Miller Woods-Can It Be Presenve

Such are the signs of civilization that are moving in on one of the country's most unusual forests.

According to Dr. Warren H. Wagner of the University of Michigan Botany Dept., Miller Woods is classified as a beech-maple climax forest, the only one in the county and one of very few in this part of the country. It also contains many rare plant species, he says.

The value of Miller Woods was little known to the community until discovered by the Plymouth Study Group through Dr. Wagner.

The study group, composed of Plymouth area women, recently requested Dr. Wagner to lecture on the subject of botany.

The lecture included a field trip to Miller Woods and firsthand observation of such rare plants as squirrel-corn. bloodroot and wild leek.

The group also got a firsthand observation of such non-rarities as beer cans, pop bottles and paper bags.

Mrs. Penelope Wright of Plymouth, chairman of the study group, said several members expressed concern about the future of the woods.

"It's a beautiful thing and we wanted people to think of it as a natural resource rather than a dumping ground."

The group did some investigating and learned that the Plymouth Community School District owned approximately half of the woods.

Mrs. Wright, along with group members Carolyn Oldford and Pat Atchinson, both of Plymouth, presented a petition to the school board in May.

The petition, with 98 signatures, urged the board to insure the preservation of the woods.

Dr. Wagner also sent a letter to the board, stating the value of Miller Woods and suggestions as to its use.

Supt. John M. Hoben said the school district had purchased 40 acres at the northeast corner of Powell and Ridge Roads as an eventual elementary school site. According to Hoben, this area includes approximately one-half of Miller Woods.

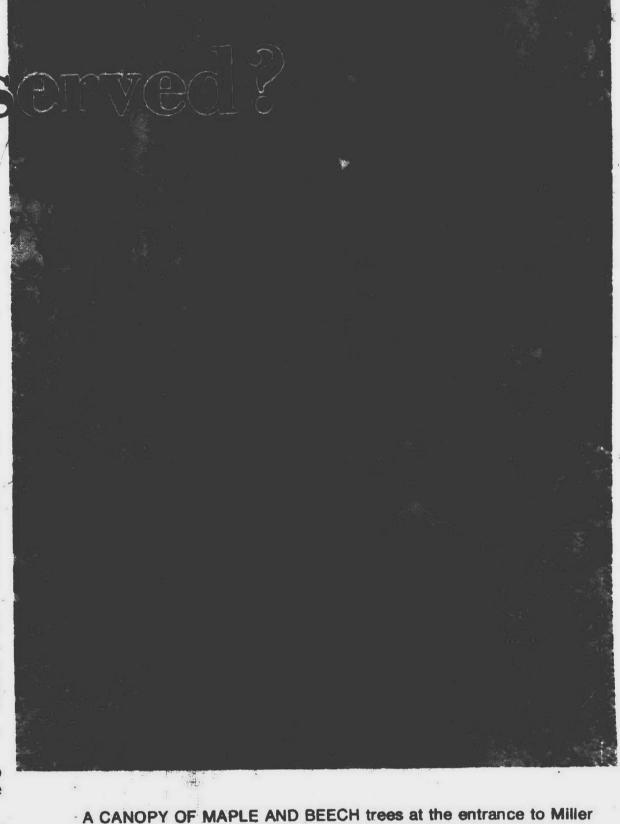

Hoben said HUD (Housing and Urban Development) money was used for a portion of the purchase.

"Because we used HUD money, we are required to leave a certain portion of the area as open space. This means we couldn't build on it."

Hoben contends the "open space" section will include the woods.

"It was our intention originally to keep the woods as an outdoor nature

Innovative programs and trends mark the initiation of the fall term at Madonna, a coeducational institution.

In the field of criminal jusfice (also offered under sociológy) is a new course in criminal law, offered on Monday evenings from 7-10 p.m. This course, which carnies four credits, will examine the history, purposes and philosophy of criminal law, as well as local, state and federal law from the standpoint of their development, application and enforcement.

Madonna is offering a new isiness administration program within the Social Sciince Division. The courses will contribute to a minor or an area of concentration in a program. The first in the new curriculum, "Introduction to Business," will be offered in the fall term on Saturday mornings from 9 to 12.

Classroom-laboratory periods in the four credit hour course will define the principles, practices and interrelationships that exist in accounting, marketing, manement and finance.

narcotics workshop scheduled for the fall term will also carry four credits. The purpose of this workshop is three-fold. First, it will acquaint participants with the general social and police problems created by the illegal use of narcotics and dangerous drugs; second, par-ticipants will be provided with an understanding of the types and effects of abused narcotics and drugs; finally, participants will be trained in the recognition and pre-liminary identification of narcotics and dangerous drugs through the use of chemical field testing techniques.

A copy of the schedule of classes for the fall term will be mailed to prospective stuadénts on request.

WCCC Will Offer Classes On Saturdays

Wayne County Community College will start a Saturday college to begin in the 1973-74 school year on a pilot program basis.
The new program will enable persons whose schedules prevent them from attending day or evening classes during the week to go to classes only on Saturday. Attending full time, a student will be able to earn an associate degree in two years.

Reginald WCCC president, said the Saturday college will be in-itiated at two instructional centers: Nativity at 9330 Shōemaker on Detroit's east side and Patrick at 129 Superior in Wyandotte.

point to clean out the woods, barricades have been set up in an effort to stop dumping.

"We hope groups such as Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, etc. will volunteer to help clean up," he explained.

Mrs. Wright said the possibility of study group members forming a clean-up team is also being discussed.

Perhaps the major problem facing Miller Woods is Detroit Edison's plan to run electrical wires through the area. This would necessitate tree trimming rights which would cause irreparable damage to the woods, Dr. Wagner claims.

According to a report from Hoben, Edison is now investigating a potential of running its lines along the south side to Powell Road. (Miller Woods is mainly on the north side)

Edison is currently in the process of obtaining rights-of-way on those parcels of property.

Describing the woods as a museum, Dr. Wagner says it is an excellent example of a primeval forest. He argues the woods should be kept exactly as it is -- undisturbed.

Although a couple of trees were downed during the recent storm, Wagner says this doesn't matter.

"That's the point of a climax forest. It continually replaces itself."

Wagner says there are more than 200 species of plants in the woods, many of them edible. His wife, also a botanist, uses many of the plants for cooking. Wagner says some of them are really delicious.

"The people in Plymouth should be proud to own this and they should protect it. When you lose a forest like this,.. you'll never get it back."

Wagner says he regularly brings his University of Michigan classes to the woods for plant study. He also says visiting scientists from other countries have come here looking for unusual

Examples of the herbaceous plants found here include trout lily, Dutchman's-breeches, harbinger-of-spring, beech-drops, wild ginger, bedstraw, waterleaf and toothwart.

Examples of woody plants include American beech, sugar maple, spicebush, creeping strawberry bush, elderberry, prickly gooseberry and quaking

The woods is also used for nature question the officials on any photography and painting.

Wagner, with an impressive background in botany which included post-doctorate work at Harvard University and research in Central America, Caribbean, Hawaii and Southern Appalachia, was also recently appointed to the Survival Service Commission of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources.

According to Wagner, he's been around and seen a lot, but never anything quite like Miller Woods to which he was first introduced five years ago by a friend from the area.

The woods was originally part of an 80-acre parcel of land bought by Norman Miller in 1902. Miller was Plymouth Township clerk for 25 years. He yearly tapped the trees for a yield of sap which he processed into maple

On this scale, Esch got a 44, Mrs. Griffiths an 8 and Ford a 5.

By way of comparison: Donald Riegle (a Republican-turned Democrat) rated a 34, House GOP Leader Gerald Ford of Grand Rapids a 77, William Broomfield (R-Bloomfield) a 65, John Conyers (D-Detroit) a 12, and Lucien Nedzi (D-Detroit)

Geake (R-Northville) blasted suburban Democrats for backing a school aid plan' which is "fiscally irrespon- es (D-Westland), William thus rewarding districts with sible" and "sells out their own constituents." Geake, former chairman of the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees, criticized the school aid plan which passed the House last week on a strict party line vote. Initial attempts at passing the Democratic school aid plan failed until eight suburban Democrats, including from Observerland,

State Rep. R. Robert changed their votes to sup- chairs the Senate Education port the formula.

Keith (D-Garden City). John high levies. Bennett (D-Redford Township) and Thomas Brown (D-Westland).

"The state aid bill as it finally passed the House, far from being a fair compromise, amounts to a windfall of state school aid to Detroit city schools and is fiscally irresponsible in its present form," Geake said.

"The bill does nothing for districts like Livonia, which have supported their own schools through local voted millage, while rewarding districts which have refused to vote property taxes for their own children."

The state aid plan includes a provision to allow districts levying more than 30 mills for operations to lower their levy, but doesn't help districts which levy between 22 and 30 mills for operations,

The plan allows districts to lower their millage by 25 per cent of the excess over 30 mills by guaranteeing that the state will make up the difference in revenue.

'This adds an estimated 20 million to the membership formula and effectively renders the 'equal-yield' concept of the original Milliken-Bursley formula meaningless by eliminating the incentive for low-effort districts to raise their milages," Geake said.

The Milliken-Bursley plan was backed by the governor and devised by Sen. Gilbert Bursley (R-Ann Arbor) who > Democrats disagreed with this formula, arguing that it doesn't help low millage areas and encourages use of the property tax for financing schools.

> Suburban Democrats who originally opposed the Democratic school financing plan changed their votes when the provision was added to aid school districts levying over 30 mills for operations.

"The bill, as it passed the House on a straight party line vote, adds an incredible $79 million over the Senate version," Geake said. "The Democrats have made a feeble attempt to balance the budget by striking $53 million in retirement monies for teachers out of the Milliken-Bursley formula.

"I can see no way that this bill could possibly become law without a whopping tax increase next year.

Mail Gripes To Be Aired At Hearing

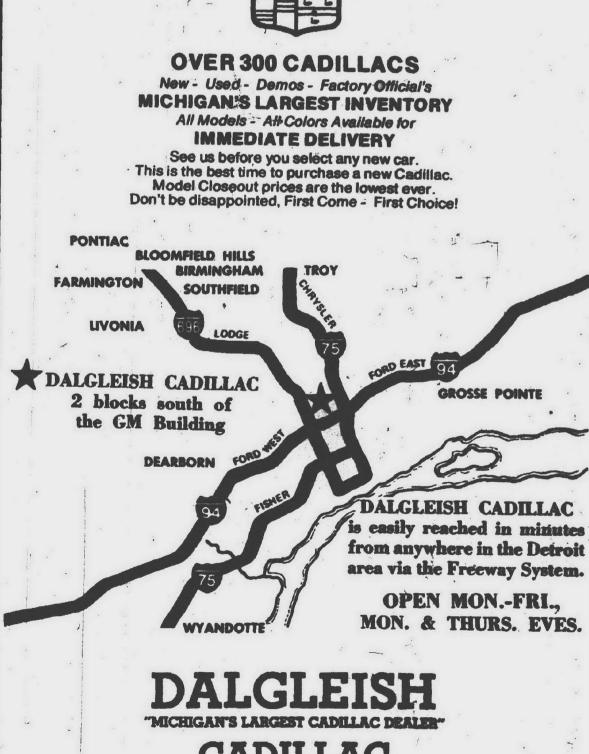

Metropolitan Detroit businessmen, politicos and postal union leaders will have a chance to air their gripes about the Postal Service at a public hearing Friday at 9 a.m. in the City-County Building in downtown Det-

Among the five or six members of a U.S. House postal service subcommittee conducting the hearing will be U.S. Rep. William D. Ford (D-Taylor).

Westland Mayor Eugene McKinney and Canton Township Supervisor Philip Dingeldey are expected to testify. Dingledey and other suburban township supervisors are angry at lack of door-to-door delivery in new subdivisions.

A spokesman for Ford said he was one of the few congressmen to vote against the bill removing the postmaster general from the Cabinet and setting up a corporation to deliver the mail.

Fellow members of the "Glenview 5" phone exchange - also known by Ma Bell in her increasingly rect Tyler.) impersonal way as "455-" - rejoice.

No longer are we the neophytes, the newcomers, the upstarts of Plymouth.

The snobs of "Glenview 3" (lately known as "453-") have a new class to look down their noses

Welcome "Glestview 9" (actually "459-"), Plymouth's newest telephone exchange.

It used to be that we of "Glenview 5" were outcasts.

"455-" was just out of it.

Now it's moved a step up on the pecking order. We got class, through no effort of our own, just as when "Glenview 5" was started and "Glenview 3's" egos inflated.

For those who are hard-core snobs: You can still wait until somebody with a "Glenview 3" number dies and apply for his phone number. (Maybe that's why so many people read our obituaries.)

Of course you may have to put up with some strange calls for a couple months until all of the friends of your phone number's former owner hear he's passed on.

Lwant to know what happened to "Glenview 7" (which would, in Bellese, be known as "457-") that should come in sequence before "Glenview 9" (also known as "459-").

It must have gone the way of "Glenview 4," "Glenview 6" and "Glenview 8."

They've gone to the great Bell purgatory where former and would-be phone exchanges live only because the dial could some day summon them forth.

Like the "Mossy O" exchange, which in just recent Bellese would have been an improbable "MOO-."

Remember back in the old days when the exchanges were names and not numbers?

Glenview of Plymouth and Luzon, Jordan, Woodward, Lorraine, Kenwood, Webster, Tyler and Diamond of Detroit are now confined to Ma Bell's Purgatory (although Mr. Bellvedere is trying to resur-

I always wondered who Luzon was. I doubt if anybody cares who "58" is.

How did they come up with the names for phone exchanges (back when they were names and not mathematical possibilities)?

Did they name them after retiring Bell Telephone Co. executives? Or maybe after Michigan Public Utilities Commission members who voted for rate increases?

Whoever named Glenview?

Despite what the "Glenview 3" folks think, it's nowhere near as classy as Luzon or Lorraine (they sound like jungle movie stars.)

And then there was Prehistoric Bellese.

"755J" was the early phone number of Plymouth to which the Little Woman admits. (I sure don't remember anything like that even if I do get sunburned on the top of my head.)

Somewhere in Bell Purgatory rests "755J." Three phone exchanges? Plymouth hits the big We're one step closer to Livonia (which has nine exchanges according to the April edition of Who's Who in West-Northwest Area Telephones), Wayne (eight exchanges), Ypsilanti (six exchanges) and Ann Arbor (10 exchanges).

Now we're another step ahead of South Lyon (Geneva 7) and Northville (Fieldbrook 9).

Welcome Plymouth's newest phone exchange. We've hit the big time.

Are Summer Baseball Coaches Rare Breed?

Funny thing about summer baseball coaches, they appear to become more incognito and harder to track down with sweatbead of every game.

There are some 27 coaches in the Adray and Berry Baseball Leagues, only a small handful that can truly fit the title of a coach.

Summer baseball coaches are a funny lot. If they are winning the summer couldn't be better but if they happen to lose you can't find a trace of them.

I really can't figure them out, they are always complaining about how hard it is to get good sponsors but when it comes down to calling in scores and stories, they don't want to be bothered.

Director of the Livonia Adray League and Berry League Bob Schwarcz is another who can't figure these summer coaches.

"I guess they just don't want to take the time to let anyone know about their games," said Schwarcz. "There are some who care about their kids and their sponsor but most are really tough to figure

"Some coaches don't even know the score of their own game," added Schwarcz. "I have learned to be pleased with just finding out whether they won or lost, and sometime even that can be a trying experience.

To all you parents, players and girl friends along with sponsors who have been wondering why your games haven't been in the paper. . .ask your coach if he knows the score of your latest game, who won and why he didn't bother to call in the story to the paper.

Oh yes, there are only 67 days remaining to the opening football clash of the 1973 prep season.

lap in :29.3 and was eased up in the final yards even though H.T. Luca was making a bold bid. It all came too late as Bea had her horse in front at the quarter and he stayed there all the way.

Easy Irv was clocked at :30.4 for the quarter, turned the half in 1:01.1 and the three quarters in 1:31.2.

Mrs. Farber knew she had the victory at the halfway mark and then was content to keep Irv ahead for the second half-mile. It's too bad none of the others came at him on the backstretch second time around. He had plenty left and appeared able to tour the lap in less than a minute ... that would have made the mile in less than

Northville has never had a mile in less than 2:00 ... we'd like to go on record predicting Easy Irv will become the first if he continues to improve as much in the next three weeks as in the last Irv was the odds-on favorite Saturday and returned $3.60 for a win ticket as he sped to victory No. 2 in as many weekends. Irv's $2,500 share of the $5,000 purse boosted his season earnings to more than $20,000. The horse now shows six wins in 12 starts in 1973.

Bea Farber, the standout Pick Friday but it took a disdriver at Northville Downs, qualification to do it. Angelo passed Gold Bubble just as he hit the wire.

The judges studied the films for a short time and then decided Angelo Pick had broken gait before crossing the line and therefore was placed second for a lapped-on break.

That gave the victory to Gold Bubble in 2:05.4. It will be interesting when the two tangle again Friday. Wally will be in quest of victory As it was Irv came the last No. 4 for the nine-year-old Angelo and Don bidding for No. 4 in eight starts for the five year old Gold Bubble.

> Peterson is starting to make plans for the annual Michigan colt stake series at the 'Downs during the next two weeks. Each of the eight events will have a value of $5,000 and the top 10 in points are eligible.

Since the county fairs are now under way, fans will have a chance to view the state's best two and three year old pacers and trotters, all candidates for the 1973 state championships.

ALTHOUGH opening day is still more than three weeks away, Dick Wilson, vice president and general manager of the Detroit Race Course, is busy getting the big mile track into top shape for the thoroughbreds.

Wilson has a distinct feeling the plant needs a thorough cleaning and painting to get rid of the "dead" atmosphere left by last year's dismal campaign. "We want to make the plant a place where folks will enjoy themselves and not have a feeling of doom" said Wilson. "We are painting the exterior a bright new color to start our plans for a bright

"A new paddock has been installed and fans will be able to look over every horse short of the wire and then in the race and watch the pawent into a disastrous break rade to the post. In the past the horses were kept inside in the paddock and then came into view of fans for the first time when they started the parade.

> "We'll have colored television of each race over the facilities of our closed circuit. There are a number of other things planned to make the place brighter and brighter, things we hope will make the afternoons more entertaining for all patrons."

Tom Dorsey, assistant general manager and director of racing, believes the DRC will have the best class of horses in several years.

The likable Dorsey has been touring tracks in the east, midwest and far west for new names and new faces and the stall applications reflect his efforts.

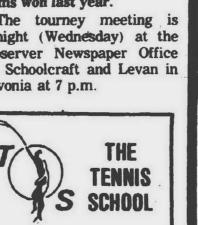

Dorsey would like to think the DRC could induce the owners of Secretariat to enter the super horse in the $100,000 Michigan Mile ... he hasn't given up hope but feels there is little likelihood the Big Red will see much more action before retiring for stud duties.

"We'd like to get Big Red but from all indications he may only race once or twice and then in the east. There's always hope until the deadline passes.

WHEN PLANNING a family room, don't overlook anything. Here a seldom-used closet was turned into an attractive wet bar. An overall decor was achieved by paneling all the wall areas with wormy-chestnut-grained plank. This prefinished paneling is highly-resistant to hard wear; can be damp-wiped clean. If desired, the wet bar can be closed off with the folding doors.

Marlite's textured paneling, such as the light wormy chestnut design, is attractive and practical. It can withstand hard wear; be damp-wiped clean.

This prefinished paneling comes in 16" x 8' planks, which can be installed over old walls or new framing. Tongue-and-grooved edges simplify fitting.

Wallboard adhesive and concealed metal clips assure a strong bond.

Window Valances Of Paneling

Valance making and window finishing are tedious arts, eluding many homemakers and discouraging remodeling.

The simple solution: permanent valances made of paneling.

Ideally, valances would be included in an accent wall or room paneling job, depending upon placement of windows. Width of valance board is determined by size of window.

rainfall. All regions experience some summer drought from time to time. Then watering capability makes the difference between having an attractive lawn or otherwise. Lawns on sandy soils should be irrigated frequently at ample rates for brief intervals. Light sprinkling over a more prolonged span is appropriate for lawns on heavier soils.

If you are making a new lawn, consider installing one of the inexpensive plastic systems underground. Then the water need only be turned on at the spigot. At very little additional cost time-clock valve regulators can be had to water the lawn automatically.

Whether it is airplanes or can openers, manufacturers know that noisy products sell better. According to manufacturers' market research. the buying public apparently continues to believe noisy models to be more powerful and efficient.

All this hesitation on the part of both the consumer and the manufacturer makes necessary government-imposed noise standards and controls.

The U.S. government has only recently moved into the noise control field in a big way. Under the Noise Control Act of 1972, the Environmental Protection Agency has been charged with the setting and enforcement of permissible noise levels for new transportation, construction, electrical and other machinery. National noise emission standards, however, are not expected out until at least October 1974. The Department of Transportation is drawing up specifications to make freeways less noisy. All public construction projects now require environmental impact statements that include estimates of how much noise they are going to

Congratulations To Farmington Hills, The Area's Newest City

Last week they made a new city up in Farmington, when on July 2 the first city council members of the City of Farmington Hills were sworn in, terminating the existence of Farmington Township and inaugurating a new unit of local government.

The ceremonies marked yet another instance of what has become a fairly regular pattern of development in these rapidly growing suburbs.

Initially, when population density was low and needs for services slight, pieces of land were incorporated as townships, as was the case in Livonia or Westland (formerly called Nankin Township.) When concentrations of people warranted it, villages were created (as in the case of Plymouth or Farmington, both incorporated as villages in 1867.)

As growth continued and the needs grew for fire and police protection and road construction, gradually townships and villages gave way to home rule cities with expanded local government pow-

Livonia Township became a city in 1950; Plymouth Village became a city in 1932; Nankin Township became the City of Westland in 1964 and Southfield emerged into cityhood in 1957.

Looked at in this light, the development of Farmington Township into a new city is a simple, appropriate, sensible response to the fact of growth. With a population of 50,000 the township had developed to the point where the restrictions of the township form of government had simply become too bothersome to be allowed to continue.

Hence, a new city. Farmington Hills, now joining the ranks of only 262 other incorporated cities in the state.

OF COURSE, there was much much more to it than that.

There were various annexation attempts by the old City of Farmington which antagonized township residents fearing loss of tax base. There was a remarkable community-wide effort put forth to consolidate the city, the township and the villages within the township into a new unified city. This sensible idea failed when the voters of Farmington City turned down the ballot proposition.

Township residents immediately turned to work at obtaining city status, and literally hundreds of people worked countless hours first getting voter approval to write a city charter, then writing that document, and finally campaigning successfully for its pas-

Working carefully, patiently, modestly in this process was the man who deserves to be called the father of Farmington Hills: Bob McConnell.

He's not physically a big man, or a very impressive public speaker, but he's able, he's persistent, and he has that knack of working with people, and as the last supervisor of Farmington Township and the first mayor of Farmington Hills, he deserves every word of congratulation he

THE INAUGURAL ceremonies up in the modern township (oops, city) hall on 11 Mile Road were simple, small town and impres-

The Farmington Community Concert Band (Bill Conroy's grand idea for community pride and fun) looked smart in its black and red uniforms. They played "It's Only Just Begun," and got a laugh from the crowd of 300 or so who jammed the auditorium.

Friendly, if competitive, greetings came from the City of Farmington officials, who presented the new city with a wheelbarrow and shovel as a start for the new city department of public works.

Municipal Judge Mike Hand presented plaques of appreciation to outgoing township officials: Clerk Floyd Cairns, Treasurer Thomas Nolan, and Trustee L. David Stader. As Cairns, the friendly, persistent, owlish man who had done so much for the township for so many years, was given his plaque, the entire audience rose in spontaneous applause; if you watched carefully, you could see his lower lip tremble just a little in the emotion of the moment.

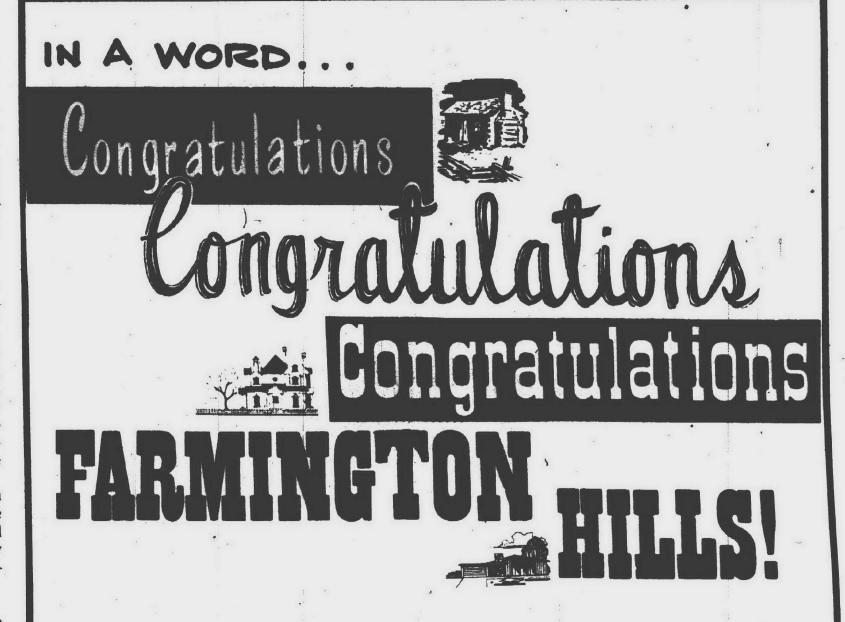

Standing erect with red, white and blue boutonnieres at their lapels, the new city council (Keith Deacon, Joan Dudley, Frederick Lichtman, McConnell, Earl Opperthauser, William Ortman and Margaret Schaeffer) sworn in by Frederick Ziem, Presiding Judge of the Oakland County Circuit Court.

IT WAS AN ending and a beginning, and a moving moment.

It was particularly moving for me, since as I stood there watching a new city take birth before my eyes, I recalled that a man named Arthur Power had in 1824 come from Farmington, New York, to Michigan woods and wilderness and made the first settlement not three miles from the new city hall.

The diary his son kept is still in our family, and I wondered if the fierce old Quaker pioneer could have imagined what eventually would become of his little settlement.

A city! Farmington Congratulations, Hills.

Mail Rates Soaring, Service Worse Than Ever

Interesting indeed are reports from Washington that the Postal Service Corporation will seek another increase to 10 cents, up two cents from the current rate of eight cents, for first class letters.

E.T. Klaasman, head of the corporation, cites rising costs as the reason for the request. The major item is payroll where employes are demanding hikes to conform with those given federal government workers.

Strange that Klaasman should ask for an increase in rates when the postal service is just about the poorest it ever has been. Principally due to cutbacks ordered by the corporation, slashes have cut the ranks to a point where many consider it just above the 'skeleton" point. It will be recalled that mail deliveries during the Christmas rush were the slowest in years because postmasters were told not to use additional help and not to make any effort to deliver on the day before Christmas, a Sunday.

Thus, trucks loaded with thousands of parcels and Christmas cards were not unloaded on the Saturday before the holiday and remained in the post office lots until the day after Christmas.

That's just one of the things that have been irking folks in all parts of the land. Delivery was poor then and apparently it has become worse since.

Especially is this true in the suburbs and we point our finger to the seven communities in which the Observer newspapers are circulated.

We don't believe customers would find fault with an additional two-cent hike in the cost of mail deliveries if the deliveries were made within a reasonable time period.

Remember back when it cost two cents for a first class letter which arrived at its destination within a day or two, even though going halfway across the conticards and the days when one sent a special delivery letter and knew it would be in the hands of the receiver the next day? Those days are gone forever. In fact, we recall reading about the eventful days of the pony express and often wonder if it wouldn't be better to have that kind of service today. At least, folks then knew the letter would arrive eventually ...unless the rider was cut down by an Indian tribe. . . and were content to have it reach destina-

Now one expects a message to go from Livonia to Plymouth or from one point in Livonia to another in one day: That's what people believe is taking place when they put a letter in the box today and believe it will be there tomorrow.

One should warn all, don't pay your taxes by mail on the next to last day and expect to meet the deadline. Our experience of recent date is that items placed in the mail today may not reach another address in the same city for as many as five days.

This came to light a few days ago when a news item was mailed to the Observer offices on Schoolcraft in Livonia from a point at Six Mile and Middle Belt, also in Livonia, on a Thursday afternoon and arrived the following Monday. Lucky for the newspaper, the item wasn't of a rush type because it never would have been published in time.

We must point out this isn't the fault of the carriers; it is the fault of the new systems used by the Postal Service. They may be de-, signed for better and quicker service but when one considers the distance involved was less than five miles. . .then we must shout "bring back the pony express, it would have made the delivery the next day."

Similar experiences have occurred in recent dates with delivery from Birmingham to Southfield taking four or five days, from Livonia to Plymouth four days, from Redford Township to Livonia four days. All of which makes one wonder when Congress will finally decide the Postal Service Corporation is not doing the job it is supposed to.

Out Canton Township way, homeowners have been blasting Plymouth Postmaster John Mulligan for failure to arrange door to door deliveries in the many new subdivisions that have sprung up like flowers in late spring.

Sure, the homes have mail service, but that is saying a lot and leaves a great deal to be desired ...the delivery is in boxes at the end of the street. We can remember the scenes of our childhood when there could be as many as 35 boxes in a single cluster and folks walked as far as a half-mile to get their mail. That was a long time ago and it would seem logical the postal service would have improved over same tale of woe seems to come from every new subdivision devel-

It wasn't so long ago that Livonia dedicated its new post office on Merriman Road while pickets surrounded the place. These weren't employes making demands, but homeowners in a

Road seeking home-to-home deliv-

Eventually their demands were met but it took a long time. The demonstration, coming as it did, showed how desperate these people were. Imagine picketing at a dedication to prove their point.

The late Arthur Jenkins, longtime postmaster at Livonia, rapped the cutbacks in service more than once to friends. It was his contention that local postoffices could not continue the kind of service he took so much pride in unless permitted to add more work-

He pointed out that Livonia was growing and needed more and more mailmen to make deliveries but he couldn't get permission to add any unless homeowners protested as they did at the dedica-

He realized service was getting worse and worse and bemoaned the delays in deliveries, especially two and three days to handle items in Livonia alone.

"Just think," he often said, "A letter mailed in Livonia to an address in Livonia taking three days. That's_the kind of service the system has forced us into."

Perhaps that's why the Postal Service Committee of the Congress is holding a hearing Friday morning at 9 in the City-County building. The group headed by Rep. James Hanley (D-NY), will take testimony from mayors, unions, businessmen, neighborhood groups, etc.

Rep. William Ford (D-Michigan) is the only member from this state.

Mayor Eugene McKinney, of Westland; Canton Twp. Supervisor Phil Dingeldey, and others from the area plan to testify.

The committee will hear complaints from the townships that new subdivisions are not getting proper mail service and that the Postal Service Corporation is not getting the job done. If you are in a business that receives as much mail daily as Observer Newspapers, then you'll have to agree that the service today isn't as good as the days of the pony express. Five days for a delivery from only four miles away. That has to be a case of where the snail is faster than the

WESTLAND RESIDENTS Jim and Maria Kjellin, who met at the Detroit Race Course in Livonia, have come up with the year's best Trifecta. Their triplets were born June 15 in Annapolis hospital, but it's been less than two weeks that all three have been home. The sleepy babies (from left) are James Dale, who weighed four pounds, five ounces at birth; Tanya Maria, first born and five pounds 41/2 ounces; and Leo Andrew, five pounds four ounces. "They're getting more sleep than we are," reports their father. who also insists he's going to teach all three to play chess. Maybe the horses too? (Observer photo by Bob Woodring)

This is the week I turn into a clipping service. Daughters at camp always leave a long list of the newspaper comics and columns and sports sections they simply must read.

And this week we have an unusual situation - two members of the family off in different directions, attending girl scout and music camps. I have to admit I'm still getting used to the idea of having the two older girls, who had been the campers for so long, staying home on their summer jobs and the younger ones being away. But the clipping service gives continuity.

I'll be pretty good about it at first. Always get off a letter or two jam-packed with reading matter.

I have to, you see. My letters, ungarnished, just are no match for the gems their father sends off

But then I start slacking off on the job. The papers get away and the envelopes get thinner. That's as it should be, the girls tell me. By the ics or columns anyway. We wouldn't want to miss the camp weeks even though they leave a couple of holes in the family circle and many holes in the newspapers.

Robert E. FitzPatrick, chairman of the board of commissioners, called the contract "one that we can all respect and live with."

"The settlement is fair and equitable for both the employe and the taxpayer," he said. He emphasized that the contract settlement will not require an increase in taxes.

FitzPatrick also said that "it is difficult to project revenues for three years when we have a fixed base," and warned that the county may eventually need additional taxes or state assistance if salaries continue to escalate.

He pointed out that the package will be difficult to finance, "but it is not beyond what we think is reasonable at this time."
