expanding activities is a system of built-in desks, storage drawers, shelves, and bulletin boards along two adjoining walls.

Forming the framework are horizontal 4x4s of Douglas fir or western pine, attached to the wall studs with lag bolts. Vertical 4x4s between the horizontals frame a window on one wall, and a matching set on the other wall provides support for board shelves.

Along one wall, a desk top is attached to the bottom of the 4x4. In a room shared by two youngsters, desk areas can be separated by sets of drawers or cabinets.

Portions of the wall above the desk and the other wall are covered with composition tack board between the 4x4s, giving ample space for posters and pictures.

Consider storing your leftover vegetable seeds, but store them properly, recommends J. Lee Taylor, Michigan State University horticulturist.

Store seeds in a cool, dark place, such as your basement—if it is dry—or in your garage, suggests Taylor. Under these conditions, they should germinate when you plant them next spring.

Next year, plant stored seeds thicker than normal because germination rates may be lower than for fresh seeds. If necessary, thin the plantings to desired plant density, says the horticulturist.

Or, do a germination test to determine how thick you

The walls behind the shelves and above and below the 4x4 framing keep maintenance low when covered with lightly stained or sealed western wood board paneling.

Decorating need be modified only slightly for boys and girls. The frames can be stained for boys, painted pastel for girls. A mod window shade may suit either, or girls may prefer frilly curtains.

When the children are grown, the room converts to a study-guest room.

Vegetable Seeds Can Be Stored

need to plant the seeds. Put about 10 seeds in a moistened paper towel. Keep the paper towel damp and note the germination rate.

Just remember, Taylor says, that some seeds maintain germination potential better than others, but no matter what kind of seeds you have, make sure the storage area is cool and dry.

Accidents Take Joy Out Of Gardening

Cultivate safety in your garden this year, urge Michigan State University safety specialists.

An untimely accident can take all the joy out of gardening.

The four biggest hazards are carelessness, hurrying, overwork, and ignorance.

A good way to eliminate hazards is to pick up after yourself. Rather than leaving garden tools laying on the ground, store them in a wheelbarrow, cart or shed. In addition to preventing falls, time will not be wasted in looking for mislaid tools.

If you are making lines for a planting row with string and stakes, stretch the line, mark the row in the earth, and remove the string immediately. If you decide to leave the string up, tie strips of cloth at regular intervals to increase the visibility.

Carrying bulky loads can prevent the gardener from seeing and can cause falls. Carry all bulky loads to one side so you can see where you are going.

Be on the lookout for holes in the ground, even shallow ones, the specialists recommend. Don't forget to look when you are stepping backward - there may be a hole behind you.

Lifting buckets of solutions, sacks of fertilizer, and bushels of compost can strain muscles and connective tissues. Bend your legs as you reach down for the load, so the strain will be placed on the leg muscles rather than on the abdominal and back muscles.

A two-wheeled cart that tilts down to let you nudge your load into it is better than a wheelbarrow. If you do use a wheelbarrow, be sure to put the bulk of the load directly over the wheel.

Even the least dangerous pesticide can irritate the skin and sinuses. Skin-pesticide contact is dangerous and should be washed immediately with a gentle stream of water for several minutes.

Always keep pesticides in their original containers and out of children's reach. Before using a pesticide, read the label thoroughly - it will carry some warnings as to use.

Keep a set of measuring spoons just for measuring pesticides. When spraying or dusting, wear long sleeves and gloves and possibly even goggles. After spraying, wash face and hands well with soap and water and wash clothing in hot soapy water.

If you cultivate good safety practices this year, gardening will prove pleasurable, the specialists say.

7 Easy Steps To Transplanting

The following seven easy steps to transplanting garden plants are offered by Michigan State University horticulturists:

1) Water plants thoroughly. This will make the soil cling to the roots.

2) If plants are growing in flats or trays, "block" them out by cutting the soil between the plants with a trowel or knife a week before planting.

3) Gradually harden plants by subjecting them to lower temperatures and spring breezes.

4) Transplant in the evening or on a cloudy day if possible.

5) Set the plants in holes one-half to one inch deeper than they were in the flats or pots. Move as much soil and as many roots as possible with each plant.

6) Water with a starter solution.

7) Firm the soil around the roots.

CARPET OFFERS A LOT for the money. "Bucks County" carpet by Mohawk has a tufted-in pattern with a pile that fights soil and fading. It is teamed with a lush shag that has a triple tone effect. Static control yarn can now be added to all types of carpet from plush to shag to level loop.

Staking Has Drawbacks

"The next time you consider staking tomatoes, think about the possibility of having fruit that is smaller and scalded," says Gerald E. Draheim, Wayne County extension horticultural agent.

Many urban gardeners stake tomatoes because they want to get more plants per square foot. Although the practice does save space, Draheim points out that some problems may arise.

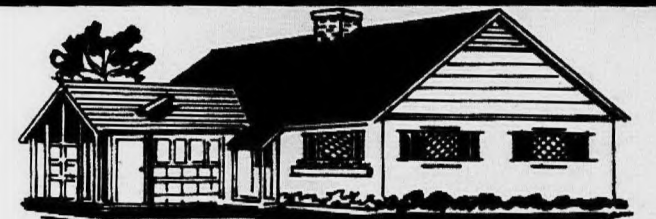

Staked tomatoes lose their bottom foliage and sometimes the foliage around the fruit. This could result in scalded or "sunburned" fruit.

Also, when the tomato plant is staked the fruit production is decreased because one root system has to support the entire plant. If the plant is allowed to grow on the ground, suckers will often root and supply additional nutrients and moisture to the plant and its fruits.

"Research has proved that unstaked tomato plants will supply as much as 10 pounds more fruit per plant than staked plants," says Draheim.

Delphinium, Lilies: Perfect Combination

By BETTY FRANKEL
Special Writer

Delphinium and lilies are an elegant combination that can bring great beauty to the garden in late June. The stately spikes of delphinium make an interesting contrast with the waxy lily chalice. These are both plants that test the gardeners skill. Neither are really easy to grow. Delphinium require a sunny situation and a rich well-drained soil that has a generous supply of organic material incorporated in it.

If the soil where you want to grow delphiniums is light, or even of medium fertility, work in plenty of well-decayed manure. If the soil is heavy work in sand, some sub soil, and a generous amount of compost or well-rotted manure.

The plants show to best advantage if three or more are grouped close together to make a sizable clump. However, allow about 18 inches or two feet between the plants. In a long border the clumps can be repeated at intervals to create a rhythm and pattern in the garden.

There are several kinds of delphiniums. Most spectacular of all are the kinds known as Pacific hybrids. These are sturdy plants with tall full spikes of bloom. These can reach five feet in height.

They come in a range of beautiful colors that blend well with each other. Some are a rich deep purple. Others are a beautiful sky blue. There are also white Pacific hybrid delphiniums.

The English hybrids are also very popular. These have broad cone-shaped flower spikes in all shades of blue, mauve, violet and white. They are considered among the most permanent of all delphiniums, lasting better than many other kinds of delphinium which unfortunately often disappear after a few seasons.

The old-fashioned belladonna delphinium have lovely blue spikes three to four feet tall. These plants are not as bushy, either, so can be planted a little closer together.

If the faded flowers are removed and seeds are not allowed to develop, you can expect a second bloom stalk in September. This is not as tall as the stalk that is produced in June, but is a decidedly lovely bonus.

Regal lilies make a classic combination with the tall blue spikes of delphinium. It is the most popular garden lily.

These lilies are not particular about the soil they grow in. However, depending on growing conditions the stems can be anywhere from three to five feet in height. They can bear from five to 20 blooms per stem. These are white funnel-shaped flowers streaked with pinky brown near the base of the flower on the outside of the petals and flushed with a bit of yellow on the inside of the petals.

These fragrant lilies bloom in late June and July at the same time as delphinium. The bulbs, which should be planted eight inches deep, may be planted in fall or early spring.

The Madonna lily is another beauty that blooms at the same time as delphinium and can be grown with them for a striking garden picture. These lilies should have shallow planting, but benefit from having the soil mulched over the bulbs to keep them cool and shaded. August and September are considered the best time for planting these bulbs.

There are also some orange lilies that bloom in late June. Some of these in the garden will add a great deal of sparkle to the blue and white of the other flowers.

Orange King and other lilies of the Hollandicum or umbellatum group have upturned flaring cups.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

When you're on vacation, who'll manage your house plants?

If you're going on a real long vacation, maybe a friend or a neighbor can tend the plants, but for shorter trips you can fix the plants so they can take care of themselves.

Plastic bags in assorted sizes can give the needed help for maintaining your plants. First, water the plants thoroughly on the day before you plan to leave. Allow the pots to drain for at least one or two hours.

At the end of that time, slip each of the pots into a roomy plastic bag and close the bag over the top of each plant. If plants are small, several may be placed within one large bag.

If your plants are too large for plastic bags, use large sheets of clear plastic, or transparent clothing bags.

Put the plants in the coolest room in the house. Houses closed in summer become hot and stuffy. Plants should be kept in rooms with the least heat buildup. If air conditioning is kept running during the vacation, plants need not be moved.

Basement areas are often cooler in most homes and should be preferred when adequate light is available. Never put the bags in direct sunlight as it will trap the heat inside.

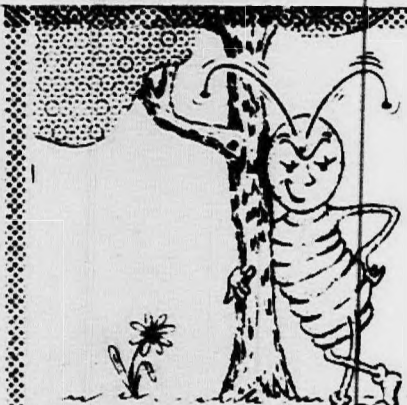

Another trick is to place your plants in a bathtub. Draw off a couple inches of water, put some bricks in bottom of tub and set plants on them. Bricks are porous and will automatically water the plants.

NEVER set plants on newspapers in bottom of tub. Ink from the papers will etch the enamel.

Some people use wicks to water the plants. These may be made from sash cord or jute rope with one end placed in the base of the pots. The other end is kept in a reservoir of water beneath the pot. Set up the system well in advance of vacation to make sure it's working.

SUNFLOWERS: Few plants fascinate kids more than tall sunflowers. They like to see the big heads swaying in the wind, and like to watch the birds pick the seeds. Want to get your children interested in raising sunflowers? Send me a self-addressed - stamped envelope for your free packet of giant sunflower seed. We still have giant pumpkin seeds left, and there's time to plant both.

Pest Of The Week

SYCAMORE ANTHRACNOSE

Sycamore Anthracnose, a fungus leaf and twig disease, is severe this year due to low temperatures (55°F and below) at the time of bud initiation.

Leaves wilt, often causing the complete loss of the first set of leaves. Leaves appear to be killed by frost, but it is the disease. The bottom one-third to one-half of the tree is most severely affected. New leaves will reappear on affected trees within 10 days or less. Twigs and small branches will be killed back and small cankers will appear at the base of the twigs.

Powdery mildew is often associated with the anthracnose in early summer.

When leaves are fully developed another phase of the disease appears, causing triangular brown areas in the leaves which eventually cause browning and death of the entire leaf. Infected leaves fall through the summer.

CONTROL: Spray as leaf buds swell in the spring of the year with two tablespoons of Benlate 50 per cent WP per gallon of water. Sprays should have started just as the leaf buds begin to swell. Sprays at this time will not be beneficial in reduction of the disease.

Fertilization through root feeding will help the tree to make a more rapid recovery. Well fed trees also are the least affected by the disease the following year.

Vegetable Gardens Need Tender Loving Care

If you are of the millions of Americans who will plant vegetables this year to help reduce the food bill, you should know that the weeks ahead can be crucial in assuring a bountiful harvest. Unlike flowers, vegetables seldom fully recover if their growth is checked.

TOMATOES ARE the most popular home-grown vegetable. Tender loving care during their development pays off with a more bountiful yield.

The successful gardener gives his plot continual loving care and attention because the moment a vegetable plant stops growing, it is in serious trouble.

Should your vegetable garden appear to slow down, consider these tips to see if you are following through on some basic fundamentals.

Be certain watering is done gently, thoroughly, and at regular intervals. Vegetables won't grow well without plenty of moisture.

As an aid in judging watering, place an empty tin can in the garden and turn on the water. Let it run until the can contains about one inch of water—that's the sign the dousing has been adequate. The best time to water vegetables is late in the afternoon or early evening. The foliage should have time to dry before dark to prevent fungus growth.

During days of excessive heat, you can help your vegetables resist high temperatures by lightly spreading peat moss or green lawn clippings along the rows. The mulch will retain moisture.

With vegetables, some kind of insect invasion is almost a sure thing. Protect your plants with frequent spraying or dusting. A multipurpose garden insecticide such as fruit and vegetable insect spray or tomato and vegetable dust will provide excellent insect control and is safe to use on vegetables when applied according to directions.

You will need more than a single application for full protection. In fact, you should continue to spray, even when plants are well established.

A good practice is to spray or dust about every 10 days. Allow, of course, for the proper interval between the last preventive application and the picking of the crop for eating.

Take note that only certain chemicals can be used on certain vegetables and such products have been cleared for use by the Food and Drug Administration as well as having passed extensive laboratory and field tests conducted by the manufacturer.

Most home gardeners neglect to fertilize their vegetable patch. Sometimes you can get by without fertilization in a first-year garden, but it is best to plan on providing light and frequent feeding.

Some of the popular plant foods come in easy-to-handle pellet or liquified form. If you prefer to place manure or solid fertilizer in your garden, dig a shallow furrow a few inches from the vegetable rows.

Cover and tamp down so the fertilizer won't run off as you water.

Your garden will produce a better crop if you give your plants a good feeding when they are about a third grown. Hoe regularly and use a mulch to keep the weeds down. Weeds take nutrients and water away from your vegetable plants and should be eliminated as soon as they appear.

If you have a large garden, a chemical herbicide will help you reduce the weeding chore.

Study the directions and apply with care as a carelessly applied herbicide will damage plants.

If you follow sound and proven practices in watering, insect and weed control, and fertilize regularly, your vegetable garden will be a worthwhile support for the family budget.

Besides, growing vegetables can be fun for the entire family.

Study Shows Pools Add To Home Resale Value

A recent study by two University of Nevada economics professors in Las Vegas revealed that a home swimming pool may fully recover its initial cost and continue to appreciate in value each year, adding to the price of the home if sold.

Dr. Lorne H. Seidman, chairman of the department of finance, and Dr. Bernard Malamud, an associate professor of economics, conducted the study.

Based on complicated economic models they had formulated and computerized, the two men analyzed 328 previously occupied homes in Las Vegas which had been sold.

Of these, 107 had swimming pools and 221 did not. The study showed that the pool had added $5,044 to the resale value of the home.

This is only about one percent below the National Swimming Pool Institute's estimated average cost of the same size pool sold new that year.

"This remarkably close agreement between replacement cost and market value suggests that pool values keep pace with rising labor costs and inflation in general," the professors said.

The idea for the study first began when Dr. Seidman looked at his own new backyard pool and wondered if it were all for fun...or if it might also be a sound investment as well.

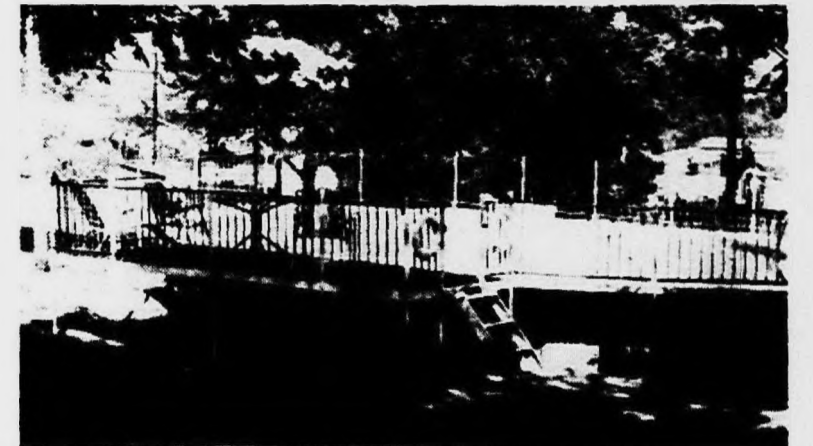

"I'd have to conclude," he said, "that pools are to swim in, not to invest in. But at least I think I'll get my money back on mine."

termining how many square feet are to be covered, 2) dividing the number of square feet to be covered by 1,000, and 3) multiplying the answer in number two by the number of pounds recommended on the label per 1,000 square feet.

For example, if you need to apply a 5-20-20 fertilizer at the recommended rate of 20 pounds per 1,000 square feet over your garden which measures 60 feet by 80 feet, you would divide 4,800 (total square feet) by 1,000 and multiply 4.8 (4,800 divided by 1,000 equals 4.8) by 20 (recommended number of pounds per 1,000 square feet).

Thus, 96 pounds of 5-20-20 would be needed to fertilize 4,800 square feet at the recommended rate of 20 pounds per 1,000 square feet.

ABOVE GROUND POOLS are responsible, in part, for the boom in home pool installations.

EAST LANSING
Calculating the rate of fertilizer application for a home vegetable garden is not as difficult as it sounds, say Michigan State University horticulturists.

Commercial fertilizers, they explain, are labeled to show the content of nitrogen, available phosphorus and water-soluble potash. A 5-20-20 fertilizer contains five per cent nitrogen, 20 per cent available phosphate and 20 per cent water-soluble potash, in that sequence.

Therefore, in 100 pounds of a 5-20-20 fertilizer, there would be five pounds of nitrogen, 20 pounds of available phosphorus and 20 pounds of water-soluble potash.

To determine how much fertilizer to apply to a specific area they suggest: 1) determining how many square feet are to be covered, 2) dividing the number of square feet to be covered by 1,000, and 3) multiplying the answer in number two by the number of pounds recommended on the label per 1,000 square feet.

For example, if you need to apply a 5-20-20 fertilizer at the recommended rate of 20 pounds per 1,000 square feet over your garden which measures 60 feet by 80 feet, you would divide 4,800 (total square feet) by 1,000 and multiply 4.8 (4,800 divided by 1,000 equals 4.8) by 20 (recommended number of pounds per 1,000 square feet).

Thus, 96 pounds of 5-20-20 would be needed to fertilize 4,800 square feet at the recommended rate of 20 pounds per 1,000 square feet.

'Dry Rot' Is Misnomer

The term "dry rot" is a misnomer. Wood must be wet to decay. Wood flooring 5,000 years old has been found intact in an Egyptian tomb. It seldom or never became wet; hence fungi never had a chance.

Plants Need Hardening

All plants should be "hardened" before they are transplanted to live outdoors, say Michigan State University horticultural specialists.

Hardening can be accomplished by withholding water, lowering the temperature and placing the plants outdoors in a protected area during warm days and bringing them in at night.

According to the specialists, most plants will harden sufficiently in two to three weeks.

Extra Plants Bad As Weeds

"Extra garden vegetables can be just as bad as weeds," says Dr. J. Lee Taylor, Michigan State University horticulturist.

"Any plant that is out of place is a weed," explains Taylor. And crowded vegetables are out of place.

He suggests thinning plants when they are small and when the soil is moist, so that pulling does not injure those that are left.

Turnips, rutabagas and other root crops should be thinned before their tap-roots become fleshy. Onions and radishes can be left in the ground until those to be thinned are large enough to be eaten.

"It is unwise to sow small seeds far enough apart to permit plants to make their best development," says Taylor. "Thinning is a much better operation."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dan McCosh's entertaining column usually appears in our Farmington paper, but this offering has such wide appeal that we thought readers in other communities would appreciate it, too.

By DAN MCCOSH

The main thing people do for a living around here is make useful things out of pieces of metal.

That's why smoke stings the eyes, why people tolerate the mad crush of cars, houses and factories jammed in next to the river, now sprawling out towards Ann Arbor.

For years, the public schools have seemed to deny this. If anything, they represented mainly escape from that hand-tool-metal contact.

Sell something to those guys, boss them, feed them, doctor them or write up their wills. School is getting ahead, and getting ahead is getting out.

Maybe that's why, in 1960, I was in a compulsory shop class where they heated antique soldering irons on a little gas furnace that also heated the shop teacher's coffee. In the factories, they were welding tungsten in a vacuum that duplicated outer space.

Paper tapes directed cutting tools across three-foot thick blocks of steel, aimed only by the mathematics of a design engineer.

In high school shop class, they showed us how to change the washer in a faucet.

Now that attitude is supposed to be changing. Vocational education is the darling baby of the future, with gleaming new facilities and counselors sometimes daring to mention something like numerical control to a guy who passed Algebra I, instead of trying to get him into MIT.

Schools are chasing around for technical help.

I knew a big bear of a stock car mechanic who came back to his garage in Lansing, laughing his head off after he was hired by a community college.

After spending most of his life since the age of 14 wrestling with transmissions and living out of the back of cars at tracks like Daytona, he was suddenly promoted to the rank of intellectual.

"OK, boys," he yelled out to anybody, who would listen. "Now you call me Professor Rod."

Last week, the Farmington Board of Education got a list of tools ordered for the "industrial arts" classroom at the new Warner Junior High.

A four-station soldering bench, a gas-operated unit, and a spot welder combination totaled $2,156. I remembered that pot of coffee bubbling away on the little gas stove 13 years ago.

Ron Emmitt, the only member of the school board who makes small, useful things out of metal for a living, choked at the list.

"I can't afford tools like this in my business," he said, then, calming down, added, "I hope these kids appreciate them."

AUGUST J. DeRUBEIS, whose career includes service with the Ford Motor Co. in Livonia, has been appointed plant manager of the West Allis, Wis., foundry of the Allis-Chalmers Corp. Agricultural Equipment Division.

County Commissioners come see our Join Hospital Board

A new era in the administration of Wayne County General Hospital has begun with the appointment of two county commissioners to the governing board of the hospital in Westland.

Commissioners N. Frank Cykowski and Samuel A. Turner were appointed to the County Board of Institutions by their fellow members of the board of commissioners.

The appointments were the first step in a revamping of the hospital's administrative structure by the county board.

Cykowski and Turner, both Detroit Democrats, are the first members of the county legislative body to serve on the five-seat hospital board in its history. They were appointed to fill two vacancies.

In the past, the hospital board consisted wholly of citizens — three appointed by the board of commissioners and two by the county board of auditors.

Earlier this year, a task force reported critically on the hospital's administrative structure and recommended that the board of institutions be made up of county commissioners.

This, the task force concluded after months of study, would improve liaison between the hospital and the board of commissioners. The latter is responsible for all budgeting decisions affecting the hospital, the county's single largest department.

The task force also recommended expansion of the hospital's out-patient services to include community-based clinics and increased emphasis on specialized in-patient services.

Cykowski and Turner said they would work to expedite implementation of the task force recommendations.

Cykowski represents District 12 in southwest Detroit. He was chairman of a commissioners' committee which recommended construction of a new long-term care facility at the hospital. The new facility is expected to open later this year.

Turner represents District 13 in north Detroit. He was elected to his first two-year term on the board of commissioners last fall.

Cykowski is vice-chairman of the commissioners' human resources committee to which the hospital board reports.

Schools Brace For Supreme Court Busing Battle

By MARTHA MAHAN

The latest court ruling upholding U.S. District Judge Stephen Roth's metropolitan plan for Detroit school desegregation caused no tremors in Observerland, except, possibly, a quiver of satisfaction.

In the first place, it was expected.

Secondly, attorneys for suburban schools fighting cross-district busing got what they really were after in filing their appeal.

They wanted, and got, strong dissenting opinions to use as bulwarks in an ultimate U.S. Supreme Court appeal.

Last week's 6-3 decision by the full nine member U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals left unchanged an order by an earlier three man panel that all suburbs involved in any metropolitan desegregation plan should be given a chance to be heard in court.

But it left them with little to talk about when their day in court comes.

It ruled out testimony on whether Detroit is segregated and on the propriety of a metropolitan plan. It also held there was no necessity to prove a district guilty of segregation in order to include it in a desegregation unit.

That leaves the suburbs with the option only of arguing which districts should be included in the unit, how they should be paired and how extensive the area should be.

However, the court's order that all districts to be included in a desegregation unit should be heard does open the way to possible inclusion of all 86 school systems in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties in the next metropolitan integration hearing, rather than limiting it to the 52 in Roth's original plan.

"The court didn't approve the 52 district concept," said attorney William M. Saxton, representing 40 of the suburban districts in the case.

"The Detroit board wanted all 86 districts included in the plan. The safest course of action (for Roth) would be to join all 86 districts in the hearing. Then, if he decided to drop a district there would be no problem, and if he decided to add one there would be no problem."

However, Saxton said he plans an immediate appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. "If it appears the court will act quickly," he will seek postponement of the Detroit court hearings until the high court rules.

It would be purposeless, he feels, to conduct lengthy hearings only to have the original case overturned.

One new "ringer" in this week's decision has caused Saxton "a little concern."

That is the court's declaration that the Michigan Legislature has the power and responsibility to "provide a complete remedy for the unconstitutional segregation disclosed in this record."

The court added: "If, however, the Legislature fails to act...the District Court shall proceed to fashion such a remedy including an interim remedy if found to be necessary."

"Does that mean the court is going to wait and give the Legislature a chance to act, and for how long a period will it wait?" Saxton asked. "The court doesn't give a hint."

analysis

"As a matter of political practicality, I think the Legislature will decline the invitation," Saxton said, but the question is: Will it be given a period of time in which to do so? It's kind of a mystery."

Saxton reiterated his conviction that the Roth decision ultimately will be overruled by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"There were errors by Roth and by the Court of Appeals," he maintained.

Reaction among Observerland school officials was cautiously optimistic.

Garden City Supt. Bracken Snow said Saxton and the school boards he represented "got what they wanted" from the federal appeals court.

"Saxton felt that dissenting views offered by appeals judges would give him a better chance in arguing the case before the U.S. Supreme Court," Snow said.

Harry Howard, superintendent of Wayne-Westland Community Schools, said suburban superintendents will meet with Saxton next week after the appeals court's 131-page ruling is reviewed.

Garden City and Wayne-Westland schools were the first to retain an attorney to fight Roth's busing plan.

Farmington will be entering the case formally for the first time if rehearings are begun. On the advice of School Board attorney Robert Kelly, Farmington has not actively entered the case despite paying a portion of Saxton's fees.

Plymouth school Supt. John M. Hoben, whose district was not among the 52 involved in the Roth decision, said he "just doesn't know" whether it will be included now in view of the possibility of a three-county, 86-district hearing.

The decision came as no surprise to Dr. John English, Southfield school superintendent.

"We anticipated this ruling by the Court of Appeals inasmuch as our attorneys had advised us that the vote would be 6-3 or 7-2, if all justices voted," English said.

"We are now prepared to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, and there is little likelihood of any busing until the final decision is reached. That may be as long as a year away."

South Redford Supt. Joseph Rzepka called himself "encouraged by what I see." "As I understand, the chances are very good for spect, as "white flight" to an area thus far untouched by the Roth case.

Shoemaker said it's "hard to tell" what reaction will be in his Redford Union district, a hard core anti-busing area.

"At the present time, there is no way of knowing whether local residents might start moving out."

Saxton, himself, said he was "contented" and "satisfied" with the appeals court decision.

"We accomplished what we had hoped, an expression of the full court," he said. "Naturally, I would have preferred for Roth to be reversed, but, as a realist, I didn't expect it. I think he still will be reversed" by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Saxton's minority dissent ammunition came from three judges, Paul C. Weick, William E. Miller and the late Wallace Kent. None was part of the three man panel which upheld Roth unanimously last December.

Weick, in a heated opinion, described some of Roth's decisions as "legal monstrosities" and called "incredible" a statement by Roth that courts are called upon in school cases to "attain a social goal...using the law as a lever."

"Courts are not called upon to integrate the school system, using the law as a lever," Judge Weick wrote. "Nor should judges assume to act as legislators, for which they are neither fitted nor qualified."

Weick accused Roth of denying suburban school districts a fair and impartial trial. He referred to the fact that Roth permitted 34 of the 52 suburban districts to intervene but severely limited their right to present testimony. The other 18 districts were not represented.

He said Roth's order, as confirmed by the appeals court, "will require the expenditure of untold millions and will disrupt the lives of hundreds of thousands of children and their parents."

"They (suburban parents) have surely been deprived of their property rights not only without due process of law but without any process of law."

Weick further cited the fact that Roth had set up a nine-member panel to draw up a desegregation plan, but only one of the nine, Dr. William Emerson, Oakland County superintendent of schools, represented the 52 suburban districts.

"This is a plain example of unfairness," Weick declared.

Judge Miller called the circuit court's decision to uphold some of Roth's decisions "premature" because the suburban districts had not been allowed to testify.

Miller also criticized the appeals bench for restricting the testimony which the federal court may receive from the suburbs in future hearings.

'Paper Moon' Brings Back Depression Era

By BETTY MASSON

You may not love Addie Pray; you may not even like her. It's not easy to like a kid who prefers glowering to smiling, smokes cigarettes and swears.

But you do have to respect Addie. That's because beneath her tough exterior there's a tough interior that can meet the kinds of vicissitudes life is sure to bring her.

I suspect that many children of the depression era had this inner toughness.

Addie Pray in real life is Tatum O'Neal, a stubborn-chinned nine-year-old, who stars with her father, Ryan O'Neal, in the movie, "Paper Moon."

The movie is being billed as a nostalgia trip, but it's more than that.

Director Peter Bogdanovich has re-created an authentic piece of history... even if the 1930s don't seem far enough back to be history.

The cars, the clothes, the music, the ever-present radio and the Kansas landscape capture the era.

And the camera is as merciless about picking up inner character (or the lack of it) as was Sinclair Lewis's pen.

We meet Addie standing beside two gaunt, black-clad creatures in a cemetery on a wind-swept Kansas plain.

Addie, whose mother liked to frequent bars and pick up men, has just been orphaned.

One of her mother's "friends," Moses Pray, arrives to pay his respects and is talked into taking Addie to her only relatives, in St. Joe, Mo.

Moses makes his living through a variety of con games. His main occupation is selling Bibles at inflated prices. He reads the obituary columns and claims that they were ordered by someone who has just died.

Addie soon proves that she is a more quick-witted con artist than he is, and the two

PAPER MOON

Terrace Theater

run into a variety of adventures in their trek across Kansas.

Some fast talking and hanky panky with marked bills net them extra money when they buy things from slow-witted clerks.

But there is no viciousness in them, and Addie shows compassion when she gives a Bible to a widow with a lot of little kids.

She makes up the loss by tripling the price for the next rich widow.

She shows no compassion, though Moses picks up a girlfriend, Miss Trixie Delight. She maneuvers her into bed with the hotel clerk... and out of Moses's life.

They run afoul of the law when they sell the sheriff's brother (the town bootlegger) his own whiskey.

All good things must come to an end. Or must they? It's in the ending that Addie really shows her toughness... and soft-heartedness.

Debbie To Study In Europe

By BETTY MASSON

Not many people who travel to Europe this summer will include a French horn in their luggage.

But then not many people win scholarships for study in Europe.

One of the exceptions is Debbie Tomchak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Tomchak of Summerwood Road, Farmington.

Miss Tomchak left Monday for Sion, Switzerland, to attend, with students from all over the world, the Institute for Advanced Musical Studies. She will be there through Aug. 17.

Miss Tomchak first heard about the possibility of winning a full-tuition scholarship through the University of Michigan's Department of Music. Her French horn instructor, Prof. Louis Stout, suggested she try for it.

In order to do so, she had to send an audition tape and three recommendations to the scholarship committee... and raise enough money for travel and living expenses.

Miss Tomchak, who is a graduate of Harrison High School, has just completed her first year at the U-M.

She has helped earn money for the trip through working in a restaurant since school got out. During the school year, she assisted Prof. Stout in giving French horn clinics in Ann Arbor and Chicago.

Miss Tomchak has her sights set on both a performance and a teaching career. She plays every chance she can get and she wants to share her love of music with others.

During the past year, she has played with both the Ann Arbor and Plymouth symphonies, in two woodwind quintets, a horn ensemble and a brass quintet and has held first chair in the U-M Concert Band.

In Switzerland, she will take some academic subjects and a good deal of music. There will be extensive work with chamber groups, plus participation in an orchestra and band, culminating in a concert tour through Europe.

Muzzle Loaders Compete

DEARBORN
American history springs to life at Greenfield Village June 23 and 24 with the clamor and excitement of the renowned Muzzle Loaders Festival.

Based on the turkey shoots popular in frontier America, the festival draws more than 500 shooters from all over the country.

On Saturday, individual shooters with antique weapons and appropriate costumes will compete.

On Sunday, the military units take over. These are commemorative groups named after actual units in the Civil War, both North and South.

In addition, a group of skilled craftsmen will demonstrate the arts essential to the frontiersman or soldier and his weapons. Two campsites will accurately depict the life of a soldier in the field.

Events will begin each day with a parade and opening ceremonies at 10:30 a.m. Activities will continue until 5 p.m.

The festival is included in the regular Greenfield Village admission of $2.25 for adults and $1 for children six through 14.

Series Will Continue

By MARIE MCGEE

It's business as usual for the Clarenceville Entertainment Series committee.

The group of 10 Clarenceville residents has taken legal steps to incorporate into a non-profit organization. This action follows the recent announcement by the Clarenceville Board of Education that it could no longer sponsor the series because of legal ramifications.

The board's announcement doesn't really change the structure of the series committee very much, commented Mrs. Midge Ellis, spokesman for the committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. James Garrison, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Chaiken, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lozano, Mrs. Lee Tornberg, Janet Gaiffe and Frances Sullivan.

"It just means that we'll elect officers and be keeping our own records - a service the board did for us in the past," she said.

"We will continue to bring good entertainment - both for children and adults - into the community just as we always have," she stressed.

Her statement quashes any fears that the popular series would end because the board has withdrawn from the partnership on the advice of legal counsel.

In the meantime, Mrs. Ellis - called "Midge" by all and generally credited with the success of the "big band" portion of the success-is busily completing arrangements for the forthcoming fall-winter concerts.

Buddy Rich will be back on Oct. 14-15, she reports, followed by the Maynard Ferguson jazz group on Nov. 10-11. The Stan Kenton band is booked Dec. 2-3-4.

"There's also a good possibility that we'll open in September with Erroll Garner," she added.

"Seed" money for the forthcoming season will come from the board of education which is holding some $3,000 in profits the series has accrued. Advance ticket sales, will provide the rest of the expense money, Mrs. Ellis explained.

"The series has always paid its own way," she added.

The board's action dissolving the series committee was a reluctant one brought on by what school Supt. David McDowell has termed as "over-exposure of the tax dollar."

The board has gone on record as being in favor of the series' continuance and directed McDowell to "encourage" the committee to regroup as a non-profit organization.

The board's new role, McDowell explained, will be a supportive one. School facilities will be made available to the committee on the same basis as they have been in the past and in accordance with guidelines governing any non-profit community organization.

Nor will the school - community link be disturbed much by the board action, McDowell said.

As in the past, he went on, the district will continue to take advantage of having big name musicians come into the school district by holding special clinics open to all area high school and college-age musicians.

Junior and senior high students will continue to serve behind-the-scenes, thus gaining valuable stage crew experience, Mrs. Ellis added.

What delights Midge Ellis the most about the success of the series is that it has put Clarenceville on the map.

"It's quite common," she said, "for musicians on the tour circuit to ask each other: 'Have you played Clarenceville yet?'"

"We have an established reputation for having big and enthusiastic audiences," she smiled. "They like it here."

She credits some of that feeling to the excellent facilities the Louis Schmidt auditorium offers musical groups. Particularly notable, she added, is the sound system that was recently installed.

Even more pleasing is the fact that the series idea pioneered by Clarenceville is now being copied by other communities. Midge reports she has received queries from Southfield and Garden City on how to set up a series group.

White it's complimentary to be copied, it can also be troublesome because programs can be over-done, she admits.

It'll take some coordinating, but it can be worked out she feels.

Anyway, she's not too worried. Thanks to the hard work she and the committee have put in, Clarenceville definitely has the inside track.

Blue Lake Band Off To Europe

Young Observerland musicians were among the members of the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp's 1973 International Band which left Monday for Schiphol Airport near Amsterdam Holland.

This is the first part of an eight-week concert tour which will take them to Belgium, Holland, Germany and Denmark. They will stay in homes and with families in each community they visit.

Band members include Grant Temmen, percussionist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert J. Temmen of Mercedes, Redford Township; and from Farmington, David Boltz, clarinetist, son of Mr. and Mrs. David F. Boltz of Schulte Drive; Howard Federspill, euphonium player, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn E. Federspill of Robinson; James Kurtz, bassoonist, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Kurtz of Hunters Row; and Craig Roshak, tuba player, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Roshak of Fernhill.

The group was selected last summer on the basis of character as well as ability, from Blue Lake's 1972 campers. Rehearsals have been held at the camp each month since last October.

The staff includes a musical director, tour director and nine counselors.

The camp also helps make arrangements for home stays and concerts in the U.S. for European touring groups.

This summer, nine groups from Ireland, England, Belgium, Holland and Germany will visit Michigan. All of these have either hosted Blue Lake bands in the past or will do so in the future.

One of the nine, the Leeds Youth Orchestra from Leeds, England, will be in Farmington July 23-July 28. Blue Lake's chairman is Richard Pryor, 29680 Gilcrest, Farmington.

Blue Lake camp is planning a concert band, a symphony orchestra and a jazz band for the 1974 season. Students will be selected from the camp's 1973 campers.

Way Eased For Handicapped

By STEVE BARNABY

A physical disability is becoming less of a handicap at Schoolcraft College.

A student newspaper article criticizing facilities for students in wheelchairs and a new state law calling for construction guidelines of sidewalks in public facilities have spurred the Schoolcraft College administration to go the extra mile in aiding their handicapped students.

In the last 1½ years, a concerted campaign waged by Edward McNally, vice president for student affairs and Robert Orr, director of plant operations, has led not only to improvement of sidewalks but to improvement of facilities throughout the campus.

"The facilities have developed in a hodge-podge fashion over the years until the legislation. Now we have a sidewalk replacement code that considers the needs of the students on this campus," says Orr.

Earlier in the year, Gov. William Milliken signed the bill which legally destroyed the barriers of access to public buildings by students in wheelchairs.

"So many times curbs and steps make homes and buildings impregnable fortresses for the thousands of people who cannot possibly surmount a few inches of vertical concrete," Milliken said.

"We are becoming aware of our previous disregard for people with handicaps, and this new law happily represents this new awareness."

Schoolcraft officials were made painfully aware of the situation in 1972 when the college newspaper, Campus Globe, criticized handicapped facilities.

Since that time, action has been taken which exceeds the requirements of the law. Among steps taken were to knock out curbs at crosswalks making access by wheelchairs possible; ramps to all buildings, special lavatory facilities, and posted parking facilities located conveniently within campus bounds for easy access to all buildings.

Steps have also been taken to aid students within the buildings.

"We try to keep them in one building. If possible, we arrange to have classes at one end of the building to make it easier for them," says McNally.

Volunteers, who are jokingly labeled "pushers," help students in wheelchairs get across the campus if the need should arise. Neither are wheelchair-ridden students required to go through the usual registration.

Wheelchair students aren't the only persons taken into consideration in the program to improve conditions.

Although there are presently no blind students on campus, preparations are being made for the possibility. Room numbers are being removed from the doors and relocated next to entrances at hip level so the number can be felt.

There are also plans to have reading tapes in the student library and volunteer readers to help blind students with their studies.

Ag Schools Show Job Optimism

EAST LANSING College of Agriculture and Natural Resources graduates in 1973 can expect slightly higher starting salaries and better job opportunities than those of a year ago.

This guarded optimism comes from a survey of 14 midwestern colleges of agriculture reported by Dr. David L. Armstrong, director of resident instruction at Michigan State University College of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

"A year ago, MSU agriculture graduates received an average starting monthly salary of $717," Armstrong said. "This year they can expect $735."

Strongest demands for 1973 graduates are in sales and management, food science, high school vo-ag teaching, agricultural journalism and plant science, the survey indicates.

The survey covered MSU, Ohio State, Purdue, Iowa State, Kansas State, Lincoln College (Missouri), North Dakota, South Dakota State, Southern Illinois State and the Universities of Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska and Wisconsin.

"More than 92 percent of the 1972 graduates from these colleges found employment," Armstrong said.

In 1972 the 14 universities graduated 4,314 students with BS degrees in agriculture and/or natural resources. Farming and farm management took 20 per cent of the graduates, almost doubling the number entering farming in 1970. Private industry accounted for 27.8 per cent of the graduates with graduate studies accounting for another 13.5 per cent.

Other areas employing agriculture graduates were extension teaching 6.9 per cent, governmental agencies 9.4 per cent and the military services with 7.9 per cent. Other types of employment accounted for the additional workers.

Schoolcraft Vets Help Each Other

The CERV unit established at Schoolcraft College a year ago is still open and providing special help to veterans.

CERV, which stands for Center for the Education of Returning Veterans, consists of veterans who provide information, counseling and other assistance to returning servicemen. Over the past year, some 500 veterans have been contacted. These efforts resulted in more than 100 veterans enrolling at Schoolcraft, while another 40 have gone to school elsewhere.

Six veterans currently man the Schoolcraft unit.

Appointments will be accepted for days, evenings or weekends, and CERV recruiters will meet veterans on campus, at their homes, or at any other place convenient to them.

Busing Ruling Is 'Wrong' Claims Esch

U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) has termed the busing decision by the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, Ohio, "irrevocably wrong."

Esch said that the decision which upheld the principle of busing "reflects neither sound social policy or credible educational philosophy."

"This decision will do nothing to enhance either the course of civil rights or of effective education," Esch said, adding that he believes the Supreme Court will overturn the decision.

Esch said that Congress should take "more explicit action."

"When the elementary and secondary legislation comes before the education and labor committee and the House, I intend to offer specific language in which the Supreme Court can clearly understand Congress' decision to outlaw cross-district busing once and for all," he said.

Setting Is Right As Eddie Graduates

W. W. EDGAR wore the gold honors braid over his senior gown during the West High School commencement in which he received his diploma. (Observer photo)

By LEONARD POGER

W. W. "Eddie" Edgar, who spent most of his 75 years writing about and promoting sports, received his high school diploma on a football field.

That's the way it should be.

Eddie formally graduated from high school Thursday night during the West High School (Garden City) commencement ceremonies held on the school's gridiron.

But the awarding of the diploma by West Principal James Niland before a crowd of 430 seniors and more than 1,000 spectators came as Eddie was just continuing his education, not ending it.

The diploma came 63 years after Eddie, The Observer Newspapers Roving Editor, dropped out of high school in Catasauqua, Pa., because of family circumstances.

Since that time, he has more than educated himself and others in newspaper work and civic responsibility.

A special platform guest during the ceremony, Eddie donned the traditional cap and gown, topped by the special gold honors braid, and marched with other school officials to the platform while the West band played "Pomp and Circumstance."

The gold honors braid represented, in part, his outstanding academic record in his high school in eastern Pennsylvania, about 50 miles northwest of Philadelphia.

Eddie recalled that he was "number one" in his class when he dropped out of school at 13, in 1910.

The high ranking came despite the fact he "detested" English and failed algebra. But he continued to maintain a percentage of about 94 during the three months before his departure from public education.

History was his favorite subject at a time when the Civil War was only 45 years past and the Spanish-American War was almost in the current events category.

Although his formal education stopped there, Eddie's practical education continued in various fields.

He was Detroit Free Press sports editor in the 1930s and 1940s when Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Gar Wood and Joe Louis were household names in the sports field.

He was a personal advisor to Joe Louis from the time the former heavyweight champion asked Eddie for a Golden Gloves' tournament application about 40 years ago.

He was there for all of the champion's fights during the 1930s and 1940s.

Although Eddie failed to take an active role in West High's student life, he was listed in the graduation program along with the 430 seniors.

Despite his absence in the classroom over the years, Eddie would have received top grades in a variety of subjects.

Certainly, he would have been a top student in English and journalism classes with a newspaper background of 55 years and numerous awards for his Observer columns.

There is no question that Eddie would have been an honors student in political science since he served on the Livonia charter commission and was a member of that community's first city council in 1950.

He would have received top marks in geography since Eddie traveled to 46 of our 50 states and could tell you more things about the towns where title fights are held than most geography teachers.

Eddie certainly would have no trouble in math since he could figure out batting averages, earned-run averages, bowling scores, and football statistics without hesitation.

Political science would present no problem for Eddie, who has covered Garden City school board and city council meetings for many years for The Observer.

But he did have two regrets in telling his fellow graduates that he has mixed emotions in receiving his diploma.

One is that his parents couldn't see him graduate from high school.

The other is that he won't be able to join the seniors on their 50th reunion party.

But there is one area in which Eddie has it over his classmates.

He and his wife, Leona, were able to celebrate their 43rd wedding anniversary Saturday, June 16, just two days after Eddie's commencement.

That should at least gain Eddie an "A" in any high school's home and family living course.

What Has 'Open Housing' Meant For City?

By JIM PELFREY

PLYMOUTH
Since 1967 when Plymouth passed an open housing ordinance, open housing has faded as an issue of local public concern.

The law was designed primarily for blacks, according to Mayor James McKeon. "What we really wanted," he said, "was to make Plymouth receptive to the black community."

The ordinance was unpopular enough to require a referendum before its passage by a small margin. "We were probably the first lily-white community that ever passed one," McKeon said. "When we passed it, we really got blistered."

Very few blacks have moved into Plymouth since the ordinance was passed.

McKeon, a real estate agent himself, said his agency probably hasn't shown a house to a black family in two years.

Norman Thoburn, chairman of Plymouth's human relations commission, said: "About four percent of Ann Arbor is black, but it's nothing like that in Plymouth."

McKeon feels that blacks aren't attracted to Plymouth because they aren't welcomed by the community. "When it gets down to it, I think the people just don't like blacks," he said.

Plymouth's open housing ordinance has never been cited in court, according to City Attorney Charles Lowe. "We've never had any citations since it's been in effect," he said.

"As far as I know there have been no violations. I've never been notified of any violations of it. The ordinance cites race, religion and geographic area, and to my knowledge there've been no sales rejected for those reasons."

Nevertheless, Thoburn thinks there have been some types of discrimination practiced by real estate firms in Plymouth.

"The last time we went out to collect evidence, going out and quizzing people -- in about '68 I think it was -- there was discrimination," he said.

"We found instances where black people had been discouraged; the kind of thing where they were told, 'Did you know people here in Plymouth might be hostile to you, and did you ever consider that?'"

Thoburn suspects that there still is such discouragement.

Plymouth real estate companies are currently being inspected by the federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Dept. for their compliance with federal open housing laws.

Helping HUD, members of the local chapters of the League of Women Voters have been checking in Plymouth to see if agents display the fair housing signs the federal law requires.

Before inspections began, most Plymouth real estate offices lacked the signs, according to Mrs. Sharon Blight, a member of the League of Women Voters' Housing Action Committee of Metropolitan Detroit and the coordinator of the Plymouth survey.

"We had to supply almost every real estate office in Plymouth with a sign. They mostly just didn't have it, and they seemed very vague about the law," Mrs. Blight said.

She said the study included every Plymouth real estate firm listed in the phone book that could be contacted. Most of them have cooperated, she reports.

Thirteen real estate offices are now judged to be complying with the federal law, three need to be rechecked, and two are judged not to be complying, she said.

Complaints will be filed against the two offices judged not to be complying, Mrs. Blight said. Their signs were not in a prominent enough location in the office, she said, and were not moved even after the third inspection visit.

"Their attitudes were clearly uncooperative," she said. "There were no excuses given."

"The league is very interested to see that our community is dealing fairly with everyone, and our attitude has been of providing a service to the real estate people in this," Mrs. Blight said. She said the survey was in keeping with the league's national position calling for equal opportunity.

Since the local ordinance has been in effect, there has been a decline in activity aimed at opening up Plymouth's housing.

Thoburn thinks this is because "the issues have become less dramatic. There's been much less push in the whole nation toward integration," he said.

A leading advocate of the open housing ordinance before its passage was the Plymouth Assembly for Equal Opportunity.

Mrs. Anne Spencer, a member of the Assembly, says the group "is still in existence in name, but isn't functioning."

"It was a local group of citizens who got together to educate the community, act as an in-between if blacks came to Plymouth, and try to keep it peaceful," Mrs. Spencer said. She thinks the passage of the ordinance was the assembly's zenith and that most of its people have since become more interested in other things.

The organization did also sponsor a program aimed at attracting black college students to the Plymouth area. Seniors at black high schools in Detroit were offered scholarships to Schoolcraft College. While attending, they could live in private homes in Plymouth.

"There were about six to eight students in the program, no more than two at any one time," Mrs. Spencer said. "Then we found that our sources dried up. Apparently black students weren't interested in going out here."

None of the students who participated in the program has since moved into, or taken a job in Plymouth. Thoburn, who was active in the program, said that of the former students in the program he knows of, all are still in Detroit.

He cites the recent increase in respect for black culture and black separatism as probable parts of the reason Plymouth doesn't appeal to blacks.

Summing up the open housing prospect for Plymouth, Thoburn said, "I guess I've been disappointed that there's been no more progress than there has, but that's mostly a result of changes in the times."

Plymouth High School's graduation Wednesday night was a frightening experience.

It was like the first time I got sunburned on the top of my head.

I mean I'm not that old -- but, fellow PHS graduates of 1966, remember all those 10-year-old brothers and sisters of our classmates?

Well, they graduated from high school Wednesday.

Honest. As graduations go, Wednesday night's festivity was nothing unusual.

The Class of '73 didn't pay any more attention to the speakers than did the class of '66. (I don't even remember who spoke at ours.)

The Class of '73 waved to friends in the audience just as we did.

The newest PHS graduates erupted into pandemonium at the end of the ceremony just like we did.

The parents in the stands of the Centennial Park Stadium Wednesday night were as proud as the parents in 1966.

When Karen Grimmer shouted out, "I made it, Mom!" Wednesday night as she received her diploma, I recalled I kind of felt that way in June of 1966 too.

Even a lot of the last names -- denoting the "perpetual families" with a "bazillion" kids -- were the same in 1973 as in 1966.

And so another class has passed through the Plymouth school system.

They feel older (and so do we) because of it.

And before you know it, the names on the commencement program will start appearing on college and armed service releases that come into the office here to be put in the paper.

Then they'll be getting engaged in our Observing Life section.

Then they'll probably be running for office. . . Where do I apply for Medicare?

Exchange Student Program Seeks Host Families

PLYMOUTH
Host families are needed for four foreign students who will arrive in Plymouth in August, under the auspices of the Youth for Understanding (YFU) exchange program.

YFU is a national program through which American students are able to live abroad during the summer with families in other countries, and foreign students may spend a school term in the United States.

There are currently six students from four different countries attending Plymouth Salem High School through the program.

They are Helen Fradier from France, staying with the D. Dupree family; Ana Maria Teixeira from Brazil, staying with the Arthur Desch family; Martha Paris from Columbia, a guest of the Gordon Eddy family; Gabrielle Rode from Germany, who lives with the James O'Day family; and two other Brazilian students--Pedro Coe, who lives with the Frank Pardon family, and Cecilia Terra, who is staying with the J.D. Sullivans.

The six will return home in July. Exchange students have been successfully placed with a variety of families, according to YFU spokeswoman Mrs. Arthur Desch of 1469 Brownell, Plymouth. Size, number of children, or age have little bearing on the selection, she said.

The most important qualifications, according to Mrs. Desch, are that the family be adaptable and able to accept the student as a family member and not a guest. Most students have a good English vocabulary, so knowledge of the student native language is not necessary.

Host families must supply a separate bed, though not necessarily a separate room, and meals for the student. Health insurance is provided by YFU, and most students bring their own spending money or receive an allowance from home. There is an allowable federal income tax deduction of $50 a month for host families.

Plymouth has no students involved in the exchange program through YFU this summer, but Suzanne Desch, president of the Salem Exchange Club, will travel overseas as a YFU Thirteenth Year student next June.

A 10-FOOT PAUL BUNYAN was unveiled in the climax to a Michigan Week program by third and fourth graders at Miller Elementary School. The youngsters made their own costumes of Indians, early settlers, famous explorers, lumberjacks, loggers and others typical of Michigan's early days. "Father Marquette" paddled onto the scene in a cardboard canoe.

The Stroller:

Fate Delays Diploma 60 Years

Seated on the platform at the Garden City West High School commencement ceremony, where he was the proud recipient of an honorary diploma, a most engaging question kept racing through The Stroller's mind.

Attired in a traditional cap and gown, looking out over the smiling young faces on the graduating class, he couldn't help asking himself:

"I wonder where I would be tonight and what kind of a life I would have lived had I received my diploma six decades ago in the natural order of things?"

As he sat there, listening to the accolade being paid, The Stroller couldn't help recalling the days of his youth and what great plans had been made for him before fate stepped in.

In those days, The Stroller's Dad had just made a momentous decision and much of his future was wrapped up in his only son.

He had been stricken with asthma and was advised by his doctor to leave the dust and dirt of the factory as a means of protecting his lungs.

In one of those solemn moments, he decided to open a seafood house in our little town. It was something the town didn't have and needed badly.

More than that, Mother was a good cook in keeping with her Pennsylvania Dutch background.

That settled. Dad decided that his son was to attend what is now Penn State University and eventually become a partner in a chain of seafood houses along the Atlantic Coast.

Well, the seafood house was opened. Dad was now at the starting line of what he hoped would be a great business career for both of us.

Whether it was instinct or a hunch, he made the little "lunch counter," as we called it, sports headquarters in our little town of 3,500 souls. It was here The Stroller learned all about baseball averages -- football scores and even was introduced to the boxing game at that early age.

It was as a pal of his Dad that The Stroller first saw Jack Blackburn, once a great fighter and later the trainer of Joe Louis, in action. Our paths crossed many times in later life.

Then, just when things started to look brighter, Fate stepped in again. Dad became a victim of what was called "hasty consumption" and was taken away from us.

Right here life changed for the surviving members of the family. The Stroller was forced to leave school and, at the insistence of his mother, learn a trade. His days of "book learning" were ended.

It was a tough break. But somehow, it ignited a fire in The Stroller's soul. Every day or night, as he looked down at his greasy pants, hob-nailed shoes and coal black hands, he'd whisper to himself, "This is not for me."

He dreamed of the day when he could discard the muck and grease and get a "white collar" job as his classmates had.

This dream became an obsession, with the burning desire to leave the shops behind.

Finally, the day came when he was invited to join a new newspaper staff and he accepted.

This burning desire made him jump at the chance. Little did he know at the time that he was to travel a path in the journalistic vineyards that would lead to meeting the kings and queens of the sports world -- to chat with the Ty Cobbs, Babe Ruths, Jack Dempseys, Gar Woods and the Joe Louises.

Girl Dies In Township Backyard Pool

PLYMOUTH
An 11-year-old girl, on vacation from Glen Burnie, Md., drowned while swimming in a backyard pool at 10067 Spies Ct., Plymouth Township, Thursday.

The Plymouth Township fire department report said Laurie Fleck was found at the bottom of the pool by fireman Robert Caloia who responded to the call.

"It was difficult to see her because the water was riled," Caloia said. "She was doubled up at the deep end of the pool as if she had suffered a cramp."

The girl was pronounced dead at St. Mary Hospital.

The pool is in the backyard of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Gillis. The girl had been visiting her grandmother who lived nearby.

Little did he dream that he would tread the nation's golf courses with the likes of Walter Hagen, Bobby Jones and Byron Nelson -- or meet the business and industrial leaders. But it happened and The Stroller has had a most colorful life.

But as he sat on the commencement platform the other evening he couldn't help wondering if he would have developed that burning desire to get ahead if his Dad had lived.

Fate has a strange way of doing things.

Budget Is 'Waiting Game' For SC

By RICH McCULLEN

The approximately $6.9 million general operating budget at Schoolcraft College is still an uncertainty as college officials continue to await a long overdue appropriation from Lansing.

Although a public hearing on the 1973-74 budget is only a week away (June 27 at 7 p.m.), Schoolcraft Vice President for Business Affairs W. Kenneth Lindner says the approximately 40 per cent of the year's income which comes from the state is still only an estimate.

The State Senate approved its version of the appropriations bill for community colleges several weeks ago, but that bill is currently under committee discussion in the House, and indications are that it could be severely trimmed.

Lindner says he has been expecting word on the appropriation "momentarily" for several days now. Regardless of the House action, he must present a balanced budget to the board of trustees and the public by next week. That budget may have to be based on the best available estimate.

"We are one of the few colleges in the state that has ended up with a budget in the black every year, and we will stay that way," he emphasizes. "We will not ask the board to consider a deficit budget. That would be legally impossible."

Creating that balanced budget may necessitate some $90,000 in cuts if the state appropriation stays the same as current estimates.

"We are out of balance by about $90,000 if the bill stays in its present form," Lindner reports. "If we stay that way, we will adjust downward until we become balanced."

Lindner would not predict where the cuts will come, although he said they would not be from a single area, nor would they result from a uniform, across-the-board reduction. Some services, however, will have to be cut, and Lindner will make recommendations to the trustees from some 2,500 expenditure areas.

The final decision on reductions, he emphasized, must come from the board.

One still uncertain factor which could clear up the col-

A renewal of the grant was included in the Senate version of the appropriation bill. It is one of the many factors undergoing intensive scrutiny in the House.

Lindner describes his current attitude as neither optimistic nor pessimistic, only "frustrated."

"At least this is not as bad as 1967," he recalls. "That year was the worst situation we have ever had -- we were 10 months into the fiscal year before we got an appropriation. But we came out $211,000 to the good that year."

Among the factors influencing the amount Schoolcraft may get from the state is the general decline in its rate of student body growth. The college has not found itself in the position of many four-year colleges where enrollments have actually declined, but it has still felt a pinch in recent years.

The head count of students at Schoolcraft is higher than last year, but the number of credit hours taken by each student has declined, Lindner reports. The state balances enrollments with credit hour production to reach a figure representing the equivalent full time enrollment, and bases appropriations on that figure.

Schoolcraft's growth rate has declined in recent years from nine per cent to around four per cent a year, Lindner says.

As it stands now, the proposed budget totals $6,925,973, of which $2,703,078 is the estimated state appropriation. The second largest piece of income comes from local property taxes -- $2,194,970 next year.

Of the total figure, the largest amount, $5,930,619, is spent for personal services. Of this, $2.9 million is for full and part time faculty, the remainder for various supportive services.

As of last month, the college anticipated an increase of $798,015 in expenses for the coming year.

Visitors Banned In Problem Camps

LANSING

A ban on non-camping visitors will be imposed this summer in five state park campgrounds where overcrowding has led to rowdiness, vandalism and other undesirable occurrences, the Department of Natural Resources has announced.

The ban's intent is to maintain tranquility and protect registered campers from noise and harassment, says DNR Parks Division Chief O. J. Scherschligt.

The visitor ban, which comes from the DNR in a director's order, will take effect prior to the Fourth of July, and will cover the following parks:

Lake Macatawa campground in Ottawa County's Holland State Park; Proud

Lake campground in Mason County and South Higgins Lake campground in Roscommon County.

In addition to the ban on visitors, the director's order specifies that alcoholic beverages be banned in Silver Lake State Park, and that chain link fencing -- to control access -- be installed where necessary in the five areas.

Scherchligt notes that although problems in the five campgrounds have been especially rampant this spring 'particularly during the Memorial Day weekend' these areas have been plagued with similar difficulties for the past few summers.

The special restrictions will be in effect through Labor Day.

Schoolcraft Registers On June 25

Registration for the eight-week summer session at Schoolcraft College will be held on Monday, June 25. Classes begin the following day.

Students will register in the auxiliary gym starting at 8:30 a.m. with those who will complete courses of study during the session. At 9, students whose last names begin with M through Z will register, while those with last names from A through L will report at 1 p.m.

Evening students will register between 6:30 and 9 p.m., also in the auxiliary gym.

The college is offering 67 day and evening classes in 17 subject areas. These include accounting, art, biology, business, chemistry, economics and English. Also, history, law enforcement, mathematics, music, practical nursing, physical education, political science, psychology, sociology and speech.

Tuition for residents is $11 per credit hour. These are persons living in the school districts of Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth and Northville. Non-resident tuition is $22 per credit hour.

For further details about the summer session or admissions requirements, call the college which is located at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

OBSERVATION POINT

Reduced Birth Rate Has Large Impact On Suburban Development

Following national patterns, Michigan's birth rate has dropped like a lead balloon in the last 10 years, and the consequences of that fact will have an enormous impact on the suburbs.

Many, many more families are planning their family size than in the past, what with the easy availability of contraceptive devices. Most newly married couples you talk to say they intend to limit their families to two or, at most, three children.

This comes in sharp contrast to the 1950s, when the large family was in vogue and newlyweds were talking about four or five children without batting an eye.

During this period, the national average for the number of children a woman would have during her child bearing years was 3.7 -- the highest in our history. But in only 15 years, according to the U.S. Census, the fertility rate has fallen to 2.03 children per completed family -- a rate about equal to that during the Great Depression, and one lower than that needed to produce zero population growth a couple of generations hence.

THE CONSEQUENCES for the suburbs lie in three main areas: sheer growth, schools, and development.

The growth part is the easiest to express in hard numbers.

It has been an article of faith on the part of area planners and most suburban government officials that the growth rate here would not taper off for the foreseeable future. This faith now turns out to be overstated.

Just four years ago, the Transportation and Land Use Study predicted that by 1990 the population of the seven-county Detroit metropolitan area would be around 6.9 million. Instead, the area currently has a population of 4.9 million, and most experts figure that the 6.9 figure is at least 900,000 high of the mark. The state population experts are projecting something like 5.6 million.

If you reason that there are two major factors producing growth in the metropolitan area -- migration from elsewhere, mainly the south and growth in the suburbs -- the latter factor will be much less important than had previously been assumed.

ONE OF THE main areas this lessening in growth will show up in is local schools.

For the past 20 years or so, the main job of local schools has been to build enough new buildings and hire enough new teachers to get the enormous bulge of kids born in the 1950s educated.

In the suburbs, what happened was an unparalleled growth in local school systems -- for a while it seemed that Livonia, Southfield and Farmington were opening a new high school or elementary school every year -- coupled with an astonishing willingness on the part of property owners to tax themselves to pay for this growth.

The systems grew, and the taxpayers paid. Then, about three years ago, the taxpayers revolt hit in full fury, and nobody could pass a new millage to save his soul.

At the time, everyone ascribed the revolt to the rise in the cost of living, fear of busing, and an unfair property tax. What was more basically responsible, I suspect, was that the slowdown in birth rate had started, and people understood that they really did not need to pay for ever-expanding school systems when there were going to be relatively fewer kids going to school than in the past.

This attitude continues. For example, on the past week's school ballot, voters in Plymouth defeated a millage increase by nearly 20%; Redford Union voters passed a renewal by 3-1, but South Redford voters turned down a millage increase while voting for a renewal by a 2-1 margin.

It seems the voters understand the growth patterns of the area better than the population scientists and planners do, and I suspect that the key school politics issue of the next 20 years will be what to do about a declining school enrollment (there are now 30,000 more empty seats in Wayne County elementary classrooms than there were in 1966) when the cost of education per pupil keeps going up because of inflation.

IF THE SUBURBS are going to grow at a less rapid rate than people figured previously, development patterns will necessarily change, too.

Symbolic of the shift is what has happened to shopping center development proposals in the past year or two. The big center originally planned for the northwest part of Farmington Township was turned down by the Planning Commission, and the fate of the center planned for Canton Township south of Plymouth is by no means certain.

Some shopping center experts (such as A. Alfred Taubman, who was a moving force in the Farmington center development) predict that the next wave of centers will not be farther out on the concentric ring of development around Detroit, but rather in the city itself.

Somehow I doubt it, because I do not think the transportation and housing problems of Detroit are going to be solved all that rapidly. But the notion still has some appeal in the future.

What I suspect is that folks who want the kind of semi-rural environment that existed in the suburbs in the past will be more likely to find it in the future than most people expected.

We'll be having more of the open spaces than the ticky-tacky, and since that's why most folks moved to the suburbs in the first place, it can only come as an advantage.

Tim Richard writes

Too Many Educators On SC Board?

Well, the voters have finally went and done it. They've elected a board -- in this case, for Schoolcraft College -- with a majority of educators on it.

How you label such a board depends on your own political philosophy. You could say, "Whee, at last we've got a board with some professionals on it." Or you could say, "Drat, the Educationist Establishment has taken over completely."

I tend to be a "Drat" type myself.

Only three of the eight trustees come from the private sector of the economy: Chairman Jack LaRue, Treasurer Paul Kadish and Trustee Arch Vallier. And when you recall that in 1970 Kadish joined the faculty union on a picket line -- well...

Vice Chairman Rosina Raymond is a former college instructor, LeRoy Bennett is a junior high math teacher, Nancie Blatt is a former substitute teacher (and political protegee of Kadish), new trustee Gerald Cox is a high school teacher, and the other new trustee, Ron Cowden, has the title of director of student activities in a high school.

But if there's one thing you learn from dealing with teachers, it's that they DON'T stick together all the time. No matter how gentle a teachers union endorsement is, there will always be a sizable number of teachers who will say, "That union isn't going to tell me how to vote."

And so we have Bennett, who when he ran two years ago refused to seek the endorsement of the Faculty Forum, the Schoolcraft teachers union; Dr. Cox, who got an unenthusiastic "well qualified" rating from the Forum but no outright endorsement; and Cowden, who was backed by some of the MEA locals but not by the Forum.

I know that Bennett, and I'm confident that Cox and Cowden, will be fairly independent in judgment.

You have to give the Faculty Forum -- especially President Richard Arlen and political activist Larry Vandermolen -- a lot of credit. The story we got was that the Forum committee "interviewed" each candidate for an hour and a half before making its endorsements.

But one got the distinct impression that the Forum folks did much more than interview. They proselytized. They made it pretty clear what they felt their problems were, and they made it equally clear what they felt the solutions should be.

So good a job did the Forum committee do that several of the candidates, in separate interviews with Observer staff members, answered a question on faculty-administration relations in almost exactly the same words. The reason is obvious: They were getting their information from a common source.

There's a jargon term for that phenomenon. "Input." The Forum committee got some real input into the thinking of the college board candidates. Even if they don't agree with the Forum's point of view, those candidates knew precisely where the Forum stood.

It will be interesting, in the months ahead, to see whether the Forum and the Student Senate renew the push for student and/or faculty "advisory" seats on the board. They call 'em "advisory" seats, but I call them "lobbyists."

Groups have a right to have lobbyists; indeed, our political processes would be worse off without them. But I shudder at the notion of letting a lobbyist sit down with the members of a legislative body and take part in the discussion, and then calling that lobbyist an "advisor."

At one time, the Michigan Education Assn. (of which the Faculty Forum is an affiliate) sought the power to bargain collectively as the solution to teachers' woes. When that failed to get them everything they wanted, they turned to political power.

And are they getting it!

Time For Action On Energy Crises

The time is long overdue for business, consumers, ecologists, and politicians to look beyond their self-serving noses and bind together in collective and cooperative action to solve the energy crises.

The fact is that all of the above mentioned groups spend the majority of time pointing the finger of guilt at one another while the nation consumes 16.5 million barrels of crude oil and gas liquids each day, but the nation's refineries process only 12.3 million a day.

Basically, a consumer oriented society, Americans have become a nation of gluttons using nearly 40 per cent of the petroleum consumed throughout the world while making up only six per cent of the world population. Needless to say, in this we haven't endeared ourselves to the other nations.

Recent action by Canada to limit import into the United States reflects the world attitude that no longer should we waste irreplaceable natural resources. Before this move, our northern neighbors were our largest source of foreign oil, supplying 1.1 million barrels a day.

Strangely enough, while we alienate the rest of the world, businesses continue to manufacture products which use greater quantities of fuel, ecologists strangle the flow of natural resources with religious fervor, consumers diligently overconsume, and politicians underlegislate.

One of the largest offenders in the crises is Detroit's own, the automobile. Accounting for 25 per cent of the total U.S. energy use, it is manufactured to operate more inefficiently each year.

A recent study reveals that fuel economy of a 1973 standard size car is off 21 per cent from a 1965 model and in 1975 will be off 26 per cent.

Ironically, one major reason for this decrease in economy is added weight to car bodies because of the addition of safety equipment.

Adding to the problem is a report that consumers are misusing their automobile. Fifty-four per cent of all trips are less than five miles. Even in longer trips, the average six passenger car contains only 1.4 persons.

Another energy consumer is housing at 35 per cent. Such things as proper insulation, more efficient appliances, and proper consumer usage could save billions of tons of coal a year. Turning down the thermostat two degrees year-round in American homes would save 100 million tons annually.

President Nixon has asked manufacturers to provide information to label efficiency of their products. Even if complied with, it would be difficult to get apathetic consumers to cooperate.

Consequences of such deplorable waste are limitless. They go beyond running out of gas for the car or snowmobile. Food prices will rise even higher because farmers won't have sufficient fuel to operate machinery to cultivate crops, homes will go unheated, medical ointments and creams made of petroleum base will be in short supply.

Plastics, synthetic rubbers, fertilizers, hydraulic fluids, solvents and insecticides will also run short.

With President Nixon proposing $770 million and Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) $800 million for research and development in the energy field, both political parties have fallen far short of the estimated $2 billion a year scientists say is necessary to develop alternative energy sources.

In the meantime, ecology groups have blocked moves to have a pipeline from Alaska which would add more time by providing enough petroleum for decades to come.

On a larger scope, a shortage of fuel has already affected military fuel supplies and also leaves this nation potentially a victim to less than friendly nations in the mid-East.

Col. Moammear Khadafy, ruler of oil-rich Libya, has threatened to take over Western oil firms in his country.

If Americans can think of no other reason to cease being wasteful, look to your children, and the generations to come. It seems well worth it to tighten the belt now so that they may enjoy some semblance of the pleasures we have experienced as a great nation.

Henrik Ibsen once said, "I hold that man is in the right who is most closely in league with the future."

Let's be in the right.

Sense And Nonsense

Canton Township recently passed a "topless-bottomless" ordinance that prohibits risqué entertainment in the township. It also includes a section outlawing dirty books and movies.

Asked to comment on the ordinance, Township Clerk John Flodin blushed: "I can't -- the wording is almost too pornographic in content."

2 Lodges Aid Young People

EDITOR:

You can pick up almost any newspaper and read captions such as, "Police quell school violence," "Youths face pot charges," "Woman beaten by three teens," and "Teens beat up old man," only to name a few.

The sad part of all this commentary is reflected in the fact that more than four million young people are enrolled as members in clubs and organizations nationwide, who strive to keep themselves respectable, honest, clean, productive citizens, yet very little is written about them or their activities as compared to what is written about the dissident.

To test this statement further, pick up a copy of any encyclopedia and compare the amount of print devoted to youth crime as compared to what is written about the "goody-goody" youth.

I can't help but feel that those youths committing civil offenses are in a minority and so should the amount of print dedicated to their exploits be in a minority. By publishing youth crimes are we encouraging other young folks to try the field, improve on the other offenders' flaws, just to have their name appear in print?

"To preserve our society," says our Grand Master, "demands our utmost concern for, interest in, and attention to, today's youth." How we attend to that responsibility will reflect on the history pages of tomorrow.

It is pleasing to know that my fraternity, Odd Fellowship, is headed in the right direction, that of attempting to build a better America by building a better youth. Over a period of 32 years, for example, we have been host to more than 16,500 boys and girls who have been guests at our Odd Fellow-Rebekah Camp at Big Star Lake, Baldwin, Mich.

An estimated 25,000 boys and girls have each attended a six-week all-expense-paid conference at the United Nations during 24 years under our sponsorship; and boys between 12 and 18 and girls between 10 and 18 have found their membership in our boys and girls clubs advantageous to their growth, development and future.

Is it any wonder that our state leaders are trying to bring civic recognition upon our young people by directing all Odd Fellow and Rebekah lodges to observe June 10 through June 23 as Theta Rho Girls Week?

In this regard I would urge all young folks in the community to become members of either of these two groups. They offer the kind of program which attempts to de-tract young people from the interests of crime by directing their attention toward productive and respectable goals.

In sponsoring and supporting these youth programs, we feel that we are attempting to elevate the character of our young people.

House OKs Esch's Rehabilitation Bill

U.S. Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann Arbor) reports passage in the House of his compromise vocational rehabilitation bill by a 384-13 vote.

The legislation provides $1.35 billion over a two-year period for vocational rehabilitation programs.

Included are individualized written programs, a special Office of the Handicapped to be established in HEW, grants for such special areas as spinal cord and kidney diseases, and special attention on the problem of architectural barriers and the housing, transportation and employment needs of the handicapped.

Esch's 2nd District includes the Plymouth and Livonia areas of Wayne County.

"In passing this bill, Congress has gone a long way to expand and upgrade services to the handicapped, yet at a moderate cost," Esch said.

"This legislation will not only improve and streamline the current programs, but will extend federal responsibilities in the area of severely handicapped, those afflicted with spinal cord injuries and the problem of architectural barriers."

Esch, who is a member of the House Education and Labor Committee, introduced his legislation last April when the Senate sustained President Nixon's veto of the original vocational rehabilitation legislation.

Rude Audience Taken To Task

EDITOR:

Having just returned from the graduation exercises at Plymouth Educational Park, I am compelled to write regarding the behavior of many adults attending the exercises.

It was with complete surprise and disgust that I witnessed the exodus of many parents, relatives, and friends during the presentation of the diplomas.

As soon as a senior's name was called, some parents, accompanied by grandparents, aunts, uncles etc., headed for the exits. The remaining parents had trouble hearing the names of their sons and daughters being announced because of the noise created by those departing in the middle of the ceremony.

I know an hour and a half is a long time for a child to sit, but I've always thought we adults could bear up under such cruel and severe punishment.

Graduation is a very important milestone in the lives of our young adults and their parents, but I can see where many people both young and old and particularly the seniors will remember this year's graduation as a lesson in rudeness.

It was very embarrassing to be associated with such an ill-mannered group and I apologize to the seniors in their behalf.

P.S. May I suggest that next year, all gates be locked until the close of the ceremony.

OBSERVER ROUNDUP

"Fill'er up."
That familiar adage heard at hundreds of filling stations around Observerland may be just another piece of history as a recent survey of stations revealed that the fuel shortage may prompt gas rationing and other dramatic steps to preserve fuel.

Besides rationing, gas station owners reveal that prices are steadily rising and operating hours are being cut to reserve supplies.

Most stations contacted said their usual allocation has been cut by an average of 10 per cent, while prices have risen on an average of three cents a gallon.

At present, major oil companies are supplying stations the same amount as was supplied in the same month last year, but many station owners say this is far short of what is needed.

Presently, the federal government is working on a plan which would allocate gasoline on the basis of the last quarter of 1971 and the first three quarters of 1972.

Jack Bingham, owner of Bingham's Standard Service, Livonia, is one of those cutting hours. Formerly remaining open 24 hours, he now closes on Sunday and weekdays between 7 and 10 p.m., whenever he runs dry.

He blames the crisis on environmentalists.

"The companies are having trouble building refineries and exploring for new sources because the environmentalists are opposing them," said Bingham.

Birt Poff, owner of a Redford Township gas station, expressed reservation over the reality of a fuel shortage.

"The general public might believe there is a shortage, but I am unsure. One gasoline truck driver told me that the local storage area for a major supplier was out of regular gasoline for two days," said Poff.

"Now you tell me, are you going to let a million gallon storage area sit dry for two days when you could be selling it?"

Butch Wood, manager of a Standard Station in Westland, said his fuel has been cut.

"I was getting 40,000 gallons a month and now I'm getting 30,000," he said.

Wood says his prices have gone up about three cents due to the shortage.

"We haven't had to ration gas yet, but I expect we will by the end of the month."

He has joined other station owners in shortening hours by closing on Sundays and operating only a half day on Saturdays.

Anthony Bartkowiak, a Garden City Gulf owner, claims he is getting the same amount of fuel as last year, but it isn't enough.

"The trouble is, I have more clients than last year at this time and I'm not getting enough fuel," said Bartkowiak.

out of fuel Thursday and Friday."

He says he's not rationing gas yet, but says the chances are good he will have to soon. He closed early last Saturday because of the shortage.

Lou Hoffman, owner of L and D Service Station in Plymouth, says the shortage has hit his business hard.

"I have had to lay off two part-time workers and one full time guy to save on money," said Hoffman.

He classifies the shortage as a "touchy situation" and says he is losing customers because of it.

"I'm not going to ration gas to the customers. I'll pump until I'm dry. If you ration, all that happens is you get a lot of aggravated people."

Joe Ruhlman's Total Station in Southfield reports the gas supply has been cut 10 per cent a month from the 155,000 gallons usually received. Because of this, hours are being trimmed to match the supply. They closed for the first time on Sunday this past week.

Bruce Ladd, a Sunoco Service Station manager in Farmington, said he would rather stay away from rationing, but it may be inevitable.

Ladd has cut his hours from a 24-hour service to staying open until 8 p.m. and closing on Sunday in order to conserve on fuel.

A few station owners see advantage to the present situation.

"The gas shortage is 'beautiful for me,'" said the owner of Frank's Telegraph Chicago Shell Service in Redford Township.

"It's the first time in four years that I've made money," he said.

How To Save Gas Told By Auto Club

To help motorists get the most out of their gasoline this season, Automobile Club of Michigan has developed guidelines which it suggests be followed to conserve fuel.

Auto Club officials state that regardless of where a person travels in the United States this summer, "unless conditions change drastically gasoline should not be a problem" if three basic rules are followed:

1. Stop for gasoline when the tank is half empty.
2. Fill tanks during daylight to avoid searching for an open station at night.
3. Fill tanks Saturday, since most stations electing to close one day a week to conserve supplies have chosen Sunday.

These are the additional guidelines suggested:

- Keep auto engines tuned with special attention to fuel and air filters, plugs, points plus emission control devices.
- Avoid jack-rabbit starts by accelerating gradually and traveling at steady speeds whenever possible.
- Avoid panic stops, which waste energy.
- Avoid long engine warm-up periods after starting a cold engine. Instead, drive slowly for a mile or so before reaching cruising speed.
- Cut down on the use of auto air conditioners which can penalize the motorist by up to three miles per gallon.

- Keep tires properly inflated. Tires underinflated by four pounds lower gas mileage by one-half mile per gallon.
- Travel lighter than normal. Excess weight puts added strain on the engine and results in fewer miles per gallon of gas.
- Shut off the ignition to save gas when parked.
- When possible, form car pools for office commuting.
- Combine short trips such as shopping and taking children to and from school.

Pickets To Protest Continuum Cuts

By MARGARET MILLER

The big question mark over the future of a women's continuum program at Schoolcraft College is expected to lead to campus picketing tonight (Wednesday).

Reduction or cancellation of the program because of a lack of funds had been reported. It had been launched this year.

Dr. C. Nelson Grote, Schoolcraft president, has stated that regardless of state funding, the college will keep its community service programs in some form. These include an extension office in Garden City and a senior adult program as well as the continuum, headed by Nancy Dufour.

However, said a spokesman for the group planning the picketing, what is wanted is assurance of the continuum program's going on uncurtailed.

Sylvia Vukmirovich, Schoolcraft counselor, Livonia resident and leader in moves to set up a National Organization of Women unit on the campus, said a group of pickets would present fact sheets and arguments to a study session of the Schoolcraft trustees in the board office.

They will meet in the administration building at 7 p.m.

"We have one woman from the community and one student who will make presentations to the board," she added, "and a number of women who have participated in the continuum programs begun this year are planning to join us."

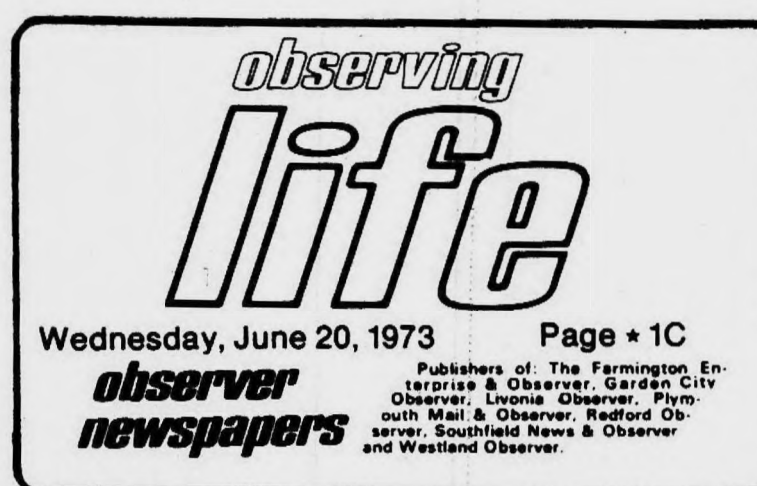

Dr. Grote said the continuum program and others in the community services department at Schoolcraft have to depend on action in the Michigan Legislature.

Continuum, the senior adults program headed by Betty Andrews, and the Garden City extension office set up this year all were funded originally through a special $100,000 state grant, he explained.

As of Monday morning, he said, it still had not been determined whether that grant would be renewed. It had been approved by the State Senate appropriations committee, but still was in committee in the House of Representatives.

"My best feeling is that a part of it may be reinstated," he said, "but I really do not feel confident that the entire amount is likely to be appropriated this year."

If the grant is partial, he added, it might well be earmarked for the Garden City program because "this has more appeal in a House committee."

He added however, that such a move would not mean dropping the other community service programs.

"If we get funds for one program, we can switch our own allocations to others," Dr. Grote said.

"I want to emphasize that in the Schoolcraft budget, regardless of the action in the Legislature, we have allocated funds for professional persons to work in the areas of continuum and senior adults."

"This does not have anything to do with the Garden City office. Thus, these programs will continue."

"With the fine work that has been done to start them, I would anticipate that programs could continue even with reduced personnel. We would not have new developments, however."

"If we get the grant, we can do that much more and move into other new developments."

Mrs. Dufour, engaged early this year to develop a continuum program, said both she and Mrs. Andrews had received notices that their employment would terminate at the end of June unless they were notified otherwise because of developments in the Legislature.

"There has been no further word," Mrs. Dufour said.

"When I came here I realized the grant was for only one year, but I understood the college was thinking of picking it up after that."

In her first few months as continuum director, Mrs. Dufour has set up several program series to bring women in the community into contact with services Schoolcraft has to offer them and help them find a way to continue their education.

Sport Car Racing Gets Ms. Touch

By BETTY MASSON

Last year, the "Ms." label on the regional championship races of the Detroit Region, Sports Car Club of America, was a gimmick.

But it worked so well, the "Ms.s" were invited back, and it promises to be an annual occurrence. Seems the sports car racers like the way the girls run things.

So before the SCCA drivers took off for two days of racing at Waterford Hills June 9 and 10, their cars were tech-inspected by Chief Scrutineer Louise Lehman of Birmingham.

And at the end of the weekend, between 60 and 70 winners (first through sixth in different classes) received trophies chosen by Pat Prill of Westland.

Unfortunately, her husband, Paul, who drives a Lotus, wasn't one of them. He had engine trouble. But he is the holder of the Waterford course record in his class in a previous race.

Though she has taken part in gymkhana (obstacle) events locally, Mrs. Prill has no aspirations to become a driver in the Waterford Hills type of event.

In this type of race, drivers go more than 100 miles an hour on the back straight, amid other cars doing the same thing.

"Wheel-to-wheel racing is not for me," says Mrs. Prill. But she has become a racing fan.

"I hated sports cars when we were dating," she confesses. "Paul's MG was cramped and cold."

Now, "Racing is a family hobby. When your husband is involved, you might as well get involved too."

The Prills often combine racing and camping. Three-year-old Tracey is an old hand at it, and 11-year-old Eric has already attended his first race. With cotton in his ears, he slept through the whole thing.

The Prills have been active with the SCCA for the past three years. Before that, they belonged to a small local sports car club, Keynote.

Both are natives of Redford Township. Mrs. Prill, who graduated from Eastern Michigan University in speech therapy, taught in Livonia schools for five years, and helped start the Mother Hubbard Nursery in Westland.

She served as trophy chairman last year and volunteered again this year.

For the weekend race, she put a lot of time and thought into choosing trophies that would be useful as well as ornamental. Instead of the usual silver or pewter cups, she chose trophies of wood, such as barometers, cheese boards and snack trays.

Mrs. Prill will also be responsible this year for trophies for other SCCA sanctioned events such as the internationally recognized Press on Regardless rally. Last year, she helped with the POR by working the night shift at a check point in St. Ignace.

She will also choose trophies for the Detroit Region's national race, which will be held July 21 and 22 at the Grattan Track, outside Grand Rapids.

Prill does public relations and publicity for the club.

Sports car racing may seem like a hazardous hobby, but Mrs. Prill has no fears about her husband's abilities and those of the other drivers.

Before they are allowed to race, they must attend a driving school, pass a written test and be observed on the track. If they pass, they get an SCCA license which has to be renewed yearly.

Few women compete in these events as yet, but it's a good bet there will be more soon.

Mrs. Prill has a friend who is planning to attend the weekend driving school (one of two offered each year in this region by the SCCA) in August—before she marries a racing enthusiast.

Other women involved in running the weekend event were Mrs. Charlotte Tanner of Detroit, race chairman; Barbara Lewandowski of Highland, chief timer; Judy Christensen of Mt. Clemens, chief scorer; Bobbe Orr of Grand Rapids, chief starter; Joan Vangel, course physician; Shirley Worth of Detroit, grid marshal; and Paula Kempton of Birmingham, registrar.

Livonia Scout Gets 'Taste Of Texas'

Katie Wojtan of Livonia is representing the Girl Scouts of Metropolitan Detroit at the "Taste of Texas."

This is an international scouting event sponsored by the San Jacinto Girl Scout Council in Houston. It runs from June 14 to July 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wojtan of Hubbard Street.

Her sister, Mary Ellen, is going to "Cisom" in Nashville, Tenn., from July 17-30. This is a music program at Vanderbilt University.

Both girls are members of Troop 270 at Kennedy School.

3 Generations Of Brides Are Married In Same Church

When Karen Sue Santer married J. Neal Sage in Farmington's First United Methodist Church June 16, she made it three generations of brides to be wed before that altar.

Karen's grandmother, Mrs. Myrt Winters of Farmington, was one of the first brides married in the church dedicated in 1922.

She and her husband-to-be, Guy Winters, were new in Farmington when they married Sept. 22, 1925. At that time church weddings were more unusual than today, and they had planned to be married in the Methodist parsonage by Dr. Signey Eva, then pastor of the church.

"I was wearing a white dress when we went to the parsonage," Mrs. Winters recalled, "so Dr. Eva suggested we go over to the church and have the ceremony there."

Myrt and Guy Winters became active members of the congregation, one of the oldest in this area. The sanctuary in which they were married was built to replace the original frame sanctuary that was destroyed by fire in 1920.

Mrs. Winters, now widowed, still is a member of the church and its choir.

Their daughter, Betty, was married there Aug. 20, 1949, to William H. Santer. The Rev. Stanley Stone officiated for that wedding.

The Santers live in Detroit and have attended Outer Drive United Methodist Church there.

But daughter Karen knew the Farmington church through frequent visits to her grandparents.

"She used to say 'I want to be married in your church, Grandma,'" Mrs. Winters said. "I thought then it was just talk."

But when Karen began her wedding plans this spring,

First United Methodist of Farmington was her choice for a church.

And when the early evening ceremony took place Saturday, the clergyman was the Rev. Howard Snell, former pastor of the Outer Drive church and now associate minister in Farmington.

The couple received guests in the church's Markham room and at Botsford Inn and went to northern Michigan for their honeymoon. Both teachers, they will live in Clarkston.

Lorie Neiman, Karen Ryan Are Graduates

Lorie Ann Neiman of Farmington and Karen Lynn Ryan of Livonia were among the 85 graduating seniors this year, from Kingswood School Cranbrook.

Miss Neiman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester T. Neiman of Kingswood Square, and Miss Ryan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ryan of Bristol Court.

Alice Silberstein Burnes, a businesswoman, Kingswood alumna and mother, was guest speaker at the commencement exercises.

Flag-Waving Coming To Livonia's Spree 23

Flag-waving is getting back in fashion, believes a Livonia advertising woman whose special interest in the country's colors is life long.

So Grace Hay and fellow members of the Livonia Business and Profession Women are planning to do a bit of flag-displaying on their own.

During Livonia's Spree '23, the municipal birthday celebration scheduled June 29 to July 1, the BPW members will have a flag booth.

On sale will be Betsy Ross flags—the kind with 13 stars sewn in a circle as the original flag-maker is said to have done it—and the 50-star variety of today.

In addition, Mrs. Hay is offering the services of her mail-order business to help other local organizations raise funds through the sale of flags.

Particularly with the growing interest in the flag as the nation's bi-centennial celebration approaches, Mrs. Hay figures Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops, veterans' and service groups and other BPWs might be interested in raising funds and learning more about American heritage in the process.

"We are particularly interested in promoting flags for the coming bi-centennial," Mrs. Hay said, "because we would like to help encourage a feeling of pride in our heritage and a love of flag and country."

"It's likely that many items will be produced for the 1976 celebration. Some are sure to be in poor taste and cheaply made, and others will be expensive but with little lasting value or true meaning."

"But everyone can fly our country's flag—either one of the historic versions or our present 50-star flag—and do it with great pride."

The Betsy Ross flag will be seen in increasing numbers as the bi-centennial approaches, Mrs. Hay predicted.

She and her husband, Robert, frequently fly it from the flagpole in their Livonia yard. Also to be seen there often is a Rattlesnake Flag, the original of which goes back to records of the American revolution.

One of her ancestors, a Revolutionary War general, raised a private rattlesnake banner with the words "Don't Tread on Me" during a battle in South Carolina.

Mrs. Hay's family genealogy may have something to do with her avid interest in flags.

Ancestors date back to pre-Revolutionary times, and her family tree includes such names as Westmoreland, Freeman and Fuller, all well-known in the settling of Virginia, South Carolina and Pennsylvania.

"And I still own a small piece of North Carolina property that is part of an original land grant," she said.

Mrs. Hay, who works with an associate in the flag mail order business as well as handling advertising accounts in this area, said her firm hoped by fall to have a complete display of American flags ready to take into local classrooms whenever requests are made.

They also will go to club meetings for organizations interested. She will have available a non-commercial movie "Our U.S. Flag" to all requesting it in advance. The film, she said, won the Freedoms Foundation medal for excellence.

Available from the BPW at Spree '23 will be house flags either three by five or four by six feet and also tiny flags to be used on desks or as gifts or favors. The big ones will be made of nylon or heavy cotton to withstand the elements of Michigan weather.

"I really worry when I see dirty and worn flags being displayed," Mrs. Hay said. "I want to knock at the door and tell people I'll be glad to have them cleaned or repaired."

20 French Boys Still Need Homes

Homes still are needed for about 20 teen-aged boys who will be visiting from France July 15 to Aug. 14.

They are in a group of exchange students being brought to this country by the International Cultural Exchange.

John Hopkins, Plymouth-Salem High School French teacher working on arrangements for the exchange, said hosts had been found for all the girls who will be in this country.

But still to be placed are about 20 boys.

"I guess part of the problem is that many more girls than boys study French and are thus especially interested in the program," Hopkins said.

"But actually all these students speak English so there's no need to have someone in the home who knows French."

"It's not even necessary to have a teen aged son in the family—just a willingness to accept a young visitor and make him part of the family for a month."

The boys range in age from 13 to 18, and all have been screened before being accepted for the program. Local residents who could offer a home to a French gentleman may get in touch with Hopkins at Plymouth-Salem High.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Anderson of Simi Valley, Calif., announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet Marie, to Denis M. MacDonald of Ellen Drive, Livonia. The bride-elect is a student at the Fashion Institute of Design & Merchandising of Sherman Oaks, Calif. Her fiancé graduated from Thurston High School in 1968 and from Schoolcraft College in 1971 and now is serving with the U.S. Navy SeaBees in the Philippines. They plan to be married March 9.

For Deck Picnic

Fix-Aheads Are Lifesavers

Some of the best summer times are those unplanned boat-hopping parties that just seem to happen at dockside.

If you're elected, by popular demand, as hostess on the spot, ride the crest of the wave with easy to fix hors d'oeuvres. These appetizing ideas will help you make the most of the convenience and taste qualities of cheese, dairy sour cream and butter.

Plan your happening by keeping an assortment of popular cheeses on hand. With a moment's notice, you can deck a tray with slices of golden cheddar, chunks of nutty Swiss, wedges of sharp and salty blue, mild brick and Edam.

While guests are nibbling, fill a bowl with make-ahead Dockside Dip, a mixture of shredded cheddar, crumbled blue and cream cheeses blended with onion, port wine, chopped walnuts and parsley. The dip will keep for several days in the refrigerator.

Guests with hearty appetites will appreciate the galley grilled party sandwiches that can be made ahead then grilled in a skillet at serving time.

For munchers, cocktail popcorn makes a flavorful snack. Use packaged pre-popped corn and drizzle it with garlic butter or chili powder butter.

DOCKSIDE DIP

1 c. (4 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese at room temperature
1/2 c. crumbled blue cheese
1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese
1 t. grated onion
1/4 c. port wine

2 T. chopped parsley

To serve, sprinkle top with additional chopped walnuts and parsley. Yields 1 3/4 cups. Note: May be prepared ahead of time and stored in the refrigerator.

SKINNY DIP

1 T. lemon juice
1 t. sugar
1/2 t. salt
1/2 t. curry powder
1/2 t. prepared mustard
1 c. dairy sour cream
Cooked shrimp
Celery sticks
Carrot sticks
Green pepper sticks
In a bowl combine chutney, lemon juice, sugar, salt, curry powder and mustard. Fold in sour cream. Chill. Serve with shrimp or fresh vegetable sticks for dippers. Yields one cup. Note: May be prepared ahead of time and stored in refrigerator.

GALLEY GRILLED PARTY SANDWICHES

1/2 c. shredded cheddar cheese
1/2 t. prepared horseradish
1/2 t. prepared mustard
6 slices English muffin bread

Butter, softened
Pimiento-stuffed olives

In a bowl combine ham, cheese, horseradish and mustard. Spread on three slices of bread; top with remaining three slices of bread to make sandwiches. Spread outside sandwiches with butter. In a skillet, grill on both sides until golden brown. Cut each sandwich in quarters. Garnish with olives secured with wooden picks. Yield: 12 appetizers.

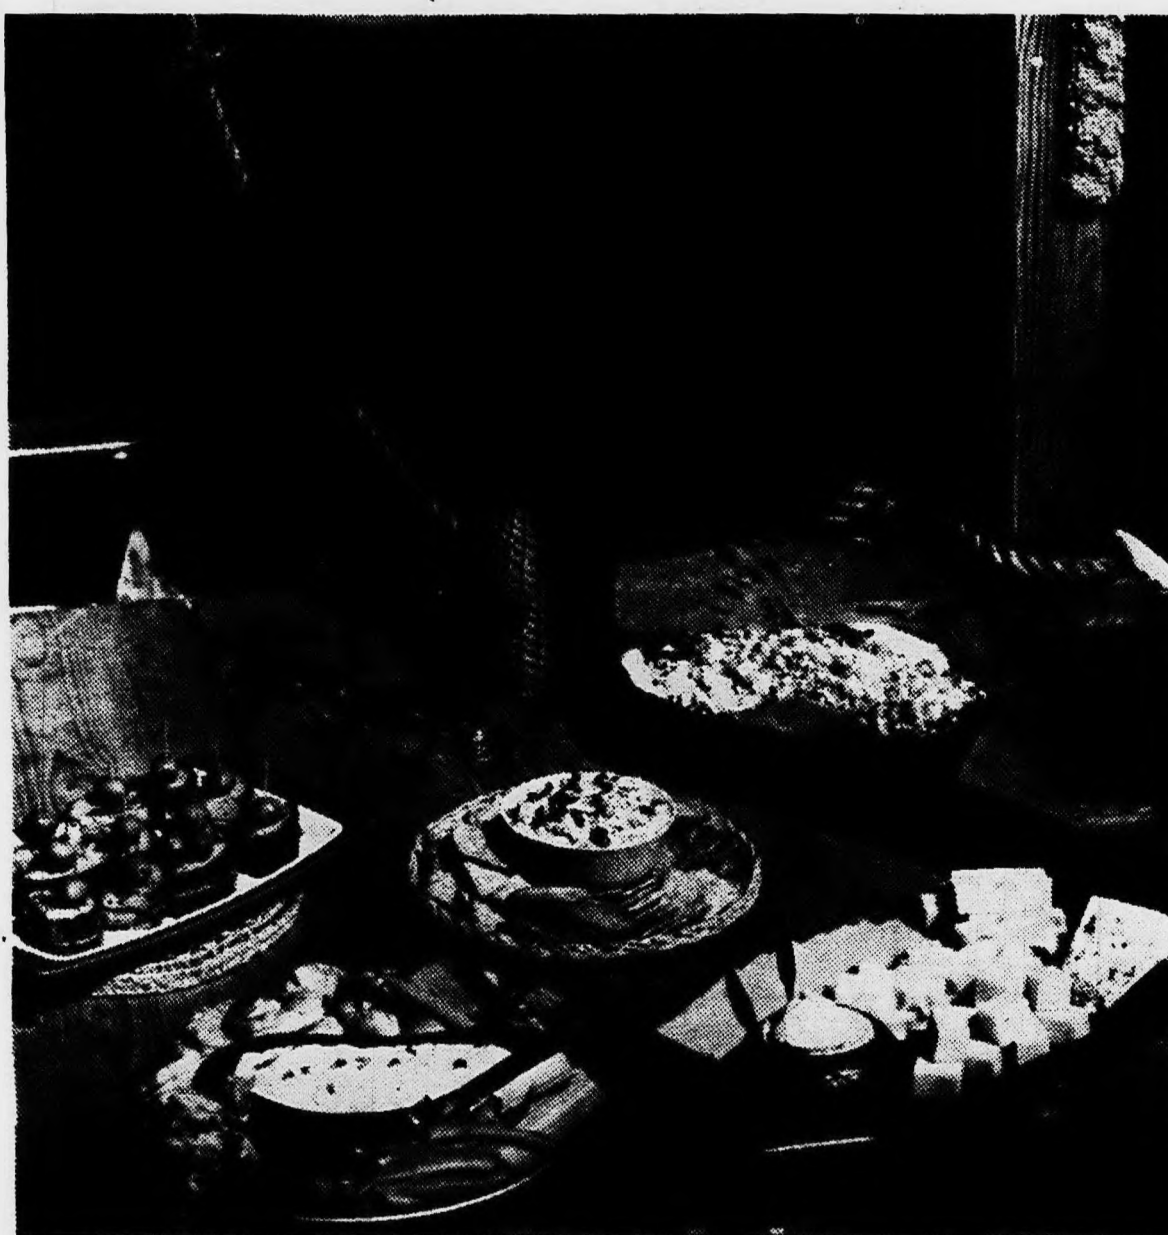

GARLIC POPCORN

1/4 c. butter
1 clove garlic, sliced

2 qts. packaged popcorn
In saucepan melt butter; add garlic and sautee three to four minutes. Remove garlic. Add popcorn and toss. Heat over low heat three to four minutes, stirring frequently. Makes two quarts.

CHILI POPCORN

2 qts. packaged popcorn
In saucepan melt butter; stir in chili powder. Add popcorn and toss. Heat over low heat three to four minutes stirring frequently. Makes two quarts.

A HOLIDAY BOATING party will be a happy one for guests and hostess with a dockside party which includes tasty hors d'oeuvres like dockside dip, skinny dip, galley grilled party sandwiches and cocktail popcorn.

A How-To In Self Protection

By LORAIN McCLISH

"Self Protection for Women," the first such course believed to be offered in the Detroit Metropolitan area has been put together by three experts of various but related fields to be given by the Oakland Branch of the YWCA.

"Self protection" is not to be confused with "self defense." There will be no lessons in karate or judo, but rather some very simple precautions to be learned on how women of all ages can ward off unprovoked assault.

The idea for the course stemmed from the Y's Social Action committee after several rapes had been reported in Detroit within a short period of time.

The committee turned to Alice Saunders, executive director of Motoress Aid for something, anything, of a how-to nature on the subject, who had been working on her own to gather some material for the past two years.

"Everything I've gotten I put together myself," Mrs. Saunders said from her Southfield office that is the national headquarters for the club that gives automotive consumer help to the woman driver.

"The police can tell you what to do if you ask them. Like don't leave your purse on the car seat in full view to lure a criminal. Or what to do if someone tries to get into your car when you're stopped at a red light. Or that you can entice a criminal attack by provocative dress, because if you play games you are surely inviting trouble."

"But nowhere could I find any of these things written down. Some clubs hinted that they had such material but would give it out only to their members. The only concrete thing I came up with, after two years, is a film from a rifle association, of all places."

Mrs. Saunders will incorporate the film into her portion of the four-part course, along with suggestions for self-protection her company distributes to their members under the title "Lady Beware."

"Lady Beware" includes self-protection devices for when you are walking alone, at home, and if attacked, as well as when you are driving.

"This is not to scare somebody to death," she says, "it's to prepare you for what to do so when the time comes you'll react better."

The one movie to be shown, Mrs. Saunders, admits, "is scary. It depicts common ways a woman can be attacked which are pretty frightening. But it also illustrates several simple ways you can use your arms to free yourself."

Bob Spencer, patrolman with the Royal Oak Police Department, whose biggest job is in the area of community relations, will talk on the legal aspects of the matter.

"I'm preparing to give a profile on the attacker and what his problems are because I think it is important to know what you're dealing with (in case of attack)," Spencer said.

"The person who makes obscene phone calls and gets arrested for indecent exposure is the same person who is eventually going to try to attack someone."

"When his Peeping Tom experiences don't work any more he has to do something else for his thrill."

Spencer will give a brief resume on what the police do when the report on the attack is made and fill the class in on legal definitions of "assault, assault and battery, rape, attempted rape, purse snatching and anything else I think will fit in," he said.

Another portion of the course will be taught by Shirley Stachura, a police officer with the Oakland University Dept. of Public Safety, and a victim of an attempted robbery.

"I just don't believe that lessons in judo are helpful in a surprise attack. I don't believe that anyone who doesn't use it regularly is going to be able to think: now I cross my right foot over here or now I put my left hand there. It doesn't work that way," she said.

While two men were holding a gun to her head demanding that she open a safe she did not know the combination of, she said she did what "came naturally. I begged for mercy."

But she did remember two things from her police training that worked to her advantage. "I knew that they were just as scared as I was and I was as polite and cooperative as I could be. I came out of it with a few bruises but that was all. It could have been much worse."

It is this type of mental reinforcement Miss Stachura believes is most helpful to know and what she will concentrate on in her part of the course.

"Women take so many chances they are like accidents looking for a place to happen. There are no new crimes. Criminals are still up to their same old tricks. Women just aren't catching up fast enough to keep ahead of them," she said.

The course will be given at the Y, 839 S. Crooks Rd., in Clawson, on four consecutive Mondays beginning June 25, at 7:30 p.m. The entire fee is $1.

AAUW Units Send Delegates To Convention

Six women are representing the Livonia, Farmington and Plymouth branches of the American Association of University Women at the AAUW's national convention.

The convention is being held this week in the Washington Hilton, Washington. Representing the Livonia Branch are Mrs. Mary Lodge, the president and the incoming chairman of the legislative program committee of the Michigan AAUW; and Barbara Mansfield, the incoming president. Her term begins July 1.

Farmington is being represented by its branch president, Mrs. Dee Schoenicht. The Plymouth delegates are Mrs. Elaine Kirchgatter, the president; and Mrs. Sarah Haas and Mrs. Peggy Fisher.

Some 2,200 delegates were expected at the convention. Dr. Anne Campbell of Lincoln, Neb., president of the AAUW, called for rebuilding "the foundations of mutual trust...on the cornerstone of truth" and cited the distrust of leaders as the "overriding malaise of American society," in her opening speech Sunday.

"Whatever the future may hold, we of AAUW are concerned about...our roles and responsibilities as women." In concluding, she presented three alternatives. "We can resist the future and undertake the impossible task of preserving a world without change. We can passively accept the future, whatever it brings—which is to abandon it. Or we can seek to shape the future to meet our needs and fulfill our dreams."

Awards were presented to states that organized the greatest number of branches in the past two years. Michigan received honorable mention for its five new branches.

AAUW membership now stands at more than 173,000, with 1,760 branches in the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Guam and Puerto Rico.

One Plus One Equals Son

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Haines, both Livonia math teachers, announce they have successfully added one and one with the result of one — a son, David Allen, born Sunday, June 3.

David's father teaches math at Bryant Junior High School and his mother, the former Mary L. LeBlanc, taught at Emerson, Bryant and Frost junior highs.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Allen E. Haines of Wilmington, Ohio, and Mrs. Adrienne LeBlanc of Farmington.

WAYNE WALDEN, 40433 Newport, Plymouth Township, has been appointed branch manager in the National Bank of Detroit's Ann Arbor-Harvey office in Plymouth. An NBD employee for six years, he takes on the new position after serving as senior assistant manager at another branch bank.

Teacher Unions Pick 8 Winners; Lose 4

Observerland teacher unions adopted a low profile in this month's board of education elections in contrast to some years when their campaigning has approached the hectic.

What support was offered generally took the form of manpower rather than money.

Education associations representing teachers in two districts, Redford Union and Garden City, failed to endorse candidates at all.

In other districts, there were eight winners and four losers among 12 candidates backed by teacher unions.

In some places, teachers split among themselves with some actively campaigning for candidates who lacked formal union endorsement.

With two incumbents running for re-election unopposed in the Redford Union district, the local education association remained out of the race entirely.

The South Redford Education Assn. (SREA) endorsed two candidates but provided minimal financial support for their campaigns. However, the SREA did send out letters in their behalf to area residents and teachers.

One of the endorsed pair, Mrs. Mary VanAlsten, a former substitute teacher, was elected. The other, Mrs. Betty Splatt, ran fourth.

The Plymouth Education Assn. (PEA), which has endorsed candidates since 1970, saw one of its candidates lose for the first time, and then by only 18 votes.

The PEA's major contribution continued to be circulation of its endorsements through the "Plymouth Educator," mailed to every home in the school district.

The Farmington Education Assn. (FEA) endorsed both winners in the race, Gary Lichtman and Emma Makinen, but did it quietly.

They distributed literature election day and mailed out their endorsements to MEA members in the district, supposedly about 200 Farmington teachers living in the district and another 200 who live in Farmington but teach in other districts.

Another factor was a split among FEA members on two of the candidates, Lichtman and the Rev. Hugh Stewart. With both men having about an equal chance of election, strong endorsement of either would have been a political gamble.

With only three candidates for two board seats campaigning in a very mild election, Garden City Education Assn. (GCEA) made no public endorsement.

In the Wayne-Westland district, the two candidates receiving education association endorsement finished fourth and fifth in a field of seven candidates.

Winners outpolled the union's choices by nearly 2-1. However, many teachers, including the union's president, openly opposed the association's choices and worked for other candidates.

Livonia, frequently the site of intense teacher union politicking, was relatively calm.

The Livonia Education Assn. (LEA) made no public endorsement but its preferred candidates, Mrs. Geraldine Joyner and Mark Scarr, were 2-1 winners.

The LEA supplied workers and telephoners but reportedly little, if any, cash. Major contribution apparently was a last minute telephone campaign in some areas.

The Southfield Education Assn. (SEA), which endorsed both winners, put its major effort into a get-out-the-vote telephone campaign and did not, as in past years, engage in any mass mailings or mass distribution of posters.

Some observers see this year's union quiescence as statewide Michigan Education Assn. (MEA) policy to avoid turning off voters and to allow time for animosities engendered in previous campaigns to cool in order to have better chances of support for future political activity.

The MEA did "get a lot of flack" from certain legislators following the last general election, one union official said privately, because of its "flamboyant" support of certain congressional and legislative candidates.

"They felt it was inappropriate for the MEA to try to affect the outcome of elections," he said.

That reaction, he speculated, might have "sensitized" locals to the risks of entering school board elections "on too grandiose a scale."

He and others also mentioned latent hostility still lingering from the MEA's all out drive to secure passage of Propositions C and D on last November's state ballot. Both were turned down by voters in a landslide.

Proposition C would have virtually eliminated local property tax for school operations and substituted a statewide 20-mill property tax plus the option of an additional six mills at the local level for educational enrichment.

Proposition D would have removed the state constitutional ban on a graduated income tax.

Teen Shoplifters Rebel, Rationalize

ANN ARBOR youngsters at a neuro-psychiatric institute at a large hospital. The group talked about the reasons behind shoplifting, the methods and ethics involved. "The discussions were quite uninhibited," she said, "and some interesting attitudes became evident."

"The general opinion of these young people was that most people would steal if they could get away with it. It seemed to them that personal threat, rather than moral considerations, was the main deterrent."

These youngsters -- who were being treated for various emotional troubles -- had not developed the kind of inner controls needed to participate satisfactorily in society, the research showed.

"Their general attitude was that society had too many rules to follow and it was unrealistic to expect adherence to all of them. To them, 'rules' seemed to include ethics as well as code of law."

"They quieted their guilt feelings further by rationalizing that the merchants they stole from were equally dishonest. 'higher-ups' -- their term for authority figures -- always get away with illegal things. That's how they make it," one boy said. There seemed to be a feeling that no one ever really achieved status through ability or hard work."

"Two items, 'law violating arousal-seeking behavior' and 'rebellion against authority' were consistently linked to shoplifting and delinquency," Dr. Thall reported. "On a more limited scale, peer group influence was also important."

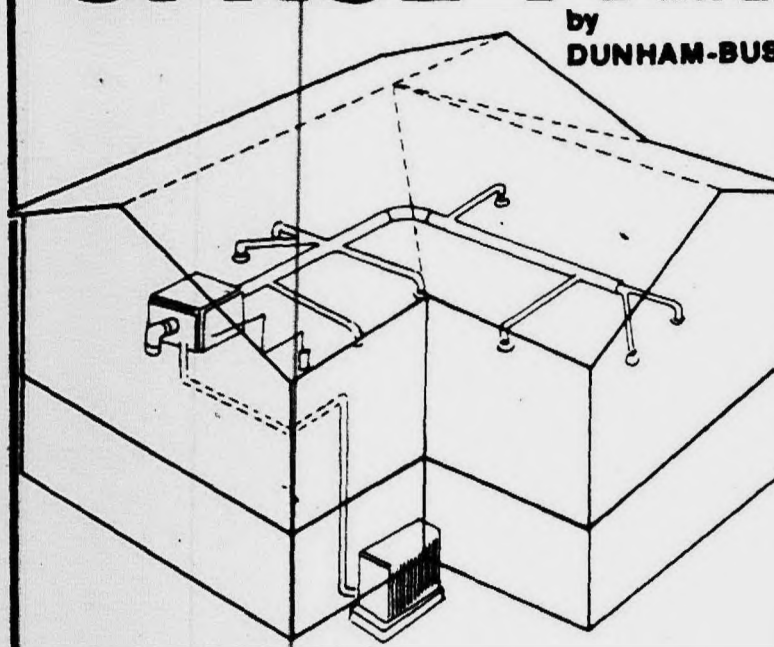

Her most revealing information unfolded during 15 weeks of discussions with
